LIBRARY
THE MUSEUM
OF MODERN ART
Received:

FL
FER

FL
2759

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2011 with funding from Media History Digital Library

http://www.archive.org/details/movingpicturewor30newy

Vol. 30, No. 1 October 7, 1916 Price 15 Cents

H. E. HOFFMAN

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "The Flower of Faith" (International).

Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510

The Thanhouser Laboratories are Open to You

Have You Ever Felt, Mr. Producer, That Your Photography Lacked A Truly Artistic Touch?

Have You Ever Wished That You Could Get Developing and Printing Equal To That Shown Consistently in Thanhouser Plays?

Your Wish Can Come True. The Thanhouser Film Corporation Is Now In A Position To Do Your Work.

No little part of the excellence of Thanhouser photography is due to superior developing and printing. No laboratory is better equipped than the Thanhouser Film Corporation's; none is manned by artists more expert.

The Thanhouser Film Corporation is not interested in contracting for work of an inferior quality, in which perfect developing and printing are not necessary.

For those Companies that have expensive negatives and demand that their prints be upon a par with their productions, the Thanhouser Film Corporation offers laboratory work unsurpassed.

THANHOUSER FILM CORPORATION

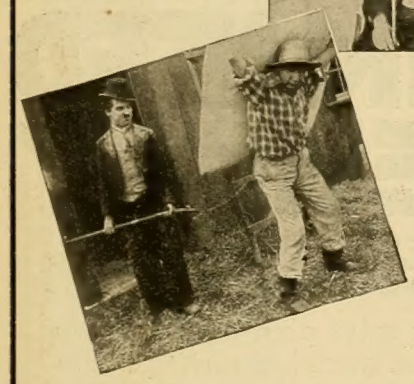
EDWIN THANHOUSER, President

New Rochelle, N. Y. Jacksonville, Fla.

FIRST

ESSANAY-CHAPLIN-REVUE

5 ACTS OF 1916 5 ACTS



THE YEAR'S GREATEST

LAUGHTER FROLIC

COMING SOON

Especially arranged by the Essanay company from the Essanay-Chaplin comedy successes "The Tramp," "His New Job," "A Night Out."

INFRINGERS BEWARE

All Essanay-Chaplin comedies are copyrighted in the Library of Congress and infringers will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

All New, Special Paper and Advertising Material

GENERAL FILM SERVICE

TRADEMARK Reg. U. S. Pat. 1907

ESSANAY

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle Street, Chicago

UNIVERSAL PROGRAM

The successful Exhibitor is the one who pleases his patrons all of the time. You can't do that with Features exclusively.

Upon its success in pleasing Exhibitors (through their patrons) the Universal Program has become the biggest thing in the film industry. The Universal Program has built up the largest film concern in the universe, and has carried thousands upon thousands of Exhibitors to success along with it.

A week's trial of the Universal Program will bring undeniable evidence in increased NET PROFITS to any Exhibitor who is struggling under the burden of costly features that do not get the crowds.

Not hundreds, but thousands upon thousands, of Exhibitors have proved this for themselves. They have taken on the Universal Program as a last resort, and have been joyfully surprised to find their profits greater in a month of Universal Program shows than in a year of Features.

Get in right today. Write your nearest Universal Exchange, and demand proofs as well as particulars.

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

CARL LAEMMLE, President

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY

Under the New Sales Plan, any Exhibitor may now secure the Universal Animated Weekly.

The new sales plan has let down the bars, and there is a rush of bookings that prove a greater popularity for the "Animated" than even its producers thought possible.

Heretofore only Exhibitors who showed the entire Universal Program could get the U. A. W. NOW—you, any of you, can book it as early and often as you please.

If you want to know what the Universal Animated Weekly will do for you, write the home office today. You can repeat its universal success in your town. It is beyond all question the world's greatest screen pictorial.

On Broadway, New York, in Philadelphia, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, in all the biggest theatres in the land the Animated is first choice of shrewd managers BECAUSE IT GETS THE MONEY.

Your share of this popularity will net you profit. Write for particulars today.

UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY

1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAYS

Presenting

"The Black Sheep of the Family"

with

Francelia Billington
Jack Holt and Paul Byron

A Romantic Drama of a Ne'erdowell

Directed by Jay Hunt

Book Through Any
UNIVERSAL Exchange

"A Play That Every Person in the World should see."
—ZIT—N. Y. Evening Journal

STATE RIGHTS
NOW SELLING

The Play That Astonished New York

IDLE WIVES

With All Humanity in the Cast

NOW PLAYING AT THE

MAXINE ELLIOTT THEATRE

39TH STREET AND BROADWAY, NEW YORK

Direct all communications, wires, letters or otherwise, to the STATE RIGHTS DEPARTMENT

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

CARL LAEMMLE, President
"THE LARGEST FILM MANUFACTURING CONCERN IN THE UNIVERSE."
1600 BROADWAY, New York.

The Swing of the Pendulum

There have been many changes in the motion picture business.

The Public taste is for short, snappy comedies, dramas and westerns.

The pendulum has swung back, and QUALITY and not QUANTITY is the vogue.

To keep your theater abreast of the times, and to satisfy public demand, you should lose no time in booking

Unicorn Films

Twenty-one reels of specially selected subjects are released weekly, in one, two and three reels.

You can book all or part of this program to suit your needs.

Get in touch with a
UNICORN EXCHANGE.

Unicorn Film Service Corpn.

126-130 West 46th Street NEW YORK CITY

28 Branches

KLEINE-EDISON-SELIG-ESSANAY

SERVICE

HENRY B. WALTHALL

the Mansfield of the Screen

with

ANTOINETTE WALKER

is presented in

"THE STING OF VICTORY"

in 5 acts

A romance of the South with stirring scenes of love and war.

Directed by J. Charles Haydon

COMING
Week of October 16th

EDNA MAYO

with

EUGENE O'BRIEN

is presented in

"THE RETURN OF EVE"

in 5 acts

A fascinating love story of a primitive boy and girl, unfolded in the natural settings of the wildwood, making of the play a masterpiece of art.

By Lee Wilson Dodd
Directed by Arthur Berthelet

BOOK THEM NOW

TRADEMARK Reg. U. S. Pat. 1907

ESSANAY

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle Street CHICAGO

KLEINE-EDISON-SELIG-ESSANAY

SERVICE

William Gillette

famous on stage and screen

is presented in the great

Super-Feature

"SHERLOCK HOLMES"

in 7 acts

This play was written by Mr. Gillette from the famed detective stories of A. Conan Doyle and the characterization given world renown by the genius of his interpretation. The character lives and moves on the screen with a fire of action.

Directed by Arthur Berthelet

BOOK IT NOW

Trademark
Reg. U. S. Pat. 1907

ESSANAY

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

By arrangement with F. Ziegfeld, Jr., George Kleine Presents Miss Billie Burke in Gloria's Romance.
For bookings apply to your nearest Kleine Exchange or write George Kleine, 80 5th Ave., New York City.

In Vicksburg during the Civil war, newspapers were printed on wallpaper!

The Crisis

IT INSPIRES PATRIOTISM

No. 1 SELIG'S GREATEST PRODUCTION Vol. 1

WILLIAM N. SELIG FILMS A MASTERPIECE "THE CRISIS" VERDICT

Wonderful Ten Reel Production Carrying A Logical Plot

William N. Selig has filmed the greatest of American film dramas in "The Crisis." That is the verdict of critics who have viewed preliminary presentations of this wonderful drama in ten reels. It has been pronounced a film drama that presents the great crisis in our national life with splendid power and with a sympathy, a sincerity, and a patriotism that are inspiring.

According to one famous authority, the Selig drama is skillful in plot, dramatic in episode, powerful and original in climax. It is not only a spectacular scenic production but has something more—a logical gripping story.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN IS REAL IN "THE CRISIS"

Sam D. Drane enacts the part of Abraham Lincoln, in the Selig drama of American Patriotism, "The Crisis." Critics aver that Drane's "Lincoln" is the most wonderful the movie screen ever saw. It appears as if Abraham Lincoln were really and truly there before you in the drama. Drane's "Lincoln" will go down as one of the best characterizations ever known.

SOUTHERN SCENES

Real Southern atmosphere was secured for "The Crisis" by sending a special company of players, under the direction of Colin Campbell, to Vicksburg, Mississippi. In many photoplays, the atmosphere is unreal. In "The Crisis" the Southern atmosphere is genuine.

"CRISIS" FACTS

Winston Churchill wrote "The Crisis," a story of our National life. The story has been filmed by the Selig Company with inspiring sympathy, sincerity and patriotism. There is not a scene in the film drama but what can be found in the story.

SHERMAN OPENS AN OFFICE IN GOTHAM TO PUSH PICTURE

Action Necessary To Accommodate Those Interested In State Rights

H. A. Sherman, President of Sherman-Elliott, Inc., which purchased a half interest in "The Crisis" from William N. Selig at the cost of a quarter of a million dollars, has opened offices at 220 W. 42nd Street, New York City. This action was necessary because of the flood of inquiries received from territorial rights buyers.

Mr. Sherman urges promptness on the part of those wishing to confer with him regarding "The Crisis" territorial rights for sale, for the policy of first come first served will be upheld. "The Crisis" is expected to create a furore among the motion picture public.

AN ALL-STAR CAST IN SELIG'S BEST DRAMA

A strictly all-star cast appears in the Selig wonder picture, "The Crisis," to be presented by William N. Selig and Sherman-Elliott, Inc. Among the stars can be named, George W. Fawcett as "Judge Silas Whipple"; Thomas Santschi, as "Stephen Brice"; Miss Bessie Eyton as "Virginia Carvel"; Mat B. Snyder as "Colonel Carvel"; Marshall Neilan, as "Clarence Colfax," and Eugenie Besserer as "Mrs. Brice."

OLDEST ACTOR

Matt B. Snyder, 82 years young, is without doubt the oldest actor in active work in Filmland. Mr. Snyder enacts the role of "Colonel Carvel" in the "The Crisis" and de-pite his years, puts vim and fire into his work. He scores a tremendous hit. He is as tall and as straight as an arrow.

SPECIAL AIDS

Special publicity aids have been prepared for those showing "The Crisis." A complete line of beautiful paper, heralds, lobby display photographs, electrotypes, etc., will be furnished. Inquiries should be made of Selig Company, 58 East Washington Street, Chicago.

ENTIRE STATE GUARD ENGAGED FOR "CRISIS" FILMED BY SELIG

Scenes Taken at Vicksburg, Miss. Right on Historic Ground of Story

Several thousand members of the Mississippi National Guard were employed by William N. Selig for "The Crisis" battle scenes. These scenes, directed by Colin Campbell, were filmed right on historical battle fields of the Civil War period and real fortifications used during the Civil War were utilized.

Thousands of men are seen in desperate warfare but these battle scenes are just enough in number to advance the action of Winston Churchill's great story. "The Crisis" is not a series of spectacular pictures, it carries a gripping plot.

BEAUTIFUL LIGHTING EFFECTS IN DRAMA

Beautiful lighting effects will be shown in "The Crisis," the greatest film drama ever released by the Selig Polyscope Company. Half interest in "The Crisis" for the United States and Canada has been acquired by Sherman-Elliott, Inc., who will exploit this feature picture in a manner suitable to its artistic worth. The photography is also clear-cut.

SPECIAL MUSIC

Prof. Michel Mowschine has composed the special musical score for "The Crisis," the magnificent film feature recently completed by the Selig Company.

This score has been pronounced very beautiful and will accompany presentation of the drama.

"THE CRISIS"

The story of "The Crisis" opens just before the Civil War, and the action is carried into that crisis in the life of this nation. There are spectacular battle scenes and leading characters both of the North and South are handled with sympathetic understanding. "The Crisis" will go down in Filmland's history as the greatest photoplay.

CAUTION

NOTICE TO THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY OF CANADA

Notice is hereby given that all contracts heretofore had by the World Film Corporation or the Equitable Motion Picture Corporation in Canada have been abrogated and are no longer in effect.

No one in Canada is authorized to sell, release, exhibit or deal in any of the pictures belonging either to the World Film Corporation or the Equitable Motion Picture Corporation.

It is the intent of this publication to give due notice to every one in the Canadian motion pictures trade of the above situation so that the trade may protect itself accordingly.

WORLD FILM CORPORATION

130 West 46th Street, New York City.

WORLD PICTURES BRADY-MADE

WORLD FILM SERVICE—

ON THE INSTANT

Every World Film Branch is a SERVICE STATION—with seat-selling, business-building service READY—FOR YOU.

This really puts the great World Film Corporation with all its seat-selling facilities and ability on the other end of your phone.

World franchise holders can call for World business-building service anywhere, at any time—AND GET IT, AT ONCE!

Put World Pictures and World Service on YOUR phone list NOW.

WILLIAM A. BRADY
in association with WORLD PICTURES
presents

FRANCES NELSON
and ARTHUR ASHLEY
in
"The Revolt"

HELEN WARE'S
Great Success
From the Story by EDWARD A. LOCKE
Author of "THE CLIMAX"
Directed by BARRY O'NEIL

TRIANGLE

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF OCTOBER 1ST

"THE JUNGLE CHILD"

A wholly "different" Kay-Bee drama featuring Howard Hickman and Dorothy Dalton.

A vital, strong picture of undoubted charm and stirring mystery.

The romantic presentation of an unscrupulous and adventurous explorer who discovered a lost heiress in the depths of the Brazilian forests, and of the unsuspected and terrific developments that followed her transplanting to New York.

A "puller" in every sense of the word.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS in "MANHATTAN MADNESS"

This is a typical Fairbanks picture, and merely its announcement is sufficient to pack the house.

You already know this by experience, if you have ever run a Fairbanks picture.

Here is the rushing, dashing story of the young Westerner who comes East with the conviction that nothing exciting ever happens on the Atlantic seaboard, and who gets the greatest thrill of his life in New York City. If your audiences don't cheer this picture you can offer them your money back.

KEYSTONE COMEDIES

—Two of them. Isn't that enough to tell you?

TRIANGLE PLAYS

NA'S HUSBAND"

What the New York Newspapers say of "THE PRIMA DONNA'S HUSBAND"

WONDERFULLY impressive. It pulls at the heartstrings, and therefore appeals to the whole world.—Moving Picture World.

SHOULD meet with instant success. Rarely has such a highly dramatic picture been handled with finer effect.—Morning Telegraph.

MUST register forcefully. A decidedly human story, the points of which hit home every time.—Wid's.

HOLDS the interest with tenacity. An unusually well constructed photoplay.—Motion Picture News.

SO gripping that it leaves no chance for analyzation. Powerful climatic scenes, the acting of which is a thing of wonder.—Motion Picture Mail.

A GRIPPING and uplifting story with a tremendous heart appeal. Photography and lighting effects are technical perfection itself. Fully deserves the outburst of applause from the large audience at the finish.—N. Y. Evening Journal.

SELDOM, if ever, has an audience been so completely stirred. From every standpoint, one of the biggest money-getters of the year.—New York Star.

IT held the house completely spellbound by reason of its great heart appeal. Superbly acted and beautifully produced. The audience applauded and—wept. —New York Review.

EVERYTHING about the picture lifts it far above the average program release.—Variety.

ORIGINAL twists in the splendid development of a powerful story. The picture is exceptionally good.—Dramatic Mirror.

AROUND THE WORLD IN 80 DAYS

ADAPTED FROM

JULES VERNE'S

WORLD FAMED NOVEL - READ BY MILLIONS

MODERNIZED AND PICTURIZED
IN SIX FASCINATING PARTS

ONLY ONE THEATRE BOOKED IN TOWNS OF 100,000 OR UNDER.
ALL THEATRES IN CITIES OF OVER 100,000 PROTECTED
ACCORDING TO NUMBER OF DAYS BOOKED.

ARRANGE NOW FOR EXCLUSIVE BOOKING IN YOUR CITY.

RELEASE DATE OCT. 15

GET BUSY!

OR YOUR COMPETITOR WILL

A THRILL IN EVERY SCENE

A PUNCH IN EVERY PART

A GREAT BOX-OFFICE ATTRACTION

$50 PER DAY

ADDRESS
126 W. 46TH ST. N.Y.C.

HERALD FILM CORP.
LEO ROSENGARTEN, PRES.

PHONE
6681 BRYANT

"We unhesitatingly recommend THE SHIELDING SHADOW as a box office attraction."

Lenn in the Billboard

Well managed thrills, sustained mystery, and genuine story interest; it should go well in the better class theatres as well as the cheaper ones. It has real fascination."

Agnes Smith in the Morning Telegraph.

Every reviewer has strongly praised Pathe's best serial!

Featuring GRACE DARMOND, RALPH KELLARD and LEON BARY

uced under the direction of Louis J. Gasnier and Donald Mackenzie.

Complete Publicity Booklets.

PATHÉ PRODUCED BY ASTRA FILM CORP'N

The GRIP of EVIL
"The public seems to like
The Grip of Evil
as well as The Iron Claw"
An unsolicited testimonial from the Poli Theatre, Waterbury, Conn.
The Park Theatre of St. Paul, Minn., says: "The Grip of Evil has been a hot weather life saver for us. On Monday and Tuesday, our Grip of Evil nights, we have cut down our service one reel in order to take care of our patrons."
Complete Publicity Booklets.
NEL PHILLIPS
PATHÉ
Produced by BALBOA

Chronicle Press
Orange - N. J.

Pathé Gold Rooster Plays

Florence La Badie

The Pillory

in five parts

A scathing denunciation of bigotry and most effectively portraying types of character such as Hawthorne made immortal in "The Scarlet Letter"

Featuring the favorite

Florence La Badie

Produced by Thanhouser

Released Oct. 8th

— RECENT AND FORTHCOMING GOLD ROOSTER PLAYS —

The Fear of Poverty – Sept. 10	The Pillory – – – Oct. 8
The Test – – – – Sept. 17	The Light That Failed – Oct. 15
Saint, Devil and Woman – Sept. 24	Prudence The Pirate – Oct. 22

GOLD ROOSTER PLAYS

REG.

Pathé

What a discerning exhibitor says of

Luke Comedies produced by Rolin

"You sent us a Lonesome Luke' down here and believe me 'Luke' put it all over ____ (mentioning by name a famous comedian). This is no bull and I can assure you 'Luke' made 'the high priced one' look like thirty cents."

Tony Zellers of the Perry Theatre, Hazard, Ky.

"Luke" comedies make the best program better.

Current Release

"Luke's Speedy Club Life"

Released Oct. 1

Pathé

American Fashions

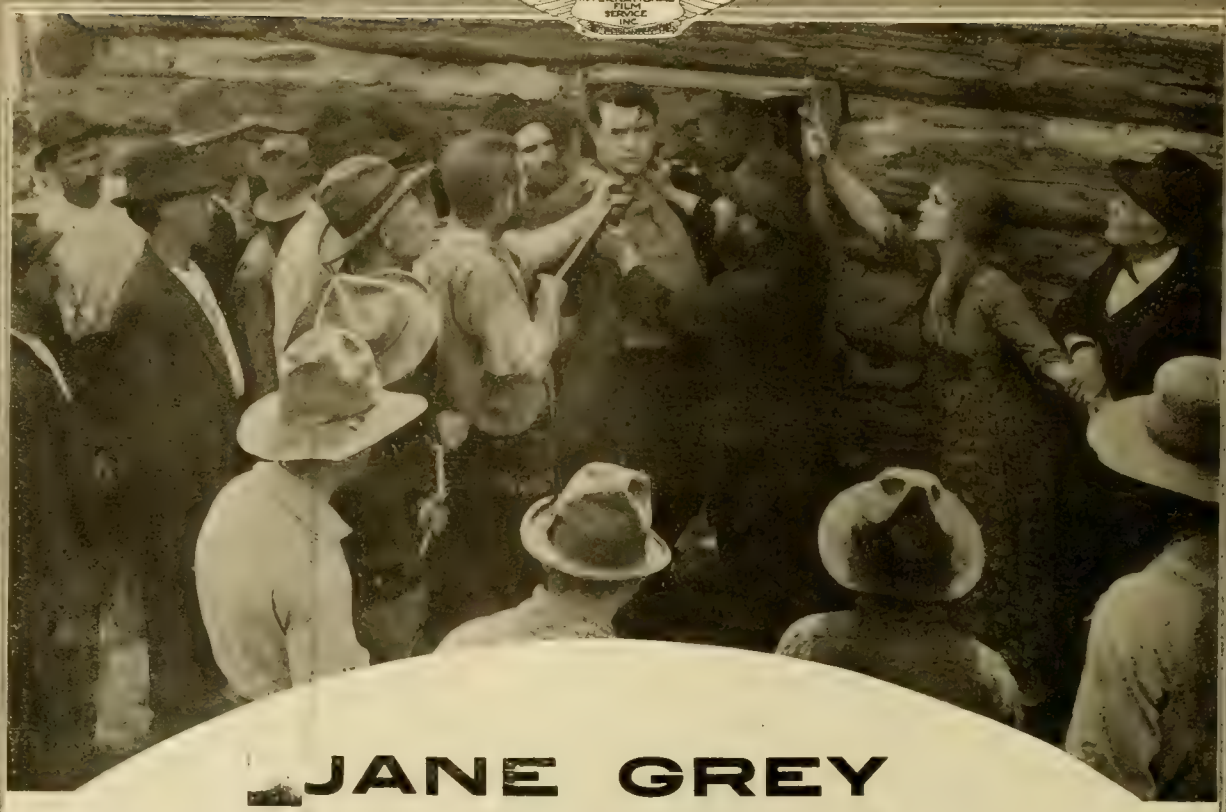
Produced by Miss Florence Rose

"Betty Selects her Bridesmaid Frock"

Released Oct. 1

The women like to see these fashions pictures because of the stunning costumes; the men like to see them because of the stunning girls. Everyone likes them and they bring business to the Exhibitor showing them.

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE INC.



JANE GREY

IN

"THE FLOWER OF FAITH"

WITH

FRANK MILLS

A Powerful Motion Picture Drama

Picturing

Seductive love scenes in daisy field and woodland.

Thrilling adventure with one of America's most picturesque waterfalls as a background.

The tragedy of an Evangelist father's misconception of a secret visit by his daughter to the cabin of an unbeliever.

Flaring torches silhouetted against the night, to mark the gathering of a band of night-riders—self-appointed executors of grim frontier justice.

The final triumph of faith and love through the interception of Providence.

Culminating with the Most sensational storm scene ever shown in motion pictures.

Produced by Superb Pictures Corporation for the

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE, Inc.

729 Seventh Avenue
New York

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE INC.

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE INC.

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE INC.

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE INC

"Outside the Law"

This latest episode of the BEATRICE FAIRFAX series is brim full of bright, clean comedy.

In this picture Harry Fox has an unusual opportunity to display the high class comedy which made him such a great favorite on the stage.

But there is more than comedy to the picture. There are tense, dramatic situations and romantic love scenes.

Like all other episodes of the BEATRICE FAIRFAX series, "Outside The Law" is itself a complete story.

Forty-six newspapers in leading cities of the United States print the stories of these episodes of Beatrice Fairfax each evening.

This is one example of "unparalleled publicity and unexcelled pictures"—the service which the International Film Service, Inc., is giving to exhibitors.

Beatrice Fairfax

Featuring

HARRY FOX

noted comedy star

and

GRACE DARLING

winsome charmer of the screen

Produced by Wharton, Inc., for the

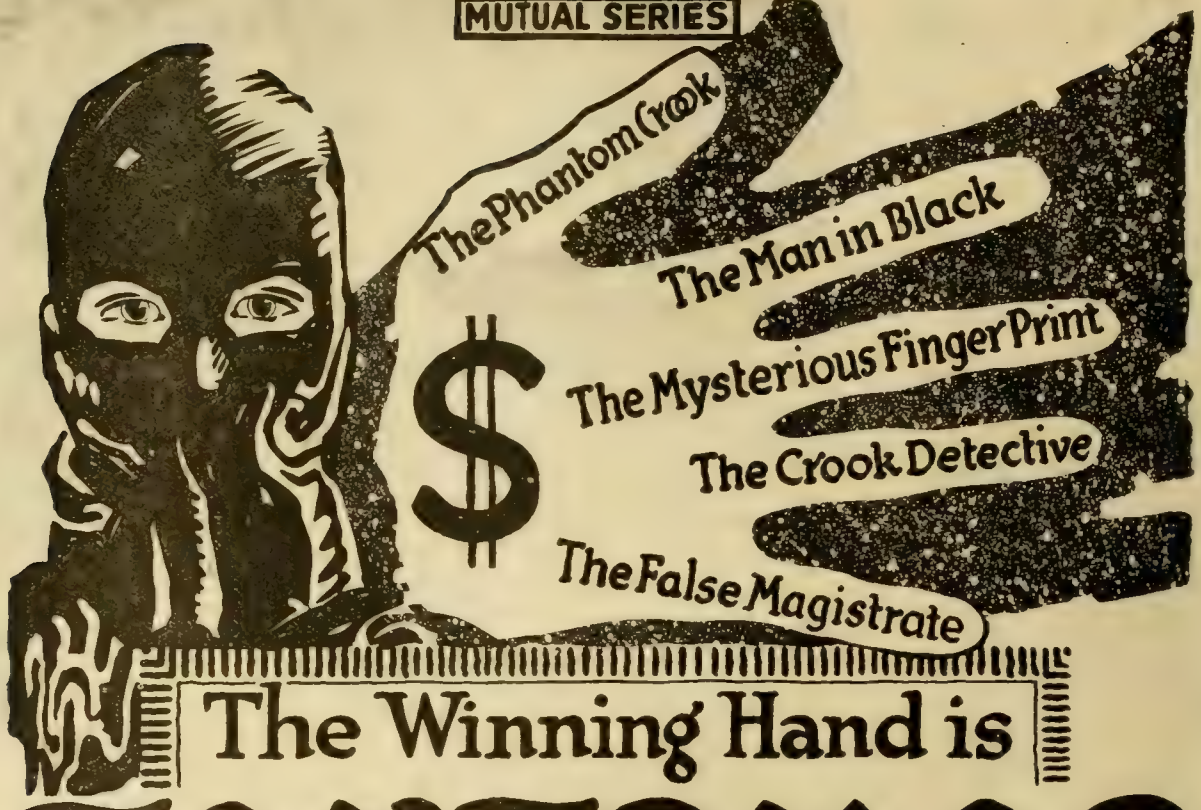
INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE, Inc.

729 Seventh Avenue
New York

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE INC.

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE INC.

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE INC.



The Winning Hand is FANTOMAS

THE popularity of your theater depends on your success in making regular visitors of your patrons. You can do this with the least effort by showing "Fantomas." It is a cleanly sensational series that holds the interest from one episode to the next. Each is "a perfect cloud of sensations," while the end "leaves the spectator in profound suspense." Read the trade paper reviews yourself and take their judgment.

Millions of people have read about Fantomas in the great syndicate of newspapers that published the stories this summer. They are now eager to see the world's greatest criminal on the screen. Also remember that "Fantomas" is a proved success. It has already magnetized millions of dollars into motion picture box-offices all over the world.

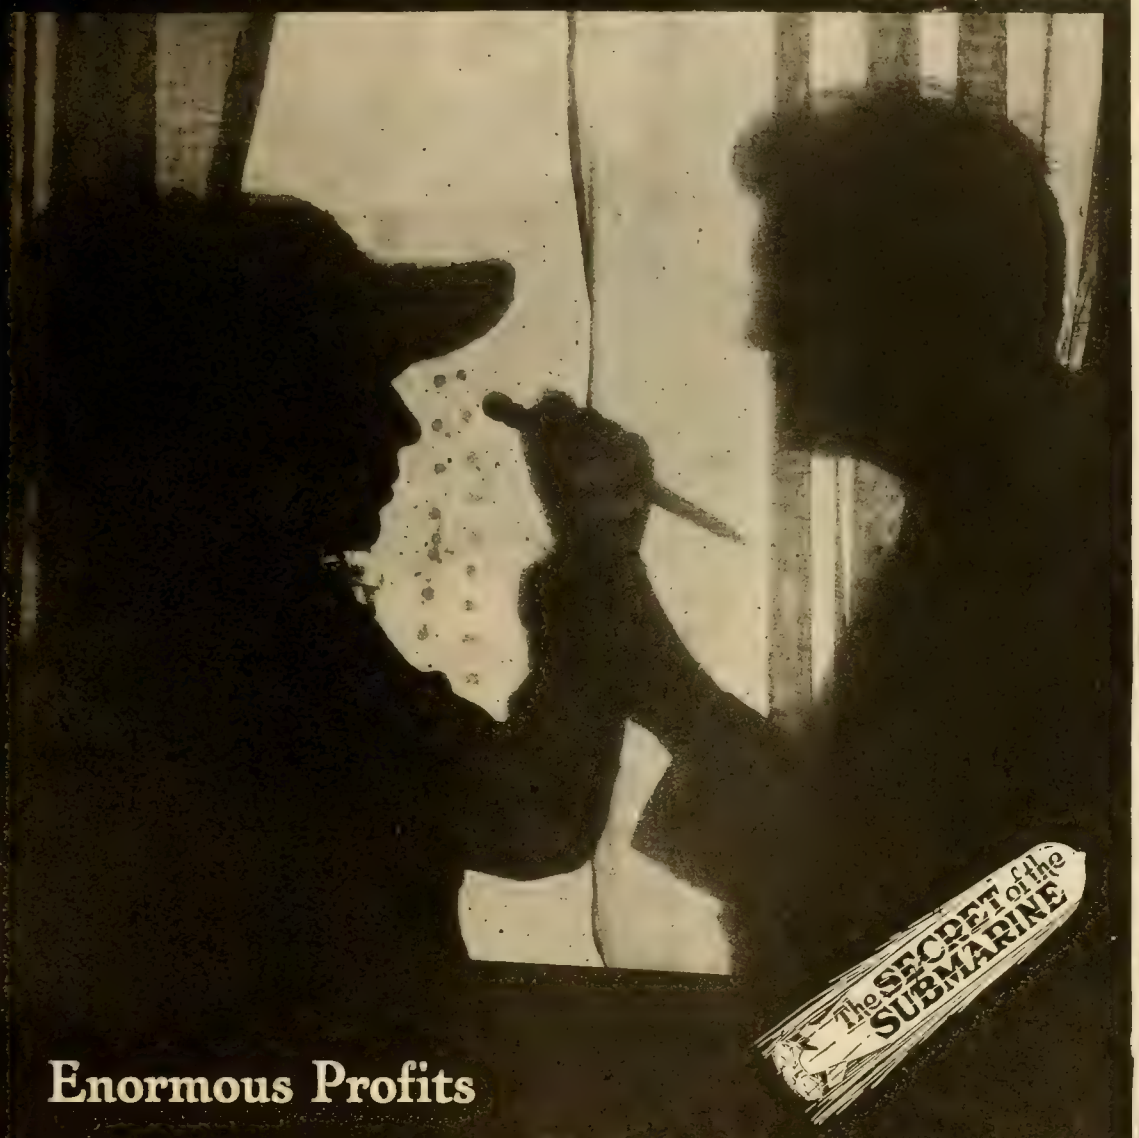
IMPORTANT You can get "Fantomas" only through the Mutual Film Corporation. Book the five three-reel episodes at your nearest Mutual Branch TODAY.

WATCH FOR "THE VAMPIRES, or THE ARCH CRIMINALS OF PARIS," SOON TO BE RELEASED IN NINE COMPLETE EPISODES OF THREE REELS EACH.

GAUMONT COMPANY

FLUSHING, N. Y. JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

MUTUAL SPECIAL FEATURE



Enormous Profits

Showing "The Secret of the Submarine"

"The financial returns were beyond our expectations. Any exhibitor cannot go wrong in booking this excellent serial." ¶ Such was the success enjoyed by the Colonial Theatre of Cincinnati, and thousands of other pleased exhibitors. ¶ The story, by E. Alexander Powell, has been published in more than a thousand prominent newspapers. Millions demand to see this smashing, patriotic, chaptered Mystery Play.

Book It Today —at any Mutual Exchange—or apply to the Mutual Film Corporation, 222 South State Street, Chicago

AMERICAN FILM CO., Inc.
SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON, President
Chicago, Ill.

MUTUAL PICTURES

Slapstick with a Reason

VOGUE COMEDIES

"A Touch of High Life"

VERSATILE PADDY McQUIRE—VOGUE favorite—steps into this 2-act VOGUE as a "white wing," pushing his brush and dirt cart.

OF all the comic plots and action in which he has ever been photographed, this is the most comical. It's a riot of laughs!

GYPSY ABBOTT, always pretty and forceful in her screen personality, adds much to the appeal of this subject.

UNUSUALLY attractive are the bathing girls, who play a prominent part in the development of the plot.

EXHIBITORS: Be sure to book this snappy VOGUE comedy. It's a money-making attraction. Released October 8th.

Booking at any Mutual Exchange

Vogue Films, Inc. General Offices: 6235 BROADWAY CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Studio: Santa Monica Blvd., at Gower Street, Los Angeles, Cal.

MUTUAL NEWS

"What's Going On In The Mutual"

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION. 68 EXCHANGES

VOL. I | OCTOBER 7, 1916 | No. 4

"The Pawnshop" Is The Newest Chaplin Mutual Special

ANOTHER Charlie Chaplin Mutual Special Feature will be released to exhibitors beginning Monday, October 2. It is two reels in length, like the others in the series. Its title is "The Pawnshop." As the title suggests, Charlie appears as the clerk of a pawnbroker. The surroundings of a pawnshop give him almost limitless possibilities for comedy. Charlie fairly outdoes himself in taking advantage of these possibilities. He manages to get a laugh out of the most commonplace of situations. He invents new situations constantly.

Charlie's Newest Antics.

Charlie Chaplin's antics in the new two-reel Mutual Special Feature are the funniest he has performed to date. At an advance showing of the film in one Mutual exchange to a whole roomful of exhibitors, the laughs came so thick and fast that it was impossible to keep track of them. Men who seldom smile at the broadest kind of slapstick comedy not only smiled but laughed until on the verge of tears. The whole roomful voted it "a riot!" The laughs that Charlie manages to get out of his "business" with the sign in front of the pawnbroker's would alone take an adding machine to tabulate. And that is only one scene in the two-reeler. "The Pawnshop" is the sixth of the series of Chaplin Mutual Specials. The others are "The Floorwalker," "The Fireman," "The Vagabond," "One A. M." and "The Count." All six of them can be seen and booked at any of the sixty-eight Mutual film exchanges.

New Gaumont Series

This week sees the release of the fifth of the thrilling detective stories issued by the Mutual Film Corporation under the general title of the "Fantomas series." This unusual lot of photoplays, each three reels in length, proved such a success that a new series is now being arranged. "The Vampires" is the title of the new series. It is going to be even more sensational than was the "Fantomas series." A strange band of Parisian crooks operates under the name of "The Vampires." Each subject in the series will deal with a new exploit of this mystic band.

In furtherance of his policy of securing the most famous and most talented stars in all filmland for the leading roles in Mutual Star Productions, President John R. Freuler of the Mutual Film Corporation expects very soon to make some startling announcements.

The Week's Releases

Mutual Star Production.

Brand.	Title.	Reels.	Leads.
American.	Dulcie's Adventure	5	Mary Miles Minter

Mutual Master Picture.

American.	A Woman's Daring	6	Coxen & Greenwood.

Tuesday, Oct. 3d.

Beauty.	Slicking the Slickers	1
Oral Humphrey.

Wednesday, Oct. 4th.

Mutual.	Mutual Weekly No. 92	1
Gaumont.	See America First and Cartoons	1

Thursday, Oct. 5th.

Gaumont.	The False Magistrate Fantomas No. 5	3

Friday, Oct. 6th.

Thanhouser.	Arabella's Prince	2
Cub.	Oh for a Cave Man	1

Saturday, Oct. 7th.

Cub.	Won by a Fowl	1
Cub.	That Wonderful Wife	1

Sunday, Oct. 8th.

Vogue.	A Touch of High Life	2	McQuire & Abbott
Gaumont.	Reel Life.	1

"A Lass of the Lumberlands" Is New Signal Chapter-Play

President S. S. Hutchinson of the Signal Film corporation has just announced the release of a new chapter-play starring Helen Holmes. Its title is "A Lass of the Lumberlands." It is in fifteen chapters. J. P. McGowan, who directed the great success, "The Girl and the Game," is directing the new chapter-play. It will be released through the exchanges of the Mutual Film Corporation. Exhibitors can obtain the first chapter on Monday, October 23. The other chapters will be released weekly thereafter. Bookings are now being taken. The story of "A Lass of the Lumberlands" is a story of Big Business and the great lumbering industry of this country. It abounds in thrilling scenes, sensational feats of daring and yet is a logical story of real events in the great timber regions of the great North woods. A tremendous, nation-wide advertising and publicity campaign will be given this chapter-play. The exhibitors will be assisted in every way in getting the public to their theaters to see Helen Holmes in "A Lass of the Lumberlands." The new production was undertaken in response to the request of nearly 6,000 exhibitors who asked for "another Helen Holmes serial" following their tremendous success with "The Girl and the Game."

The sequel to the great serial film, "The Diamond From the Sky," has been finished. The release date will soon be announced.

Mary Miles Minter In Second Mutual Star Production

DAINTY MARY MILES MINTER comes back again this week in the second of her American-Mutual Star Productions. Its title is "Dulcie's Adventure." James Kirkwood directed it. He is the same man who directed "Tess of the Storm Country" and other Mary Pickford productions. Exhibitors everywhere know what that means. In Mary Miles Minter he has as charming an ingenue as the screen has ever seen. She has a tremendous following. "Film fans" everywhere will walk miles to see a Mary Miles Minter picture. That means money to the exhibitor. It means that he won't have to go out and seek an audience for his theatre. His audience will come to him. Every house that presented "Youth's Endearing Charm," the first of the Mary Miles Minter Mutual productions, made money. The exhibitors who booked it were satisfied. They are anxious to have more Mary Miles Minter pictures. They are booking the whole series of features in which this charming star appears. The second of the series is now ready.

"Dulcie's Adventure."

In "Dulcie's Adventure" Mary Miles Minter has a wonderful opportunity for the display of her talents. She appears again as an orphan. She is afflicted with two maiden aunts who make life far from enjoyable for her. One aunt finally arranges to send her to California to marry a supposedly wealthy count. Dulcie doesn't love the count, but cares for an humble grocery boy back in the South. The marriage is forced upon her, however. She doffs her antiquated hoopskirts and dons a white satin wedding gown. And then—at the church the count is proved an imposter and little Dulcie is free to find happiness with her grocery boy. It is a story with a strong human interest appeal. It is a picture that will delight any audience. It is being booked by all of the sixty-eight Mutual exchanges.

"A Woman's Daring."

"A Woman's Daring," a Mutual Masterpicture from the studios of the American Film Company, Inc., will be released through all Mutual exchanges beginning October 5. It features Edward Coxen and Winifred Greenwood. It is five reels in length and tells an absorbing story. The photography of the American Film studios is famous wherever pictures are shown. This picture is no exception to the rule. It is a rare evening's entertainment. Exhibitors can see it at any of the sixty-eight Mutual film exchanges.

AMERICAN FILM COMPANY, INC., Presents

The Famous Star

MARY MILES MINTER

IN

DULCIE'S ADVENTURE

The Story of a Pretty Little Southern Orphan Girl's Adventure Into Matrimony. A Sympathetic, Appealing, Human-Interest Drama in Five Acts. Released Oct. 2nd. Directed By JAMES KIRKWOOD.

Second of a Series of Mutual Star Productions Featuring Mary Miles Minter. Book the Entire Series at Any of the 68 Mutual Exchanges. Now Playing: MARY MILES MINTER in YOUTH'S ENDEARING CHARM

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION Announces

THE NEWEST CHAPLIN RELEASE
BEGINNING OCTOBER SECOND

CHARLIE CHAPLIN
IN
THE PAWNSHOP

A RIOT OF ORIGINAL COMEDY SITUATIONS. SIXTH OF THE NEW MUTUAL-CHAPLIN SPECIALS, NOW BOOKING AT 68 MUTUAL EXCHANGES.

Now Playing: CHARLIE CHAPLIN in
THE COUNT THE FLOORWALKER
THE VAGABOND THE FIREMAN
ONE A·M·

AMERICAN FILM COMPANY, INC., Presents

The Popular Stars

WINIFRED GREENWOOD AND EDWARD COXEN

IN

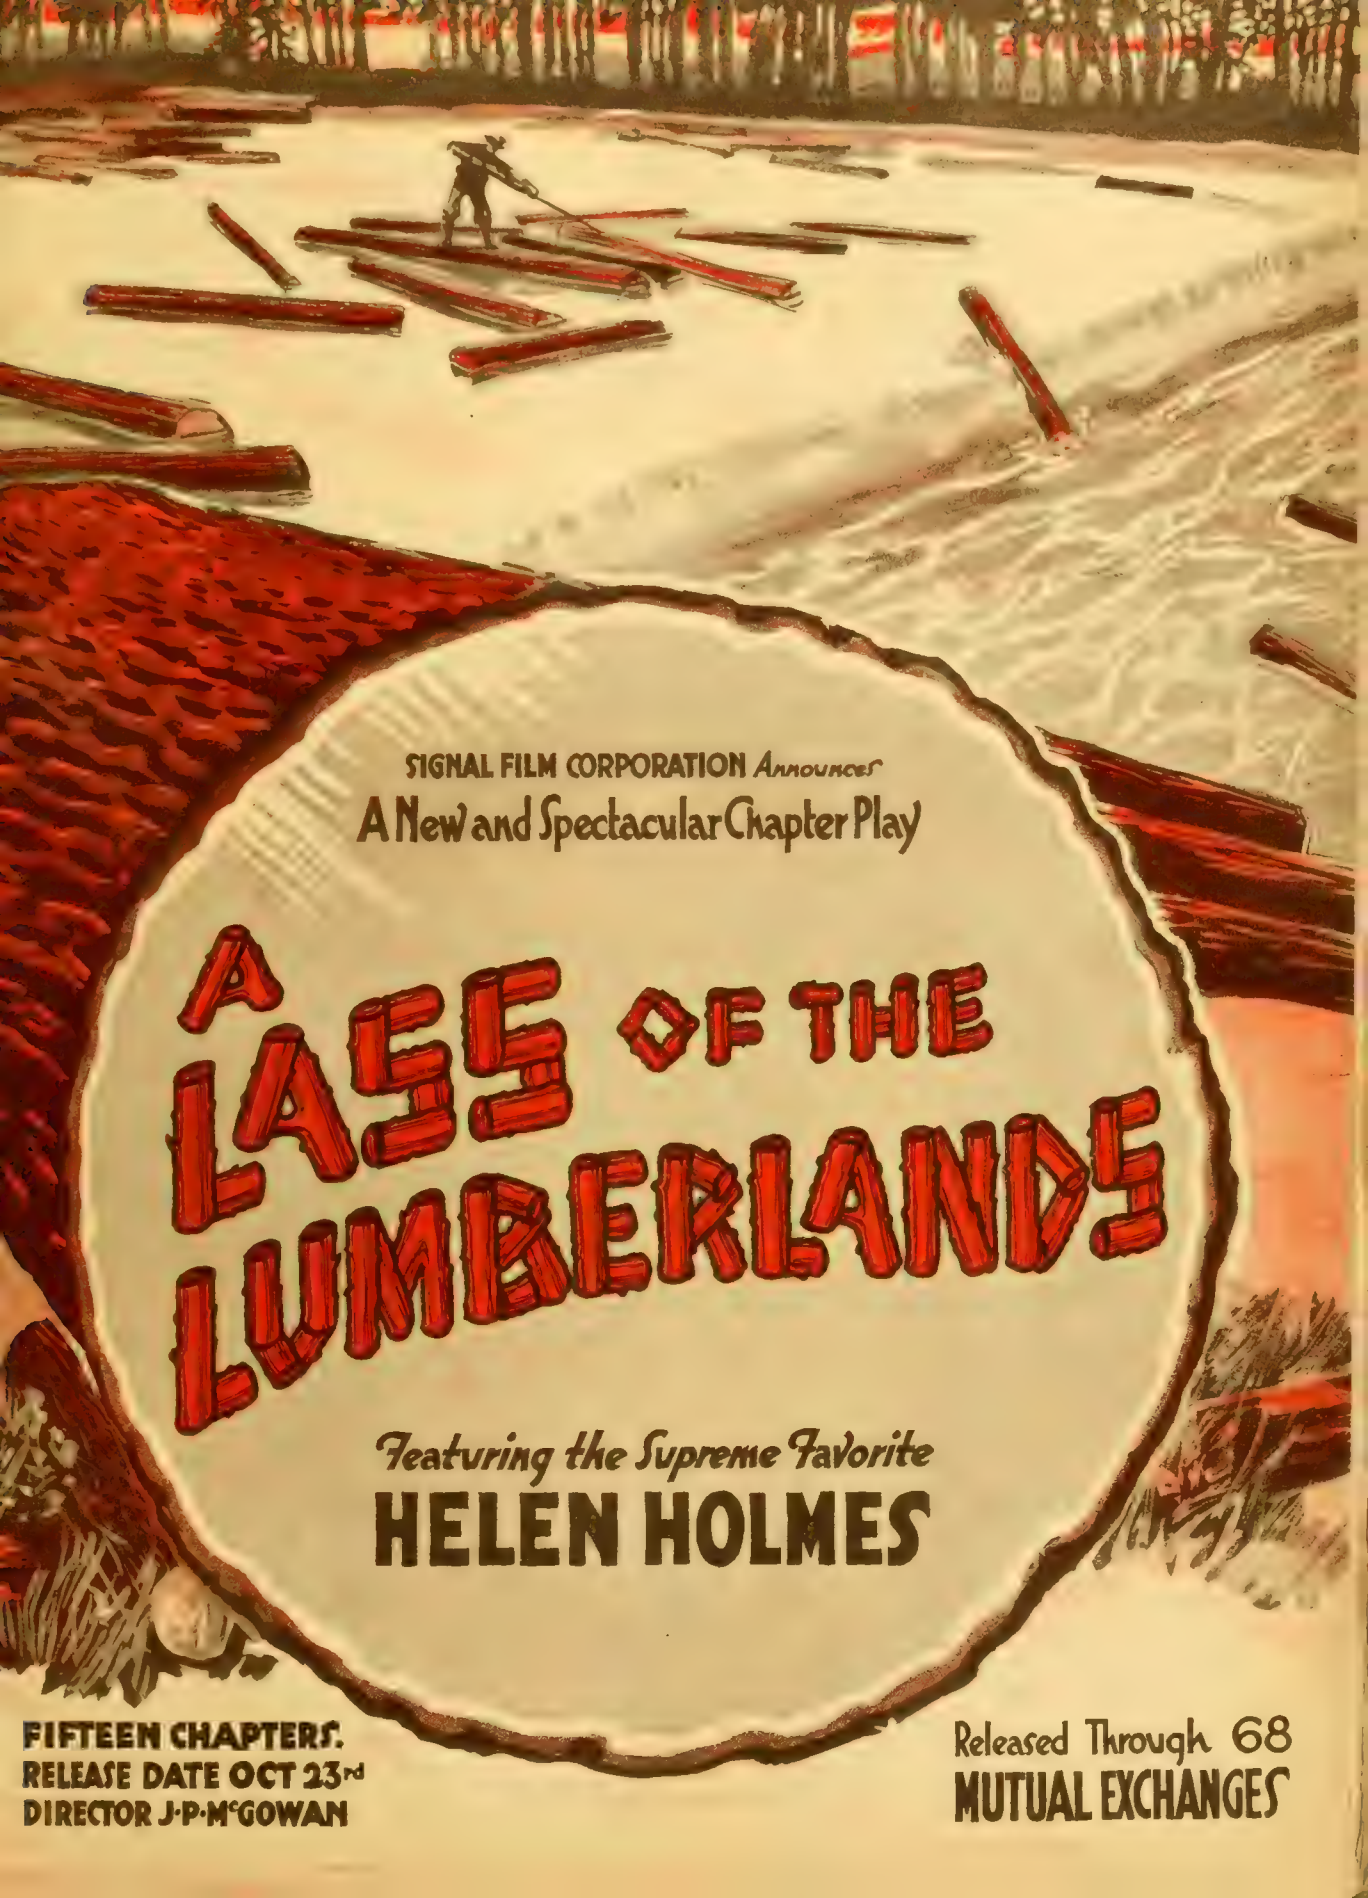
A WOMAN'S DARING

A SOCIOLOGICAL DRAMA IN FIVE ACTS. DIRECTED BY E·SLOMAN·RELEASED OCTOBER THE FIFTH·

AN EXTRAORDINARY MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE NOW BOOKING AT 68 MUTUAL EXCHANGES.



SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION Announces
A New and Spectacular Chapter Play
A LASS OF THE LUMBERLANDS
Featuring the Supreme Favorite
HELEN HOLMES
FIFTEEN CHAPTERS.
RELEASE DATE OCT 23rd
DIRECTOR J·P·McGOWAN
Released Through 68
MUTUAL EXCHANGES

Coming! HELEN HOLMES in

A LASS OF LUMBER

OF THE LANDS

Announcement—

We announce for release, beginning, Monday, Oct. 23rd, a new and spectacular chapter-play — Helen Holmes in "A LASS OF THE LUMBERLANDS." This production will be presented in fifteen feature chapters. Helen Holmes, the popular favorite of the big success "The Girl and the Game," is the star of this new production. The author is E. Alexander Powell. The director is J. P. MacGowan, who directed "The Girl and the Game." "A Lass of the Lumberlands" was produced by the Signal Film Corporation. It will be released thru the sixty-eight Mutual Exchanges in America.

"A Lass of the Lumberlands," starring Helen Holmes, is just such a play as its title implies. The story is laid in the great timber regions of the North woods, amid the mighty sequoias, pines and cedars, which make that country famous. As the film unfolds, every detail in the operation of the great lumber industry will be revealed. The lumber camp, the sawmill, the swirling river, the log jams, suggest some of the backgrounds that make "A Lass of the Lumberlands" a particularly spectacular motion picture work. The title suggests the opportunity for big scenes. Miles of railroads and fleets of freighters are brought into play.

Helen Holmes in "A Lass of the Lumberlands" is a worthy successor to the successful serial, "The Girl and the Game." In this new production will be found even more sensational scenes and greater thrills than in Helen Holmes' previous success.

"A Lass of the Lumberlands" offers tremendous profit possibilities to the exhibitor. Here are fifteen chapters with tremendous cumulative value. The exhibitor securing this big feature this Fall is certain of big box office receipts for fifteen weeks thru the winter.

You Exhibitors who know of Helen Holmes' tremendous success in "The Girl and the Game" will be anxious to book this new Helen Holmes chapter-play, "A Lass of the Lumberlands," at once. Bookings are now being made at Mutual Exchanges.

For Bookings Wire or Write Your Nearest

MUTUAL EXCHANGE

(See Next Page)

SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION Presents

Popular HELEN HOLMES

IN A NEW STORY IN FIFTEEN SPECTACULAR CHAPTERS

A LASS OF THE LUMBERLANDS

BOOK THIS BIG FEATURE CHAPTER PLAY NOW! —At Any Mutual Exchange!

You exhibitors who are seeking big box office receipts—you who are seeking a steady patronage for a long period of time—here's a feature chapter-play that stands out pre-eminently in the film field.

Helen Holmes in "A Lass of the Lumberlands" is a production full of thrills and dramatic climaxes—a feature that is bound to be a powerful magnet for any house.

"A Lass of the Lumberlands" will be backed by a tremendous National Advertising Campaign. Every avenue of publicity will be used to bring this remarkable production to the attention of the public

If you are looking for fifteen weeks of big box office receipts—if you are looking for something new in films—if you wish to take advantage of an unusual opportunity for BIG PROFITS—BOOK Helen Holmes in "A LASS OF THE LUMBERLANDS" NOW!

WIRE OR WRITE YOUR NEAREST MUTUAL EXCHANGE -AT ONCE!

IN the country of the blind the one-eyed man is king. Vision makes leaders. Foresight constantly brings new powers to the forefront. The ability to anticipate conditions—to estimate future developments—this quality is the stuff of which success is made.

The reign of the "one-eyed kings" is over in the moving picture industry—the exhibitor is no longer blind to his own best interests. A new deal is in the cards—one that means bigger profits for the film renter—better productions for the public and fairer terms for the star.

If you want a hand in this squarer game, book Clara Kimball Young Pictures.

First release now ready, "The Common Law," by Robert W. Chambers; Direction, Albert Capellani.

Lewis J. Selznick.

SELZNICK-PICTURES

KITTY GORDON

(The Hon. Mrs. H.H. Beresford)

in

"VERA, THE MEDIUM"

by

RICHARD HARDING DAVIS

Produced under the supervision of
G.M. (Broncho Billy) ANDERSON

A
SELZNICK SUPER-PICTURE
FOR NOVEMBER

HERBERT BRENON PRODUCTIONS
SELZNICK-PICTURES
ONE OF THE TERRIFIC SCENES IN
HERBERT BRENON'S
PRESENTATION OF NAZIMOVA
IN
"WAR BRIDES"
By Marion Craig Wentworth
TO BE RELEASED IN NOVEMBER THROUGH
LEWIS J. SELZNICK ENTERPRISES, INC.
NEW YORK CITY

The Sensation of the Season—At the Private Exhibition at the

STRAND THEATRE, NEW YORK

BENJAMIN CHRISTIE'S Dynamic Classic of the Silent Stage

"BLIND JUSTICE"

A Photo-Drama Destined to Sweep the Country, Just as it Carried New York's Critics off Their Feet in a Maelstrom of Enthusiasm

Rarely, if Ever Before, Has Any Feature Been Showered with Such Unanimous Praise. Stands Every Box-Office Test

HERE IS WHAT SOME OF THEM SAY:

W. STEPHEN BUSH, in M. P. World.

"Blind Justice" is in the main a wonderfully artistic appeal to pity. Mr. Christie himself takes the leading part. He impersonates a half-witted man of exceptional physical strength, the victim of a justice which is blind. He is wrongfully accused of a murder. He escapes from prison, but is recaptured under highly dramatic and pathetic circumstances. A woman befriends the escaped convict and wishes to protect him, but her will is overborne by the other members of the household, and, in spite of herself, she becomes the betrayer of the man she had intended to shield. A series of sensational events leads him into the home of the woman whom he wishes to punish, and the interest of the spectator is stimulated to the highest degree, until a powerful climax ends the story.

Mr. Christie, the director, rivals in fertility of invention and in talents for expression with Mr. Christie, the actor. His characterization of the central figure of the story is a splendid bit of artistic work. Indeed, the acting throughout the play is of an uncommonly high character, even in the minor parts. A special word of praise is due to the settings, which were noticeable for their solidity and their impressive realism.

H. S. FULD, in The M. P. News.

At the Strand theatre a representative audience was present at the private showing of "Blind Justice," of which Benjamin Christie was the author, producer and leading man, and saw a masterpiece of foreign make. For an hour and a half they sat as if spellbound as the film unwound, and at the end were most generous with their applause. And the film well deserved it.

Superb photography, masterly acting on the part of the principals, an exceedingly interesting plot with many tense situations, all helped not a little. But what impressed one most was the attention paid to the minutest detail, whether in interiors or exteriors, that some American producers would do well to emulate. To bear out the title, the story deals with the present-day tendency to convict and punish on purely circumstantial evidence.

Benjamin Christie, director general of the Dansk Biograf Company of Copenhagen, Denmark, is to be congratulated, and special commendation might be given Katherine Sanders, for her rendition of Ann, the girl in the story.

ADAM HULL SHIRK, N. Y. Telegraph.

Two things stand out pre-eminently in this picture—the acting of Mr. Christie and the photography. Coupled with the latter is the remarkably fine lighting.

The role of John Sikes, the victim of an error of justice, condemned to penal servitude for life, for a crime of which he is innocent, and, when he escapes, accorded about as much pity as would be given a rat released from a trap, is one requiring superior powers and the exertion of a high degree of intelligence to make it convincing. That Mr. Christie has succeeded is beyond doubt.

Miss Sanders, in the part of Ann, does exceptionally pleasing work, and the other members of the company lend admirable support.

The details of direction are finely carried out. The settings are realistic, and there is the general impression created that the utmost care has been taken to prevent errors or inconsistencies creeping in.

The touches of pathos in the picture are introduced without being overdone; the travesty on justice is strongly portrayed, and the atmosphere of suspense is carried throughout the picture, with pronounced effect. "Blind Justice" is a fine picture.

GEO. W. PARDY, in The Dramatic Mirror.

The enthusiastic reception accorded "Blind Justice" at the Strand, last week, augurs well for its future value as a drawing card. The picture is one of the best specimens of high-class melodrama. The photography is a triumph of camera skill, including interiors of costly design, deep sets, and close-ups utilized with rare good judgment at crucial moments in the play.

Mr. Christie's appearance in the leading role adds fresh luster to the European actor's laurels, won in "legitimate" as well as the silent drama.

It is no easy matter to create and preserve an atmosphere of terrific suspense throughout seven reels of melodrama, but in the present instance this is most effectively accomplished. The author must be complimented no less for his clever shaping of the script than his brilliant acting, and the skill with which he directed the piece. Its perfect continuity makes the story easy to follow, and the lighting effects and settings are on a par with the general excellence of the feature.

"LENN," in The Billboard.

"Blind Justice," with a forty-piece symphony orchestra accompaniment, was shown for the first time at the Strand theatre.

The production is almost another "Les Miserables." One feels the eternal master touch of Victor Hugo visualized in the superb art of Benjamin Christie as "Strong John," though the treatment and handling of "Blind Justice," with the many novel touches of a foreign Danish atmosphere, has a tendency to draw one's thoughts away from the similiarty of the main plot, so universal is the appeal.

The photography is far above the average, the direction skillfully handled and uniquely artistic. Elaborate sets are used throughout this production. It is quite evident that there is still room for Americans to learn something from directors from abroad.

The scene where "Strong John," the fugitive, brushes aside the snow-laden branches of a Danish forest and emerges with his child, is exceptionally beautiful, as is also the one showing the circus orchestra. Where "Strong John" breaks down and weeps in the orphan home because he cannot find his child, will bring many a tear from the audience.

JOE LOWE, in "Variety."

"Blind Justice" was written and produced by the same man who is also the star. He is Benjamin Christie, Director General of the Dansk Biograf of Denmark. It is in many respects an even greater picture than "Sealed Orders," because of the inimitable acting of Mr. Christie.

It is as perfect a piece of melodramatic construction as has ever been seen in a moving picture. But it is not the play, the fine scenic detail or anything else—it is the remarkable acting of Benjamin Christie that makes "Blind Justice" a masterpiece of motion photography.

THOMAS C. KENNEDY, in Motography.

"It is a genuinely fine screen drama."

The Releasing Arrangements Will Be Announced When Completed.

For Further Particulars—Write or Wire to

BENJAMIN CHRISTIE, Director-General, Dansk Biograf Co.

World's Tower Building, No. 110 West Fortieth St., N. Y.

A McCLURE SUPERSERIES

Backed by

McCLURE PUBLICITY

McClure Building McCLURE PICTURES New York City

MAURICE COSTELLO

ETHEL GRANDIN

"We're packing 'em in"

From 172 theatres in one territory—from 189 theatres in another, this is the full box office report on

The Crimson Stain Mystery

The greatest profit yielding serial since the dawn of the screen.

MAURICE COSTELLO

The Master Star and Charming

ETHEL GRANDIN

in the tense, exciting, mysterious, fast and fascinating drama of the decade

Directed by T. HAYES HUNTER

Novelized by Albert Payson Terhune

Produced by the ERBOGRAPH CO., Presented by

CONSOLIDATED FILM CORP'N

G. E. Goebel, President — Ludwig G. B. Erb, Treasurer

1482 Broadway
New York

To secure the best suggestion for a reel picture to be based on the mystery events and situations of the Crimson Stain Mystery we will give away
FREE 13 FREE
OVERLAND
6 CYLINDER 1917 MODEL
TOURING CARS
CASH VALUE $925 EACH to motion picture theatre patrons all over the United States

A great chain of big newspapers prints it.

A nation-wide advertising campaign reinforces it.

BOOKING NOW AT METRO EXCHANGES

CHRISTIE COMEDIES

SCENE FROM

"HIS WEDDING NIGHT"

ONE REEL RELEASED MONDAY, OCT. 9TH.

Miss Billie Rhodes, Nolan Leary, Harry Ham and Ethel Lynne

Released Sept. 18th
"A Seminary Scandal"
Billie Rhodes
Harry Ham Eddie Barry

Released Sept. 25th
"His Baby"
Betty Compson
Neal Burns Dave Morris

Released Oct. 2nd
"By The Sad Sea Waves"
Billie Rhodes
Harry Ham Nolan Leary

Bright, Joyous Comedies, with Clever People

Every picture has a real plot packed tight with spontaneous jollity and fun.

Made under direct supervision of

AL. E. CHRISTIE

EXHIBITORS—If you have not already booked these write or wire

CHRISTIE FILM COMPANY, Los Angeles, Cal.

Head Office and Studio—Sunset and Gower, Hollywood, Cal.

New York Office, 408 Longacre Bldg., F. J. HAWKINS, Representative.

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

ARTCRAFT PICTURES CORPORATION

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

JOIN THE ARTCRAFT CIRCLE!

Be the LEADING EXHIBITOR in Your Community. The Way to Lead Is to Present the Best.

MARY PICKFORD

Is by far the Best in Motion Pictures. Her First Superior Production, RELEASED IN OCTOBER, is "LESS THAN THE DUST."

These LEADING THEATRES Have BLAZED THE TRAIL:

STRAND, New York; COLONIAL, Chicago; STILLMAN, Cleveland; MADISON, Detroit; PARKWAY, Baltimore; GLOBE, Boston; WALNUT, Cincinnati; NEW GRAND CENTRAL, St. Louis; PORTOLA, San Francisco; CLUNE'S BROADWAY, Los Angeles; and HUNDREDS OF OTHERS.

BE A LEADER YOURSELF

BOOK NOW!

THROUGH

ARTCRAFT PICTURES CORPORATION

729 Seventh Avenue, New York

AND IN 15 OTHER CITIES

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Distributors of the Best in Motion Pictures

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

BLUEBIRD
Photoplays, (Inc)
Present A Powerful
Emotional Drama
"THE CHALICE of SORROW"
with
CLEO MADISON
The Story of a Fruitless
Love, Directed by Rex Ingram.

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS, (INC)

EVERY claim made for the superiority of BLUEBIRD Photoplays has a foundation in qualities of merit that cover much more than the personality of a single star.

Beginning with the policy of "The Play's the Thing," following the making of a BLUEBIRD through settings, cast of players, details of costuming and the fine art of directing, BLUEBIRDS represent the best work of the most talented minds in the moving picture industry.

The result is an evenly balanced performance. A photoplay of genuine value as an enjoyable dramatic performance.

These facts made known to millions of fans through half-page advertisements in the Saturday Evening Post are daily increasing the attendance at theatres showing BLUEBIRD Photoplays. You can have your share of this desirable business by booking through your local BLUEBIRD Exchange or direct with the Executive Offices.

BLUEBIRD
Photoplays, (Inc.)
1600 BROADWAY
NEW YORK

MARGUERITE CLARK
Famous Players Star

Greatest Stars on Earth Play in

Paramount PICTURES

Paramount Pictures

Playing stars that are paying stars

LINCOLN used to tell a story about a steamboat on the Sangamon River that had such a loud whistle that after it blew there wasn't enough steam left to move it.

Organizations that bleat and blurt about one star—that hide behind that star's good reputation, a half dozen bad pictures—that force their inferior productions on credulous exhibitors—such organizations remind us of Lincoln's steamboat—

After the noise, nothing!

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

FF LASKY Paramount Pictures M P

FAMOUS PLAYERS
LASKY
MOROSCO
PALLAS

FURNISH THE 104 PLAYS A YEAR (TWO-A-WEEK) FOR

THE PARAMOUNT PROGRAM

And these 104 plays are plays—not "fillers," not monstrous makeshifts, not lack-wit affairs that are hurried together to even up for a star that outweighs the rest of the program!

A Famous Players Production is to use the word production in the finest sense—a Lasky Picture is a thing of technical excellence—a Morosco or a Pallas film is picture-making at its highest point!

Then consider the stars—the greatest on Earth! The number of them—a hundred! The character of them—the most beloved!!

No matter where your theatre is—no matter whether you have 500 or 5,000,000 people to draw from, the Paramount Program is the only one, because of its stars, its plays, its versatility, its service, that can be continuously profitable.

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

Paramount Pictures

MAURICE AND WALTON
FAMOUS PLAYERS STARS

THE PARAMOUNT PICTURES OF THE WEEK

RELEASED MONDAY, SEPT. 25th, 1916

DANIEL FROHMAN
PRESENTS

MAURICE and FLORENCE WALTON
IN
"THE QUEST OF LIFE"

"THE greatest dancers in the world." This is a title that Maurice and Florence Walton have established beyond thought of contradiction. They have only appeared in the capitals of Europe, America and South America. The people of your town have probably never seen them. With the present craze for dancing, they are on edge to witness the performance of this world-renowned couple. Imagine what volcanic effect the announcement of their first moving picture will cause! Imagine how eager your patrons will be to see them in the startling "Dance of Death," and other dances incorporated in the action of "The Quest of Life"! Imagine what a big thing it will be for you to be the first to show this wonderful picture! Remember this is not a mere dance picture, but a gripping story.

Produced by the Famous Players Film Company

ADOLPH ZUKOR, President

FPLA

Paramount Pictures

THEODORE ROBERTS
ANITA KING
LASKY STARS

PARAMOUNT PICTURES OF THE WEEK

RELEASED THURSDAY, SEPT 28th, 1916

JESSE L. LASKY
PRESENTS

THEODORE ROBERTS
AND

ANITA KING
IN

ANTON THE TERRIBLE

THEODORE ROBERTS has long been known as the greatest living character actor on the American stage! You are familiar with his remarkable screen successes. Now we wish to say with all the emphasis we can enlist, that Theodore Roberts has never acted with such terrific effect as in the character of Anton, the brutal Cossack Chief of Police. Anita King is the famous Paramount girl who gained nation-wide publicity by her wonderful automobile dash cross-continent. Alone, either of these stars would create the sensation you expect from a Paramount feature. Together, they will arouse a tornado of interest. The picture is a dramatization by Jules Eckert Goodman, of the story that made such a stir when first published in the Saturday Evening Post. It is beautifully presented—but that is an unnecessary statement to make to Paramount exhibitors.

Produced by

Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co.

JESSE L. LASKY, President — ARTHUR S. FRIEND, [illegible] — CECIL B. DeMILLE, Director General

Paramount Pictures

VIVIAN MARTIN,
MOROSCO STAR

FORTHCOMING PARAMOUNT PICTURES

VIVIAN MARTIN

IN

HER FATHER'S SON

WHEN Miss Martin was first plucked from the legitimate stars of the stage to take her place with screendom's leading idols, we predicted that she would soar meteorically to the highest position in her profession. This picture proves that we were right! In her own particular field Vivian Martin has no equal. Months from now, when her name assumes the importance it deserves, "Her Father's Son" will be known as the first picture that gave Vivian Martin a opportunity to demonstrate her magical abilities. You must not overlook this chance to register an important victory in your patrons' eyes. In this extraordinary play of the picturesque old South, Miss Martin, masquerading as a Confederate spy, charms the heart of her Union lover, and brings a plot of tense situations to a happy-ever-after close. It is a picture we are really proud of.

Produced by the

Oliver Morosco Photoplay Co.

Released Thursday, October 12th

Paramount Pictures

OWEN MOORE
MARGUERITE COURTOT
FAMOUS PLAYERS STARS

FORTHCOMING PARAMOUNT PICTURES

OWEN MOORE

AND

MARGUERITE COURTOT

IN

THE KISS

OF all the irresistible man-and-woman combinations that have fascinated followers of the screen, Owen Moore and Marguerite Courtot are among the greatest. Their first appearance as Famous Players stars created a tremendous storm of demand all over the country in "Rolling Stones." The box office attraction of Moore's polished comedy and Miss Courtot's dainty grace cannot be overestimated. "The Kiss" is crammed with delicious humor and threaded with a love story so sweetly enacted that the man or woman never lived who could see it without a tingling spine and a quickened heart. The Moore-and-Courtot lovers in your neighborhood will greet the announcement of this release with enthusiasm and joy.

Produced by the

FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM CO.

ADOLPH ZUKOR, President.

Released Thursday, October 19th

FP LASKY Paramount Pictures M P

FANNIE WARD
LASKY STAR

FORTHCOMING PARAMOUNT PICTURES

FANNIE WARD

IN

WITCHCRAFT

IF you have shown Fannie Ward's last picture, you will know without our telling you that she has become one of the half-dozen most popular stars in America. There's no mystery about it. Before she made her first appearance on the screen, Fannie Ward was one of the most popular actresses on the legitimate stage of Europe and America. Her latest picture shows this beautiful star at her best. "Witchcraft" is the Columbia Prize Play, written by Dr. R. Ralston Reed, and selected by Jesse L. Lasky from a host of scripts. It is a stirring tale of Puritan days, replete with gripping, breathless situations and splendid character delineation. The publicity given this release will create a strong demand in your town. You cannot afford to pass it by.

Produced by the

Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co.

JESSE L. LASKY, President — ARTHUR S. FRIEND, Treasurer — CECIL B. DeMILLE, Director General

Released Monday, October 16th

Paramount Pictures

BRIDGET'S BLUNDER

A PARAMOUNT COMEDY

PRODUCED BY THE UNITED STATES MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION

Released by Paramount October 16th

BRIDGET is a cook. Clarence is a cop. Bridget loves Clarence, but Clarence ———

There now, we almost spilled the plot of this new roar-reel.

See it at your Paramount Exchange.

"The 2d Black Diamond"

UNITED STATES MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION
WILKES-BARRE, PENNA.

J. O. WALSH, Pres. F. W. HARMON, Vice-Pres. DANIEL L. HART, Treas.

"Motion Picture Portrait Studies of President Wilson and His Cabinet—The U. S. Government in Action"

A Film of National Interest--the Only One of Its Kind Made in the World

Distributed by THE MOTION PICTURE FORUM

220 West 42nd Street, New York City

C. R. MACAULEY, President

RELEASED OCTOBER 2, 1916

Read These Indorsements

Lee A. Ochs, President of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America:

"It has been demonstrated to my complete satisfaction that the public desires to see, and would welcome, the presentation upon the motion picture screen of subjects affecting its welfare.

"I earnestly favor a nation-wide use of the great power of the motion picture in defeating legislation aimed at the business life and prosperity of the exhibitors.

"Appreciating that the influence of the screen would be immensely broadened by opening it to the people as a great national forum or lyceum, and that the grave problem of censorship would thus be definitely solved, I wish to impress upon the members of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America the desirability of showing pictures of national interest.

"While the principal mission of the motion picture will always be entertainment, the time has arrived when for purposes of protection and progress exhibitors themselves must place the screen on a plane with the newspaper and free speech.

(Signed) "LEE A. OCHS,
"President Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America."

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor:

"AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR,
"801-809 G Street, N. W.,
"Washington, D. C.
"September 13, 1916.

"Some time ago it was my good fortune to see the Motion Picture Portrait Studies of President Wilson and his Cabinet, when they were first shown in Washington. The pictures were marvelous; never had I seen more accurate portrayal of facial expression and characteristic mannerisms than in these pictures.

"It seems to me a most excellent thought that motion pictures should be made the medium through which there can be carried to all of the people of the country pictures that will make them feel that they have a personal acquaintance with those who control the national government. It is the personal touch that brings us close to individuals and enables us to understand their purposes and ideals. For the people of this country to have sufficient knowledge to judge of the work accomplished by their chief executive, there ought to be a personal touch. The motion picture portrait studies of President Wilson and his Cabinet will supply a long-felt want.

"Very truly yours,
(Signed) "SAMUEL GOMPERS,
"President American Federation of Labor."

David W. Griffith, master motion picture director of the world:

"September 11, 1916.

"I heartily favor a nation-wide use of the incomparable power of the motion picture in the discussion of questions affecting the public welfare.

"By opening their screens to the people as a great forum, the exhibitors of the United States will definitely set themselves in the front rank of public benefactors.

(Signed) "D. W. GRIFFITH."

BOOST YOUR VARIETY PROGRAM

These short reel programs are great money getters, when you present strong plays with talented and popular players. This is what Essanay supplies.

MARGUERITE CLAYTON
is presented in
"An Old Fashioned Girl"
2 act drama Oct. 3

HARRY BEAUMONT
GERTRUDE GLOVER
THOMAS COMMERFORD are presented in
"His Little Wife"
3 act drama Oct. 7

"The Fable of the Kid Who Shifted His Ideals to Golf"
By GEORGE ADE
1 act comedy Oct. 4

Book Now!
Essanay-Chaplin Comedy
"POLICE"

GENERAL FILM SERVICE

ESSANAY
GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

KALEM COMPANY

WHY NOT MAKE MONEY?

Why be the goat -- to speak plainly -- and carry the burden of exorbitant rentals on which you can't possibly make a profit?

Of course you may show a profit today with a real feature. But figure the average for the past year -- can you do any better than "break even?"

Get down to earth. Conditions won't change until YOU change them. Try an experiment for a few weeks.

Pick one day of the week. Book a variety programme of short subjects. Look for STARS, UNUSUAL TALKING POINTS, QUALITY PRODUCTIONS. Make the weekly event a fixture--and ADVERTISE it.

Try "The Girl From Frisco," the two reel series with five reel stories. Or "The Hazards of Helen" and watch Helen Gibson's daring feats bring them back week after week. As for comedies -- what better drawing cards could you ask than "Ham Comedies?"

That average will take a wonderful boost -- you will be paying a common sense rental. YOU WILL BE MAKING MONEY! Why not -- just for a change?

KALEM COMPANY

Remember:

"GRANT, POLICE REPORTER"

Featuring GEORGE LARKIN and OLLIE KIRKBY

READY, OCTOBER 20TH

Gripping one-reel adventures, each complete,
By Robert Welles Ritchie.
Released Weekly in Regular General Film Service.

Some Suggestions:

MARIN SAIS and TRUE BOARDMAN
In "The Reformation of Dog Hole"
An Episode of "The Girl from Frisco"
Released Wednesday, Oct. 11th

HAM, BUD and ETHEL TEARE
In "One Step Too Far"
Three Stars and a Thousand Laughs
Released Tuesday, Oct. 3rd

FEARLESS HELEN GIBSON
In "The Blocked Track"
A Thrilling "Hazard of Helen" Episode
Released Saturday, Oct. 7th

HENRY MURDOCH and IVY CLOSE
In "Stolen Plumage"
A One-Reel Comedy You'll Never Forget
Released Friday, Oct. 6th

Ask Your General Film Office About
"The Social Pirates"
The Sure-Fire Fifteen Weeks' Series

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX
EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter
J. P. Chalmers, Founder.
Published Weekly by the

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY
17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.
(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President
E. J. Chalmers.....Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie.....General Manager

The office of the company is the address of the officers.

CHICAGO OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.

PACIFIC COAST OFFICE—Haas Building, Seventh St. and Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone, Broadway 4649.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands.....$3.00 per year
Canada.....3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid).....4.00 per year

Changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and be clearly written. Two weeks' time may be required to effect the alteration.

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—no display—three cents per word; minimum charge, fifty cents.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTE—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

"CINE-MUNDIAL," the monthly Spanish edition of the Moving Picture World, is published at 17 Madison Avenue by the Chalmers Publishing Company. It reaches the South American market. Yearly subscription, $1.50. Advertising rates on application.

Saturday, October 7, 1916

Facts and Comments

NOT the least gratifying political news is the reported defeat of Dudley M. Hughes, the Congressman from Georgia who through the persuasion of Wilbur F. Crafts, the professional reformer, became known as the sponsor of the Federal Censorship Bill. We do not claim that his advocacy of Federal Censorship helped to encompass his defeat, though we have no doubt that the exhibitors in his district did their share. Federal Censorship is beyond all doubt the most stupid blunder committed in the history of Congress. We have never been able to understand how the party in power could advocate an unheard-of extension of Federal power consistent with its history and its traditions. The removal of the personally likable Mr. Hughes from the political scene will, we fear, be no hindrance to the renewed activities of Crafts. Crafts may after a while acquire a reputation as a political undertaker.

* * *

CONSTRUCTIVE work of a civic nature done by public-spirited men and women who understand and love the motion picture is one of the strongest antidotes against censorship. Such work is being done by the National Committee on Films for Young People. The men and women who are members of the committee belong in large part to organizations and institutions that have heretofore often been found aligned with the friends of some kind of censorship. Their influence with their own people is bound to help. Ignorance and prejudice will be dissipated. The MOVING PICTURE WORLD wishes the Committee well and is especially glad to note that the Committee sees the advantage of co-operating with the exhibitor.

* * *

THE great movement for organization which has lately been noticed in the ranks of exhibitors has by no means spent its force; on the contrary, there are indications of a steady growth of the idea. Reports from the Northwest are particularly gratifying. New York has seen the organization of new locals up the state, Maryland is active, West Virginia and Kansas are looming up strong and New Jersey will hold a state convention in the immediate future. The MOVING PICTURE WORLD rejoices in all this activity, because more power and more responsibility for the exhibitor means a lasting benefit to the industry as a whole.

* * *

WE DO not like to see this industry make any promises to the public which afterwards fail of performance. It was poor policy to send a statement to the daily press of motion picture stars coming into the district of Senator Cristman to appear before motion picture audiences and speak against censorship. An elaborate story to this effect was printed without the slightest foundation in fact. If Cristman is to be defeated it will be due entirely to the exhibitors, who actually did some work against him. We are not oversanguine in the matter. There are parts of the Senator's district where motion pictures are hardly known; vast tracts of forest lands sparsely settled. It is in these parts that the senatorial champion of censorship is particularly strong. What irony to think that the representative of a few backwoods counties is permitted to legislate for the sovereign people of the Empire state and ordain what pictures they shall or shall not see.

* * *

A LITTLE word of advice to foreign producers who have lately come into the country may not be amiss. It is elementary, but we make no apology for it, because it seems needed in view of recent happenings. The foreign-made film cannot expect to escape the conditions of the American market. It must be gauged by an American standard of values and the estimate placed upon it by a foreign producer or importer will not be accepted as final by our people here. We always have believed and still believe that the foreign-made film of quality ought to have a good market here in spite of a certain prejudice. We think that our belief has been justified by the facts. If the foreign producer would be more willing to adjust himself to the conditions of this market his chances of gaining a new foothold would grow immediately.

Perceiving the Invisible

By Louis Reeves Harrison

"BY way of illustration," as the orators say, a certain producer about to be established in a large way asked a certain writer of screen stories to provide one which should serve as an introductory release and be intensely American. The author happened to have a fine theme in mind and proceeded to develop it with great pains. He evolved what he had good reason to believe was an exceptional story and handed in his scenario. It was rudely rejected. He did not insist on getting paid for his effort because he was treated as a suspect—he was trying to get something for nothing.

He felt sure that another producer, who had visualized a number of his stories, would jump at the chance to get a superior one, but he was mistaken. He was again rebuffed. The script now went to a third producer, who was complaining of a dearth of good scenarios, but it met with the same fate. The author's faith in himself might now be well regarded as an exaggerated estimate of his own mental ability, mere conceit, but his temperament was not one to contemplate the possibility of defeat, and he went to Mr. Blackton of the Vitagraph Company and met with quick appreciation of what he had done.

Under Mr. Blackton's personal direction the story was visualized as written and attained marked success. Critics hailed it as the best of the year; it was shown by Mr. Blackton at a large club entertainment as an exceptional release; it won a popularity contest, letters from all over the country naming it as one of the strongest photo plays ever shown. These facts are cited merely to illustrate that the present dearth of good plays is not entirely due to a lack of capable authorship.

How about the three producers who rejected a story of decided merit at a time when the price paid for scenarios was so unimportant in proportion to the general cost that it scarcely called for exacting discrimination? The small outlay required had little or no bearing on decisions rendered against the script. Presented as a working scenario, designed purely for visualization, it might not have been expressed in terms stimulating to the imagination, but that is the case with nearly all skeleton librettos, because structure rather than treatment claims most of the photoplaywright's time and attention.

It is quite possible that there was lack of method in the examination. Scenarios of all kinds, good, bad and indifferent, were rarely assorted so that the best could be given more serious consideration. But it is likely that the subject matter did not suit certain preconceived ideals on the part of those entrusted with the work of selection. They were guided by personal preference. What kind of a critic would a reviewer be if he permitted his personal likes and dislikes to weigh in passing judgment? The critic learns that his own preference is too narrow—he must defer to the varied tastes of a mixed audience.

Give one of the leading producers of today a brief synopsis of a live story, and it is quite possible that he will not like that kind of a story, sometimes because he has one or more performers on salary to suit, quite as often because he unconsciously narrows the character of his output to what happens to suit his personal fancy. Plays of such a limited appeal might be written on assignment, but such restrictions are not calculated to encourage spontaneous composition of the kind most loved by mixed audiences, flowing direct from a font of originality.

The author who makes a living through something less superficial than mere cleverness in handling his medium is compelled by the very nature of his work to keep thoroughly posted by reading and observation. If he is to succeed at all, he must do even more than keep apace with the times. He must constantly forecast events and effects, and he must necessarily know what he is writing about in order to give entertainment or information to his audience. The audience becomes an object of anxious study—with it lies the final verdict. Experience teaches him that he must also be a severe and capable critic of his own imaginative creation.

Few producers of moving pictures have any such training. Some of them are largely guided in judging what is to be by what has been done. Sounder basis would be to eliminate mere imitations of what has been done in favor of what bright and new, if for nothing else than the sake of variety. If authors are compelled by the producers to keep on skilfully adapting from old stuff, a weary lack of progress is bound to ensue with a corresponding lack of interest on the part of the public in moving pictures. The highest value should not be placed on imitation, but on originality.

What a producer can do advantageously to all concerned when he is sincerely interested in his product is to give careful study to a scenario of fine quality and note down his objections to it in detail, together with any suggestions that may occur to him. He may be right in his criticism, and that chance makes it important. An author has a thousand and one things to think about during composition and may be guilty of an error of omission. If he has any sense he will give attention to such criticisms and utilize all there is of value in them. He is addressing an audience of many minds and should not hesitate to broaden his appeal.

An unusual visual sense, such as that exerted by a sailor acting as a lookout, which picks up and defines objects before the rest of us can discern anything but a formless haze, grows out of habitual attention to a particular set of impressions. In a similar manner imagination in art and science becomes specialized. Watt probably foresaw every detail in the workings of a "governor" before he attempted to make the steam engine what it is, one of the greatest factors in our progress, and so the glorious monuments of artists, sculptors and architects, of which we are so proud, were first perceived by the mind's eye, idealization.

We all possess this creative power in the wild—our fancies roam about aimlessly—but the author is compelled to put a halter on his and train it to harness, acquiring thereby what Shakespeare calls the "imagination all compact." He actually perceives on a little screen in his brain the two or three hundred scenes of a big story reeled off in regular order, and he can run the reel back and forth for new adjustments. He can briefly record what he has perceived so that his story will run true when visualized by fine interpreters under capable directors, but he can not provide them with his power to perceive the invisible.

Thousands of new stories must be provided to meet a demand that grows as long as it is satisfied, and they will flow from native genius unless the font is clogged with corruption, but our present imperative need is for men of trained ability to appreciate and rightly value products of creative imagination, and they must also possess some of that rare quality of mind which, guided by correct taste and artistic sensibility, has enabled the author of a story to perceive the invisible.

The Feature Market

By W. Stephen Bush.

THE one thing in which ninety-nine per cent. of the motion picture exhibitors of the country are interested in is the feature market. Rightly or wrongly, it has become an axiom in exhibiting circles that no program is stronger than its weakest feature.

Developments in the feature market are therefore watched most eagerly. The great trouble is the elusiveness of quality. Now exhibitors do watch quality. Their bread and butter depends upon it. If they want to make money they must follow quality. Is it possible to define "quality" in motion pictures? Possibly it is, but I shall not yield to the temptation. To discern quality, to feel it as it were, is much easier than to define it like a problem in logic. We are all agreed on one thing, however: Quality is elusive, fickle and hard to get. How often does it happen that features suffer a sudden decline in quality? There is no warning to the exhibitor. He is "tied up" by his contract. Things run along smoothly for a while and then comes a "feature" that makes the exhibitor's hair stand up like quills upon the fretful porcupine. Only last week an exhibitor subscribing for a well-known feature program gazed sadly upon the paper in his lobby announcing the coming of a certain feature. "Gee!" he said in an ejaculatory manner, with no particular aim at grammar, "how I wish this piece of fromage was over. I hate to look my audience in the face for the next three days." Perhaps this man is too sensitive, but he runs a big, beautiful house and he is an insistent and tireless searcher after quality. He is tied to a feature program and such things will happen in the best feature program which human ingenuity can put together. I tried to console him.

"Well," said I, "you have the regularity of supply. That ought to count for something."

He dissented vigorously.

"I know," he replied, "that if I could go out into the open market and do my own choosing I could increase my business considerably. Regularity of supply counts as a real advantage only when it is combined with a high average of quality."

Quality—that is the unceasing chorus.

Not all exhibitors feel like my friend of the big, beautiful house. A very successful and practical exhibitor disagreed with my friend. He thought that quality is too elusive to be hunted all the time and that the public itself was not always sure of how it liked a picture. He thought that buying in the open market for quality would jump the prices for service and increase the dangers of competition. In his opinion a fair average of quality coupled with regularity of supply was the best result attainable at present.

The exhibitor is interested in the feature market because of the kaleidescopic changes. The palm of supreme quality is never held very long by the same producer. Hence every bit of honest and genuine news of the feature market is of immediate practical value to the exhibitor in general and to the exhibitor with a big house in particular. Imagine a man who has "tied up" three big feature groups for a town of moderate size, hoping to keep out competition. He surely is interested in the feature market, for if quality shifts even temporarily to another group beyond his control it affects his business at once. The exhibitor who has tied up three feature programs is by no means rare. Indeed we know of many who in towns of twenty thousand inhabitants have tied up all the available feature productions. To them the coming in of new companies or combinations and mergers of old groups are of the utmost importance. They are not very much worried about single reels except comedies, of course, but every great change in the feature market means much.

In passing we may mention that in no other paper wholly or partly devoted to motion pictures will the exhibitors find better and more complete and more accurate information on the progress and on the doings of the feature market than in the columns of the Moving Picture World.

The most recent developments are always to be found in our news columns, as, for instance, the last issue fully demonstrated. When we speak of genuine and valuable information we do not mean the stuff sent in by the press agents.

The Screen in Politics

By W. Stephen Bush.

DID you know that both the Republican and the Democratic parties have a special motion picture department devoted to party propaganda? The National Campaign Committees of both parties are determined to utilize as fully as possible the wonderful possibilities of the screen.

The Moving Picture World had foreseen and foretold the coming of these things years ago. The question which confronts us now is: What attitude are the exhibitors to take in relation to this propaganda? To ask them for the use of their screen to promote partisan ends is ridiculous. No man will want to turn his temple of amusements into a political pagoda. He could not last long. We understand that this propaganda is to be done in a more subtle way. The films with a political or partisan flavor are to be shown as educational or instructive. They are to be disguised as much as possible and avoid giving offense to the political sensibilities of the audience.

We are tempted to advise our readers to exercise the utmost caution in allowing any picture with a poorly disguised political or partisan flavor to be shown on their screens. We understand that all these pictures are to be shown to the National League of Motion Picture Exhibitors. We are glad to hear that. They will know how to advise their members. To show the workings of departments, to reproduce on the screen some of the general welfare work done by the Federal Government may be all right. Such films are really interesting and instructive, but it is very necessary not to inject any propaganda into such pictures. It has come to our notice that one of the big political parties in showing certain Mexican pictures has accepted a scenario which is highly offensive to the professors of a certain religion. That sort of thing will not be tolerated for an instant by the exhibitors.

It seems to us that the best place for the exhibition of political or semi-political films is the hall in which political meetings are held and to which the public may be invited. Then there cannot be any objection, because every man who comes knows just what he may expect. It is a well-known fact that the theater-going public resent the intrusion of politics in their amusements.

The one great lesson which we draw from the use of the screens as a marvelously effective weapon for political propaganda is this: The screen ought to be free from censorship. Able men in both parties have said that the screen is more effective than the newspaper. The inference is irresistible: Therefore the screen ought to be as free as the newspaper. The censors in all the states now afflicted with this form of medievalism are political appointees. Will they not attempt to control the use of the screen by their political opponents? This argument has been freely used before legislative committees in various states and has mostly been met with incredulous smiles.

political parties shows that these smiles were not only incredulous but silly. It is a condition now and not a theory which confronts the men who want to make political converts with the aid of the motion picture screen.

The National League proposes to quizz the presidential candidates on their attitude toward censorship before it will make any concessions at all. From what we can hear both political parties now profess an abhorrence of Federal Censorship and the principle of censorship generally. These professions will be put on record. Unless all our information is wrong the dangers of Federal Censorship will be appreciably lessened after this national campaign regardless of which party will get into power. The advocates of National Censorship within the ranks of the industry will feel more lonesome than ever after the 6th of November. Their remaining ally, we fear, will be the Reverend Wilbur F. Crafts.

No Copyright Established

Proceedings Against Arthur Feighery for Alleged Infringement of Copyright on Dante's Inferno Dismissed by U. S. Commissioner McGoldrick of Brooklyn.

A HEARING of much interest to film men involving copyright questions was held before Commissioner McGoldrick for the U. S. Court for the Eastern District of New York, George Merrick being the complaining witness, and Arthur Feighery, a film broker, being the defendant. The proceedings had been instituted by the U. S. District Attorney, who, relying on information furnished him by the complainant Merrick, had caused a warrant to be issued against Feighery, alleging that Feighery by making unauthorized reproductions of Dante's Inferno (Milano Version), had committed a criminal offence by violating the copyright law. Merrick claimed to own the copyright of Dante's Inferno by virtue of an alleged assignment said to have been given to him by the Monopol Film Company of which Merrick was supposed to be a creditor.

The District Attorney had subpoenaed three employees of the Horsley printing and developing plant in Bayonne, where the alleged reproductions were claimed to have been made. Pliny P. Craft, formerly connected with the Monopol Film Company, was also subpoenaed as a witness for the prosecution. The Monopol Film Company went through bankruptcy proceedings.

Mr. Craft testified that the Monopol Film Company had acquired perpetual copyright in the Milano Film, and submitted several cards showing that application for a copyright had been made by the Monopol Film Company some time in June, 1911. He said Merrick had worked for the Monopol, and the latter, having no money left, gave Merrick an assignment of its alleged copyright. Mr. Craft said he had made diligent search for the assignment, but had been unable to locate it. He said he was not sure whether the film had been exhibited abroad before application for copyright was made in this country. Mr. Merrick, as the next witness, testified that he too had looked long and diligently for the assignment, but had been unable to find it. He said he had failed to record it in Washington. He too was uncertain as to the validity of the copyright.

At the close of the prosecution's case Counsellor Finkler, of Finkler and McEntire, who appeared for the defendant, moved for a dismissal of the case on the evidence submitted by the District Attorney. He said that no valid copyright had been proven, but if such had been the case he doubted the genuineness and validity of an assignment which took place four months before the bankruptcy of the assignor. Mr. Finkler said he had made an examination of the records in the Monopol Film bankruptcy, and declared that no schedules are on file, though there is an order that they be filed. When the attorney wanted to go deeper into the bankruptcy records he was stopped by the court on objection of the District Attorney. The Commissioner thought the bankruptcy matters were irrelevant on the issue in question before him.

Counsellor Finkler then renewed his motion for an immediate discharge of defendant. He said he had witnesses in plenty who would prove that the films had been exhibited for profit abroad before any attempt was made to copyright them here, which would absolutely defeat any claim for an American copyright. In his opinion, however, the prosecution had failed to make out a prima facie case, and he asked the court for an order acquitting the defendant. Commissioner McGoldrick discharged the defendant on the spot.

War Films America Wants to See

Extracts from a Contribution to the London Evening News by the Ex-Director of the English "Pathe Gazette," After an Eighteen Months Sojourn in America.

IN THE August 17 issue of the London Evening News, P. D. Hugon, who directed the English Pathe Gazette at the beginning of the war, expresses himself as follows, after an eighteen months' American experience of producing and selling news films, and directing the Pathe News:

Show me.

If there is a phrase that typifies the American attitude on all matters nowadays it is this. Originally it was used only by the men from "out West." But the phrase has caught on, because all Americans want to see.

Talk about the greatest thing ever invented, the best motor-car, the fastest engine, the richest gold mine, your American friend will interrupt with his "Show me." The war is no exception. Official and unofficial reports of victories, of huge armies, of a nation resolved to see it through, only arouse half-amused interest.

But directly you let an American see with his own eyes pictures that obviously cannot be faked, he becomes a warm propagandist, and vouches with characteristic vigor for the truth of your statements. "I saw it myself on the movies, and I bet you a thousand it was genuine," is an argument that squashes all controversy.

And it cuts both ways. If the Allies cannot or do not show on the screen proof of their statements, the statements will generally be disbelieved. For instance, they will say: "The Germans claim to have sunk the Warspite. The British say it is in port. Why don't they show us pictures of it in port, taken after the battle?"

He Wanted Smoke.

Whatever is shown, however, must not only be genuine, but look genuine, even to the untechnical mind.

When I issued the first French official war films, an exhibitor in Arkansas, who was not to be taken in, wired as soon as he received his copy: "War films faked; no smoke, soldiers laughing." I replied: "Will supply him with lots of smoke and men crying, at a dollar a foot, guaranteed made in America."

This exhibitor evidently thought hard for a few days, and solved the riddle of smokeless powder which had never before entered his brain. In a very polite letter (for Americans are perhaps the most polite, if the least concise, letter-writers in the world) he apologized for his complaint, adding, however: "If they use smokeless powder out there, it would be better to say so in the sub-title. Most people don't know that." Which is true wisdom in Arkansas.

Being totally ignorant of military necessities or restraint, the American public cannot even conceive the motives for British official reticence. In a country where Presidents and ex-Presidents, generals and admirals will pose for every camera that appears on the scene, where a Cabinet Minister depends as much on screen-advertising as on the conduct of his department for popular approval, where no army would start against an enemy without the "movie" men at its heels, where the inside workings of everything naval and military are open to the public gaze, it seems strange to be told that there can ever be reasons for suppressing evidence.

But as such reasons do exist, and as the American public nevertheless must have war films, it might be wise to give it something approximating its requirements.

The trouble is that British Government services appear to do just what individual British exporters have so often (and rightly) been accused of doing: they will try to sell the goods they have, instead of making the goods that the customer wants. * * *

What do they want?

They want the simplest, the most obvious pictures obtainable.

They want to see all about the German submarine that was at Temple Pier, her engines (easily photographed by means of portable arc lamps), her periscope, her mine-laying system. Americans simply gloat over anything mechanical, and they enjoy reading on the screen the longest descriptive titles.

They want to see the arrival of the week-end trains from the front; they want to see what the West End looks like in war time and whether the shops in Regent street are still open; they want to see the women conductors and the postwomen.

"Americans are not Squeamish."

They have been told that Zeppelins have wrecked the whole of Liverpool and most of London; that Trafalgar square is in ruins; and many of the more ignorant people even imagine that Londoners habitually sleep in their cellars for fear of air raids. I confess I was myself exceedingly surprised to find on my return how little fear of Zeppelins or coast raids the people have, and how cheerfully they carry on their business and their recreation. These things are what Americans want to see.

But above all they want to see the real article, war as it is, the actual capture of trenches, the actual surrender of prisoners, the actual entry into a retaken village, the first removal of the wounded—yes, they would not even mind seeing actual bayonet fighting in all its horror. Americans are not squeamish. It is useless to tone down anything for them; rather underline what you want them to see, and put plenty of strong descriptive sub-titles over it.

Films that will really convince America of England's effort can only be taken as news films are taken, by a staff of photographers, who receive notice of all expected spectacular deeds, and who are ready to rush anywhere. Special long-focus lenses and extension tripods to protect the operator are easily obtained.

We have the men, we have the outfits, we have the markets. What we want now is merely the will to please our best customers.

STREYCKMANS A BROKER.

H. J. Streyckmans, one of the best known motion picture men in the country, has given up the film business, and has accepted a position with Torrey & Co., dealing in motor securities, and specializing in Clyde Motor stock, an automobile truck proposition which will be marketed in a few weeks.

Mr. Streyckmans will open an office in the Ashland Block, Chicago, for Torrey & Co., who already have offices in Pittsburg and New York. He will have the Chicago agency for the truck, which is being assembled in Long Island, and of which it is said nearly a thousand have already been sold.

Film Men Firm Against Censorship

By W. Stephen Bush

Full Board of Directors of N. A. M. P. I. Take Important Action—Partial Plea for Federal Censorship Unanimously Rejected

EVENTS of momentous interest have taken place in filmdom in New York within the past week. At meetings of exchangemen and exhibitors the question of Federal Censorship had been taken up and discussed. On Wednesday, shortly after noon, September 20, the exchange men met at Shanley's Restaurant, and listened to arguments against censorship in general and Federal censorship in particular. Addresses were made by David W. Griffith, Mack Sennet and Thomas Ince. On the same day at 3 o'clock in the afternoon at the headquarters of the Exhibitors' League, 218 West 42nd street, the exhibitors gathered to listen to addresses made by Mr. Griffith and by Ex-Congressman Martin W. Littleton. At League headquarters Mr. Griffith made two addresses, one to the National Executive Committee of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, and another to the members of the local organization. Both addresses were masterly efforts.

The unusual activity of the distributing and exhibiting groups of the industry had been caused by the action of the producers' branch of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry. This latter branch at a meeting held on Monday, September 18, not only went on record as favoring Federal censorship, but permitted a report of its action to get into the public prints. Their action caused no little excitement in the entire industry. In many quarters the excitement was coupled with alarm.

When, therefore, the thirty directors of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry met in session at its offices in the Times Building, the interest in their proceedings was general and extraordinary. All the classes were fully represented by their directors. Lee A. Ochs filled the vacancy in the Board of Exhibitor-Directors created by the resignation of Mr. Philipps of Wisconsin. When the meeting was called to order by President William A. Brady the meeting room was crowded to its utmost capacity. Not only the directors were present, but many people prominent in filmdom who did not belong to the association were there. It was decided to make the meeting in the forenoon an open one and devote it to the discussion of Federal Censorship. The advocates of Federal Censorship were to have the first opportunity to be heard and then a chance was to be given to the opponents. When President Brady announced this order of discussion considerable silence followed.

From the first it was plain that the atmosphere was surcharged with an anti-censorship sentiment and that the task of the proponents of Federal censorship would be both ungracious and unpleasant. The silence had lasted for what seemed something like ten minutes, indeed it was beginning to be felt and threatening to become oppressive, when Mr. Sherrill arose and declared that he had no desire to appear as the sole champion of censorship. He said he had conferred and consulted with some of his fellow producers and at the time they seemed to have no hesitancy to speak in favor of censorship through the Federal Government. He looked, he continued, upon Federal Censorship as a measure of expediency and did not approve of it in principle, He emphasized the fact that he was open to conviction personally and would in any event abide by the decision of the majority of the directors. Mr. Sherrill was followed by William Wright of Kalem, who spoke along similar lines. He said he was convinced that all forms of censorship were wrong, and inflicted an unjustifiable injury upon the industry, but he believed that Federal censorship was the only relief in sight. Perhaps, he declared, if we yield to the men at Washington they will be influenced by our suggestions in formulating their legislation.

The next speaker in favor of Federal censorship was Arthur Friend, counsel for the Lasky Company. He took quite different ground from the previous speakers. As he was supposed to represent the main strength of the advocates of Federal censorship he was allowed all the time he wanted, the five minute limit for all speeches being suspended for his benefit. Mr. Friend characterized the men who fought for the principle of the freedom of the screen as being given to cant and not honest with themselves. He said that the producers had sinned and were bound to be punished and that the medicine of censors up was good for them.

Just about here some one in the room noticed that the reporters took a feverish interest in what Mr. Friend was saying, and it was proposed to exclude the reporters from the room. Some merriment followed this suggestion, several members remarking that the precaution was somewhat late in coming. Thereupon a plea was made to the reporters to give a fair and impartial account, and the reporters promised.

Mr. Friend, continuing his argument in favor of Federal censorship, said he thought such censorship would weaken and eventually eliminate all other form of censorship. He dwelt for some minutes on the legal aspect of the case, contending that Federal control was entirely legal. He abhorred the word censorship, he said, but in the measure which commended itself to his good judgment he would establish a court of the motion picture, just as there is a court of commerce. Mr. Friend in conclusion predicted the certain coming of Federal regulation of the motion picture.

Continued silence greeted the chairman's invitation to other and further advocates of Federal censorship, and the opponents of censorship were called upon to speak. Maurice Choyinski, one of the exhibitor directors from Chicago, called upon W. W. Irwin and William M. Seabury, both of whom are lawyers, and asked them to state whether in their opinion the enactment of a Federal censorship law would do away with all and any other forms of censorship. Both answered emphatically in the negative and having got this answer Choyinski made a strong plea against Federal censorship. He was followed by Exhibitor-director Frank J. Rembush from Indiana, who likewise spoke against Federal and every other kind of censorship.

W. Stephen Bush, of the staff of the Moving Picture World, was heard next. He said he sympathized with the condition of film men who by persecution and injustice of various kinds of censorship were driven to the false hope of Federal censorship. He proposed to confine himself to a reply to those who had spoken in favor of Federal censorship.

Mr. Friend, he said, may diagnose his own symptoms as he sees fit, but he has no right to speak for the industry. I do not question the sincerity of Mr. Friend, but I do protest against his remark that the exhibitors of Federal censorship are given to cant and are not honest with themselves. One does not have to be a lawyer to perceive that Federal control does by no means exclude state or municipal control. Boys and girls in the grammar class learn in their civics that the Federal Government exercises concurrent jurisdiction with state and municipal governments in the regulation of the liquor traffic or of the food problem or bankruptcy proceedings. Censorship is no new thing which might be tried on the frivolous theory that anything ought to be tried once. Censorship has been tried, not for a day, or a month, or a year, or a hundred years, but it has been tried for centuries, and it has always turned out to be an engine of oppression, hostile to free institutions and always incapable of effecting the things which it was intended to effect. To business the idea of compromising rather than fighting for a principle might have an alluring appeal. A principle is something that eludes figures, defies calculations and refuses to be weighed and measured; hence many men who are adepts in piling up money fail utterly to grasp the importance of a principle. If these men had had their way in the past there would be very little human progress to record. Nothing was more bitterly fought than the freedom of the press. In your own state the struggle for the liberty of the printed word forms a magnificent chapter of history. If the Tories and reactionaries of that day had prevailed your newspaper would still require a royal license and freedom of the press would be nothing more than a pretty expression. It has been said that "censorship is bound to come," that we must "have some form of it." Where is the proof for this loose and sweeping assertion? Of the eight and forty states of this Union but four have adopted legalized censorship and in none of the four has such legislation been demanded by the people. Why, if there were such an overwhelming demand and such a genuine sentiment for motion picture censorship, we would, by this time, have it firmly established in every state. I deny from my own personal knowledge and observation that the public want censorship. Co-operating on behalf of the Moving Picture World with the exhibitors in this state, I addressed over forty motion picture audiences on the question of censorship, and I know from their expressions and from the expressions of the exhibitors who know their public that if the clean-cut issue of censorship is ever carried to the polls it will be beaten by a majority vast enough to bury it beyond all resurrection. I do not own a dollar's worth of film; I am not interested in any distributing or exhibiting business, but I love the motion picture. I am convinced that it is a wonderful agency for the progress of mankind, for its enlightenment and for its entertainment, and, therefore, I feel that any attempt to take it away from the control of the people and to put it in the hands of a few ought to be resisted to the end. We do not claim license when we ask for the freedom of the screen. The press has liberty, but no license, and it is punished for an abuse of its liberty. That is what we want and what we are entitled to. We do not want to be punished because somebody anticipates that we might want to break the law. It is significant, gentlemen, that the exhibitors are an absolute unit against censorship—out of fifteen thousand I have heard but a baker's dozen who want censorship. The larger your body the more democratic it is by instinct. After all, gentlemen, it makes but little difference what we do here this afternoon. We may fail to rise to a great opportunity to put ourselves on record as having faith in free government and motion pictures continuing to exist together. I tell you that in five or ten years from now agitation for censorship will be confined to isolated cranks, the sound common sense of the American people, its love for free government will kill it, no government can exist half arbitrary and half despotic. This alien and exotic heresy of censorship cannot grow on our soil. Of course, we all want clean pictures and we want to banish and punish the man who abuses the screen. There are two ways in which we can do this. One way is the application of the law as it exists at present. There have been convictions of men who have shown indecent exhibitions. The other way is by education. Get together with the people who are prejudiced against motion pictures because they are ignorant. I belong to the National Committee on films for Young People. The men and women composing this committee are connected with great civic bodies with welfare institutions national in scope. They want to co-operate with you producers and distributors and exhibitors. In many places there is such co-operation today between exhibitors and civic bodies. That is the real constructive work which will bring the results we all desire; the results which censorship can never achieve. We must fight for the freedom of the screen. We cannot expect results to drop into our laps as gifts from heaven. I am glad to see the directors here, the men on whose gifts and efforts we depend. They feel by instinct that censorship must destroy their art.

Mr. Bush was followed by David W. Griffith, who made a splendid speech full of wit and wisdom. Mr. Griffith gently ridiculed the assertion of Mr. Friend that the industry was sinful. He said in his opinion the motion picture of all mediums of expression and of all forms of amusement was the least guilty.

"Federal censorship," Mr. Griffith continued, "in my judgment, is the most pernicious of all forms of censorship. Fighting with your local enemies often results in victory, such as we have recently achieved in San Francisco, when a censorship ordinance was killed in the Board of Aldermen. When the Federal government lays its hands on a film the action, however unreasonable and arbitrary, is final and beyond all appeal. What guarantee have we that the Federal censors are infallible and different from other censors? I tell you, gentlemen, with the utmost seriousness, that the establishment of Federal motion picture censorship means nothing less than the destruction of the art and industry. You will see the theatrical interests feasting at the table which you were foolish enough to give up. If you cannot grasp the fact that the theatrical interests are the deadly foe of the motion picture and that Federal censorship is the one thing they most ardently pray and most secretly wish for you are not able to see the obvious. What are we directors going to do if we have to work every day in our lives with the black shadow of Federal censorship hovering over us? If we have to wonder at every turn how much such a scene will please the board of censors in Washington what constructive work can we be expected to accomplish?"

Mr. Griffith read telegrams from a score or more of directors on the coast who protest against Federal censorship. Mr. Griffith's remarks were tremendously applauded. He was followed by National President Lee A. Ochs and former President Herrington, both of whom made stirring addresses against Federal or any other form of censorship.

When a vote of the directors was taken it was unanimous against Federal and every other form of censorship.

Vice Film Suppressed

Justice Cohalan Sustains the Action of License Commissioner Bell.

THE promoters of the vice film which had been running at the Maxine Elliott theater anticipating an adverse decision by the court, moved the objectionable picture out of the theater three days before the decision came.

The adverse decision was rendered by Justice Cohalan at the Special Term of the Supreme Court in New York County. Judge Cohalan fully sustains the License Commissioner who had threatened to revoke the license of the theater in which the film had been exhibited. The decision reads as follows:

Anti-Vice Motion Picture Co., Inc., v. Bell, &c.—Application for an injunction pendente lite to restrain the defendant from interfering with the exhibition by the plaintiff of a motion picture photoplay entitled "Is Any Girl Safe?" The Commissioner of Licenses of the City of New York asserts the right to prohibit the exhibition of this play upon the ground that it is immoral and indecent and in violation of law; in other words, that it would tend to the corruption of the morals of the public under section 1141a of the Penal Law. The film or photoplay is now being produced at one of the city theaters and it depicts the methods by which certain types of men procure young girls for houses of prostitution. It further pictures scenes in a house of prostitution and purports to show how young girls are led to ruin. The papers in opposition convince me that if the play is not of a revolting character it certainly has many objectionable features all of which are sufficient to condemn it. One affidavit sets forth that the play is a crude presentation, wholly devoid of moral or educational value and that it caters to the lower and sensual side of human nature. Communications from many reputable citizens interested in the welfare of the stage and of motion picture theaters condemn this effort to appeal to a morbid public taste. The statements of these people, many of them experienced in the work of setting proper standards for moving picture houses and the productions made therein, and in protecting the morals of society, particularly the young members thereof, are of the utmost importance on this application. The preponderance of proof adduced herein shows that the City of New York is not benefited by such a realistic depiction of the sordid side of human life. The declaration is made in behalf of the scenario that "it is literally a picturized sermon." Such a statement does not appeal to me. Moving pictures may point a way or teach a lesson, but no depicted film that leads the beholder through scenes of such depravity and degradation can influence or help society. I think that such a play offends public decency and tends to the injury not only of the young of the community, but of all persons who witness it. It tends to deprave and corrupt the morals of those whose minds are open to such influences. Even if there was nothing so openly displayed, as is here claimed on behalf of the defendant, there is danger in an appeal to the imagination, and when the suggestion is immoral, and the more that is left to the imagination the more subtle and seductive is the influence (People v. Doris, 14 App. Div. 119). Moreover, the act of the commissioner of licenses in acting in the manner complained of is reasonable and is a proper exercise of the powers vested in him. The courts of this state have repeatedly held that they will not interfere with the exercise of the discretion vested by law in a departmental official unless such official has abused his discretion by acting in an unreasonable and tyrannical manner (People ex rel. Rota v. Baker, 136 App. Div. 7; People ex rel. Armstrong v. Murphy, 65 App. Div., 123). The defendant shows that the photoplay is not a proper production to be presented in licensed theaters of this city, and the motion is denied.

Morosco Makes Denial

Declares He Did not Say the Things the Green Book Made Him Say.

OLIVER MOROSCO, the well-known theatrical and motion picture producer, has issued a denial to the alleged statements that were sppread broadcast as having come from him, through a magazine, in which he was quoted as having predicted the ultimate doom of the motion picture and that it is waning at present, but would go down fighting. Mr. Morosco's denial comes in the form of an open letter to the motion picture industry and its allied interests, addressed to President Hiram Abrams, of the Paramount Picture Corporation, distributors of the production of the Famous Players, Lasky, Morosco and Pallas. In his communication to Mr. Abrams, Mr. Morosco says:

New York, Sept. 20, 1916.

Mr. Hiram Abrams, the Paramount Pictures Corporation, New York City:

My Dear Mr. Abrams: Since talking with you the other day, I have carefully gone over the article in the Green Book. A great many of the things quoted as coming from me staggered me quite a little. I do not believe the interviewer intended in any way to misquote me, but merely misunderstood me in several instances.

My article was based on the moving pictures, and I stated emphatically to the interviewer that I thought the future of the moving picture business would depend on the manner in which pictures would be made; that I thought the cheap class of moving picture films would not succeed as they had in the past, but that the high class, well constructed, well acted story would live forever; that I intended in our picture company to make our productions with as much merit and quality as I would the biggest production I made on the legitimate stage, and that I would fight my own moving picture company with my dramatic productions throughout the country, not as an opposition, but in the making of the same. In other words, that in the making of a play or the making of a picture, I would try to make one outdo the other in artistic endeavor.

I also said that the moving picture industry of the future would prove a "survival of the fittest." At no time did I intend to be quoted as saying that the high class picture, or the worthy picture, was on the decline. How foolhardy that would be of me, when I am in the picture business, making pictures for the public; and if you will take one clause in the article referred to I think it undoubtedly speaks for itself. I quote as follows:

> "There will be a place and a demand for photoplays containing good stories, good acting, fine production and all that goes to make a good picture, and it will be the companies and producers capable of giving these pictures that will survive."

Yours truly,

(Signed) OLIVER MOROSCO

The misquoted interview placed Mr. Morosco in an extremely embarrassing and serious position. It has been his earnest endeavor to have the erroneous impression corrected everywhere. Immediately upon the issuance of the interview, President Abrams called the attention of Mr. Morosco to the averred statements, impressing upon him the fact that the misquotations would be detrimental to the entire motion picture industry.

Among some of the alleged quotations which have been denied by Mr. Morosco are that "the motion picture will go down fighting, but will go down nevertheless," "I intend to give battle to the motion picture business with every once of strength at my command," "already the sun of the motion pictures is setting," "as I believe the future will show the moving picture industry is on the wane," and "there is no question that the motion picture demand and popularity is waning."

On the face of the interview, particularly when the industry realizes what wonderful advancement has been made by Morosco productions on the Paramount Program, during the past year, the whole statement was a fallacy. From the beginning, Mr. Morosco has been a firm believer in Paramount policies, that of better pictures, for better theaters and a better public and has been urging the exhibitors of the country to build for business permanency with a program of pictures of quality.

The Moving Picture in Politics

By Edward Weitzel

The Democratic and Republican Parties to Use the Screen for Campaign Purposes

DURING a now famous speech made by a certain gentleman at a banquet given at the Astor Hotel last winter, the speaker, who was referred to by the chairman as "the greatest living editor," said many new and surprising things about the moving picture industry, and made one prediction, concerning its use for the spreading of political propaganda, that is now an assured fact. The National Committees of both the Democratic and Republican parties have added a motion picture department to their campaigns, and are prepared to put forth pictorial arguments in support of the merits of their respective presidential candidates. These pictures are to be supplied to the State Committees and, aside from being shown at political meetings, are to be distributed to the regular moving picture exhibitors on very advantageous terms—probably the bare cost of distribution. An agreement is now being considered by which the films of both parties may be shown on the same program, when the manager of the theatre so desires. Interviews with the gentlemen in charge of the two departments brought out some interesting facts regarding the nature of the pictures to be used by the two leading political parties.

The Plans of the Republicans.

"Believing that the moving picture is the best medium for getting facts before the public," said Mortimer D. Metcalfe, who is prominently connected with the picture department of the Republican Committee, "we are now preparing a number of pictures for campaign purposes. The first will be released October 1, and others will follow. They will show Hughes and Roosevelt on tour, and will also be of a nature to acquaint the public with matters that are of vital importance to the welfare of the nation. It is our intention to use every legitimate means of driving our arguments home, through the wonderful visualizing power of the screen. Vincent Astor has donated a building on lower Broadway to the cause, and the Hughes Alliance will have charge of the program. Admission will be free."

"How about the picture recently released which a New York daily publication says has been discarded by the heads of the National Committee, on account of its personal nature?"

"The picture was founded on historical facts, and has not been suppressed."

"Is your party willing to co-operate with the Democrats to the extent of allowing your pictures to be shown on the same program with theirs, in the regular moving picture houses?"

"The matter has not been settled, but we are in favor of it."

"Is it the intention of your department to make any moving pictures with a connected story?"

"I shall be able to give you a better answer to that question next week. One thing I can promise you: our reels will present dignified and truthful arguments in favor of the Republican candidate."

The Democratic Moving Picture Campaign.

"An appeal to patriotism, not to partisanship," is the claim made by T. M. Alexander for the one-reel campaign document put out by the motion picture bureau of the Democratic National Committee. The picture is called "The United States Government in Action," and is the work of C. R. Macauley. It shows President Wilson at his desk, who is then supposed to address the spectators. Each member of the cabinet is treated in the same way, the speeches serving to remind the spectator of some act of importance accomplished by the secretary's department. Mr. Macauley has caught excellent likenesses of all his subjects. This reel was shown in a number of the leading motion picture houses in Maine last week and, according to the press of the state, was very favorably received. Three hundred copies of the reel are to be released, fifty to be used in New York City. The next picture to be released will be a two-reel subject, showing scenes from the lives of Washington and Lincoln and giving views of President Wilson at the dedication ceremonies in connection with the birthplace of the Great Emancipator.

"The one outstanding fact of the entrance of the moving picture into politics," said T. M. Alexander, who is managing this department for the Democratic Committee, "is the effect it will have on the question of censorship. It will bring home to the public our contention: that the industry should enjoy the same rights as the press. They will be helped to realize that the moving picture can be made to rival the daily newspaper as a means of disseminating the thoughts and deeds of humanity, and should enjoy the same freedom in its choice of subject matter."

Sherman-Elliott Comes East

Open Offices in New York to Exploit "The Crisis."—To Sell State Rights."

SHERMAN-ELLIOTT, Inc., who recently purchased the William N. Selig production, "The Crisis," have opened offices at 220 West 42nd street, New York City, and have perfected the plans for the exploitation of this production. H. A. Sherman announces he will offer "The Crisis" as a Broadway production shortly and will release it on a state rights basis, but will retain Chicago and all territories west where he personally will exploit this big film drama in a manner commensurate with its worth, using special music and booking the production in the same manner as a theatrical company, as he is now doing with "The Birth of a Nation" and "Ramona."

"The Crisis," a ten reel master-play dealing with the period preceding the Civil War and with the stirring incidents of that conflict, presents the greatest crisis in the life of the nation with splendid power and with a sympathy, a sincerity and a patriotism that are inspiring, and which was triumphantly overcome.

It was produced by Colin Campbell under the personal direction of Mr. Selig. Those who have seen advance presentations of "The Crisis" state that it is the most costly photo-drama that Mr. Selig has ever produced.

The making into a photo-drama of "The Crisis" is a fitting climax to the great popularity attained by the book and the play seen throughout the country a few years ago. "The Crisis" marked a departure in the field of fiction and is considered the greatest work of Winston Churchill.

"It took only a short time for me to decide to buy 'The Crisis,'" declared Mr. Sherman recently. "For 'The Crisis' is a great picture. It is the practice of every film producer to refer to their latest production as 'Equal to the Birth of a Nation.' I am not going to do that. 'The Crisis' is a great enough conception that has been magnificently worked out and produced by a master producer to stand alone. I will not limit its scope by reference to any film that may have gone before."

Added interest is attached to the historical worth of "The Crisis" owing to the fact that a company of Selig players went to Vicksburg, where, with the aid of the Mississippi National Guard, scenes called for by Winston Churchill's novel were filmed. These scenes include the historical fortifications erected in and near Vicksburg during the Civil War. Over two thousand members of the Mississippi State Militia were engaged in the battle scenes.

The cast of players selected by Mr. Selig for "The Crisis" includes George W. Fawcett as Judge Silas Whipple; Matt B. Snyder as Colonel Comyn Carvel; Bessie Eyton as Virginia Carvel; Thomas Santschi as Stephen Brice; Eugenie Besserer as Stephen Brice's mother; Marshall Neilan as Clarence Colfax; Frank Weed as Eliphalet Hopper; Will Nachin as Captain Lige Brent; Sam D. Drane as Abraham Lincoln; Cecil Holland as General W. T. Sherman and others.

On Tuesday, September 19, Mr. Sherman tendered a luncheon to representatives of the motion picture trade papers at the Hotel McAlpin. It was well attended.

MURPHY IN NEW YORK.

Fred B. Murphy, Eastern division manager, and J. E. Willis, Western division manager, were in New York last week in conference with General Manager Schlank, of the Unicorn Film Service Corporation. Plans were laid for taking care of the fall business which has been booked ahead by Unicorn exchanges.

The Motion Picture Exhibitor

UTICA EXHIBITORS ORGANIZE.

Meet at Hotel Martin and Elect Temporary Officers and Committee on Organization.

A CALL had recently been issued to exhibitors in and around Utica by the state organization to get together and organize. In addition to the call, Thomas Howard, the secretary of the state league, had been sent into the territory and had made visits and issued invitations to exhibitors. In response to these invitations the following exhibitors attended a meeting held on Sunday, September 17, at the Hotel Martin in Utica: John Angello, Lyric theater, Utica; Albert Kaufman and Wesley B. Shane, Star theater, Rome; William P. Donlon, Orpheum theater, Utica; George Hauf and E. G. Hauf, of the Highland theater, Utica; William Fait, Jr., manager of the Avon theater, Utica, and Charles Kirkland, also of the Avon theater; H. J. Lux, Arthur J. Lux and F. G. Lux, of the De Luxe and the Alhambra theaters; F. E. Duffy, Hibernian Hall, Utica; C. J. Morse, Grand theater, Frankfort; A. Jarvis, Temple theater, Ilion.

State President Ochs addressed the meeting at some length, urging the need of organization and reciting the advantages which had come to the New York City exhibitors through intelligent organization work. He spoke of the abuses of the deposit system and of plans to arbitrarily increase the price of service, which he said was under consideration in certain exchanges. Dwelling on the subject of the growing importance of the motion picture he called attention to the fact that both of the great political parties had started a special motion picture department for campaign purposes. He said it was gratifying to know that the heads of both parties had seen fit to consult the exhibitors' organization in regard to films that were to be put out for campaign purposes. Mr. Ochs said that Mr. Tumulty, the secretary of President Wilson, had assured him and other exhibitors that President Wilson was not at all in sympathy with censorship ideas and that he had received similar assurances from Everett Colby on behalf of the Republican party. He said he was opposed to showing any films which were merely partisan and which, under the cloak of political propaganda, assailed any religious creed.

W. Stephen Bush, of the Moving Picture World, was called upon for a few words. He assured the organized exhibitors of the support of the Moving Picture World. "We believe," he said, "and always have believed that the progress and the prosperity of the exhibitor means the progress and the prosperity of the entire industry. In the early days conditions were against the exhibitors, who had little chance to assert a spirit of enterprise and initiative. I am glad to say that things are changed and we will go on in the direction of greater power for the exhibitor for a good many years to come. The spirit of organization is abroad in the land in spite of pessimists and professional knockers."

Mr. Bush urged all those exhibitors who were located in the 32d Senatorial District, the political home of Cristman, to defeat this champion of censorship in the Republican primaries or at least to reduce his majority, as it was felt that Cristman had a strong following in the district. The district has but two cities of any size, the rest being mostly small farming communities, where motion pictures are hardly known.

President Ochs suggested that the meeting elect temporary officers, which was done after a short conference. Henry G. Lux, Jr., was elected president and William Fait, Jr., was chosen secretary. The president, on behalf of the meeting, thanked the Moving Picture World for its support and friendly attitude. The meeting likewise thanked Mr. Ochs and the state organization for its interest. A charter for the Utica local will be issued shortly.

MIAMI VALLEY EXHIBITORS MEET.

At a meeting of the Miami Valley Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, held in Dayton on September 11, a resolution was adopted favoring Federal control of moving picture production. Copies of the resolution were ordered sent to leading film manufacturers, to members of Congress and to the press. Max Stern, of Columbus, president of Ohio Branch No. 1 of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, was the principal speaker, expressing himself strongly on the matter before the organization. The Miami Valley league was organized only a short time ago, and is made up of exhibitors from Dayton, Springfield, Piqua, Miamisburg and Eaton, with D. H. Thompson as president; Albert Kinzeler, secretary, and George Haas, treasurer. The meeting was well attended. Regular meetings will be held every Monday afternoon in the future.

NEW JERSEY CONVENTION.

Great Enthusiasm Displayed Over the Big Jersey Gathering at Newark on October 4.

SECRETARY F. J. Lischke is in receipt of numerous requests for information regarding the big state convention of the New Jersey Exhibitors' League, set for October 4, at Achtelsteller's Hall, 842 Broad street, Newark, N. J., and wishes to inform all exhibitors throughout the state that a record-breaking attendance for a meeting of this kind is expected.

Mayor Thomas L. Raymond of Newark has promised to make the opening address; William A. Brady, president of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry; Lee A. Ochs, president of the M. P. E. L. of America; W. W. Irwin, general manager of V-L-S-E; W. Stephen Bush of the Moving Picture World; Wm. A. Johnston of the Motion Picture News, and H. H. Hill of the C. & C. Electric & Manufacturing Company, will address the meeting on topics of vital interest to the exhibitor. Such matters as the recent unfair actions of the Film Club of New York, an organization of exchange managers; the abolition of the deposit system; the discussion of a political and legislative program; the reduction of the electric light and power rate and other matters that will materially assist the exhibitor in the conduct of his business will be acted upon.

The gubernatorial candidates are expected to attend and declare themselves regarding censorship and other matters. No exhibitor can afford to miss this meeting.

NAT C. GOODWIN PHOTOPLAY CORPORATION.

A one-million-dollar company has been incorporated under the laws of the state of New York, to be known as the "Nat C. Goodwin Photoplay Corporation." It has taken over the 960-acre estate of Mr. Goodwin at San Francisco, Cal., where the studios will be located; the executive office will be established in New York City.

It is the intention of the company to produce four eight-reel features a year, in which Mr. Goodwin will be the principal. There will be four other subsidiary producing companies, to make shorter subjects.

The first feature to be produced will be "The Prince of Broadway," featuring Nat C. Goodwin, from a scenario written by John W. Gorman and directed by Byron Totten. They will start operations about October 15.

Those associated with Mr. Goodwin are: John W. Gorman, Jas. Byron Totten, B. F. Moran and Walter McNamara.

ALEC LORRIMORE MEETS WITH PAINFUL ACCIDENT.

In attempting to board a Broadway street car, Alec Lorrimore of the sales department of "Civilization" met with an accident that might have been more serious had conditions not been with him. Catching his foot in a loose plank he fell headlong into the street, the result being that some of the ligaments were torn and the foot otherwise injured. By a great effort Mr. Lorrimore is able to get to and from his office.

Chicago News Letter

By JAS. S. McQUADE

LAUNCHING BIG SELIG FEATURE.

H. A. Sherman Outlines His Plans for Handling "The Crisis"—First Invitation Showing at the Strand, New York, September 29.

H. A. SHERMAN, America's leading exploiter of super films, arrived in Chicago from New York Thursday morning, September 21, and left the same evening for Minneapolis to attend to the general business of Sherman-Elliott, Inc.

During his stay in New York, Mr. Sherman arranged for an invitation showing of "The Crisis" at the Strand theater, that will be given Friday, September 29, at 10 o'clock a. m. This special presentation will be given for the benefit of the trade generally, including state-right buyers, producers, directors, etc., and representatives of the trade and daily press. All those who are expected to attend will receive personal invitations by mail, which, on presentation at the door, will admit the bearers.

The announcement of the first Chicago private exhibition of "The Crisis" will be made later. It is expected that this will be held some time within the next sixty days, just as soon as a suitable theater has been secured.

It is too early as yet in the active campaign, in the exploitation of "The Crisis," to judge fully of the interest taken in the national showing of Selig's great film edition of Winston Churchill's novel, but Mr. Sherman informed me during a brief interview that numerous inquiries are already pouring into the New York office in Suite 1702, in the Candler building, West Forty-second street, and also into the general offices of the Selig Polyscope Company, Chicago. These inquiries are chiefly concerned with state rights and bookings.

For the benefit of those interested, Mr. Sherman announces that all territory from Chicago, west, will be handled by Sherman-Elliott, Inc., on the road booking plan, similar to that used in the exploitation of "The Birth of a Nation." All other territory in the United States, including the South, will be sold on the state-rights basis. The entire territory of the Dominion of Canada will also be disposed of on this basis.

The head offices of Sherman-Elliott, Inc., in connection with the campaign of "The Crisis" will be located in Chicago, and the address will be announced later. All mail, in the meantime, should be addressed in care of the Selig Polyscope Company, Chicago, or to the New York office.

Many inquiries by wire and letter have been received from prominent Western exhibitors for dates and terms for "The Crisis." Among these is one from W. H. Clune, of Los Angeles, who wants the Selig photoplay for his Auditorium in that city.

Mr. Sherman informed me that he has received reports of excellent business from his seven road companies now showing "The Birth of a Nation," and also reports of good business from his five "Ramona" companies.

Big Demand for Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Releases.

W. H. Jenner, manager of the Chicago office of George Kleine, states that bookings for the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay service are very promising. Chicago exhibitors, some of them owners of the largest theaters, are anxious to secure the service. About eight of the largest theaters have already signed up, and by release date, October 2, at least fifty Chicago theaters will be using the new service.

The books were opened on Monday, September 18, and contracts with eight houses throughout Illinois were closed during the first four days.

Six traveling representatives were sent out from the Chicago office on Monday, September 18, and they are covering thoroughly northern Illinois, western Iowa, southern Wisconsin, the northern peninsula of Michigan, and the Northern section of Indiana.

At the meeting held in the Chicago office, September 10 and 11, which was attended by all the western and southern branch managers, great enthusiasm was manifested. Every branch manager was of the opinion that by turning out fewer features, of better quality, the maximum results can be obtained.

Chicago Film Brevities.

Col. W. N. Selig has contracted with August Hermann, chairman of the National Base Ball Commission, for the exclusive right to film the World's Championship series of games for this year.

* * *

Andrew J. Cobe, vice-president of the Unity Sales Corporation, was in the city during the week looking after the interests of "The Yellow Menace," which is now being placed on the market. The offices of this corporation have been recently opened in the Chicago Business College Building, southeast corner of Wabash avenue and Adams street. Simeon Greiver, general manager of the Balaban-Hershberg Film Attractions, of this city, which company has secured the rights to "The Yellow Menace" in Illinois and Wisconsin, reports a big business for the serial in Chicago. He announces that 194 theaters in the city have booked the attraction since its release on Labor Day. Three episodes have already been run in the Rose theater, on Madison street, where it is attracting considerable attention by means of a novel advertising scheme. Four persons representing the various characters in the picture and robed in the costumes worn by the original members, are seen in front of the theater, while the picture is being presented. There is also a curio case in front of the house which contains several of the Oriental properties used in the picture, which attract considerable attention.

* * *

Logan Rozelle was recently appointed manager of the Chicago office of the World Film Corporation, succeeding E. C. Jensen, who has been advanced to the staff of the company, in New York.

* * *

The first trade presentations of "The Country That God Forgot" (Selig) and "The Return of Eve" (Essanay), the initial releases of the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay service, were given at the Studebaker theater Friday morning, September 22. The large theater was well filled by exhibitors and members of the press, and great enthusiasm was manifested over the merits of these fine features.

* * *

Watterson R. Rothacker, president of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, informs me that his company has made a reel of moving pictures for W. H. Krohmer, president of the Goes Lithographing Company, this city, which illustrate the happenings at the National Lithographers' Association, held in Chicago during the week of Monday, September 18. A section of the pictures was taken at the Hotel Sherman and the balance at the South Shore Country Club, where a dinner was given in honor of the ladies of the Association. The completed picture was shown at the official banquet, which was given at the Hotel Sherman Thursday night, September 21. Tom Quill, representative of the Goes Lithographing Company, made arrangements for the taking of the pictures.

* * *

Wallie Decker, the new publicity manager of Paramount in Chicago, tells me that moving picture fans throughout the country have been somewhat anxious over the question as to whether Marguerite Clark, popular star of the Famous Players, would still remain under that banner or be under the management of some one of the other well-known film concerns. Mr. Decker announces for the Paramount offices that Miss Clark will remain absolutely under the management of the Famous Players for another year, at least, and that the pictures in which she appears will be released on the regular Paramount program. Mr. Decker states that W. B. Sudduth, of Clinton, Ill., is building a new moving picture theater, which will be known as the "R" theater. The new house will seat over 600 people, and will show Paramount programs exclusively.

* * *

"Lena," one of the two very valuable giraffes owned by William N. Selig, recently died at the Selig Zoo, Los Angeles. Mr. Selig had the skin mounted, and presented it to the Los Angeles Museum.

* * *

Grace Darmond, the clever and attractive Pathe star, arrived in the city Friday, September 15, on a visit to her family, after which she will continue her work at the Pathe studios. Miss Darmond will shortly be seen in Pathe's serial, entitled "The Shielding Shadow."

* * *

Moving pictures of camp life and drilling on the Mexican border are at present being used by the First Illinois Cavalry recruiting detail, sent to Chicago, from Brownsville, Tex., to secure sufficient men to bring the regiment up to the newly-prescribed war strength. A moving picture theater has been installed in the armory of the regiment, 1,330 North Clark street, where two reels of film are being shown to intending recruits. Fully ten reels of film showing the regiment at work will be presented at the armory, until the required number of recruits is secured.

* * *

The news of the sudden death of Arthur Hoops in New York City recently created great regret in the minds of numerous moving picture lovers who viewed his fine characterizations in some of the George Kleine feature comedies and other pictures. For myself the sad news was received with great sorrow, as Mr. Hoops was a photoplay actor of fine ability and distinction. Mr. Hoops was born in Chicago and will be interred here.

* * *

Douglas Fairbanks passed through the city quietly last week to spend a vacation somewhere in Wyoming, on a big ranch, where the fall roundup is being held. He was accompanied by a New York City man who is a tenderfoot in such matters, and who is unaware of the pleasant time that is in store for him. Mr. Fairbanks thought he could get through the city without being observed, but Miss Kitty Kelly, of the Chicago Tribune, chanced to run into him on Michigan avenue, much to his and her surprise. During his interview with Miss Kelly, Mr. Fairbanks, among other interesting statements, made the following:

"There's a lot of opportunity ahead, and I think 'state rights' is the big thing in releasing. Your pictures have got to circulate, and that is the coming way to make them. You do a good picture and sell it on its merits and you keep making money on it. Then you don't need to make another picture till you can do a good one.

"I'd be happy if I had a studio and Anita Loos, who writes the funny captions, and John Emerson to direct me. That's all I ask for."

* * *

The Unicorn Film Service Corporation has established an office in this city, in the Mallers Building, and has twenty-seven other branch offices throughout the United States, including the office in New York City. A. J. Normal is manager of the Chicago branch. A copy of The Unicorn Banner, the official publication of the corporation, was received recently at this office. For a new sheet it has considerable interesting news that will be of value to exhibitors using the service.

* * *

A handsome page, newspaper size, illustrating the weekly news devoted to moving pictures, by the Chicago American, has been received at this office. "Rob Reel," the photoplay editor of the American, is to be congratulated on his comprehensive work in the interests of the screen. The news matter is always made prominent by illustrations of leading people engaged in the production of moving pictures.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Winston Churchill have promised to be in Chicago when the premiere of "The Crisis" is given. This presentation will take place some time within the next sixty days, according to H. A. Sherman, president of Sherman-Elliott, Inc., who purchased the rights to the United States and Canada for the great photoplay. Mr. Churchill has written to William N. Selig that he is greatly interested in the filmed edition of his book.

William N. Selig says that quality and not quantity will be the policy of the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay service. "I believe that a feature film drama should be carefully produced; that plenty of time should be given the writer of the play, the director and the players to get everything possible out of their work," Mr. Selig states. "The turning out of films with machine-like regularity, without due regard to quality, is what detracts from merit in many instances today. I propose to go slowly and to give plenty of time for each of my feature plays to be released through the new distributing agency, and the rushing through of a picture to meet advance schedules will not be necessary. 'The Country That God Forgot,' our first new release through the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay service is, I think, deserving of the many good things said and written about it. I understand the production has already been booked solidly on the Poli and other circuits."

* * *

The following programs have been announced at the prominent downtown theaters in Chicago for the ensuing week:

Studebaker.—Clara Kimball Young in "The Common Law" (Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation), and other pictures.

Fine Arts.—Thomas Dixon's "The Fall of a Nation," reduced to seven reels.

V-L-S-E theater.—Lucille Lee Stewart (Mrs. Ralph Ince) in "His Wife's Good Name" (Vitagraph), the Selig Athletic series, and other short subjects.

Orchestra Hall.—"The Quest of Life" (Famous Players), featuring Maurice and Florence Walton; a Paramount-Bray cartoon; "Around the World in Fifteen Minutes," the last of the series of "Scenes from Many Lands"; a special series of games by the Universal Company, entitled "American Sports and Pastimes," and Bertha Lotta Sorenson, contralto. This is the last week of the cinema-concerts at this theater, and Manager H. W. Hill states that the season has been a successful one.

Colonial.—Beginning Thursday, September 28, "The Birth of a Nation" (D. W. Griffith) will succeed "Ramona" for a short run, when it will be succeeded by "Intolerance." The admissions for "The Birth of a Nation" are: Matinees, 25 cents to $1; nights, 25 cents to $1.50. N. E. Fields, the popular house manager, will have charge of the Colonial theater forces. "Ramona" closed Sunday, September 24, and the house will be dark until September 28.

* * *

The first regular meeting of the Chicago members of the Photodrama Club, for the season 1916-1917, will be held Monday evening, October 2, in the clubrooms on the fifth floor, 110 North Wabash avenue, and thereafter on the first and third Monday evenings every month. The meetings will be in personal charge of President Frambers. The regular program of the meetings will consist of distribution of market tips, general business, criticism of scenarios, practical experience talks and lectures by the president, and assignment of future work. Since the policy of the club has been changed to universal membership, the club has on its books 3,200 members, including both amateur and successful scenario writers. The club hopes to have 5,000 members by January and, therefore, solicits the co-operation of every scenario writer. "The benefits derived from being a member are many," says Mr. Frambers, "and full particulars will be given to inquiries addressed to C. A. Frambers, 3018 Jackson boulevard, Chicago."

* * *

The Strand theater, 2111 West Division street, Chicago, owned by Auerbach and Perlmutter, was wrecked by a bomb early Friday morning, September 22. The large organ, valued at $10,000, was destroyed, the rear wall of the building partly blown out, and windows in stores and residences within a block of the theater blown out and shattered. This outrage is also placed to the credit of the warring operators' union. It is about time that these anarchistic outbreaks should cease. They are a disgrace to the business and to civilized society.

OLD PATHE MEN WITH WORLD FILM.

Wilbur F. Hurst and D. L. Faralla, formerly connected with Pathe, Inc., have joined the World Film forces on the office staff. Both men are well known in the business, Mr. Hurst having been connected with Pathe for the past ten years.

News of Los Angeles and Vicinity

By G. P. VON HARLEMAN and CLARKE IRVINE

THE ARGONAUTS OF CALIFORNIA.

An Elaborate Ten-Reel Cinema Spectacle Released by the Grafton Film Publishing Company.

THE Argonauts of California," a spectacular ten-reel photo drama of early California, depicting the wild days of "49" when the gold lust drew a polyglot population to the shores of San Francisco bay and the valley of the Sacramento, is now being released by the Grafton Publishing Company of Los Angeles, and will soon have its initial presentation in many of the large cities throughout the country.

Scene from "The Argonauts" (Grafton).

The play deals with the discovery of gold at Sutter's Mill in '48, the subsequent rush of the "Forty-niners" and the wild days when San Francisco was the mecca of gold-maddened adventurers from all over the world. The time of the action runs from 1848 to 1856. The story revolves around the famous Vigilantes and their picturesque achievements in fighting the lawless elements of the primitive young city with organized lynch law. There are mob scenes in which thousands of people appear and are said to be the biggest and most realistic episodes ever filmed. Many historical characters like Sutter and Marshall, Vigilante leaders and others who figured in the life of the period, are shown and the scenes reproducing historic buildings and localities are said to be exact facsimiles. The atmosphere of the time is accurately preserved and the writers of the scenario have gone deeply into history in order to be accurate in all details. The assassination of James King, of William and Richardson, the execution of Cora and Casey, the Reign of Terror when the "Hounds" and "Sydney Coves" ruled the town and many other stirring incidents of the first years of San Francisco figure prominently in the action.

The frontier features are also important, these including the attack on a pioneer wagon train by a war party of Comanches. The white-topped line of prairie schooners is seen defiling through a pass in the foothills of the Rockies, intent on reaching the placer camps. Indian scouts discovered watching it, gallop madly back to the encampment of their band and quickly muster the savages who, in some of the most spectacular riding ever attempted, descend upon the Argonauts.

Edward L. Grafton, a Los Angeles publisher and president of the Grafton Publishing Company, is the producer of this great film. Mr. Grafton and John Steven McGroarty, author of the now world famous 'Mission Play" and dearly beloved writer of California lore, have been associated in business for the past ten years. During this time Mr. McGroarty wrote the history of California, entitled "California: Its History and Romance." It is on the third chapter of this book the "Mission Play" is based.

After this great work had been accomplished and it had been decided not to film the "Mission Play," Mr. Grafton states that he conceived the idea of putting the glamorous and romantic history of California into film and at once began to lay his plans for the first production to be entitled "The Argonauts of California," which was to be based upon the eighth chapter of Mr. McGroarty's book.

Mr. Grafton then secured the services of Mrs. Elizabeth Baker Bohan, well known author and writer, to lay out the love plot, while he used a number of persons on historical data, after which the real labor of production was to begin.

Next in order was the most advantageous place in which to make this historic film. Various localities, with their varied natural and climatic conditions, were carefully considered, with the result that Mr. Grafton finally decided upon Monrovia, California, as the most advantageous of all, inasmuch as its climatic conditions were especially favorable and its natural surroundings very nearly the exact counterpart of those in which the historic scenes to be produced were lived and enacted.

After having spent much time in advance preparation, Mr. Grafton settled on Henry Kabierske, well known director of American pageants, as the director for the "Argonauts," having been formerly associated with him throughout the production of the "Mission Play," which Mr. Kabierske had directed for Mr. McGroarty.

Under Mr. Grafton's personal supervision, careful selection was made by the director of all actors, with particular attention to the types required to play the parts of the historic persons whom they were to represent. So carefully was the work done along this line that today, as old "Forty-niners," who had gone through the period set and view the scenic production, it is said they declare the likenesses are exact, and their eyes well up with tears as they live again the old life which they lived so many years ago.

So much exaggeration has been used in this late day in regard to the cost of great pictures that Mr. Grafton refuses to say how much his film has cost, merely intimating that the public are more interested in what they see on the screen than the amount the picture cost. However, associates of Mr. Grafton who know say the film cost over one hundred thousand dollars.

Enormous mobs were used throughout, while hundreds of horses, mules and oxen found their way into this production. All exterior sets were built in exact reproduction of what they represented, while it took over twenty different actors and actresses to play leading and prominent roles. The "Argonauts of California" was begun the latter part of September, 1915, and was not completed until the early summer months of 1916.

The "Argonauts of California" will be released on the state right's plan and all inquiries with regard to this film should be addressed to the Grafton Publishing Film Company, 828 South Los Angeles street, Los Angeles, Cal.

TO PRODUCE CHILDREN'S PICTURES.

Lule Warrenton, Former Universal Directress, Forms Company of Her Own to Supply Program for Children's Matinees.

J. H. Welch, representing the Warrenton Children's Photoplay Company, with offices at 419 Security Bldg., paid us a visit this week. Mr. Welch stated that Mrs. Lule Warrenton, formerly directress at the Pacific Coast studios of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, has formed a photoplay company of her own to produce children's pictures. Mrs. Warrenton, we understand from Mr. Welch, has secured the backing of some of the most prominent club women in the city and expects to produce pictures on quite an elaborate scale. Mrs. Warrenton has for quite some time realized the demand for children's pictures and the desire of exhibitors all over the country to run children's matinees if they only could secure a suitable program. Remarkable as it may sound, there are very few of these pictures on the market and many exhibitors have had to give up the idea of children's matinees on account of the scarcity of suitable subjects. Mr. Welch states that Mrs. Warrenton's idea about child pictures are a little bit different and that she will endeavor to add educational value to her subjects so children will learn something besides being amused. This has never been tried before and in the writer's opinion this idea is most excellent. The Moving Picture World and particularly our esteemed old friend, James S. McQuade, has written several editorials on the desirability of these children's matinees with an educational purpose. We therefore hope that Mrs. Warrenton will be entirely successful in her new enterprise.

The Warrenton Children's Photo Play Company plans to turn out about fifty plays a year and most of them will be one reel in length, unless the story requires longer treatment. Mrs. Warrenton has already signed up a number of players and secured the rights to film numerous fairy stories and stories especially written for children.

CLUNE TO BUILD NEW HOUSE.

W. H. Clune, theater owner and manager, studio owner and photoplay producer, announces his intention of building a new theater in Los Angeles. It is planned to make this the most magnificent house on the coast. It is to be erected at the corner of Ninth and Broadway, at the southern end of the theater district.

Plans have been drawn for the structure which will cost $500,000. It is to be built on property owned by Mr.Clune, and valued at close to half a million dollars. The lot is a large one and has a frontage on Broadway, the main street, of 100 feet, while on Ninth it will have 150 feet. The building will be primarily for the moving picture theater, but the corner will be made into a big store, while other similar spaces will be at the sides, while the upper stories will be for offices. The house will have two entrances, one on each street, like Clune's old theater at Fifth and Main streets. The seating capacity is set at 2,500, but this might be increased. The stage will be modern and full, so that traveling shows, grand opera companies, and other organizations might be accommodated at any time. In addition, the lower floor will be so constructed that it can be used for public gatherings, balls, conventions, and so on.

Mr. Clune is confident that the city's growth will go south, toward and beyond where he intends building. In the same block now are Tally's, Woodley's, Majestic and Garrick theaters, while at Ninth and Spring and Main is Miller's theater. Mr. Clune owns Clune's Auditorium, Clune's Broadway, and Clune's Comedy theaters, and besides has an interest in other picture projects, including his studio.

A VISIT TO THE CHRISTIE STUDIOS.

This week we made a trip out to the Christie studios on Sunset boulevard at Gower street. We found Al Christie, director general, on one of the stages making preparations for the filming of a comedy scene. The place was humming with activity and a small army of carpenters and decorators at work on a pretentious looking set.

Scene from "His Wedding Night" (Christie).

Said Mr. Christie, when we commented on the rather elaborate preparations for one-reel comedy pictures: "The public has been educated to such a high standard of motion picture entertainment that the successful producer these days must maintain the very highest of quality. Our aim is to produce bright and original comedies just a little bit different from anybody else. We have made comedies under the Nestor brand for the last five years and you know that our comedies and the people in them have been very popular, but I never realized how popular until I made the announcement that the Christie comedies would be released on the open market. Immediately we were overflooded with letters and telegrams demanding bookings and reserved territory. This, of course, is very gratifying to us and we will show our appreciation by even greater efforts that will make past standard low water mark in the Christie productions. Our laboratories are now completed and we have most unusual facilities for printing and developing. All the work is done under my personal supervision," continued Mr. Christie, "so I can guarantee a uniform quality of prints. This, of course, is most important as many times you see a really well produced picture spoiled by poor laboratory work."

Betty Compson.

The Christie Film Company completed last week a one-reel comedy entitled "His Wedding Night," a farce quite elaborately staged with Billie Rhodes as the bride, and Nolan Leary as the groom. Others in the cast were Harry Ham, George Frank, Eddie Barry and Ethel Lynne.

The company is now working on a two-reel comedy entitled "Bride and Gloom." This is a two-reel special feature in addition to the regular one-reel releases. The cast includes Billie Rhodes, Harry Ham, Eddie Barry, Stella Adams, Ethel Lynne and Jane Waller.

Mr. Christie stated that these two reel specials will be real comedies de luxe and a regular feature on the Christie program from now on. Betty Compson, who is one of the prettiest girls in pictures, will be featured in one of these comedies at an early date.

CARL LAEMMLE RETURNS EAST.

Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, returned to New York on Thursday, September 14, after a four weeks' visit on the Pacific Coast. During his stay at Universal City, President Laemmle, with Vice-President and General Manager H. O. Davis, was in close contact with the departments and the thirty-eight producing directors and the daily exchange of ideas has resulted in a great many improvements and a new departure along many different lines in the production of films at the Big U plant.

Many exhibitors from the Pacific Coast states were entertained at Universal City by President Laemmle during his four weeks' sojourn out here and these exhibitors viewed many of the forthcoming productions in the seven projecting theaters at Universal City.

A number of notable visitors were entertained by Mr. Laemmle at the big film plant, including the Republican presidential candidate, Charles Evans Hughes, Madame Schumann-Heink, the world famous grand opera singer, and Mrs. Mollie Netchel Neuberger, Chicago's merchant queen, the sole owner of the Boston Store, one of the biggest department stores in the world, and which does a tremendous volume of retail business and in which Mr. Laemmle once upon a time worked as an humble messenger boy.

President Laemmle spent several days and nights at the projection room viewing the picturization of Jules Verne's "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," the wonderful submarine picture which was made by Director Stuart Paton, who spent more than a year in the Bahamas securing marvelous under-water pictures and who finished the production at Universal City. The film made by Director Paton ran into more than 200,000 feet and President Laemmle declared it to be the most wonderful film spectacle he had ever gazed upon during the many years that he has been associated with the motion picture business.

FLIVVER MANUFACTURER VISITS UNIVERSAL.

Henry Ford was a visitor at Universal City this week as guest of Carl Laemmle and H. O. Davis. He spoke to over a thousand professionals, posed for a picture with an elephant and a camel, and saw a few reels of new pictures run off in the projection room. The Animated Weekly cameraman shot Mr. Ford and his party for the news film. After lunching with the genial host, the big manufacturer viewed the plant and then departed.

Los Angeles Film Brevities.

V. R. Day, special representative for the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company, arrived in the city September 15 and will stay in Los Angeles a week or ten days. Mr. Day stated that the Essanay does not intend to send any companies out to California, neither to open up the studios at Niles. This information was promiscuously given out by a former employee of this company and whom we thought would be posted on this matter. V. R. is the same as ever, and we certainly were glad to see one of our friends from old "Chi." Nothing like that burg any way.

* * *

We are informed that D. W. Griffith will return from New York and other eastern centers about October 15. He has already wired his general manager, Frank E. Woods, and his publicity man, W. E. Keefe, to make preparations for the Los Angeles premier of "Intolerance."

* * *

Mr. Kerrigan's press agent announced this week that J. Warren will open a studio of his own, which will be, of course, located in Los Angeles. We are informed that Mr. Kerrigan's contract with Universal expires within about five weeks. Frederick Robertson, capitalist of New York and Pittsburgh, and an old time friend of the Kerrigans, will arrive in Los Angeles next week. He is Mr. Kerrigan's backer and he will then make the preliminary preparations for the opening of the new Kerrigan studio.

* * *

The Continental Producing Company, recently formed, has engaged the old Rolin studio on Santa Monica boulevard, and assembled its company. It will begin active operation next Monday on the production of the big twelve-reel feature, "The Spirit of '76," embodying historical events and characters of the American Revolution. Frank Montgomery will direct, assisted by Carl Leviness.

The company includes Jane Novak, Doris Pawn, Adda Gleason, Lottie Crews, Howard Gaye, Babe Lawrence, George Chesboro, the Indian actor, Dark Cloud; W. Freeman and Jack McCready.

It is said that much painstaking historical research has preceded the production of the picture.

* * *

After a long life of strenuous activity, N. Z. Wood, or "Daddy" Wood, as he was affectionately known to the members of the Signal Film Corporation, on Thursday last week passed away at his home in Glendale. The end to a four weeks' illness came quietly. He leaves a widow.

Ever since the company's organization a year ago Mr. Wood had been playing character roles, appearing in "The Girl and the Game," "Whispering Smith," "The Diamond Runners" and "The Manager of the B. & A." It was shortly after having been cast for an important part in "The Lass of the Lumberlands" that he was stricken ill and forced to abandon his work in the picture.

Prior to entering motion pictures he had been in active railroad work all his life, and it was this fact that made him so valuable to the Signal Company. He was for thirty-six years an engineer on the Chicago & Eastern Illinois, and following that for a number of years he drove an engine between Mexico City and the Mexican International. He remained in Mexico until about a year after the outbreak of the Madero revolution, when he returned to this country with his family.

John J. Glavey, formerly assistant editor of the Keystone scenario department, has joined the Fox Film Corporation as manager of comedy production.

* * *

Director Colin Campbell and the large company of players appearing in "The Garden of Allah" have been working at the Selig Zoo studios this week far into the night obtaining some beautiful effects depicting night life in an Oriental city. These scenes give promise of being among the most beautiful of this spectacular feature.

* * *

Director E. A. Martin, who is producing the ten-reel western feature, "The Light of the Western Stars," for Selig, is a crack rifle shot. In recognition of his markmanship, he was presented recently with a beautiful and unusual rifle, the gift of the Remington Arms Company. This is the only case on record of a motion picture director having been the recipent of such a gift from this company.

* * *

Tom Santschi, who plays the leading male role in "The Garden of Allah," is a great favorite among all who know him, and particularly do the "extra" men swear by him. Recently those engaged in the many big scenes of "The Garden of Allah" presented him with a sterling silver and leather decanter and four sterling cups. Santschi's initials are engraved on each piece.

* * *

Sydney Ayres, who for years has been well known in the stage and film game, died at the Fifth Avenue Hospital, Oakland, Saturday night, September 9, as the result of a general breakdown.

After leaving the American Mr. Ayres went with the Universal Company and his hard work in the moving picture field led in part to the illness which terminated fatally.

Six months ago, because of the stress of his work, Ayres suffered a nervous collapse. He returned to his former Oakland home and entered the sanatorium, where he has been ever since, gradually growing weaker.

Mr. Ayres' fame as an actor extended all over the United States, although he was particularly well known as a stock player in the larger cities of the Pacific Coast.

My Ayres is survived by his widow, a two-year-old daughter, two sisters and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Ayres, of Oakland. Ayres was 37 years old.

Sidney Ayres was a stage name, his real name being Daniel S. Ayres.

* * *

We received a telegram from the Liberty theater in Long Beach, Saturday last week, to attend a Keystone Night, a midnight matinee where Keystone stars were stated to appear in person. We are sorry to state that we did not have the opportunity to go, but we read from the papers that the house was crowded to a capacity and many novel entertainment features were provided the enthusiastic audience.

"Slim" Summerville and Bobbie Dunn, together with Fred Cline, of the Keystone forces, rendered an impromptu skit which brought down the house, while Harry Williams, the well-known song writer, greatly amused his audience with a short talk and the rendition of one of his own songs.

Louise Fazenda, who was starred in one of the Keystone comedies thrown on the screen, made her first appearance in person before an audience, and won much applause in her "stall" act. "A Game Knight" and "Crooked to the End," two Keystone comedy screams, drew a constant laugh all around.

The program had been arranged by a committee from the Keystone studios through a special offer made by Manager Hoyt, of the Liberty, which is considered one of the prettiest motion picture theaters on the Pacific Coast. A number of Keystone stars who had promised to take part in the entertainment were unable to attend, but even at that the event was entirely successful and Manager Hovt deserves a lot of credit for his enterprising and unique affair.

* * *

At the Symphony theater, Harold Lockwood and May Allison will present this week autographed copies of "Mister 44," to the writers of the three best constructed essays on the picture, written during the run of said photoplay at the Symphony. Two complimentary tickets admitting the recipients to the Symphony will be bestowed upon each of the writers of the next best twenty-five essays.

* * *

We met J. Warren Kerrigan out at Universal City this week after the big star had returned from a trip to the big tree country in Northern California. Jack looks hale and hearty and said that he enjoyed the trip a great deal. He also said that they secured some very fine pictures among the giant denizens of the forest.

The company was under the direction of Jack Conway, and they made a film called "The Measure of Man," with Louise Lovely playing the leading feminine part opposite Big Jack. They went all the way to Humboldt County to get these scenes, and from what Director Conway says the films will be well worth seeing.

* * *

Although our stay at the Keystone studio was cut short by an over enthusiastic and extra zealous workman, who carried a badge of watchman, we did manage to say Hello to Fred Mace and to see Charlie Murray, the everlasting comedian of the Emerald Isle. Charlie said he was just doing the last scenes with one of his departed brothers, and we show a picture of one of the scenes here.

Charley Murray and the Skeleton.

This picture will be on the Sennett Triangle program. Murray has a little tete a tete with a skeleton and he said that even though the thing was operated by a man, and there were strong wires attached to it, he wanted to stay as far away as possible.

* * *

Abe Stern, manager of the L-Ko comedy studio in Los Angeles, has made this place what he calls "Universal City Junior." Mr. Stern, when not being chased by speed cops to and from the studio, is busy directing the big organization, or planning new pictures and methods of production. Not since the Universal moved away from the old Gower street studios has the lot taken on such an active aspect. Alice Howell has just finished another big three-reel comedy directed by J. G. Blystone. She has signed another contract for two years. Craig Hutchinson is working with Dan Russell on a big picture. Louie Jacobs, business manager, has gone to New York on business. En route he will visit one of his big houses, the Palace theater in Burlington, Ia. He owns several large theaters in the East and is quite an exhibitor. Dave Kirkland is working on a feature comedy, and as usual is putting some very fine comical touches to it.

* * *

The management of the Symphony theater has started a contest for one week during the showing of the Lockwood-Allison feature, "Mister 44." They will give away, for the best essay on the picture, autographed photographs of the two stars, in addition a number of reserved seats will be given.

* * *

A new producing company was launched this week at Glendale, the home of Kalem pictures, where Dr. C. W. Bachmann, a dramatist and producer has organized a company to make child pictures. The firm will be known as The Sierra Photoplay Company, and will have Dr. Bachmann as its director. They will make and market child plays and old fairy tales and like stories. It is said that the new concern has secured the old Selig studio at 303 West Ninth street, once used by Tom Mix. Work will start shortly.

ARTHUR HOOPS DIES SUDDENLY.

Arthur Hoops, popular screen star, who has been appearing lately in Metro pictures, died suddenly on Saturday, September 16, while on his way to his home in Bayside, New York.

Mr. Hoops was one of the best-known leading men on the screen. He appeared in support of Mary Pickford and Marguerite Clark in several notable screen productions before he came to Metro. He has been in many big features with Mme. Petrova, including "Playing With Fire," "The Soul Market," "The Eternal Question," "Extravagance," "The Weaker Sex" and "The Orchid Lady." Before going into motion pictures Mr. Hoops was well known on Broadway, where he appeared in several stage successes. He was forty-six years old.

New Grouping of Independent Manufacturers

Art Dramas, Inc., Will Release Fifty-two Five Reelers Yearly—Big State Right Men to Distribute Product.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the organization of Art Dramas, Inc., the policy of which will be the production of fifty-two five-reel pictures a year. At the head of the company is a group of independent manufacturers, and these are represented in the principal executive positions. W. L. Sherrill, well known to the trade through his activities with the Frohman Amusement Corporation, is president; George H. Wiley of the Van Dyke Film Production Company is vice-president and general manager, and Herbert Blache, long-time motion picture manufacturer, is secretary and treasurer.

General Manager Wiley states that the plans have been under way for four months, that these are practically completed, and that within a fortnight he will be able to give out the titles of the initial productions. With the exception of Atlanta, Dallas, Seattle and Canada the territory has been allotted to some of the most prominent states rights men in the United States. The plan of distribution will be somewhat similar to that of the Metro company, the dominant idea being direct co-operation between manufacturer and exchangeman.

The distributors so far signed up are: The Art Dramas Company of New England, 100 Boylston street, Boston; Art Dramas Company of New York City, 729 Seventh avenue, New York City; Electric Theater Supply Company, 13 Vine street, Philadelphia; Silverman Brothers, 619 Penn avenue, Pittsburg; J. A. Fitzgerald, 75 Broadway, Detroit; Art Dramas Company, Mallers Building, Chicago; Sherman-Elliott, Inc., Minneapolis and Kansas City, and the Lasky Amusement Enterprises, of San Francisco and Los Angeles.

"One of the main principles on which Art Dramas is built," said Mr. Wiley, "will be attention to scenarios, to books, to the stories, which we will produce in the manner the exhibitor and the public now demand. While our players will be fully competent and experienced, we are not going to emphasize the stars. Our chief aim will be the story. Our first release will be about October 30. In addition to the manufacturers I have named there will be two others announced shortly. These combined will enable us easily to fulfill our contracts of one five-reel subject a week."

VITAGRAPHS ON GENERAL FILM.

On Monday, October 2, General Film will release the Vitagraph comedy, "Making an Impression." It was directed by Frank Currier. On Friday, October 6, General Film will release a Vitagraph one-part comedy, entitled "A Vampire Out of Work." This is a screaming burlesque on the vampire type of picture and Josephine Earle is featured. As a vamp of all she surveys, her dominion over restaurant patrons makes excellent comedy. On October 7 a Broadway Star Feature in three parts, entitled "Cantrell's Madonna," is scheduled. Gordon Gray and Virginia Hammond are featured. The director of "Cantrell's Madonna" is Thomas R. Mills. This three-part production is entitled to rank with lengthier features, because it contains a powerful story and is superbly acted.

Scene from "Making an Impression" (Vitagraph).

Reviews of Current Productions

EXCLUSIVELY BY OUR OWN STAFF

"The Mishaps of Musty Suffer"

The Last Three Comedies of the Second Series Reveal Strange and Mirthful Incidents in which Harry Watson, Jr., Is the Prominent Figure.

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

WHIRLS 8, 9 and 10 of the second series of "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer" cannot fail to exact from spectators a rich harvest of laughs. Nos. 8 and 10, especially, should excite uproarious peals of merriment, because of the fanciful strangeness of the incidents, combined with their mirthful appeal.

"Active Service" is the title of whirl No. 8, and that is all too incomprehensive when the service rendered includes a shave by a vacuum hair remover, the pressing of a suit while it is worn by the owner, the furnishing of a wife and the preacher to tie the nuptial knot while the wife-seeker waits; the instantaneous satisfying of a hungry man's appetite by shooting the food (liquid and solid) into his mouth by a huge squirt and a rifle, and so on, until the end of this chapter of amusing incidents. The ease with which "Musty" gets rid of his quickly-secured wife, by means of a fairer corespondent and a dictagraph, is just about the limit in such delicate matters, and there is little fear of the method being adopted by any wife-tired spectator.

Scene from "Active Service" (Kleine).

The scene showing the photographing of "Musty" and his newly wedded wife will cause an explosion of mirth that will accord well with the wreck of the studio by the powder used in the taking of the flash-light picture.

Della Connor and Rosa Gore, as the co-respondent and the wife, sustain their roles well in the atmosphere of broad comedy that surrounds them.

"Partly Cloudy" is the surname of whirl No. 9. In it "Musty" fills a job at a dime museum that calls for a jack-of-all trades. He is even a moving picture operator during his stay, and succeeds in driving everybody out of the theater. In an extreme emergency he is selected to play the part of the "African Dodger" in the museum, who has just been killed by an angry customer, who substituted a brick for the ball that he should have thrown. "Musty" might have taken a chance; but he knows that the late deceased has been the sixth victim within a few days, and his heart fails him. His get-away shows all the energy of despair, and our brutal hearts fail to suppress the laughter that gloats over his misery.

In Whirl No. 10, the last of the second series, "Musty" appears amid nautical settings. It is, therefore, appropriately entitled "Fore and Aft." At the outset we see "Musty" scoffing at the window of an old King Canute, by trying to sweep back the incoming tide with a broom. Soon afterwards we watch him boarding the good ship I. C. W., an old pleasure boat that skims the water in strange fashion, though judging from the water door in her hold, she should scoot to the bottom.

With his customary curiosity, "Musty" soon acquaints himself with every cranny of the vessel and meets the engineer. This old sea dog is just as mysterious as the machinery of which he is caretaker and manipulator. On one occasion "Musty" gives the signal to go ahead, but the vessel persists in hugging the landing. The engineer is puzzled to find that the machinery stops, notwithstanding that the lever is full back. Musty, who is on deck, is also mightily perplexed, until he discovers that the small sail of the vessel is broadside to the wind which is blowing from the point sought by the course. He sets the sail edgewise to the wind, and the I. C. W. skims forward like a streak.

One of the passengers discovers that a cup and saucer are lacking at the tea party held on deck. In order to save time "Musty" dives under the vessel, comes up through the door in the hold, and thence up three flights of stairs to the deck, where he proudly delivers the needed articles. He had thus saved the time it would have required to go slowly down three flighs of perpendicular stairs!

When the disgusted passengers leave the I. C. W., "Musty" happily engages in fishing. Soon a wild goofusfish swallows his bait and shoots away at a fearful speed, dragging the I. C. W., as if she were a cork. "Musty" is pulled off into the sea, and in a flash leaves the vessel far behind. His fate the spectator will learn for himself.

"The Chalice of Sorrow"

Five-part Bluebird Production Presents Cleo Madison in Tragic Story Written and Produced by Rex Ingram.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

BUILT along the lines of heavy tragedy, "The Chalice of Sorrow" is attractive as a play of this kind. Those who like heavy tragedy will find in this production much that is pleasing. Cleo Madison plays a clever feminine lead, with an excellent support consisting of Blanch White, Charles Cummings, John McDermott, Wedgewood Nowell, Howard Crampton, Albert McQuarrie and Rhea Haines.

Scene from "The Chalice of Sorrow" (Bluebird).

The scene of the story is laid in Mexico, and treats largely of the villainies of Scarpina, governor of the province, who glories in cruelty and presents an altogether detestable type which is well portrayed by Wedgewood Nowell. An American prima donna known as Lorelei, and betrothed to a sculptor, Marion Leslie, is coveted by Scarpina. An opportunity presents itself which affords the tyrant ample scope in which to pursue his cruel persecutions when it is discovered that Leslie has shielded an enemy of Scarpina's. Seemingly yielding to the pleadings of Lorelei for her imprisoned lover, Scarpina, about to extract from the girl a heavy toll, is finally stabbed by her after signing passports by means of which she and her lover are to escape over the border. A fine situation is arrived at where Lorelei watches the Mexicans fire upon Leslie with rifles she has been told by Scarpina will be loaded with blank cartridges.

Rushing forward at the departure of the soldiers she tries in vain to arouse her lover, realizing at last the awful truth, and the cruel vengeance carried out by the brutal Mexican even in death.

* * *

"The Rescuers" is the title of the two-reel Triangle comedy, featuring Tully Marshall, now receiving its finishing touches at the Fine Arts studio, under the direction of Tod Browning.

Two Biograph Reissues

"A Pueblo Legend," Two Reels, and "The White Rose of the Wilds," One Reel, for Release this Month.

Reviewed by Ben H. Grimm

"A Pueblo Legend."

AS CHARMING and interesting as the legend itself is this Griffith-produced two-reel Biograph reissue. The cast is headed by Mary Pickford and Wilfred Lucas. Their support includes Robert Harron, Jack Pickford and W. Christy Cabanne. Scattered subjects of the cast of characters are unusual today. The picture makes live the ancient Pueblo Indian legend of the Great Brother's search for the Sky Stone of Happiness. The scenes were taken in the Pueblo village of Isleta, New Mexico.

Scene from "A Pueblo Legend" (Biograph).

Mary Pickford plays the part of the adopted white stranger. She is in love with the Great Brother, who goes in search of the Sky Stone. His battles and years-long search for the stone are in vain, for it is found by the white stranger at her doorstep. Despairing, the Great Brother returns to find happiness and its talisman at the door of his loved one.

"The White Rose of the Wilds."

Although there is not much to the story of "The White Rose of the Wilds," the hand of David W. Griffith is seen in this one-reel reissue, in whose cast are found Blanche Sweet, Wilfred Lucas, Robert Harron and Joseph Graybell. The picture tells the romantic tale of three children orphaned when their prospector-father dies. The boy finds gold and during his absence from the cabin, the girl is accosted by three outlaws. She is forcibly embraced by one. A second of the trio takes issue with him and kills the girl's assailant in a duel. He comes back into the cabin and is given hope when the girl gives him a white rose as an indication that he may come back

"The Fires of Conscience"

William Farnum and Nell Shipman Make Interesting Characters in Fox Picture—Are Supported by Able Cast.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

THERE is no doubt that this film by the Fox players will be referred to as "a good picture." We do not use quotes because we do not agree—there is nothing displeasing in the film. But it is a phrase we hear now and then in restaurants and like places. It pays to listen to strangers talking about films.

This picture is good because the players, especially Nell Shipman and William Farnum, have put real work into it and made its story human. It is ably handled all through. Oscar Apfel was the director and has screened it in good, workmanship fashion.

A couple of hundred feet out of the five reels show a chase of a bandit gang by a posse. The reviewer had been wondering whether cowboy pictures were not due back soon. This chase was pretty flat. The right kind of Western would be welcome to many just now; but not the old chase picture as long as this generation lives.

The story is a narrative, rather loose in construction, but it deals with emotions and these, though many of them are only related distantly to the main theme to which the scenes at length arrive, keep the spectator interested until the hero fleeing after the shooting of a man whom he finds with his wife, meets in the West "Nell of the Golden Voice," a singer in a saloon. She makes him go back home and take his medicine, which turns out to be an acquittal on the "unwritten law." He returns and marries the girl. And it is this part of the film that will win it, we think, high favor with all kinds of spectators. It is really pretty fine.

"Through the Wall"

Gripping Six-Reel Detective Drama from the Novel by Cleveland Moffett, Produced by the Vitagraph Company.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

IT WOULD be interesting to know which came first—the fairy tale or the detective story, both have so many traits in common. They are both spun from the gossamer of their respective authors' imagination, and have always had a large clientele of delighted admirers, who follow the marvelous adventures of Jack the Giant Killer or of Sherlock Holmes, with breathless attention. Once one has entered the enchanted realms where either the magic beanstalk grows or the mysterious house is found, with its trap doors, sliding panels, ingenious death chamber and remarkable villain who is able to glue a little false hair on his face and walk undetected before all men in the bright light of day—an achievement, by the way, which puts the best bit of fairy magic completely in the shade—the only wise thing to do is to check one's critical faculties at the door, settle back comfortably in one's seat and sup to the full on thrills and scenes of a highly flavored and most satisfying unreality.

"Through the Wall," the six-reel Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature picture from the novel by Cleveland Moffett, has all the engrossing attributes of the well-made detective play. In point of fact, Mr. Moffett, although he employs the customary machinery in fabricating his story, displays uncommon skill in the use of his materials. The master criminal, with his miraculous dexterity in the art of disguise and his manifold devices for the confounding of his enemies, is the leading character. A keen-eyed, quick-witted and finely-developed detective runs him a close second in power to fascinate the imagination; and an engaging heroine and half a dozen other cleverly-drawn characters complete the proper selection of accepted types.

The title of the place applies to a murder committed by the criminal expert, for the purpose of removing one enemy and fastening the crime on another. Two adjoining supper rooms are used in performing the crime, a jealous young woman being tricked into boring a hole in the dividing wall, in order to spy upon her lover. The unfortunate man is shot in this manner. The situations leading up to the murder are dramatic in the extreme, and involve a life-like and thrilling marine disaster, when an undersea boat torpedoes a large passenger ship. The escape of the detective and his sweetheart from the rapidly rising water in the vault-like passage under the house of the criminal furnishes another strong climax. As previously indicated, put yourself in the hands of the author and you are borne along on a swiftly-moving flood of exciting events. Rollin S. Sturgeon, the director of the picture, exhibits a clear perception of the requirements of the scenario, and has been given a free rein in the matter of expense. George Holt, William Duncan, Webster Campbell, Nell Shipman, Corrinne Griffith, Anne Schaefer, Otto Lederer and George Kinkel are members of the cast. They all justify their selection.

Scene from "Through the Wall" (Vitagraph).

The entire Spanish quarters of Los Angeles were searched for types to appear in the fiesta scenes in the Triangle-Fine Arts production, "The Defenders," starring Bessie Love.

* * *

William A. Brady has arranged with Lady Duff Gordon, arbiter of New York fashions, to supply the gowns for future World-Brady picture plays containing society episodes.

"The Revolt"

Five-Reel Screen Version of Edward Locke's Play of Today, Produced by Peerless and Released by the World Film Corporation.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel

"THE REVOLT," the five-reel screen version of Edward Locke's stage drama, produced by the Peerless, scenario by Frances Marion, was written originally as a starring vehicle for Helen Ware. The play dealt almost exclusively with sordid and repellent phases of life, and the screen version follows closely in its footsteps. The work has the merit of culminative action and consistent plot development. The character drawing, also, is convincing, but the persons in the play are either without strength of will or deficient in moral fiber, the two leading characters being no exception to the rest.

"The Revolt" applies to the action of Anna Stevens, when she finds that her husband is neglecting her for another woman. Anna leaves her child with her bibulous stepmother and goes to an evening party at the home of a former shopgirl, who is now treading the "primrose" path. One of the guests attempts to assault Anna and she is saved by an early admirer—a doctor, who is also instrumental in restoring Anna's child to health, and reuniting the estranged couple. The opening scenes showing Anna's career as a shopgirl, the temptations that beset her, and the downfall of her companion, Lena Schmidt, are truthful enough, but the realism is unrelieved by any indications of goodness of heart, except the faith of Lena's mother in her wayward daughter.

Frances Nelson is the Anna Stevens and contributes an excellent piece of acting to the performance. Arthur Ashley was equally successful as the husband, and Clara Whipple gives the right touches to the character of Lena Schmidt. Frank Beamish, George McQuarrie, Miss Burneister, Ada Price and Madge Evans are the remaining members of a well-selected cast. Barry O'Neil's direction of the picture is up to the mark.

Scene from "The Revolt" (World).

"Ashes of the Embers"

Five-Reel Photoplay Produced by the Famous Players Film Co.—Pauline Frederick in a Dual Role.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

THE author of "Ashes of Embers," the five-reel photo-drama produced by the Famous Players Film Company, in which Pauline Frederick plays a dual role, has provided the star with a number of strong situations. Forrest Halsey understands dramatic values and has secured them for his play by the introduction of unlovely but authentic pictures of human experience. One of his characters is a moral degenerate, another is a weakling who cannot resist temptation when fortified by the love of a good woman. But after all is said, it is the criminal, and not the uninteresting good man, that sees his name on the front page of the daily paper. Sin and sorrow are the roots of drama, and "Ashes of Embers" has a full supply of both.

The two characters played by Pauline Frederick are twin sisters, one an industrious shopgirl, the other lacking every instinct for good. Laura, the moral pervert, loves a young architect, but marries an elderly man of wealth, and then carries on an intrigue with her former lover. Her sister, Agnes, has been made to serve a term in prison for a theft committed by Laura. At the time of her release, Agnes is penniless, and her sister is living in luxury. Laura's husband has got wind of her affair with Leigh, however, and a rascally lawyer aids the wife in throwing him off the track. Without knowing whom she is impersonating, Agnes is persuaded to pass herself off as her sister, Mrs. Benedict, and keep an appointment with the architect at his rooms. The deceived husband rushes in and confronts the wrong woman. Laura is saved by the trick, and Agnes and the architect become interested in each other. The young fellow is the victim of drink, but Agnes devotes herself to his reformation. Later, the two are married. Chance throws Laura and Richard Leigh together again. She tries to renew the old relation, is found out and shot by her husband. Leigh was unable to resist the wine offered him by Laura, and is seen clinging to Agnes, in an agony of fear and remorse, as the play ends.

Scene from "Ashes of Embers" (Famous Players).

Such a story will not stand close analysis, either from a logical or a moral point of view. It does, however, offer many skillfully constructed dramatic scenes. The workmanship after Agnes and Leigh are married is not so expert as that in the preceding reels and come dangerously near to being anti-climax. To return to the moral aspect of the story, the marriage of Leigh to the sister of his paramour is not a pleasant thought, especially as happiness with so weak a nature is a matter of considerable doubt.

It goes without saying that the unmoral sister is the better acting part. Pauline Frederick carries her impersonation of Laura to the nth degree of realism. The methods she used in "Zaza" and "Bella Donna" are repeated with telling effect in the part of Laura Ward. The woman she enacts is without moral perception or one redeeming quality. The sister is the direct antithesis to Laura in thought and act. Miss Frederick experiences no difficulty in giving life and expression to the character.

The supporting company is made up of such dependable actors as Earl Foxe, Frank Losee, Herbert J. Frank, Jay Wilson and Maggie Halloway Fisher. The production has the Famous Players hallmark on every scene.

"The Light That Failed"

Five-Part Adaptation of Rudyard Kipling's Story for Pathe Gold Rooster Program Features Robert Edeson.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald

THE screen version of "The Light That Failed" was evidently made at a time when inspiration was not uppermost; as an adaptation there is no praise coming its way. In the scenes illustrative of the mental suffering of the artist at the loss of his sight, Robert Edeson has risen to fine dramatic heights. His excellent work in these scenes is, however, overshadowed to a degree by the mediocrity of the rest of the picture.

Scene from "The Light That Failed" (Pathe).

The opening scenes showing the caravan crossing the desert are effective and give promise of artistic development to follow. Unfortunately at various points, one is forced to jump at conclusions, there being a lack of explanatory detail; and now and then a distinct commercialism, such as the attractive close-up of Jose Collins' back as she poses in the role of Bessie the model, crops in.

Rudyard Kipling's story is admirably adapted to the screen, containing at its climax one of those all-absorbing highly dramatic situations which stand on their own merits. The director has evidently warmed up considerably to this situation, which, as before hinted, contains decidedly the best efforts of the production.

In the cast in addition to Robert Edeson and Jose Collins, Lillian Tucker, Claude Fleming and other competent players appear.

Triangle Program

"The Rummy," Five-Reel Fine Arts of Sympathetic Realism, and "The Vagabond Prince," a Mythical Kingdom Romance, in Contrast with Modernity.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison

"THE RUMMY," in spite of its unattractive title, is a delightful piece of realism, admirably constructed, consistent, plausible and presented without theatricalism. It is a simple story of human weakness developed into human sweetness through the splendid optimism of a character interpreted by Wilfred Lucas, that of a newspaper man whose high faith in woman is rudely shocked. He preaches that the mother sex may be wronged but can really do no wrong except through natural affection. He lodges near a working girl who is turned into the streets, who is unable to make an honest living and who is brought into a night court where "Rummy" is substituting for a reporter. He offers to protect the helpless creature, and, out of pity, he marries her, an extremity of reformation

The girl is pursued by an insidious villain, our old friend the political boss, with a cigar in one corner of his mouth, and he compromises her in the eyes of her optimistic husband, transforming him to a pessimistic drunkard. He loses out at the office and becomes a mere vagabond, merely existing on rum and the good nature of old friends. She barely exists as a seamstress and scrubwoman, confirming his idea that women do not descend to low life voluntarily when they are normal. A quarrel between the political boss and his right-hand man, a saloon-keeper, brings revelation, restoration to happiness and a new life to Rummy and his wife. All this is delicately interpreted by Wilfred Lucas and Pauline Stark. Mr. Lucas is also the author of the story and is to be congratulated upon achieving the unusual.

Scene from "The Vagabond Prince" (Triangle).

"The Vagabond Prince" starts out as a mythical kingdom romance of the stereotyped "Prisoner of Zenda" kind, but it expands into a story of fine human interest when the wandering "Prince of Bothalia" meets a true affinity in a lively and robust girl of coarse environment as far as her means of living are concerned—she is a singer in one of the Barbary Coast resorts. She is not seriously affected by her low surroundings and associates when the Vagabond Prince, now a common sailor, shows his fine athletic training in rescuing her from our dear old friend in the pictures, the villainous political boss.

Through a former acquaintance, an American artist, the Prince establishes himself as a maitre d'armes and gains self respect by earning an honest living. The girl gives up her Barbary Coast associations and joins the bohemian colony of artists as a model. Prince and model fall in love and are at the point of marriage when ambassadors from "Bothalia" arrive with the announcement that he has succeeded to the throne. In the conflict beween love and duty he reverses the Prisoner of Zenda verdict, though his contention is the same—that love is all.

A Quartet of Kalem

"The Web of Guilt," Eighth Episode of "The Girl From 'Frisco" Series; a New "Hazard of Helen," "One Step Too Far," a Ham and Bud Comedy, and "Stolen Plumage," an Ivy Close Comedy.

Reviewed by Ben H. Grimm.

"The Web of Guilt."

A MURDER mystery and its clever and logical solution by Barbara Brent (Marin Sais) and John Wallace (True Boardman) form the plot for "The Web of Guilt," the eighth two-reel episode in Robert Welles Ritchie's "The Girl From 'Frisco" series. The story was suggested by an actual murder mystery of some years ago, and the author has adroitly wrought his facts and his fiction into a melodramatically interesting photoplay. The element of mystery is uppermost, and moments of tenseness are many. The two reels embrace some good night photography.

Scene from "The Web of Guilt" (Kalem).

A masked figure rides to the bunk house of the ranch foreman on a bicycle and places a gun in the house in such a manner that it will explode when the door is opened. A Chinese servant is the victim. Barbara and John become detectives and the bicycle tracks and a green strand in the rope used to set off the gun gives them a start. Suspicion at first pointed to a ranch hand who has threatened to "get" the foreman, but it is soon shifted to the owner of a hardware store. He is put through a third degree and is forced to watch a repetition of the actions of the masked murderer. He confesses. In the cast are Marin Sais, True Boardman, Frank Jonasson, Ronald Bradbury, Edwin Clisbee and Steve Murphy. Directed by James W. Horne.

"The Blocked Track."

This number of the "Hazards of Helen" railroad series is up to average. The thrill in this reel comes when Helen prevents a gang from holding up the pay car. During the action of the melodramatic story she is chased by one of the plotters. She climbs hand over hand across a wire to a telegraph pole, down the pole and up into a tree. The branches of the tree overhang the railroad track and Helen, forced out on the end of a limb, leaps to the tender of the locomotive that is hauling the pay car into the trap set by the hold-up men. She foils the plot.

Helen Gibson is supported by P. S. Pembroke, George Routh and G. A. Williams.

"One Step Too Far."

This Ham and Bud reel is a fair comedy number. Ham becomes a policeman and Bud becomes a burglar. Bud is taken in hand by Ethel, a lady crook. But Ham insists on splitting fifty-fifty with every lawbreaker, and when he catches Bud and Ethel he takes the silverware himself. He hides it under his uniform and is just about to get a medal for his bravery when it is discovered that he is a living silver mine. Instead of a hero's medal he gets a cell, which is also the fate of Bud and Ethel.

"Stolen Plumage."

There are quite a number of laughs in this number, in which Ivy Close is featured. The story is a burlesque on many of the mysterious plots of Far Eastern intrigue that have been so plentiful of late. Nell's sweetheart, Algy, returns from the wilds of the jungle with the sacred feathers of the Dik Dik bird. He has stolen them from the bird belonging to the much-feared Babzebe. Babzebe comes to America and ferrets out Algy, whom he finds at a party in Nell's House. The reel contains much passable knockabout work by Ivy Close, Henry Murdoch and Arthur Albertson.

"The Scarlet Runner"

Vitagraph Shows Episodes 8, 9 and 11 of the Williamson Serial Story—Each of the Pictures Is in Two Parts.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

"The Glove and the Ring."

THE eighth episode is called "The Glove and the Ring," and in this the hero, Earle Williams, picks up a friend, played by Adolphe Menyou, in Italy and cures him of love sickness in an exciting adventure in which they rescue a beautiful Russian, played by Jean Stewart, from political bandits. It is remarkable what verisimilitude the producer has reached in suggesting Italian backgrounds. In this episode, too, the story which seems very Italian is acted to decidedly heighten the impression of actuality.

Scene from "The Scarlet Runner" (Vitagraph).

In the Italian Alps they find a cart, its horses untended and traveling at will. A glove and ring stabbed through with a dagger is in the cart. They turn the horses back and follow to a romantic Italian-looking farm. At first suspected, they at length lead the farm hands after the real bandits whom by a ruse they capture.

"The Gold Cigarette Case."

The ninth episode is called, "The Gold Cigarette Case," and is a highly romantic adventure with Mid-Victorian flavor. It also is set in delightfully appropriate backgrounds wholly in keeping with its story. In it Gypsy O'Brien plays the heroine and is discovered looking out of a high window at the hero. She throws a gold cigarette case to him before she is yanked back into the castle by a villainous old man. In the case is a photograph of a young man and a scrap of paper with a string of letters running across it. In this episode the hero reunites two lovers, rescuing the girl from the clutches of her hard-hearted uncle. It has many very exciting moments and is, on the whole, markedly likable in spite of a few cut-backs that are not needed and one or two other minor defects.

"The Missing Chapter."

The eleventh episode, called "The Missing Chapter," has humor in one of its characters, played by Hattie Delaro, a rich widow who falls in love with the hero acting as her chauffeur. It is also brightened by some excellent acting on the part of Edith Storey as the heroine, a rich English girl fond of driving her own car. The tale is not so true to the romantic spirit nor quite so interesting as the two we have just noticed. Julia Swayne Gordon is the villainess. The backgrounds are in and near a grand hotel.

"The Common Law"

Clara Kimball Young Irresistible in Seven-Reel Adaptation of Robert W. Chambers' Novel Presented by Lewis J. Selznick.

Reviewed by Ben H. Grimm.

"THE Common Law," a seven-reel picturization of the novel by Robert W. Chambers, presented by Lewis J. Selznick and Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation, is truly a remarkable production. The appeal of Clara Kimball Young in this picture is irresistible, and she is surrounded by an excellent cast. If the characters in Mr. Chambers's novel had walked out of the pages of his book they could scarcely have been more true to type than they appear in this picture. The seven reels are a quite faithful visualization of the sociological plot, with the exception that several of the more objectionable—or what could have been made more objectionable—situations are noticeable by their propriety.

Continuity throughout the picture could hardly be improved upon, and the story is smoothly narrated on the screen with the use of fewer subtitles than many productions of shorter length. The subtitles, too, are made artistically attractive by the use of decorative designs. Director-General Albert Capellani has lent artistic touches to the whole that add to the production's worth. Many of the settings, particularly in the studio scenes, are magnificent.

Throughout the development of the character of a young girl of education and refinement who is forced to seek employment as an artists' model, Clara Kimball Young draws the spectator into a state of sympathetic solicitude for her. The story abounds with dramatic situations which are interpreted to their fullest possibilities by Miss Young, as Valerie West, artist's model, and Conway Tearles as Louis Neville, the artist. A situation in which Miss Young is called upon to reach the highest degree of her ability occurs when Valerie, pure in heart, sets a day upon which she tells Neville she will come to him as his common law wife. In this scene Miss Young is supreme. She compels the sympathy of the spectator, especially so when the spectator has followed her through the previous action in which the adopted daughter of Neville's parents, who is also in love with the artist, has extracted Valerie's promise not to marry Neville because it would ruin his career if he were to marry his model. In fact the role of Valerie is a difficult one, which has been handled by Miss Young in a manner that proves she is an emotional actress of high calibre.

The heavy role in the production—Querida—has been ably and forcefully portrayed by Paul Capellani, and a personality that charms is that of Lillian Cook, who plays the adopted daughter of the Nevilles. Edna Hunter plays the rather sympathetic part of Rita. Others in the cast are Julia Stuart, Edward Kimball, Lydia Knott, D. J. Flannigan and Edmund Mortimer.

On the whole, "The Common Law" will prove a box office magnet.

"Idle Wives"

Seven-Reel Universal Photoplay That Has Much to Recommend It, in Spite of Its Sensational Title.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

"IDLE WIVES" contains an excellent plea for the moving picture drama. This seven-reel Universal photoplay was written by Lois Weber. In spite of its sensational title, it contains nothing vicious; and, although several of the scenes take place in a low dance hall and a young girl is betrayed and her child is born in a shelter for such unfortunates, the subject is handled without dirt or drivel.

Its plea for the moving picture drama consists in the fact that three sets of characters are about to commit acts of folly. They all attend a moving picture theater and, in a play called "Life's Mirror," see the results of their proposed courses of action. The three sets of characters are a young girl and her lover, a married couple, and the family of a workingman. The "counterfeit presentment" of their own cases, upon the screen, turns their feet into the right paths.

Such a plot is farfetched, but the incidents are treated with a due regard for the truth, and there is no unnecessary flaunting of vice. In one particular the character played by Lois Weber fails to convince. She is a woman who has been a settlement worker and has married a wealthy man. When she tires of the sham and selfishness of the people around her, she leaves her husband and her two young children and returns to her old duties among the slums. Such a woman would not abandon her children, and the fact that she goes back to them several months later does not justify her conduct.

The work of the director demands commendation. Nothing has been slighted or allowed to detract from the seriousness of the theme. The human touches throughout the seven reels are many and show a keen appreciation of the minds and the souls of the people in the play. "Idle Wives" aims to tell the truth, and generally succeeds in hitting the mark. Miss Weber plays the settlement worker. Her artistic equipment and her understanding of the character, make the task a congenial one. Phillips Smalley, Mary MacLean, Chas. Perley and Neva Gerber are important and valuable members of the cast.

"The Land of Lizards"

Five-Reel Mutual Featuring Anna Little and Borzage.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

A STORY of Arizona mining life, "The Land of the Lizards" rises out of the picture of movement through the fine personalities of Anna Little and Frank Borzage. They attempt on their own account to raise a story of movement to the plane of true drama, always found in the human being, not in mere situation, as many directors still think. Riding up hill and down dale by ranchmen and ruffians while continually popping blank cartridges at one another, and shooting up the town by gangs of lawless marauders, all this is of other days. Out of this one-reel cowboy stuff emerges two genuine characterizations, that of "The Stranger," an emotionless and fearless wanderer, played by Frank Borzage with a fine sense of what is impressive in the portrayal of peculiar characters, and by Anna Little in the role of a sheep herder's daughter, dressed as a boy because of the near presence of an organized gang of ruffians to her father's ranch.

The story of these two is of strong human interest, but that interest is constantly dissipated for the sake of side issues, a fault of careless construction. Where interest eventually narrows down to two such characters the audience should not be left so long in doubt as to where sympathy is to go. The story is naturally that of an old sheep herder who locates a gold claim and records his find in spite of the near proximity of ruffians, only to meet with death at their hands at the moment of his triumph, when he is about to fulfill the many promises made to keep his daughter near him. She falls into the hands of the gang and is rescued by the stranger, and love is their compensation in addition to her inheritance of a rich mining property.

"A Romance of Billy Goat Hill"

Five-Reel Red Feather, Adapted by Lynn Reynolds, Tells Entertaining Story of the Sunny South.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THIS five reel number, based on a story by Alice Hegan Rice, is one of rounded interest and satisfying qualities. It is well constructed, has splendid atmosphere, and is filled with quiet, human touches throughout. The plot is one of the less fervid type, but has a strong and dramatic close.

Myrtle Gonzalez is very pleasing as the Southern girl, known the country over as Miss Lady. She falls in love with a young man named Don Morley, well-portrayed by Val Paul. Morley is a youth of wild tendencies, but promises the girl that he will leave off gambling and drinking if she will marry him. A shooting then occurs and Morley leaves the country to avoid testifying against a friend.

During his absence the friend permits the country at large to believe Morley did the shooting. Miss Lady, heart broken, marries an old professor in order to save her home. Morley returns on the night of the ball. There are some splendid lighting effects in the snow storm and ball scenes. The trial of Morley later is also well handled. He is saved by the testimony of Chick Flathers, formerly a dumb boy, who was present during the shooting.

The parts are all in capable hands: Joseph Jefferson appears as Professor Queerington, Fred Church as Lee Dillingham and George Hernandez as the Colonel.

To Produce "The Whip"

Famous Drury Lane Melodramatic Spectacle Now Being Pictured at Paragon Studio.

"THE WHIP," under the direction of Maurice Tourneur, is in process of production at the Paragon studio, Fort Lee, upon a scale of extraordinary magnitude. In fact, when Mr. Tourneur received the manuscript of this internationally famous drama, the official word came with it that he was to have carte blanche in executing its transference from the speaking stage to the screen, and he threw himself into the task with undivided enthusiasm.

Beginning with the cast the director engaged all the members of the original company who were available, and these actors and actresses will appear under the camera in the roles they have already familiarized across the footlights. The remaining characters are to be assumed by players of uncommon distinction in motion pictures.

The opportunities for animated pictorial elaboration provided by "The Whip" are entirely remarkable in extent and variety. These include a fox hunt with a great pack of hounds 'cross country; an exciting and realistic automobile collision; an attempt on a moving English railway train to commit a daring crime; a railroad smashup produced in the effort to wreck the car in which the greatest racehorse in Britain is on his way to the course; and the big race itself upon which the fortunes of the hero and heroine hang as by a single strand of thread.

These scenes, startling as they were in the environment of the world's largest theatres, will in the natural course of events become vastly more realistic and effective under photography with none of the limitations of space or numbers which regulate theater productions.

It is believed, with apparently excellent reasons, that "The Whip" will benefit immensely through its interpretation upon the screen, by reason of the large opportunities for spectacular development, and that, of the hundreds of thousands who flocked to see the spoken version here and abroad, great numbers will be attracted to view the play in its new and expanded form.

"The Whip" as a play was first produced at the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, London—"Old Drury," as the world-famous home of scenic drama is affectionately known to Englishmen and women the world over. Here it was acclaimed the biggest and best play in the history of the great playhouse, and it was performed before tremendous audiences for two years, withdrawn and revived for another year.

With the complete original production the drama was brought to New York by William A. Brady and his associates, the Messrs. Shubert, and presented at the huge Manhattan Opera House, where it not alone registered a wonderful sensation, but enormously eclipsed all American records for attendance.

This great run, extending over a year, was followed by a series of engagements in other cities of the United States and Canada which have never been duplicated in either the volume of patronage or enthusiasm of spectators.

The wonderful vogue of "The Whip" was further illustrated by the fact that it turned away thousands for a week at a time in cities like Springfield, Mass., Rochester, N. Y., etc., where in the ordinary course of events the largest theatrical attractions exhaust all possibilities in a single performance.

In this situation there seems to be very good reason to regard the play as one of the most valuable acquisitions in the history of stage drama taken over by the motion pictures. The screen version of "The Whip" will be in eight reels; produced by The Whip Motion Pictures Company, Inc., Fort Lee, New Jersey.

Little Mary's New Picture

Story of "Less Than the Dust," in which Mary Pickford Makes Her Debut on the Artcraft Program.

WITH all the scenes of Mary Pickford's new Artcraft Picture "Less than the Dust" completed and the assembling under full headway so that there may be no delay in the release announced for October, it is now possible to give a detailed synopsis of the play in which Miss Pickford will make her first appearance as an independent star. Chief interest naturally centers about the character which the star has selected for her new debut. From several scenarios she selected Hector Turnbull's story inspired by Laurence Hope's poem included in "India's Love Lyrics," and will be seen as a little English girl deserted by her father soon after the death of the mother, who sacrificed her own life in giving birth to the child. The girl, dwelling among the lower caste of a city of modern India, is the adopted child of a swordmaker when the natives start a rebellion because of certain policies of their English rulers which excite their protest. This uprising is the turning point in the girl's life. She meets Captain Townsend, commander of the local garrison, is greatly impressed by his position and looks upon him as a personage exalted and apart from the common people with whose life she has always been a part. This infatuation increases when the captain rescues her from an infuriated mob of fanatical natives who accused her of desecrating the sacred pool in the temple when in a playful mood she fell in and got a ducking.

Greater sorrow than she has ever known now comes into the young girl's life. In the lower caste she has been a pathetic figure because of the native attitude toward her, but her natural exuberance of spirit and the loyal friendship of the native children have more than offset the scorn and ridicule of their elders. Now, because of Townsend's attentions to her she becomes the victim of the wife of another officer who really loves the captain and is intensely jealous of him.

In spite of all opposition Rahda, as the little English girl is known in India, clings to her childish affection and admiration for Townsend. She risks her life to save him when he is wounded in a skirmish with the natives. Townsend is sent to England to recover his health. During his absence her foster father is thrown into prison and she organizes a rescuing party to effect his release. When she is about to be killed for her foolish bravado, the prisoner reveals the fact that he is not her real father, but that she is the child of an English derelict who formerly stood high in the military caste. In pity for this man's unfortunate condition Rahda had often displayed great sympathy for him, of course in absolute ignorance of their relationship.

This derelict is related to a wealthy Englishman and Rahda is sent to him. It develops that Townsend is also related to this rich man, who dies before Rahda arrives and leaves his fortune to the captain. Townsend is in charge of the estate when Rahda arrives. He at once exerts his influence to obtain the swordmaker's release from prison and Rahda remains in England to go to school. Here their affection becomes love and they are married. Townsend, thoroughly recovered, takes her back to India.

They find that the other woman has been made a widow by the rebellion. Now free to impose her affection on Townsend, she persuades Rahda that she has no right to be the wife of the captain and tricks her into leaving her husband. Overcome with grief, Rhada obtains a poison from a chemist and flees into the desert to die. Townsend discovers the deception in time to trace his young wife and overtake her in the desert before she can take her life.

Nearly fifty principal players are required to portray the story of "Less Than the Dust." David Powell is the Captain Townsend, Mary Alden the jealous woman, whose husband in the play is Frank Losee, and Francis Joyner is the derelict. Other prominent roles are in the hands of Mario Majeroni, Cesare Gravina, Russell Bassett, Walter Morgan and Mercita Esmonde.

"A SOUL AT STAKE" (Universal).

The present vogue for silhouette effects among Fifth Avenue photographers has had its reflex at Universal City. In producing "A Soul At Stake," an Imp two-reel Oriental drama, which will be released on October 13, Director Garwood, who also plays a principal role with Lois Wilson, has introduced some novel effects in black and white chiaroscuro.

The drama in some of the scenes might be called a study in black and white and the shapes which move back and forth lose nothing in impressiveness by being thrown up against the sun in silhouette.

"A Soul At Stake" was scenarioized by Calder Johnstone from the story by John Fleming Wilson, and was produced by William Garwood. Besides Mr. Garwood, Lois Wilson, Andrew Arbuckle, Edward Brady and Al Barzan play important roles. Many of the scenes were taken aboard a steamer playing between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Meet Miss Spurr.

WHEN we asked Miss Dolly Spurr for a photograph she sent a couple, one to show how she looks in the theater and another to show how she looks when she is all fixed up as not a business woman. But under the "Pickford curls" there is a mighty level head. Miss Spurr runs the Royal-Grand, at Marion, Ind., and the whole family work for her like most of the Mastbaums in Philadelphia work for Brother Stanley. She has a smaller house than Mastbaum, and only one, but in her small way she is as much a factor in the business. Some years ago we used to make extracts from the two house organs she then ran, but she dropped out because business got better and now she is running Films and Footprints because she realizes that this gives her a mouthpiece that cannot be equaled. Just now she is fighting the Sunday closing laws. She does not see why she cannot keep open the same as any other public utility, and she is fighting a game fight. She says she never expects to get married, and for that reason has adopted a kiddie, reference to whom, in her programs, occasionally lead to her being called "Mrs." Spurr, but look at the pictures and—well we're married, but not everyone is. But she may be wedded to her art, at any rate she has kept the house going longer than most managers run a theater (any one theater) and it is evident that she is there to stay. Lately we copied her comments on home-grown critics and here is another taste of her penmanship:

THE INJUSTICE OF JUSTICE.

Last week in the city court we were convicted and fined for opening our theater on Sunday, July 16th.

A "Six Cylinder" jury tried us, and before they had been seated five minutes, we knew just what we would get. This jury was made up of six men who had us convicted before they even got to the court room. At the first "count" our attorney found that the whole bunch belonged to the First Christian church, a church of whom 99 out of every 100 of its members are KNOWN to be AGAINST a Sunday opening!

Now, if the city authorities were determined to try us before a CHURCH jury, WHY didn't they give us a variety? Or were they afraid that SOME churches might be a little more fair minded and liberal, and if some of their members were put on this jury, they might not CONVICT us so easily?

The trial was a rank FARCE, and such a plain frame-up on the part of our opposers that we immediately appealed the case to the Circuit Court. "Grin and keep fighting" is our motto, and although we may have to take a rest once in a while, we've still got enough spirit and nerve to take us through the present administration if we have to, and into the next one also, if it takes us that long to obtain JUSTICE.

The citizens of this town who are indignant over the proposed Sunday opening here want to remember that there are thousands of people in Marion who are just as indignant because moving pictures on Sunday have been DENIED them. These people want FAIR treatment for themselves as well as the theaters, and they are going to DEMAND it! They either want the theaters open on Sunday so that they can enjoy a clean and inexpensive recreation, or that OTHER places which are open should be treated the SAME as the theaters. All around us we hear the remark, "If they won't let the picture theater run on Sunday, then let them close everything else." And that's just what some broad minded person will start one of these days, if the theaters cannot obtain fair treatment from the city officials.

The Royal Grand management has no inclination to "close the town," as our hands are full with our own battles at present. We would hate to see such a thing happen. Anyone who has lived or visited in such a town knows what it means. YOU don't want it, and neither do WE, but it is NOT FAIR for some places to be kept closed and others to remain open.

In other cities, moving pictures on Sunday have become a CUSTOM just the same as cigar stores, candy shops, drug stores and a whole lot of other things are a CUSTOM in MARION. This word CUSTOM seems to be the root of all the present trouble. It is "customary" for a man to dress warm in winter, and people would hold up their hands in horror if they saw a man braving a snow storm in a pair of flannel trousers and a silk sport shirt. They would call him a "NUT," and that's just the way some people who are opposed to Sunday shows feel about US. They think we are "awful" because we are trying to do something that has never been done in Marion before.

There is more to the article, but space is limited. When Col. Roosevelt was a Police Commissioner in New York he shut the saloons up so tight a couple of Sundays that not even the police could get their beer. Being a practical man, as he later explained to some Wall Street magnates, he did not persevere in the endeavor, but he had the right idea when he said that the one way to repeal an obnoxious law was to enforce it.

Much Free.

C. A. Fulton, who signs himself "A Picture Fan," and who writes from Ogden, Utah, says:

Seventeen reels for nothing! This must be the world's record for picture suicide. Ogden has about 25,000 population; the Alhambra seats 2,400, and there are three other houses seating from 250 to 450 each. The large house is run by millionaires whose main object seems to be to kill off the little fellows. They run from nine to seventeen reels every change, and sometimes vaudeville; generally two, and sometimes three, five-reel subjects, besides three or four short subjects. Admission is fivet and ten cents, children free if with adults. They also sell books of tickets—$1.20 for $1.00. About a thousand passes are distributed each week to the stores and homes. The Alhambra is a magnificent house and could easily get fifteen cents for seven reels. After seeing this long show the people feel that they do not care to see any more pictures for a long time. They are not only killing the little fellows, but are killing the business for themselves as well.

We reproduce one throwaway and part of another to show the free tickets. One of these is a lady's ticket that does not have to be validated at the box office. The other is a child's ticket good for two children for five cents. Another form of ticket is good for one admission if accompanied by a five cent paid admission, which amounts to the same thing. But we do not see where Mr. Fulton gets his seventeen reels. The best we can make it is two five reelers, two singles and a repeat—but twelve reels for five cents and ten cents is bad enough and twelve for nothing at all is worse, and, as Mr. Fulton suggests, such a course spoils business for all the houses. No one is picture hungry after a gorge of twelve reels and if another five is piled on top of that—good night. About time for the other fellows to print fables about the hog.

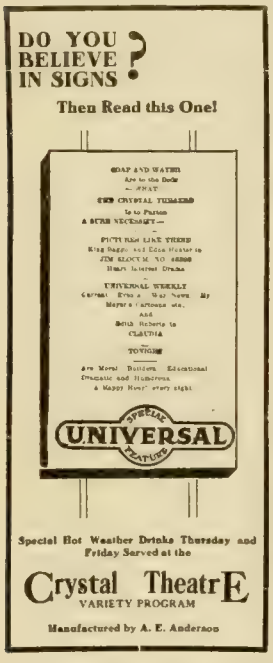
Udells.

Dave Udell sends in another batch of good things from the Majestic and Crystal theaters, Paxton, Ill. He adds that a recent article on contests saved him from signing up with one of the schemers and that he is several hundred dollars in. Dave knows where to go for prizes and we do not think he needs any help in getting down to business on the hustling. We reproduce a couple of odd styles of advertising. This all costs extra composition, but now and then it pays to get an oddity—



DO YOU BELIEVE IN SIGNS ?
Then Read this One!
SPECIAL FEATURE
UNIVERSAL
Special Hot Weather Drinks Thursday and Friday Served at the Crystal TheatrE
VARIETY PROGRAM
Manufactured by A. E. Anderson

WRINKLES
Are Caused by Worry
Take an hour off each evening and see our program.
You will forget your cares and cure the wrinkles.
Try These TO-NIGHT
HARRY BENHAM and EDNA HUNTER in "Through Flames To Save"
In Two Acts
and
VICTOR POTEL in "The Town That Tried To Come Back."
Comedy, also Eddie Lyons, Lee Morris in "A Leap Year Tangle"
TOMORROW
STELLA ROSETA in The Purple Maze

just as it pays to vary text and get people guessing what you will do next. Mr. Udell is prolific with ideas and keeps ringing the changes. We reproduce in type one of his letters. This is the only one he seems to have run lately:

Onceover, Ohio.

Miss Argue Barrellhug;

Dear Argie. Your a devil I mean "HE'S A DEVIL" is about the cussidest thing i ever see nowhere. I reckon u b going to c setch things tho b4 long at the Crystal Theatre in Paxton, heh? Nye Goodserch is visitin' here, he seys your goin' to heve He's a Devil at the Crystal Tonight. Don't miss it, Argie. It'll make your laugher sore before two seconds. Aint it. I c the "Secret of the Submarine" here too.

Did you ever c ut? The second one is a corker. There all corked in the sumarine down there out of the air and by gee I'l never thunk it that they'd git up. You kin c tho fer yourself how they do it. It's the best flp I ever did herd of. Aint it? Did you ever had a grouch on, Argie? Or a smile on? Then c GROUCHES AND SMILES Tonight. Its a comedy-dramer and will cure the grouch and run the smiles up and down your collarmarkit. It aint rained here for a hole month and I reckon it'll b kinder dry if it don't rain purty soon. Aint it.

Well So long,
Mister Slim Achfunny.

This is not quite up to the old standard, but is clever enough to suggest a line to others. A series of these, run in body type, daily, with merely a trade-mark device, should work well if they are well done, but merely misspelling will not work. The text must be really amusing, characteristic and correct.

A Complete Catalogue.

A man may be known by the company he keeps, but a business concern is known by the quality of its advertising. One of the best trade catalogues, in any line, that we have seen for many a long day, comes in from G. A. Metcalf, of San Francisco and Seattle. It qualifies for a medal from every angle, from A for arrangement, to Z for the zest with which the book is read. It is 176 pages and cover and is styled the A. B. C. of Moving Pictures. The title refers to the layout of the book which starts with A for act announcer and ends with W, see Moving Picture World. The article is properly entered under its classification and again is listed wherever it may be looked for. If, for example, you are looking for a belt coupler, and look under C, you are told that "C stands for coupler (see Belting)" and under the latter you find belting and accessories. They give you only one guess instead of three or more. The arrangement is singularly lucid and this alone would distinguish it. But it is not alone well planned, but comprehensive. You can order a copy of Picture Theater Advertising or any other standard book or you can subscribe to the trade journals. You can order a projection machine or a camera, a reel hub or a can of oil. They seem to supply everything except the lot and building, though we do not find that M stands for Manager. But apart from the scheme of the booklet itself, there are other oddities. The back cover is slightly more than double width, to permit it to fold over and tuck in to be self contained. The envelope is done away with. Then the address is so written that when the excess cover is torn off, this flap becomes a post card addressed to the home office and stating that the address is correct or corrected. The rest of the flap tears into three mailing cards, one each addressed to the home and the Seattle office with a third left blank to use to either address. They do not print on the edges of the catologue, but apart from that the scheme of things is as unique as the fictional slaughter house that uses even the dying gasps of its victims. Every square inch is made to work. If you are within the zone of the concern send for a copy to see how completely well a thing may be done with a little study—then give more time to your advertising. The address is 117 Golden Gate avenue, which is free advertising, but they have it coming.

How He Changed It.

Jack Henderson, of the Royal, Newcastle-on-Tyne, writes that he gets a lot of good ideas out of this department, and to prove it he sends in a booklet that utilizes the blank pages idea, but to get it up to the moment he letters the front "What I know about the great war." It's a fine thing to flash on the man who knows more about the war than the authorities and who wants to tell you all he knows, and the timeliness of the title will keep these little booklets circulating until they are worn out. The idea is old—admittedly so—but the application is timely and ingenious.

Postcards and Promises.

The Regent, Pittsburgh, introduced Vivian Martin to its patrons with a postcard announcing her first appearance and offering an autographed photograph for the return of the postcard—which of course contained the address. It checks the mailing list, and since you are interested enough to turn the post card in at the box office the chances are that you drop in to see the show; which is advertising in triplicate with a cash return. Here we think the Regent makes an error in mailing under permit. On a postcard the stamp should suggest intimacy just as Mr. Wall recently suggested.

Its Own Stamps.

The Majestic, Grand Junction, Colorado, is using its own stamps to replace the old Universal stamps. Charles Decker used to use the now unobtainable Universal stamps and now has his own printed up. The advertisement is a card 6½ by 8 inches with spaces for 36 stamps on one side and the explanation of the scheme on the other. As six stamps will admit an adult and half that many a child, the card holder is directed to cut off the required stamps instead of presenting the entire card. Each stamp is good for a face value of 2½ cents in admissions and is given by merchants with each twenty-five cents in purchases. Other exhibitors who may wish to get out their own stamps are cautioned to first obtain a recent reading of the state and local laws. Some states require that trading stamps shall have a cash redemption value clearly stated, and we imagine that this would be in excess of the income were the stamps taken at their supposed face value. A ten per cent. redemption value, even in admissions, seems to us to be rather high. We can supply the address of stamp printers if a return self-addressed envelope is sent, but we do not recommend the idea save in exceptional cases. The general stamp scheme is based on three factors, the desire of the exhibitor or vendor for more business, the percentage of unusual stamps and the ability of the donor to make a greater showing than he can with a cash discount. Probably the stamps are sold in the expectation that not more than a certain percentage will be used. This permits the user to make—say—a hundred per cent. show on a sixty per cent. investment.

Too Ornate.

The St. Denis, Montreal, has a good idea in a postcard program, but it makes the mistake of using a house cut that is too fancifully lettered. Of course, the patrons know in time that the arrangement means the St. Denis, but it is better to use a plainly lettered cut that he who runs may read, even if a policeman is chasing him. This is not said so much for the benefit of the St. Denis, as for managers who are thinking of but have not yet originated a title design. The program is nicely laid out, save that it is better to date the days. A novelty is an added comedy reel on Wednesday and Thursday, presumably the off days of the week for matinee business. This is suggested in Picture Theater Advertising and seems to work well for matinee building, but we have not seen the scheme used only on one section of the program, though this has its advantages.

Do It Now.

Steve Farrar, of the Casino Eldorado, Ill., writes that he has some schemes up his sleeve for when the cool nights come. If we had a house and some schemes we would use them hardest when the hot nights are still here. The cool nights are better able to care for themselves and anyhow we may get ideas by then. Steve is getting out some throw-a-ways through the summer, varying the style to gain interest and novelty, though of course novelty is synonymous with interest.

A Gem Crowd.

Edgar N. Hirsch, of the Gem, Hattiesburg, Miss., sends in this photograph of a matinee crowd in front of his house. The attraction was a Chaplin comedy—and it is hot down around the Gulf this time of year. And it was a photograph to gladden the heart of an electrotyper, clean cut, good color and glazed, but not too glossy.

Jay Vacates.

Jay Emanuel, of the Ridge Avenue, Philadelphia, sends in a receipt for a Presbyterian highball, and the announcement for his reopening with a redecorated house. It is a nicely illuminated card—a part of that carload of stock he got—and a convincing story of the opening. It is not always possible to get a whole carload of stock from a bankrupt printer, but if you keep your eyes open you can pick up a job now and then that will give you a chance to make a real flash at the cost of plain white paper. There is not a house in the country getting out better stuff than Emanuel has (even if he does sometimes have two Mondays in one week), and it is making the others talk. Even Tarleton Winchester, of Pathe, sent in one of his small cards for the "Iron Claw" that reads in large letters "The End Has Come," and in small type explains that it is not the end of the world but the end of the serial. It is a good line for the last instalment of any serial. And having gotten the house all fixed up and running again the boss is down at Atlantic City looking over the bathing suits. And he encloses a slip sent out in letters from Julian M. ("Kink") Solomon. It speaks for itself and it goes on all correspondence:

IF anything should occur in our handling of your business that is not entirely satisfactory to you be kind enough to let us know at once. Our exhibitors MUST be satisfied for we cannot afford to have one dissatisfied customer and we will not, if there is any way within our power to prevent it.

THE OLIVER MOROSCO PHOTOPLAY CO.
PALLAS PICTURES
220 W. 42nd St., New York City

The Better Way.

Something went wrong with a baby show at the Royal, Calumet, Mich., as this extract from the program seems to show:

NO MORE BABY SHOWS
We Made a Big Mistake.

We sure did make a mistake in booking that Baby Show two days last week. But it won't happen again. The men that ran it came around and made what seemed like a good proposition to us, and while I believe they are honest and tried to do what they said, they were not able to. The baby pictures were tiresome to most of us, and we assure each and everyone of you that we shall stick to the best pictures obtainable after this.

Now the moral of this is not to avoid baby shows, but to do yourself anything you want to do in this line. Don't listen to the men who come around with interesting propositions. Half of them are frauds, and most of the rest are fools. If you want to do something, do it yourself and do it right. A baby show on the screen is not tiresome if done properly, and it is easy to do it properly. Limit the number of entries to thirty or less, have the local photographer make new pictures. You can probably get him to make the slides free for the pictures he sells to the mothers of the kiddies, or at least you can get them cheaply. Buy your own prizes, print and control your own voting tickets, and you'll have a fifteen minute feature that will make talk and make money, and it will not bore. But keep away from all traveling managers of voting or other schemes. The carnival queen is a standard and profitable graft in the show business, and they will work your house in the same way. Do it honestly and you'll not have to apologize. All of these schemes are described in Picture Theater Advertising. If you want to run any get a copy and study up. You will save money and prestige alike.

A Norther.

Tom North has been thinking again. Perhaps he got the idea from the mid-west exhibitor who sold tickets for the "Battle Cry of Peace" redeemable at the bank if the feature did not show because not enough tickets were sold. But that doesn't matter. The important point is that he has an even better kink for the small town exhibitor who finds it costly to take a chance. It is nothing more than a course ticket for five big features at the cost of four, say five for a dollar. The ticket is issued with a stub and five coupons, and sold with the proviso that the money will be returned if a sufficient number is not sold to make it possible to bring the films to town. Almost always when put in this direct fashion enough tickets will be sold to make the engagement feasible, where it might not be possible to interest them to the point of support if they were not presented as a series. The scheme was tried in one way several years ago when an Exhibitor used to sell advance tickets to the state rights features at a reduction until the day before the showing. He always got his rental money in before the crowd knew what the weather would be. The North suggestion gives five quarter tickets for a dollar, but we think it would be better to be a bit stiffer in price and make the tardy ones give up thirty-five cents for being slow to act. If the scheme is worked well the house will be sold out anyway, or a large percentage; the expense is all in. Soak the others thirty-five cents, and if you want to repeat the scheme they'll know you mean it and be one of the early birds. If you live in a town of 5,000 or less paste this on the office wall and bless Tom North, and if you are trying to raise admission prices, what better starting scheme could you ask?

Why?

Paramount Pep, of Kansas City, lists the following women managers in its jurisdiction:

> How is this for lady managers, and they are all PARAMOUNT boosters and exhibitors: Miss Marie Smith, Pictureland theater, Fort Scott, Kans.; Mrs. George Miller, Blue theater, Girard, Kans.; Mrs. Bertha Simon, Barrymore theater, Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. Rose Cornelius, West End Lyric, Royal, Lyric, Skydome, and Lyric theaters, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. Ida M. Walden, Wonderland theater, Hastings, Neb.; Mrs. J. H. Heffner, Bijou theater, Mason City, Iowa.

And not one has ever sent anything in that we recall. Don't any of them advertise?

Would Cost More.

George F. Callahan, of the Exhibitors Publishing Co., of Pittsburgh, who gets out the vest pocket booklet recently commented upon in this department, writes that he cannot date the days as suggested without entailing an amount of work that would raise the cost. So many different issues are turned out that to watch the dates would be something of a job, and would necessitate a raising of the price, and the price of $4.50 a thousand for a sixteen page, wire stitched booklet, is assuredly a talking point. He sends in quite a package of different issues all of them on the same lines. We are strong for the local organ, written by a local man, but a scheme of this sort is next best to it, for the exhibitor who cannot write or who has not the time to write has only to send in his program and they do all the copy writing.

A NEW HELP FOR MANAGERS

Picture Theatre Advertising

By EPES WINTHROP SARGENT (Conductor of Advertising to Exhibitors in the Moving Picture World

A TEXT BOOK AND A HAND BOOK, a compendium and a guide. It tells all about advertising, about type and type-setting, printing and paper, how to run a house program, how to frame your newspaper advertisements, how to write form letters, posters or throwaways, how to make your house an advertisement, how to get matinee business, special schemes for hot weather and rainy days. All practical because it has helped others. It will help you. By mail, postpaid, $2.00. Order from nearest office.

Moving Picture World, 17 Madison Ave., New York

Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill. Haas Building, Los Angeles, Cal.

The Photoplaywright

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

INQUIRIES.

Questions concerning photoplay writing addressed to this department will be replied to by mail if a fully addressed and stamped envelope accompanies the letter, which should be addressed to this department. Questions should be stated clearly and should be typewritten or written with pen and ink. Under no circumstances will manuscripts or synopses be criticised, whether or not a fee is sent therefor.

A list of companies will be sent if the request is made to the paper direct and not to this department, and a return stamped envelope is inclosed.

Real Technique.

STUDENTS are too apt to give greater attention to the technique of form than to the real technique of the photoplay, and some never reach the point where they consider the medium in which they work. This should be the first real study following plotting or perhaps taken up at the same time that plotting is studied.

The technique of the picture differs from the technique of the stage and from the technique of the story, though it partakes of the nature of both of these mediums. On the stage, for instance, a too free use of scene changes is forbidden by reasons of economy as well as the perhaps greater reason that a too rapid change of scene disturbs the spectator and to some extent bewilders him. The scene changes in the story may be more numerous and more rapid, but neither of these forms permits the rapid return to related or contrasting action that the photoplay not only permits, but seems to require at times. This cutting back should be studied, not as a trick, but as an art. It should be the aim of the author to use the device for its proper purpose and not merely as an artifice. Cutting back is effective in the true sense only when cutting back is required by the nature of the narrative. The true technique of the cut back is not so much its use as the study of the need for its use. In the same way each point of technique should be taken up and studied, not as a trick, but as a factor of the perfect play. In a story a character or the author minutely describes some object. On the stage a player talks a description if the object is too small to be seen by the audience in all its details. On the screen the object, with no disturbing factors, is shown, briefly but clearly, and yet the bust picture is not a trick effect, but an aid to the full and complete understanding of the story.

Not many authors realize this and fewer still are free from the temptation to use the device not to gain clarity of narrative, but to enhance the supposed effect. A bust wrongly used is always an error, for it centers attention upon an unimportant object and gives it an emphasis that is as confusing as it is undeserved. Trick work, too, is another pitfall the student of true technique must avoid. Trick work introduced merely "to make it more interesting," as so many authors explain, has a reverse effect. Trick work must not only be needed to gain an effect, but the effect thus gained must be such as cannot be gained in any other way. Then and only then is the use of trick work excused.

Each component of photoplay has its use and its misuse and the true study of technique is both the use and the avoidance of material. It is only when the student fully and perfectly comprehends this that he is qualified to write stories and not merely pictures.

The artist who paints miniatures and he who works large canvases are both artists, but each has his own technique as well as an individuality of style. The student of photoplay technique should master his mechanics and then, through the use of these mechanics, establish a style. There is no literary style possible in photoplay other than in the leaders, but there is an individuality of style possible to the writer who will first master the components of his art and then seek to use these in an individual and distinctive manner. The expert telegrapher can recognize the sending of a man he has never seen, artists give their work an individuality that is unmistakable, even the jig saw puzzle craze brought out men and women who professed to cut puzzles in a certain style that could be recognized. The photoplay writer, too, should cultivate a style through study and application. Some day soon it will be gotten over to the screen.

Clean Plays.

Now and then it does seem that the only way to sell plays is to write indecency, but we are in pretty close touch with the exhibitors and their likes and dislikes and you'll find that now and then there comes along a play that they try to get back because so many people ask for it. Nine times out of ten it is a play with charm rather than indecency as its appeal, and if only editors would go in search of authors who can write these stories we should have more successful feature offerings and less soft coal smoke. If you can write clean plays with charm cultivate the trick. It will come in handy some day, and that may be soon. Clean plays do not mean drab, uninteresting plays. The hero does not have to be so good that he dies too young to be a hero, but he does not need to have a lurid past and a very recent clean bill of health.

Clean plays are apt to show more the psychology of the person than intricacy of plot. This is something for which certain of the well informed have been asking. Character drawing—as distinct from character sketching—is important and helps to humanize the players. One of the most valuable features of the third edition of Technique of the Photoplay is the reproduction of two pages of a Bannister Merwin script. One of the secrets of his success is the skill with which he shows the director how to get his effects. Study how to make your actions real to the director and perhaps he'll try and get these over to the audience.

Work.

Lately, taking a hint from something said by a pseudo student, we have been thinking over our most offensive points and we have come to the conclusion that the most offensive remark we can make is to urge the student to work and work hard. Most novices do not want to be told to work. They do not desire advice as to how to study. They want only to know how to get money quickly and all we can say is that the quickest way to get money and to keep on getting it is to learn how to work. Don't wait until an idea comes to you. Go after it. After a time you'll get them so they will come when they are called. Do not write a continuity every now and then. Write every day if only for a little while. Write even if continuities are not wanted. Get the habit of work and quit being an inspirational author, which is merely another name for a lucky loafer.

Read Munsterberg.

Evidently the price is scaring some from the Munsterberg book, one correspondent writing that he supposed it cost two or three dollars and asking an opinion as to the value of the work to an author. As a matter of fact the book sells for a dollar, but at any price it would be worth reading, for Professor Munsterberg writes of the photoplay of tomorrow, and his views are worth while. Between the somewhat fantastic speculation of Vachel Lindsay and the scientific exactness of Munsterberg lies the photoplay of the future. Both write of the photoplay from new points of view and both write interestingly. Both write within the mental grasp of the average reader.

Selling Hints.

Ninety-nine out of every hundred requests for advice that concern lost or overdue scripts suggest that the writer found the address in some alleged list of studio wants. These are largely taken from the magazines such as The Editor, which lists all wants reported without guarantee. A market list is desired, and one is given with the understanding that the reliability of the concerns is not assured. It is better to lose an occasional—a very occasional—sale than to lose half a dozen scripts. Keep to the companies that will be around next week and next month. It is safer and as remunerative in the end.

Motive Power.

A costly automobile will be as useless as a Ford without gasoline and the most carefully written story ever turned out is useless without the punch. Punch and heart interest are the motive power of the plot. Without it the plot is nothing.

Usury.

If they will not buy your one and two reel stories and you feel that they are good, keep them a few months. Soon you can sell them with usurious interest for the delay.

Take Your Choice.

Announcing his retirement from the photoplay writing business, a young man hotly declares that no company gives the least consideration to the scripts of the outsider. And the next letter is from a woman who has been working for three years, telling of her second sale to Famous Players in a single month. One half-baked aspirant is minus his postage and his temper. A sticker is in $500. Take your choice as to your own fate.

Looking Ahead.

Don't get a reputation for writing sex stuff. It may make you a little money now, but when the reaction comes you'll be known as a sex writer and passed over for others more versatile.

THE THIRD EDITION OF EPES WINTHROP SARGENT'S
Technique of the Photoplay
Will come from the press some time in June. This is not a reprint of the second edition, but a new work of seventy-two chapters and appendix.
Watch for announcement.

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Manufacturer's Notice.

IT is an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be endorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor.

Important Notice.

Owing to the mass of matter awaiting publication it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two to three weeks. In order to give prompt service, those sending four cents stamps (less than actual cost) will receive carbon copy of the department reply, by mail, without delay. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in the department, one dollar.

Both the first and second set of questions are now ready and printed in neat booklet form, the second half being seventy-six in number. Either booklet may be had by remittiug 25 cents, money or stamps, to the editor, or both for 40 cents. Cannot use Canadian stamps. Every live, progressive operator should get a copy of these questions. You may be surprised at the number you cannot answer without a lot of study.

Question No. 157.

What slope ought the main auditorium floor to have? How would you determine it?

From Ohio.

George Cavelaris, Elyria, Ohio, says:

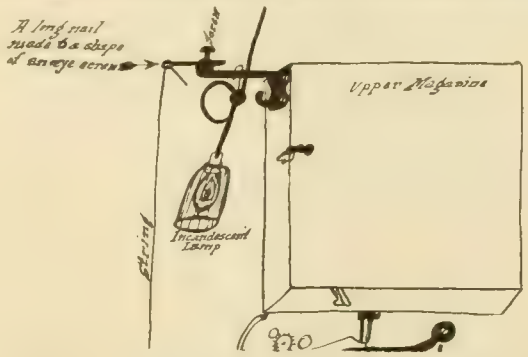
I wrote you two weeks ago and have been watching the department, but have found no answer. However, I won't give up yet. I have both the second and third editions of the Handbook, which I very greatly admire. Here is a little stunt which may be of benefit. I bolted a long cast iron clothes hook, costing 10 cents, to the front wall of the upper magazine, so that the top of the hook comes even with the top of the magazine, as per sketch. This hook serves, for one thing, to hang my light on so that I can see when threading, and which I use for various purposes around the machine. At the end of this hook I drilled two holes, one receiving a piece of thick wire made as shown, the other being tapped and threaded to receive the screw, as shown. Through the upper hole I ran a string, at the lower end of which is a metal shutter. This shutter is held square by two weights attached to its outer edges and hanging on either side of the machine. The other machine is fixed the same way and the two strings are tied together so that the lowering of one shutter raises the other, and vice versa. In changing over this works perfectly to cut off the light from the machine which has stopped, and at the same instant turns on the other. The string really ought to be carried to the ceiling, but my ceiling is so hard I could not get a nail or anything else into it. The same thing can be used as a dissolver for two stereo lenses, one being attached to each machine.

And now here is a question. I am operating two Power's Six A motor driven machines, taking D. C. through Edison rheostats, marked 40 amperes, 110 volts. When both machines are running 60 ampere fuses blow after two or three minutes. That is to say, it happened that way one day when I went on the roof where the rheostats are and cut out all the resistance I could in order to get more light. The arc burns noisy at times. The test lamp when placed across the arc burns to its full C. P. Test lamp shows a large spark between positive wire and the pipe, and a small one between the negative and pipe. One of the wires is grounded purposely and the other accidentally. Is this it? What can be done? If there was an overload, don't you think the 100 ampere fuses would blow instead of the 60?

It is utterly useless to expect an immediate reply through the department, as there is always from three to seven weeks matter in type, with piles of mail waiting. Very important matter, only, is put through special. Send four cents in stamps for carbon copy of reply if you are in a hurry.

I publish the drawing simply as an oddity. The dissolver rigged this way is nothing new, but ordinarily the strings are carried up to iron bolts in the ceiling, and that is where they should be.

As to the trouble, you have not told me what the wiring system is, but if one wire is grounded purposely and the other accidentally, why it is up to you to find the accidental ground and remove it, and the quicker you do this the less trouble you will have. You have not told me where the 100 ampere and 60 ampere fuses are located. How, therefore, can you expect me to answer with any degree of intelligence? My dear Cavelaris, in asking questions you should be very careful to describe conditions minutely, and in detail. If you are using 40 amperes on each machine and the 60 ampere fuses are carrying both lamps, why certainly they ought to blow when both arcs are burning, but if they are only carrying one lamp, and the 100 ampere fuses are carrying both, there is no reason why the 100 ampere fuses should blow because the 60 do.



Your 60 ampere fuses blowing would seem to indicate something very radically wrong somewhere, and it is probably due to the ground which you say already exists. Better test those rheostats for ground also—see page 260 of the new Handbook.

Warning Signal.

H. T. Eaves, Galveston, Texas, says:

Pardon me for butting in, but I note that the matter of a warning or cue for the operator to cut in on the next reel is being discussed at some length, and it certainly is a matter which should hold the attention of every operator. The matter of punch marks has not troubled me very greatly, since all the films I run are quite new and some of them as green as grass, I think when a fellow says use "wax" he might also add what kind of wax to use on the tension shoes. To get back to the cue question, however, I would like to submit my method. When the reels are received for the opening, I being the guy who opens the show, get the cues and write them down on paper so I will know on the second show just where to cut in. For instance, today we are running a six-part play, "The Whirl of Life," the cue for the first reel change-over is: Men and women give tramp money; then scene of tramp alone. Cut in. No. 2, Mr. and Mrs. Castle start from room. Castle in doorway; cut in. Therefore, you see any operator who is not blind can see exactly when to make the change-over. I have used this method for quite some time, and it has proven successful. Another thing which has made a hit with all who have seen it, is a little gag I use to make the change-over from one machine to the other, same being a device to cut out one light instantly and cut the other in at the same time. For the green film I use paraffine wax placed on the edge of the film, and after the first show am never bothered with the film sticking.

In regard to waxing the film, Brother Eaves, I would refer you to "General Instruction No. 10," page 464, Figures 228 and 229 of the Handbook, in which a very practical film waxer is illustrated. This film waxer is something that ought to be in every operating room where first-run films are used. As to the change-over, most up-to-date operators either connect the two dowsers together by a chain running up across the ceiling, so that the closing of one opens the other, or else they rig up a dissolving shutter for the objective lens by means of a bar properly hung on the front wall, so the closing of one lens opens the other. Your method is all right as far as it goes, but it does not help on the first show; also it requires very close attention on the part of the operator, unless he has a gauge which shows the amount of film left in the upper magazine. But "close attention on the part of the operator" is something I thoroughly agree with.

Operators' Schools.

Turners Falls, Mass., says:

Would you kindly inform me as to what you know about the "Edwards' School" for operators? I believe there is such a school in your city. Does it amount to anything, or is it an easy way to unload a little coin? I have a young man working for me who wants to learn to become an operator, and if there is a possibility that this school would be of any use I might send him.

Well, Turners Falls, the best answer I can give you on that proposition is that it would indeed be a queer institution which would not teach the young man anything, but if you ask whether any operator's school can make of the man in question a practical and competent moving picture machine operator, I most emphatically answer no, because the profession of operating is made up of two things, just the same as every other trade or profession is made up of two things, and those two things is a combination of technical knowledge and practical experience, and to expect any man to acquire even an intelligent smattering of the technical end of operating, which comprises optics, electrics, mechanics, and a close observation of nature, in a space of two or three months, is rank nonsense—is utterly impossible. What would you think of the doctor who would give up money to a medical school which promised to make a competent physician of him in three months, or even six months? You would think the man was insane. You know it requires from five to eight years apprenticeship as a fireman to produce a locomotive engineer. What would you think of the railroad company who undertook to put an apprentice into a school, where he obtained absolutely no road practice, and make an engineer of him in three or four months? You would not want to ride on that road, would you? No, of course you would not. Well, just why it is that you should give credence to schools which claim to produce competent operators in two to three, or even four months, or five months passes my understanding. If they make claims of this kind, which are utterly absurd, have you any reason to believe that any of their assertions are true? I have said, and I say again, that the best possible method which any young man can adopt to become a moving picture machine operator is to serve an apprenticeship, combined with study of such works as the Handbook and Hawkin's Electrical Guides. It is not only the best way, but the only way. The operators' school is a place where you can "unload a little coin" all right, but I myself would not like to give you any guarantee whatsoever as to the value of what you would get in return.

New Kind of Splice.

The editor thought he had seen them all, but from M. M. Moon, Sherman, Texas, comes a new one. He says:

I enclose an idea that I think would be a practical and valuable addition to the Power's machine. Please pass it up to them for consideration. I also send a piece of film I cut from a reel which was shipped to me from the Rex theater, Denison, Texas. Yes, it is just plain, ordinary chewing gum. A fine way to keep the film from unwinding in the box all right; also, incidentally, to force the next operator to make an unnecessary splice. You may roast them through the department if you wish, and put my name at the top of it.

I wonder who pulled off that stunt anyhow. Surely not the operator at the Rex. Looks to me more like the act of an irresponsible kid. He has, as Friend Moon intimates, stuck a wad of gum on the outside of the roll of film and pressed the end of the film down into it. It is not only a highly unsanitary thing, but in a case of a consumptive might be extremely dangerous to the operator receiving it; also, as Brother Moon suggests, it compels the cutting of the film and the putting in of an unnecessary splice.

As to the suggestion for the Power's, it amounts to drilling a hole, probably one-half inch in diameter, in the face of the lower side of the oil well cover, and putting in a glass so that the level of the oil may be seen. No, Brother Moon, I don't think much of that. It sounds good, and looks good at first glance, but I remember paying a couple of perfectly good dollars for precisely that kind of oil gauge and placing it on the crankcase of my motorcycle. It worked fine for a little while, and then the inside of the glass became so gummed up that you could not see the level of the oil at all. Possibly it would not work that way in a projector oil well, but I am afraid it would. The matter, however, is referred to my good friend Nicholas Power, who I imagine will simply say: "Keep the oil well as full as the oil cup will allow, and you are all right without any gauge." It costs money to put these things on, and the selling price of the Power's machine is already too low, considering the number and necessary accuracy of its parts.

Has Courage.

John Solar, Watertown, N. Y., referring to Brother Griffith's article, August 5th issue, writes:

I was much pleased to see that he has advanced his theory of the advantage of spherical aberration. I must say I admire his courage. I have studied this theory along the same lines, and have arrived at the same conclusion. If a system of condensers is ever devised free from aberration I believe his theory will be vindicated. Let us consider the A. C. arc. In this case many operators use both craters. The image of these will be two bright spots with a dark horizontal streak through the center. Cover the condenser with sheet brass, with two or three pin holes punched at equal distances from the center of the condenser, and in this case we have four crater images from one zone of the lens, and there will be no spherical aberration. With the screen in position to focus these images we can observe the condition as above stated. Now if the condensers are free from aberration the whole condenser will have the same appearance as it will from the four pin holes. The crater will be sharply focused at the aperture, and will be reproduced at the screen. The practical result will be a dark streak through the center of the glass. (Yes, if you use both craters, but, Brother Solar, the up-to-date operator who follows the best and accepted practice does NOT use both craters.—Ed.) With the D. C. arc the effect would not be so pronounced, but the illumination would nevertheless be uneven. The center of the crater is much brighter than its outer edge, and if reproduced sharply at the aperture, the spot will be much brighter at the center than at the border. Referring to the editor's remarks regarding aberration, etc., I don't know of any practical optical instrument that has more or as much spherical aberration as a pair of condensers under the condition in which they are used for projection, and a perfect condenser will have as much aberration as an imperfect one. The difference as between the perfect and imperfect lens will be, however, that the imperfect one will give uneven spherical aberration, whereas the perfect one will give equal aberration for each zone. Spherical aberration is due entirely to the shape or curvature of the lens and the angle of incidence, and follows strictly mathematical laws. As to the amount of spherical aberration, Griffith's demonstration gives the lateral aberration as approximate. For the longitudinal aberration cover the condenser with a sheet of brass in which four holes are punched about two inches from the center of the condenser. Focus the four images of the crater thus obtained and measure the distance from the condenser to the screen, which gives us the focal length of the zone two inches from the center. Now take another piece of brass with four inch holes one-quarter inch from the center. Focus and measure as before, and we have the focal distance for a zone one-fourth inch from the center, and the difference between this measurement and the first is the longitudinal aberration. Those who try this will, I think, be surprised to find so great an amount of difference between the focal points of the two lens' zones. The amount of lateral and longitudinal aberration for any lens under any circumstances may be calculated from mathematical formulas, but it is quite complicated and difficult.

All of which is passed along to our readers without comment. It is possible that I am wrong in this matter, but I am not entirely convinced of that fact as yet.

He Says It's Useless.

Ralph W. Martin, Los Angeles, Cal., says:

In issue of August 26 there are several items concerning the E. F. of the condensers which may be worth noting. In your answer to Friend Allen you give a rule for finding the E. F., viz: E. F. = sum of the foci of the two lenses divided by four. I am of opinion that the E. F.'s of Table 2 in the handbook were determined by the following rule: E. F. = product of the foci of the two lenses divided by their sum. There is little difference between the results obtained by the two formulas, for one method is about as useless as the other. I say useless, since the E. F. of the condenser set as ordinarily used and spoken of amounts to little more than a myth. We find such ideas as the following floating around and actually meeting with approval: "The E. F. of the condenser set should match the E. F. of the objective." "The action of any two condenser sets are the same when their respective E. F.'s are equal."

Now I do not presume to criticise the above ideas merely on the grounds of their incorrectness, for it seems that such things must be, at least for the present: but the really important point to be noted is what a long ways from Tipperary we still are in the understanding of the exact action of the condensers when such ideas can pass muster.

Sure enough, the exact E. F. of the condenser set can be determined for points of the lens on or very near the main axis, but when the position of the beam which should be placed at the aperture is still an open question, such knowledge is useless for the calculation of conjugate foci, or anything else. Not until the true aperture position is correctly determined and agreed upon, or unless the condenser is made a corrected lens, can the E. F. be of any practical value. And thousands of dollars' worth of pictures are being shot every minute, somehow, by the lens in the lamp house.

Evidently Friend Martin mistook the spike maul for the hammer. However, I am quite willing to stand corrected if he will make himself just a little more clear as to the real meaning of his rather sweeping smash.

As I understand him, after the sugar is boiled out of the sap of his reply, it amounts to a statement that, due to spherical aberration and indeterminate (as yet at least) position of the aperture, the E. F. of the condenser is a useless quantity, and, moreover, a quantity which cannot be accurately determined, since the E. F. for the center of the lens would be longer than for the rays passing its margin.

This is quite correct, but does not alter the fact that the rules given for finding the E. F. are as nearly correct as any we know of; also it occurs to me that the E. F. thus ascertained would not be so far off after all, because we don't measure from the point of smallest diameter of the beam, but from a point from the picture as focused, and this, it strikes me, could not be very far off. I do, however, admit that, due to the indefinite aperture position, the E. F. of the condenser cannot be used with any great degree of accuracy in calculating a lens system. As to the E. F. of the condenser matching the E. F. of the objective, why, I did not think any one held any such ideas as that at this late date.

Nothing Like Them.

Guy Beck, Guthrie Center, Iowa, says:

Enclosed find money order for first and second set of questions. I have the second and third editions of the Handbook, and certainly there is nothing like them for practical help in projection. Projection in this town is good; at least I have never seen anything in Des Moines to beat it. When I receive the World the first thing I turn to is our department, since I find it has good things in every single issue. In closing, I wish you the best of health and good luck.

My experience, Brother Beck, is that the man who is lucky is lucky because he gets busy and turns luck up with his grubbing hoe. I am always glad to hear from live, progressive operators who are keeping up with the procession, therefore, old man, shake.

Standardizing Dividing Lines.

M. W. Larmour, Waco, Texas, writes:

There is much talk about standardizing aperture plates, lens systems, sprocket holes, etc., all of which is good, but might I suggest that you give film manufacturers a few digs concerning the standardization of the dividing lines between the frames of the pictures on the film. In a great many of the weeklies the dividing line of the pictures is quite different. On some scenes the lines hit on the sprocket holes, and in others they come between the holes. This fault is not confined to any one film alone, but might even occasionally be found in some of the "stories," etc., and as for the short "ad" films, why I don't believe the dividing line is ever the same on any two of them, the result being that operators sometimes are compelled to work their framing lever like pump handles when they ought to be the most seldom used part of the projector. I believe if we could get the right man, which is yourself, behind this thing, we could make these lines and, incidentally, the framing lever remain stationary.

While you are on your southern trip do you think there is any chance of your paying a visit to Waco? We have a population of 40,000, with seven theaters now running, but there are more in the winter. Projection, managers and operators would certainly be benefitted by a visit from the "doctor." We are on the direct route between either Dallas, or Fort Worth and Houston.

I have studied your latest Handbook, and received more than ten times my money's worth therefrom. However, there are some places where I do not agree. I will name them, and if I am wrong I hereby give you permission to sit down on me as hard as you please, but please don't jump on me yourself and then sic the whole following on me as you did the other I. C. S. E. E. who criticised your old bible, for I don't mean mine the way he did his; and besides, the aforementioned E. E. has not affected my head as it evidently did his.

Brother Larmour then proceeds to point out several errors, though considering that there are more than 700 pages of matter, I am rather proud to say he was only able to dig up less than a dozen, all told. The first one was Figure 3, in which only one end of the field winding is connected. Quite true, I regret to say. It was an error of the draftsman, which I did not notice until too late. This error is, however, so obvious that only the amateur would fail to understand that it is an error. Those having Handbooks can remedy the matter by drawing a pencil line connecting the right hand end of the field winding with the field winding at any point between letter N and brush A. His second discovery is the second sentence on page 11 where I say all electric dynamos generate A.C. in their armatures. This is true enough for all practical purposes, thought it is a fact that homopolar and antipolar dynamos do not. Brother Larmour says that the first paragraph, Page 84, is all wrong, and that the combining of a No. 30 and a No. 17 wire would make 110 ampere fuse intsead of a 47 ampere fuse. I would like to know where he gets that dope. The table given on Page 83 was secured from one of the books of the underwriters, if I rightly remember. I may be wrong with regard to this particular paragraph, but before admitting it I would have to be shown. He calls my attention to the fact that the throwing over of the switch, Figure 28, would reverse the polarity. This is quite true, and is another error of the draftsman. The connection of the two wires on the right hand end of the switch to the arc wires should be reversed. Friend Larmour points out several other errors, but, as I before said, I consider it very creditable that he could find no more mistakes in a work of that kind over 700 pages in size. No, I welcome honest criticism, Friend Larmour, but the other criticism was not honest; it was simply, purely and unadulteredly nasty. The various points you have called my attention to have been carefully noted and filed for future reference.

As to visiting Waco, why I certainly shall do so, always provided the managers and operators of that city, either one of them or both, care to make the necessary local arrangements.

With regard to the dividing line, there have been complaints, but it is a tremendous task to get a thing of that kind remedied. If there were only three or four companies I would gladly take the matter up, and I could get action on it, too, but the forcing of the remedying of an error of this kind involves an immense amount of work, due to the greater number of producers, with each of whom the thing must be taken up individually. I live in hopes, however, that in the not distant future we will have some authoritative body which will take cognizance of such things and secure the standardization of everything which needs it, and that is quite some several things, lemme tell you.

Rectifiers.

G. D. Bullock, Pedro Miguel, C. Z., writes as follows:

Concerning the G. E. Company's criticism of Brother Crose's letter regarding the fuse question on rectifiers, the G. E.'s expert notwithstanding, I have had precisely the same experience Brother Crose met with where my D. C. fuses were in a panel behind and between the lamps, and the A.C. fuses in a cool, dry basement. The G. E. man quotes the performance of the rectifier on 60 cycle A. C., while Brother Crose's experiences are observations while using 25 cycle juice. We all know that the reactance E. M. F. is dependent on the rate at which the field is built up and collapses. Given a unit core the reactance, E. M. F., at 60 cycles and 25 cycles are not at all similar, nor can like conditions be established, even with the regulating reactance. The rectifier is the only A. C. device I know of where electric companies claim they can get a similar reactance, or inductance E. M. F. at both 60 and 25 cycles, using the same size core. Brother Crose has made real observations, and he is the kind of lad who is always trying to better his work. Several of his ideas have been published in the "World" over other men's signatures, as he is not strong for the limelight, though he has left a mighty comfortable feeling with the boys that when something is bothering them he will roll up his sleeves, put on a pair of overalls and when he leaves everything will be O. K. Brother Crose has worked 25 cycle A. C. through a rheostat, compensarc, rectifier, and at present is working it through a Fort Wayne motor generator set, and every improvement in his light source has come through his personal efforts. Speaking of 25 cycle current, a goodly number of the boys have never had the painful experience of being responsible for screen results produced by means of that most aggravating light source. The dark period between when the applied E. M. F. is at minimum is longer than the period taken by the cut-off blade in passing the lens. On the last reel of a show one evening, I lost my shutter with about 800 feet of film in the upper magazine. I did not like to stop and set it then, therefore speeded the picture up to 12 minutes, which gave me 25 pictures per second, and placed the picture in synchronism with the cycle, that is to say, two dark periods per picture, and one dark period as the film passed down at the aperture. I finished the film without showing travel ghost on the screen. Now call me a Munchausen, if you dare.

No, Brother Bullock, I was raised in a country where it was extremely dangerous to call a man a liar, and we were mighty careful not to do it unless there were sufficient grounds to justify that action, considering that the action would mean very grave trouble. However, whereas there is, of course, not a particle of doubt as to your veracity, I certainly would be glad to see that particular stunt pulled off. In fact, if you kept that shutter in synchronism and did not show travel ghost for 15 feet of film, I think I would remove my chappeau, pull my forelock, and hail you "king of the steady speed." To my mind that performance would be a stem-winding wonder. It is an awfully good thing that I have such an abiding faith in your respect for the truth, else I might imagine that the truth was suffering from a broken ankle, a sprained wrist, an out of joint nose, and a bad case of the whooping cough. You will observe, however, that I have not mentioned Friend Munchausen's name—far be it from me.

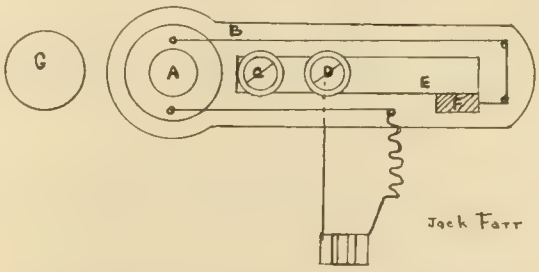
By the way, what are you doing down in the land of big dams, yellow fever and hot weather? Explain yourself, Brother Bullock, explain yourself.

As to the rectifier matter, why I will leave it to Brothers Russell and MacClelland to attend to your knitting on that proposition. Personally, however, I agree with you.

Threading In Frame.

Jack W. Farr, Sydney Mines, N. S., writes:

Here is sketch of device I use to help me thread in frame. A is a flash light bulb in a miniature porcelain base attached to B, which is a piece of wood of the shape shown. E is a slot cut in B. C and D are two screws passing through washers and then through slot E into a small block of wood attached to the front wall of the operating room. F is a piece of brass attached to B in the position shown. At the bottom will be seen three dry cells. One wire from these cells runs directly to one side of A. I have tried to show where the wire is coiled to allow for movement of B. The other wire connects with screw D behind the apparatus. The other side of A is connected by wire, as shown, to F. When threading up push B to the left. When



A occupies position G in the circle, which represents the light beam at the front of the lens, D will be touching F, thus making a complete electrical circuit from battery to lamp, and A being directly in front of the objective lens the film will be illuminated, and threading in frame is easy. After threading pull B to the right and lamp A will go out. If this device is attached firmly to the wall it takes a very small fraction of a second to knock it to the left and then jerk it back to the right, so that the operator can thread in frame practically as quickly as he can thread out of frame. I have been using it for two years and have only had two new sets of cells. So many operators, managers and film men have expressed their admiration of this simple little thing that I concluded to pass it along to the boys, in the hope that it will be as much help to someone else as it has been to me.

The scheme is entirely practical, and I think operators can very readily understand its construction and operation. The circle G, to the left, represents the light beam at the front of the objective lens. Block B carries light A, and, due to slot E, can be moved to the left, thus carrying light A over into position G, whereupon screw-head D strikes brass plate F, completing the electric circuit and light lamp A. This connection is broken when the block is pulled back to its former position. In behalf of our readers, Brother Farr, I thank you for the contribution of this very practical little device.

Complete Record.

The Gertrude McCoy theater, Baltimore, Md., sends in the attached blank which is printed on paper 5½ inches wide by 8½ inches in length. The filling out of this blank in duplicate will make a valuable record, both for the theater and exchange. The blank, which is "run in" in ordinary type to save space, contains the following:

Operator's report—The Gertrude McCoy Theater, Baltimore, Md..... Date.....191.. Condition of Film rec'd from.....
Via.....Theater, Express Co. Time Rec'd.....
Reel No.... Name of Subject..... Acts.
Leader ..... Title ..... End .....
Irregular Splices..... Splices out of Frames.....
Loose Patches..... Breaks in film when rec'd.....
General Condition ..... Extra Film .....
Rewound before shipping..... Time shipped..... Via .....
Express Co. .....Operator.

He Has a Lot of Them.

John Kortiff, New York City, says that the damage shown in "Interesting Problem," page 1113, August 12th issue, is caused as follows:

> Take a 1,000 foot reel of dry film on one of the iron center reels. It does not happen with the wood hub reel, or with soft film. Start your machine (Brother Kortiff says the Power's is the guilty wretch, though I see no reason why this should not occur with other machines as well; also Kortiff says he don't know but it would.—Ed.) with this kind of reel and film, but be right there by the machine if you do not want a fire. The upper reel will run only by a strong pull, making two or three quick revolutions, and stop until the machine takes up the film. Then comes a second jerk, which will cause the tearing of the sprocket holes on both sides of the film against the large upper roller 613, plate 5 F, figure 245, page 502, third edition of the Handbook. It will pass the upper sprocket because there is no tension, but will stop on the intermittent sprocket, and there is where you get the hole burned. The remedy would be an adequate tension device to prevent the upper reel from running so freely, or to seat roller 613 on some kind of spring so that it would give when the jerk came. In closing, I tender my congratulations for the excellence of the work you are doing. As the father of perfect projection take good care of your health so that your child won't be left an orphan in its infancy. I advise you, for our sake, to lay aside the two-wheeled go-devil before a fatal accident occurs. The third edition of the Handbook is some book.

Brother Kortiff's handwriting is by no means copper-plate, and I could not quite make out portions of his letter, and while not certain, I think he refers to metal hub reels which are crooked, or have the hole in the hub out of center. I don't agree with him, however, that the damage is or could be done by the large roller. Personally, I don't see how it could be, and, moreover, if a break occurred there it would be a very short one. I can understand that by reason of a heavy jerk the upper sprocket itself might yank out a section of the track. The remedy would, of course, be more tension on the upper reel, and better reels.

As to the go-devil, why I have been traveling 12,000 miles a year for the last three or four years, and I am still the liveliest looking corpse you ever looked at. But I might lay the go-devil aside and five minutes afterward step into the street and get killed by falling down a stairway or being butted by a street car. Motorcycles are no more dangerous, and in fact not as dangerous to the driver as automobiles. With the motorcycle you get skun up, but when a bubble goes on a rampage it's usually the hospital—or the morgue.

The Cause.

F. N. Cooe, proprietor Gem Theater, Paris, Ontario, orders two sets of the first and second question booklets, and comments on the "Interesting Problem," August 12th issue, as follows:

> This matter would not have attracted my attention, as I am usually pretty busy with things around the theater, but exactly the same thing happened to me quite recently, I being my own operator, as I have been for five years past. I agree with you that no projection machine would or could cause such a break as this if the film was in good condition, with no patch and the perforations correct. I find the cause to be in the reel itself, about half way through the metal was bent inward on both sides, so much so that it was almost impossible for the film to release itself, and the result was a tremendous jerk, which took the upper loop away, and at the same time tore six or seven sprocket holes completely out as though they had been cut away with a knife. The momentum was sufficient to carry the film through to the intermittent movement before I could get the motor stopped, and there being no sprocket holes to engage the intermittent well you know what did happen, and what might have happened if a person was not in the habit of keeping his eyes and mind constantly on the alert. The above remarks may or may not be of interest.

But they are, Friend Cooe. Another operator has found the trouble to be in the reels, and while I have not gone through the stack of mail awaiting me on my return from Canada, my secretary informes me there are dozens of answers to that particular thing, and, I premuse, they will all be about the same. I think we have without any doubt found out the seat of this particular difficulty.

Guess Again.

G. E. Carlson, Burley, Idaho, says:

> How easy it now is for the beginner to become a proficient operator as compared with twelve of fifteen years ago. The beginner of today steps into an operating room where everything is in a high state of perfection—modern and up-to-date. In a few weeks, if he is the right man, he will be able and as well informed as was his brother whom it took years to make proficient. There are handbooks, Moving Picture Worlds, and more come out every week—an endless chain of information. If you are stumped you can dig into the Handbook or projection department, or consult the "man who knows," to whom every operator should be grateful, and is grateful if he has any sense of appreciation in his make-up.
>
> And now as to small versus large observation ports. I approve of the large observation port, but my first hunch to cut down the size of the port was when the public proposed that I get a marine fog horn to deaden the noise which came from the projector. Well, being one thousand miles inland I could not do this, so the next best and cheapest thing was to make my ports small, and thus confine the noise to the interior of the operating room. The size of my lens port depends upon the location of the machine and the diameter of the light beam at the point it passes through the port. My port is 1.5 inches long by 1.25 inches wide at 7½ inches from the objective lens. Try this scheme and see how it improves the picture on the screen. There are many good reasons for small lens ports.

As to the port, my brother, the lens port should be as small as it is possible to make it, and that means that its diameter should be the diameter of the effective light ray at the point it passes through the port. A piece of black cardboard or metal cut to the right diameter will accomplish this purpose. As to the noise, why it can be confined by means of glass in the port, and you thus get the benefit of the large port, and at the same time no objectionable sound reaches the auditorium. The glass should, however, be set at a slight incline from the perpendicular, so that the objectionable reflection which comes from the glass when you look squarely through at right angles will be conspicuous by its absence.

With regard to the apprentice being able to learn operating in a short time now that there is a wealth of information available, why you overlook the fact that it was not required that old time operators know much; in fact there was not much for them to know. But, whereas there is a fund of information available for the operator now, and more coming every day, still nowadays it is necessary that the operator know a great deal more than he did ten or twelve years ago. The operator of that day could "get by" with a very small fund of information, but the up-to-date operator of today has got to have a very wide range of knowledge of a great many things if he is going to deliver the goods on the screen and do justice to the magnificent creations of today. No, my brother, you are entitled to another think on that proposition. It was one thing to project the slap-stick comedy and crude tragedies of olden days, using crude, simple machines, and quite another thing to project the photoplay of today, some of which cost thousands upon thousands of dollars, and contain the work of the best artists the world has ever known.

Richardson's

MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK

For Managers and Operators

Over 700 pages and over 300 illustrations help to make a book that will be a lasting monument to its author's knowledge, ability and diligence. No such work on Projection has ever before been attempted, nor likely to be for many years to come. Price is $4.00 per copy, postpaid.

Address All Orders and Remittances to Nearest Office

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue, New York

Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.

Haas Building, Los Angeles, Cal.

Motion Picture Photography

Conducted by CARL LOUIS GREGORY, F. R. P. S.

Inquiries.

QUESTIONS in cinematography addressed to this department will receive carbon copy of the department's reply by mail when four cents in stamps are inclosed. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in this department, $1.

Manufacturers' Notice.

It is an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be endorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor.

He Enjoys His Job.

J. J. Pasztor, who is the Pittsburgh staff photographer for the Selig-Tribune News Weekly, evidently enjoys the work that he is doing. When a man takes pleasure in his work it is plain that he and the job are good friends and that he has one of the biggest factors for success that any man can have, and that is enthusiasm. You cannot do your best work, boys, unless you put your heart into it.

He says in his letter:

I am located here in the Smoky City photographing (staff correspondent) for the Selig-Tribune Weekly. My territory includes, besides Pittsburgh, all of Ohio, Eastern Indiana, Northern Kentucky, West Virginia and all of Pennsylvania west of Philadelphia.

Your department in M. P. W. has been of valuable assistance to me since its inauguration, and I would not miss an issue, for it is ever helpful and up-to-date. Kindly accept my thanks for your splendid article in the September ninth issue. Co-operation between the studio staff, cameraman, director and scenic artist should be standardized and will, no doubt, in time to come. My observation at the various studios in the West recently convinced me that the above is lacking. In the near future I may take a notion to return to the producing end (studio) of the profession, providing that I can find a director who will co-operate with the cameraman. However, I am not knocking, for there are, no doubt, cameramen and directors who work in perfect harmony.

The Selig-Tribune is one of the best concerns to my estimation that exists today. Co-operation is the by-word, and I might add that Editor L. C. (Jack) Wheeler is a Prince to work for. The latter part of this month I will drive into New York from here and renew acquaintances with my numerous friends in the various studios and laboratories.

I have a 1915 car, and a No. 1 Camera and outfit and otherwise contented. I do not envy the studio man as far as salary is concerned—the firm will vouch for that. I have lost track of the Cinema Camera Club in the past year of working in the West; so I will greatly appreciate information as to whom I shall apply for membership.

The Cinema Camera Club is an organization of professional comera men with rooms at Suite 1006, Times Building, Times Square, New York. It is affiliated with the Static Club of Los Angeles, a similar organization in California. The membership rolls of the two clubs contain the names of the majority of the best motion picture photographers in America.

The aim of the club is to promote the science of cinematography and maintain a high standard of the profession.

Membership is interchangeable between the two clubs, depending upon the location of the member. Applications are carefully considered by the membership committees and only applicants who come up to a certain standard are recommended by them for admission to membership.

Application blanks may be obtained from the Secretary by writing to either of the addresses given above.

A Poet as Well as a Cameraman.

J. K. Holbrook, chief photographer for Wharton, Inc., Ithaca, N. Y., sends an anonymous poem entitled "The Wail of the Cameraman," and an answer which he wrote to it.

They are both clever and worth printing, although Mr. Holbrook seems to think that "The Wail" does not uphold the dignity of the profession as it should.

"The Wail of the Cameraman."

Turn, turn, turn,
This old film reel, Oh, Gee!
If I only dared to utter
The thoughts that arise in me.

They send me to Jericho,
They send me to Helsingfors,
They send me to Mexico;
I've got to record the wars.

They send me out to sea,
Where the billows are beating past;
I must send a film back home
Of sailors lashed to the mast.

I'm sent to the dizziest heights,
I hang by my eyebrows there;
The task of my days and nights
Is to go where no others dare.

My life, pray, and what is that?
A pawn in the movie game,
I risk it ten times a day,
And no one e'er hears my name.

The Camera Man.

With apologies to —— nobody.

Not long ago I read a wail
Of a camera-man who was bound to fail.
He'd lost all faith in man and art
And was drifting along with a bitter heart.

The real, the regular camera guy,
Is a boy who knows and ne'er says die,
He watches and waits for his turn to come,
And when it does he makes things hum.

Did you ever sit for a photograph
And get a phiz that was to laugh,
Or a face so vile you were filled with rage,
Or a death's head wrinkled with pain and age?

Did you ever go with that self-same face
To an artist real—to a regular place,
And see the beauty and grace and poise
That he hands you there,—sans bull and noise

Did you ever go to a picture show
And see a sketch that was rotten slow,
With direction bad and actors bum
And yet the picture got by some?

The photography, man, has done the trick,
The camera man was no darn hick
—They rend the earth for horror and death,
To make the audience hold its breath.

A million is spent for gilt and glue,
When there's work of art in a baby's shoe,
In the storm's wild rage, or a child at play,
In the smiles and tears of everyday.

When photography's bad, no thing is right,
The "star" can't shine, tho' ne'er so bright,
Thru the fogs and mists and portraits dank,
(A fool there was, with the camera crank).

What is the art of the greatest star,
When the camera-man can make or mar,
Directors, actors, props may go,
The camera-man is the whole dam show.

J. K. Holbrook.

Mr. Exhibitor:—You will get more helpful information by carefully reading one trade paper weekly than by skimming over three or four. The MOVING PICTURE WORLD is the one paper you need.

*Copyright, 1916, by the Chalmers Publishing Co.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by CLARENCE E. SINN and S. M. BERG

Musical Setting for "The Wheel of the Law."

Released by the Greater Vitagraph

Musical Suggestions by S. M. Berg.

THIS "Musical Suggestion Cue Sheet" is not designed to solve every possible musical requirement of the film, but is intended as a partial solution of the problem—what to play for the picture. It has proven to be of great assistance to the leader, not only by relieving to a degree the tedium of rehearsals, but by assisting materially in overcoming those conditions encountered when the film is not available until the hour of performance.

Musical Suggestion Cue Sheets can be obtained (free of charge) by managers from their local exchange in advance of the date of release. This will afford to the progressive leader an opportunity to acquaint himself with the general character of the film drama he is to portray with his orchestra.

Together with the suggested music at the title or descriptive cues where it is to be played, the tempo or characteristic is given so that the leader can select or substitute any or all of the numbers from his own library, thereby avoiding any financial outlay though still carrying out the interpretation.

The timing of the picture is based on a speed of 15 minutes to a thousand feet. The time indications will help the leader to anticipate the various cues which may consist of the printed sub-title (marked T) or a described action (marked D). For instance: 15 T "The great 4th act" is a sub-title and is printed reading matter on the screen. But 17½ D "When curtain falls" is a description of action.

John Norton, an attorney, is betrothed to Mona Mainard, an actress. She retires from the stage and marries John, who becomes a district attorney. Her brother, Tommy, a released prisoner, obtains a position in a hotel and is accused of murder. John has convincing circumstantial evidence, but Mona pleads with him and confesses that Tommy is her brother. She then demonstrates, by a trick, that she could convict her own husband of murder. The murderer commits suicide, leaving a confession. The picture closes with John admitting that circumstantial evidence may be wrong.

Note: When this picture was viewed, it consitsed of 5 reels, 5,548 feet, and had a projection speed of 83 minutes.

The character of this picture is intensely dramatic. There is a theatrical performance of La Tosca, the drama, not the opera. Note particularly dancing scenes in restaurant with Specialty dance.

The THEME selected is "My Soul"—Carrie Jacobs-Bond.

Further inquiries concerning any phase of this work should be addressed to Mr. S. M. Berg, Columbia Theatre Building, New York City.

Time		Sub-titles or Descriptive Cues	Music.
0	D	Opening.	My Soul—Carrie Jacobs-Bond. (Moderato con espressione) (THEME)
1½	T	John Norton
2½	T	Howard Daniels.	Stolen Moments—Friedman. (Molto moderato)
4¾	T	"There is a vacancy—"
6	T	Dear Sis: By the time— (Letter)	Valse Divine—Rosey. (Lento)
9¼	T	James McLane.
11¼	D	When theatre curtain rises.	Dramatic Tension No. 9—Andino
13¼	D	When audience applaud.	Pizzicato-Bluette—Lack. (Andantino grazioso)
14¼	T	"Wait a minute, Kid."
15	T	The great 4th act.	Andante Pathetique No. 10—Borch
17½	D	When curtain falls.	Longing—Florida. (Andantino grazioso)
21	T	"Give me a little money."	Allegro Agitato No. 8—Andino.
22	D	When Tommy hears knock at door.
24	T	After the performance. (Restaurant scene)	Popular Two-Step.
25	D	Specialty Dance.	Popular Allegro 2/4
25½	D	At end of Dance.	Valse Moderne—Rosey.
27	T	"It was the Reid case."
28¼	T	"Love to a man is a thing apart." (Church wedding scene)	Organ Solo.
30¾	T	"Our critic always praised—"
31¼	T	Happiness.	Repeat: THEME
34	T	"The Doctor says I'm all in."	Sweet Memories—Puerner. (Andantino quasi allegretto)
37½	T	"A perfect chain."
39	T	The trial.	Andante Dramatic No. 15—Herbert
41¼	T	"I loved her (my wife)."
42¼	T	An article for the papers.	Basket of Roses—Albers. (Allegretto)
44¼	D	When Ryan enters apartment.
46¼	T	"I'll do it"	Forest Whispers—Losey. (Morceau characteristic)
49¼	T	"You don't mean to tell me—"
50½	T	"I wrote it."	Garden of Love—Ascher-Mahl. (Moderato caprice)
52¼	T	"Old Ryan is some easy mark."
53	D	When Ryan looks through keyhole.	Allegro Agitato No. 1—Kiefert.
56½	T	Estranged	The Siren—Bendix. (Allegretto moderato)
58¾	T	"After a month of idleness."
59¾	T	"A little later I found—"	Heloise—Langey. (Andantino intermezzo)
62½	T	"Norton, convict that boy."
64	T	The battle.	The Harmony of Love—Brooks (Andante Romance)
68	T	Fighting him with his own—	Misterioso Dramatico No. 22—Borch
70½	D	When John's stenographer arrives.
71½	T	"Send two of your best men—"	Hurry No. 26—Minot.
74½	D	When detectives arrive.	Hurry No. 2—Simon.
76½	T	"You have murdered her."
78	D	When Ryan's body is found.	Dramatic Andante No. 32—Berge
80	D	When John gets telephone message.
80½	T	"My wife, you taught me—"	Repeat: THEME.
83	T	The End.

For special prices of the above Musical Suggestions, see Berg's advertisement.

An Opinion on Musical Scores.

By S. M. Berg.

In a very animated conversation with one of the most representative men in the motion picture industry, considerable discussion was aroused as to the merits of scores. It has always been my sincere belief and such I have advocated in these columns, that a musical score for a picture is not only ideal, but practical as the logical solution of music for the film. I am going to tell my readers in the following few words what arguments were advanced to me in this discussion. I cannot divulge the name of the man or company he represents, but I believe by my description, many will recognize him.

The policy of the company is to release a feature picture every week. They control their own exchanges, have many stars, and are recognized leaders in the film industry. The representative I refer to, is their business manager, an educated, broad-minded man, who has been connected with the film industry for a number of years. When he expresses an opinion, it is based upon personal experience. He is also possessed of a thorough knowledge of music. On behalf of this company, he has lately taken a trip, visiting every exchange and most of their exhibitors, and it was upon his return to New York when I buttonholed him on the prospect of musical scores for their pictures, he told me it is true that their films have many first releases and are played in most of the leading theaters throughout the country, but in a talk with these people on music, which was one of the points he took up, he finds there were many leaders who liked scores, but there were a large number of musicians who objected to them, because it gives no opportunity for expression in music of the individual taste of either the orchestra leader, manager of theater or the requirements of what is considered the particular taste in music of the patrons of the theater.

Furthermore, I was asked what did I consider the backbone of their business. I failed to answer, and was informed the small theater throughout the country. What use were scores to these people? The majority of the exhibitors have pianos, a small minority have organs, and the exception two or three musicians. Firstly, who would pay for the use of scores with conditions of business today and such keen competition that proprietor and manager were bitterly complaining of their expenses? Secondly, apart from this expense, what percentage of players of this class could read such a score at first sight?

His opinion of the musical situation was summed up in the following few words. A Musical Cue Sheet, because it gives the player, the character of the picture, and the characteristics of the needed music, an opportunity to substitute from his own library, to use my own words, thereby avoiding unnecessary expense, is a practical service, but a musical score is an idealistic service, and in his opinion, his company had not yet reached the ideal stage.

I have endeavored to state clearly and truthfully the gist of this interview, and in conclusion I await to hear what others may have to say on the question of having or not having scores.

Richardson in Washington

The Projection Editor Looks Over the National Capital from the Operator's Point of View

ARRIVING in Washington my first stop was at the Metro Exchange, 9th and D streets, Northwest. L. M. Day, manager, ably seconded by A. Dresner, assistant, had taken the lead in making the arrangements for the lecture in Washington, and I found that everything concerning the same was running smoothly, with prospects of a full attendance of operators, managers and exchange men.

The Metro reports its business as "going up" since the first of the month. Both Mr. Day and Mr. Dresner feel encouraged at the prospects and attribute the prosperity of the office to the Metro program and the method of handling business. However, it is very generally conceded that the Metro program is some program, and judging by the activity displayed in the various departments of the Washington office, they certainly are getting their full share of the business. Most emphatically, the Metro gave evidence of its progressiveness when it took the lead in staging a lecture designed entirely to benefit the industry and to improve the results on the screens of the city of Washington and surrounding territory.

You don't find any back numbers doing things of that kind. It must, in justice, be said that the Paramount did its full duty, and other exchanges contributed liberally. I mention the Metro and Paramount particularly, however, because they are the ones to whom we must give credit for the fact that the lecture was staged at all. In fact, it was the Metro started things going and did most of the actual work. But we must remember that exchange men, as a rule, have plenty of troubles of their own, and some of them doubtless did not realize the importance of the lecture to the industry locally; also several of the managers were compelled to consult with their home offices before doing anything, and didn't get "returns" in time to do what they would like to have done.

The system adopted in the handling of films in the Metro office is good. Real, sure enough operators are employed as inspectors, and I think we will all agree that high class operators will, in the very nature of things, make better inspectors than girls, because they more fully realize and know the requirements of the operating room. They know, for instance, what is likely to take place by reason of failure to repair various defects in the film, because they have had it happen to themselves. These inspectors are required to keep a record of the condition of the films in such a way that the office is able to check up and tell precisely what damage each theater has caused to any one particular reel.

Mr. Dresner, who has charge of the booking and of the inspection department, is a member of Local Union No. 37, I. A. T. S. E., of Philadelphia, and carries a traveling card. Brother Dresner was made an honorary member of the Indianapolis, Ind., Local 194, and was presented with a sterling silver membership card. Now, Friend Dresner is quite some fellow, either way you want to take it, because he measures something less than five feet around the waist. I did not interview his tailor, but suspect forty-eight would be about a good fit. But he is big mentally as well; also he is good natured and bears the reputation of being a hustler.

Taken altogether the Washington Metro Exchange is in the live-wire class, and its working force is, collectively and individually, the right sort and—there you are.

My next stop in Politician's Paradise was at the Paramount Exchange on 13th street, N. W., where it was a genuine pleasure to meet G. M. Mann, manager, a progressive business man, who conducts his exchange along strictly up-to-date business lines. Mr. Mann has brought into the film exchange business of Washington some innovations which have tended to place it on a decidedly higher level. These innovations have had their effect on other exchanges, and if followed faithfully I have no doubt that the situation as regards film rental would and will be very greatly improved.

In course of conversation Mr. Mann gave me some rather startling figures with regard to his early experiences in Washington, which same formed the basic reason for improved methods he has brought into use. For one thing during the past six months in 1916, figuring on a basis of $90 for a five-reel reprint, Mr. Mann's replacements totaled the absolutely absurd sum of $3,203.10. Divide $3,203.10 by ninety; multiply that by five and you will have the number of reels this represents. In other words, due to out-of-date projection machines, projection machinery in bad order, worn intermittent sprockets and other machine parts, plus too much tension, this number of reels was put out of commission in six months. Rather absurd, don't you think? Also decidedly outrageous. Other exchanges report practically the same condition.

When I wrote the Washington Operators' Union, offering to deliver a lecture in that city, the reply, while courteous, said they did not feel able to take the matter up. I then corresponded with some exhibitors, and was informed that the exhibitors of Washington were apathetic; that nothing short of a stick of dynamite would pry them loose from their attitude of indifference sufficiently to get them to attend a meeting of that or any other kind.

Well, your Uncle Hiram is not one of those who are easily sat down upon, so he took the matter up with the exchanges, and there met hearty response. The Metro took the lead in the matter, ably seconded by the Paramount. A meeting was arranged at the Strand theater, to be followed by a lunch. Now without intending either to criticise or roast the Operators' Union, I would like to make this point: With all due respect to the brothers of that organization, it seems to me that they could have very well afforded to take the slight necessary extra trouble, and even go to a little extra expense to secure a lecture on projection which, as was proved to them by letters published in the department, has very greatly benefitted other unions, and therefore presumably would benefit them, as well as tend to make conditions in their operating rooms better through the education of the exhibitor himself. More than that, the Washington, and for that matter, all operators, should come to an understanding of the fact that the methods used five years ago are not at all applicable to the conditions of today, because five years ago three or four thousand dollars was considerable money to put into a photoplay, today operators are handling photoplays that cost all the way from ten to one hundred thousand dollars, therefore it follows that their methods must be improved if they are to keep up with the improvements along other lines. That the Washington men need the lecture is amply proved by the tremendous amount of film damage shown by the books of the exchanges, though much of it is chargeable to old-type, worn-out projectors.

Now, a word as regards Mr. Washington Exhibitor, who is so lukewarm that he does not even maintain an exhibitors' league. Do you think, Mr. Exhibitor, that you are doing justice to the moving picture industry; do you think you are doing justice to the producer; do you think you are doing justice to the film exchanges; do you think you are doing justice to the public which supports you and your theater, when you allow conditions in your operating rooms which produce a termendous and absolutely unnecessary amount of damage, as shown by the figures quoted? Well, my dear sir, if you do, I don't, and what's more, nobody else thinks so. It is high time you woke up and came to some sort of realization of the height, depth and breadth of the industry with which you are connected. It is high time you awoke to a realization of the fact that the crude methods of years ago absolutely won't do today. It is high time that you awoke to the fact that these methods have been thrown out and discarded in cities where photoplays are shown for from ten cents to two dollars per seat. Yes, $2, I said, and they are getting the money, too; though, of course, that is only with the very best features.

And, now here is something for you to rubber at, Mr. Exhibitor, and rubber good and hard. You know that the Projection Department of this distinguished publication has, for several years, been trying to tell you that prices can be raised without any falling off in income. Here is an example in a Washington theater which was losing money at ten cents admission. The average income for the last four days of this theater was on the ten-cent rate, $63.60; the average for the next twelve days (admission raised to 15 cents) was $105.78 and beyond raising the price absolutely no change of any kind whatsoever was made in the service, or in the method of its presentation. Now, I would like to have you, Brother Exhibitor, give me any good reason why this same thing would not apply to your house as well as to this one, because to the best of my knowledge and belief there are no peculiar circumstances surrounding this case, though, of course, the projection was and is good.

The Inspection Department of the Paramount Exchange is very well systematized and, according to my observation, well conducted. The girls are instructed, for one thing, to put a new leader on every reel where the leader is broken. No patching of leader is allowed. A record blank lies before the girl as she inspects the film and she is obliged to make a record of its condition, particularly with regard to "sprocketing" and punch holes, the latter being something which the Paramount Exchange does not tolerate.

In the beginning I spoke of Mr. Mann having inaugurated a system which is doing much to reduce the abuses practiced on film by theaters. Principally what he has done is to inaugurate a system of charging for all damage done to film, plus a careful inspection and recording of the condition of the film at the time of its inspection. I am told there is considerable feeling in theaters in regard to this proposition, but I want to say right now that it is a system with which the writer is thoroughly and absolutely in accord. If exhibitors insist on compelling their operators to run with projectors for which they will not supply necessary repairs; if the operator is so dense, or is so careless and slovenly in his work that he will not himself get the repairs which are necessary to keep his machine in first class condition when the manager allows him carte blanche, and by reason of these things damage is done to the film, I am absolutely in favor of the theater being compelled to pay for that damage. If all exchanges adopted this policy and enforced it, the tremendous amount of absolutely unnecessary damage to film would be very quickly reduced to a negligible quantity.

In conclusion I compliment Friend Mann and his right hand "man' on the excellence of the methods employed. And, by the way, that right hand man is quite some considerable—well, you just ought to view "him"—some view, my boy, some view.

At 11 p. m., what was, everything considered, a surprisingly large number of exhibitors, exchange men and operators gathered in the Strand, where we preached the gospel of better projection. The lunch was to be served in a cafe, which meant that it must be consumed by 1 a. m. I talked from 11 to 12.30, and so interested did the audience become that it was proposed the lecture be resumed after the lunch had been absorbed. This was done and the editor talked until he was obliged to stop from sheer mental and physical exhaustion.

Brother Spellbring, president of the Washington Operators' Union, came very nearly riding to Pittsburgh with us, but finally concluded that Nancy Hanks looked too skittish, which was as well for next morning we rode in a downpour of rain.

At Frederick, Md., we viewed the tablet-marked spot where Barbara Frietchie waved the flag at the "rebel host" and dared 'em to take a shot at her old, gray head—very interesting. The ride to Chambersburg, where I spent the night, was, barring the rain, a very beautiful one. At Chambersburg there are two shows. I dropped in at the "Star." The manager, judging by the travel ghost, faint, uneven illumination and perfectly awful screen results in general, certainly needed advice, which I would gladly have given him. But he said something about a "new operator," threw the card down and seemed to be not at all interested in my humble self, so I gracefully retired, sought my couch and slept the sleep of the weary. As a parting shot, however, a "new operator" did not account of the things I saw on the screen of the Star—no matter how incompetent he might be.

Political Power of the Screen

The Screen Admitted by Political Candidates to Exceed the Power of the Press in Determining Issues.

THE report given below of the Political Action Committee of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, Illinois branch, has been received. On the committee are Joseph Hopp, chairman; L. H. Frank, secretary; M. A. Choynski, George Laing, William J. Sweeney and Adolph Powell. The report bore the date of Sept. 11.

For the past three weeks we have had on an average ten to fifteen aspirants for office and those who are now in office seeking nomination for re-election, before us asking us for our League endorsement. This was due to a letter sent to the various exhibitors in Illionis asking them to refrain from showing slides or films of aspirants for office without the endorsement of our League.

It is remarkable what effect it has had and what a power the screen has proven itself to be, in so far as the political office seekers are concerned. They show no hesitancy in letting us know that we are far superior to the press in getting them before the public.

Each and every one that received the endorsement of our organization has had to come out and convince us that they would oppose censorship in every form, and those who could not vote on propositions of that kind even if elected to office, have promised their moral support to help us combat any laws of censorship and all other laws that might be inimical to the interests of the motion picture industry.

We feel that we have gained a great recognition and intend to use it judiciously and at all times for the good of the League. All other states of our organization should do likewise, and we are sure that in a short time the motion picture industry will be as safely protected as any other industry.

In the course of the last three weeks we have probably had three hundred candidates appear before us for the present primaries, asking our League endorsement—from candidates for Governor to the lowest office of the state; also men who are now in Congress as well as those that are now representing the state in other offices. After three weeks of hard work the Political Action Committee has adjourned for a week.

JEAN GAUDIO WAS SUBMARINE CAMERAMAN.

In reciting the story of the making of the Universal feature "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," published on page 1953 of the issue of September 26, it was stated that the daring cameraman who did the photographic work was one Brulatier. It transpires that there is no such person as "Brulatier" and that the cameraman who actually took his life in his hands to get this remarkable series of photographs was Jean Gaudio, who has been on the technical staffof the Universal for the past seven years and more.

How the Universal Submarine Picture Was Taken.

Most of the underwater scenes in this picture were taken at a depth of from forty-five to fifty feet, Mr. Gaudio says, though some were taken at a depth of eighty-five feet. A good idea of the apparatus used by Mr. Gaudio in taking the under water scenes is given in the accompanying engraving.

SHOW PICTURES AT SING SING.

Before an appreciative audience of 1,200 convicts, Julius Steger and Joseph Golden, of the Triumph Film Corporation, presented "The Prima Donna's Husband" in the chapel of Sing Sing Prison on the night of Sunday last. The production was made by Mr. Steger and Mr. Golden for the Dispatch Film Company. The inmates of the penal institution were generous with their applause of the picture, which narrates on the screen the story of a musical director who has been sent to jail for more or less justifiably killing the man who was making inroads on his wife's affections.

More than forty film folks journeyed to Ossining to see the picture, among them being Julius Steger, Joseph Golden, Walter Scheuer, of the Dispatch Film Co.; Gilbert P. Hamilton, the producer; A. Alberstein, of the Triumph; Harry Warner and Leon J. Rubinstein. Also in the party was Jane Herbert, the opera singer.

"KING LEAR" A DECEMBER RELEASE.

Edwin Thanhouser announces that the Frederick Warde production of "King Lear" is nearly ready and that it will be released through the Pathe exchanges, probably early in December.

Rumors that "King Lear" is not to be released through Pathe have no foundation whatever, Mr. Thanhouser asserts.

"Back to the Soiled"

By Epes Winthrop Sargent

How One Chicago Patron Regards the Unclean Films with Which We Are Afflicted, Finding the New Heroines Less Pleasing Than the Old

ANTICIPATING the most recent outbreak of white slave pictures, a correspondent to Mae Tinee's clever page in the Chicago Tribune is moved to comment on the increase in salacious films of a general nature. His comment is not only forceful but entertaining and worth while reading, so it is reproduced in full. He writes:

> Dear Miss Tinee: Supplementing washday and Saturday night we have a new back to the soiled movement. It is where you'd expect to find movements—in the movies. You may know it by its "No Children Allowed" and the lithographic vivandieres luring lusciously all over the lobbies. The high priestesses of this epidemic of epidermis and carnival of cuticle are the pauline-fredericks, the clarakimballyoungs, the thedabaras, and more. It doesn't take a strong harker to hark back to the white slave plays, where the sweet young thing is ru-yuned in Act I., sold into vile slavery in Act. II., seen sitting around in a red kimono, drinking creme yvettes, oyster cocktails, and cold tea out of champagne bottles in Act III., and nobly rescued in Act IV.—or V., as the case may be—by some patriotic organization. When the clatter of carrion was carted out into the alley we thought it was good night, good luck, and a fast track to it.
>
> But, no. No, no. She has come back to us in the movies. But, Silas, how she has changed! No longer she is the sweet young thing that was ru-yuned in Act. I. She has evidently been ru-yuned away back in the prologue or the first rehearsal.
>
> Why, to paraphrase Lackaye, are so many of the movies made to be obscene but not heard? Why do they reek of rot? Why is the movie rapidly becoming one of the six best smellers? I ask you from my heart out; I am curious to know. I am curious to know.
>
> J. P. McE.

This does not apply to the vice picture. It does apply to the style of story far too prevalent, that does not even make an effort to pose as a moral lesson. In many instances exhibitors make matters worse by refusing admittance to children under sixteen; not that they fear for their morals, but to heighten the suggestion that the picture is unfit to be seen by children. Still worse, they run "midnight matinees," shows for men or women only, and otherwise seek to place their theaters on a plane with the fake museums of anatomy and similar appeals to the morbidly curious. Half the time the pictures are more tiresome than exciting, but the harm is done the business by the impression left upon the minds of those who do not attend.

The prurient minded persons who crowd the theater for a time do not care. They are presently cured of their desire either by the inability of the exhibitor to offer more startling sensations or the inherent tiresomeness of stories that offer phornacity as a substitute for plot. These persons do not matter to any great degree. They do not belong to the wholesome-minded element who normally constitute the major portions of the regular attendants. Their occasional dimes—and their presence—may be dispensed with at no great loss. Their infrequent dime is not to be mentioned against the regular dollars of the lover of good pictures. The trouble is that these one-time regular patrons are weakened in their loyalty and weaned from their adherence to their favorites not through what is shown but what they supposed is being shown.

They have already begun to feel that the pictures are not as entertaining as they were, the plots are the same old plots now padded to an abnormal length. They know that the pictures do not interest them as they did, though they may not be conscious of the reason. They are about ready to quit, anyway. The salacious or the supposedly salacious serves to confirm them in their resolve.

They are losing interest. The intrusion of the indecent merely precipitates this action. The vice pictures now current will do incalculable injury to the business, but at least the fair minded will recognize them as an abnormality, an excrescence on the business. The more permanent danger lies in the story regularly released that depends upon the erotic for its appeal.

And the whole thing resolves itself into this: The objectionable stuff is made to save money. That is what it really amounts to in the long run. The most difficult story they write, the story more difficult to procure, is the clean and interesting story. Any novice writer can take an erotic plot and get something that will attract attention for the moment. Any man with a typewriter, ambition of a sort and a few sheets of paper, can turn out an erotic story. Any director can write a story of a man who almost marries his own natural child, or of the two children whose marriage is prevented and whose lives are wrecked by the revelation of their parent's earlier laxities.

Any person who is not actually feeble minded can turn out erotic rot with very little practice, but the clean story that is also interesting can be done only by the trained writer; the man of long experience. And he must be paid decent money. He will not work for the sums that makers of motion pictures are really willing to pay and he will not have dealings with men of the Turnbull type who seek to instruct those who are their masters in the subject.

Ninety per cent. of the men who can write decent photoplay stories have been driven out of the business by underpayment or the present type of editorial boors. They will not take the two or three hundred dollar checks and they will not suffer the lordly patronage of the incompetents who now occupy most editorial chairs, many of whom hold their positions through pull and favor rather than merit.

Precisely the same thing holds good in literature. Go to the news stand and get a copy of some magazine like the Popular. Then buy a copy of the new crop magazines with the frankly suggestive titles. Compare the stories. Do it again next month and the next. The average grown person cannot read three consecutive issues of the raw stories. The stuff is too deadly alike. The law prescribes certain limits which may not be overstepped. The authors all go the limit to the extent of their daring, and they all get the same results. Now go to the advertising agent—your own agent—and ask which magazine has the greater circulation. And if you can, find out the prices paid by the two magazines.

The Popular is not excessively generous, save to a few favored authors, but it pays decent rates and gives decent treatment, and the average price for a story is three to four times as great as the price paid for the suggestive. Some years ago when there was but one magazine of the yellow type the prices ranged from three to fifteen dollars for three thousand words or less. Now that there are more these prices have appreciated, but they are still small because the circulation is relatively small. The Popular pays more and gets stuff that holds readers. The steady readers of the smutty stories type are mostly floaters save for a small clientele of typewriters and shop girls and their male (if not masculine) equivalents. Go higher up the scale. The Saturday Evening Post pays better and gets much better stories. And they have a circulation list that is the despair of the men who handle it, it is so bulky.

Some exhibitors have to take the unwholesome simply because there is nothing else—and there will be nothing else until real writers are coaxed back not alone by better payments but by decent treatment from people whose judgment they can respect. The greatest drawback, the greatest waster, the most deadly menace to the picture business today is not the star system or overproduction, but the incompetent editor who turns out "strong" stories because they are cheap. Get the better stories and midnight matinees will not be needed to coax a few extra dollars.

FRANKLYN FARNUM JOINS UNIVERSAL.

A special feature entitled "The Heart of a Show Girl," serves to introduce to the patrons of Universal pictures a new leading man, whose family name is already well known to all lovers of motion pictures. This is Franklyn Farnum, the younger brother of Dustin and William, who makes his bow on the screen under the banner of the Universal Film Company. It will readily be seen that he has his full share of the family talent and magnetism, and he is certain to become a great favorite.

PREPARING FOR MOTION PICTURE BALL.

The New York Local Exhibitors' organization announces that plans are already under way for a monster motion picture ball to be held at Madison Square Garden on Thanksgiving Eve. A special committee of arrangements has been appointed consisting of I. N. Hartsall, William Hilkemeier and Louis Blumenthal. Thomas Howard has been appointed chairman of the publicity committee and Otto Lederer will have charge of the badges. Special attractions are promised.

Billy the Exhibitor

By E. T. Keyser

He Believes in Turning the Local Editor Loose on the Censors and Running a Clean Show

"THAT was some slam that the 'Bugle' handed to the censors in the last issue," I remarked to Billy as he finished putting the show to bed. "Yes," agreed Billy cheerfully. "The editor massaged 'em with brine after having first carefully removed their hides, and I hope that the treatment will soak in."

"What started it?" I asked.

Billy grinned. "I did," he confessed. "I showed the editorial one just what censorship meant to everybody connected with the picture business, including himself as a recipient of the advertising thereof and a great light was turned on in his immediate vicinity.

"I believe that the picture exhibitors of this country are overlooking a mighty good bet when they fail to utilize the efforts of the local press on their side of the picture fight against censorship. Do you remember the dear old days when any editor could step into the private office of the passenger agent and come away with enough transportation to carry the entire family twice around the United States?

"And did you ever see any spasms being thrown about interlocking directorates, bad accommodations or overworked employees in those balmy days? The railroads were the editor' friends in those times and it's mighty hard to convince a fellow that his friend can do anything really bad —that's what friendship is for, isn't it?

"The misguided individual who looked for newspaper support for legislation adverse to the railroads could get it, by the simple process of first buying a newspaper. But the passes came to an end and it now costs the editor more to travel than to stay at home, and what has happened to the railroads since they stopped being friendly to the editors would make an earthquake damage list look like the expense account of a man travelling for his own concern.

"Today the picture exhibitor has on his side the same friendly relations with the publisher that the railroad once did. He is a much better patron of the advertising columns than the legitimate showman ever was, better in many cases than the local merchants. The editor and his family, which includes any one who may come along in the editorial wake, are welcome guests, on and of the house.

"The censor is the ogre who is going to put such a crimp in the business that the exhibitor's advertising copy will dwindle and the show be about one-tenth as interesting to the editors, country cousins and aunts, and all that the exhibitor has to do is to show the editor that a crimp in the picture industry will also be a crimp in the editorial income and pleasures, and then sit back and watch the editor get busy with the family history of the censorship advocates.

"It's no use to tell the editor that, after the censorship has tied up the exhibitor with a beautiful and expensive hank of red tape that he, the editor, will be the next victim, because the editor knows that it isn't so and that he can take such good care of himself in such a contingency that the poltician trying such a stunt would save time by making arrangements for his own political funeral in advance.

"You can't scare the editor worth a cent for his own hide, but you can induce him to put up a most lovely scrap on behalf of the pictures if you only approach him on a reasonable and friendly basis.

"By the way, how did you like the show to-night?" "It was good." I conceded, "and the way that the youngsters watched the travel pictures was a caution."

"There was a reason for that," said Billy. "Whenever I put a travel picture on I offer complimentaries to the boy and girl in each grade of the public school who have the best geography marks for that week. It pleases the teachers and fills the remainder of the youngsters with a desire to see the picture that puts a pressure on the family treasury.

"The prosperity of the moving picture is based upon the favor of the women and children, and as long as I have the teachers, mothers and youngsters on my side I feel that I'm in pretty good shape, and the effort to keep them there is the greatest incentive to clean pictures that can be offered."

E. K. Lincoln

ED. K. LINCOLN, who is now starring in the "Jimmie Dale, alias The Grey Seal" Series, is the owner of one of the best equipped studios in the country, located at Grantwood, N. J., where his Lincoln Players Company produces several big features. It was his intention during the next six months to produce a series of features in this studio, but on reading "Jimmie Dale" he became so enamored of the character of "Jimmie" that he laid aside all plans for his own producing company to appear in the "Grey Seal" Series. His studio is now occupied by the William Fox Company and several of the forthcoming Fox thrillers will be made there.

Ed. K. Lincoln.

Incidentally, Mr. Lincoln has been spending the summer at his home in Blandford, Mass., where he has a beautiful estate, and where he spends a good deal of his time raising muts—or dogs—as some people call them. However, it seems that Mr. Lincoln does raise some mighty fine animals, for he cleaned up at the Newport Dog Show, and all his dogs now run around the grounds decorated with medals and ribbons.

Recently he bought two English toy spaniels—one called Champion Breakwater Wonder and the other Champion Wharfdale Moonlight at a cost of $2,350. I wonder where in the world these movies stars get all their money. It is quite likely that some of the "muts"—beg pardon, dogs—will be seen with their new master, "Jimmie Dale" in the "Grey Seal" Series.

CAST OF "WAR BRIDES."

In the cast which will be seen in support of Nazimova in the Herbert Brenon photodramatic production of "War Brides," to be released through Lewis J. Selznick in October, there were two members of the vaudeville company which appeared with this star in her successful tour. One of these, Gertrude Berkeley, never has appeared in moving pictures except under Mr. Brenon's direction, and had decided to retire from stage and screen when Nazimova and Mr. Brenon induced her to return to play her big part in "War Brides," that of the aged mother of soldiers. Miss Berkeley appeared in the Brenon direction in "The Two Orphans," and "The Soul of Broadway." In the photodrama her role is second in gripping intensity only to that portrayed by Nazimova herself. Nila Mac also was in Nazimova's company, and will have her previous role. Robert Whitworth, another member of the cast, has had a distinguished career on the stage with such stars as Sir Henry Irving and Forbes Robertson, and recently has been featured by the Vitagraph. William Bailey has been in pictures for nine years, with Essanay, Fox, Metro and with Universal as a director. Theodora Warfield was one of the mermaids in Mr. Brenon's spectacle, "A Daughter of the Gods." Richard S. Barthelmess has been acting in pictures in his college vacation; his mother coached Nazimova for her American debut, and he has known the star all his life. Ned Burton, who will play the part of the captain, was in vaudeville eighteen years, in the team of Burton and Brookes, was with Julian Eltinge in "Cousin Lucy," and last season played Senator Murphy in "Potash and Perlmutter." Charles Bryand, Nazimova's husband, is realistically cast as her husband in the photodrama. Charles Hutchinson and several other well-known players will complete the strong array. Last week the entire company went to Lake Waramaug, Conn., to make a number of the pastoral scenes which will lend relief to the tremendously dramatic story.

British Notes

"IF THE exhibition of this picture does not end war, God help civilization," exclaimed the Secretary for War (Mr. Lloyd George), after seeing the film, "The Battle of the Somme." Hardly anyone is better qualified to criticize a war picture than a truly neutral exhibitor in whichever part of the world he may be. He has already seen from four or five fronts of action selections of fighting scenes, some real, some professedly real and some, well, about which he is not expected to ask questions, in sufficient number and variety to enable him to view each in proper perspective. A complaint against the British official war films, issued so far in periodical sections, has been of their evasiveness. They have depicted admirably the manoeuvres of the army in every direction, but one; they have illustrated graphically the cost of the great struggle both in life and material, but avoided the process and have interpreted finely the glories of war detached from their context. The fighting scenes have been of the "moment before" or the "immediately after" character. But Mr. Charles Urban is now on his way to the states with a five-reel war film that more than compensates for any previous omissions, indeed, it carries the balance well to the other side and delineates the "exact moment" with a reality that is terrifying. American opinion on the picture is being confeitured feverishly. "How Britain Prepared" was hailed in the states as a near-war film. "The Battle of the Somme" commends itself, to coin a supplementary word, as a fair-war film. It seeks to picture no sweeping victories, no overwhelmingly debacles, nor no rehearsed spectacles in its own favor, it is content to remain a simple, logical sequence of photographed events in the Somme area on and about July 1, with their cost and sacrifice to its own side. Of the other the spectator is left mainly to his own conclusions.

* * *

The controversy relative to the showing of super-films in large public halls and legitimate theaters grows. The Exhibitors' Association has now taken up the discussion and is practically unanimous in its indictment of the practice as injurious to the interests of the exhibitor. Prospects of a solution appear very remote, for there are many super-films on the way for exhibition during the winter and in many cases plans for their exploitation are already arranged in detail. The renting of these by the manufacturer or exchangeman to amateur or touring exhibitors has probably much to do with the uneasiness felt in the ranks of the professional exhibitor. The purchaser of a notable production will often, in order to get a rapid return on his capital, grant exclusive license for its first exhibition in London and the provincial cities to a vaudeville or theatrical booking agent or a party disinterested in the principles governing the professional exhibitor. A suggested obviation of the problem is for exhibitors in each city to collaborate in the exhibition of the film either by exhibiting it for its full season at one of the public halls or for contracting for a specified number of weeks rental and showing the film in turn at their own halls.

* * *

Attention is being drawn by the Board of Trade to the clause in the export regulations which demands the preservation of neutrality of goods shipped abroad. One or two cases are recorded where London exporting houses have despatched goods to the United States when, through the purchaser failing to sign the necessary guarantee that the goods would not be re-exported to enemy countries, they have been retained in bond at one of the British Consulates. To avoid having unsold goods on their hands in foreign countries, with perhaps heavy storage charges to pay, the Board of Trade suggests that the signing of the guarantee by the importer should be made a condition of purchase.

* * *

The conditions which motion picture theaters in London should fulfill for the privilege of being able to open on Sundays has now for upwards of three years been a knotty point to the licensing authority, the London County Council. It has hitherto been the custom for exhibitors to pay over a portion of their receipts on Sundays to one or other charitable institution, but the austere L. C. C. now demands that the exhibitor shall hand over the whole of his net profits upon each Sunday he opens his hall. He must also sign an undertaking to allow the L. C. C. to determine what amount he must pay; employ none of his week-day staff and only be open for business between six and eleven in the evening. These profits are to be paid to approved charitable institutions selected by the Council, which further imposes upon the exhibitor the extortion: "the amount to be paid by the licensee (exhibitor) to the approved charity in respect of each Sunday's entertainment shall not be less than the average amount received by such charity in the previous year. Prominent in the Councils' list of approved charities is, by the irony of coincidence, the British Hospital for Mental Disorders.

* * *

Upon the assumption that the scattered sons of Erin throughout the world in general and throughout America in particular will welcome pictures of life in the old country the Film Company of Ireland, Ltd., with offices and studios in Dublin, has come into being to produce solely Irish plays, featuring Irish players. Mr. James Sullivan is president of the company and H. M. Fitzgibbon producer. Two subjects have already been shown to the trade in Dublin, a three-reel drama, taken in the Dublin mountains, entitled "O'Neill of the Glen," and a two-reel comedy, "The Miser's Gift." Three more two-reel comedies are due for release next month, while adaptations of "Blarney," "The Irish Girl," "Willie Reilly" and "The Upstart" are under course of production. The company at present includes Messrs. J. M. Kerrigan, Fred O'Donovan, J. M. Carve, R. V. Justice and others. The address is 34 Dame street, Dublin. J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

Henry Cronjager, Cameraman

HENRY CRONJAGER, chief cameraman of the Arrow Film Corporation, is one of the real veterans of the motion picture business. For the last twenty years photography has been his profession. In Cronjager's early days in New York he worked for noted portrait photographers, which gave him a thorough practical knowledge in the various branches of his profession.

When the Edison company built its Bronx studio, Frank L. Dyer, then president of the company, engaged Cronjager as Edison's first cameraman. He stayed with that company five years, working and traveling with its best directors throughout the United States, Cuba and Canada. After his Edison engagement Cronjager went to Biograph, where he photographed the big Klaw & Erlanger six-reel productions, such as "Lord Chumley," "The Road to Yesterday," etc. Two years after Cronjager joined the Biograph staff, he was engaged by C. J. Hite. He remained with Mr. Hite until W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow company, secured his services.

Henry Cronjager.

While Cronjager was with the Edison company he established the unique record of winning the photographer's first prize every month for one solid year, standing at the head of the list from January all the way through to December. Oscar C. Apfel, under whom Cronjager did much of his splendid work at Edison, once said of him: "I consider Cronjager the ablest photographer in the motion picture field." Frequently H. G. Plimton sent Cronjager out alone as far as the Canadian Rockies to make big scenic pictures for Edison.

In addition to Cronjager's regular work with the camera he succeeded in inventing and perfecting a camera case which was designed to reduce, or even to eliminate, static flashes on the film. So well did this work that Cronjager succeeded in getting pictures in Northern Canada and Maine in the winter time when the thermometer was at the bottom of the bulb, yet none of these pictures was marred by static. This invention he patented three years ago, and it has been a source of constant profit to him since.

Cronjager photographed the later episodes of the "Who's Guilty?" series for Arrow, and is now working on big productions at the Arrow studios under the direction of Howell Hansel.

Observations

BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN

TWO great philanthropists of the present generation are Andrew Carnegie and John D. Rockefeller. The first gives you public libraries (which you cannot eat), and the second establishes a research for the foundation of a digestion. It would seem, therefore, that both are striving for the public good, leaving the public to supply the interval.

* * *

It also seems that John D. has a lead on Andrew, because he is not satisfied with having his name carved over entrances; he seems to be bent upon the search and re-search idea. He wants to get at the bottom of everything—he wants the whole thing. We used to hear cries of "get the hook!" but since the Rockefeller institute found the hook worm we seldom hear the command.

* * *

Mr. Andrew Carnegie had a good motive in putting his so much per cent. on a guarantee of a more per cent. for the establishment of knowledge; but, as we said before, the average man cannot diet upon leather, paper and printers' type. Mr. Rockefeller goes him a little more when he founds an institution that can take care of what you get—if you can get it—an appetite, and its fillings.

* * *

Mr, Rockefeller's foundation gets nearer the heart than that of Mr. Carnegie's. The latter speaks to the brain. The heart is nearer the stomach. But why stick to the physiological side of the subject which we are about to broach? Let us to business.

* * *

The scientists of today could give the greatest service of their lives if they could locate and pin down the germ that is responsible for Dame Rumor. She is, beyond all doubt, the worst pest that has infected humanity in all ages. She worms her way into the minds of the rich and low, the intellectual and the ignorant. She is alone responsible for many misunderstandings, misgivings and uncertainties.

* * *

Dame Rumor has it that the fall and winter season of 1916 has opened with the motion pictures on crutches and the "legitimate" plays, vaudeville and burlesque shows starting out on a high sea of prosperity. She says the pictures are balked by an inability to secure professional talent because all such talent desiring work has found a berth. She says the old-line managers can take more than they can get, because they have devised plans by which their line of business is to reclaim its own and the death knell of the silent drama and comedy is to be sounded. We think the old-line managers have had Dame Rumor out to supper.

* * *

The opening season of what are called the regular theaters is almost in full sway. They got a good start. The motion picture houses have only just awakened after the dope given them by the infantile paralysis, hard times and other agencies. The latter appear quite satisfied with the half-cooked results. They are permitted to admit children over 12 years of age with a promise that in the near future all children will be admitted with guardians. Up to the present time, exhibitors say conditions are very satisfactory, and they are encouraged by the statements of parents that they hope it will not be long before the ban is completely removed because "we miss the pictures, but cannot come and leave the children at home."

* * *

Dame Rumor had it that the pictures were living upon the nickels and dimes of the children. Father Fact says that since the seashore has taaken a rest and the fathers and mothers are sent back to the cities again to seek amusement within their means, that whatever the children spend is really for their own accommodation.

* * *

The old-line managers are taking great pains to impress upon the public that their attractions (?) are "not a moving picture." This was resorted to last season, but it will make no greater impression than it did when first inaugurated. Advance agents are also telling managers that the use of the names in connection with, or the actual participation of well known players in motion pictures amounts to nothing, because the players simply took part in them to prevent staleness during the lay-off season. This is all Dame Rumor stuff. Any old-line player who worked in the pictures during the lay-off season earned his money; and if his work was not good he did not get paid for it; and if there are not as capable people in the motion picture business to judge the work of a player as well as the old-line people, then the advance man has a safe road.

The motion pictures have the old-line people beaten to a standstill. The proof of it is dependent solely upon the regular opening of the season. The safest bet to make is that with proportionate investment of capital and business ability there will be between the present date and December 23rd more stranded old-line companies and more changes of policies in old-line houses than there will be closed picture houses.

* * *

Retrenchment to meet conditions has been pointed to by the old-liners as an indication of deterioration on the part of motion pictures, yet the old-liners have started their season with a system of retrenchment never before known in the theatrical business. The country is studded with ten-twenty-and-thirty stock companies and circuits. Players are taken out under promising conditions at cut rates, and when away from home are made so uncomfortable that they must accede to additional cuts, or make room for some cheaper worker. It cannot be denied that many players have either returned home, or are on their way there. More than that, moving picture actors (some of them of minor importance) are cast as leads in old-line plays, because of the cuts refused by the professionals of former days. If any doubt the truth of this assertion let them search the records of the booking offices and the clubs of the players.

* * *

And the strangest part of the situation is the declarations that motion pictures have seen their best day and there is no place but the stage for true art come from the people who first appeared upon the screen and by some twist of fate have succeeded in getting a cut-rate contract.

* * *

A recent topical song contained lines about biting the hand that feeds you, and each time we think of the sentiment we think of how small some people must feel; especially those who have been kept under roof by the pictures during the lay-off season and are the first to ridicule moving picture work when they see a chance to put their signatures to contracts in an old-line manager's office.

* * *

At a gathering in a well-known Broadway hostelry a few nights ago a party remarked that he noticed Mr. E. H. Sothern had abandoned moving pictures and decided to return to the stage. "Hear! Hear!" exclaimed a few. "I thought so," said another. One more conservative than the others, asked: "Did he really abandon them?" The discussion that followed disclosed that Mr. Sothern did not "abandon" the moving pictures, but fulfilled his contract as contemplated and discontinued the work with the highest regard for the art and those connected with it. It was stated from information gleaned from his intimate friends that moving picture work was a pleasing revelation to him in many respects and his estimation of that work and those connected with it had been elevated by his personal experience. It was also stated that before concluding with the company he was quite generous in the distribution of valuable diamond rings and other tokens of esteem to those with whom he had been associated; and that, in leaving, his wishes for the success of the moving picture industry were of a most cordial nature. So Dame Rumor gets another boost to the contrary.

* * *

And so we find the opening of the 1916-17 season the same as many preceding it. The legitimate arrayed against the popular. The professional and would-be professionals arrayed against the untiring and successful amusement of the masses under the garbled cry of stage art. But there is an old-time saying that the race is not always to the swiftest and before the season closes it will be found that supremacy will not be with those who depend upon prices beyond the reach of the masses. The past summer season has been very discouraging to both producers and exhibitors, but the coming season is as bright as, if not brighter than, any that has preceded it. The home-comers have their eyes upon their popular amusement. The producers appear to be ready for the feasting eyes. Let the exhibitors be careful in the spread. It only requires good judgment to put Dame Rumor on the toboggan.

A Week of Paramounts

Many Exceptional Large and Small Features for the Week of October 9.

ANN PENNINGTON, the charming, diminutive "Follies" star, makes her second appearance in the Paramount Program in "The Rainbow Princess," produced by the famous Players, during the week of October 9. This, together with "Miss Nancy," a Pallas production in which Vivian Martin is starred, will be the two main features on the Paramount Program. Miss Pennington made such an enormous hit in her first production that exhibitors are looking forward with a keen interest to the second release, and many special performances have been arranged throughout the country.

On both these features, Paramount through its exchanges, has prepared enormous publicity and advertising aids. Exhibitors look forward to breaking all former records with the releases of this week.

During the same week the "little features" released by Paramount will consist of the 35th edition of the "Magazine-on-the-Screen," the Paramount Pictographs, the 36th of the series of "trips-around-the-world," conducted by Burton Holmes, in which he will take his fellow-travelers through "Old Ireland," and the Paramount-Bray cartoon, "Col. Heeza Liar Gets Married," from the pen of J. R. Bray. The week of October 16 Paramount will issue its second comedy, "Bridget's Blunder," produced by the United States Pictures Corporation.

The 35th edition of the Paramount Pictographs, which was the first screen magazine to make its appearance on the horizon of the motion picture industry, is filled with novelty and lots of punch. The four leading subjects tell how wild oysters are captured, how swampy ponds are turned into places beautiful, how wood is converted into paper, and the first showing of motion picture sculpture.

The capturing of wild oysters is particularly thrilling, and tells an interesting story of how oysters are planted, grown, polished, tagged and all stages through which the oyster passes from the day it is planted until it is eaten.

The idea of showing the public how to make their municipalities more beautiful than they had formerly conceived is an entirely new subject in the motion picture field, and is done in a series of pictures which are an inspiration to any populace to turn their ugly, unsightly pools, which are shunned by everyone, and are used for nothing except raising an annual crop of mosquitoes, into ideal gardens of wonderful artistic arrangement.

"Converting Wood Into Paper" tells the story of how after the discovery that printing paper could be made from wood the industry was revolutionized and made the penny newspaper possible. These pictures carry the audience through wonderful scenes where the forest skyscrapers are felled by the constant nibble of the woodsman's axe, and crashing down, carrying everything before them, and how different is its final resting place, as yesterday's newspaper is cast aside and collected by the ash man.

In this release of the Pictographs there will be the first showing of motion picture sculpture, originated by William d'A. Hopkins. This is one of the most exceptional features that has ever been shown in pictures.

The Paramount-Burton Holmes travel picture for this week takes a trip "In Old Ireland," in which every Irishman will be interested, and every American who has had an idea that Ireland is a place of poverty, pigs and potatoes, will have his ideas changed, as Mr. Holmes has found Ireland most beautiful in every way, and takes you to see this beautiful country inhabited by warm-hearted, well-to-do and polite people. His trip begins with Belfast, where many wonders of that community ars shown, after which Glasgow and Dublin are visited, attending the Dublin Horse Show, where many thrilling events are pictured, and where glimpses of the National Volunteers are given. The entire country, including Achill Island and other interesting points are visited, ending with a visit to a monorail railroad, where a thrilling ride is taken.

Mr. Holmes will follow this trip with one to Switzerland, and then will go to Italy and other beautiful places of Continental Europe.

J. R. Bray, the well-known cartoonist, has outdone himself from a comedy standpoint in his animated cartoon for this week. "Col. Heeza Liar Gets Married," during the course of which the Colonel's new wife goes on a strike for an eight-hour day, and insists upon the Colonel making his own meals.

On October 19, Paramount's second comedy, "Bridget's Blunder," which is an exceedingly comical picture, into which has been injected trick photography, will be released.

With all the little features Paramount is using special publicity, special advertising matter, and other clever aids to their patrons.

Private Showing of "The Common Law"

The First Clara Kimball Young Production Given Hearty Reception at Gathering of Picture Folk.

"THE COMMON LAW," the seven-reel adaptation of the Robert W. Chambers novel, was privately presented by Lewis J. Selznick and Clara Kimball Young in the grand ballroom of the Hotel St. Regis on Friday night, September 22. More than three hundred persons, among them being many well-known figures in both the world of the screen and the world of the speaking stage, thronged the ballroom and the parlors adjoining. Practically every member of the cast of "The Common Law" inspected their own work, and the continued applause during the showing of the picture gave them proof that their efforts had not been in vain.

After the seven reels had been run (not too well projected, by the way) the invited guests of the producer and the star roamed about the parlors mixing socially, and partaking of a buffet supper. Enthusiastic praise of the picture was heard on all sides, and Mr. Selznick said that "The Common Law" was but a sample of the good pictures that would in future be produced by the Lewis J. Selznick enterprises.

Miss Young, more beautiful than on the screen, if that be possible, was at the side of Mr. Selznick most of the time acting as hostess. There were so many well-known film folk there that it would be hard to get a full list of the names. Every one who had had anything to do with the making of "The Common Law" was there, it seemed, besides a host of well wishers and a whole flock of reviewers.

G. M. Anderson was there, Kitty Gordon was there, Lillian Russell was there and a bevy of prize-winning beauties from California, who seemed to be kept more or less under the wing of Walter Kingsley, were there. In fact, as might be said, a good time was had by all.

DIRECTOR JOHN B. O'BRIEN WITH METRO.

John B. O'Brien, until recently the director of Mary Pickford at the Famous Players, and before that with D. W. Griffith, where he achieved international fame, has signed a long time contract to direct exclusively for the Metro program, at the Popular Plays and Players studio. Emmy Wehlen, the fascinating and gifted young Metro star, will be under Mr. O'Brien's direction in this new arrangement. Work will begin immediately upon a five-part feature called "Vanity," which was written especially for Miss Wehlen by Aaron Hoffman.

The work of Mr. O'Brien as one of America's foremost directors is well known, but always worthy of repetition. The last features to his credit at the Famous Players, in which Miss Pickford is starred, are "Hulda from Holland," "The Foundling" and "Eternal Grind." Other recent features which will be produced include "Destiny's Toy," with Louis Huff in the stellar role, and "The Flying Torpedo," with John Emerson and Bessie Love.

INCE DISCOVERS NEW MUSICAL INSTRUMENT.

Thomas H. Ince has discovered a unique musical instrument that seems to possess supernatural tones. It is called the choralcelo and operates along the general lines of the pipe organ, but creates sounds never before obtained except by the human voice or natural objects emitting their own peculiar sounds.

This instrument has been installed at the Park theater, New York, and is used in conjunction with every presentation of "Civilization."

The tones of the choralcelo are produced magnetically by a pulsating electric current passing through each magnet, thus causing natural synchronism with each note that is to be vibrated. For instance, if the natural vibration of any object is 1,000 per second, the current has to pass through the magnet and pulsate at the same rate. This was deemed impossible by some of the greatest physicists, but brings into concrete form the theory made famous by Von Helmholtz.

NEW THEATER FOR NASHUA.

The Tremont Theater Company of Nashua, N. H., will open a moving picture theater in Main street, that city, on January 1, 1917. The house will seat 1,000 persons and will cost $40,000 to build. J. D. Hailing will be the manager. It will be devoted exclusively to pictures.

Mutual Program

Chaplin and Minter Head Releases for First Week in October —Many Other Subjects.

WITH Charlie Chaplin, the inimitable, in his very newest and funniest Chaplin-Mutual release entitled "The Pawn Shop," and Mary Miles Minter in her second Mutual Star Production, "Dulcie's Adventure," heading the week's releases, the Mutual Film Corporation's output for the week of Oct. 2 takes on an unusually interesting hue. Both pictures will appear on Monday, Oct. 2.

Aside from these, a five part Mutual masterpicture featuring Winnifred Greenwood and Edward Coxen, "A Woman's Daring"; the last of the five installments of the Gaumont Company's "Fantomas" detective series, entitled "The False Magistrate"; the usual output of current and scenic stuff; a number of comedies of unusual merit; and a two part drama that strikes a new note will be counted among the week's releases.

"The Pawn Shop" gives unlimited opportunity for the full play of Charlie Chaplin's genius. He assumes the role of the under-assistant to the pawnbroker—the man who shines the three balls over the door, dusts up the furniture, does the dishes for the shop-keeper's daughter as it were. Since the daughter is none other than the fair Edna, who dispenses doughnuts and pie crusts in return, the under-assistant feels himself more than well paid for his pains. Edna Purviance, the fair, is seen in the role of the pawnbroker's daughter.

Scene from "The Pawn Shop" (Mutual).

Those who have seen the finished production of Mary Miles Minter's picture, "Dulcie's Adventure," at preliminary screenings at the American studios at Santa Barbara, declare that this picture is the very best production in which Miss Minter has ever appeared.

In this first picture produced under the master hand of James Kirkwood for the Mutual, little Miss Minter appears in the role of an appealing young southern girl. Aside from the delightful characterization of Miss Minter, there is much of the atmosphere of the South added to the drama in the characters of the young girl's two maiden aunts, "Aunt Emme," and "Aunt Netta," roles portrayed by Bessie Banks and Marie Van Tassell. The remainder of the cast was excellently chosen. As "Harry," the boy whom Dulcie loves, Alan Forrest does very well. There are also Mollie Schafer, Perry Banks, John Gough, Harry Von Meter, Gertrude Le Brandt, William Carroll, and Robert Klein.

"A Woman's Daring," the Mutual Masterpicture of the week, is scheduled for release on Oct. 6. It is a drama of real thrills, of tense moments, and dramatic climaxes, and in it Winnifred Greenwood and Edward Coxen do some memorable work. In support of Miss Greenwood and Mr. Coxen are George Field, the perfect villain, and a well balanced cast.

"The False Magistrate," the fifth "Fantomas" installment, will be released Thursday, Oct. 6. The booking reports on this fascinating detective series from the Gaumont's studios, whose first three reel installment, "The Phantom Crook," went out on Sept. 7, have surpassed even the most optimistic expectations of the producers.

There is an entirely delightful and whimsically humorous turn to the Thanhouser two part drama, "Arabella's Prince," a release of Oct. 6. Arabella, an old maid of uncertain years, elevates the grouchy old sea dog, who is her next door neighbor, to the position of fairy prince in her own mind. The story deals with the awakening of the old man's consciousness to Arabella's existence by the introduction of that subtle wonder worker, jealousy, into his daily life.

The Beauty comedy release of the week is released as usual on Tuesday. Orral Humphrey appears at this time in an amusing farce, the name of which is "Slickining the Slickers." Mr. Humphrey gets out of this funny story his usual amount of eccentric humor.

"A Touch of High Life," a Vogue comedy in two reels, appearing Sunday, Oct. 8, gives Paddy McQuire, the Mutual funny man, unusual situations to his heart's content. In substituting his station in life from street sweeper to a young sport at a summer resort all in one afternoon, "Paddy" finds himself in deep, but not too deep for him to get out.

The Cub comedies for the week will be three in number. "Oh! For a Cave Man," the first of these will appear Friday, Oct. 6, and "Won By a Fowl," and "That Wonderful Wife" will both go out on the following day.

The remaining releases for the week consist of the usual scenic and current material of Gaumont production. Mutual Weekly No. 92, the news pictorial, and the split reel scenic-comic "See America First," will go out on Wednesday, Oct. "Reel Life," the Mutual's magazine in pictures, will be released on Sunday, Oct. 8.

Kalems for October

Some Unusual Comedies Promised from Kalem in Addition to "Hazards" and "Frisco" Episodes.

COMEDY plays an important part in the subjects announced by Kalem for early release in October. Two of the "Ham Comedies," which are securing greater popularity than ever since the formation of the all-tar trio of Ham, Bud, and Ethel Teare, are found on the list. They are, "One Step Too Far," and "The Love Magnet." In addition two comedies featuring Henry Murdoch and Ivy Close are scheduled. "Stolen Plumage," and "The Battered Bridegroom" are the titles of the two releases.

In "One Step Too Far" Ham is seen in a new role, that of a policeman. The easy life and soft pickings of the force appeal to Ham until he goes "one step too far," and finds himself lodged in a cell alongside his pals Bud and Ethel. This subject is issued on Tuesday, October 3.

"The Love Magnet" has a novel idea for its plot. Bud, unsuccessful in love, purchases a "love magnet" that attracts all the pretty girls to him. Ham finds himself out in the cold, and determines to get a magnet of his own, but by mistake he gets one whose purpose is to attract old maids. Then things begin to happen, and finally Ham and Bud are forced to take to the sea to escape their pursuers—and even here the mermaids come to answer the call of the magnet. October 10 is the date set for this release.

The action of "Stolen Plumage" is laid in the Orient with Henry Murdoch an autocratic sultan. From there the action changes to America with Murdoch in pursuit of Ivy's lover, who stole the tail of the sacred Dumdikkv bird. This release, issued on Friday, October 6, is followed on October 13 by "The Battered Bridegroom," in which Murdoch is an enterprising barber and Ivy Close his manicure.

Two episodes of "The Girl From Frisco" are announced for release early in October. They are "The Web of Guilt," issued on Wednesdaly, October 4, and "The Reformation of Dog Hole" coming the following Wednesday.

"The Hazards of Helen," now nearing the close of the second year of their existence, seem to gain momentum as they speed along, and, judging from their present popularity the last "Hazard" is many years distant. This record is remarkable in view of the fact that the "Hazards" are already holders of the record for longevity among screen series.

"The Blocked Track," and "To Save the Special" are two of the railroad pictures featuring Helen Gibson that will be issued early in October. In the former Helen performs the thrilling feat of swinging from the topmost branches of a tree down over the railroad track to the top of a speeding train. The last mentioned episode is characterized by some of the daring riding which enabled Helen to retain her title of the Pacific Coast Woman's champion at the recent Bakersfield rodeo. October 7 and 14 are the respective release dates for these subjects.

BRITISH AGENT FOR FROHMAN.

Roscoe Spurin, who for the past two years has been general exploitation manager for Ruffles, Limited, England's biggest film purveyors, concluded arrangement this week whereby the new and heavily financed company, known as Roscoe's Exclusives, Limited, will handle the productions of the Frohman Amusement Corporation throughout the British Isles.

Essanay to Have Chaplin Revue

Three of the Funniest Soon to Be Offered—Other Interesting Subjects Announced.

ALTHOUGH the compilation of the Essanay-Chaplin Revue of 1916 has just been announced, that company reports that bookings for this unique feature reaching into the hundreds have already been recorded by General Film Service. President George K. Spoor believes the attraction of the revue for exhibitors and public alike lies not only in the fact that the idea is new, but that three of the funniest Essanay-Chaplin comedies have been selected for its construction. They are, "His New Job," "The Tramp," and "A Night Out." The combination of these three comedies into one feature of five reels, is calculated by the producers to make an ideal entertainment of exceptional drawing power.

An impromptu showing in Chicago of "The Return of Eve" to a dozen exhibitors in advance of regular trade showing brought approximately fifty bookings, according to advices received from Essanay. Inasmuch as a trade showing was not contemplated, and that the exhibitors saw the film when being run for officials of the company, Essanay believes its claims that the picture is far out of the ordinary are substantiated.

The release date on this feature has been set for October 16, through Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service. It was previously announced for release October 2.

"The Prince of Graustark" has been completed by Essanay and will be offered through Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service following "The Return of Eve." It is a rapid, fluent piece of high comedy, taken from the novel of the name by George Barr McCutcheon. Bryant Washburn and Marguerite Clayton take the leading roles, and are supported by Ernest Maupain and Sydney Ainsworth. Fred E. Wright, who directed "Graustark," also directed the sequel.

Two new five-act features by Directors Wright and Berthelet are now being constructed in the Essanay studios. The latter is filming "The Chaperon," Maxine Elliot's stage hit. Edna Mayo and Eugene O'Brien also appear in the leading parts in this picture. Sydney Ainsworth has the chief supporting part.

Director Wright is ready to begin work on "The Breakers," taken from the story by Arthur Stringer in the Saturday Evening Post. This will be in five acts, and feature Bryant Washburn and Nell Craig. Ernest Maupain will have one of the big character parts which he handles so well.

KENNETH HODKINSON APPOINTED MANAGER OF PARAMOUNT.

Kenneth Hodkinson, one of the most widely known figures in the motion picture industry, son of William W. Hodkinson, director and former president of Paramount, has been appointed manager of the Paramount Pictures Corporation by the directors of this distributing organization.

Mr. Hodkinson was born in Idaho and educated in California. He grew up with the motion picture industry Six years ago he entered the employ of the General Film Company, at their San Francisco Exchange, in a very minor capacity, advancing himself steadily during a period of three years to the position of assistant head booker.

It was at that time that his father organized the Progressive Motion Picture Company and the younger Mr. Hodkinson became the assistant manager of the San Francisco office. When his father came east, prior to the inception of Paramount, he was appointed manager of the Progressive organization and held that position until a year and a half ago, when he joined the Paramount forces in the capacity of secretary to his father, then the president. Upon the election of Hiram Abrams as president, Mr. Hodkinson was named assistant general manager, from which position he has been made manager.

EARLE WILLIAMS AGAIN CAST.

Having completed his big C. N. & A. M. Williamson serial, "The Scarlet Runner," the Vitagraph star, Earle Williams, is already hard at work for Blue Ribbon forthcoming releases, which come regularly after the run of the automobile adventure story is completed. The story in which he is now busy is by James Oliver Curwood. Naomi Childers will play opposite Mr. Williams. The direction of this film has been placed in the hands of Vitagraph's woman director, Miss Marguerite Bertsch, who has just completed "The Devil's Prize," which she wrote and directed in five weeks' time.

At Leading Picture Theaters

Programs for the Week of September 24 at New York's Best Motion Picture Houses.

E. H. Sothern at the Strand.

THE Chattel, a five-reel Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature, starring E. H. Sothern, was the leading photoplay at the Strand theater for the week commencing Sept. 24. Paul West is the author of the story which is romantic in theme and shows a powerful self-centered financier learning the true value of a good woman's love. Mr. Sothern is supported by Peggy Hyland and an excellent company. The production merits nothing but praise.

Maurice and Florence Walton made their photodramatic debut at the Strand theater, week of September 24, in "The Quest of Life," an adaptation from the English play, "Ellen Young" by Edmond Goulding and Gabriel Enthoven, produced by the Famous Players Film Company.

Added features on the program were scientific and educational studies of rare interest, and the Strand's Topical Review. The soloists were Irene Jonani, Arthur Clough, Albert Newman, and Mlle. Valentine.

Bessie Barriscale at the Rialto.

In "A Corner in Colleens," the feature picture at the Rialto, Bessie Barriscale was seen as "Shammie," short for Shamrock, the tomboy in a family of four pretty girls occupying a tiny cottage with their foster mother near Dublin. Her love of excitement leads to her arrest as a rebel during the Irish uprising. Charles Ray played the lover. Three other colleens in the picture were played by Margery Wilson, Alice Taaffe, and Alice Lawrence. Thomas Ince supervised the production, from C. Gardner Sullivan's scenario.

"The Land of Silence," photographed by Robert Bruce, whose "War Creek Trail" created such an impression, was the scenic offering of the bill. The topical weekly and a new Keystone comedy were also shown.

The soloists were A. C. Janpolski, Jeanne Manbourg, and Helen MacDonough.

"Anton the Terrible" at the Broadway.

At the Broadway theater the Jesse L. Lasky-Paramount production of "Anton the Terrible," was the attraction for the week.

The story which was written by Thomas H. Uzzell, has to do with the intrigue in the Russian General's staff shortly after the outbreak of the present European war. Anton, although Chief of the Russian Secret Police, is in reality a German spy. The scenes are laid in Petrograd, and on the steppes of Siberia. Theodore Roberts, who is one of America's leading character actors, plays Anton. Anita King has the part of a young girl upon whom Anton wishes to revenge himself for her father's crime. The usual one-reel comedy and educational subjects completed the program.

Eighty-First Street Theater Bill.

At the Eighty-First Street theater four Triangle pictures were shown. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Lillian Gish in "Diane of the Follies," and a Triangle Keystone Comedy were the attractions; and Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Wm. S. Hart in "The Dawn Maker," and a Sennett Keystone Comedy made up the picture portion of the entertainment.

WHITCOMB AGAIN WITH UNIVERSAL.

Eugene B. Lewis, scenario editor of the Universal Company, this week strengthened his staff by the addition of a well known writer, D. T. Whitcomb. The new acquisition to the scenario force has been writing for a dozen years, and before he entered the motion picture field was engaged in newspaper work, during which time he turned out many short stories for various magazines. Some of Whitcomb's early scenario work was for the Universal Company about four years ago. Since then he has been writing for the Fox, Kalem, Ince and Balboa companies. A few of his well known plays are "Sold at Auction," "His Old Fashioned Dad," "The Yellow Bullet" and "Little Mary Sunshine."

DON'T CASH THESE CHECKS.

Elmer J. McGovern, general manager of the Frank Powell Productions, Inc., wishes to warn the trade against cashing or endorsing the checks of a person giving the name of "Frederick Chapin," photoplaywright. Mr. McGovern was "stung" as were several others. "Insufficient funds" is what the bank says of this party's checks.

Universal Program for Week of Oct. 2

What Big U Is Doing to Help the Exhibitors Make an October Record.

TWO Universal special features and a Red Feather five-reel drama head the Universal program for the week of October 2. The first special feature is "Borrowed Plumes," a two-reel episode of the "Timothy Dobbs—That's Me" series in which Carter De Haven is starred. "Borrowed Plumes" was written by Bess Meredyth and produced by Wallace Beery. Robert Milash, Marcia Moore and Dan Duffy appear in support of Mr. De Haven.

The other Universal special feature is "Clipped Wings," the eighth two-reel episode of the new Universal serial, "Liberty," featuring Marie Walcamp, Eddie Polo and Jack Holt, with Maud Emory, G. Raymond Nye, Neal Hart, Bertram Grassby and L. M. Wells also in the cast. "Liberty" was written and is being produced by Jacques Jaccard.

The week's Red Feather is "Under Suspicion," a five-reel drama to be released October 2. "Under Suspicion" was by the famous English novelist, E. Phillips Oppenheim, and was adapted and produced by George L. Tucker. Douglas Munro, Gerald Ames, Bert Wynne and Laura Cowie take the principal roles in the play. On the same day "With the Spirit's Help," a Nestor comedy featuring Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Priscilla Dean, will be released. The story of the play, by Virginia Kirkley, was scenarioized and produced by L. W. Chaudet. Fred Gamble appears in support of the trio of principals.

On Tuesday, October 3, Ben Wilson, supported by Edna Hunter, plays the leading role in "The Heart of New York," a three-reel Gold Seal underworld drama written by William Addison Lathrop and produced by Ben Wilson. Charles Ogle, William Welsh, Howard Crampton, Margaret West and Dixie Compton also play prominent roles in the picture.

There will be no release under the Victor brand on October 3. On October 4 the feature of the day will be Dan Russell in a two-reel L-Ko comedy, "Safe in a Safe," in which the chief of police of a certain town finds that his home and office has become the rendezvous and hiding place of all the crooks for two hundred miles around. On the same day No. 40 of the Universal Animated Weekly will be released. There will be no release under the Laemmle brand on this date.

"The Eternal Way," a Big U drama featuring G. Raymond Nye and Vola Smith, will be the feature of the program of October 5. The drama was written and produced by C. Elfelt. Charles Gunn, May Hill and Eddie Brown also play important roles in the picture. Under the Powers brand will appear the Hy Mayer educational drawings, "Pen and Inklings in and Around Jerusalem." This is a combination of a cartoon by Hy Mayer and a travel picture in Palestine. At times the moving picture is stopped and a cartoon by Mr. Mayer faded in. The famous Wall of Wails is shown, the different types of people, a Mohammedan maiden, a sacred parade, the well into which Joseph was cast by his brethren and the place of Christ's nativity. There will be no release under the Victor brand on this date.

Stop! Look! Listen! October 6, the Universal special, "Somewhere on the Battlefield," a two-reel military drama featuring Hobart Henley, Claire McDowell and William Welsh will be released. The story of this strong and timely drama was written by H. H. Van Loan at the suggestion of Hobart Henley. Mr. Van Loan's story in the New York Evening Mail was scenarioized by Elliott J. Clawson and produced by Hobart Henley. The play deals with the adventures of an American hospital corps in Servia. On the same day Billie Mason and Madge Kirby co-star in the Victor comedy, "A Charming Villain," which was writen by Harry Wulze and produced by John Steppling. There will be no Rex release on this date.

Little Zoe Rae will be featured on October 7 in "A Mountain Tragedy," a Bison two-reel drama writen by Calder Johnstone and produced by George Cochrane. E. J. Denecke, Marjorie Ellison, Buster Emmons and Bert Law appear in support of the diminutive Universal star. On the same day William Franey and Gale Henry, with Milburn Moranti and Lillian Peacock, raise particular hades in "Father Gets in Wrong," a Joker comedy written by William Schoene and produced by Allen Curtis.

Dorothy Davenport and Emory Johnston share honors on October 8 in the Rex two-reel society drama, "The Human Gamble," which was written by Calder Johnstone and produced by L. B. Carleton. Richard Morris and Alfred Allen appear in support of the principals. There will be no Imp or L-Ko releases on this date.

Five one-reelers will be released on the Universal program for the week of October 2 under the Imp, Big U, Rex, Laemmle and Victor brands. The titles of these five special releases had not been decided upon at the time of going to press.

IVY CLOSE RETURNS TO ENGLAND.

Ivy Close, the famous English beauty who has been appearing in Kalem comedies with marked success, has been forced to make preparations to return to England. Miss Close will thus give up her American screen work for an indefinite period.

Since the death of her brother, Raymond Close, in the trenches in France, Miss Close has found the call of the home land growing more and more insistent. To add to her burden she received word two weeks ago that her husband, Elwin Neame, was about to be called to the front. Mr. Neame, who is prominent as a photographer of royalty and English society, was among the married men who "declared" himself early in the summer and he has been expecting the call to active service for many months.

Under the unfortunate conditions, the Kalem Company, though regretting the step in view of the popularity of the famous beauty's screen productions, readily acceded to her desire to give up screen work here. Miss Close made swift preparations to sail in order that she might see her husband before he answered the call for duty in Flanders.

Supported by Henry Murdoch, Ivy Close was seen in a series of one-reel comedies that quickly took rank among the most popular of Kalem releases. Among the coming productions in which the two stars will be seen are "Rival Artists," issued on September 29; "Stolen Plumage," scheduled for October 6, and "The Battered Bridegroom," released through General Film on October 13. "Stolen Plumage" is proclaimed by Kalem officials as taking place among the top-notch comedy hits of the year. Much of the action is supposed to transpire in the Orient, where Murdoch is an autocratic potentate. The outlay for Oriental scenic effects made the comedy one of the most expensive one-reelers ever staged.

THANHOUSER OCTOBER RELEASES.

Florence La Badie in "The Pillory" and Gladys Hulette in "Prudence, the Pirate," plays of widely different types, are the features that Thanhouser will release through the Pathe exchanges in October. "The Pillory," written by Philip Lonergan and directed by Frederic Sullivan, is a gripping drama woven around a mother who has sinned, her daughter and an intolerant aunt who in a fanatical attempt to act as an apostle of vengeance cruelly persecutes the mother who is trying to atone for her sins.

Florence La Badie is the daughter, Marie Shotwell is the mother and Marie Haynes is the bigoted aunt. Ethyle Cooke, George Marlo and Yale Benner are others who have important parts. "The Pillory" is to be released on October 8.

"Prudence, the Pirate," is a comedy drama by Agnes C. Johnston, who wrote "The Shine Girl," and directed by William Parke, who produced that feature. "Prudence" is to be released on October 22.

Miss Hulette plays a romantic little girl who wants to be a pirate. Aided by a party of tramps and a boy chum she sets sail in the good ship "Bucket of Blood," captures her aunt's houseboat and breaks up a party to which she was not invited.

The "Bucket of Blood" catches fire and Prudence is rescued after a series of spectacular scenes aboard the blazing boat. "Panthus," the ugliest pup in the world, is a feature of the picture.

Flora Finch, famous for years as a co-star with the late John Bunny, is Miss Hulette's aunt. Barnet Parker, Riley Chamberlin and William Parke, Jr., are prominent in the supporting cast.

DE HAVEN DIRECTS COMEDIES.

Carter De Haven is directing his own company and playing leads at Universal City. He recently finished "Timothy Dobbs, That's Me," a serial in which he was directed by Wallace Beery, but under the new arrangements each man now will direct and act in his own company.

De Haven is filming "The Cub Passes" with Marcia Moore playing opposite and Margaret Whistler and Dan Duffy in character parts.

Beery is making a one-reel comedy, "The Generous Janitor," in which he plays the title part.

Pathe Increases Output

Will Release Fifteen Reels Each Week Beginning October 8th—Features from Arrow Complete Gold Rooster Bill.

BEGINNING October 8, Pathe will release one Gold Rooster per week. The features for this program will be furnished by the Astra Film Corporation, Arrow Film Corporation, Balboa, Thanhouser and the best that the open market affords. This latest increase in program is in accordance with the policy of gradual expansion laid down by J. A. Berst, vice president and general manager, last spring. In April Pathe released seven reels per week. Beginning in October they will release fifteen or sixteen reels per week. In April Pathe released one Gold Rooster per month. This was increased to two in June, three in August and will be increased to four in October.

In accordance with Mr. Berst's instructions, C. R. Seelye, business manager, has been gradually strengthening all departments in the home office and building up an exceptionally strong branch organization so that the entire Pathe organization is confident that not only will Pathe distribute more film and give the exhibitor better service than ever before, but the releases will be of a quality second to none on the market.

Each of Pathe's producing companies, in accordance with Mr. Berst's policy of quality film, are in friendly competition to produce only the best, and a careful study of their resources should prove that they have ample ability to make quality pictures.

The Astra Film Corporation has at its disposal the great financial resources of Pathe and the facilities of the great Pathe Jersey City studios. Louis J. Gasnier, one of America's greatest production experts, is president; George B. Seitz, the secretary-treasurer, and author of many famous features and serials, among them "The Iron Claw," is recognized as one of America's greatest scenario writers. The famous A. H. Woods' stage successes are being made into Astra features, and the stars for these features are selected from the great number of screen and stage favorites available in New York, without regard to expense, but in consideration only of their ability to play the particular part. Among the Astra directors are George Fitzmaurice, whose every Astra feature exhibitors have found of the highest merit; Edouard Jose, who made "The Iron Claw," and is now making the great army serial, "Pearl of the Army;" and Donald Mackenzie, producer with Louis J. Gasnier of "The Perils of Pauline," besides a number of great features. Another noteworthy picture produced by Mr. Jose, "The Light That Failed," will be released October 15th. Mr. Jose has also completed a feature with Pearl White.

W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Film Corporation, is recognized as one of the progressive men of the industry. He was largely responsible for "The Million Dollar Mystery;" he was long interested in the Reliance-Mutual studios; he is a heavy stockholder in Thanhouser. Now he comes forward with the statement that back of the Arrow Film Corporation are men with wide business experience who are heavily interested in various companies in the industry. He states that their policy is to make only the best features and that they have now under contract well known stars and directors, and that their scenarios will be prepared from famous stage and literary successes and from original stories by the very best authors. The first Arrow release will soon be ready for the trade showing, and those who have seen it say that it is splendid.

From the Balboa Film Company will come six sterling features with Baby Marie Osborne. The first of these, "Little Mary Sunshine," has been booked and rebooked from coast to coast, and the second one, which will be released Nov. 12, is equally as strong according to those who have seen it. Balboa has completed the fourteenth episode, "Grip of Evil" picture, which has already been booked by over 3,000 theaters, and is now engaged in making another big serial for Pathe. "Sultana," a Balboa production with Ruth Roland, has been Pathe colored and will be released October 29.

The first two Thanhouser releases were "The Fugitive," and "The Shine Girl." These met with instant favor and are being run by a number of the finest theaters in America. Mr. Thanhouser is giving his personal attention to each Gold Rooster he makes for Pathe and has promised that future releases will be of the same high order of merit. All he asks is that exhibitors screen his pictures and decide for themselves as to their high average quality.

Exchangemen estimate that the new Pathe program will do about as much business each week as would three and a half companies each releasing one average good feature per week. In other words, Pathe claims not only to be now doing a large business, but that there will henceforth be a few companies doing an equally great business.

The Pathe News, they say, is in a class by itself, while Pathe serials are a prized part of the program of 75 per cent. of all theaters in this country. Another release that has [illegible] instant favor is the Pictorial Review features. To accompany Pathe serials and features on the exhibitors' program, a strong dramatic two or three reeler is issued each week. Now that a Gold Rooster feature, picked from the best from the studios of Astra, Arrow, Balboa, Thanhouser and the cream of the open market, will be released every week, Pathe becomes far stronger than ever before.

B. F. Lyon With International

FOLLOWING its announced policy of advancements to its branch managers, the International Film Service, Inc., has appointed B. F. Lyon, manager of the Pittsburgh exchange, to the position of district manager. The rapid growth of the International and the organization's determination to secure the greatest efficiency possible were directly responsible for Mr. Lyon's appointment. In his new position he will act as assistant to J. K. Burger, assistant general manager in charge of exchanges. His field will be the entire United States, and he will visit the different exchanges, instilling into the branch managers the ideas of the home office.

B. F. Lyon.

Mr. Lyons has been in charge of the Pittsburgh exchange of the International since its organization. Prior to that time he was with Pathe, and was directly responsible for founding and building up the Newark branch. His work there was considered of the highest order and because of it he was selected by the International for the important post in Pittsburgh. His success there has been as phenomenal as in Newark.

Mr. Lyon will be succeeded as manager of the Pittsburgh branch by Edward J. McGurty, which appointment, too, is along the International's prescribed policy of rewarding faithful employees. Mr. McGurty joined the International Film Service, Inc., in April of this year as a road man, working under the supervision of Mr. Lyon.

Mr. McGurty was born and raised in Chicago, attended the public schools there and graduated from the University of Chicago. He engaged in special investigation work for the McCormack Foundation of his alma mater and later did similar work for the Illinois States Attorney.

For the past two years he has been a resident of Pittsburgh, where he entered the film field, first with the Liberty Film Company. Subsequently he represented Pathe in West Virginia, where he remained until he joined the International.

RYAN GIVEN A DINNER.

C. C. Ryan, for a year and a half in charge of the shipping and supply department of World Film, was given a dinner last Wednesday night by his old employees in honor of his departure from service in that company to take a similar position with the Lewis J. Selznick organization. The dinner was in fact an after-the-theater supper and lasted well into the small hours. Ryan was first escorted to a box party at the Forty-fourth street theater to witness "The Girl from Brazil." Then the function was removed to Joel's famous all-night rest cure, and "a fine time was had by all." Among those present were Maurice J. Walsh, Clarence Carta, Dick Segal, Al. Lehrer, Joseph Barry, Herman Pepper, Clifford Myers, H. A. Thomas, Frank Zucker, L. E. Ryer, P. Masterson, Maxwell Sass, Sol. H. Kravitz and J. H. Lutjen.

Turning 'em Out at Triangle

Director West Completes Important Production—Many Stars Busy on Big Subjects.

THE much-heralded production, at the Triangle-Ince Studios at Culver City, of the new play which is to present as a tri-star combination Dorothy Dalton, Enid Markey and Howard Hickman, has just been completed by Raymond B. West, and is now going through the cutting the titling process. It will soon be in the hands of exhibitors. This is the play that has a sensational railroad collision as one of its strongest features. In theme, it is a vampire story; and in it, it is said, Dorothy Dalton presents her strongest claim to honors as a screen siren.

William S. Hart has completed the exterior scenes of his new "Western" from the pen of J. G. Hawks, and is now working on a series of interiors especially constructed in one of the great glass studios at the Culver City plant. These will probably be finished by the end of the week, and Hart will begin upon another play now being written for his use by one of the writers in the scenario department.

Frank Keenan, the Triangle-Ince star, is attracting much attention this week at the studio in his picturesque work on his new southern story by John Lynch. The action of the story is supposed to take place about the year 1848 on a Louisiana plantation. Some of the scenes take place on an old stern-wheel steamboat on the Mississippi—a veritable Mark Twain type of vessel. Walter Edwards is directing. While Keenan is completing his work on this, Chief Author C. Gardner Sullivan is at work on a new story for the star. Nothing has been definitely announced about this new vehicle, but it is said that it will afford Keenan the part of a miserly old mill-owner. It is also said that it constitutes a sequence of exceedingly powerful situation.

The harmonious working of the tri-star combination, composed of Dorothy Dalton, Enid Markey and Howard Hickman, has impelled the Triangle authorities to arrange another of the same kind composed of Dorothy Dalton, Charles Ray and Louise Glaum. The vehicle to which these three have been assigned is described as a deeply psychological subject, written by Alice P. Brown, of Pasadena, Cal. The scenario has been made by Monte M. Katterjohn, of the authorial staff. The supporting cast includes Margaret Thompson, Robert McKim, J. Barney Sherry and Charles K. French.

John Lynch, the writer who, of recent months, has provided Triangle-Ince players with several of their biggest subjects, has just completed a new drama for William Desmond and Enid Markey. It deals with college life, providing Desmond with the role of a heroic athlete and Miss Markey with that of a chorus girl. In the supporting cast are Howard Hickman, Margaret Thompson, Charles Gunn, J. Barney Sherry, David M. Hartford, J. Frank Burke and Louise Durham.

At the Triangle-Fine Arts studio, Douglas Fairbanks is working in the East on a new story, one of the thrilling moments of which is the chase of a private yacht in New York Harbor by a revenue cutter. For the making of this picture the United States Navy donated the use of one of its finest torpedo destroyers. As usual, Fairbanks will have many thrilling escapades, and a real love story. Lloyd Ingraham is directing.

Much interest is being shown at the Triangle-Fine Arts Studio in the present starring vehicle of Wilfred Lucas. It is called "Bugs," and in it Constance Talmadge has the leading female role. It is a detective story of unusual kind. In the supporting cast are F. A. Turner, Winifred Westover, Pomeroy Cannon, Fred Warren, James O'Shea, Jack Sealock, Kate Bruce and Monte Blue.

Dorothy Gish is hard at work at the Triangle-Fine Arts Studio on a racing story called "The Best Bet." Tod Browning, the director, is the author, although the director in this particular instance is George Siegmann. Raymond Jerome Binder is leading man in this feature, while others in the cast are Adele Clifton, Carl Stockdale, Loyola O'Connor, F. A. Turner, Joe Noery and Tom Wilson.

At the Triangle-Keystone Studios, Louise Fazenda has just put the finishing touches to a new two-reeler called "The Girl Guardian." Charles Murray has the principal male role in this production, and has the pleasant task of saving Miss Fazenda from drowning.

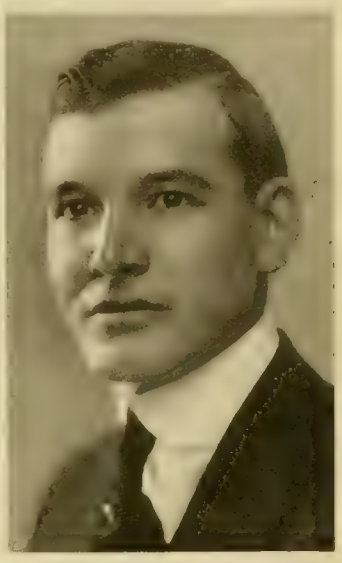
"The Three Slims" is the title of a new Triangle-Keystone comedy in which Slim Summerville, Slippery Sam Potel and Slim St. Clair have the leading parts.

Ora Carew, the Triangle-Keystone star, has to play opposite herself in a new comedy called "The Twins." She plays both parts of a winsome little country girl and a gawky country boy, throughout a vastly amusing action. Joseph Callahan and "Baldy" Belmont have important roles in her support.

Horne a Product of Stage

Kalem Director Brought Into Limelight by Success of "Girl From Frisco."

DIRECTOR James W. Horne, of Kalem's staff of producers, long regarded by his fellow screen workers as one of the most artistic of picture craftsmen has, however, seldom been found in the limelight of publicity. The success of Kalem's series of the west, "The Girl from Frisco," featuring Marin Sais and True Boardman, has resulted in bringing him into the rays of the calcium.



James W. Horne.

Among the successful Kalem productions staged by Director Horne, the "Stingaree" series, by E. W. Hornung, comes to mind most readily. He will also be remembered as the producer of "The Social Pirates," by George Bronson Howard and a number of multiple reel successes, including "The Barnstormers" and "The Pitfall." Judging from its reception by exhibitors and the fans "Stingaree" is probably his greatest success, though the "Girl from Frisco," now in the seventh week of its career, bids fair to run the series by the creator of "Raffles," a close race. In both productions Marin Sais and True Boardman are the featured stars, with a strong cast in support.

Director Horne is a native of California and a real product of the stage, as he was a member of the Belasco-Mayer stock company at the Alcazar in San Francisco when only 13 years old. Stage work carried him to New York and Chicago many years later, his last engagement in the spoken drama being in the role of Bragdon in the Cohan and Harris production of "Brewster's Millions."

He entered photoplay work with the Kalem Company four years ago as a scenario writer, being sent to the Glendale studio. In a little over a year of this work he showed such ability that he was given the directorial reins. Horne soon established himself in the front rank of screen producers.

Under the direction of Mr. Horne work was started this week on the ninth episode of the western series by Robert Welles Ritchie. This is called "The Web of Guilt." For "A Battle in the Dark," the eighth production in this two-reel series, Director Horne secured some unusually striking fire scenes by burning a three-story Glendale house to the ground.

The director was fortunate in learning of a house which the owner was preparing to tear down. By offering $3,500, many hundreds higher than the nearest bid of a house-wrecking concern, he secured permission to stage his private fire with the house as the offering. The Gendale fire department stood by to prevent possible spreading of the blaze to adjoining buildings, while a bond was also called for to cover the latter contingency. The scenes were photographed by a battery of four cameras at night and furnish a spectacular climax to this episode.

KERRIGAN IN "THE MAINSPRING."

J. Warren Kerrigan is to be seen next in the role of a newspaper reporter who stumbles on the scoop of a lifetime, but who is held prisoner so that what he has learned may not become public property and thus cause a financial panic. There are five reels of thrilling action in the play, "The Mainspring," the scenario of which was prepared by William Parker. Kerrigan will be directed by Jack Conway, of the Universal forces.

Extend "Girl from Frisco"

Success of Kalem Series Causes Addition of Ten More Episodes.

The Kalem Company on Monday officially confirmed the rumors that plans have been considered to extend the "Girl From Frisco" series beyond the fifteen-week period originally set. Though many weeks were spent in consideration of this step the requests from exhibitors and exhange men for an extension continued with such persistency that it was definitely decided on Monday to add ten episodes, bringing the series to twenty-five.

Arrangements have been completed with Robert Welles Ritchie, whose realistic stories of the West have been so largely responsible for the success of the series, to write the plots for the additional ten episodes. Marin Sais and True Boardman will continue to be seen in the leads of the series that has proven the most popular of their screen careers.

Among the episodes of "The Girl From Frisco" promised for early release are "The Web of Guilt" and "The Reformation of Dog Hole." The former episode finds Barbara unraveling a baffling mystery in which her only clue is a peculiar weave in the rope used by the criminal. It is scheduled for release on Wednesday, October 4th.

One of the most picturesquely Western episodes of the series is "The Reformation of Dog Hole," issued on Wednesday, October 11th. Marin Sais, as Barbara Brent, in this story undertakes to "clean up" Dog Hole, reputed as "the toughest town west of the Sierras." With the aid of John Wallace, portrayed by True Boardman, she succeeds in her purpose, but only after a bitter struggle with the rough element of the town led by Hawk, proprietor of the "Red Copper," the local saloon and gambling place. In the last mentioned character Ronald Bralbury, who has gained popularity in the "heavy" roles of the series, contributes a novel interpretation.

Included in the other players seen in these two episodes are Frank Jonasson, Josephine West, Edward Clisbee, Karl Formes and Steve Murphy. Director James Horne is handling the productions.

Earl Metcalfe

WHEN boyish, good looking Earl Metcalfe tells you that he was born in Newport, Kentucky, twenty-eight years ago, you are inclined to fancy that he is adding a few years to his actual age, and it is only when you recall the fact that he has been playing leads for the past five years that he becomes absolved from suspicion of attempting to evade the truant officer.

Coming from the legitimate stage where he played lead for Stella Hammerstein, and juvenile for Zelda Sears, he joined the Lubinville forces with whom he played leads for four years in such pictures as "The Nation's Peril," "The Insurrection," "The Gamblers," and "Daughters of Men." Then, for a year he directed until he was captured for the Farnham feature, "Race Suicide," which will be put on the screen late this fall, and which he played the leads in roles ranging from a prehistoric caveman to the modern citizen.

Earl Metcalfe.

His latest success is in the principal part of the Buffalo Times' forthcoming serial "The Perils of a Girl Reporter," directed by George Terwilliger.

When Mr. Metcalfe is not joining clubs, he is already a member of the Lambs, Green Room, the Screen Club, St. Augustine Yacht Club, the Theatrical Club of Jacksonville, the Masonic Fraternity, and the Actors' Fund, he employs his leisure in writing short stories of which he has several to his bank credit.

Mr. Metcalfe has just returned from a yachting trip on which he embarked upon the completion of his Buffalo Times' feature, and is resting and recuperating at the Longacre Hotel, New York, while regaining facility in saying "Right" and "Left" instead of "Starboard" and "Port."

When he has thoroughly eradicated the nautical vocabulary from his system, he will be glad to consider propositions from producing companies whose activities will keep him on dry land for a few months.

VON RITTBERG'S SIDE OF VERITAS AFFAIR.

To the Editor of the Moving Picture World.

Dear sir:

In your issue of August 12 there appeared an article, "Cincinnati's Veritas Photoplay Bankrupt," in which insinuations were made against me, and it therefore behooves me to correct the statements made and give your readers the truth of the matter. By reason thereof I hereby depose under oath as follows:

After spending both time and money in gathering data for a sociological photodrama, which was scenarioized by Mrs. Winifred von Rittberg, a professional writer, I set about organizing the Veritas Photoplay Company, going to Cincinnati where I understood certain people were interested in getting into the business.

The preliminaries over, certain contracts were agreed upon by the officers and directors of the company and ourselves, but were later, when Mrs. von Rittberg and I were in New York selecting our cast, substituted by contracts containing clauses impossible of fulfillment. We fought against signing, but their secretary, Melvin R. Short, threatened that the deal would be called off unless we did. Still we refused until we had both wired and talked by long distance to Andreas E. Burkhardt, president of the company, and received from him both verbally and by telegram, assurances of his protection, and that of all the members of the board. In spite of this, however, we had Short sign papers as secretary of the company that the specific clauses objected to would be amended to our satisfaction. Mr. Short's resignation from the company was secured shortly thereafter, however, and these papers signed by him disqualified.

Later, the president, Mr. Burkhardt, made demands upon me for some of my stock "if the company were to continue," and named a figure of from $10,000 to $15,000. I did not accede inasmuch as I had already given him and three other members of the board an agreement whereby I was to turn over to them $15,000 worth of my stock for the selling of sufficient stock to produce the picture.

Upon the completion of the picture the film and other properties were spirited out of New York by the president. Going to Cincinnati we found matters "cut and dried," and that the paragraphs we most objected to in our contracts were exercised to the letter in spite of the aforesaid assurances of "protection," and it became evident that said contracts had been framed to freeze us out.

Our contracts violated, we put our case in the hands of Cobb, Howard & Bailey, associate attorneys of the Actors' Equity Association, but there was little could be done on these contracts. The next move on the part of the company was to file bankruptcy. The petition in bankruptcy did not set a value on the only real asset the company had, namely the picture, which had meantime had been prepared for release, the cutting being done by Robert Olsson, cameraman, at his own suggestion. That it has as a result to be re-cut, is another story. The only asset of any value named was a claim against me for $11,355, an entirely false and spurious claim. Mrs. von Rittberg and I had, as a matter of fact, claims against the company for breach of contracts, unpaid salaries, and unissued stock; a settlement regarding which was paid by the company on August 18th to the amount of $1,500 cash, and $2,500 in stock—and this in spite of the fact that the company's assets as listed included a cash amount of $38 only.

The statement that appeared in this publication several weeks ago referring to me as "otherwise Jacques Jansen," is untrue in every detail and hereby repudiated. Jacques Jansen happens to have been my stage name for seventeen years, and not an "alias" as insinuated.

That the company did reach a producing stage is evidenced by the fact that it has a picture produced by me under preparation for release.

Now the directors have gotten rid of the "inventors" of the company in the well known way, and for a small settlement, they have withdrawn their bankruptcy petition, and will release the picture and otherwise resume business.

(Signed) JOHN VON RITTBERG.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 18th day of Sept. A. D. 1916. (Seal.)

Jones Sullivan,
Notary Public.

Goings On at Mutual Studios

A Multiplicity of Subjects Are Now on the Skids for an Early Launching.

REPORTS from the studios of the Mutual's releasing companies indicate that film history is being made in rapid strides these busy autumn days. News comes that Mary Miles Minter, Richard Bennett, and the inimitable comedians Kolb and Dill are giving the finishing touches to Mutual Star Productions of five-part length at the studios of the American Film Co., Inc., at Santa Barbara, and that a five-part western with Frank Borzage and Anna Little in the leading roles, is rapidly nearing completion. At the same time Orral Humphrey, the eccentric comedian, is turning out "Beauty" comedies at a dizzy rate.

The picture which is absorbing the time and attention of that dainty idol of the screen, Mary Miles Minter, is "Faith," the feature which will constitute the fourteen-year-old star's third release as a Mutual player.

Before Richard Bennett left New York City for his engagement at the American studios, he sat with Warden Thomas Mott Osborne of Sing Sing prison, at several conferences, planning the detail of the stirring drama on which he is now at work. "The Law Makers" is a preachment against capital punishment. Mr. Bennett is giving the best that is in him to this drama, which utters a visualized cry against the barbaric methods of punishment still persisted in at many prisons.

The western picture on which Anna Little and Frank Borzage, supported by a large cast, are working, is entitled "Immediate Lee." The story is by Kenneth Clarke, the short story writer, and this drama in which a gunman, quick on the trigger, plays the lead, is of the same virile character which distinguishes his work. It is a sweeping picture of cowboy life, of cattle rustlers, dance hall girls, chases and fights, and holds the spell of frontier life at the height of its picturesque existence.

At the Vogue Studios, Paddy McQuire, Rube Miller, and Ben Turpin are more than doing things with a decidedly original turn for funny pictures. "Paddy's Pot Pup," is the present Paddy McQuire picture in the making. While Paddy has the leading role, the pup will no doubt share the honors with him. The dog is one of the most clever ever used for screen work, and in the story he is the main instrument in aiding Paddy avert a robbery.

A second two-reel funny picture is being produced by Rube Miller and Ben Turpin with the aid of Lillian Hamilton and a large and competent company. Its title is "Revenge Is Sweet," and the plot develops backward in a most astonishing manner. The setting is western, and the situation are unique.

George Ovey, the Cub comedian, is still at work turning out funny pictures showing the adventures of Jerry, at the Horsley studios in Los Angeles. Booking reports show a steadily increasing demand for this young actor with his style of playing all his own.

WORLD MAN ENJOYING THE SIMPLE LIFE.

A letter from beyond the Delaware, in the heart of the Pocono Mountains, reveals the fact that one of our staff has fallen among friends. Before we recount his fall we shall have to make a scenario of his temptation.

The scene is at a famous summer hotel, and he writes: "Up among the Quakers. In this house one is not permitted to dance, to play cards—neither of which am I able to do—nor is any music allowed." One can't smoke there either, it seems, except in rooms duly appointed and set aside for the unregenerate. He likes those rooms. He says there is enough wood in the fire place to supply a poor scribe all winter. He adds: "If in one corner, now, there was a bar!" But there isn't. He has been there a whole week and has had only one of 'em.

Two things made him want to write, and thus we know how the fall came. He simply had to write; it was in him. The men in the big room were talking golf. He knows a lot about golf—all that Briggs of the Tribune teaches he knows, and nothing more. He likes Briggs so much that he didn't want other teachers butting in. He had also purchased a cigar in the barber shop—"kept out of sight in a drawer"—and it was going. He was too much afraid of the Quakers to light his pipe and English Curve Cut, and had to start the cigar. So he writes:

"Yesterday afternoon I took a long jaunt in the rain"—Just think of it, it was raining. "I passed a graveyard"—the plot thickens—"two churches and two saloons. I entered none of them." He got by both or shall we say the four? "Along came the third gin mill—and I fell. I entered the bar room. Across the bar was a big horseshoe. (That always was a sign of good luck) I remarked to the custodian of the refectory: 'I haven't seen one of those in a week.'

"'What's that,' he inquired very patronizingly, 'the horseshoe?'

"'Naw,' I said, 'the bar.'

"Can you beat that? Come to think of it, I know why he was deceived. I wore puttees, and he must have thought I was the coachman."

Chorus of the Staff: "What would George give for a 'Fireman'?"

Wayne Arey, Thanhouser Star

WAYNE AREY, who has just been promoted to stardom by Edwin Thanhouser, is one of the few actors who was not born in New York nor reared on Broadway. Rock Falls, Ill., is the town in which Wayne Arey first opened his eyes and it was there that he grew up. Mr. Arey's first theatrical experience was with small repertoire companies and he still remembers with some pride that he thrilled some of the largest town halls in the middle west with his virile impersonation of Cole Younger in "The Younger Brothers, Bank Robbers."

Wayne Arey.

Early in his theatrical life Mr. Arey gave up his part as a bandit and went into stock. His stock career was a long and honorable one and he played in companies in Minneapolis, Brooklyn, Atlanta, Toronto and Lawrence, Mass.

He attacked Broadway and was immediately successful, playing important parts in productions of David Belasco and Charles Frohman. He was a leading man in the Princess theater plays and when the Princess playlets came to an end he went into motion pictures.

Mr. Arey had his first motion picture experience with the Thanhouser company, and, particularly adapted to the work, his rise was rapid. After successful portrayals of the Judge with Gladys Hulette in "The Shine Girl," and of Dr. Deane, supporting Florence La Badie in "Saint, Devil and Woman," Mr. Arey was made a co-star with Doris Grey, the Boston beauty, who has shown such talent under the tutelage of Edwin Thanhouser.

Mr. Arey will appear with Doris Grey in "Her Beloved Enemy," directed by Ernest Warde, which will be released through the Pathe exchanges.

LILLIAN WALKER MEETS WITH SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

The popular Vitagraph star, Lillian Walker, who is affectionately known as "Dimples" throughout the motion picture world, is lying at the Mineola Hospital suffering from a general shaking up and contusions as a result of an automobile accident on the Jericho Turnpike, about three miles from Mineola, where the company were going to film some scenes in a forthcoming Blue Ribbon release.

The accident occurred when the chauffeur, Al Reinhard, swerved Miss Walker's machine in order to get out of the way of a Ford. The wheels skidded and the car turned turtle, pinning the chauffeur, Miss Walker, Wilfrid North, her director, and Bob Gaillord, who was also in the machine, beneath its weight. The players were unable to free themselves until assistance came, after which they were rushed to the Mineola Hospital, where they are now under the best of care. Director North is believed to be suffering from fractured ribs, while Miss Walker and Mr. Gaillord are generally bruised and shaken up.

Bluebirds by the Dozen

An Abundance of Attractive Features Flutter Toward the Screen.

BARRING the essential detail of announcing the scheduled dates, Bluebird Photoplays, Inc., are well prepared to supply exhibitors with an abundance of attractive features with which to combat opposition. During the summer, while Bluebird was "trying out" its policy of promoting plays instead of players, in furthering the interest of the manufacturer and the exhibitor, Bluebird's directors were busy on the West Coast producing material of a character to substantiate Bluebird's promises to the public.

"The Heritage of Hate" has been added to the October program, dated up for the fourth week, and following "The Social Buccaneer," October 16; "The Chalice of Sorrow," October 9, and "Wanted—A Home," October 2. For the fifth Monday in the month there is an abundance of subjects to select from, as witness the following references to Bluebirds that are on the wing:

Two productions by the Smalleys, featuring Lois Weber's Scotch lassie, Mary MacLaren, will be released under the title of "Devotion" and "The Girl That's Down." Miss Weber made the scenario for the last named feature from a story by Brand Whitlock, former Minister to Belgium. Ella Hall, with her new director and leading man, Rupert Julian, will also be seen in two releases—"Pawn" and "We Are French."

Louise Lovely will continue as J. Warren Kerrigan's leading woman and, following their joint appearance in "The Social Buccaneer," will be seen in the leading roles of Normand Duncan's play, "The Measure of a Man." Ruth Stonehouse will play the leading character in William Worthington's drama, inspired by Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," and will also have the lead in "Kinkaid Gambler," directed by Raymond Wells.

"The Eagle's Wing," last of several Bluebirds directed by Robert Leonard, will have Herbert Rawlinson and Grace Carlyle in the leads; "The Place Beyond the Winds" will engage Dorothy Phillips and Lon Chaney in the principal roles; Dorothy Davenport and Emory Johnson will play leads in "The Road of Destiny" and Myrtle Gonzalez and Val Paul will head the Lynn Reynolds company in "The End of the Rainbow."

From this abundance, selections will be made for the Bluebird program during the rest of the year. Meanwhile there will be three months of activity in making more features, all designed to comply fully with the Bluebird policy of play prominence instead of personally promoting the player. The national advertising campaign already under way will be extended to encompass more mediums for interesting the public in the local exhibitor's displays of Bluebirds.

THOMAS OWNS TITLE "HER HUSBAND'S WIFE."

A. E. Thomas has joined the ranks of the authors who are active in protecting the titles of their works. Some weeks ago Mr. Thomas learned that the Ivan Film Productions, Inc., was announcing a film entitled, "Her Husband's Wife," based on a scenario written by Ivan Abramson, which was being distributed through the Merit Film Company. Upon inquiry he learned that the film was in no sense the same as his play, "Her Husband's Wife," which was successfully produced by Henry Miller for two seasons, and in which Miss Laura Hope Crews, Miss Grace Elliston, Miss Mabel Bert, Bruce McRae, Orma Caldara, Robert Warwick and others appeared, and which was subsequently published by Doubleday, Page & Co. in book form.

Mr. Thomas applied to the Supreme Court for an injunction to prevent the use of his title as the title of any motion picture photoplay irrespective of the subject matter of the photoplay. The case was presented in his behalf by his attorneys, Ernst & Cane, of 31 Liberty street, and the defendants were represented by I. E. Chadwick, of 130 West 46th street.

The defendants contended that the use of the title by them was innocent and that a play bearing a similar title by one W. C. Andrews was written in 1895. and that the title had been used on the Yiddish stage in 1906. Mr. Thomas' play was being produced in shortened form in vaudeville by Miss Crews, and negotiations were pending for an English production which have now been consummated.

After hearing argument and examining briefs submitted, Judge Mullan has granted the prayer of the plaintiff and has signed an order enjoining Mr. Abramson., the Ivan Film Productions, Inc., and the Merit Film Company, from "exhibiting, performing, representing, leasing, selling or advertising in any manner or form the perfomance or intended performance, representation or production of a motion picture photoplay or any motion picture whatsoever under the title 'Her Husband's Wife,' or any simulated or colorable imitation of the said title, and from using or advertising the said title, 'Her Husband's Wife,' or any colorable imitation thereof as the title of any motion picture, or motion picture photoplay, and that they forthwith eliminate the words, 'Her Husband's Wife,' from all advertisements, circulars, announcements, letterheads, lithographs, heralds and all other printed matter in which the title appears, and to cut from or destroy the said title from all films, both negative and positive, and all prints and stills made therefrom in all places where plaintiff's said title shall appear in connection with defendant's motion picture photoplay."

N. J. Baumer

ON WEDNESDAY, September 13, at a special meeting of the board of directors of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, N. J. Baumer was elected vice-president. Mr. Baumer, for a great many years, has been president and director of the Matzene studios, Chicago, which are the largest and foremost in portrait work in America.

N. J. Baumer.

Under Mr. Baumer's personal direction during the past seven years, over one hundred thousand negatives were made of celebrities, including practically all men of national American reputation, thirty-two of the English nobility, and all of the stars and settings of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, of which he is the official photographer by appointment.

The Pathescope projecting machine was first marketed in the central west by Mr. Baumer, who organized, owned and directed the Pathescope Company of Chicago. While Mr. Baumer retains the presidency of Matzene's he has disposed of his Pathescope holdings to the new Pathescope Central Corporation, and will devote his entire efforts, time and attention to his official duties with the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company.

Mr. Baumer is a recognized authority on studio lighting and artistic illumination, and has reason to assume that his efforts in the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company's new studio will surpass his best efforts in portrait work, which made Matzene's one of the undisputed leaders in still photography.

BESSIE BARRISCALE IN NEW YORK.

Miss Bessie Barriscale, the Triangle star, has reached New York on her vacation after three years' absence in Los Angeles, and is registered at the Knickerbocker. She is combining business with the pleasure of doing a lot of shopping, however, and is to confer with Thomas H. Ince, her supervising director, in regard to autumn plans. Miss Barriscale's recent success in comedy roles has created such a demand for this type of work from her that the emotional work in which she has already won preeminence has had to be largely set aside. Miss Barriscale does not want to cease emoting altogether, but, on the other hand, as she explained, making people chuckle is the jolliest ever. It's a frightful dilemma, but promises not to spoil the vacation.

VIRGINIA FOLTZ JOINS UNIVERSAL.

Virginia Foltz, who in private life is the wife of Leslie D. Martin, wealthy real estate man of Los Angeles, has joined the film colony at Universal City. She is the daughter of Clara Shortridge Foltz, the famous woman lawyer and the niece of Samuel M. Shortridge, of San Francisco, one of the leading attorneys of the Pacific Coast.

Signal's New Serial

Helen Holmes the Star and J. P. MacGowan Director of "A Lass of the Lumberlands"—Released Through Mutual, Commencing October 23.

THE Signal Film Corporation has ready for release October 23 a new motion picture serial, entitled "A Lass of the Lumberlands." It will feature the popular favorite, Helen Holmes, star of "The Girl and the Game." Like other Signal Film Corporation's productions, the serial when completed will be released through the Mutual Film Corporation's sixty-eight exchanges.

"A Lass of the Lumberlands" is in fifteen chapters of two reels each. Treating as it does of a theme and an industry wholly new to motion picture patrons, it should prove an extraordinary attraction. E. Alexander Powell is the author of the story, which is filled with action and thrills, while the direction is in the capable hands of J. P. MacGowan, who was responsible for the other Helen Holmes pictures.

"In announcing to the public the release of the new serial," said President S. S. Hutchinson, of the Signal Film Corporation, "we feel that we are presenting a screen subject that will not only exceed all previous offerings in magnitude, interest and thrills, but one which will prove very entertaining and interesting in its portrayal of mammoth industry. As the title, 'A Lass of the Lumberlands,' indicates, the story is laid in the great North Woods, amid the mighty sequoia, pines and cedars that makes this region famous. As the story progresses the screen will actually illustrate every detail of operation in the great lumbering industry.

"All who see 'A Lass of the Lumberlands' on the screen are sure to gain a comprehensive idea of what the great lumbering industry means to this country.

"Of course," continued President Hutchinson, "the story is not primarily an educational feature, but an interesting, splendidly acted spectacular chapter play. Best of all, it has been actually filmed in the real lumberlands. There is nothing staged or artificial about it from first to last. Every chapter of the entire fifteen is crammed with action, and each chapter demonstrates the daring of the fearless film star, Helen Holmes."

From the standpoint of advertising possibilities, it is something really new in pictures. The fact that the story has the lumbering industry as its theme and that its scenes are laid in the big timber regions will give the exhibitor innumerable opportunities for odd and unusual displays in his lobby and for outdoor display on the street.

ARROW'S NEW SERIES.

"The Bishop's Son" is the title chosen for the first of a series of special seven and eight reel productions to be made by the Arrow Film Corporation at its studios in Yonkers, Scene from "The Bishop's Son" (Arrow).

N. Y., which, it is anticipated, will be finished within a fortnight.

This first Arrow special feature is also Arrow's first from a story by Hall Caine.

The picture is based on Mr. Caine's own dramatic version of "The Deemster," which his son, Derwent Hall Caine, produced and played in on the English stage under the title of "The Bishop's Son."

In Arrow's film version of "The Bishop's Son," Derwent Hall Caine plays the same role which he created and made famous throughout England.

"The Deemster" (on which "The Bishop's Son" is based) is laid in the Isle of Man in the years 1700 to 1710. It is therefore a costume play of a period of extremely picturesque garb.

After a careful search of all available locations by Howell Hansel, it was decided to utilize the rolling turf and the steep cliffs of Block Island to stage the production. The home of a multi-millionaire on Fort Washington avenue, New York City, was secured as the Deemster's residence, and an equally imposing mansion for Bishop's Court, the historic abode of the Bishop of Man.

A special mound, an exact counterpart of the famous Tynwald Hill, the ancient open-air court of judgment on the Isle of Man, was constructed at Fox Hills, Staten Island, and more than 800 extra people were used there in the trial scenes.

The costumes for Arrow's film version of "The Bishop's Son" were brought over from England by Derwent Hall Caine, and are identical with those used in the famous London production of this play.

Helen Arnold, Prize Winner

HELEN ARNOLD, the little Louisville (Ky.) girl, who was selected by William A. Brady as the most beautiful photographic type he had ever seen, and who was one of the winning candidates in the Photoplay Magazine's Beauty and Brains Contest, has become a permanent player in the roster of the Frohman Amusement Corporation and will make her first screen appearance as "Viola" in that company's production of "The Witching Hour." She will be in support of C. Aubrey Smith and Jack Sherrill and is now at work under Director George Irving.

Helen Arnold.

Helen Arnold entered competition against twelve thousand girls and because of her photographic propensities, and her intelligent correspondence, was selected as one of the winners.

Upon arrival in New York, four weeks ago Miss Arnold began visiting various studios hoping to gather some insight into the work before her. At the Frohman Flushing studio she was used in a court room scene and attracted the attention of George Irving, who was then engaged making "The Conquest of Canaan." A test was made and after a few lessons in poise and pantomime, Miss Arnold went through several difficult scenes with Jack Sherrill. Result—she was immediately engaged by Mr. Sherrill and will remain definitely with the Frohman company. A legal release was secured by Miss Arnold from the World Film Corporation, on September 9.

She is the typical Southern beauty. Her brown eyes, golden brown hair and perfectly contoured facial features photographed like a cameo. Slender, graceful and dignified, Miss Arnold's future is almost an assured fact. In such pictures as she is cast for, Miss Arnold will play opposite Jack Sherrill. The couple will prove ideal opposites.

HENRY SIEGEL JOINS SELZNICK.

Henry Siegel, who recently made an enviable record as New Jersey salesman for Bluebird, was engaged last week by Sol. H. Berman, New York Exchange Manager of Lewis J. Senznick Enterprises Inc., to handle the mosquito belt for Selznick Pictures. Siegel began his career in the film busines with the World Film Corporation in Pittsburg, transferring his activities to the East when given charge of the Newark branch. He resigned from World Film to go with Bluebird, where he put that company's pictures on the New Jersey map so ably as to attract the attention of Mr. Selznick and Mr. Berman.

General Film Program

Formidable List of Popular Stars Will Be Seen in Releases for the Fall and Winter.

GENERAL Film Company's recent announcement that its fall and winter program would be to an exhibitor the equivalent of a certified check was followed last week by a statement giving in detail General Film Service program for week October 2-10, inclusive. This is the first program announced under General Film Service for autumn and winter.

General Film Service certainly gets off with a flying start. If their program is to be judged by the calibre and number of stars featured in short-length dramas and comedies and advance press criticisms of their dramas reviewed to date there is unusual strength in the films.

There are twenty-eight film notables in the week's program as follows: Marguerite Clayton, Patrick Calhoun, Tom Mix, "Plump" and "Runt," Harry Myers, Rosemary Theby, Eugenie Besserer, Charles West, Gordon Gray, Virginia Hammond, Lillian Gish, Ivy Close, "Pokes" and "Jabs," Harry Beaumont, Gertrude Glover, Josephine Earle, Jackie Saunders, Frank Mayo, "Ham" and "Bud," Ethel Teare, Marin Sais, True Boardman, Helen Gibson, Millicent Evans and Lionel Barrymore.

To Selig goes the distinction of showing the first picture on the fall program, October 2, "In the House of the Chief," a three reel drama presenting Eugenie Besserer and Charles West. This will be followed by a one act comedy, "Making An Impression," a Vitagraph production. The Selig-Tribune always a feature will be even stronger during this fall and winter if we are to judge by the offering of the 79 chapter. "An Indian's Loyalty," with Lillian Gish in the titular role, a Biograph reissue, will be the last picture screened that day.

For the following day's first picture a two-part drama, Essanay selected two of their strongest stars, Marguerite Clayton and Patrick Calhoun, who will be seen in "An Old-Fashioned Girl." This will be followed by a Kalem one-part comedy, "One Step Too Far," featuring "Ham" and "Bud" and Ethel Teare.

The fable of "The Kid Who Shifted His Ideals to Golf and Finally Became a Baseball Fan and Took the Only Known Cure," an Essanay one reel comedy featuring one of George Ade's noteworthy stories, leads the program for Wednesday, October 4. "A Grain of Suspicion," a one-reel comedy, presenting Vim's latest fun makers, Harry Myers and Rosemary Theby, will follow and then will be shown the ninth episode of "The Girl from 'Frisco" in two reels, "The Web of Guilt," in which Marin Sais and True Boardman have achieved distinctive success. Biograph's three-part drama, "Under the Gaslight," a famous picture taken from an equally famous speaking stage play, in which Lionel Barrymore and Millicent Evans are featured, will be then shown.

Selig-Tribune and a Vim one-part comedy featuring "Plump" and "Runt" in "Royal Blood," will occupy the screen Thursday, October 5.

Jackie Saunders and Frank Mayo will be seen in a Knickerbocker Star Feature drama in two parts, "The Better Instinct," the first picture shown Friday, October 11, and this will be followed by a Kalem one-reel comedy, "Stolen Plumage," presenting Ivy Close. Then another comedy, a Vitagraph production, "A Vampire Out of Work," presenting Josephine Earle, and the day's program will be brought to a close with still another comedy, this time a Vim one-reel production, "Strictly Business," featuring "Pokes" and "Jabbs."

Essanay's three-act drama, "His Little Wife," presenting Harry Beaumont and Gertrude Glover, will be the first picture shown Saturday, October 7. This will be followed by a Vitagraph production in three parts, "Cantrell's Madonna," with Virginia Hammond and Gordon Gray featured. Then will come an episode of the "Hazards of Helen" series by Kalem, "The Blocked Track," with Helen Gibson in the limelight. A Selig one-act Tom Mix drama, "The Canbyhill Outlaws," will close the program for the week.

McCLURE PICTURES ENGAGES THEODORE MARSTON.

Theodore Marston, formerly of the Vitagraph Company, has been engaged by McClure Pictures to direct the production of "Sloth," the fourth play in the McClure series of seven five-reel feature plays, "Seven Deadly Sins." Mr. Marston's work will supplant that of the other McClure directors, who are engaged upon other plays in this feature series. Charlotte Walker is to be the star of "Sloth."

Wells-Hawk on Road

Starts on Tour of Advance Work for the Newest Mary Pickford Picture.

WELLS HAWKS, personal representative for Mary Pickford, following the completion of her first picture for Artcraft Pictures Corporation, "Less Than the Dust," has started on a continent-wide trip to blaze the trail through the newspapers. This trip is a sample of the indirect co-operation of Artcraft with the exhibitor. Mr. Hawks will not work with the exhibitor at all, but will pile up a volume of personal publicity for Mary Pickford which will be followed by the special campaign arranged to exploit "Less Than the Dust."

His route carries Mr. Hawks south. He left on Monday for Philadelphia, going thence to Baltimore, Washington, Richmond, Atlanta, Birmingham, New Orleans and Dallas, according to his schedule. From Texas he will turn north and work east from Kansas City, visiting St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit, Toronto, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse. In all this territory Mr. Hawks has a host of friends made during the days when he toured the country for Charles Frohman, Ringling Brothers' Circus and other prominent attractions.

While on tour for Miss Pickford he will visit the Artcraft exchanges in Philadelphia, Washington, Atlanta, Dallas, Kansas City, Chicago, Detroit, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh. He will also be in touch with the newly-formed Artcraft Pictures Corporation, Ltd., in Toronto, the birthplace of Mary Pickford, which is the centre of distribution of her new superior productions in Canada. He is expected to return with a budget of recommendations for achieving perfect co-operation between Artcraft, the branch managers and the exhibitors whom they serve.

Strand Books "The Chattel" for Week

Vitagraph's First E. H. Sothern Release Tops Bill at Big New York Picture Theater.

AS this announcement appears in print, the Strand theater, New York, will be showing Vitagraph's first E. H. Sothern release, an original story entitled "The Chattel," written by Paul West, directed by Frederick Thomson.

Mitchell H. Mark, president and general manager of the Strand Theater Corporation, switched the announced programme for the week beginning September 24 in order to headline the Strand's bill with Mr. Sothern's first appearance in motion pictures. Not only did he order a switch made in the program to include this Greater Vitagraph production, but he also issued instructions to launch an immediate campaign of advertising more extensive than any the Strand has ever undertaken on behalf of any previous picture.

Generous display advertising space appeared in the English and German newspapers of Greater New York this week announcing to the public the treat in store for them. Harold E. Edel, managing director of the Strand theater, concurred with Mr. Mark's judgment as to the advisability of revamping the Strand's bill so as to include Mr. Sothern's picture upon it.

PARAMOUNT'S PITTSBURGH EXCHANGE OPENS NEW BRANCH.

Because of the increase of business handled by the Famous Players Film Service, Inc., distributors of Paramount Pictures in Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan, it has been necessary for them to open another branch exchange in their territory. The new exchange will be in Cleveland, Ohio, with offices at 501 and 502 Sincere Building, Cleveland, Ohio.

Harry W. Irons, formerly connected with the Kunsky theatrical enterprises of Detroit, and later connected with the Pittsburgh exchange, will assume personal direction of the Cleveland office. Mr. Irons is very well known in the film business and has had a wonderfully wide experience.

C. G. Kingsley, the present manager of the Fox Film Corporation at Cincinnati, Ohio, has been appointed the branch manager of the Famous Players Film Service, Inc. Mr. Kingsley, who is a well known figure in the motion picture business in the Middle West, will assume his new responsibilities on September 21, succeeding R. C. Schmidt, who will be the company's special traveling representative from the Pittsburgh branch. The new manager has had a wide experience in the film industry and during the past year he was in charge of the Fox interests in Detroit and Cincinnati.

Comments on the Films

EXCLUSIVELY BY OUR OWN STAFF

General Film Company

THE FABLE OF THE SLIM GIRL WHO TRIED TO KEEP A DATE THAT WAS NEVER MADE (Essanay), Sept. 14.—Sound philosophy is presented humorously in this one-reel fable. The moral is: "If the woman thinks he's all right, you keep on your own side of the fence." The moral is drawn by the story of the country girl who, waiting for her ideal, marries a lazy young fellow. He dies, and she marries the owner of the general store.

PAYMENT IN FULL (Vim), Sept. 15.—Pokes and Jabbs do several new stunts in a gymnasium in this one-reel knockabout comedy. Pokes puts one over on Jabbs when he dresses himself as Jabbs and gets rid of Old Moneybags who also wants to marry Jabbs daughter. Pokes gets the mortgage, though, and also gets the girl. The cast: Robert Burns, Walter Stull, Ethel Burton and Frank Hanson.

IN JUNGLE WILDS (Selig), Sept. 16.—A rather melodramatic one-reeler. The work of the wild animals is especially good. Bryce, a broker, brings his daughter to South Africa after he has served a prison term. He is induced to go on a hunting trip and sends his daughter's fiance into the jungle to get rid of him, hoping that he will be the victim of the wild beasts. The youth gets out of the jungle just in time to rescue the girl from the smuggler. In the cast are Dick La Reno, Miss McDonald, George Larkin and Will Machin. Produced by L. W. Chaudt.

THE UNVEILING (Biograph), Sept. 18.—In this one-reel reissue Mabel Normand and Robert Harron are featured in an entertaining drama. The show girl (Mabel Normand) determines to win the boy so that she may obtain his money. The boy's mother is heartbroken, and is just about to attempt self-destruction when she is prevented by a friend, who plans to open the boy's eyes to the true character of the object of his affections. The mother pretends suicide because her fortune is lost, and the show girl deserts the boy.

THE SELIG-TRIBUNE, NO. 75 (Selig), Sept. 18.—Young women of Sargeant School at aquatic sports and other exercises, Peterboro, N. Y.; Duke of Norfolk and Sir Edward Henry inspect constables; four girls, winners of "beauty and brains" contest, Chicago; "Little Bill," actor cleans elephant with whisk broom, Chicago; tons of melons consumed on Melon Day, Turlock, Cal.; wheeling across the country with big catch at Gray's Harbor, Wash.; "Chick" Evans wins national amateur golf title from Robert A. Gardner, Haverford, Pa.; with the British troops in the Orient—commissary department at work.

A PERFECT DAY (Vitagraph), Sept. 18.—This one-reel comedy is rather slow in action, but contains humor, nevertheless. A man and his wife plan a wonderful day in the country to celebrate their tenth wedding anniversary. They invite their relatives to attend. What happens in the trolley car, at the picnic and in the sailboat, though, is far from the couple's dreams of a perfect day. In the cast are found George O'Donnell, Miriam Beeker, Thomas Reynolds and George Ford.

THE MUD CURE (Kalem), Sept. 19.—Bud's toothache leads to his awful dream in this comedy. The dentist's daughter, while administering gas, flirts with Ham and the job is bungled, which accounts for the dream in which Bud sees himself and Ham as attendants at a mud bath resort where the doctor and his daughter come for treatment. Lloyd V. Hamilton (Ham), Bud Duncan (Bud), Ethel Teare and A. Edmondson are in the cast.

THE HONEYMOON CAR (Vim Feature Comedy), Sept. 20.—This reel falls far below the high mark set by Harry Meyers and Rosemary Theby in previous Vim Feature Comedies. In this number the newlyweds are forced to take a chaperon on their honeymoon trip in an automobile. The chaperon is made to sit on the gasoline tank because the cap has been lost. A tramp holds up the bride and the chaperon when the bridegroom goes for gas. He is caught, however, and the honeymoon car at last arrives at the uncle's house.

THE SELIG-TRIBUNE, NO. 76 1916 (Selig), Sept. 21.—Five thousand Elks parade in celebration at Newark, N. J.; National Service School instills patriotism in young women, Narragansett Pier; Mme. Albertina Rasch and members of ballet interpret dance in surf, Galveston; University of Pennsylvania football squad hold preliminary practise, Windber, Pa.; tons of supplies rushed to front in motor vans, Verdun, France; Duquesne, Pa. (steel city), celebrates 50th anniversary of its incorporation; forest fires rage at San Jose, Cal.; 5,000 celebrate California's admission to Union at Santa Rosa, Cal.; New York car strikers hold meeting at Union Square.

LOVE AND DUTY (Vim), Sept. 21.—Plump and Runt as soldiers in this film are funny. Criss-cross love affairs between Private Plump, Lieutenant Runt, the colonel's daughter and the pet of the regiment, lead to complications. Plump is sentenced to die, but the pet aids him to escape. An explosion throws the colonel into the water and Plump rescues him. The hero is given the hand of the pet and everybody, even Runt, is happy. The cast is made up with Babe Hardy, Billy Ruge, Florence McLaughlin and Ray Godfrey.

THAT PESKY PARROT (Kalem), Sept. 22.—A lively reel in which a near elopement, entailing some wild riding, takes place. The parrot, belonging to a newly-wedded couple, starts things when the husband comes home and the bird makes him believe his wife has run away. Ivy Close and Henry Murdoch are the supposed elopers. A review was printed in the issue of September 23, page 1960.

DEFYING DEATH (Kalem), Sept. 23.—In this number of the "Hazards of Helen" series, the girl operator at Lone Point (Helen Gibson) shoots under a moving train while lying face down on an electric hand car. She does this in the course of her successful pursuit of a man who attempts to prevent the railroad from getting a new franchise, and who has stolen important documents. This picture was reviewed in the issue of September 23, page 1960.

General Film Company Specials

THE GREATER OBLIGATION (Essanay), Sept. 12.—A strong two-reel drama, well played by a cast headed by Edward Arnold, and including Marion Lyndston and Betty Brown. The story evolves around the baby of Mildred Bane and Roger Willard, which has been adopted by Willard and the girl he married. Willard does not know the waif is his own child. After his wife's death, Willard is accidentally brought face to face with Mildred. She kidnaps the baby, not knowing it is her own, for several years have passed. An extremely dramatic situation occurs when Willard and Mildred learn that the baby is their own. They are reconciled.

THE WOMAN ALWAYS PAYS (Essanay), Sept. 16.—This is a good three-reel drama in which Lillian Drew and Sydney Ainsworth are assigned difficult roles which they do well. The production is a screened narrative of a mountain lawyer who betrays the girl whose love he has won. Fearing the girl's uncle, the lawyer steals his child when it is a year old. He goes to the city and becomes a respected man. His daughter has grown up, and the mother of the girl has become an adventuress. For revenge she endeavors to have the girl ruined as she was. The shock of learning that she is the mother of the girl she wanted to sacrifice kills the mother.

THE THORN AND THE ROSE (Vitagraph—Broadway Star Feature), Sept. 16.—The old, but ever new, theme of the triumph of a good woman's love over that of a butterfly is used in making this an interesting and compelling three-reel drama. The story is well connected and runs smoothly. It treats of a successful young artist who marries a poor girl—the "Lily." The artist, who has exiled himself from his former friends, goes to the city for a visit and there meets the "Rose"—who lures him from his home. She proves false and the man goes back to his wife and baby. In the cast are found John Ralee, Shirley Moore, Grace Blakely and William Lyttel.

INTO THE NORTHLAND (Selig), Sept. 18.—An acceptable three-reel drama with a surprising and delightful denouement. This number will strengthen any program. Most of the interest in the story is centered on Harriet Collins (Fritzi Brunette), who, disguised as a boy, goes to British Columbia in search of her husband. She is forced to earn her living as a handy boy around a general store in a rough mining settlement. Her sex is not discovered until she collapses and, attended by Moll McGuire, one-time owner of a gambling den, gives birth to a baby. The husband for whom she has gone in search has struck it rich and returns to the settlement on the day that the baby is born. The cast is composed of Fritzi Brunette, Leo Pierson, Lillian Hayward, Harry Lonsdale and James Bradbury.

WHEN JUSTICE WON (Essanay), Sept. 19.—A two-reel number with enough dramatic material to hold interest. A young convict is made the guardian of an orphan child, and from the time of his escape leads an upright life. When the girl-child is grown the ex-convict is a respected man of affairs, but is persecuted and blackmailed by a man who knows of his escape. A marriage between the ward of the ex-convict and a pal of the blackmailer is thwarted, and a pardon from the governor leads the ward to want to be more to her guardian than a ward. Those in the cast are Marguerite Clayton, Sydney Ainsworth, John Lorenz, Ulrich Haupt and John Cossar.

STRONGHEART (Biograph), Sept. 20.—An interesting three-part version of the famous play in which Robert Edeson starred. In the picture, Henry Walthall presents the title role with fine effect and is ably supported by Blanche Sweet, Alan Hale, Lionel Barrymore, Gertrude Robinson and Antonio Moreno. Reviewed in the issue of Sept 2.

THE GUN RUNNERS (Kalem), Sept. 20.—No. 7 of "The Girl From

Frisco' series. An attempt to start a revolution in South America forms the plot of this two-reel chapter. Barbara Brent (Marin Sais) learns enough of the secrets of the plotters to spoil their plans, although they attempt to take her life. True Boardman plays opposite Miss Sais. A full review can be found in the issue of September 23, page 1960.

THE WAY OF PATIENCE (Essanay), Sept 23 -Nell Craig and Ernest Maupain appear in the leading roles of this three-reel photoplay, which, for story, acting and photography, merits unstinted praise. The story is of a country Quaker maiden with a stern father, who flees from home to the city, finds there a worthy husband and flees from him back home, because she thinks she is too wild for him. Wholesome, with strong heart interest.

Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.

WANTED—A HOME, Oct. 2.—A pleasing five-part production written and produced by the Smalleys. Mary MacLaren is the star, and gives a very fine interpretation of the character of Mina Rogers, a homeless girl, who impersonated a nurse, and was by the force of circumstances almost driven on the rocks. A full review of the picture appears elsewhere.

International Film Service, Inc.

HEARST-INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL, NO. 75, 1916, Sept. 19.—Russian horde arrives in Balkans in Allies' offensive; ten tons of muscat grapes eaten at vine fete, Escondido, Cal.; American and British teams play exciting game of auto polo at Detroit; Traction strikers meet in Union Square, N. Y.; test shell crashes through house at Indian Head, Md.; training ship Ranger arrives back in Charlestown, Mass.; 500 prize sheep on farm of W. B. Kendall, at Bowdoin, Me.; First U. S. Engineers make pontoon bridge on Rio Grande at Laredo, Tex.; bevy of British beauties arrive for New York theatrical company; British troops clear away wrecked Zeppelin near London; storm wrecks U. S. cruiser Memphis, Santo Domingo.

HEARST-INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL, NO. 76, 1916, Sept. 22.—Aides of Generals Funston and Green review Illinois and Kansas National Guard at border; captive Elk herd roams in woods of Queens County Park, Brooklyn; England gives military funeral to Germans killed in Zeppelin; range-finding camera latest equipment of military aviators, Hempstead, L. I.; King George and Queen Mary watch life guards' contest, Windsor Park, England; Governor Charles S. Whitman casts primary ballot; alligator farm at Jacksonville, Fla.; Seth Low honored at funeral, New York; fall and winter fashions; Russian army in Balkans cheered along streets of Salonika, Greece; merchant submarine Deutschland arrives in Bremen, Germany.

THE FLOWER OF FAITH (International), Oct. 2.—Jane Grey is featured in this five-reel drama, which visualizes the romance of an itinerant evangelist's daughter and an unbeliever. Faith triumphs when a bolt of lightning saves an innocent man from being lynched. This is the first of the Golden Eagle Features. A full review is printed on another page of this issue.

Metro Pictures Corporation.

THE LIGHT OF HAPPINESS (Columbia), Sept. 4.—Viola Dana in the character of Tangletop, is the leading member of the cast in this five-reel drama, written and produced by John W. Collins. It is a good middle grade subject, and is well acted. A longer account is printed on another page of this issue.

Mutual Film Corporation

MUTUAL WEEKLY, NO. 90, Sept. 20.—Interesting items of this number are the opening of the football season at Boston, Mass., a demonstration at Sargeant Summer School for women physical culture instructors, the Duke of Connaught reviewing war heroes at Toronto, Can., National tractor demonstration at Madison, Wis.; first annual bathing girl pageant at Oakland, Cal.

MOVIE STRUCK (Cub), Sept. 22.—In this characteristic number, featuring George Ovey and Claire Anderson, Jerry and the girl elope in an interesting manner. They then visit a moving picture concern, where Jerry amuses himself by throwing bricks at the manager. The usual knockabout situations follow. The number is one of average strength.

REEL LIFE, NO. 21 (Gaumont), Sept. 24.—This number is exceptionally entertaining. It contains a pleasing study of the hands, illustrating the meaning of the various lines, according to the science of palmistry. The views showing the manner in which white leghorn chickens are raised are both interesting and informative.

THE DEACON'S CARD (Beauty), Sept. 26.—A moderately entertaining farce comedy in which the deacon, who is at the head of an anti-gambling league, gets in wrong while trying to steer his daughter's matrimonial bark. A pack of cards, dropped from the pocket of the sweetheart, placed in the deacon's pocket after the young man has been ordered from the house, spills on the floor at an inopportune moment. Rather amusing.

SEE AMERICA FIRST (Gaumont), Sept. 27.—An unusually charming number of this series, entitled "The Lake Placid Region of the Adirondacks," and exhibiting many beautiful views of Lake Placid, the White Face mountain range, Ausable River, etc. On the same reel with this subject is a cartoon comedy entitled "Golf."

Mutual Film Corporation Specials.

FANTOMAS, NO. 3 (Gaumont), Sept. 20.—"The Mysterious Finger Print" is the title of this number, which proves to be quite as interesting as the previous numbers. As the serial progresses the plot thickens. Detective Juve, who was supposed to have been killed as a result of an explosion reappears, and affords a laugh in the closing scene by his exasperated manner when Fantomas again slips from his very finger tips.

THE LAND O' LIZARDS (Mutual Masterpicture), Sept. 21.—An entertaining five-part production featuring Frank Borzage and Anna Little. The plot centers about the rivalry of two different parties in connection with a vein of gold known to exist on the Bar C ranch. Frank Borzage, in the role of the Stranger, does unusually attractive work. An excellent western number.

THE FATHER OF HER CHILD (Centaur), Sept. 23.—A two-reel subject with an Enoch Arden theme, featuring Ethel Calvert, T. H. Gowland and Al Blake. The country girl has choice between two lovers, a young blacksmith and the village dude. She loves the latter and marries him. He turns out to be a worthless fellow and the part is well played by Al Blake. He finally runs away to sea, where he becomes king of a cannibal island. Later he turns up to find the girl married to the blacksmith, with a child. She still loves the worthless fellow, but chooses the blacksmith. This has a quite, natural development and the character work is appealing. It holds the interest strongly throughout.

THE MANAGER OF THE B. & A. (American-Signal), Sept. 25.—Rarely does a photoplay achieve the technical strength shown in this five-reel subject, based on a novel by Vaughn Kester. While the closing scenes leave much to the imagination, there is no disappointment, for the intent is obvious to any observer that the hero gets the girl and brings the branch road to eventual success. As a live, engrossing picture of railroad life, with knowledge and authority in every scene, we have not seen anything better than this. Helen Holmes, L. D. Maloney, Thomas G. Lingham and the others in the cast do excellent work. The photography and action are pleasing throughout. In spite of a rather abrupt close, this is an excellent subject.

FANTOMAS, NO. 4 (Gaumont), Sept. 28.—"The Crook Detective" is the title of this number of the serial. In it Juve is arrested on suspicion that he may be himself Fantomas. A masked ball given by the Grand Duchess Alexandra is the scene of mysterious happenings among which is the murder of one of the guests. Juve is also found on the following morning in his prison bed drugged and with a knife thrust in his arm.

POULTRY A LA MODE (Vogue), Oct. 1.—A two-part comedy which has very little point. A couple of men living side by side are occupied in trying to raise ducks and geese. Sitting side by side in the poultry yard they fall asleep and dream that their poultry wander to the swimming pool of a questionable Oriental resort. Here the poultry turns to the sort of human beings that on Broadway are known as "chickens." Not a very commendable film.

ARABELLA'S PRINCE (Thanhouser), Oct. 6.—A two-reel story picturing the way in which an old maid finally wins the man of her choice, who happens to be an old salt living next door. She writes a fervid poem and sends it adrift in a bottle. The old salt finds it, but throws it back to sea. A small boy, reading fairy stories, finds it and writes the old maid a letter. She invites him to call, with the whole town watching the course of events. The old salt leads a rescue party, thinking she has fallen into the clutches of a married man. This contains some good character work and tells a rather slow but amusing story.

Paramount Pictures Corporation.

PARAMOUNT PICTOGRAPHS (Paramount), September.—"Capturing Wild Oysters" is the first subject on the reel. "The Garden City Fever" shows the new movement by the children of New York to turn waste places into useful gardens or beauty spots. "Converting Wood Into Pulp" shows the making of print paper in all the different processes. "Priscilla and the Pesky Fly" is a study in animated clay.

ASHES OF EMBERS (Famous Players), Sept. 21.—Pauline Frederick plays a dual role in this five-reel photoplay. The picture is strongly realistic and offers Miss Frederick two widely contrasted characters. A longer review is printed on another page of the present issue.

THE QUEST OF LIFE (Famous Players), Sept. 25.—Maurice and Florence Walton, the dancers, are starred in this five-reel picture. The scenario is a very unskilful piece of work. It serves to introduce several of the best known dances of the stars, but offers very few opportunities for acting to anyone in the cast. Miss Walton does surprisingly well under the circumstances. Maurice does the best he can.

BOBBY BUMPS STARTS A LODGE (Paramount), Sept. 28.—This one-reel Bray cartoon shows Bobby, his pet goat and his little colored friend. Bobby starts a lodge of his own and invites Sambo to join. He expects to have great fun with the boy, and so does the goat, but the little negro fools them both, and Billy has to admit that he is the goat. Full of humor and good drawing. "Experiments in Crystallization" is on the same reel.

A SCOTCH-IRISH REEL (Burton Holmes), Oct. 2.—Interesting views throughout Scotland includes The Isle of Skye, Fingal's Cave, the Isle of Iona, and other famous localities. The Irish views show a review of Belfast Volunteers, Seaforth Highlanders on parade at Dublin, and many other scenes in the land of Robert Emmett. The reel is taken with all the Burton Holmes skill.

THE INTRIGUE (Morosco), Oct. 2.—A five-reel Pallas Picture melodrama with Elnore Ulrich. Its hero has invented a war machine to kill distant enemies. It is not an artistic picture, for though ably acted, the plot is weak and commonplace. A longer review will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

LES PYRENEES CATALANES (Pathe), Oct. 1.—This number will be found to be a very delightful one, presenting scenes of great beauty in the Pyrenees mountains. This film has also been attractively colored.

TROPICAL BIRDS (Pathe), Oct. 1.—An instructive study of parrots, nicely colored and arranged. The various kinds of brilliantly plumaged parrots that frequent the tropics are shown.

LUKE'S SPEEDY CLUB LIFE (Rolin), Oct. 1.—An amusing farce-comedy in which Luke makes his entrance and exit as a bell boy at a certain club. The business of this picture is in many instances original. The fun is clean, and the action not overdone.

Pathe Exchange, Inc. Specials

THE SHIELDING SHADOW (Astra), Oct. 1.—The first number of this new, interesting Pathe serial, which features Grace Darmond, Ralph Kellard and Leon Barup, is entitled "Treasure Trove," and introduces the main characters of the story and the incidents upon which it is based. Leontine, daughter of Stephen Walcott, who is bordering on financial ruin is in love with Jerry Carson, a young writer, while her father strenuously opposes the match and tries to force her to marry a Spaniard believed by him to be wealthy. The destruction of the Walcott yacht with the author aboard forms a thrilling incident which leads up to the forging of a note purported to be from Jerry, and the death of one Diego, a tool of Navarro's, for which Jerry is arrested and sent to prison. A review of "The Shielding Shadow" will be found elsewhere.

THE GRIP OF EVIL, No. 12 (Pathe), Oct. 1.—"Into the Pit" is the title of this number, which has to do with efforts to accomplish regeneration in various individuals. John Burton, lured into a den of thieves and ill-doers, and rescued eventually through the manipulations of one of their number, meets a young woman whose life has been spent in uplift work in the slums, with the usual result.

THE MOODS OF MEDORA (Pathe), Oct. 1.—A two-part re-issue, in which the feminine lead is called upon to play a double role, and interprets both characters attractively. A woman with a past marries a young man of good character, and has a child, which she despises because it hinders her from returning periodically, as before, to her former companions. A young woman, who is her exact double in appearance, is hired by her to impersonate her in her home while she returns to her old haunts. An interesting number.

Triangle Film Corporation.

PUPPETS (Triangle-Komedy), Aug. 13.—A rather dull study in black and white of the adventures of Pierrot and Columbine, with De Wolf Hopper as Pantaloon.

THE WINNING PUNCH (Keystone), Aug. 20.—One of the most amusing little farces shown in a long time, chiefly dependent on a ring contest.

HIS LYING HEART (Keystone), Aug. 20.—A Ford Sterling farce of domestic difficulty, only mildly amusing.

Unity Sales Corporation

YELLOW MENACE (Episode No. 6), Oct. 2.—A most sensational incident is the torturing of the Princess Najla on the double-scissors rack. A longer review will be found in our issue of September 9, 1916, on page 1684.

Universal Film Mfg. Company

THE ETERNAL WAY (Big U), Oct. 5.—A mountain story by Clifford Elfeldt, featuring Vola Smith, Mae Hill, Chas. Gunn and G. Raymond Nye. Vola Smith plays the part of a wild, untamed girl, who finally learns the meaning of true love. The plot is fairly strong and the scenic effects are unusually attractive.

PEN AND INKLINGS IN AND AROUND JERUSALEM (Powers), Oct. 5.—Hy Mayer has used his artistic skill in elaborating an entertaining and instructive series of pictures taken in the Holy Land. He brings out the manners and customs, as well as the humorous side, of the country. This makes altogether a good educational offering.

A CHARMING VILLAIN (Victor), Oct. 6.—Smiling Billy Mason, Chas. Dorian and Madge Kirby appear in this burlesque on the old plot of the country girl lured to the city. It is quite entertaining when it gets under way and has some smiles in the closing scenes.

Universal Film Mfg. Co. Specials

ASHES OF REMEMBRANCE (Rex), Oct. 1.—A two-reel number, by Allen J. Holubar, in which an old man tells the story of his early mistake to a quarreling young couple. The tale reverts back to Civil War days, and pictures of battle scenes are included. At the close the young couple make up their differences. This method of presenting a story has been used so frequently that it is no longer very novel. Some of the closing scenes are too sentimental. The number as a whole is one of only fair strength.

UNDER SUSPICION (Red Feather), Oct. 2.—A five-reel number, adapted from a story by E. Phillips Oppenheim and directed by George Loane Tucker. Douglas Munro heads the English company appearing in this. He appears as a bland, smiling villain, who baffles the detectives of Scotland Yard at every turn. He is suspected of all sorts of crime, from counterfeiting to murder, but no evidence can be found against him. The story is original and interesting. The villain turns out to be an American who escaped from his suffragette wife. His daughter, Eve, portrayed by a strikingly pretty girl, Laura Cowle, helps along the mystery and adds a love story. The treatment is light and humorous.

BORROWED PLUMES (Universal Special Feature), Oct. 2.—No. 8 of the "Timothy Dobbs" series. Carter De Haven again appears to the best advantage in this number. He gets a job as ticket seller for a moving picture house and loses it because he stops to flirt with a pretty girl. Later he dresses as a girl himself and gets the job again, only to have the deception discovered. He then enters the movies still dressed as a girl. The number has laughs strung along all through it. Robert Milash and Marcia Moore also appear.

THE GIRL AND THE BANDIT (Universal Special Feature), Oct. 2.—This two-reel instalment continues the adventures of Rutledge and Pedro in the interior of Old Mexico, where they have gone to rescue Liberty. The girl shoots from her prison cell into a pile of boxes filled with ammunition, exploding this and stampeding the Mexican camp. Later she saves Rutledge from the firing squad in a sensational manner. The number as a whole is strong in interest.

IN THE HEART OF NEW YORK (Gold Seal), Oct. 3.—A three-reel number, by Wm. Addison Lathrop. Ben Wilson, Edna Hunter, Charles Ogle, Wm. J. Welsh and others appear. This is a slum story, in which a wealthy young clubman invades the poor sections to find a stolen ring. He is discovered in a wine room by Rose Grey, a young social worker, who sets to work to reform him. This situation proves an amusing one and furnishes the principal originality of the production. The young man allows the girl to take him to the mission and afterwards falls in love with her. This is more pleasant than the average slum story and contains certain original features of interest.

SAFE IN THE SAFE (L-KO), Oct. 4.—A two-reel burlesque number which contains some laughable absurdities. A gang of thieves make themselves at home in the police commissioner's residence and also have a secret chamber at police headquarters. They steal from the police at will. Dan Russell is amusing as the chief, particularly in the scene where he disguises himself as a woman. The automobile chase is well put on, and in spite of its familiarity, some new twists occur. This contains a good deal of entertaining nonsense.

SOMEWHERE ON THE BATTLEFIELD (Universal Special), Oct. 6.—A two-reel subject, written and produced by Hobart Henley, who also plays the leading role, supported by Claire MacDowell and Wm. J. Welsh. The story concerns a young Servian physician in a Bulgarian hospital in the year 1915. He loves a young nurse, who risks her life to save him after it is known that he is a spy and has been shot while attempting to escape. This has a strong atmosphere of the great war and has some very pathetic moments. The death of the young physician, after the girl has risked everything to save him, is a real tragedy. Some of the hospital scenes are a little dark, but the subject as a whole is a strong one.

A MOUNTAIN TRAGEDY (Laemmle), Oct. 7.—A two-reel number, written by Calder Johnstone, featuring Burton C. Law, Zoe Bech, Marjorie Ellison, E. J. Denecke and others. The plot is made up of simple elements, but handled so effectively that excellent suspense is achieved. The little girl closes a bandit's eye with a bean shooter at the crucial moment of the story. The scenes are laid in and about a mountain cabin. The bandit's makeup is unusually good. An exciting number.

Greater Vitagraph (V-L-S-E, Inc.)

THROUGH THE WALL (Vitagraph), Sept. 18.—A six-reel detective drama from a story by Cleveland Moffett, this picture may be recommended for the skill with which its many gripping incidents have been put togetner. It is capitally acted. A review is printed on another page of this issue.

THE SCARLET RUNNER, NO. 1 (Vitagraph), Oct. 2.—The first number of this new Vitagraph serial, which is being produced by Wallie Van and P. S. Earle, appears under the title of "The Car and His Majesty," and is one of twelve two-part adventures through which Christopher Race passes while trying to make good on the proposition of earning his own living. The "Scarlet Runner" is a high-powered automobile which he purchases with the money gathered from a sale of his household belongings. His first adventure brings him into the service of a king who is traveling incognito. The story, by C. N. and A. M. Williamson, is not particularly strong.

FARRAR AS "JOAN OF ARC."

A filmed version of the story of "Joan of Arc" has been completed under the direction of Cecil B. De Mille, with Geraldine Farrar in the title role. This production, which has held Miss Farrar's exclusive services for three months this summer, will be presented by Jesse L. Lasky this autumn. The cast which supports Miss Farrar was selected by Mr. De Mille and includes many well known players of the screen, some of whom have starred on the screen in their own right. Prominent among these are Hobart Bosworth, who appears as the hero, Theodore Roberts, Tully Marshall, Wallace Reid, Charles Clary Horace B. Carpenter, James Neill, Mrs. Lewis McCord and others.

NEW MANAGER FOR MERIT'S BUFFALO OFFICE.

Joseph Lee, who has been New York State representative of the Merit Film Corporation, has been promoted to the managership of the Buffalo branch office of the Merit Film Corporation, succeeding F. J. Willis. The latter leaves his position to become manager of the Ivan Film exchange in Boston, from which point he will have charge of the distribution of Ivan features in the New England territory.

Manufacturers' Advance Notes

"THROUGH THE WALL" (Greater Vitagraph).

"Through the Wall" is one of the finest mystery pictures Vitagraph has ever produced. For genuine thrills and subtle detective work it equals Sherlock Holmes at his best. It is one of those pictures in which the suspense is completely sustained in every reel. It is the cleanest kind of a picture and absolutely true to life.

Cleveland Moffett has written several bully good stories that have been transformed into Vitagraph features, but never before has he sensed the possibilities of the screen as in "Through the Wall." Under the guiding hand of Director Rollin S. Sturgeon, Mr. Moffett's scenes develop terrific punch as they move through the five reels to a smashing climax.

Scene from "Through the Wall" (Vitagraph).

Heidelmann, the master criminal, played superbly by George Holt, has a weakness that criminologists say is always their hope when looking for clues. In Heidelmann's case he keeps a diary of his crimes, gloats over it and lives to see it bring about his destruction. Heidelmann is a Doctor Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. He lives a double life, posing as a wealthy man of standing in the community, and when the Mr. Hyde part of his nature asserts itself the transformation is remarkable. Heidelmann marries Mrs. Kittredge, a wealthy widow. On a trans-Atlantic trip he has persuaded his wife and daughter to take with him, the liner is torpedoed. His wife is drowned and Heidelmann discovers his daughter by marriage has lost her mind. She is the one outstanding obstacle between him and the money he covets. In attempting to dispose of her brother and uncle, he commits the crime of murder and cleverly places the blame on Alice's brother.

William Duncan, who plays the role of the detective, has a magnificent part that he makes the most of. Through his work he tracks down Heidelmann, saves the brother and restores the sister's mind. Nell Shipman enacts the role of Heidelmann's step-daughter with grace and naturalness, adding materially to the powerful drawing power of this latest Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature.

OWEN MOORE AND MARGUERITE COURTOT IN "THE KISS."

Osculation has been the subject of deep thought and considerable experimentation on the part of certain members of the Famous Players forces during the past week. Owen Moore and Marguerite Courtot have done the experimenting and Director Del Henderson has been doing the deep thinking role.

The reason for this sudden and all-absorbing interest in kissing is the fact that these three are concerned as co-stars and director respectively in the staging of "The Kiss," a forthcoming Paramount Picture. As the title indicates, the exchanging of affectionate caresses between the parties of the first, or stellar, parts forms a very important incident in the story. The first kiss, which is the forerunner of many others stolen at a masked ball, and Moore, who has stolen it, is so captivated by the sweetness and warmth thereof, that he sets out to find the kissee, who escapes after the brief instant of bliss.

PANTAGES BOOKS "THE CRIMSON STAIN MYSTERY."

The latest big small-time vaudeville circuit to book "The Crimson Stain Mystery," the sixteen episode super-serial photoplay presented by the Consolidated Film Corporation is the Pantages.

A telegram received at the executive offices of Consolidated at 1482 Broadway, New York, from Metro Pictures Corporation, San Francisco, states that after viewing the first three episodes Alex Pantages, owner of the Pantages Circuit, signed a contract booking the serial for his entire chain of theaters.

This piece of news was received with much gratification by Consolidated managers, who consider that by booking "The Crimson Stain Mystery" for their respective circuit of theaters, Messrs. Alex Pantages and Marcus Loew have put their stamp of approval upon and indorsed Consolidated's claims that "The Crimson Stain Mystery" is one of the greatest motion picture serials ever produced.

HIRSH GET "PAGES FROM HER PAST."

Nathan Hirsh, president of the Pioneer Feature Film Corporation, has purchased the New York State and Northern New Jersey rights for the production entitled "Pages from Her Life." This is an emotional drama in five parts, based upon incidents in the life of a stage favorite, which strikes the keynote of intense [illegible]

"PIGS" (Gaumont).

"The pen of the cartoonist can do more wonderful things than can the ablest director," said Harry Palmer in discussing animated cartoons, that branch of the art in which he is a recognized leader. "While admitting the skill of the director of comedies, I cannot believe that he can crowd many laughs into the same number of feet as can the humorist with the pen. The appeal of the Kartoon Komic is through a humorous exaggeration that cannot be duplicated in real life.

"To illustrate this, let us consider the latest animated cartoon from the Gaumont Studios which I have called 'Pigs.' Now a pig naturally lends himself to the joyous mood, as witness Ellis Parker Butler's classic, 'Pigs Is Pigs'; but when you come to introduce the porcine actor to the camera you will find that he does not run true to form when considered as the hero of a story. The cartoonist, however, can take any pig from the little pig that went to market to the one that Tom the Piper's Son stole and get a laugh out of him in a thousand ways. He can be made to climb a tree or swim a river or do some other thing that spectators recognize is quite impossible for a pig. Yet the very fact that the feat is impossible is a great aid in tickling their risibilities.

Scene from "Pigs" (Gaumont).

"Then the cartoonist who varies his subjects can score a higher percentage of hits than can the brother artist who is bound to a single series. He is not held in any one channel or confined by limitations that hamper his play of fancy. I vary my work by releasing 'Estelle' one week, perhaps 'Noisy Ned' the next, then switch to something entirely different, and for the fourth week take another new tack."

"IN THE HOUSE OF THE CHIEF" (Selig).

Raising the standard of General Film productions week after week is the iron-bound policy of Wm. N. Selig, and the gripping three-reel drama "In the House of the Chief," released in regular service on Monday, October 2, will prove a good criterion by which to judge Selig Diamond Specials that are to come.

"In the House of the Chief" was penned by the famous author, I. K. Friedman, whose stories in the Saturday Evening

Scene from "In the House of the Chief" (Selig).

Post have proven so popular. The cast includes Eugenie Besserer, the "Ellen Terry" of filmland; Vivian Reed, Sidney Smith and Al W. Filson. "In the House of the Chief" is a story of the underworld, of the sacrifices made by a notorious woman crook and fence that her beautiful daughter might remain innocent and receive an education. How her sin finally found her out; how she finally righted a great wrong and reunited two young lovers, are but episodes in a film replete with exciting thrills and smashing climaxes.

"THE RETURN OF 'DRAW' EAGAN" (Triangle).

William S. Hart has "put over" another big hit in "The Return of 'Draw' Egan," a Triangle-Kay Bee feature scheduled to be released on October 15. It is another big western picture and critics are unanimous in declaring Mr. Hart to be pre-eminent at the present time among screen artists when set down in such locale and with a story of that character to interpret.

In "The Return of 'Draw' Eagan," Mr. Hart plays the role of a bad man of the West who finally comes to a turning in the road. The opportunity presents itself to him to reform and make good. He seizes it and is succeeding with a vengeance when a Nemesis in the person of one of his pals of the time when he was known far and wide as a bad man, appears on the scene.

As the story is developed Mr. Hart rises to heights of rare dramatic ability when he finally risks the love of the girl, the respect of his neighbors and even his freedom in order to quiet once and for all those who would drag him down again to the level from which he has risen.

"The Return of 'Draw' Eagan" is without doubt one of the best-acted pictures seen in a long time. Louise Glaum, as a girl of the town, plays convincingly and incidentally has the opportunity to depart somewhat from her usual role of a vampire. Margery Wilson, as the girl with whom the bad man falls in love, is excellent. Robert McKim, as Arizona Joe, the bad man who pursues "Draw" Eagan, gives a touch of realism to the part that goes to make the picture the excellent one it is.

Photographically and artistically "The Return of 'Draw' Eagan" maintains the standards set by all Triangle-Kay Bee pictures and precludes the possibility of unfavorable criticism being directed against it from any angle.

"NE'ER-DO-WELL" REMAINS ON VITAGRAPH V-L-S-E PROGRAM.

So many exhibitors have wondered what would become of the "Ne'er-Do-Well" after the 16th of September when no more bookings will be accepted on Selig pictures by the Vitagraph-V-L-S-E organization that General Manager Walter W. Irwin has again reiterated his statement that the "Ne'er-Do-Well" is not affected by the withdrawal of the Lubin, Selig and Essanay Companies from V-L-S-E, Inc. Every day a great many return date bookings are secured by V-L-S-E salesmen throughout the country and the picture is going exceptionally well, although now about six months old.

Sol Lesser's statement to Mr. Irwin explicitly states that he is entirely satisfied with the efficient way in which his picture has been distributed and it is not his intention to disturb this arrangement in the slightest degree. Exhibitors desiring bookings on the "Ne'er-Do-Well" should get in touch with their local Vitagraph-V-L-S-E managers.

BIG BOOKINGS FOR "AROUND THE WORLD IN 80 DAYS."

The Herald Film Corporation announce that bookings for "Around the World in 80 Days" have been coming in steadily. The demand by exhibitors for this feature has been increasing daily. The officers of the Herald Film Corporation feel that their judgment in selecting "Around the World in 80 Days," by Jules Verne, for their first release of big features, has been more than vindicated. Letters, telegrams and telephone messages from all parts of the country prove the wonderful popularity a remarkable novel can attain. The open and frank method adopted in announcing the price per day is also meeting with the approval of exhibitors throughout the country. In all probability this method will be followed by the Herald Film Corporation in their future advertising of big features.

FIRST EPISODE OF "SHIELDING SHADOW."

The initial episode of Pathe's wonder serial, "The Shielding Shadow," produced by Astra, will be released on October 1st. It deals with the adventures and the love affair of Jerry Carson and Leontine Walcott.

Grace Darmond is Leontine Walcott, Leon Bary Sebastian Navarro and Ralph Kellard Jerry Carson. Their acting is one of the best points in a splendid production, the most thrilling feature of which is the fire at sea, in which passengers of the boat are seen actually in flames jumping from the height of the deck into the ocean.

"ANTON, THE TERRIBLE" (Lasky).

Theodore Roberts and Anita King as co-stars for the first time will appear in the Jesse L. Lasky production of "Anton, the Terrible." The story of this thrilling drama of Russian political intrigue was written by Jules Eckert Goodman from Thomas H. Uzzell's story and prepared for the screen by Marian Fairfax and Charles Sarver. It is the Paramount Picture of September 28th.

Theodore Roberts has the supreme distinction of being America's leading character actor. In his years on the stage and screen he has been seen in many different roles, in all of which he has been ideal, but it is said that as the head of the cruel Russian Secret Police in "Anton, the Terrible," he excels anything he has done heretofore.

The versatile and beautiful Anita King, the Paramount girl, who recently scored such a success in "The Race," of which Victor Moore is the star and founded upon her transcontinental automobile trip, plays the part of the young girl upon whom Anton wishes to revenge himself for her father's crime. The role is exactly suited to Miss King's appealing personality, and the Lasky Company feels that it has made a most excellent selection in co-starring these two artists.

The story, which created such a sensation when it was published in the Saturday Evening Post, has to do with the intrigues in the Russian General Staff shortly after the outbreak of the present European war.

Anton, although Chief of the Russian Secret Police, is in reality a German spy. How a clever woman, to save her lover, succeeds in trapping Anton and confronts him with his guilt, is presented in an unusual and startling manner. The scenes of the pictures are laid in Petrograd and on the steppes of Siberia, and the photodrama is produced with more than the usual Lasky excellence, under the personal direction of William C. De Mille, the distinguished dramatist and director.

Scene from "Anton, the Terrible" (Lasky).

The cast supporting Mr. Roberts and Miss King includes such prominent artists as Horace B. Carpenter, Edythe Chapman, Harrison Ford and others.

"THE HERITAGE OF HATE" (Bluebird).

Good old-fashioned melodrama is returning to favor on the legitimate stage, a new circuit of theaters having been put in operation with the start of this season to largely exploit melodramas of more or less "lurid" persuasion. Bluebird keeps pace with the experiment by introducing a melodrama, for the week of October 23, under the illuminating title of "The Heritage of Hate."

Under that title there need be no doubt of the melodramatic trend of pictorial events to be disclosed in the five-act story

Scene from "The Heritage of Hate" (Bluebird).

Walter Woods contributed for E. J. Clawson's scenario and the direction of Burton George. Under its policy of making the play "the thing," Bluebird waited to select the cast until the piece had been decided upon and from its stock organization selected William Quinn and Roberta Wilson to play the leads.

Assigning the remaining roles to Lillian Concord, Ellen Sedgewick, Betty Harte, Betty Schade and Paul Byron was accomplished with best artistic results in view, and then the matter of production has proceeded in accord with Bluebird's determination to mount and equip every offering to the limit of possibilities. Exhibitors will have, in "The Heritage of Hate," a melodrama for which the adjective "gripping" might well have been reserved for its special description; thrilling scenes and sensations multiply as the story progresses until the lurid consequences of "The Heritage of Hate" is climaxed in a fire-scene in which an ocean pier is destroyed, shipping crumbles under the flames and general devastation is exemplified after the most approved methods of pictorial destruction.

HYPNOTISM IN "CRIMSON STAIN."

Students of the occult, and scientific and psychological minds will be interested to learn of the discovery of a unique yet thoroughly practical method of breaking a hypnotic spell without the actual physical presence of the one responsible for it. This new method is explained for the first time in "The Broken Spell," the third episode of "The Crimson Stain Mystery," the sixteen episode super-serial presented by Consolidated Film Corporation.

"The Broken Spell" is a sequel to "In the Demon's Power," the second episode, in which Florence Montrose, daughter of Mr. Montrose, the discoverer of the terrible biological element which is the foundation of "The Crimson Stain Mystery," is hypnotized by Pierre La Rue, leader of the Crimson Stain gang, for revenge.

The method of breaking the hypnotic spell is in absolute accord with the laws of hypnotism. At the time that Albert Payson Terhune wrote the story, he experienced great difficulty in discovering a way to bring the heroine out of her trance. After consulting the best authorities on hypnotism and reading more than a dozen books on the subject, Mr. Terhune discovered the method which he has incorporated in the third episode of "The Crimson Stain Mystery."

TWELFTH "GRIP OF EVIL" CHAPTER STRONG.

Results of a nation-wide debate entered into by the country's most famous men are visualized on the screen in Pathe's Master Plot in Fourteen Chapters, "The Grip of Evil," and the opinion shared by the majority that "God's in his Heaven, All's well with the World," is presented in the twelfth episode which is released the week of October 1st, in which Balboa Company begins the marshaling of evidence to prove that the world is not in the Grip of Evil.

It deals with the capture of John Burton by a gang known as the Hell-Cats, and his escape from them after a thrilling succession of scenes in which he is aided by Bill Reilly, a former gangster, who has been reformed by the gentle influence of Grace Coe, a society girl who has given up her butterfly life to devote it instead to the succor of the poor and downtrodden.

The parts of John Burton and Grace Coe are played by Roland Bottomley and Jackie Saunders respectively, and the film has been produced by Balboa with all the beautiful photography and scenic splendor that characterize its pictures.

The release is characterized by new and unexpected twists in the story, underworld scenes based on actual happenings in the criminal history of New York's east side and a thrilling fight in which John Burton is saved from death at the hands of blackmailers and kidnappers.

"THE POWER OF EVIL" (Moss).

Coming as the initial release on the new Moss one-a-month policy, unusual interest is manifested in the announcement of the first presentation of "The Power of Evil," George Bronson Howard's scorching arraignment of the drink evil, which is now ready for release for state right buyers. Interest in the picture is enhanced with Marguerite Nichols in the leading role. Unusual and extensive preparations have been made by Mr. Moss for country-wide exploitation of "The Power of Evil," which arrangements, by the way, will hold good throughout the entire list of one-a-month releases. Elaborate printing, paper, heralds, cuts, etc., and all the details that make for an exhaustive campaign will be drawn upon, and trade papers and newspapers everywhere will be embraced in the advertising campaign. The press force has already been amplified and the highways and byways will be showered with a deluge of literature that spells dollars for the exhibitor and state right buyer. Mr. Moss, incidentally, has formulated a follow-up system of insistent exploitation which will be at the disposal of the exhibitor or state right buyer and the returns will be naturally beneficial.

"THE FALSE MAGISTRATE" CONCLUDES "FANTOMAS" SERIES.

With the showing of "The False Magistrate," October 5, the last of the five "Fantomas" episodes will have reached the screen. The series has been immensely popular, and the call for additional prints to supply the demand is a gratifying indication of the success which awaits "The Vampires, or The Arch Criminals of Paris," the new Gaumont series of nine episodes which will be released through the Mutual Film Corporation in the near future. "The False Magistrate" is calculated, says one reviewer, "to furnish a good topic for discussion among the patrons of every theater in which it is shown." It is such photoplays as this, those which "furnish a good topic of discussion," which make and hold business for exhibitors.

"HIS LITTLE WIFE" (Essanay).

There is much to appeal to the most exacting picture patrons in this 3-act offering from Essanay. It is a simple little story, about simple people, and with its scenes laid in a simple little town. The types in the story are lovable, and while there is much to dim the eye with a tear now and then, there is also a comedy touch which forms an ideal contrast. It is about the college bred son of the town's leading citizen and the orphaned niece of the village cobbler and parental objection.

Scene from "His Little Wife" (Essanay).

But the story is carried by its beautiful heart touches rather than on its possession of a deep plot. To get the beautiful settings, which rule it throughout, was a task requiring time, but the results proved the time well spent. Harry Beaumont, wrote, directed and played the lead, with Gertrude Glover in the other principal part. Thomas Commerford gives another touching portrayal of an old man part. The story is not without its intense thrills. Miss Glover leaps from a high bridge into a river showing plainly in the film the risk which accompanied it.

PARAMOUNT-BRAY CARTOONIST INVENTS NEW SMOKING DEVICE.

Leslie Elton, the well-known cartoonist who recently came into prominence by reason of his affiliation with the Bray Studios, Incorporated, who makes weekly animated cartoons for

New Smoking Device (Paramount).

Paramount Pictures Corporation, and who has been a well-known writer for a number of years, has written a short article giving his first impressions of New York City; also telling of a new invention that was recently invented for his personal use, by which he is enabled to dispose of fifty packages of cigarettes per day.

MAE MURRAY RETURNS TO PACIFIC COAST.

With the completion and release on the Paramount Program of "The Big Sister" her last starring vehicle, Mae Murray, Famous Players-Lasky star, returns to the Pacific Coast. Originally a Lasky star, Miss Murray was transferred to the Famous Players studio after the merger of the two producing companies, because the atmosphere required for "The Big Sister" was strictly eastern, the scenes being laid in and around New York City.

Miss Murray's next production is a case in point. It is to be called "The Heir Apparent" and will deal with the life of a young English girl in South Africa. Even the scant knowledge of Africa which the Boer War gave many Americans is sufficient to enable us to realize that the staging of a production with South African settings in the vicinity of New York City would be a stupendous task involving the erection of many elaborate scenic structures.

The story itself revolves around a young girl of English parentage who has been left alone in South Africa by the death of her parents. She has been made a veritable slave by Varley, a wealthy but brutal farmer. The girl is really the heir to the Brentwood estates and her aged grandmother is endeavoring to get some trace of her. Through an attempted deception of the old lady, a young lawyer is sent to Africa in search of Margot. He stumbles upon the real Margot by accident, and it is then that the real conplications of the story begin.

PATHE TO RELEASE "THE PILLORY" OCTOBER 8.

Hawthorne's "The Scarlet Letter" is probably the most widely know American novel. It is a powerful story of old New England. On October 8th Pathe will release as a Gold Rooster Play, Thanhouser's "The Pillory." It is an equally powerful photoplay of today.

The picture deeply interested the Pathe Film Committee, which passes on all productions before they are admitted to the program. Speaking of it, a prominent Pathe official said:

"It has a type we all know—a powerful and wonderful character—the severe unforgiving 'Christian' woman who elects herself the rigid deputy of God, depending upon quotations from the Bible to strengthen the dictates of her own narrow judgment. There is one like her in every community—in yours and mine.

"'The Pillory' is the most graphic story of intolerance I have ever seen and it gets the point over in five reels of swift interest-compelling action. It will cause argument. All who see it will think differently about it. They will talk and exhibitors will get the benefit of the word of mouth advertising."

The star of "The Pillory" is Florence LaBadie. The splendid cast supporting her includes Nellie Parker Spaulding and Marie Hayne—who as modern Puritans contribute two wonderful character portrayals—and Marie Shotwell, George Marlo, Ethyle Cooke and Yale Banner. The author is Philip Lonergan, who has written many screen successes, and the director, Frederick Sullivan.

NEW DISTRIBUTION PLAN.

It is not always that an experienced film man, especially one who for years has carried on a successful sales proposition, turns right around and adopts a plan of film distribution that no one thought for a moment would work out. Such, however, is the experience of L. Rosengarten, President of the Herald Film Company, 130 West 46th street, who is releasing the Jules Verne feature, "Around the World in Eighty Days." Mr. Rosengarten's idea consists of advertising the feature to exhibitors at a flat price, which in this case, is $50 a day. Any exhibitor contracting for a week's run is immediately given a first-run print. Exhibitors taking the film for less than one week get second, third or fourth runs, depending upon the number of days contracted for. After all the territory in certain sections of the country, especially the larger cities, has been covered, the film will be sold outright at a figure to conform to the territory to be covered. The advantage in this method is claimed to be the fact that exhibitors in small and medium sized cities can secure first-run films, which they cannot do under existing methods. The way exhibitors all over the country are taking hold speaks well for the future of Mr. Rosengarten's plan.

"A DIPLOMATIC ROMANCE."

"A Diplomatic Romance," in which Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne are co-starred, will be released on the Metro program October 16. This five-part feature was produced under the direction of Mr. Bushman, who also made the screen adaptation of the story written by John C. Clymer and Hamilton Smith. Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne are supported by a notable cast, which includes Henri Bergman, William Davidson, Helen Dunbar, Edmund Elton, Belle Bruce, Harry D. Blakemore, Mrs. La Roche, Liza Miller and Charles Fang. The feature is produced by the Quality Pictures Corporation for Metro.

WAGNER SALES OFFICE IN INDIANAPOLIS.

The Wagner Electric Manufacturing Company of St. Louis announces the opening of a sales office and service station at 922 North Pennsylvania street, Indianapolis, Ind. The office will be in charge of Charles M. Welch.

"THE OLD FOLKS AT HOME" (Triangle).

When Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree announced his intention of appearing in a moving picture version of "Macbeth," he added that it would be his one and only appearance on the screen. It is to the credit and distinct gain of moving pictures that the noted English actor found the work before the camera so interesting and so dignified that it was really at his own suggestion that a second story was found for him to work in.

"The Old Folks at Home," a Triangle-Fine Arts feature, was selected by the distinguished English actor himself. Rupert Hughes, the author, has won an enviable place for himself as a writer of short stories, and it is no exaggeration to say that the story selected is among the best he has ever done.

Briefly told, "The Old Folks at Home" is the story of a typical American family who find themselves suddenly removed from the peace and security of their home on a farm, to the turmoil and temptations of a great city. As is often the case, it is the young son of the family who falls victim to the lures that beset him in the metropolis. The sturdy character of the father finally saves the family everlasting disgrace and accomplishes the return of the erring ones to an environment that, if less exciting, is assuredly safer.

Scene from "Old Folks at Home" (Triangle).

An excellent cast which includes Josephine Crowell, Elmer Clifton, Mildred Harris, Lucille Younge, W. E. Lawrence and Spottiswoode Aitken, gives strong support to Sir Herbert Tree and makes the picture one of the strongest ever released on the Triangle program.

"Grant" Ready Oct. 20th

"The Code Letter" Starts Kalem's New Series Featuring George Larkin and Ollie Kirkby.

"The Code Letter" is announced by the Kalem Company as the initial release in the new "Grant, Police Reporter" series which will feature darin's George Larkin and Ollie Kirkby. This first episode of the new one reel series by Robert Weides Ritchie will be issued on Friday, October 20.

Of equal importance with the announcement of the first release date is the statement from Kalem that the new series will be given to exhibitors in the regular programme service of the General Film Company. The expenditures for stories, stars, and publicity on "Grant, Police Reporter" are setting new marks for a one reel series, and it was thought in some quarters that the feature might be a special release.

Scene from "The Code Letter" (Kalem).

Following the initial release a one reel "Grant" story will be issued every Friday, the series taking the date left open by the calling of Ivy Close to England. Work of production on "The Code Letter" has already been completed and the "first run" in the Kalem projection room has doubled the enthusiasm of the company's executives over the new series.

One of the thrilling scenes in "The Code Letter" shows George Larkin performing a daring feat in the heart of Jacksonville's business section. Larkin is letting himself down, hand over hand, on the rope of a painter's scaffold when the other supporting rope is cut and he swings through the air six stories above the pavement. Hundreds of Jacksonville persons crowded Julia street when the feat was performed on the side of the Everett Hotel and cheered lustily when the player managed to swing himself to safety by grasping a fire escape.

In addition to the two stars the cast of the initial production includes William McKey, Robert Ellis, Arthur Albertson and numerous others. The story is a mystery revolving about the code letter of the title and the suspense is said to hold to the final scene. Each episode of the new series will tell a completed story.

IVAN FILM EXCHANGE OF BOSTON FORMED.

In order that the New England territory may be properly covered and that the exhibitors in this territory who have requested for a long time that there be a distributing agency located in New England, from which point they may be more readily served with Ivan productions than from New York City, the Ivan Film Exchange of New England has engaged offices at 23 Piedmont street, Boston, from which point the following Ivan features will be distributed to the various theaters in the States of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont, New Hampshire, Connectcut and Maine, "The Immortal Flame," "City of Illusion," "His Wives," "Her Surrender" and "The Faded Flower." F. J. Willis, formerly manager of the Buffalo office of the Merit Film Corporation, has been assigned to take charge of this new branch.

UNITY RELEASES THIRD EPISODE OF "THE YELLOW MENACE."

The Unity Sales Corporation, through its exchanges, releases this week the third episode of "The Yellow Menace." The title of the picture being "The Poisonous Tarantula." Reports from all parts of the country show that this serial is being well received. A well balanced cast, headed by Edwin Stevens, Florence Malone and Margaret Gale, and the powerful theme behind the story are making the picture a strong box-office attraction for all exhibitors.

Williams and Holding Commence

Popular Stars Busily Engaged in Production of Pretentious Morosco Offering For Paramount Program. Wyndham Standing in Cast.

KATHLYN WILLIAMS and Thomas Holding, who are to be seen co-starred by Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company, are now at work at the Los Angeles studios of this organization on their initial co-star subject for the Paramount Program. The vehicle in which this duo will appear on the screen for Morosco is a stirring emotional drama by L. V. Jefferson and from present indications will prove one of the greatest artistic successes ever presented on the Paramount service under the trade mark of these producers. The working title of this offering is "Redeeming Love," although it is uncertain at this time as to whether or not this title will be used when the subject is released.

The story deals with Naomi Sterling, a beautiful young woman born and raised in a small town who is partly in love with a noble young minister but who rebels against giving up the many good things of life for him. A series of unusual complications arise in which Miss Williams and Mr. Holding are called upon to display their dramatic finesse to particular advantage. Various surprises in the trend of the story are promised and unusual care has been taken by the author in collaboration with Gardner Hunting in preparing the scenario.

One of the most pretentious sets ever built by the Morosco company will be offered in this subject. The set will portray Naomi's gaming house and will be built of mottled marble with an elaborate stairway and lavishly decorated with mural panels, statuary and onyx pillars. This scene will display unusual depth and will have a complete equipment of gambling paraphernalia such as might be found at Monte Carlo. Various other imposing sets built with typical Morosco care for detail are in the course of construction under the personal supervision of William D. Taylor, who is staging the photoplay. Homer Scott is at the head of the photographic work.

The Williams-Holding production also marks the addition of Wyndham Standing to the Morosco forces. Wyndham is the son of Herbert Standing, the well known Morosco character artist who also appears in this photoplay, and is popularly known among followers of the screen. Among Wyndham's most prominent characterizations are those offtred in "Bullets and Brown Eyes," "The Beggar of Cawnpore," "The Eagle Call," and "The Wolf Farmer." Jane Keckley, Helen Jerome Eddy and Don Bailey portray other important characters in the cast.

"WHEN LITTLE LINDY SANG" (Universal).

Dis am a tale 'bout a li'l cullud gal who done sing too loud an' sorter premiscuous like. Li'l Lindy hab a pow'ful throat an' de white chillun doan perzactly like to hear her make so much noise. So de teacher tells Lindy dat she mus' keep quiet while de white chillun sing.

De white teacher am a kindly lady, howsumever, an' she tell Lindy dat some day de little black girl will do somethun grand with her loud voice. Dere comes a big fire which eat up de school house an' all de little white chillun am powerful frightened. Lindy stands right up an' starts singing, "Glory, Glory, Hallejuya" an' she done stops de panic right den and dere. A big blazing beam falls on de little cullud girl, howsumever, an' dey take her to de horspital. But things end up powerful pretty like when all the li'l white boys brings Lindy heaps an' heaps of flowers and ast her to sing all she wants to.

Scene from "When Little Lindy Sang" (Universal).

"When Little Lindy Sang" is a Powers split reel juvenile drama and will be released on Sunday, October 15. It features Lindy, who plays the leading role all by herself. Margaret Whistler enacts the role of the school teacher and Irma Sorter and Benjamin Suslow, Universal juvenile players, also play important parts. The play was written by Olga Prinzlau and produced by "Mother" Warrenton.

POWELL TO START NEW STORY.

With the completion and trade showing of his first feature "Charity?" Frank Powell, president of the Frank Powell Productions, Inc., will immediately begin work on another large production in which he sees great possibilities. Little is known of this new picture except that it, like "Charity?" will be based on a subject of timely interest and one uppermost in the public mind.

It is Mr. Powell's intention to produce pictures with a purpose—that is, pictures which in addition to presenting a dramatic story of wide appeal, have underlying that story and as a motivating power certain conditions existent today the country over which can best be brought before the public through the medium of the screen. Creighton Hale and Sheldon Lewis will be starred in this new picture, as will a woman star whose name has not been disclosed.

Scene from "Charity?" (Powell).

NOTABLE CAST FOR "THE SEX LURE."

For the next Ivan production, to be released in October, a notable cast of screen stars has been assembled. James Morrison, immediately upon the completion of an important role in "The Battle Cry of War," Vitagraph successor to "The Battle Cry of Peace," left that organization to create the principal male role in this new Ivan production. Mr. Morrison's career with the Vitagraph Company has been most notable. He has enacted principal roles in such great successes put out by that company as "The Seventh Son," "The Modern Prodigal," "The Christian," "Mother's Roses," "The Wheels of Justice," "In The Days of Famine," "Mortmain" and "The Battle Cry of War." He is considered by the critics as one of the best juvenile leading men in the motion picture field

Miss Louise Vale, for a great number of years one of the principal stars of the Biograph Company and under whose banner she appeared in hundreds of screen plays under the direction of such noted directors as D. W. Griffith, Wm. Christy Cabanne and others will make her debut under the Ivan banner in this production.

Frankie Mann, starred by Lubin and Vitagraph and whose wonderful work in "Her Surrender," the ourrent Ivan release, stamped her as especially capable of handling great emotional roles, has been cast to portray a "vampire" type in this new play.

Donald Hall, "the Chesterfield of the screen," as he is known, for four years with the Vitagraph Company, will portray one of the types for which he is so well known.

Other prominent artists of the legitimate and screen world have been engaged for this production, which will be directed by Ivan Abramson. Elaborate settings have been constructed at the Ivan studio in order to give this drama proper production. The studio will be occupied for a number of weeks, as soon as the company returns from the south, where they have gone to film the exterior locations required by the scenario.

When completed "The Sex Lure" will be released as a regular Ivan release scheduled feature for the month of October.

"COL. HEEZA LIAR GETS MARRIED" (Paramount).

J. R. Bray has gone the limit in his forthcoming animated cartoon, "Col. Heeza Liar Gets Married," to be released by Paramount on October 9th, and has drawn the funniest cartoon of his career. From start to finish it is a screaming success.

The story of the release tells of Col. Heeza Liar's bachelor friends who tender him a farewell dinner the last night of his happy days as a bachelor. His friends are so overcome with emotion at the Colonel's matrimonial entanglement that they all shed tears fluently, almost flooding the dining room.

The Colonel bids them all a sad farewell and leaves for his home. Once there he lights his pipe and has visions of a happily married life. Like many another poor foolish simp he dreams of his dear little 330 lb. wife waiting on him hand and foot. But the poor Colonel is doomed to disappointment.

The day of the wedding, the Colonel awakes and has hardly a minute to dress and get to the church. His valet throws his clothes on him in 29 seconds flat, and he hops in a taxi and has a wild ride to the church. By the time the church is reached, the taxi is almost a wreck, as it has not missed hitting many things on the way. Other things happen to the Colonel, as will be seen when you view the picture.

LAST "FANTOMAS" EPISODE.

The Gaumont releases for the week of October first is notable for the appearance upon the screen of the last "Fantomas" episode in this Mutual Series. It is "The False Magistrate," released October 5. Unlike the majority of series, the criminal remains uncaptured. This leads to the conclusion that other episodes may be made at some future time to continue the career of this astounding law breaker. The pictures, which have been made in France, have proved highly successful additions to Mutual Service. Even after the series was under way, additional prints were ordered.

TWO "REEL LIFE" SUBJECTS CHANGE DATES.

The baseball game played by marionettes announced for Gaumont's "Reel Life" Number 21, has been changed to Number 22. It has been replaced by a series of scenes showing "Raising White Leghorn Chickens." "Reel Life" Number 22 is released October 1. In addition to the baseball game, which is a reproduction of a world's series game last season, there are two other interesting subjects. One shows "The Wood Workers of the Southern Mountains." The other records adventures during "A Night With a Police Dog."

Notes of the Trade

CHARLES J. HIRLIMAN, JR., general manager of the Eclipse Film Laboratories, on West 23d street, New York, is Democratic candidate for Councilman of Fort Lee, N. J. Mr. Hirliman promises local legislation that will help the many film folk in Fort Lee, if elected.

• • •

The Bijou theater, East Palm Beach, Fla., has placed an order with Manager Kessnich of the Atlanta office of the Mutual Film Co., for a Minusa Gold Fibre for his new house. The Bijou will be one of the finest houses in Florida, and Minusa feels highly elated in adding this to the long list of boosters.

• • •

Donald E. Allen has been added to the staff of the Famous Players exchange of Philadelphia, by William E. Smith. Mr. Allen has just returned from a productive trip up through Pennsylvania for the Famous Players office and reports that there will be a great demand for Paramount this year.

• • •

Juliet Musidora, one of the most talented of the younger French actresses, will have the leading female role in the Gaumont series, "The Vampire," which will follow "Fantomas" in Mutual Service. There will be nine episodes, each complete in three reels.

• • •

Director Rupert Julian's production of Robert H. Davis' story, "We Are French," is rapidly progressing toward completion at Universal City. The leading players, including Ella Hall, Julian and Kingsley Benedict, recently filmed a number of scenes for the photodrama on the desert in the vicinity of Oxnard, Cal.

• • •

Director Colin Campbell and company of players, headed by Helen Ware and Tom Santschi, have gone to Santa Barbara, where a number of scenes for "The Garden of Allah" will be filmed in the famous old mission garden.

• • •

Bryant Washburn and Marguerite Clayton made their first venture in high comedy in "The Prince of Graustark," and with excellent results. It will be released shortly in five acts by Essanay.

• • •

Director Jacques Jaccard and his big company, including Marie Walcamp, who is starred in "Liberty, A Daughter of the U. S. A.," have been busy for the last week in the vicinity of Playa del Rey, on the coast line west of Los Angeles. He is now working on the eighth episode of the Universal super-serial.

• • •

Dorothy Gish has started on the opening scenes of a new Triangle-Fine Arts drama called "The Best Bet," written by Tod Browning, while the latter was a member of the scenario staff before assuming the responsibilities of a Triangle director.

Miss Gish will be directed by George Seigmann, who has been associated with the Fine Arts studio since its inception. Opposite Dorothy will play Raymond Jerome Binder, who was recently engaged by the Fine Arts studio. The supporting cast will include Adele Clifton, Carl Stockdale, Loyola O'Connor, F. A. Turner, Joe Neery and Tom Wilson.

Carter De Haven of Universal City, who has been working under the direction of Wallace Beery, has been assigned to a company of his own. He is producing a two-reel comedy, "Chip o' the Old Block," in which he plays the lead, supported by Marcia Moore, Margaret Whistler and Dan Duffy.

• • •

A large number of new theaters are being built in this district, which have already contracted for Paramount pictures, while others which have been flying the Paramount banner for more than a year, are remodeling their theaters and extending their runs from one to two days, two to three days, and some theaters planning to run Paramount pictures four and six days each week.

• • •

Richard C. Travers and Marguerite Clayton have started work at the Essanay studios in a new two-reel production, "Borrowed Sunshine."

• • •

Universal Director Harry Millarde is filming a one-reel drama, "Romantic Rosalie's Romance," written by William Henry and featuring Flora Parker De Haven with Paul Byron playing opposite.

• • •

W. E. Landau, who conducts a luxurious and highly prosperous motion picture theater on Manhattan Island, was the first New York exhibitor to contract for the World Film program, and he still takes the World service. Likes it, evidently.

• • •

Florence La Badie, the Thanhouser star, is now working under the direction of Frederic Sullivan in "Divorce and the Daughter," a feature to be released through the Pathe exchanges. The story is by Agnes C. Johnston, author of "The Fear of Poverty," "The Shine Girl," and "Prudence, the Pirate"—in the last two named Gladys Hulette was the star. Miss La Badie is supported by J. H. Gilmour, Edwin Stanley, Kathryn Adams, Sam Niblack, Zenaide Williams and two children, Ethelmary Oakland and Arthur Levine.

• • •

"The Isle of Life" has ben completed at Universal City in five reels by Director Burton George. It features Roberta Wilson. George also is preparing to make a two-reel photoplay in which Miss Wilson also will play the lead.

• • •

The Minusa Cine Products Co. have received instructions from the Casino Feature Film Co., of Detroit, to prepare and build a Minusa Gold Fibre according to specifications for the Ferry Field theater. Minusa is giving this order their usual care and attention.

• • •

Director Henry McRae, accompanied by President Carl Laemmle, of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, visited Catalina Island to film the scenes for his two-reel production, "The Lost Lode."

Picture Theaters Projected

CHICAGO, ILL.—Kusel & Harris, 30 North La Salle street, plan to erect a three-story moving picture theater, store and apartment building, 165 by 260 feet.

Ensley, Ala.—Franklin theater will be remodeled.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—The Transfer is the name of a new moving picture house opened here. David S. Vesey and A. W. Collier are the owners.

Sioux City, Ia.—Penslow estate, L. Langweeker, agent, plans to erect a two-story moving picture theater and office building, 45 by 75 feet, to cost $12,000.

Galena, Kans.—The finishing touches are being put on the new moving picture theater for L. H. Moore. It will have seating capacity of 800. A Wurlitzer pipe organ will also be installed.

Independence, Kans.—H. Heneing, who recently purchased the Star theater, has remodeled the structure and has increased the seating capacity.

Harwichport, Mass.—It is reported that Dr. D. R. Ginn will erect a moving picture theater of fireproof construction.

McComb, Miss.—Xavier A. Kramer, of Magnolia, Miss., is preparing plans for a moving picture house to be known as the Dixie theater.

Bowling Green, Mo.—The Majestic theater is now being conducted by Monroe & Wilson.

Eldon, Mo.—A. B. Van Sant has opened a new moving picture theater here.

Kansas City, Mo.—The Tenth Street theater, recently taken over by C. G. Bard, has been redecorated and renamed the Columbia.

St. Louis, Mo.—Melba Amusement Company, G. Bauer, secretary and treasurer, is having plans prepared for a three-story theater, store and flat building, 143 by 213 feet.

St. Louis, Mo.—H. C. Koenig, 3836 Kosciusko street, plans to erect a one-story moving picture theater, 90 by 136 feet, to cost $50,000.

Columbus, Neb.—J. H. Brock has the contract to erect a one-story moving picture theater, 44 by 110 feet, for William Swan, to cost $14,000.

Kearney, Neb.—F. G. Keens, Empress Theater Building, has let the contract for the erection of a moving picture theater and store building of fireproof construction.

Pennsgrove, N. J.—Pennsgrove Improvement Company, care H. Douty, plans to erect a one-story moving picture theater, 60 by 120 feet, to cost $18,000.

Woodbury, N. J.—It is reported that capitalists are looking about for a suitable site on which to construct a commodious moving picture theater. It is understood that they have an option on a property on Broad street, between Cooper and Center.

Newburgh, N. Y.—J. S. La Dow, 35 market street, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., is preparing plans for alterations to be made to a local moving picture house.

Troy, N. Y.—Harry Hall has purchased the interest of E. O. Weinberg in the Plaza theater.

Albemarle, N. C.—M. F. Little will erect a two-story moving picture theater, 25 by 100 feet, to be known as the Alemeda.

Sapulpa, Okla.—William Griffith & Son are preparing plans for a three-story opera house to be erected on Dewey street.

Chester, Pa.—The Family theater is now being conducted by John Rudolph.

Dunmore, Pa.—M. E. Comerford, 303 Lackawanna avenue, Scranton, Pa., contemplates erecting a modern fireproof moving picture theater.

Philadelphia, Pa.—George J. Conly has purchased the stores, garage and moving picture theater at 1222 to 1256 Ridge avenue.

Philadelphia, Pa.—John Duncan has the contract to make alterations to the front of the Chestnut Street theater, on the north side of Chestnut street, near Twelfth. The improvements will cost $500.

Beaumont, Texas.—Plans are being considered by the Interstate Amusement Company for the erection of a $50,000 moving picture and vaudeville theater.

El Paso, Texas.—N. C. Casta will expend $20,000 to remodel the Estrella theater.

Richmond, Va.—R. Francione will make improvements to his moving picture house, to cost about $4,000.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Architect O. Webb, 723 Third street, is preparing plans for a one-story moving picture theater, 45 by 160 feet.

Milwaukee, Wis.—The Pearl Amusement Company is building a modern moving picture theater of fireproof construction at the corner of Mitchell street and Fourteenth avenue. The structure will cost about $15,000.

Peace Pictures

Beautifully Colored

Also

European War Pictures

(Neutral)

Illustrated Poems

On our own country.

Terms Moderate

Accompanied by Violinist, Pianist, Operator, Lantern, etc., for Theatres, Lyceums and Clubs, in or out of town. Music for dances.

LOUISE M. MARION

445 W. 23rd Street, New York

Phone 10336 Chelsea

GOLD KING SCREEN

GOLD KING SCREENS ARE BEST

TEN DAYS FREE TRIAL

GOLD KING SCREEN CO., ALTUS, OKLA.

Trade News of the Week

GATHERED BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS

Farrell Heads Boston Pathe

Pathe's Policy of Getting the Ablest Selling Staff Possible Exemplified by Choice of Edward J. Farrell for Manager of Local Exchange—Interesting Account of Mr. Farrell's Rise and Training.

By William M. Flynn, 80 Summer Street, Boston, Mass.

BOSTON, Mass.—Edward J. Farrell, former New England manager of the General Film Company, and one of the prominent and most capable figures in the film distributing world, is now New England manager of the Pathe exchange. Since assuming his new duties Mr. Farrell has received 500 telegrams and letters of congratulations from exhibitors, exchange men, producers and others connected with the moving picture field throughout the country.

The new head of the Pathe in this territory is said to be the highest paid exchange manager in the country and has the highest paid staff under him. He is practically the first real road man New England has had in the motion picture industry and his experience has been so wide and his popularity so great that he can call by his first name practically every exhibitor in the New England territory.

Mr. Farrell was born in Millbury, Mass., on May 19, 1878. He was left an orphan at the age of six, when he went to live with an aunt in Providence. He received his early schooling in that city, and when still quite young started out to take care of himself. He tackled one or two small jobs and then went into the hotel business. This was his mission in life until twelve years ago, when he branched out as a dramatic lecturer, but gave up this work a few years later to go on the road for the George Klein film exchange. The Klein concern later sold out to the General Film Company, and Mr. Farrell remained with the new concern in the same capacity. He rose to the berth of assistant manager and in 1913 was made manager of the New England branch of the company.

On Dec. 1, 1915, he was promoted to division manager of the Southern territory following a reorganization of the General Film Company. He transferred his headquarters from Boston to Augusta, Ga., but the south did not agree with him and he came back to the Boston office of the General Film Company on April 10 of this year. He resigned his Boston berth on July 15 and took an automobile tour through Canada. But Mr. Farrell was not destined to remain idle. Several of the large film companies who knew his worth were angling for him and he finally signed with the Pathe people, assuming charge of their New England branch the first of September. The Pathe New England headquarters are situated at No. 7 Isabella street, in Boston's film exchange district.

The employees of the New England office of the General Film presented Mr. Farrell with a magnificent diamond ring as a token of their respect and consideration of him while he was their superior and the managers of the other exchanges in Boston presented him with a bag of gold.

The new Pathe manager holds an enviable position among moving picture men and there are many in the trade who look to see the Pathe business go ahead in leaps and bounds under his direction. Associated with Mr. Farrell in charge of the Boston Pathe office are F. J. Cavanagh, as assistant manager and F. A. Grady as manager of the serial department. Mr. Grady was formerly assistant manager of the Boston office of the V-L-S-E under Mr. George Baisdon, and later still New England manager of the World Film. Both Mr. Grady and Mr. Cavanagh have been with Mr. Farrell in the past and together they form a trio that for efficiency and the power to show results is hard to equal.

New Roxbury Theater.

Boston, Mass.—W. V. H. Barhydt, manager of the Niagara theater, Roxbury, Mass., whose lease expires next March is to have a new theater on Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury with a seating capacity of 2500. Plans are now being drawn. The new house will be finished early next spring.

Maritime Provinces Letter.

By Frederick F. Sully, Box 1229, St. John, New Brunswick, Can.

Important Cog in Local Industry.

ST JOHN, N. B.—That the Maritime Provinces are quickly becoming motion-picturized so far as their people are concerned may be gleaned from the fact that to date it is estimated that there is no less than $500,000 invested in property in these provinces devoted exclusively to the motion picture industry. The number of employes runs well into the thousands and although we do not hope to take a place beside some of the larger American or even Canadian centres we are growing, and old Mother Moving Picture has a progeny in these provinces which would have taxed the inventive genius of the old lady in the shoe, but then she was not of Mother Motion Picture's ilk.

New Theater Rumored.

St. John, N. B.—Anent talk of the expansion of the moving picture industry in the Maritime Provinces comes the rumor, apparently well founded, that St. John is to have a new playhouse of ample dimensions and that it will be one of the motion picture hubs of the province. The new theater proposed will, 'tis said, occupy a commanding site in the city, and while musical comedies and stock shows will be handled sparingly, moving pictures will be the strong point of the management. The report says the house will seat at least fifteen hundred persons.

Wally Van Visits St. John.

St. John, N. B.—The Loyalist City has been honored by a visit from Wally Van, the Vitagraph's funniest little man of the screen. He came here last week for a few days after having completed a strenuous "trick" with the camera in the directing of the V-L-S-E new serial, "The Scarlet Runner," in which Earle Williams plays the lead.

Wally Van says he wants to have a turn in musical comedy. It is just a hobby of his having in his toddling days on the stage before films came into his vision dreamed dreams and saw visions of the day when he would be lyric tenor in the finest musical comedy that ever graced the footlights, but he was destined for the picture. St. John gave the artist a great welcome, and he says he will return again in the near future.

NOTES FROM NEWARK, N. J.

By Jacob Kalter, 51 Strand Theater Bldg., Newark, N. J.

Film Delivery Company.

Newark, N. J.—The Newark & New York Special Delivery Company has been incorporated with registered offices at 118 Market street. The concern, which is capitalized at $100,000, will transport motion picture film. The incorporators are I. Boyland, J. M. Heck, and Ray Cooper.

Levison Leaves Newark.

Newark, N. J.—Leo F. Levison, former manager of the World Film, at 59-60 Strand theater building, is now organized for the same concern in Pittsburgh. Mr. Levison has made an envious reputation upon the managers of New Jersey, and we are sincerely sorry at his loss to the city.

Siegel Secures "Yellow Menace."

Newark, N. J.—Samuel C. Siegel, former manager of the Newark Film Exchange, 189 Market street, is now booking the Unity serial, "The Yellow Menace." Mr. Siegel is now located in the Strand theater building.

The largest staff of experts in all departments makes the MOVING PICTURE WORLD the one paper in the trade that fully fills the requirements of every reader.

CAPITAL CITY NOTES.

Plans have been filed with the building inspector of the District of Columbia covering the reseating of the Apollo theater, on H street, northeast. The new floor plans call for an addition of sixty-five seats, making the total seating accommodation of that house 930.

A number of Washington and out-of-town newspaper men, exhibitors and others were the joint guests of Tom Moore and Sidney B. Lust of the New and Famous Players exchanges, at a private showing of "Purity" at the Strand theater, September 19. This feature is booked for a long run at the Strand, and if the comments heard at this showing can be accepted as a forerunner of general public opinion, this photoplay should go big in this city. Small statues, depicting "Purity" have been secured by Mr. Lust, who has the films for the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia, and are being put out where they will prove most advantageous. In addition large numbers of one sheets have been posted around town.

Joseph Partridge general representative of the V-L-S-E, stopped over in Washington while en route to Atlanta, Ga., last week. While here he joined with Manager Frank H. Spurrier of the local exchange in looking for new quarters for this concern as last outgrowing the space available for them at their present address.

While here Mr. Partridge also took up with the exchange employees the new "Secret Runner" serial. For this purpose the salesmen were brought in to the office from the points where they were placing service and were given many pointers on these films. Mr. Partridge is quite well known in the National Capital by reason of former connections which brought him here on visits from time to time.

Empire Wants Children Patrons.

Manager Samuel Greenberg, of the Empire theater, on H street, between Ninth and Tenth streets, northeast, has been making a bid for the children's trade for his Saturday afternoon matinees. For their especial benefit he secured Leon Toone, the ventriloquist, and his talking dolls, and distributed to the first three hundred children appearing for admission, wagons, dolls, horns, games, etc. These gifts and added attractions are not permanent institutions at the Empire and were discontinued after the second or third Saturday. They brought the desired results, and introduced the house to nundreds of youngsters and their parents who perhaps had never before visited it.

Sidney B. Lust Makes Improvements.

Washington, D. C.—Sidney B. Lust, proprietor of the United Film Service, is making numerous improvements to the property at 903 E street, northwest, which he now occupies. The first floor, a store, is being entirely remodeled; a new front is being erected and the interior is to be repainted and decorated. Mr. Lust will hereafter use this space for his own business rather than rent it to others as he has been doing. In all probability it will be utilized as a display room for a number of big features, which he contemplates marketing in this territory in the near future.

Washington Exchanges and Censors

Censor Fees on Old Commercial Reels Cause Dissatisfaction—Conference in Baltimore with Board Results in Concession of Few Weeks' Leeway—Reels Are of Too Little Value to Warrant the Tax.

By Clarence L. Linz, 63 Tenth St. N. E., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Managers from the various exchanges in Washington, doing business in Maryland and having to observe the provisions of the Maryland censorship law, journeyed to Baltimore on September 19 to confer with the members of the Maryland State Board of Motion Picture Censors with respect to the payment of the tax and the submission for censorship of the old, worn-out, valueless reels that are merely used for fillers and emergency shows.

It seems that the censors had ruled that on and after November 1, of this year, all of these commercial reels would have to undergo the same treatment as the newer productions. This would prove a hard blow to the exchanges, some of which have many hundreds of these films on their shelves, and it would be a very expensive matter for them to have to pay $2 a reel when it is doubtful if they ever get that much in return from renting them.

The censors were asked to extend the time for placing this ruling into effect, and they finally consented to do so, January 1, 1917, being the new effective date. They intimated that they held to this requirement because of the need for funds with which to conduct their work. They said that it costs $1,000 a month to exert this censorship, and it was admitted that about 150 reels a week came up for their examination, making the income about $1,200 a month, an excess of approximately $200, if these figures are correct. The members of the board, however, claim not to be making any money for the state.

It was pointed out that the exchange managers finding the cost prohibitive, would probably not send these films into Maryland for exhibition, which action would greatly hurt the business of those exhibitors of the state who cannot afford a more expensive service. That, however, to the board is a contingency representing a bridge not to be crossed until met. It was also pointed out to them that the exchanges could very easily cut down the number of new films from 150 to 100 per week, there again lowering the revenue that would accrue.

There is a great deal of dissatisfaction over the stand taken by the board. It was pointed out to its members that this has been an exceptionally bad year in Maryland. In Baltimore alone there were forty houses closed at the one time, and the infantile paralysis scare has worked to the detriment of the business. It was therefore incumbent upon the board to be as lenient as possible with the film men that no further hardship may be caused.

It is said that the board has denied tightening the lines under which they are now working from those announced when the board was first formed, although it is stated that they have ordered a great many eliminations and have refused license to several photoplays.

Among those who attended this conference were: J. H. Butner, Triangle; Sidney B. Lust, New Film and Famous Players; Mr. Wathne, International; Mr. Wales, World Film; Mr. Evans, Mutual; L. M. Day, Metro, Inc.; Frank B. Spurrier, V-L-S-E; Mr. Nelson, General Film, and Mr. Berger, representing Kleine-Edison, all of Washington, D. C.; Mr. Oletsky, of the Universal, and Nicholas Weems, of the Mutual, both of Baltimore, Md.

Corbin Sheild Will Assist Manager Mann

Washington, D. C.—Corbin Sheild, formerly a well-known theater manager of Virginia, has assumed his duties as head of the publicity department of the Famous Players' exchange, as assistant to Manager George M. Mann. Mr. Sheild is well known locally to the motion picture business and to the exhibitors and newspaper men of the Southern territory. He has managed theaters in Richmond, Norfolk, Newport News and Lynchburg, Va., for the late Thomas G. Leath, and more recently in Augusta, Ga., Knoxville, Tenn., and Savannah, Ga., for Jake Wells. Two years ago he assumed the management of the Strand in Richmond, Va., one of the best-known houses in the South. It is said that owing to the fact that satisfactory arrangements could not be made with the owners on account of previous litigation over the property, the lease could not be renewed after the first year, and Mr. Sheild was transferred to the management of the Little theater, in the same city. The owners of this house later disposed of their interests and some time after Mr. Sheild accepted the offer of Mr. Mann to join him here as publicity manager.

Mr. Sheild is a native of Richmond, Va. He is a man of pleasing characteristics and one who readily makes many friends. It is expected that he will soon make a place for himself in the ranks of those who have already secured a foothold in the motion picture field of the National Capital.

Express Companies Prosper.

Washington, D. C.—One often hears the tale that the express companies are doing business with little or no profit, and thus it is that the announcement of the Interstate Commerce Commission recently to the effect that the earnings of the principal express companies increased more than 500 per cent. for the 11 months of May 30, 1916, above the amount for the eleven months ending May 30, 1915. Net revenues totaled $9,943,422, as compared with $1,705,396 a year ago. Gross revenues totaled $82,865,512 as compared with $68,402,143 a year ago. No explanation is given for this great increase.

Will Try Fraudulent Advertising Law

District of Columbia Authorities Have a Case Against a Local Merchant Now Waiting Trial—Will Be Worth Watching.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Local exhibitors are watching with a great deal of interest the progress being made in the campaign to eliminate fraudulent advertising from the business of the District of Columbia. There is a case now pending in the United States branch of the Police Court wherein a merchant is charged with a violation of the so-called Johnson fraudulent advertising law. This was to have been tried September 20, but the inability of securing a jury panel caused its postponement to October 4, when a new jury will be called in. A great deal hinges on the result of this case, for plans have been made to go after a number of others who are believed to be getting away from actual truth in advertising. It has been said that motion picture exhibitors are not beyond stretching the truth in advertising their houses, and many instances of this have been brought to the attention of the Moving Picture World correspondent. Exhibitors should steer clear of violations for a conviction in the police court would not help their business any.

J. E. Flax Away for a Few Days.

Washington, D. C.—The Moving Picture World correspondent was very much surprised last week to find J. E. Flax, the popular assistant manager of the local exchange of the General Film Company, absent from his desk. Mr. Flax holds a record in the office of never having been absent a day, Sundays and holidays included, during the five years of his employment. So attached is he to his work he has never taken a vacation, and this is something unusual for a young man of twenty-three. It is said that he would be plugging away right through to extend this record had he not been called to New York by the home office to help straighten out some matters connected with the Washington branch. As this is his first visit to the Metropolis he will avail himself of a short vacation.

H. A. Ruppert Comes to Local Mutual.

Washington, D. C.—The latest addition to the sales force of the Mutual Film Company's Washington exchange is H. A. Ruppert, formerly an exhibitor in Toronto, Canada, and more lately a director and manufacturer of films. He has produced a number of advertising films, among which was one for the General Electric Company. He thus has had experience in all three branches of the business and is pretty well equipped to go among the exhibitors handling the Mutual product. He is to travel through Virginia and West Virginia for the present.

Dismisses Censorship Appeal

Philadelphia Judge in Common Pleas Court Dismisses Appeal of the Humanity Film Company and Joseph Gaites from Decision of State Board of Censors on "Where Are My Children."

By Philadelphia News Service, 326 Real Estate Trust Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Judge Audenreid recently filed a decision in Common Pleas Court No. 4, dismissing the appeal taken by the Humanity Film Company and Joseph Gaites from the decision of the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors refusing to allow the exhibition of the film, "Where Are My Children?"

A hearing in the case took place last Saturday, Sept. 16, after which Judges Audenreid and Carr visited the display rooms of the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors at Eighteenth and Filbert streets, and sat through a private exhibition of the picture. In refusing to allow the appeal the court said:

"Upon consideration of the evidence, after having at the request of the parties involved, viewed an exhibtion of the series of moving pictures retained on the films involved in this case, the court finds that in condemning the representation on said films of the drama known as "Where Are My Children?" on the ground that it tends to debase or corrupt morals, the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors did not abuse the discretionary power vested in it by law or act arbitrarily or oppressively. The appeal of the Humanity Film Company and Joseph M. Gaites from decision of said board is therefore dismissed."

This is only another instance in which the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors have seen fit to disallow the exhibition of a feature film which has been approved of by the censors in other states.

Triangle Film Agency Incorporated.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Triangle Film Agency has recently been granted a charter under the laws of the state of Delaware as being of Philadelphia, Pa. The new concern will purchase, lease, own and contract for and manufacture moving picture films and equipment and for conducting a moving picture film exchange. The capital stock of the new company is $250,000. L. B. Phillips and M. M. Hirons being the principal incorporators.

New La Salle Film Corporation.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The La Salle Film Corporation has been chartered under the laws of Delaware to manufacture moving picture machines and films. Samuel B. Howard, L. H. Gunther and Arthur W. Button, all of New York City, being the principal incorporators. The concern has been capitalized at $50,000.

Montgomery Theater Opens.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Montgomery theater, 500 East Girard avenue, under the management of Gus Hagner, has opened for the coming season. During the period of idleness many improvements were made both to the exterior and interior of the house.

Takes Over the Greenfield.

West Philadelphia, Pa.—William Greenfield, proprietor of the Empress theater, Manayunk, has taken over the Imperial theater, located on 60th street below Walnut. This is one of the largest moving picture theaters in West Philadelphia and under the proper management should exhibit to crowded houses this winter.

Hallowe'en Ball to Be Brilliant

Committee Working Hard and Promise the Quaker Town Something New in the Mask Ball Line—Marked Demand for Tickets.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Hallowe'en evening, Tuesday, October 31st, promises to be a history making date in the annals of the moving picture industry in Philadelphia, following the announcement of the Motion Picture Employes' Association of the masked ball to be held at the Eagles' Temple, Broad and Spring Garden streets, on that date. The committee in charge of the affair have been flooded with requests for tickets and the advance sale would do credit to a sensational Broadway play and reports from all quarters read the same—namely that the "tickets are going like hot cakes."

Bert F. Tichner, the popular official of the Stanley Company, heads the list with $25 worth of tickets and is most optimistic concerning the ball, as are Billy Katz, manager of the Stanley theater, and Jules Katsiff, head of the purchasing department. Frank Ennis, the well known advertising agent, is doing his share toward ensuring the success of the venture and "Gayety Frankie" certainly is well versed in the art of doing.

Reports from the programme committee indicate that the souvenir programme is fast being filled and that very little space remains vacant. Davey Lodge, of the Ruby theater, Seventh and Market streets, and S. Kaplan are accomplishing unheard of results in the way of hustling and everything promises to be in readiness long before the appointed moment for opening the doors.

Spurred on by this early success the boys are working harder than ever and they promise the Quaker Town something new in the way of a masquerade ball. Two large orchestras will furnish the music from 7.30 p. m. until 3 a. m. Refreshments will be served and everyone present will receive a handsome souvenir photograph of their favorite moving picture star.

Indications point to the fact that those attending the ball will enjoy a night of fun and jollification long to be remembered. Tickets can be purchased direct from Dave Lodge, Ruby theater, Seventh and Market streets.

The Week in Baltimore

By J. M. Shellman, 1902 Mt. Royal Ter., Baltimore, Md.

New Garden Theater Opens.

BALTIMORE, MD.—On Wednesday night, Sept. 20, the new Garden theater, at Charles and Cross streets, was opened to the public after having been entirely remodeled by the owners. The seating capacity of this structure is now 900 and the dimensions are 126 by 170 feet. One of the features of this theater is the lobby, which is spacious and airy. O. C. Pacey is now manager.

Policy Changes at New Pickwick.

Baltimore, Md.—G. Horton Gaffney, manager and owner of the New Pickwick theater, 115 North Howard street, announces that hereafter, a new policy will be in effect at this house. All pictures to be exhibited at this theater will be screened before shown to patrons. Lady ushers have been engaged and a stringed orchestra will render appropriate music for the performances.

Edgar Fetch a Daddy.

Baltimore, Md.—Edgar Fetch, secretary to Harry Woods, resident manager of Loew's Hippodrome theater, is now a proud and happy papa. The stork visited his home on Monday, September 11th and presented Mr. Fetch and his wife with a bouncing 11 pound baby girl.

H. I. Rosefield Goes to Denver.

Baltimore, Md.—H. I. Rosefield, who represented the World Film's Washington office in Baltimore, has left this office to go to Denver, Col., where he will manage the World Film Office in that city. H. E. Flaherty, who has just come to the Washington office, it is understood will travel the territory formerly covered by Mr. Rosefield.

New Theater Proposed.

Baltimore, Md.—Plans were filed with building inspector J. J. Byrne, by Louis Helldorfer, on Friday, September 15th, for a moving picture theater to be located at 2238-43 East Fayette street. Mr. Helldorfer states that he expects the structure to cost in the neighborhood of $10,000 when it is completed.

Bunny Theater Reopens.

Baltimore, Md.—The Bunny theater, located at 1225 Columbia avenue, has again been reopened to the public by F. H. Rothrock, the owner and manager.

Lobby of Mt. Royal Redecorated.

Baltimore, Md.—A. B. Price, manager of the Mt. Royal theater, 617 West North avenue has had the woodwork of the ticket office and lobby of this house all repainted. The mouldings, wainscoting, border, and door frames have all been done in ivory white and the woodwork of the doors have been finished in mahogany. The appearance has become quite natty.

Changes at Walbrook Theater.

Baltimore, Md.—The Walbrook theater at North avenue and Rosedale street, which is now under the management of Solon L. Wonders, and which is practically a new theater, is having the floor and seats on the sides of the main auditorium entirely changed owing to the bowl in the floor being at too great an angle. This work, however, has not closed the house.

Wilson Theater Improvements.

Baltimore, Md.—Guy L. Wonders, manager of the Wilson theater, Baltimore and Gay streets, has innovated a new effect in the lobby of his house in the way of ticket booths. The top and sides of the ticket both have been constructed of leaded art glass, with the roof mounting as a dome. At night a beautiful color effect is gained by having the interior illuminated.

Theater Ordinance Held Up.

Baltimore, Md.—The ordinance authorizing the remodeling of the Casino on North avenue, near Charles street, this city, into a moving picture theater, was held up Monday night, September 18th, in the First Branch of the City Council. This is one of the ordinances which was held over from the spring and when it was requested by Dr. T. O. Heatwole, representative of the 12th ward, that it be made known why this measure was being held on the second-reading file, a motion for which J. D. Spencer, of the 4th ward had made, Mr. Spencer stated that as chairman of the First Branch Committee on Police and Jail, he was opposed to railroading measures through the Council. When a vote was taken on Mr. Spencer's motion, it was upheld by a vote of 11 to 9; but two Republican members of the Council left the chamber, before their names had been called.

NORTH CAROLINA FILM ITEMS.

Fayetteville's Strand About to Open.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C.—H. F. Drake, who now operates the Lyric theater here, is soon to take possession of a modern motion picture theater which is being constructed for him. The new structure is planned to have a seating capacity for 650 in the auditorium and balcony, for the house is to be built along the lines of a legitimate playhouse. It is to be known as the Strand and will contain the most modern improvements and up-to-the-minute equipment. The Lyric can accommodate only about 250 people. Mr. Drake has been running it for some three or four years and has been successful to the point that he has felt himself badly cramped in the smaller house. He believes he can make a great success with the big features and he is going in strong. His new theater will be one that Fayetteville can be justly proud of, for everything is being done to make it both comfortable and attractive. There is one other house here, the Dixie theater, operated by Steve Lambert.

Piedmont Theater Opens.

Charlotte, N. C.—Morrow Bros., formerly of Missouri, are opening the Piedmont theater here with U. B. O. vaudeville and high-grade pictures. The prices have been increased to 25, 35 and 50 cents for evening performances, and 15 and 25 cents for the matinees. This house was formerly operated by R. D. Craver.

Elizabeth City, N. C.—Manager Kramer, of the Alkramer theater, is making arrangements for increasing the seating capacity of that house.

Charlotte, N. C.—R. D. Craver, of the Craver Film & Supply Company, has gone to New York to look over the motion picture field and witness the screening of a number of films.

Doings in Pittsburgh This Week

Changes in Film Circles—C. G. Kingsley Heads Famous Players Exchange—Schatz-Muntz Company Buys Theaters—Manager Lyon of the International Promoted—Other Notes of Interest.

From Pittsburgh News Service, 6016 Jenkins Arcade, Pittsburgh, Pa.

C. G. Kingsley Heads Famous Players.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—A shake up in the organization of the Famous Players Film Service, Inc., has taken place here with the appointment of C. G. Kingsley as branch manager in this city to succeed R. C. Schmidt. Mr. Schmidt is now special traveling representative out of the Pittsburgh office.

Mr. Kingsley was formerly in charge of the Cincinnati branch of the Fox Film Corporation and has had wide experience in the film business. He assumed that position recently, having been transferred from the Fox offices at Detroit, where he had been in charge during the past year. W. C. Watson has become assistant manager of the Famous Players here, succeeding G. C. Rich.

The many Pittsburgh friends of Harry W. Irons, who was previously manager of the Famous office in this city for some time, have tendered him their best wishes upon his appointment to the management of the new Cleveland, O., branch of the company.

Schatz-Muntz Co. Buys Theaters.

Meadville, Pa.—A new concern known as the Schatz-Muntz Amusement Co. was formed recently for the purpose of owning and operating moving picture theaters and has been incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania with a capital stock of $25,000. The company has acquired the Photoplay theater and the Lyceum theater, at Meadville, Pa., and has just purchased the beautiful Mercer Square theater, at Greenville, Pa., a new house which was opened on July 1. All of the houses are up-to-date in every particular and among the finest in their locality.

The officers of the new company are Charles Shatz, president; R. H. Muntz, treasurer, and H. P. Weir, secretary. The theaters will be managed personally by Mr. Muntz, while Mr. Schatz will have charge of booking the attractions of the three houses. The company contemplates adding several other theaters to their chain in the near future.

B. F. Lyon Promoted.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—B. F. Lyon, for the past six months manager of the Pittsburgh branch of the International Film Service, has been promoted to the position of general manager of the exchanges of the company and has taken up his headquarters at New York. Mr. Lyon came to this city as manager of the Pittsburgh Pathe exchange, but resigned after remaining with that concern about three months to establish the local office of the International. He achieved marked success in this territory and it is in recognition of his broad knowledge of the business that the company appointed him to the general managership. His host of friends among the exhibitors and exchanges wish him continued success in his new position. Mr. Lyon is succeeded here by E. J. McGurty, formerly of the road staff of this office. Mr. McGurty covered the West Virginia and Southwestern Pennsylvania territory and is known as a hustler.

J. P. Donovan Managing Regent.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The Rowland & Clark theaters, Pittsburgh, Pa., has placed J. P. Donovan, formerly general manager, in charge of the Regent theater, Penn and Highland avenues, East Liberty, to succeed Jerome Caspar. Mr. Caspar has resigned to assume the managership of the Duquesne Garden Skating Rink, which will open about October 1. Mr. Donovan was previously manager of the Regent, but later became general manager of the Rowland & Clark chain. This position has been abolished, as it is announced that J. B. Clark will hereafter devote more of his time to the various theaters. William F. Kirsch, house manager of the Bellevue theater, will now do the booking for the entire Rowland & Clark chain of houses.

Feature Films at the Ridgeway.

Ridgeway, Pa.—The Ridgeway Opera House, Ridgeway, has been reopened for the season under a new policy and will hereafter run feature pictures with an occasional road show. The theater was extensively remodeled during the summer months, receiving new decorations throughout and much up-to-date equipment. Two new projection machines of the latest design and a new screen have been installed. Another fine improvement is a beautiful stage setting. The house is in charge of E. B. McClain, an experienced and very progressive manager.

Mountaineer Film Company.

Logan, W. Va.—The Mountaineer Film Company, of Logan, W. Va., was recently granted a state charter of incorporation under the laws of West Virginia to manufacture and sell moving picture films. The authorized capital stock is $5,000. The incorporators are A. J. Dalton and John A. Holley, of Omar, O. J. Degans, G. T. Swann, H. S. Gay, Jr., Peter Minoth and others of Logan.

Norfolk Returning to Its Censorship

City Council's Ordinance Committee Takes Up Censor Question Again Despite Recent Agrement with Local Exhibitors.

By Clarence L. Linz, 635 Tenth St. N. E., Washington, D. C.

NORFOLK, VA.—The Ordinance Committee of the City Council, with Chairman Hosier and three of the other four members present, on September 18, brought up the matter of motion picture censorship, despite the fact that Major Walke Truxton had been willing to withdraw his resolution providing for censorship of motion picture films after securing the written promise of the managers and owners of the motion picture theaters of this city to the effect that no immoral or sex problem plays would be introduced into their houses.

It is said that the Ordinance Committee considers this matter worthy of further discussion and study. The question was temporarily passed over and before it is again taken up, copies of the resolution will be furnished each of the members.

It was thought that when Major Truxton agreed to withdraw his resolution and it was shown that the exhibitors of Norfolk were willing to abide by their promises and meet the desires of that element which is seeking censorship, no more would be said or would be necessary in the matter. Censorship will have a bad effect upon the motion picture industry of Norfolk, and without need, for this city prides itself upon the quality of the films exhibited. It has not yet been proven that censorship is necessary.

Theater To Be the Broadway.

Lynchburg, Va.—The Universal theater here has been reopened under the name of the Broadway by the Piedmont Amusement Company. A number of improvements have been made and among other things a new Rembush silver fiber screen has been put in place, a new electric motor generator installed and, as the management puts it, "the house has been given a new coat of paint inside and out."

Norfolk's Strand's New Policy.

Norfolk, Va.—The Strand theater reopened September 18, after being closed a week to be remodeled and greatly improved in advance of the heavy season expected for it. Manager Hofheimer says that he has decided to give the people of this section a theater that will compare with the best in the country. This includes the engagement of Passeri and his band and orchestra. It was necessary to enlarge the orchestra pit to accommodate all of these musicians. In addition to this wonderful musical organization, Mr. Hofheimer has arranged for further entertainment by two artists of known reputation as soloists.

Fire in Booth of Norfolk Theater.

Norfolk, Va.—Two reels of film were destroyed and the projection machines quite badly damaged in a fire that broke out through the ignition of torn film in the operator's booth at the Crossman theater. Jack Williamson, the operator, saved the other films that were in the booth.

New House for East Radford.

East Radford, Va.—W. D. Roberts, who now operates the Dreamland theater here, is to have a new house with a larger seating capacity. Ground has already been broken for the new enterprise and the work will be pushed to completion. This theater is to have a seating capacity of about 500, the Dreamland accommodates only about 320 people, and Mr. Roberts has long ago outgrown so limited a seating capacity.

Cincinnati Exchanges Generous

Dayton Plague Ban Cuts Theater Receipts—Exhibitors Come to Cincinnati and Hold Conference with Local Exchange Managers Who Agree to Cut Charges for Picture Shows in Dayton Till Better Times.

By Kenneth C. Crain, 610 First National Bank, Cincinnati, Ohio.

CINCINNATI, O.—The effect of the infantile paralysis scare upon all departments of the moving picture business was strikingly illustrated a few days ago when a delegation of Dayton, O., exhibitors, fourteen strong, came to Cincinnati, following the action of the Dayton authorities forbidding children under the age of 16 years to attend the theaters. There are only a few cases of the disease in Dayton, it seems, but the authorities decided to take no chances on its spread, and not only postponed the opening of the schools, but took the action referred to with reference to the theaters.

As it was estimated that this would cut off about 50 per cent. of the business of the moving picture houses, the exhibitors got together and decided to make an appeal to the film exchanges at Cincinnati who furnish their service. Accordingly, the delegation came down, took quarters at the Hotel Metropole, and invited the exchange managers to come and talk things over with them. The Dayton exhibitors laid the situation frankly before the film men, pointing out that with their business cut in two they could not afford to pay the same service rates as heretofore; and after some discussion, the film men agreed, during the time the regulation against children remains in force, to reduce their service rates by one-half. Virtually every exchange in the city was represented.

The generous action taken has enabled the Dayton houses to continue in operation in spite of the reduction in their business, and they have expressed their hearty appreciation of the aid extended by the exchanges. As far as known, nothing of this sort has been done elsewhere by film men, but the wisdom and good sense of the course taken are evident.

Cincinnati Screen Club Elects Officers

Charles Weigel Chosen President—C. E. Holah Made Member of Executive Committee—Loving Cup to A. M. Muller.

CINCINNATI, O.—A recent meeting of the Cincinnati Screen Club, attended by a majority of the members, found a considerable amount of business to be transacted, and the meeting was one of the most important thus far held. The election of officers was the principal feature. President C. E. Holah announced in advance that by reason of the considerable amount of work thrust on him in connection with the expansion of the Greater Vitagraph Company, he would not be able to accept a re-election. The election resulted as follows:

President, Charles Weigel, manager of the Alhambra theater; vice president, Clay E. Brehm, of the Bluebird exchange; secretary, Harry Bugie, of the George Kleine exchange; treasurer, W. S. Wessling, of the Pathe exchange.

Mr. Holah was made a member, with the officers, of the executive committee of the club, which has charge of its management.

An interesting and affecting event at the meeting was the presentation of a silver loving cup to A. M. Muller, on the occasion of his leaving Cincinnati to go to New York. Mr. Muller until recently was manager of the Cincinnati exchange of the Fix Film Corporation, and has been active in film work in Cincinnati for several years. He was a popular member of the club, and was much moved by the evidence given of the esteem of his fellow members. G. N. Kingsley is in charge of the Fox exchange.

T. V. Prentice to Build Theater.

Cincinnati, O.—A handsome and up-to-date moving picture theater, to be the largest and most completely equipped in the East End of Cincinnati, is to be built by Thomas V. Prentice and others on Eastern avenue, near Tusculum avenue. Plans have been prepared by C. Grunkemeyer, architect, and work is to start soon.

Rumor of a Theater Change.

Cincinnati, O.—Developments which indicate the probability of another large moving picture house in the downtown section of the city were indicated by approaches recently made by representatives of a New York syndicate to several local theatrical men. One of these was Manager Hubert Heuck, of Heuck's theater. According to Mr. Heuck, he was informed that the New York interests desire to rent, lease or possibly purchase a Cincinnati house, in touch with the center of the city, and with a seating capacity of not less than 2,000. Nothing definite has been ascertained as to the interests behind the move, nor as to the purposes for which the house would be used. Theatrical property is valuable in Cincinnati just now, however, and a house near the downtown section would cost a good deal.

Children's Shows at Majestic.

Springfield, O.—Arrangements are being made by which a children's moving picture program will be shown during the fall and winter each Saturday morning at the Majestic theater. Arrangements were perfected by Miss Mary Bertha Thompson, who was in the city recently arranging the matter. The pictures will consist of approved subjects for children, including fairy tales, nature and historical subjects, and the like.

Grand Jury Kills Sunday Prosecution.

Wadsworth, O.—A rather unexpected outcome of the fight made against Sunday moving picture shows was the refusal of the grand jury to sanction the prosecution of William Standen and William Dunlap, exhibitors who were arrested on the charge of having their theaters open on Sunday. The two were fined in a justice's court $100 each, with costs, and promptly appealed to the higher court. The grand jury refused to permit the matter to proceed, and the cases are probably disposed of.

Film Week in Buffalo

By Joseph A. McGuire, 5 Lewis Block, Buffalo, N. Y.

Changes Among Local Managers.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Various changes in the ownership or management of Buffalo theaters have recently been noted.

Lyric Theater Leased.

The Olympic Theater Company has leased the Lyric theater for five years. The Olympic theater is on Lafayette square and the Lyric is nearby in Washington street. Both will continue however their policy of running popular vaudeville and moving pictures. Bruce Fowler will continue as manager of the Olympic and Harold B. Franklin will remain as manager of the Lyric. Mr. Franklin's assistant is C. L. Snyder. Mr. Franklin will also continue as general manager of the Family, a moving picture theater. The Lyric was recently reopened after having been embellished throughout with attractive wall colors and lights. The Family also has been reopened. The exterior and interior of this house have been redecorated and new lighting effects introduced. Mr. Franklin recently gave a complimentary screening of "War's Women," the opening attraction, before a party of newspapermen and public officials. The performance was favorably received.

J. A. Schuchert Gets Picture Theater Interests.

J. A. Schuchert, a pioneer in the local film business, has taken over Louis Weil's interests in the Elmwood, Allendale, Columbia, Colonial and Keith's moving picture theaters in this city. Harry Marsey is meeting with success as general manager of these houses. Charles Bowe, formerly of the Allendale, will manage Keith's. His successor at the Allendale is William Lowry. Mr. Schuchert has returned to Buffalo with his family from their summer home at Wanakah, N. Y.

Joseph Lee Steering Merit Film Office.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Joseph Lee has been appointed manager of the Buffalo office of the Merit Film, which releases Ivan pictures. His assistant is F. W. Wyckoff. Mr. Lee was formerly traveling representative of the Merit in Eastern New York. In Buffalo he succeeds F. J. Willis, transferred to the Ivan offices in Boston. The latest Ivan release in Buffalo is "Her Surrender."

J. C. Hemment at Lady Mackenzie Film.

Buffalo, N. Y.—J. C. Hemment is at the office of the Lady Mackenzie Film Company, 29 Franklin street, Buffalo, assisting in assembling and editing African hunt and war pictures. This company is also working on a series of pictures called "Toto Comedies" at Stoney Brook, Lake Chautauqua. The films are based on the antics of "Toto," an ape, owned by Lady Mackenzie.

J. M. Sitterly Booking for Popular Film.

Buffalo, N. Y.—J. M. Sitterly of the Popular Film, Buffalo, is covering the towns along the main line of the New York Central. He is taking bookings on the film, "The Unborn." His firm has the New York state rights on this production and on "Purity" and Madame Pavlowa in "The Dumb Girl of Portici."

Charles R. Rogers Has Son Born.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Charles R. Rogers, general manager of the Rogson Film Company, is receiving congratulations over the recent birth of a son.

W. H. Teeple With Mutual.

Buffalo, N. Y.—W. H. Teeple is now traveling representative of the local Mutual. He was formerly assistant at the Triangle office in Pittsburgh.

Local Theater Changes.

Buffalo, N. Y.—James Leason of Rochester has taken over the Edisonia moving picture theater, Buffalo.

Olean, N. Y.—Mr. and Mrs. John Brunswick have opened Lang's Dreamland, an Olean moving picture house.

Olean, N. Y.—Manager Barnes has opened the Grand theater, Olean, for the season, with vaudeville and moving pictures.

Ogdensburg, N. Y.—The new Strand theater, Ogdensburg, will open shortly.

Ridgeway, Pa.—Miss Irene Stout has built the new Orpheum moving picture theater in Ridgeway, Pa. This house seats 400. Her first Ridgeway house, which she closed, bore the same name.

Canton, N. Y.—Two moving picture houses and a theater playing pictures and road shows in Canton, N. Y., have opened for the season. They were closed during the hot weather on account of poor business.

Illinois News Items

By Frank H Madison, 623 South Wabash Ave., Chicago Ill

Exhibitor James Watson Dies.

CHRISMAN, Ill James Watson 60 years old, proprietor of the Empire theater here, died at his home here Two sons and a daughter survive.

Two New Incorporations.

Springfield, Ill.- The state has issued certificates of incorporation to the following:

The LaSalle Film company, Chicago, capital $10,000; incorporators, P. A. Grau, F L. Eatcman, J. H Kohler

Riverside Amusement company, East Dubuque, capital $2,500, incorporators William E Ellawanger, William Hughes, M F Leiser, J M Daily, William J. Hesseling

Governor Dunne Renominated.

Springfield, Ill.—Illinois exhibitors are pleased at the renomination of Governor Edward F. Dunne on the Democratic ticket. Governor Dunne vetoed the censorship laws passed by the last legislature.

Making a Historic Picture.

Ottawa, Ill.—The return of Father Marquette to the Illinonis Valley will be depicted in a film to be made for the Gayety theater by the Standard Motion Picture company. Another scene of historical significance will be a reproduction of the Lincoln-Douglas debate at Washington Park.

New Illinois Theaters and Changes.

Virden, Ill.—Howard Wanes of Girard has purchased the moving picture equipment of William McNamar and has taken a three year lease on the building.

Peoria, Ill.—The Princess theater has discontinued vaudeville and will be devoted exclusively to high class feature films. The Hippodrome under the same management has started on the vaudeville season but using three reels of pictures.

Oak Park, Ill.—H. E. McManus who has been connected with the Oak Park theater has gone to Duluth, Minn., where he will have the management of two photoplay houses.

Farmington, Ill.—Manager Jesse Chance has increased the seating capacity of the Strand theater.

East St. Louis, Ill.—"Silas Marner" was the first feature which Redmon's Majestic theater selected for a free Saturday show to high school students. A special propram was also shown free to pupils of the graded school. J. M. Livaudais is leading an orchestra of ten pieces.

Rock Island, Ill.—The Paragon Feature Film Company, of Omaha, Neb., is making a two-reel local film for the Rock Island club.

Benefit at the Kincaid.

Kincaid, Ill.—The Kincaid theater gave a benefit show for the family of a miner accidentally killed. The local band erected a platform in front of the theater and gave a concert preceding the show.

In Michigan.

Port Huron, Mich.—The newly incorporated Family theater company has awarded the contract for the remodeling of the Family theater on Huron avenue into a fireproof theater seating 1,000. The present theater will be used as a lobby. Officers of the new organization are: President, Capt. J. T. Reid; vice-president, Herman Appel; secretary, David McArron; treasurer and manager, L. C. Bedford.

Ishpeming, Mich.—The Butler theater which was closed for the summer has reopened.

Adrian, Mich.—"The Romance of Miss Adrian" was made for the New Family and Garden theaters.

Detroit's New Regent Opens

Audience of 3,500 Invited Guests See Premier Show at the Newest Klatt Theater on Woodward and Horton Avenues—Charles W. Porter Is the House Manager and C. A. McVicker, the General Director—Policy of the House.

By Jacob Smith, 503 Free Press Building, Detroit Mich

DETROIT, Mich.—Detroit's reputation for beautiful photoplay houses was further enhanced on Monday, Sept. 18, when the New Regent theater, Woodward and Horton avenues, owned by William F. Klatt, was opened to a private audience of about 3500 persons. The Regent is the fifth in the chain owned by William F. Klatt and is the largest, having a seating capacity of about 3,100. Charles W. Porter is house manager, and C. A. McVicker is general director. Ivan Rudisill, of New York City, is musical director.

While the Monday opening was a private one, the official opening for the public took place Tuesday and the theater was crowded at all performances.

The policy of the Regent will be performances at 2, 7 and 9 p. m., with prices at 15, 25, and 50 cents downstairs and 10 to 35 cents upstairs. For the matinee, prices are from 10 to 25 cents. The attraction the opening week was "God's Half Acre," a Metro feature, Hearst Weekly and a Sidney Drew Comedy, besides orchestra and organ selections and vocal solos.

In a later issue of the WORLD we will show photographs of this beautiful playhouse with a complete technical story, so at this time we are simply going to mention briefly a few interesting things about the Regent. A color scheme of ivory gray, gold and blue has been carried out in the wall and ceiling decoration, while the dark, warm green of the chair upholstery makes a splendid background for the dainty combination. The chairs have been placed far enough apart for real comfort. Washed air, modern fire exits and other devices add to the comfort and safety of the patrons.

The orchestra is large and well conducted by Ivan Rudisill, while a mammoth Kimball pipe organ takes up the continuous thread of music whenever the orchestra halts. We can say honestly that the Regent is Detroit's largest photoplay house. For the Monday night opening many beautiful floral pieces were on exhibition in the foyer being personal gifts from exchange managers, theater owners and friends of Mr. Klatt.

Mitchell Marks Visits John Kunsky.

Detroit, Mich.—The World correspondent had the pleasure of a most interesting chat on Sept. 18 with Mitchell Marks, the man who operates the Strand theater in New York, as well as a chain of theaters in Buffalo and other towns. While in Detroit Mr. Marks was the personal guest of John H. Kunsky. Mr. Marks told the writer that business was improving in all of his houses and that he anticipated a good fall and winter season. Mr. Marks expressed himself as being inclined to favor the open booking policy—in fact, he intimated that such a policy was virtually being forced upon the exhibitor by the manufacturers themselves. In other words, if all the best drawing cards are going to be put out as "specials" how in the world is an exhibitor going to be able to book them unless he has an "open" policy.

Sanitation Code Hearing Oct. 3.

Detroit, Mich.—Only 11 per cent of the amusement places in Detroit, chiefly moving picture theaters, were properly ventilated a year ago when an investigation was conducted by Dr. W. H. Price, health officer, and Frank Walker, sanitation engineer. This data was gathered to assist the health department in framing an amendment to the ordinance regulating the operation of amusement places. Of course, most of the faultfinding was in houses constructed previous to 18 months ago. At the time of the survey there were 136 amusement places. Forty-seven per cent were unventilated. Thirty-two per cent had exhaust fans and ten per cent had air fans, showing a big per cent to be in need of regulation in the interest of public health.

The air supply in almost all places was found to be low. The average was two cubic feet for each minute; the amendment calls for 20 cubic feet for each person. "We feel," said Dr. Price, "that better results could be obtained by fixing the ordinance so that the health department would have something to do about the regulation of amusement places than by bringing a lot of people into court under the sanitation rules." There will be a public hearing on this ordinance in the city hall on October 3rd. Every exhibitor is advised to be on hand.

Social Club for Exchange Managers.

Detroit, Mich.—A "Reel Fellows Club" was organized on Monday evening, Sept. 18, at the Alt Heidelberg, fourteen exchange managers being present. The club is purely a social one and every member of an exchange in Detroit is eligible. There will be no dues. The club will meet once a week, or once every two weeks, and each exchange manager will pay as he goes. The officers are George Trask (Mutual), president; M. S. Bailey (Universal), vice president and J. O. Brooks (Paramount), secretary.

Pictures in Local Public Schools.

Detroit, Mich.—Moving Pictures for the public schools have been authorized by the Board of Education in Detroit. The use of the pictures will be undertaken as an experiment. Five projection machines and a weekly film service for each of the five machines are first to be tried in 25 schools, and if the results warrant, an appropriation will be asked to extend the service to all of the Detroit public schools.

Bert Williams Deserves Credit.

Detroit, Mich.—Bert Williams, of the Woodward Theater Company deserves unlimited credit and praise for what he has done to put the Grand Circus theater, 301 Woodward avenue, on a paying business with clean attractions. We all thought that about the only thing the Grand Circus was fitted for were features that necessitated "No Children Admitted" signs, but Williams has shown us that we were wrong. He has spent considerable money in renovating the Grand Circus, has put in high-class features with a daily change and today the Grand Circus is a real money-maker. He belongs to the class of John H. Kunsky and Harry I. Garson, who have taken dead houses and made successes out of them.

Union Musicians Win Raise.

Detroit, Mich.—Local theater managers have granted the union musicians an increase in their wage amounting to approximately $3 per week per man. This has materially increased the operating expenses of such houses as the Majestic, Washington and Broadway-Strand, where large orchestras are employed for motion pictures.

George W. Trendle, personal counselor to John H. Kunsky, has moved his offices to 2204 Dime Bank building, adjoining those of Mr. Kunsky.

Nashville Theater Consolidation

Report That Crescent Amusement Company Will Take Over the Wassman Interests—Entails Transfer of Knickerbocker, Crystal and Rex Theaters—Only One Uptown House, the Strand, Not Controlled.

By J. L. Ray, 1014 Stahlman Building, Nashville, Tenn.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—A consolidation of Nashville motion picture interests of much importance is reported ready for the final articles of transfer, involving the taking over by the Crescent Amusement Company of the Knickerbocker, Crystal and Rex theaters. The first named houses are in Nashville, while the Rex is located at Knoxville, Tenn. While officials of neither company will officially confirm the fact that a deal has already been closed, it is conceded that a deal will be engineered in the very near future. The Knickerbocker is the handsome $85,000 playhouse only recently completed, the building being owned by a Nashville real estate syndicate, Manager Wassman being in control of all fixtures and equipment.

The proposed combine would give the Crescent Amusement practically an unrestricted program service from which to draw, as that company would be in absolute control of all uptown motion picture theaters, with the exception of the Strand, which theater is the only central house not under operation by either the Sudekum of Wassman interests.

Strand at Mascot Remodeled.

Mascot, Tenn.—A carload of equipment has been received from the Ocoee theater at Cleveland, Tenn., and will be used in the Strand theater at Mascot, which house has been thoroughly remodeled under the direction of Geo. N. Shorey, Knoxville exhibitor. Mr. Shorey obtained possession of the equipment of the Ocoee and Moneta theaters recently, and will continue to operate the latter at Cleveland. This is the first venture into small town business, and he states it is strictly up to the quality of films supplied by the exchanges as to whether he will continue to operate these houses.

Strand Issues Coupon Books.

Nashville, Tenn.—To celebrate the advent of the new program service for the Strand theater, which goes into effect October 11th, Manager Roy Shelton offered a special inducement to the public during the week September 18-23 through the medium of selling a book of fifteen ten-cent admission tickets for $1.00. Even though cutting profits, Mr. Shelton feels that he has been repaid from an advertising standpoint.

Five Cents for Best Features.

Memphis, Tenn.—The Princess theater, operated by the Trimble Amusement Company, is offering the best grade features for five cents, including such high class productions as Bluebird, Essanay, etc. The slogan of this house is "Five Cents—Why Pay More," and the plan is making a hit with the public. (Why shouldn't it?)

Tennessee Film Topics.

Carthage,—A new picture house will be in operation here within a very short time.

Nashville.—President Tony Sudekum has returned from a trip to eastern points, where he went to look after some big bookings for the fall season.

Nashville.—Fred Iron, one of Tennessee's pioneer operators, is now in the projection room of the Knickerbocker, having formerly been located at Jackson, Tenn.

Memphis.—The popularity of the Billie Burke serial is attested by the fact that eleven towns in the state are running "Gloria's Romance" simultaneously.

Nashville.—F. B. Wilson, manager of the Jackson house, and Oscar Altman, of the Murfreesboro interests, were visitors at the home office of the Crescent Amusement Company a few days back.

Atlanta News Letter

By A. M. Beatty, 43 Copenhill Avenue, Atlanta, Ga.

C. D. Danford Comes to Alamo No. 1.

ATLANTA, GA.—C. Douglas Danford, well-known Southern film man, who has been in Chattanooga for the past few years, is now permanently located at the Alamo No. 1, Atlanta. He is popular in Atlanta and his friends are congratulating him upon his return to the city. Mr. Danford was married a short time ago.

Ted Hardcastle Back.

Atlanta, Ga.—Ted Hardcastle, manager of the George Kleine corporation, southern division, returned to Atlanta this week after attending in Chicago a conference called between the officials of the Kleine, Selig, Essanay and Edison companies, all of whom have now combined under the Kleine banner.

Belgium Relief Benefit.

Atlanta, Ga.—A strong program was given Sunday at the Grand for the benefit of the French and Belgian fund. This reopens the relief campaign started last winter. Dr. F. E. May, representative of the Relief Commission in Georgia and Florida, had charge of the performances and impressed the public with the great need that will be faced in France and particularly in Belgium during the coming winter. It is expected that food, clothing and fuel will be extremely scarce. The theater was crowded.

Projection Room Burned Out.

Atlanta, Ga.—Fire Saturday afternoon burned out the operating room of the Bellwood theater at 771 Marietta street, but did no damage to the rest of the interior. The house was crowded at the time, but the people got out without a panic.

Triangle Office Moves.

Atlanta, Ga.—The Triangle Film Company moved into their quarters on second floor of the new Exchange building Friday. Manager Bromberg was the first to move into the new building.

Big Four in New Office.

Atlanta, Ga.—Manager Savin, of the Big Four, moved into the new Exchange building Saturday. The company is on the first floor and has its quarters well arranged.

Indiana Theaters Expect Good Season

New Equipment, New Decorations and Preparations for Humming Winter Season Are the Rule—High Class Pictures Wanted.

From the Indiana Trade News Service, 861 State Life Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Moving picture theater owners all over the state are preparing their theaters for the winter run. With reports of redecorating, repainting and installation of new equipment from many parts of the state come to the offices of the Indiana League in Indianapolis reports of prospects for a good business during the winter. And that it will be welcome, especially in Indianapolis, is a foregone conclusion. The typhoid fever epidemic which held the city in its grasp for two months, followed by the now present infantile paralysis scare, has taken some of the edge off the moving picture magnates' enthusiasm. It is estimated that attendance at the theaters, especially in the outskirts of the city where the patronage is largely juvenile, has fallen off at the rate of twenty-five per cent.

Outstate reports indicate that the theater owners are in for a fine season this winter. These reports are brought from all sections of the state where conditions were never so prosperous as now and where the pictures were never more popular. "The combination puts up an unbeatable front," said one man who has a string of theaters in the southern part of the state. He ought to know because he had a hard time popularizing his theaters.

"High class performances are what bring the crowds to my theaters," he said. "I am getting away from the rank sensational films and using only those in which the best dramatic talent is employed. I find that the name of a well-known actor or actress, especially one who has won fame on the legitimate stage, will pack my theaters. People in the small towns in my part of the state have heard about these actors and actresses and they go to see them. With the class of plays which my distributing agencies are giving me once I get them in the theater I am sure they will come back."

Indiana, with its seven hundred moving picture theaters, will prosper in a moving picture way this winter.

Theater in Vincennes Ordered Closed.

Vincennes, Ind.—Mayor House of this city recently ordered closed the Star theater. The mayor announced that Theodore Charles, manager of the theater, had failed to comply with orders recently issued to him by attaches of the office of the state fire marshal. Manager Charles of the theater announced that he would comply with the order and that the pictures which had been advertised would be shown at the Moon, another Charles theater, without additional charge. He said he did not know what further action he would take.

TO EXHIBITORS

If you are doing something new and interesting at your theatre let our correspondent know about it. It may help others and help you as well.

Helpfully yours,

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

Items Worth Noting.

Marion, Ind.—Marion has a new theater in the New Lyric. Ten and fifteen cent prices prevail. Part of the program will consist of vaudeville.

South Bend, Ind—The LaBadie-Judd Film Co., which will erect a studio in this city, has changed its headquarters from the Kable building to the Dean building.

Wabash, Ind.—The opening night at the Majestic brought a large crowd. Probably one of the reasons for the big attendance was the offering of a souvenir to each of the first hundred women to enter the new theater. The advertising scheme worked out splendidly.

Every schoolboy and girl in Indiana should see "Indiana," the historical motion picture, which was presented at English's theater, Indianapolis, Sept. 18, 1916, for the benefit of the Riley memorial fund, according to Mrs. Harry O. Tutewiler, the only woman member of the board of school commissioners.

Kentucky Notes.

Fred Dolle May Book Some Road Shows

Louisville, Ky.—Fred J. Dolle, of the Broadway Amusement Co., Louisville, and lessee of the Capitol theater, at Frankfort, Ky., is figuring on booking a line of theatrical productions to be shown at the Capitol theater this season in connection with pictures. Last season the theater opened so late and bookings were so scarce that pictures alone were relied on. Mr. Dolle stated that road companies were easier to get this year, and as Frankfort was itching for a few good road shows the house would undoubtedly show some of them anyway.

Considering Theater Ordinance.

Shelbyville, Ky.—The city council is giving a good deal of consideration at this time to safety of the local moving picture houses and has named a committee to investigate and report on the advisibility of an ordinance which would prohibit moving picture shows on any but the ground floor of buildings so used. The committee was given additional time to make its investigation and is stated to be proceeding carefully for the reason that such an ordinance might virtually put some exhibitors out of business, at least temporarily.

Louisville Theater Notes.

L. J. Dittmar, head of the Majestic Amusement Co., left Louisville on Wednesday, September 13, for New York, where he expects to spend a week or ten days.

After spending a vacation of two weeks in Chicago, Lee Goldberg, manager of the Keith interests in Louisville, including the Mary Anderson theater, the Keith film house, has returned to the city. His brother, Joe Goldberg, had charge of things during his absence.

The new Palace theater, a colored moving picture theater on Walnut street, has been packed since it was opened recently, an unusually heavy attendance being noted during the run of the "Battle Cry of Peace." This is the largest and newest negro house in the city, and probably the largest in the district.

M. A. Jablow, manager of the Hippodrome theater, has also taken over the management of the Olympic, following the resignation of Joe Goldberg, now with the Big Features Rights Corporation.

The new serial picture, "Liberty," is taking exceptionally well in Louisville, according to the exhibitors. This picture is being shown first at the Empire, on East Market street, and later on Fourth street at the Casino, and still later at several other houses.

Western free lance film of the Steecher-Lewis no decision, four-hour wrestling match, took exceptionally well at the Casino theater, where it was recently shown by Judge Kinney. Louisville has been an enthusiastic wrestling town for the past three or four years, and has supported some of the leading bouts.

Percy L. Smith, manager of the Louisville Mutual office, has returned from a trip to Stanford and other Central Kentucky points, reporting an excellent business trip.

In order to insure a good attendance during the showing of the latter episodes of "The Yellow Menace," J. Johnson Musselman, manager of the Star theater, distributed 20,000 passes in Louisville, these passes being good during the two days that the first episode was on the screen.

The new Beatrice Fairfax love and adventure stories, International Film Service, are getting a good start in the Louisville theaters. The first episode was booked as follows: Orpheum, every Sunday and Monday; every Tuesday at the Norman; every Wednesday at the Hippodrome; every Thursday at the Aristo, Sundays, Fridays; Pythian, Mondays, and Hilltop Thursdays. The Louisville Herald is carrying the story in its Sunday edition.

Picture Shows Become Commodity

Kentucky World Correspondent Finds Significance in Local Advertisements Asking Exchange of Shows for Something Not Junk—A Show in Every Village Now—No Uncultivated Fields.

From Ohio Valley News Service, Inc., 1404 Starks Bldg., Louisville, Ky.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Every now and then the Louisville newspapers carry an ad in the "Want" sections which is highly significant of the development of the moving picture industry. The following may be cited as typical, carried first, it is said, in the "For Sale" section and then transferred to the free "For Exchange" column:

TO EXCHANGE—Motion picture road show, complete, engine, dynamo and wagon, first-class, for automobile; no junk wanted. Address E 61, care the Evening Post. 4-3tx

In other words the moving picture theater has become established as a fixture at almost every four-corners settlement in the country. They are no longer novelties, and that means the man who once could set out with horses and wagon, projecting machine and a folding screen, with a few assorted reels of rain-shot films, is no longer certain to gather a crowd in the rural communities. It is a small town indeed in this day and age which does not boast something in the way of a moving picture theater, and when such a place is found there is usually a reason for the absence of the plant in the shape of a street car line or a good road to a nearby point where a first class house is to be found.

To Start Children's Shows Again.

Louisville, Ky.—Lee S. Goldberg, manager of the Mary Anderson theater, the Keith picture house, announces that the theater will shortly resume the Saturday morning children's pictures for the winter months. Mrs. Fred Levy, of Louisville, vice-president of the national board, has been personally assisting Mr. Goldberg in the program for the winter and an interesting program is promised. Mr. Goldberg, with resumption of the vaudeville programs at the Keith theater, is relieved of supervision of that house and will be able to give all his time to the Mary Anderson. The Chaplin pictures, which have alternated betwen the Mary Anderson and the Keith theater, will now be shown exclusively at the Mary Anderson.

Movo Company a New Organization.

Louisville, Ky.—The Movo Manufacturing & Sales Co. is a new corporation in Louisville, organized with $20,000 capital, authorized to make and sell moving picture supplies and accessories, photo supplies, etc. Incorporators are Charles L. Hardesty, Henry Schweiters and James Yunker.

Louisville Auditorium Coming.

Louisville, Ky.—Construction of the Louisville Auditorium, for which the city subscribed $300,000 not long ago, is to be undertaken in the near future, it is said. The association has named D. X. Murphy & Bro., architects, to put up the building, and J. C. Murphy has been making a tour of inspection of the new auditoriums of the country in order to get ideas for the new structure in Louisville. It is to be a capacious building and provision will be made for showing motion pictures in it. The projection booth is to be adequate for the most elaborate productions.

Macauley's to Be Beautified.

Louisville, Ky.—Remodeling and improvement operations on the old Macauley's theater building are more extensive than had been given out at first. Considerably more than $50,000 is being expended in making the house over and when it is completed it will be modern in every respect. A new side wall has been put in and the roof is being erected on steel girders, while the stage and the dressing rooms are being reconstructed throughout. All new seats will be provided and the structure will be redecorated and refinished.

Says He Can Save on His Current Bills.

Louisville, Ky.—Mort Wentzel, manager of the Norman theater, has just installed a new generating plant at a cost of about $1,200, consisting of a Fairbanks-Morse oil burning engine, and other equipment. In addition the house will be equipped to use Central service in case of emergency. Manager Wentzel was so struck with this equipment, which is in use at the Dream theater, Jeffersonville, Ind., that he delved into the matter, and states that he can operate such a plant at a big saving in electric bills, and at the same time be protected in case the central service plant lets down.

Campbellsville Exhibitors New Power Plant.

Campbellsville, Ky.—W. I. Meader, of the Alhambra theater, Campbellsville, Ky., has installed a 15 horse-power kerosene-burning engine, dynamo, etc., and will generate his own current for the theater. The decorative material for the front and the new opera chairs have arrived, and Col. Meader expects to be ready to open for business shortly.

Kentucky Theater Changes.

Sebree, Ky.—D. A. Turpin has purchased a complete moving picture outfit and leased the Melton building, on Main street. He expects to install his equipment and be ready to open the house about the first of October.

Jackson, Ky.—Henry Spencer has leased the Lyric theater building and has opened a new moving picture show, starting off with a Fox picture, featuring Theda Bara. Mr. Spencer has announced that he has made arrangements for some high grade film service, and will keep the Lyric running throughout the winter season.

Paducah, Ky.—Contracts have been let by the Desberger Amusement Co. to Gus Lockwood to remodel a building as a moving picture theater. D. Harry Jamieson, of Paducah, Ky., is the architect. The improvements will cost about $5,000.

Lancaster, Ky.—The Rex theater, owned by Luther Herron, was recently sold to Walter Hammack for $8,000. Judge L. L. Walker and W. J. Speath were the principal bidders other than Mr. Hammack.

Hartford, Ky.—D. R. Bean is completing remodeling of his moving picture theater and will open the thoroughly renovated house soon.

Paducah, Ky.—The Star theater, which has been undergoing a thorough renovation and remodeling, is nearing completion and pictures will be shown in the near future.

Madisonville, Ky.—E. W. Dozier, of Louisville, has been made manager of the Garrick theater here.

J. T. Hamilton With Big Feature Right.

Louisville, Ky.—The Big Feature Rights Corporation has enrolled J. T. Hamilton, formerly of the Cincinnati Paramount office, as booking agent and he is now handling the bookings of the "Battle Cry of Peace" and the "Marvelous Maciste" through Ohio. George Starkey, Jr., is traveling in the South for the company.

Getting at Suburban Patrons

North Topeka, Kansas, Has One Picture Show—Patrons Seem Inclined to Take a Trip to Topeka Across the River to See City Picture Shows—Have Idea That Small Houses Must Have Small Pictures.

Special from Kansas City News Service, 205 Corn Belt Building, Kansas City, Kan.

NORTH TOPEKA, KAN.—S. S. Myers, proprietor of the Princess theater, the only picture show in North Topeka, Kan., wants to know if it is possible to make the tail wag the dog. He can't see any way.

North Topeka, with 10,000 people, is across the Kaw river from Topeka, Kan., which has 50,000. North Topeka inhabitants are mostly in very moderate circumstances, and he is sure a large proportion of his patrons could not patronize a 10-cent theater. So he has given them the best he can for 5 cents, 4 to 6 reels, at present Universal program and Red Feather features. Pathe serials, not first run, of course. His theater seats 400, and he is making some money.

He gives almost exactly the same kind of show as two or three of the theaters in Topeka "proper"—but the young fellows persist in spending 20 cents car fare to take their girls to the 5-cent shows in Topeka! Many of the older people cross the river, too—and very many take the car ride to attend the 10-cent theaters where first runs are offered.

"The public believes the film companies put out cheap stuff for the little theaters and the big, finest pictures at high prices for the big theaters," said Mr. Myers. "I advertise in the local North Topeka Weekly, and in the Topeka papers alongside the big theaters there. I try to show our people that they can see just as good shows at my house as any place else—but they go to the city. I feel that until the Topeka houses raise to a uniform 10-cent price, I must protect my own people."

But he is eagerly looking for the day when 10 cents will be the nominal admission price; then he can consistently raise, and can make a bid for the best North Topeka business.

Universal's Publicity Has Big Job.

Kansas City, Mo.—The Universal is planning that every exhibitor, no matter how far removed from the centers of advertising activity, or no matter how small the exchange which serves him, will have all the advantages of the largest theaters, as to publicity matter.

In the Kansas City district George W. Boles will be on the publicity job. R. C. Cropper, district manager of the Kansas City exchange, is district manager, and this includes the exchanges of Kansas City, St. Louis, Omaha, Oklahoma City and the branches, Ft. Smith, Wichita, Sioux Falls, Cairo and Des Moines.

The smallest branch, the most distant exhibitor, will then be getting all the advantages of the largest, and at a small cost. For instance, the novelty advertising devices for the exchanges and branches will cost them little more than the printing bill, and they will be able to push their business as forcibly as though they had the most extensive facilities.

The Kansas City office has, indeed, extended the scope of its service beyond its district. Recently requests have come to Mr. Bowles for supplies of his novelties, for the offices at Dallas, Tex., and Atlanta, Ga. Batches of the advertising were sent the exchange addresses on the cards alone being changed, which were mailed out from those places.

Olathe's One Picture Show.

Olathe, Kan.—A city of 3,000 people, with 17 churches—and one moving picture show! That is Olathe, Kan. The picture show is operated by T. H. Wilson and W. W. Weldon, and they are said to be prospering. The Gem theater seats 521. It is closed in the summer, the pictures being shown in a pavillion, roofed, the sides of which are removed in warm weather. It has a hard maple floor, and is equipped with church pews and seats made to order. In the winter, the seats are removed, and Wilson & Weldon operate the pavilion as a skating rink and basket ball hall.

But about the church pews—they are especially appropriate this summer, since the Methodist church, which was erecting a new structure, used the pavilion for its Sunday services. Olathe does not have Sunday pictures, so the business is not interfered with.

Phil H. Pierce Goes to Dallas

Kansas City, Kas.—Phil H. Pierce, widely known among the moving picture men of Kansas City territory, for the past two years sales agent at Kansas City of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Company, returns this month to a Wurlitzer sales company with which he was formerly connected, but in a more important capacity. About September 12 he assumed the position of sales manager of the Western Automatic Music Co., of Dallas, Tex.

F. I. Buckingham on Showmanship.

Kansas City, Mo.—F. I. Buckingham, head of the company operating the Apollo theater, one of the finest of the suburban houses, has definite ideas as to the prices to be charged. He declares that there is little chance of prices at the Apollo being changed from straight ten cents admission. The theater will soon have available a seating capacity of 1,400.

"We have figured it out that the only fair way to treat our patrons is to give them the best we can get at the uniform price of 10 cents, and make our profits out of the volume of business," he said. "That's why we have increased the seating capacity. It hardly seems just to stick the patrons for extra money whenever we get something that costs us a little more—it seems more equitable for us to provide the capacity for caring for larger crowds on those occasions. Patrons in such a suburban theater are closer in touch and there is a more intimate personal relation than in the case of downtown theaters. We look on the case much as though it were a family hotel, for instance; the patrons would resent the management charging an additional fee for a specially nice Sunday dinner, especially when the hotel advertises and gets additional patrons for that dinner. We want them to feel that they can always come for 10 cents, and always get the best there is going. And we'll have capacity and patronage available to make money at 10 cents, with 1,400 seats."

Worth a Passing Glance.

Kansas City, Mo.—The Columbia theater, the former Tenth street, is having good success, though some of its original plans have changed. The idea of having a moving picture exclusively for women has been abandoned, at least temporarily. This policy, which was confined however, to the afternoon shows, was pursued during the long engagement of "The Little Girl Next Door" and was used effectively for advertising purposes. The price at the theater are 15 cents for adults, and 5 cents for children.

Kansas City, Mo.—The Willis Wood theater, for two years the largest moving picture theater in Kansas City, returned to drama September 17, with stock company. "Gloria's Romance," which had been its feature during the summer, is now running at the Columbia.

Kansas City, Mo.—P. J. Hall has left Kansas City for Chicago. For some two years he operated the Western Film Exchange here, and was widely known.

Changes Among Local Theaters.

Kansas City, Mo.—The Kansas City "V-L-S-E" office is undergoing no changes following the changing of the name to the Vitagraph. As Mr. L. J. Scott, publicity manager, puts it, "We expect to do as much business, concentrating on one a week, as we did before with two a week." There has been no reduction in the force, and the esprit du corps, the enthusiasm over the productions and material to be handled, is gaining perhaps an extra boost from the focusing of attention on the Vitagraph offerings.

Kansas City, Mo.—The Motion Picture Supply Co., H. G. Gill, manager, has added a large room, where it can now conveniently display machines. Geo. H. Kendrick has been added to the sales force.

Mitchell, South Dakota, Sabbatarians Active

Would Close Picture Shows on Sundays by Making City Officials Take Action on State Law—Referendum Asked for.

By Frank H. Madison, 623 South Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

MITCHELL, S. D.—Opponents of Sunday shows probably will make a test case and decide whether the decision of municipal authorities to allow such performances cannot be nullified by invoking the state law.

The city council passed an ordinance which repeals the penalty clause in a former ordinance which prohibited Sunday shows. The penalty was the revocation of license for a theater which violated the law

A state law passed in 1907 provides penalty for Sunday shows but it has been the custom of state authorities to interfere but little in what is generally regarded as a purely local affair.

Another angle to the situation is a plan to hold a referendum election and see how the citizens of Mitchell feel about it.

Sunday Shows in Huron.

Local picture houses are now showing on Sundays in Huron, S. D. Huron is one of the last cities of consequence in the state to adopt the practice of giving exhibitions seven days a week.

Edinburg, N. D.—Paul Johnson of Mountain is now manager of the opera house here.

IN IOWA.

New Building Code for Mason City.

Mason City, Ia.—City authorities are pleased at the active co-operation shown by the owners and managers of the local moving picture houses in the draft of a broader ordinance regulating safety requirements in photoplay houses. There is at present a measure to cover this subject, but its provisions are not sufficient. A new act will regulate the construction of auditoriums and exits and all conditions surrounding the projecting machines. If this is enacted into a law by the city council a rigid enforcement is promised by the officials.

Fine House Promised for Davenport.

Davenport, Ia.—C. H. Bryant of Waterloo and St. Elmo Bateman, manager of the Plaza theater at Sioux City are said to be negotiating for a site for a moving picture theater in this city. The plans are said to call for an expenditure of $75,000.

Iowa Theater Notes—Changes, Etc.

Hampton, Ia.—The Windsor theater opened its moving picture season with the Bluebird feature "Where Are My Children?"

Burlington, Ia.—Four vaudeville acts, a photoplay family and a comedy will be the policy at the reopened Grand.

Mt. Vernon, Ia.—The new plan at the Star theater gives Monday, Wednesday Friday and Saturday nights, special features, Tuesday a serial and Thursdays a mixed program. Manager Hendrix has had the front and lobby of the theater redecorated and remodeled.

Dubuque, Ia.—While the Majestic has officially closed its summer vaudeville season, it will not give up the moving picture. It announces that instead of using a cheap vaudeville act to start the show it will have a high class feature picture. The closing attractions were "Where Are My Children?" and "The Little Girl Next Door."

Clarinda, Ia.—James B. Ellis of Maryville has leased the Delpheus theater and will operate it as a moving picture house has renamed it the Little theater.

Jewel, Ia.—C. L. Allen has sold the Isis theater here to George Peferson, manager of the Grand theater at Story City, Ia.

Germania, Ia.—John Pink has asumed the management of the Virgina theater.

Northwood, Ia.—The Slosson theater is now owned and controlled by George Haight.

Harlan, Ia.—Hans Larson has opened a moving picture show here.

West Branch, Ia.—Crook & Meyers have sold the Pastime theater to Delbert Fairall.

Mason City, Ia.—The Cecil theater had "Civilization" for the week of September 17.

Davenport, Ia.—"Shoes" the Bluebird feature played a return date at the New American theater.

Nebraska Theater Notes.

Omaha, Neb.—Edward Horton, formerly organist at the Casino theater in Des Moines, has accepted a similar position at the Muse theater in this city.

Red Cloud, Neb.—The Orpheum and Tepee theaters have gone under the management of A. G. Hauser and Ferdinand Reizman of Alma, Neb.

Louisville, Neb.—Frank Johnson who has leased the opera house will open a moving picture theater.

Omaha, Neb.—Manager Joseph Kohlberg of the Farnam theater has a new policy and will run Paramount pictures Tuesday to Saturday and World and Fox films on Sunday and Monday.

Fairer Censorship for Minneapolis

Mayor Wallace Nye Will Censor in Future on Advice of Board Made Up of Exchangemen, Exhibitors and Newspaper Writers—Result of Conference of Picture Men With Mayor—The Committee.

By John L. Johnston, 814 Produce Exchange, Minneapolis, Minn.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Minneapolis exhibitors and exchangemen became really acquainted with Mayor Wallace G. Nye Sept. 18, when a committee representing the Exhibitors and Exchangemen's Association called upon the city executive to discuss censorship. It had been believed for some time that the Mayor was in favor of censorship and that the local censorship committee was appointed by him.

Last Monday, Sept. 18, the truth became known. Mayor Nye declared that he had not appointed the censors himself, but that they were appointed by various civic and social bodies in Minneapolis and acted as an advisory board only. Mayor Nye stated that only pictures he or one of his assistants had believed improper have ever been stopped in Minneapolis. The mayor stated that on a few occasions he has viewed films the censors were against and stopped those films showing, but he added that he never has taken such action without seeing the objectionable picture himself.

The censorship committee is said to have a membership of twenty-five, but at no time has there been more than 15 members present at a showing of films. Mrs. Thompson is secretary of this volunteer board and it has been said that when only five or six of the committee members witnessed a showing of film that she telephoned or wrote her opinion of it to the other members.

The exchangemen voted to send to the mayor a list of the releases for each week in the future and appoint a censorship committe of their own to act in a capacity advisory to the mayor. This censorship board will be made up of exchange managers, exhibitors and newspaper writers and it will be strict in its opinions and demands. The exhibitors and exchangemen after hearing the mayor's views on censorship agreed that he had been very lenient and just in the "censoring" he had done and there were many sighs of relief when the truth was learned.

The exhibitors and exchangemen who attended the meeting were: C. C. Knapp, General exchange; Fred S. Meyer, Universal exchange; A. A. Hixon, Metro exchange; Lowell V. Calvert, manager New Garrick theater; Harry G. Billings, manager New Palace theater; David G. Rodgers, manager Nicollet theater; Benjamin Goldman, attorney, Exchangemen's association, and representatives of three newspapers. The names of the members of the new censorship board will be announced shortly.

Film Men's Bowling Begins.

Minneapolis, Minn.—The initial season league was opened Monday evening, Sept. 18, on the Central Alleys, the largest bowling hall west of Chicago.

The Mutuals, No. 1 defeated the Reel News quintet handily and the Mutuals, No. 2 trimmed the Unicorn-Metros after a bitter fight.

Newquist and Davis were stars on the Mutual, No. 1 team and Mantzke and Stafford played brilliantly for the Mutuals, No. 2. Fournier and Bennet featured the playing of the Unicorn-Metros and Holmgren and Kaster did the best work for the Reel News.

The season will last twenty-one weeks and games will be played every Monday evening. Monetary prizes will be divided at the end of the season and the receipts from a dance will be added to the prize money later in the season.

Officers of the league are: Arthur Benack, Mutual, president; John Fournier, Unicorn, vice president; John L. Johnston, Reel News, secretary and J. J. Poitras, Mutual, treasurer. Next Monday evening the two Mutual teams battle while the Unicorn-Metro's clash with the Reel News contingent.

R. L. Hulette Heads Unicorn.

Minneapolis, Minn.—R. L. Hulette, formerly of Kansas City, Mo., has succeeded Harry Rowe as manager of the Minneapolis Unicorn exchange. Mr. Hulette has already began an energetic campaign for business.

Business Notes of Interest.

Minneapolis, Minn.—J. K. Burger, western manager of the International Film Service, Inc., was expected to visit Manager H. G. Andress at the Minneapolis exchange on Friday, Sept. 22. Mr. Andress visited exhibitors of Duluth, Minn., Superior and Ashland, Wis., Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Manager Otto N. Davies returned from New York the same day Assistant Manager A. A. Hixon returned from an extended road trip and together they have begun a campaign for Twin City booking on "The Crimson Stain Mystery." Mr. Hixon reports big success in booking the serial in the country.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Two junior "Birth of a Nation" road companies have been sent out by the Elliott & Sherman Film Corporation here and the "Ramona" company now playing at the Lyric theater here will go entour October 1. General Manager J. A. Brehaney of the E. & S. firm reports a big success with all companies now on the road.

St. Paul, Minn.—S. R. Thompson, manager of the Feature Film Company, 27 East Seventh street has booked his ten reel feature "Tour of the World" in the Metropolitan theaters of St. Paul and Minneapolis for one week at each theater.

Minneapolis, Minn.—The Triangle exchange moved from the fourth floor of the Loeb Arcade to the second floor of the Film exchange building last Saturday and the change was made without a single hitch in plans or service. Manager Ralph Bradford has two men out on the road at present and states that the Triangle's business is booming.

Edgely, N. D.—Shiels & Weaver will open their new Iris theater here October 7. The interior of the theater was completely equipped by the Theater Equipment Co., of Minneapolis. The Iris will run Metro pictures.

Mandan, N. D.—H. L. Hartman has announced that the new Hartman theater here will be ready for the opening about October 15. This theater is said to be one of the finest not only in the Dakotas but in the entire northwest.

Local Operators Present New Demands

Ask Extra Pay Whenever They Are Required to Carry Film—It is Expected That An Amicable Agreement Will Be Reached.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Rumblings of labor trouble have been going on in the local picture field for the past few weeks. The operators have presented the theater managers with their demands. Several meetings have ben held by both factions and a few joint meetings were called. The theater managers have presented their compromise. It is understood, however, that one of the contending demands of the operators upon which they are obdurate is that they will not pick up or deliver films to the exchanges unless they secure fifty cents for the first exchange visited and twenty-five cents for all other exchanges visited.

It is believed that the wage scale will be settled amicably. Considerable time was spent arguing the point of permitting an operator to appoint a substitute on days he takes off. It was also a requirement of the union that the operator get one day off a week.

It is expected that a decision will be reached within a very few days.
of the Minneapolis Film Men's Bowling

San Francisco Censor Abolished

Film Exchange Board Wins Final Victory on September 11 When Supervisors by Vote of 14-3 Do Away with Censorship—New Ordinance Proposed by Board Will Provide for Offensive Pictures—Statement by the Board.

By T. A. Church, 1507 North St., Berkeley, Cal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—On Sept. 11 the Board of Supervisors made film history here when, by a vote of fourteen to three, it abolished the board of censorship of moving picture films and all the provisions which require exhibitors to secure permits from the Police Commission before engaging in business. A new ordinance has just been passed and this lacks at this writing only the signature of Mayor James Rolph, Jr., to become a law and his Honor has signified his intention of signing it. The final meeting was a lively one, with the members of various women's organizations in attendance to oppose any change in the law, and with Supervisor Gallagher, who is in favor of all forms of censorship, including that of the press, making a vain effort to stem the tide.

Board Issues a Statement.

Following the pasage of the measure the Film Exchange Board of San Francisco, which has been largely responsible for the substantial victory won, prepared a statement outlining the history of the controversy and just what the film interests of the city intend to do to reward the confidence that has been placed in them. This statement has been placed in the hands of the mayor, members of the Board of Supervisors and prominent film men in the west, and will be sent to film organizations throughout the country as declaration of faith. This statement in full is as follows:

"The moving picture people of San Francisco desire to report to the moving picture world at large on the question of censorship in our city.

"About seven or eight years ago, and when the moving picture industry was still in its infancy, the Board of Supervisors of San Francisco saw fit to enact a law providing for censorship. There was some question concerning the constitutionality of this law with relation to the manner in which appointment of censors was made. Thereafter, the California Club and others saw fit to attempt to have that law amended so that the censors were appointed directly by the Mayor. That law not only provided for censorship, but also made the very existence of the moving picture business dependable upon the whims of others than those interested in the business.

"Therefore, those interested in the moving picture industry in San Francisco came to the conclusion that the Board of Supervisors of the City and County of San Francisco was so constituted that it would by its action indicate its confidence in those interested in the moving picture industry to the extent that it would do away with censorship and let the cleanliness, purity and morality of moving pictures depend upon the integrity of purpose of those engaged in the production of moving pictures and the release of the films thereof. Thereupon, we caused to be presented through our attorney, Mr. John T. Williams, a proposed ordinance, in words and figures as follows:

Copy of Ordinance.

"Regulating Motion Picture Exhibitions and Entertainments.

"Be it ordained by the People of the City and County of San Francisco as follows:

"Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to hold, conduct or carry on, or to cause or to permit to be held, conducted or carried on, any motion picture exhibition of any sort which is offensive to decency or is adapted to excite vicious or lewd thoughs or acts, or which is of an obscene, indecent or immoral nature, or so suggestive as to be offensive to the moral sense.

"Section 2. Any person, firm, association or corporation violating any provisions of this ordinance shall be declared guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred ($100) dollars, or more than five hundred ($500) dollars, or by imprisonment in the County Jail for a period of not less than thirty (30) days or more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

"Section 3. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after the date of its passage.

Effect of the Ordinance.

"It will be noted that the regulatory purpose of this ordinance prohibits any picture that is objectionable. It further makes it the duty of the Police Department to detail a police officer to see that no objectionable picture is permitted upon the screens of our city.

"When the San Francisco moving picture people presented their opposition to censorship to the Board of Supervisors they did not present it upon the narrow grounds of political pull or politics, but upon the broad principle that the question of censorship was of great importance, and that censorship strikes at the very foundation of liberty; that it concerns every American who believes in American ideals and American political institutions; that it seeks to lay unjust hands on the fifth greatest industry in the world today; and that it not only means a blow to an art which must be a factor in popular education, but primarily because it is violative of both the letter and spirit of the best traditions of American liberty. Those seeking to induce the Board of Supervisors to enact a law in favor of censorship went so far as to import into the controversy matters that were absolutely foreign to the question, and used every ingenuity to bring about a censorship.

"The moving picture people took the broad stand that their industry should be dignified by the same character of legislation which regulates the theater. They further stood upon the broad principle that there was no more reason to censor moving pictures than there was to censor the drama or opera. We further maintain that ours is yet an infant industry and that we could, and would, make moving picture exhibitions cleaner and healthier than could a coterie of arbitrary and illy balanced censors.

Good Intentions of Exhibitors.

"That the Board of Supervisors believed in the conscientious desire of the moving picture people to afford the public clean and healthy moving picture exhibitions is evidenced by the fact that out of the eighteen members of the Board, the advocates of censorship could muster but three votes. This action of the board, the moving picture people of San Francisco honor as a manifestation of confidence and esteem in us. Having had this trust placed upon us it is our purpose to immediately start house-cleaning and use our every effort to prevent the exhibition upon our screens of any pictures which shall offend the rules of morality. We are extremely grateful that the Board of Supervisors was magnanimous enough to trust us and to manifest its belief in our good intentions.

"Therefore, the moving picture people of San Francisco have invited the very advocates of censorship to appoint a committee to confer, upon an amicable basis, with them, to the end that we may have a better and improved moving picture standard in this city. In other words, we are going to take such action to improve the standard of our pictures that the Board of Supervisors will never regret the trust reposed in us.

"We desire to say to the moving picture world that whenever any moving picture people in any of the large cities shall be placed upon their honor to be their own censors—if you please—they must consider such trust to be sacred and see that the public is given clean and healthy pictures. We say further that we believe that those interested in the moving picture business in every large city shall see at once that their pictures are clean and healthy, and that immorality is not depicted upon the screens, so that the day will not be far distant when censorship will be a thing of the past.

Would Heighten Tone of Business

"We, in San Francisco, do not desire to claim any particular degree of purity, but San Francisco moving picture people are anxious to take up the forward work of cleansing all things that may be immoral or suggestive. We feel that not only does our sense of decency prompt this conclusion, but we feel that our industry cannot develop and grow onward unless we are clean, healthy and moral in our composition. We of San Francisco submit the San Francisco ordinance as a standard ordinance to the moving picture world.

"We of San Francisco send our greetings to the moving picture world, and ask that each and every community in the United States take such forward steps as will lead to a cleansing of our pictures so that the agitator, the crank and the busy-body shall have no excuse whatever to interfere with our industry, and that eventually we shall become dignified by being placed by the thinking world as the equal and compeers of those engaged and interested in the production and exhibition of the drama and the opera."

Corporal Peter Peshon, of the Police Department, in whose judgment the film interests of the city have the utmost confidence, will visit the various theaters to see that the provisions of the new ordinance are not violated.

CALIFORNIA NEWS.

Savoy Theater To Reopen Soon.

San Francisco, Cal.—The Savoy theater on McAllister street, near Market, which has been dark for several months, and which has had a varied career since its opening ten years ago, is to be reopened as a high-class moving picture house early in October under the personal management of James Beatty, manager of the Liberty theater at San Jose, and will be conducted by Mr. Beatty and Emil Adet. Workmen are busy installing staff work in the interior and a fine screen and new projection equipment will be added. The front will also be remodeled and made very attractive and every convenience will be installed for the comfort of patrons.

This theater, while built for dramatic productions, is ideal in shape for a moving picture house, being long, with good sight lines. It has a balcony and can seat 1,262 persons, not including 72 box seats. The stage is one of the best in the city and permits the presentation of any of the large productions brought here. Under the new management the theater will be conducted as an exclusive moving picture house, and it is planned to show film masterpieces that can be booked for an indefinite run. Mr. Beatty has made a great success of the Liberty theater at San Jose and will inaugurate some of the ideas here that have been found so successful there.

Artcraft in Pacific Building.

San Francisco, Cal.—The Artcraft Pictures Corporation has taken over space in the fourth floor of the Pacific building at Fourth and Market streets and will shortly be in a position to handle customers. This branch will be under the management of C. Mell Simmonds, until recently with the Mutual at Los Angeles.

Mutual Makes Changes.

San Francisco, Cal.—W. S. Drummond, formerly in charge of the Mutual office at Spokane, Wash., passed through here recently on his way to Los Angeles, where he has succeeded to the position made vacant by the resignation of former Manager C. Mell Simmonds. M. E. Levi, formerly of the local office, has gone to Los Angeles to become assistant to Mr. Drummond, and Frank McCoy, lately with George Kleine, is now connected with the San Francisco Mutual office. Manager Stout is looking for a new location here, the present quarters having proved entirely inadequate to care for the steady increase in business.

Metro Books Serial.

San Francisco, Cal.—The Metro Pictures Corporation has booked its serial, "The Crimson Stain Mystery," over the entire Pantages circuit and this is now proving one of the leading attractions of the local house. District Manager J. J. Unger is making a business trip to Los Angeles and Local Manager Louis Reichert has just returned from a two weeks' visit to that city.

May Move Studio.

Niles, Cal.—Negotiations are under way by H. Taubner Gothe, of the Palo Alto Film Corporation, for taking over the old Essanay studio in this city. The concern has been operating at Palo Alto and has turned out a number of short productions.

Warner Home from New York.

San Francisco, Cal.—J. L. Warner, manager of the Warner Film Attractions, is home from a business trip to New York, on which he secured the rights in this territory to the seven-reel production "Purity." This has already been booked for a two weeks' run at the Empress theater here and at the Garrick at Los Angeles.

San Francisco Briefs.

L. R. Lurie, president of the concern operating the Rialto theater, has gone to New York on a business trip.

The Minerva Motion Picture Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000 by F. J. Wheeler, L. Fischer and W. Loewi.

"The Birth of a Nation," which has been shown here for thirty-three weeks, is again being shown at the Cort theater.

A marquis has been added to the Market Street theater and business has shown a decided improvement since the change. The marquis of the Portola theater, which is under the same management, has also been improved.

C. C. Emerson, of Yerrington, Nev., was a recent visitor here and purchased considerable theater equipment.

Walter Lyons of the Hayes theater is putting in new projection equipment.

California News.

Oakland, Cal.—Harry E. Cornell, for some time manager of the Pantages theater, has been transferred to Minneapolis, Minn., where a new house is being opened.

Dunsmuir, Cal.—W. S. Webster, of the Strand theater, of Woodland, will shortly open an 800-seat house here. The equipment has been furnished by G. A. Metcalfe, of San Francisco.

Tulare, Cal.—The Lyric theater is to be opened by A. Willis.

Gridley, Cal.—Arnold Bonslett and Otto Peters have taken over the Fink theater. Mr. Peters was formerly the operator.

Chico, Cal.—The Majestic theater has been reopened by Anderson & Wood, after having been closed for the summer. New equipment has been installed in the projection room and the entire house has been renovated. The opening attraction was "God's Country and the Woman."

The Lurid Film Has Had Its Day

Portland, Oregon, North End Exhibitor Finds That Even Asiatics Like Better Class of Pictures—War Films Less Popular—Sensational Lobby Displays Fail to Draw as of Old—Attention to Patrons the Factor.

PORTLAND, ORE. The day of blood and thunder in films has passed in Portland. Lurid lobby displays of hold-ups and violence no longer attract the people of the North End district where the foreigners and the rough and ready element congregate. The Chinaman, the Japanese and the negro, as well as the Slav, who apparently will not mix with others of the white races, seem to have become learned in film lore to a certain extent and the theme, story, cast and production are appreciated on Burnside street just as they are by a different class of people on elite Broadway. This is the sentiment of Sam Sax, who has operated the Princess theater at Sixth and Burnside streets successfully for the past few months. The condition has arisen since the town went dry.

Mr. Sax has catered to the class of people who attend the Princess for seven years. He conducted the Fun theater on First street for a long time and was interested in the Burnside theater when it first opened. He keeps track of the numbers of foreigners who apparently do not mix with the white races to see the drawing power of certain types of pictures, and selects his program accordingly. He finds that his patrons like red-blooded stories that are real rather than sensational.

A well-papered front still gets the results, says Mr. Sax, but intimates that a well-papered front in the North End is not what it was a few years ago, viz.: a few buckets of blood smeared about a scene of a sensational killing. Mr. Sax says that a few years ago the circus style of doing business for today only seemed to get the money. Now, he says, the exhibitor must consider the tomorow when he outlines his today's policy.

"War pictures do not seem to me to have the drawing power in the North End commensurate with the price demanded for them as they formerly had," said Mr. Sax. "Where in the olden days I would be willing to pay double for a war picture what I was paying for a regular program feature, I would today rather pay twice the price of a war picture for the good substantial regular program feature. I find athletic films draw well, too."

Personal attention to patrons, making no discrimination as to race, color or nationality, Mr. Sax has found to be a strong factor in building up North End patronage. He recently replaced his old hand-driven projectors with motor-driven machines of the latest type.

Exchange Managers Visit.

Portland, Ore.—Film Row had a number of distinguished visitors during the week of September 16. They were exchange men lining up the fall business here.

Arthur S. Kane was in town in behalf of Artcraft. He left, however, without announcing who would handle the Mary Pickford films here. Then there was H. G. Rosebaum, who manages the northwest Triangle branch in Seattle.

M. Rosenberg, manager of the De Luxe Feature Film Company, in Seattle, was in town placing "Purity," "The Little Girl Next Door" and the new "Spoilers." His road man, Al. Finkelstein, accompanied him from Seattle. Al. Rosenberg will soon go on the road for the company in Montana. The De Luxe people have six film shows working this territory, three with "Purity," two with "The Little Girl Next Door" and one with the new "Spoilers."

Morris Levinson, manager of the New Film Company, was also a visitor in Portland. Mr. Levinson was a pioneer exchange man in this city, having conducted about the third exchange that was established here. This was in 1908.

Sunday Law Tested.

Eugene, Ore.—The Progressive Theater Company, of which A. H. McDonald is the head, operating the Rex, was denied a temporary injunction restraining the city officials from interfering with the opening of the house on Sunday. The injunction was filed to test the validity of the Sunday closing law here respecting theaters. Eugene's theaters have not been permitted to open on Sunday for several years. Judge Coke of the Circuit Court ruled that no temporary injunction would be granted at this time, but that the whole matter would be finally adjudicated when the entire case was submitted.

Patrons Come in Fords.

Portland, Ore.—L. M. Johnson, who conducts the Levens theater at Burns, Ore., in the heart of the Harney country, made a trip to Portland recently to get new ideas from the exhibitors in the state's film metropolis. Mr. Johnson made the trip from the land of sage brush in an automobile and intends seeing "The Pendleton Round-Up" before returning. Railroads are scarce in Harney, Mr. Johnson admits, but the county is prosperous. Nearly everybody owns a Ford and the ranchers make a common practice to drive in 20 miles or so over the gray hills to take the wife and kiddies to a picture show in Burns after the chores are done.

Salem Theater Reopens.

Portland, Ore.—George Bligh, the popular Salem exhibitor, was in Portland recently radiating optimism among the boys along Film Row and said nice things about the future of the film business in the state's Capital City. The Grand will reopen September 25, and Mr. Bligh is arranging the service for the winter. No small, cheap pictures will be shown there, he says. He has booked film productions starring Eva Tanguay, Maud Adams and other famous stars, also "Civilization," "Ramona" and other features.

Westerns Still Popular.

Portland, Ore.—A. S. Kirkpatrick, road man for Mutual, recently returned from southern and western Washington, having made many of the towns to which the lumber jacks come from the woods to "dissipate." He finds that western dramas hold first place in the hearts of the boys from the timber. But the westerns must be good and not exaggerated and have real plots. They must stand the test of real rough and ready Westerners who persist in coming to the theater with hobnailed boots that cut the floors to pieces, says Mr. Kirkpatrick. He reports good business for Mutual in the territory visited.

Heard on Portland's Film Row.

The Hippodrome, now showing vaudeville and pictures, is considering showing five reel features instead of two reels as at present. The plan is being worked out at San Francisco headquarters. The Hip is now showing W. V. M. A. acts, twelve acts a week in two splits of six, each coming direct from Chicago.

Prosperity note: W. E. Lewis, of the Scenic theater, Montavilla, appeared on Film Row recently with a new Buick Six which he had just bought.

W. A. Van Scoy, cameraman, is assisting Robert Bruce, Educational Film Corporation, in photographing scenery along the Deschutes river in Central Oregon.

Among the visitors for the week was Eugene Levy, one of Seattle's oldest exhibitors. Others were: R. A. Meek, of Meek & Sullivan, Star theater, Weiser, Idaho, and Jake Myers, manager of the Rolfe and Globe theaters, Albany, Ore.

Toronto Expects Brisk Business

Local Exchanges Getting Ready—Triangle Office Opened at 20 Cosgrove Building—Mutual Moves to Lombard Street—Artcraft Established on Queen Street—Brighton Theater to Be Twice Its Size.

By W. M. Gladish, 1263 Gerrard Street E., Toronto, Canada

TORONTO, ONTARIO.—The film industry of Toronto has been house cleaning during the past week. No feature of the local business was particularly dirty, but the various offices, almost without exception, were making a change here and there in preparation for the winter push.

Open Local Triangle Office.

One of the important happenings of the week was the opening of a local office for the Triangle under the management of H. Law, formerly in charge of the Toronto office of the General Film. He will be assisted by William Melody, who is also well known to all Ontario exhibitors. The first run of the Triangle offerings will be seen at Shea's Hippodrome, Toronto, it is announced. The Triangle headquarters are located at 20 Cosgrave building, Queen and Yonge streets.

D. Cooper Heads New Big Four.

D. Cooper, another widely known film distributor of Toronto, has also been appointed local branch manager for the latest Big Four, "K. E. S. E." and on Saturday, September 16th, he took possession of the suite of offices at 15 Wilton avenue, formerly occupied by the Mutual. Mr. Cooper will also represent the "K. E. S. E." in Montreal, where he has a branch office.

Mutual Office Moves.

The Mutual Film Corporation has removed its Canadian headquarters to Lombard street. Until recently the offices of C. B. Price, general manager for Canada, have been located on Victoria street while the Toronto branch held forth at 15 Wilton avenue. All Mutual offices here are now under the one roof.

Artcraft Established on Queen St.

Announcement was also made that the Canadian headquarters for the Artcraft Pictures Corporation, Limited, had been established at 12 Queen street East, Toronto, where is also located the Paramount and Fox offices. The whole of Canada will be covered primarily for Artcraft from this office.

According to J. Travis, Pathe representative here, a local contractor has offered to build an appropriate structure in Toronto where the majority or all of the Toronto exchanges could be accommodated. This matter is receiving consideration because of the difficulty experienced by exchange managers in procuring suitable premises on account of stiff insurance regulations. The project is in abeyance for the present, however, because it was found that several local exchanges have leases which will not expire for several years.

Brighton to Be Twice the Size.

The Brighton theater in the Parkdale district, formerly the Sunnyside theater, is being doubled in size. When the extension is completed, the seating capacity of the house will be in the neighborhood of 1,500. Manager Pomeroy has also secured a ladies' four-piece orchestra on account of the scarcity of male musicians because of demands for military bands.

Manager Leo Brick of the new Regent theater announces that the permanent staff for Toronto's latest picture house will be fifty-one employes, including the orchestra of twelve.

A recent visitor to Toronto was Lewis M. Hemrich, grand president of the International Theatrical Mechanical Association.

Interesting Local Advertising Stunts.

Toronto, Ont.—A number of theaters in this territory have resorted to "stunts" for the purpose of jacking up interest after summer indifference. Manager Horsford of the Chateau theater announces that prizes would be given to the three best letters which told why any one episode of "Liberty" was the best.

The Regent theater has plastered the town with posters which bear reference to the "Half a Million Dollar Playhouse." The Strand theater has also turned to the billboards.

The Auditorium theater, London, Ont., has offered ten dollars to the person who will suggest a suitable new name for the house. Manager Bernard, 299 Dundas street, London, is in charge of this contest.

Manager Bissell of the Strand theater, Camp Borden, has installed a spot light with which to play pranks with the crowd. The beam of light finds its way to the head of a patron who is asked to come to the stage where he is presented with a package of cigarettes.

A Toronto theater has been distributing announcement cards which fit over the handle of front doors from which they cannot blow away.

Express Companies Help Exchanges.

Toronto, Ont.—As a result of the representations by the exchange managers of Toronto and because of the increased film business, the Dominion Express Company has decided to detail one of its local managers to look after the collection, delivery and shipment of film consignments continuously. The company has also arranged for an extra collection of boxes from the exchange offices each day, making practically four collections and three deliveries at each office every day except Saturday and Sunday. There will be two collections on Saturdays. The Dominion Express has also promised to speed up its bookkeeping department so that payment of C. O. D. accounts will be made as soon as possible. Previously the company required about three weeks in which to turn over money which had been collected on the delivery of a film consignment.

IN WISCONSIN.

By Frank H. Madison, 623 South Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Madison, Wis.—The Strand Theater Company, which conducts the Strand moving picture house formerly the Amuse has filed articles of incorporation in the office of Register of Deeds Field. The capital is $2,500 and the incorporators are Dr. William Gird Beecroft, R. W. Jackman and Patricia Osborne.

The Palace Amusement company of Milwaukee, lessees of the Palace theater here has filed an amendment to its articles of incorporation increasing its capital from $25,000 to $50,000. Herman Fehr is president and G. G. Gehrz, secretary.

Madison, Wis.—Manager Fischer of the Majestic theater has installed a new pipe organ. The opening week he gave a free concert every evening from 6:30 to 7. A number of garden effects have been added to the decorations of the house.

Milwaukee, Wis.—The Princess theater was closed for a month to make improvements, costing about $10,000.

Stevens Point—C. W. Rice of Marshfield who succeeded J. R. McKinlay as proprietor of the Ideal theater has closed that place because of lack of business.

Milwaukee, Wis.—State fair week business was good enough for the Merrill theater to open an hour earlier daily—at 11 a. m.

Film Week in Seattle

By S. J. Anderson, East Seattle, Wash.

Strand's New Eight-Piece Orchestra.

SEATTLE, WASH.—This city now has three photoplay houses with orchestras. Following the lead of the Coliseum, Manager James Q. Clemmer of the Clemmer theater announced only a few weeks ago that his pictures would be interpreted by M. Guterson's Russian orchestra, and now W. H. Smythe, owner and manager of the Strand, a big Second avenue house, has engaged an eight-piece orchestra. The orchestra was brought from San Francisco, but the leader, Franz Adelman, is well known in Seattle through his playing at the Rathskeller cafe and the Butler hotel.

There will be special concerts on Mondays and Thursdays, and Manager Smythe announces that there will be no advance in the regular ten-cent admission price.

Record with Billie Burke Serial.

Seattle, Wash.—The Coliseum has just finished its first week of the Billie Burke serial, "Gloria's Romance," showing the first ten parts at one performance, according to Jensen & Von Herberg's plan of finishing the entire feature in five weeks, instead of the regular twenty. At every performance for the four days that the serial ran, September 3, 4, 5, 6, the immense house was well filled, which is somewhat of a record for these late summer days. We were around at The Coliseum on the last day of the showing, when the box office opened at eleven o'clock in the morning, and there was a line half a block long, waiting for admission.

Mutual Films Busy in Alaska.

Seattle, Wash.—Manager J. S. Woody, of the Seattle Mutual office, tells us that with the opening of Alaska the motion picture business is coming into its own in that part of his territory. Mr. Woody himself has traveled all through the country and knows all of the exhibitors personally. Perhaps that is one reason why Mutual pictures are so popular in the Far North. Mr. Woody also tells us, however, that business in other parts of his territory is looking up. O. F. Woody, road man out of Seattle, is daily increasing Mutual's volume of business, and Jay Harrington, Spokane salesman, and A. S. Kirkpatrick, Portland salesman, are not far behind him.

E. H. Caston, Road Man for Pathe.

Seattle, Wash.—E. H. Caston, formerly manager for Kleine-Edison in Seattle and previous to that with the General Film in Salt Lake City and Denver, has accepted a position on the road with Pathe. Mr. Caston will leave Seattle shortly with the first two chapters of Pathe's new serial, "The Shielding Shadow," to give a private showing to every exhibitor in the territory.

New Road Man for World.

Seattle, Wash.—Hugh Dobbs is World's new road man for Washington. He has left the Pathe service in Seattle to join Manager Rennie's forces. Mr. Dobbs has just left for Spokane and the Okanogan Valley.

John W. Drum, special representative for World, left recently for a trip into the Oregon territory.

Publicity Department for Paramount.

Seattle, Wash.—The Seattle Paramount office is just completing its organization of a publicity department. C. F. Hill, formerly road man, has been selected as its manager, and an office is being fitted up for him in that formerly occupied by Manager Fountain, while an adjoining room has been added to the suite for Mr. Fountain.

Visitors in Seattle.

Among Seattle's interesting recent visitors on film row were P. H. Sexton, influential business man of Great Falls, Montana, and owner of the Sexton theater of that city, one of the most beautiful motion picture theaters in the state.

W. H. Thompson of the Dream theater, Juneau, Alaska, has been spending several days in town.

A. E. Lafner of the Oregon theater, Salem, Ore., came up to Seattle to make his fall bookings.

Spokane News Letter

From S. Clark Patchin, E. 1811 Eleventh Ave., Spokane, Wash.

The Casino Changes Hands.

SPOKANE, WASH.—By a deal just completed Dr. H. S. Clemmer, president of the Casino theater corporation, transferred to C. E. Stilwell, proprietor of the Unique and the Class A moving picture theaters, the Casino theater, Spokane. The Casino has been under the control of the Clemmer estate for some years and makes the third addition to the Stilwell theaters. The price was not made public.

Mr. Stilwell operated the Unique for about seven years, and early this year took over the Class A from Lee S. Forbes. He announces that he will make extensive alterations and improvements in the Casino.

His first presentation at the Casino was the Metro production, "The River of Romance."

Lewiston's Fine Theatorium.

Lewiston, Idaho.—The winter season of the Theatorium moving picture theater at Lewiston opened September 5 with a large attendance, and the pictures were well patronized throughout the week.

I. M. Binnard, proprietor of the place, who, in addition to looking after the Binnard estate has been interested in moving pictures for some time and has found it profitable. He has a seven-piece orchestra in his theater and gives three changes of programs weekly. He said:

"Our picture program is the same as now being presented in the Rialto theater, New York; the Columbia, Portland, Ore.; the Liberty, Seattle, and the Liberty, Spokane, Wash. There is no theater in the Northwest that is offering better musical features than we are providing. There is only one theater in the Northwest that approaches this feature and that is in Seattle. No Chautauqua troupe has ever brought as good an orchestra to Lewiston as we are having play daily at the Theatorium."

The Theatorium is attractively arranged and the projection of the pictures is excellent, there being no dazzle or strain to the eyes, even though the spectators are directly in front of the screen on the front seats.

Pantages to Make Comedy Films

Romaine Fielding in Interview with World Representative Outlines Work He is to Do for the Pantages Circuit at New San Mateo Studio—First Pictures Will Be Single Reel Comedies.

By E. C. Thomas, 821 Rogers Building, Vancouver, B. C.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—Romaine Fielding, ex-Lubin director and star, who is now playing over the Pantages circuit in a sketch (and a very good one, by the way) was in this city at the time of the recent publication of rumors respecting his future connection with Alexander Pantages, the head of the circuit, in the production of moving pictures. In the course of a conversation with the World correspondent Mr. Fielding confirmed the rumor that he would direct the Pantages pictures, and outlined the plans of the company, so far as they have been decided upon.

Immediately after the completion of his tour of the circuit, the Pantages studio will be established at San Mateo, California (just outside of San Francisco) and Mr. Fielding will begin the production of light comedies, with Chris Richards, the English comedian, playing leads. It is probable that an auxiliary will also be maintained in Los Angeles. Mr. Fielding stated that the pictures will be of one-reel length, and will be given their initial showings in the Pantages houses, after which they will be released to exhibitors generally, being distributed by the Pathe Exchange, Inc. When an exceptional story is secured an occasional feature will be produced, probably with Mr. Fielding playing a leading part as well as directing.

The present tour constitutes the well-know star's first appearance on the speaking stage in nine years, and he informed the World man that his appearances on the circuit are being made simply to pave the way for the picture productions which will follow.

Mr. Fielding will hereafter make a tour over the circuit every few months, not only to heighten the interest in the Pantages pictures, but to make pictures in each city on the circuit. A single-reel picture will be produced in each city, the work being done in the mornings during his week's engagement.

We look back with keen pleasure upon our talk with Mr. Fielding, and our exchange of reminiscences concerning Arizona and Los Angeles. So long, Mr. Van Bibber; don't forget to come back home. Our best wishes to you in the new enterprise.

Mr. Exhibitor:—You will get more helpful information by carefully reading one trade paper weekly than by skimming over three or four. The MOVING PICTURE WORLD is the one paper you need.

Metro Office Notes.

Vancouver, B. C.—Bert Lubin, manager of the Calgary office of the Standard Film Service, Limited (Metro distributors), and who accompanied his brother Herbert to this city on his recent trip to open a Metro office here, has returned to Calgary. Herbert Lubin remains with us for the present, but is in constant fear of his life, as he seems totally unable to become accustomed to the flying jitney busses which in this city ply their trade on the left side of the street, as in England. The left side doesn't seem to be the right side, whereas the right side is really the wrong side.

Mr. Lubin is congratulating himself on the acquisition of Miss M. L. Fairy, formerly with the local Pathe office. Miss Fairy is one of the most popular and efficient young ladies ever connected with a Vancouver exchange, and makes a valuable addition to the Metro staff.

Meanwhile the Metro publicity campaign continues, and the program opens at the Dominion theater on September 25. Manager J. R. Muir has secured exclusive first run on all these productions for Vancouver, Victoria and Nanaimo.

An Interesting Film Department.

Winnipeg, Man.—The moving picture department of the Manitoba "Free Press" of this city, in charge of Jules L. Steele, continues to outshine everything else in this line in western Canada in real live interest, and gives other departments a high mark to shoot at. Mr. Steele is not only introducing the customary press notices which seem appropriate, but is running a question department, as well as featuring stories with a local angle.

New Britannia Beach Houses.

Britannia Beach, B. C.—The Britannia Mining & Smelting Company, owning this town and the large copper mine adjacent to it, is having drawn plans for two moving picture theaters, which will be erected for the entertainment of the company's employees and their families. One house will be erected at "The Beach," where the principal offices, stores and the mill are situated, while the other will be built at the so-called "Tunnel Camp," about three miles back in the mountains, where the actual mining is done. It is expected that the seating capacity of each house will be about three hundred.

Appeal Board Lifts Censor Ban.

Winnipeg, Man.—For the first time since its establishment, the Manitoba-Saskatchewan appeal board has taken favorable action on an appeal, and has passed the Triangle-Fine Arts production of "A Child of the Paris Streets," which was recently condemned by the board of censors because it shows Paris apaches in an unfavorable light. The censors considered that this was decidedly not a ladylike way to treat citizens of one of Great Britain's allies, and accordingly banned the picture.

Vancouver, B. C.—Manager C. R. Dippie of the local Mutual exchange, announces that the "Secret of the Submarine" serial has been booked at the Columbia theater and will start on Sept. 25, running concurrently with the final episode of "Peg o' the Ring," and alternating each half-week thereafter with "The Strange Case of Mary Page."

Vancouver, B. C.—Manager J. R. Muir, of the Dominion theater took advantage of the showing of the Paramount's "An International Marriage," with Rita Jolivet, to decorate the front of the marquis at the theater with hanging baskets of flowers, with a "marriage bell" in the center.

May Now Expect Censor Appeal Board

Liberals Seem to Have Decisively Defeated the Bowser Government in September Elections—Soldier Votes Not Yet Counted.

Vancouver, B. C.—The provincial election, held in British Columbia on September 14, resulted in a sweeping defeat for the Bowser government, and gave to the Liberals an overwhelming majority in the lists of representatives. Thus a new moving picture censor will be appointed, and those in the industry anticipate entirely different treatment from the provincial authorities than they have received in the past.

It is considered likely that an appeal board will be established, and that some changes will be made in the Moving Pictures Act, especially in the clauses making such drastic provisions regarding censorship.

The vote just taken seems to assure the removal from office of Premier Bowser along with the rest of the Conservatives, but only the civilian votes have yet been counted, and the ballots of British Columbia soldiers, already taken in various camps and in the trenches in France, but not to be counted until October, may change this result.

FILM REVIEW SERVICE

In the department headed Reviews of Current Productions in each issue of the Moving Picture World thousands of the successful and wide-awake managers of the country find the most helpful and most necessary service of the many rendered by our paper.

Each week from fifteen to twenty or more of the leading film releases are reviewed at length by seven or eight expert and experienced members of our own staff.

These reviews are written primarily from the Exhibitor's viewpoint and are absolutely independent and impartial in every respect. No such valuable service is offered elsewhere at any price.

Hundreds of programs are arranged weekly by managers only after careful study of this Department and our condensed or shorter reviews of all films, entitled Comments on the Films.

Mr. Theater Manager, if you are not making use of these will you not test them for the next few weeks? You will find no more dependable criticisms and trustworthy film information week in and week out than these two Departments in the

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue, New York

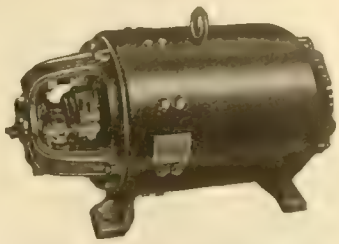
Schiller Building
Chicago, Ill.

Haas Building
Los Angeles, Cal.

Get That "20th CENTURY"

AT THE OLD PRICES

Due to further increase in costs I am forced to make a



Hallberg 20th Century Motor Generators, $217 and up

Free Bulletin, No. 1

10 PER CENT ADVANCE IN PRICE Of the 20th CENTURY MOTOR GENERATORS To Take Effect OCTOBER 15th

THE HALLBERG 20TH CENTURY MOTOR GENERATOR changes A.C. or D.C. line current to D.C. at just the right voltage for your lamp without the use of rheostats. Automatically adjusts its output to the needs of the arc at all times and cannot be burned out. Gives a perfect change-over with two lamps and plenty of current for dark films.

THERE IS A HALLBERG BOOSTER NEAR YOU · ASK HIM

I EQUIP AND FURNISH THEATRES COMPLETE
EXPERT ENGINEERING ATTENTION TO EACH INSTALLATION

All Supplies.
Speer Projector Carbons—Made in U. S. A.
"Electra" and "Bio" Carbons.
A Hallberg Carbon Saver—Saves you $10 to $25 a year—Price $1.50.

PLACE YOUR ORDER NOW!

Moving Picture Machines.
Parts and overhauling.
I am distributor of all makes moving picture machines and furnish everything complete for the theatre, new and used apparatus.
All models on display.
Rush Deliveries our Specialty. Send for Free Circulars.
Hallberg Big Complete Catalogue—100 pages—25 Cents.

J. H. HALLBERG The House of Quality Established 1904 7th Ave. at 49th St., NEW YORK

Member National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, Inc.

CAPITAL

STUDIO, DIRECTOR, CAMERA-MEN AND COMPLETE LABORATORY

:: SUPPLIED ::

TO PROMOTE

A GOOD IDEA

FOR A LEGITIMATE MOTION PICTURE ENTERPRISE

The Crystal Film Company

JOSEPH A. GOLDEN, Pres.

430 CLAREMONT PARKWAY NEW YORK

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending October 7 and October 14

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 142, 144, 146, 148.)

Universal Film Mfg. Company.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1916.

REX—Ashes of Remembrance (Two parts—Drama) 01793
VICTOR—In the Laps of the Gods (Drama)..... 01794
L-KO—No release this day.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1916.

RED FEATHER—Under Suspicion (Five parts—Drama) 01801
NESTOR—With the Spirit's Help (Comedy)..... 01802
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Borrowed Plumes (No. 8 of "Timothy Dobbs, That's Me" Series) (Two parts—Comedy)..... 01813
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Liberty No. 8, "Clipped Wings" (Two parts—Drama) 01814
IMP—(Title Not Decided) (Special Release)..... 01815
BIG U—The White Man's Law (Drama) (Special Release 01816
REX—The Slave (Drama) (Special Release)..... 01817
LAEMMLE—(Title Not Decided) (Special Release). 01818
VICTOR—(Title Not Decided) (Special Release)... 01819

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1916.

GOLD SEAL—In the Heart of New York (Three parts—Drama) 01803
VICTOR—No release this day.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1916.

LAEMMLE—No release this day.
L-KO—Safe in the Safe (Two parts—Comedy)..... 01804
UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY—No. 40 (Topical) 01805

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1916.

VICTOR—No release this day.
BIG U—The Eternal Way (Drama)..... 01806
POWERS—Pen and Inklings In and Around Jerusalem (Educational) 01807

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1916.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Somewhere on the Battlefield (Two parts—Drama) 01808
REX—No release this day.
VICTOR—A Charming Villain (Comedy) 01809

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1916.

BISON—A Mountain Tragedy (Two parts—Drama). 01810
LAEMMLE—No release this day.
JOKER—Father Gets in Wrong (Comedy)..... 01811

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1916.

REX—The Human Gamble (Two parts—Society—Drama) 01812
IMP—No release this week.
L-KO—No release this week.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1916.

RED FEATHER—A Romance of Billy Goat Hill (Five parts—Drama) 01820
NESTOR—Almost Guilty (Comedy) 01821
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Breaking Into Society (No. 9 of "Timothy Dobbs, That's Me" (Two parts—Drama) 01832
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Liberty No. 9 "A Daughter of Mars" (Two parts—Drama).... 01833

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1916.

GOLD SEAL—Cheaters (Three parts—Drama) 01822
VICTOR—No release this day.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1916.

LAEMMLE—No release this day.
L-KO—Lured But Cured (Comedy)..... 01823
UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY—No. 41 (Topical) 01824

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1916.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Behind Life's Stage (Two parts—Drama) 01825
BIG U—No release this day.
POWERS—The Beautiful Temples of Ceylon as Seen by Dr. Dorsey (Educational)..... 01826

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1916.

IMP—A Soul At Stake (Two parts—Drama)..... 01827
REX—No release this day.
NESTOR—Pat Rooney In "It's All Wrong" (Comedy) 01828

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1916.

BISON—Night Shadows (Two parts—Drama)..... 01829
LAEMMLE—No release this day.
JOKER—The Oil Smeller (Comedy)..... 01830

Mutual Film Corporation.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1916.

VOGUE—Poultry Ala Mode (Two parts—Comedy).. 05076-77
GAUMONT—Reel Life No. 22 (Mutual Film Magazine) 05078

MONDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1916.

MUTUAL STAR PRODUCTION—Dulcie's Adventure (American—Five parts—Drama) (No. 140)...

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1916.

BEAUTY—Slicking the Slickers (Comedy)..... 05079

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1916.

MUTUAL WEEKLY—Number 92 (Topical)..... 05080
GAUMONT—See America First, No. 56 (Scenic)..... 0508-
—Kartoon Komics (Cartoon-Comedy).... 05081

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1916.

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—The Shadow (American—Five parts—Drama) (No. 141)..... 05082-83-84
GAUMONT—The False Magistrate (No. 5 of "Fantomas" (Three parts—Drama).....

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1916.

THANHOUSER—Arabella's Prince (Two parts—Dr.) 05085-86
CUB—Oh! For a Cave Man (Comedy)..... 05087

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1916.

CUB—Won by a Fowl (Comedy)..... 05088
CUB—That Wonderful Wife (Comedy)..... 05089

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1916.

VOGUE—A Touch of High Life (Two parts—Comedy) 05090-91
GAUMONT—Reel Life, No. 23 (Mutual Film Magazine). 05092

MONDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1916.

MUTUAL STAR PRODUCTION—Phillip Holden-Waster (American—Five parts—Drama) (No. 142) .....
MUTUAL STAR PRODUCTION—Redeemed (Turner—Five parts—Drama) (No. 143).....

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1916.

BEAUTY—The Last Thrust (Comedy)..... 05093

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1916.

MUTUAL WEEKLY—Number 93 (Topical)..... 05094
GAUMONT—See America First, No 57 (Scenic)... 05095
—Kartoon Komics (Cartoon—Comedy)... 05095

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1916.

GAUMONT—(Three part subject—title to be announced later.)

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1916.

THANHOUSER—At the Edge of the Aqueduct (Two parts—Drama) 05099-100
CUB—Inoculating Hubby (Comedy)..... 05101

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1916.

CUB—Those Primitive Days (Comedy)..... 05102
CUB—Their College Capers (Comedy)..... 05103

SEEBURG

PIPE ORGAN ORCHESTRAS equipped with one or two music rolls

DESIGNED ALSO FOR HAND PLAYING ONLY
(without music rolls)

For Proof That

SEEBURG INSTRUMENTS ARE 100% SATISFACTORY

read these letters or ask any SEEBURG owner.

PLOUGH, CONNERS & KOFFMAN
(Incorporated.)
(Theatrical Enterprises, Chicago)
"All of the best known Pipe Organs were demonstrated for us, after which we purchased two Seeburg instruments. We have yet to hear an organ of any other make at any price which can compare with the Seeburg tone."

FORSYTH THEATRE, ATLANTA, GA.
(JAKE WELLS, Manager.)
"We have been experiencing all sorts of trouble with the music problem, and not until you induced us to purchase a Seeburg did we solve the music question."

THE MYRTLE THEATRE, LEWISTOWN, MONT.

"The tone of the Seeburg is more pleasing than that of much higher-priced instruments of other makes."

PENN THEATRE, PITTSBURGH, PA.

"I have been in the motion picture business over ten years, and in my four theatres the Seeburg's are the only instruments that have proved absolutely satisfactory."

J. P. SEEBURG PIANO COMPANY

MANUFACTURERS

1004 Republic Building State & Adams Sts., Chicago

BRANCHES

BOSTON 162 Boylston St.	NEW YORK 729 Seventh Ave.	PHILADELPHIA 923 Walnut St.	PITTSBURGH 791 Penn St.	ATLANTA 65 N. Pryor St.
MINNEAPOLIS 80 So. 8th St.	BEAUMONT, TEXAS 702 Pearl St.	FARGO, N. D. Stone Bldg.	ST. LOUIS 602 Princess Theatre Bldg.	SAN FRANCISCO 52 Turk St.

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending September 30 and October 7

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 142, 144, 146, 148.)

General Film Company.

Current Releases.

(Serial No.)

MONDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1916.

SELIG—The House of the Chief (Three parts—Dr.) 21225-26-27
VITAGRAPH—Making An Impression (Comedy) ... 21228
SELIG—The Selig-Tribune No. 79, 1916 (Topical).. 21229
BIOGRAPH—An Indian's Loyalty (Biograph—Reissue No. 85)..... 21230

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1916.

ESSANAY—An Old Fashioned Girl (Two parts—Dr.). 21231-32
KALEM—One Step Too Far (Comedy) 21233

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1916.

ESSANAY—The Fable of "The Kid Who Shifted His Ideals to Golf and Finally Became a Baseball Fan and Took the Only Known Cure" (Comedy)
VIM FEATURE COMEDY—A Grain of Suspicion (Comedy) 21235
KALEM—The Web of Guilt (No. 9 of "The Girl From 'Frisco" Series) (Two parts—Drama) . . 21236-37
BIOGRAPH—Under the Gaslight (Three parts—Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 86).....21238-39-40

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1916.

SELIG—The Selig-Tribune No. 80, 1916 (Topical).. 21,241
VIM—Royal Blood (Comedy) 21242

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1916.

KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE—The Better Instinct (Two parts—Drama)..... 21243-44
KALEM—Stolen Plumage (Comedy) 21245
VITAGRAPH—A Vampire Out of Work (Comedy).. 21246
VIM—Strictly Business (Comedy)..... 21247

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1916.

ESSANAY—His Little Wife (Three parts—Drama).21248-49-50
VITAGRAPH—Cantrell's Madonna (Three parts—Drama) (Broadway Star Feature).....21251-52-53
KALEM—The Blocked Track (No. 100 of "The Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series) (Drama) 21254
SELIG—The Canbyhill Outlaws (Western—Drama). 21255

General Film Company.

Advance Releases.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—A Tale of the Wilderness (Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 87).
SELIG—Converging Paths (Three Parts—Drama).
SELIG—The Selig-Tribune No. 81, 1916 (Topical).
VITAGRAPH—Billy's Melodrama (Comedy).

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—A Pueblo Legend (Two parts—Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 88).
ESSANAY—Money to Burn (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
KALEM—The Love Magnet (Comedy).

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1916.

ESSANAY—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 17 (Cartoon-Comedy). —A scenic subject on the same reel.
KALEM—The Reformation of Dog-Hole (No. 10 of "The Girl From 'Frisco" Series) (Two parts—Drama).
VIM FEATURE COMEDY—Their Installment Furniture (Comedy).

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1916.

SELIG—The Selig-Tribune No. 82, 1916 (Topical).
VIM—The Candy Trial (Comedy).

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1916.

KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE—From the Deep (Three parts—Drama).
KALEM—The Battered Bridegroom (Comedy).
VIM—Watch Your Watch (Comedy).
VITAGRAPH—The Mayor's Fall From Grace (Comedy).

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1916.

ESSANAY—Lost Twenty-Four Hours (Three parts—Comedy).
KALEM—To Save the Special (No. 101 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series) (Drama).
SELIG—A Mistake in Rustlers (Western—Drama).

COMPLETE AND ACCURATE LISTS of Regular Program and Feature Pictures Can Always Be Obtained from the Pages of the Moving Picture World. These are Published Two Weeks in Advance of Release Days to Enable Exhibitors to Arrange Their Coming Programs. The Stories of the Pictures in Most Cases are Published on a Like Schedule. Each Synopsis is Headed by a Cast, the Players' Names Being in Parenthesis. Lay Out Your Entertainment From the Information in the Moving Picture World and You Will Not Go Wrong.

A Pueblo Legend

Produced in Two Reels

Featuring MARY PICKFORD

Photographed amid the ancient Indian Pueblo of Isleta, New Mexico—from a story especially suited to bringing out the tender charms of Mary Pickford.

Directed by D. W. Griffith

Released by Biograph Company October 10th

Through General Film Service

General Film Service
U|M
U|M
FEATURE COMEDY
HARRY MYERS AND ROSEMARY THEBY in "THEIR INSTALLMENT FURNITURE"
Oct 11

GENERAL FILM SERVICE

Commencing October 6th

Knickerbocker Star Features

will release a

TWO-REEL FEATURE

every other week alternating with the present three-reel feature.

Each of these features will star a well-known player supported by an adequate cast in a strong story staged under the supervision of H. M. and E. D. Horkheimer

General Film Service

Knickerbocker Star Features

JACKIE SAUNDERS
In A Dramatic Story of
A Woman's Reformation

THE BETTER INSTINCT

First of the New two Reel
Productions Released Oct. 6

SUPERVISED BY -
H. M. & E. D. HORKHEIMER

K

GFC

Stories of the Films

General Film Company

VIM.

ROYAL BLOOD (Oct. 5).—The cast: Plump (Babe Hardy), Runt (Billy Ruge), Mrs. Vandergut (Edna Reynolds), Her Daughter (Ray Godfrey); Country (Florence McLoughlin), the Count (Bert Tracy).

Though Ray's mother has a decided preference for blue blood her daughter plainly shows that the old-fashioned color was good enough for her. Plump's life stream was red, while that of the count was supposed to be tinged with cobalt. To mystify mother, Plump and his pal, Runt, make up as "Blue-bloods" and gain the old lady's approbation. All goes well until the real aristocrat appears on the scene and then blood of all shades flies about. Mother finally comes to the conclusion that the old tinge is the best and allows the wilful maid to have her own way.

STRICTLY BUSINESS (Oct. 6).—The cast: Pokes (Robert Burns); Jabbs (Walter Stull); Mrs. Jabbs (Mabel Best), Miss Jabbs (Ethel Burton); Superintendent (Harry Naughton).

Pokes, the porter in an office building, has several times by his acts of omission incurred the wrath of the superintendent, but each time he has been forgiven and granted another chance. Finally, after a clash with Jabbs, a new tenant in the building, Pokes is discharged. Securing a position as book agent, Pokes is filled with one ambition to sell a book to Jabbs. Stalking his intended victim like a jungle tiger, Pokes becomes Jabbs' shadow and haunts him in both his working hours and in his dreams. No matter how often Jabbs and the Superintendent throw him out from the office, Pokes turns up in the most unexpected manner, until Jabbs, in a frenzy, decides that the only way to rid himself of the pest is to buy one of the books. Having made the purchase, Jabbs returns home, secure in the belief that at last he is safe from Poke's salesman's urgings, but to his horror finds not only the members of his family but even the butler the proud possessors of the despised books.

SELIG.

SELIG-TRIBUNE NO. 74 (Sept. 14).

Chicago, Ill.—J. Frank Haniy of Indiana, and Dr. Ira Landrith, Prohibition candidates for President and Vice-President of these United States, start on their 10,000 mile campaign trip.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The Naval rookies return from their practice cruise on the U. S. S. New Jersey and Kentucky.

Oakland, Cal.—Not to be outdone by the fashion shows of Chicago, this city holds its first annual bathing suit fashion show at Idora Park.

Cambridge, Mass.—The Harvard football squad begin their fall practice with the usual preliminary practice.

New York, N. Y.—This city faces a threatened general strike in sympathy with the striking surface, elevated and subway employees.

Bar Harbor, Maine.—This town on Mt. Desert Island, the most popular resort of society folks, closes its season after the most successful summer in its career of catering to the rich.

Newport News, Va.—The Santa Maria, replica of the original Columbus flagship in which he discovered America, lies at anchor here after failing to reach San Francisco Fair.

Sydney, Australia.—The Canterbury Race Course attracts great crowds at the opening of the racing season.

SELIG-TRIBUNE NO. 75 (Sept. 18).

Haverford, Pa.—Before a gallery of thousands, "Chick" Evans, open golf champion, wins the national amateur championship of America from Robert A. Gardner.

Turlock, Cal.—In celebration of a record harvest of melons, fifteen tons of watermelons and ten thousand cantaloupes are consumed on "Melon Day."

Gray's Harbor, Wash.—The whaling season opens here with all the old salts of the first kill.

Chicago, Ill.—These four girls are among the eleven prize winners in the "Beauty and Brains" contest, conducted by the Photoplay Magazine to secure the prettiest and cleverest girls in America for the movies.

Peterboro, N. H.—Water Polo, high diving, and open air field drills form part of the daily routine of the young women attending the women's college here.

London, England.—The Duke of Norfolk, and Sir Edward Henry, Chief Commissioner of Police, inspect special police for constables of London.

With the British Troops in the Orient.—The Commissary Department solves the problem of transporting supplies to troops in this region, by using the good old army mule.

IN THE HOUSE OF THE CHIEF (Three Parts—Oct. 2).—The cast: Mme. Le Blanc (Eugenie Besserer); Marie (Vivian Reed); Caspar Fiedler (Charles West); Maurice Le Blanc (Sidney Smith), Mr. Fiedler (A. W. Wilson). Written by I. K. Friedman. Directed by F. N. Heltron.

Mme. Le Blanc, a crook and "fence," lives with her daughter, Marie, and mourns the disappearance of her son, Maurice. Five years later, profiting by her ill-gotten gains, Madame has moved up to the fashionable part of the city where she resides and conducts a fashionable jewelry store, as a shield for her crooked operations.

Caspar Fiedler, engaged by Madame as a clerk falls in love with her daughter, Marie, and this love is requited. Detectives discover Madame's criminality, and they inform her that unless she works with the police department, they will place her in prison. Caspar tells Marie that his parents are wealthy residents of Switzerland; that some years ago his brother embezzled money, and that as this brother was the father's favorite, he, Caspar, took all the blame for the crime, left Switzerland and took up his home in the United States.

In the meantime, the detective bureau is connected with Madame's store by means of electric wires, and Madame is ordered to push a certain button every time a thief enters her establishment, when the alarm will sound in police headquarters. She follows orders only to find that she has sounded the alarm when her only son comes to her store with loot. In order to save him, she fastens the guilt upon Caspar Fiedler, because she has found that Caspar loves Marie.

After serving a prison term, Caspar is released, and is promoted through political influence to Lieutenant of Police. He meets his parents, who arrive from Switzerland, and who tell him that his brother repaid the money, and confessed his guilt. The Madame plays false with the detectives and is arrested. At the station she confronts Caspar Fiedler. He informs her that if she will confess that he, Caspar, was innocent of the charges she had once made against him, that she will be released. She does so, and Caspar then goes in search of the girl he loves.

THE CANBYHILL OUTLAWS (Oct. 7).—The cast: Tom Gordon (Tom Mix); Vicky Miller (Victoria Forde); Jim Grant (Sid Jordan); Bill Tracy (Pat Chrisman). Written and produced by Tom Mix.

The Canbyhill outlaws terrorize the country for a long time, owing to the sheriff of the county being lax in his duty. Tom Gordon, the deputy, decides to capture Bill Tracy and his gang.

Tom is in love with Vicky Miller, and tells her that he will bring back the gang. The sheriff, Jim Grant, is also in love with Vicky. He plans to get word to Tracy and his outlaws that Tom is after them. Vicky becomes suspicious and overhears the plot. She follows the messenger into the hills and is captured by the gang. Tom finds her hat, follows the trail and rescues the girl.

Tom then overcomes the outlaws and finds a note on the leader, from the sheriff, warning the outlaws of Tom's plan to capture them. Tom, after jailing the outlaws goes to the sheriff. That officer sees him coming, and shoots at Tom and misses, Tom locates the shot, shoots and drops the sheriff. He then goes to Vicky's home and tells her of the sheriff's double-cross.

BIOGRAPH.

AN INDIAN'S LOYALTY (Reissue—Oct. 2).—The cast: The Girl (Lillian Gish); Her Father (Frank Oppelman); The Foreman (Eddie Dillon); Indian (Eagle Eye).

The young foreman had such a fascinating way that the ranchero's daughter could not help falling in love with him. There were two hands on the ranch, a disgruntled farm-hand and an Indian. The foreman had never really liked the farm-hand. The ranchero mislaid his money and coming out of the house he found the Indian in a suspicious attitude at the doorway. He concluded at once that the Indian was guilty of theft and on the ranch-hand's accusation he discharged the Indian. The foreman however, suspicious of the ranch-hand, could not be convinced of the Indian's guilt and he agreed to intercede.

That day the ranchero sold cattle and one negotiation netted a greater financial gain than he had anticipated. It was more money than they cared to have loose around the house. He and his daughter consequently placed the money in the bottom of a coffee jar which was filled with coffee. After leaving the Indian the foreman returned to the house and found the ranch-hand attempting to look in the window that he might see where the ranchero was hiding his money. His suspicions were confirmed. The ranchero, learning that ranch-hand had designs on his money and was really instrumental in having the Indian discharged, sent the ranch-hand on his way and reinstated the Indian in his former place.

That day was the young foreman's birthday and the daughter was desirous of purchasing a present in town. On the road to town the daughter passed the discharged ranch-hand who, with a confederate he had met at the saloon, had determined to return to the farm and get possession of the ranchero's money. The ranchero and his men had gone off into the field to make a survey of land. Thus the house was left alone. The two outlaws made easy entrance but were unable to find the money. They concluded to intercept the daughter and demand the money. They hid behind trees. She saw them and on her own horse made a dash by them. They, however, captured her near the house and dragging her inside, insisted that she tell them the hiding place. She refused. The Indian, who had returned from the field for a farm implement, spread an alarm. The girl, however, was able to keep the men at bay until the arrival of the men by surreptitiously stealing one of their guns. One of the outlaws made good his escape—the ranch-hand who had started all the trouble against the Indian. It was the Indian's opportunity and mounting the other's horse he went after the ranch-hand. It was a long chase, but at length he reached his side and snatching him from the saddle he brought him to the ground. A struggle followed in which the Indian overcame the other and bound him.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch, the accomplice had been captured and led away. Thus the Indian was able to show his loyalty and gratitude to the young foreman for protecting his honor. The girl remembered the birthday gift for which she had gone to town and while the ranchero was thanking the Indian for the part he had played in the affair the daughter was tying a necktie on the young foreman's neck.

UNDER THE GASLIGHT (Reissue—Three Parts—Oct. 4).—The cast: Ray Trafford (William Russell); William Byke (Lionel Barrymore); Snorky (Hector V. Sarno); Pearl Courtland (Irene Howley); Laura Courtland (Millicent Evans); Blossom (Zoe Gregory); Mrs. Courtland (Isabel Rea); Mr. Courtland (Thomas Jefferson); Laura as a child (Maurice Stewart); Pearl as a child (Rosanna Logan); Judas (Mrs. A. C. Marston).

Judas, the Courtland family servant, discharged for stealing, returns to her husband, William Byke, and her baby daughter who is being cared for by Blossom, a girl waif. Judas, revengeful, substitutes her baby for the Courtland infant. The babies bear a striking resemblance to each other.

A few years elapse and Pearl, Byke's daughter, is raised as the Courtland's child, while Laura, the Courtland child, is brought up as Byke's daughter and taught to steal. Laura is caught stealing by her own mother and father. Her tale of how her "papa" makes her steal, touches the Courtlands and they adopt her (their own child) after making a money settlement with Byke.

Laura and Pearl are about twenty when the Courtlands die, leaving their fortune equally divided between the two girls. Pearl is secretly in love with Ray Trafford, Laura's suitor. Byke plans to blackmail Laura and gets Snorky, an ex-soldier, to deliver her the following note: "My darling daughter: I think it's about time you had a talk with me. I am outside waiting to see you. Your own father, Wm. Byke." Laura faints and Pearl reads the note. Byke enters the house, but is thrown out by Ray.

Pearl tells Laura's story to Ray and hands him the note. Ray gives vent to his shocked feelings and Laura interprets his action to mean that he is ashamed of her. Through the prevarications of Pearl, Laura is led to believe that Ray does not care to see her again. Ray writes Laura that he loves her even though her parents are of low origin. Through Pearl's machinations this note is never delivered to Laura.

Byke and Judas attempt to kill Blossom as she knew the truth about Laura and Pearl, but they are frustrated by Snorky. At the Rensselaer reception, Pearl plans Laura's disgrace. She drops Ray a note to Laura which is found by Mrs. Rensselaer, whereupon Laura is snubbed by all. Laura goes away, leaving a note saying that her share of the estate goes to Pearl.

Byke and Judas, seeking to obtain hush money from Laura, find Laura's note stating that she leaves her money to Pearl. They discover Laura's lodging house and abduct her. Laura is taken to Byke's den. Unless Laura agrees to sign over her fortune, her chances of living are dubious. Blossom discovers Laura's plight and notifies Snorky. Through Snorky Laura is saved. She seeks safety in a tool house by the railroad track. Snorky is caught by Byke and, bound to the track, is left to his fate. Laura is frantic when she finds the tool house door is locked. With the aid of an axe, she breaks open the door and reaches Snorky just in time to save him from certain death, as the train is bearing down upon him.

Byke and Judas go to Pearl at the Courtland summer home and Judas tells Pearl that she is her mother. Pearl upbraids Judas and turns her from the house. Snorky brings Laura to Ray at the Courtland home, where they meet Byke. Snorky shoots Byke, who staggers out and falls dead at the feet of Judas. Judas, widowed and disowned by her daughter, leaves in despair. Pearl confesses that she and not Laura is the daughter of Judas and Byke and begs Laura's forgiveness for the wrong she has done, which Laura grants.

ESSANAY.

PETER, THE HERMIT (Two Parts—Sept. 26).—The cast: Peter Dudley (John Junior); Vivian Palmer (Nell Craig); Easy Ed, tramp (Harry Dunkinson).

Peter Dudley, a young assistant professor, nearly wrecks his health by writing a book on ants in addition to his other duties. His physician tells him he has three months to live, so Peter takes to the open road and falls in with Easy Ed, master hobo. In a colony of tramps he becomes the mentor for the crew. Vivian Palmer, tired of her social program makes a trip with her father to his lumber camp.

Peter rescues her from the lake as a matter of course, and pays no further attention to her. Then he gets all the hoboes to work in the lumber camp, and becomes camp boss. He makes no secret of his identity, and when the girl reads in a newspaper that a book on ants written by a missing scientist has created a sensation, she recognizes the writer as the young camp boss. Peter, who has forgotten all about dying in his new atmosphere, returns to collect royalties, and resume teaching with his bride as one of his most earnest students.

DREAMY DUD HAS A LAUGH ON THE BOSS (Sept. 27).—Novel trick photography combining the activities of living and pen sketched subjects mark this split reel, which shares the thousand feet with scenic. Cartoonist Carlson goes to sleep at his drawing board as soon as he has sketched his familiar figures of Dreamy Dud and his dog Wag. Catching their boss asleep these two mischievious youngsters leap off the board and are off for some fun. They get into an apple orchard. The farmer—Harry Dunkinson—is reading a "Diamond Dick" between blood-curdling interruptions by his parrot. He spies the trespassers, and with a blunderbuss fires at them. They retaliate so rapidly with apples that he shakes off the mortal coil and becomes an angel. What matter if his garb is a sheet, and his wings merely panama fans? Ascending, he reaches the moon and a wing breaks. A sign tells him it is only 983,000,000 miles to heaven, so he is discouraged. Spying Dreamy Dud in the orchard, he hurls a boot at him from the moon. He topples out of the tree. Carlson wakes up on the floor where he has fallen, to find Dreamy Dud, Wag, and Farmer Dunkinson all laughing at him. It was his own dream.

TWIN FATES (Three Parts—Sept. 30).—The cast: Doris Whitman (Marguerite Clayton); "Gentlemen Jack" Sharron (Sydney Ainsworth); Walter Keane (Edmund F. Cobb).

Walter Keane has been given one last chance by his father. It is that he report to a business friend in another city, and at the end of a year prove that he can alter his ways. Young Keane, wrecked by drink, quits the train at a small station. There he meets a tramp who is called "Gentleman Jack." Sharron, the hobo, declares his story is much the same as the one Keane tells him. He says he hopes for another chance. Keane offers him his chance and shoots himself. The tramp takes the chance, and reports to the employer.

In a year he has made a wonderful record. He meets Doris Whitman, the girl whom he once was to have married, and he is delighted at his reformation. A friend of the elder Keane meets Sharron and denounces him as an impostor. It is assumed that he killed young Keane. Doris discovers that her music instructor's chauffeur calls him "Gentleman Jack," and has lost all memory of his past. When he confronts Sharron he recovers his memory, and the situation is explained. The employer declares there will be room for both of them in his business, and the original "Gentleman Jack," now John Sharron, assistant manager, wins the girl who once spurned him.

AN OLD-FASHIONED GIRL (Two Parts—Oct. 3).—The cast: Jane Galvin (Marguerite Clayton); John Barth (Patrick Calhoun); Mr. Galvin (John Cossar); his wife (Florence Oberle); Milton Vanderpool (Ulrich Haupt).

Jane Galvin objects to the society later her mother has selected to be her husband. Her father is secretly delighted that she spurns Milton Vanderpool. He takes her to a fashionable resort in the mountains. There, while walking, she meets John Barth, a young civil engineer. She falls in love with him but conceals the fact that she is wealthy. Barth is similarly affected, but believes her a poor mountain girl. Mother and Milton come to the hotel and the girl can no longer steal away to see the engineer. Some days after she sees him with her father. The latter is approving of his work for him and signing a new contract. The daughter indicates that she, too, would willingly sign a contract with the engineer and father is delighted. Mother is finally won over, too.

THE FABLE OF THE KID WHO SHIFTED HIS IDEALS TO GOLF AND FINALLY BECAME A BASEBALL FAN AND TOOK THE ONLY KNOWN CURE (Oct. 4).—A Messenger Kid stopped to Gaze at a picture of Jess Willard in a window and began to Weep bitterly. A soft-hearted Commuter halted. "Why do you weep?" he asked. "Aw, gee, what chance have I to ever be Like him," came back the Tadpole. "What a perverted Ambition! Why don't you strive to be like me? I am a candidate for Director of our new four-hole golf club and I play whist on the train with a man who once Lived in the same house with Billy Sunday." So the boy became a caddy and listened to the Poor Nuts who babbled about Tough Lies and Dubbing Approaches and reflected that they were much Inferior to his own Dad, who had to Shove Lumber all day while these Superficial Johnnies had money to toss to the Birds.

When the Kid reached the age of Sagacity he became a baseball fan. His wife never knew what the fan was talking about but she helped him into the house and mixed his Throat Gargle for him. Then the Fan came to his Ninth inning. She pleaded for one final message. His lips moved. She leaned forward. Fan wanted to know if there was anything in the Morning Papers about the condition of Heine Zimmerman's Knee Cap.

MORAL: There is a Specific Bacillus for every Classified disease.

HIS LITTLE WIFE (Three Parts—Oct. 7).—The cast: Tom Williard (Harry Beaumont); Grace Bolton (Gertrude Glover); "Uncle" Bolton (Thomas Commerford); "Aunt" Bolton (Florence Oberle); Martin Williard (Frank Dayton); Mrs. Williard (Frankie Raymond).

Grace Bolton is the ward of the village cobbler and his wife. When she graduates from school Martin Williard, head of the school board and the town's leading merchant, offers her a position in his store. His son, Tom, returns from college and falls in love with Grace. Opposed by elders on both sides they elope.

In another city Tom's funds run low and his father refuses to aid him because he married a "common clerk." There is nothing for the honeymooners to do but return home and separate. The little wife, humiliated by the return of affairs, broods for a time and when she can stand it no longer leaps from a high bridge into a river. The elder Williard and a friend, taking an evening walk, rescue the girl and when she calls for Tom, Martin Williard realizes that love is stronger than his will and brings his son to her side.

Universal Film Corporation.

RED FEATHER.

UNDER SUSPICION (Five Parts—Oct. 2).—The cast: Joseph H. Parker (Douglas Munro); the Hon. Paul Walmsley (Gerald Ames); Cullen of the C. I. D. (Bert Wynne); Eve Parker (Laura Cowie). Produced by George L. Tucker.

Joseph Parker, an American, who is living with his daughter Eve at a stylish London hotel, is under suspicion at Scotland Yard, where it is thought that he is in some way connected with the counterfeiting that is going on. Cullen, the most capable of all men at the Yard, is sent out on the case. But the task of getting the criminal is not a simple one, for "Smiling" Parker is clever and his daughter has attracted the attention of Paul Walmsley, an aristocrat of high family.

Parker is in a deal with the counterfeiters, which Cullen discovers. He traces them to the rendezvous, but there Parker gives him the slip. But Cullen knows that Parker must have some of the counterfeit notes on his person, so he follows him to the hotel. At the hotel Paul is dining with Eve. Parker sees Cullen coming and slips the money into the pocket of the waiter and there is nothing found on him. Cullen is seen baffled.

In the meantime Paul proposes to Eve. But old Parker says that they are crooks and if Paul wants to marry Eve he must become one of them. Paul agrees and they plan a scoop. The object of their endeavors is a pearl necklace, and they even go so far as to warn Scotland Yard of their intentions. On the evening of the robbery Parker, Paul and Eve get seats at the opera directly behind the woman with the pearls. The police are watching, but nothing happens until the opera is all over. Then the pearls are taken by a strange man whom the detectives arrest as soon as he leaves the theater. But when they get him to the police station they find that he in turn has been robbed of the jewels by Parker.

Cullen rushes after the American and once more takes him into custody. But this time Parker slips the necklace into the pocket of Cullen himself and a search of the party proves futile. The next morning Paul is astounded to find the necklace in his own pocket, an incident which was done by Parker. The next day, when Paul is presenting Parker and Eve to his father, Parker accidentally makes a slip and says that his name is Bundercombe. Cullen hears this and wires to America for information about that name.

At this time Parker receives a note saying that he can get some more of the counterfeit notes at a certain address. He is followed to the address by Paul and Eve, and also by Cullen and his men. When Parker arrives he is astounded to find that the men he has to deal with are none other than those whom he betrayed to the police. They attack him and throw him into the cellar with a lot of rats. Eve and Paul go for the police. They meet Cullen and his men, who come to the rescue. Parker smilingly gets the whole crowd out of the scrape, explaining away the whole matter as a joke.

At last the report comes from America that a man is wanted for the murder of a millionaire by the name of Bundercombe, who has mysteriously disappeared. Cullen now has something that he can arrest Parker for and proceeds to warn Paul that he had better get out of the mess. Paul balks at the idea of being mixed up with a murderer, so he and Cullen go to arrest Parker. But when they arrive Parker says that he is Bundercombe and tells the story of how he ran away with his daughter to escape the wrath of his wife, a suffragette. To cap the climax, Mrs. Bundercombe arrives to claim her hubby. So Cullen arrests the man to enable him to escape from the irate woman, and the picture ends happily as the lovers marry and Bundercombe succeeds in ridding himself of his troublesome helpmate.

JOKER.

FATHER GETS IN WRONG (Oct. 7).—The cast: Justice (Wm. Franey); His Wife (Gale Henry); Moranti (Milburn Moranti); Artist (Lillian Peacock). Written by Wm. Schoene. Produced by Allen Curtis.

The Justice and his wife have a wayward son, Moranti, who becomes enamored with an artist. They get their son and remonstrate with him, but all to no avail. Then the Justice thinks that he will talk to the girl and possibly he can persuade her to give up Moranti, but he, too, succumbs to her charms and his wife has to call him from the artist's rooms. That night Moranti decides to go down the street and after a while the Justice sneaks out of the window and down the fire escape.

Moranti has climbed up the fire escape from the outside and he and the artist are enjoying themselves when they hear a noise and Moranti sneaks out past the door where his mother is asleep. The Justice comes into the room; he tries making love to the artist and in admiring her painting sits in the paints. She tells him to remove his trousers and she will clean them. He retires to the closet. But mother arrives and recognizes the pants. She demands an explanation and is told it is all a frame-up. But now father is reconciled to the match and the lovers can marry.

REX (SPECIAL RELEASE).

DARK CORNERS (Sept. 25). The scene is laid in India. An idol is stolen from the temple and the whole populace is in an uproar, for they think that some great calamity is going to happen unless it is restored. The high priests ask an American detective, who is there on his vacation, to find it for them. So the sleuth starts out.

After a long period of searching he at last locates the idol in a cavern, the haunt of a dangerous band of thieves. The leader of the band is a very beautiful girl, who is the most desperate of them all, and will not stop at anything to gain her ends.

The detective, however, does not hesitate to enter the cavern to get the idol. He gets what he is after, but as he is getting out, is caught and thrust into the darkest part of the cave. From here he escapes by way of a trap door and at last restores the idol to its rightful owner.

IMP.

THE BIGAMIST (Special Release—Sept. 25).—The cast: John Talboys (King Baggot); Helen Talboys (Jane Vernon); Sir Michael Audley (Wm. J. Welsh); Robert Audley (William Shea). Produced by Herbert Brenon.

John Talboys has been disinherited by his father because of a low marriage. When he finds this out he decides to leave for Australia and never return until he can give his wife the luxuries that she craves. When Helen reads the note that he leaves for her she is overjoyed, as this leaves her free.

Helen has a notice put in the paper to the effect that she has died and under a new name she starts out for a husband. It so happens that she meets Sir Michael Audley, an old widower, and the old man is taken with her beauty and proposes. The marriage takes place, much to the disgust of Robert, Sir Michael's grown son. But in Australia John has struck it rich and comes back to England for his wife. At their former lodging he is told that his wife has died and is heart-broken. He meets Robert Audley and accepts an invitation to his home.

When he sees Helen as Lady Audley he is astounded. She sends him a note naming an old well as a rendezvous. He goes and there she pushes him into the well, thinking that she has killed him. But a poacher has been looking and pulls him out. The poacher now tries to blackmail Helen and succeeds. But Robert discovers that John is not dead and goes to the inn to find him. The inn is kept by the poacher and when Helen finds that all the people who know of her crime are in the same house she sees her chance. In the night she goes to set fire to the house. The poacher is killed, but Robert succeeds in rescuing John and takes him to the manor. There Lady Audley sees him and the shock kills her.

BIG U.

THE ETERNAL WAY (Oct. 5).—The cast: Vola (Vola Smith); Charles (Charles Gunn); May (May Hill); Ed (Eddie Brown); Bill (G. Raymond Nye). Written and produced by C. Elfelt.

Vola and May are sisters with opposite natures. Vola is fierce and May, meek and mild. Vola leaves the cabin and finds Charles near the stream. Bill, fishing down the stream, sees them, and, having no luck, decides to ask them where the good fishing is. Vola flirts with Bill to make Charles jealous.

May, returning to the cabin, meets Bill. Vola comes along and meets Bill and he makes love to her, but she becomes angry. Vola comes in to supper and sees Charles making love to May and is very angry and again she gives way to her temper.

That night Vola is sitting on the steps of Ed's cabin crying. Bill, with his suitcase packed, comes to her and she tells him she is sorry about her exhibition of temper that morning. May hears voices and comes to the door and is surprised to see the two. Ed also comes to the door. About this time Charles appears with a rifle intending to kill Bill, accusing him of deceiving Vola, who attempts to calm him. Then May says that she and Bill are to be married. Vola and Charles make peace, so there are two happy couples.

LAEMMLE.

THE INJUSTICE OF JUSTICE (Special Release—Sept. 25).—Luigi is an Italian who is out of work and almost dying from the cold of the winter. He has come to this country in the hope of making a fortune, but it is very hard. His wife has died and he is left with a little girl, Rosa, for whom he has had a hard time to provide.

In the middle of the night he goes out to steal a little coal for his daughter and is caught. The harsh judge before whom he is tried has no pity, and he is sentenced to a term in jail.

Upon his release he vows revenge and goes to the home of the judge to kill his little daughter. But when he gets there he finds his own daughter, whom the judge has adopted. Of course, the picture ends happily, as he finds his child safe and the judge gives him work.

VICTOR.

A CHARMING VILLAIN (Oct. 6).—The cast: Billy (Billy Mason); Sis (Madge Kirby); The Vampire (Sylvia Ashton); The Farmer (Jack Connoly); Jim, a Farmer Boy (Charles Dorian). Written by Harry Wulze. Produced by John Steppling.

Billy, a social wolf, strolls through the country looking for adventure. He finds Sis spooning with her father's choice. He frightens Jim away; then after a fake struggle introduces himself to Sis as just having saved her life. He makes violent love to Sis and gets her to steal her father's coin and elope. She does so, and he and Sis go to the city. Jim comes from his hiding place. The father tells Jim to go after the girl, and he (Jim) can have both her and the money. He arrives in the great city alone.

Meantime Bill has taken Sis to a cabaret and filled her with milk. She desires to go in for cabaret singing and takes a dancer's place. Bill takes Sis to his swell residence, and from there phones to a roughneck to come as a preacher and perform a mock marriage so he can get the money.

Jim, having by this time reached the cabaret and fallen a victim to a vampire's wiles, hears the plot and follows the roughneck. The roughneck goes to a shed and makes his change and then to the exterior of Bill's house. Here Jim leaps on him and knocks him out, takes the coat, hat and goggles and thus disguised as a minister, goes inside to rescue Sis. Inside he has difficulty making Sis understand him, and waits for a chance to do up Bill. And in the end the villainous city chap gets the girl and poor Jim is distracted.

BISON.

A MOUNTAIN TRAGEDY (Two Parts—Oct. 7).—The cast: Sam Prentess (E. J. Denecker); Mrs. Prentess (Marjorie Ellison); Pinkey (Zoe Rae); Toots (Buster Emmons); Monte (Bert Law). Written by Calder Johnstone. Produced by George Cochrane.

Sam Prentess is the proprietor of a store in a mountain village. His home is up in the mountains and in order to keep in touch with his wife he has a telephone put up between the store and his home. The couple are blessed with two children, "Toots" and "Pinkey." In the neighborhood is Monte, a desperate character, and one who makes his living by questionable methods. He is secretly in love with Mrs. Prentess and covets her.

One day as he is passing the home of the Prentesses he sees Mrs. Prentess working in the yard. He stops and tries to force his attentions upon her and is only stopped by the arrival of the children. Sam is told of the occurrence that night and he decides to give the fellow a thrashing. The next day he makes good his resolution and thrashes the fellow. Monte swears revenge.

Monte plans to get even. He gets a couple of pals and they set out for the home in the mountains. He arrives and finds the woman alone with her children. But she is alert and covers him with a revolver and then telephones her husband. But the man attacks her and gets the gun. Sam thinks there is something wrong when his wife suddenly stops phoning and he at once sets out for his home.

Up in the mountains Monte is about to kill the woman, as she will not leave with him. The little boy tries to save his mother, but is beaten and pushed aside. He runs down the trail to get his father. But just as Monte has his gun ready to shoot the little girl takes her bean shooter and hits the ruffian in the eye. He drops the gun in pain and before he can recover it the woman has pounced upon it. Then the father arrives and takes Monte into custody.

POWERS.

PEN AND INKLINGS IN AND AROUND JERUSALEM (Oct. 5).—This is a combination of a cartoon by Hy. Mayer and a travel picture in Palestine. There are various scenes and at times the moving picture is stopped and a cartoon by Mr. Mayer faded in. The famous Wall of Walls is shown, the different types of people, a Mohamedan maiden with her veil, a sacred parade, the well into which Joseph was cast by his brethren and the place of Christ's nativity.

NESTOR.

WITH THE SPIRIT'S HELP (Oct. 2).—The cast: Jed (Eddie Lyons); Professor (Lee Moran); Emily (Priscilla Dean); Father (Fred Gamble). Scenario by L. W. Chaudet. Produced by L. W. Chaudet.

Jed and Emily are in love and are happy until Professor comes to town. The Professor claims to have control over the spirits and Father thinks that Emily had better marry him. When he catches Jed still hanging around he forcibly ejects him and tells him never to return.

That night the Professor is to give a seance at the home of Emily and the couple plan to elope while it is going on. So, although they make a great deal of noise, they are not caught, as the folks thing that the noise comes from the spirits. One of the old ladies wants to hear from the spirit of her dead guide, White Bull. At this time the elopers drop a pan in the kitchen and the people in the other room think that it is the war dance of the Indian spirits. They go to the kitchen to see and Jed, who has hidden in a flour barrel, rises like a ghost and tells them to go.

By this time the Professor, who is really a fake, is frightened at the spirits that he thinks he has unwittingly called to life. He takes to his heels with the other folks after him. While they are gone Jed and Emily leave a note explaining what the spirits were, and when they come back from the minister's they are forgiven and receive Father's blessing.

L-KO.

A SURGEON'S REVENGE (Two Parts—Sept. 27).—Dinty, a bum, had just alighted from his "pullman" when he went out on a hunt for cigars. But the men were smoking them very short that season, so it was a hard job to get a good smoke. At last he was run over by a machine as he was in the act of getting a good one, and the doctor took pity on the fellow and took him home.

At the house of the doctor he revived and was asked to stay for dinner. During the meal he became flirty and began to write notes to the lady of the house under the table. After dinner he became a little more familiar and the doctor was angry. He ejected Dinty from the house, so the tramp swore revenge.

Dinty telephoned the doctor to come to a certain house at once, and then, when the doctor went to the door, he stole the car. Calling for the doctor's wife in the car, he took her for a ride. But as a chauffeur Dinty was not a success and it was not long before the flivver was a thing of the past. It so happened that the smashup occurred just in front of the hospital, so that he was taken inside and given the best of attention. The doctor was at once sent for, as an operation was deemed necessary.

But the doctor that came was the very one who was looking for Dinty. With fiendish glee he sharpened the knife and prepared to take his pound of flesh. Dinty managed to get away and led the surgeon a chase all over the hospital. Then the police arrived and things got even more complicated. Dinty got out and took refuge in an auto with the cops after him.

The chase ended in the doctor's house again. Dinty entered the room of the doctor's wife and then the doctor came in. He was forced to hide in the closet, but at last was discovered by the irate man. The picture ends as the masher gets his true deserts.

SAFE IN THE SAFE (Two Parts—Oct. 4).—Police Commissioner Jed Doty's home is the rendezvous for all the crooks in town. They hide in the clock, the closet and all the dark corners. It gets to the point where the commissioner is actually frightened and he decides to do something.

To cap the climax, his daughter brings a paper that criticizes him for not firing the Chief of Police. So old Doty sets out to see that things are changed for the better. At the station the policemen are all singing and dancing with the chief leading, and Doty says it must stop. He also gives the chief some pearls to keep safely. The chief says that they will be safe in the safe and puts them there. But the safe is the secret passage by which the crooks enter the station to interview the police on matters of business. No sooner are they in there than a thief enters the vault from the other side and removes the jewels. And what is more, he gets outside the building and slips a note into the hand of the commissioner telling him that his jewels are gone. The commissioner at once goes to the vault and finds that they are really gone. Then he tells the chief that if he does not recover them he will be fired. So the chief sets out to hunt them.

The chief then starts to think. It hurts, but he does it. He finally decides that the best way to get the criminals is to disguise himself as a woman and go into their lair. So off comes his mustache and he dons the attire of the weaker sex. He arrives at the den of the crooks and attracts a great deal of attention. There is one great "bum" in particular who is smitten with the charms of the chief, and they get along nicely until they begin to dance. The dance degenerates into an orgy and in the wild abandon the wig comes off. Then the chief is recognized and they all go after him.

He commandeers an auto and the chase begins. He boards a trolley car and then gets back on an auto, and all the while the crooks are following at break-neck speed. But it cannot last forever, and at last the car in which the chief is fleeing jumps over a bridge and that is the end. The chief has just enough energy to revive for a few minutes to say his prayers before passing away.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

LIBERTY (No. 7, "Liberty's Sacrifice"—Two Parts—Sept. 25).—The cast: Liberty Horton (Marie Walcamp); Theresa (Maud Emory); Pancho Lopez (G. Raymond Nye); Pedro (Eddie Polo); Capt. Bob Rutledge (Jack Holt); Major Winston (Neal Hart); Manuel Leon (Bertram Grassby); Jose Leon (L. M. Wells). Written and Produced by Jacques Jaccard.

Liberty, fearful lest a trap be laid for them, puts an arrow in the sand indicating the true direction of their course and buries her handkerchief next to it to indicate that it was she who left the mark. Lopez and his party then push on across the desert.

The American troops arrive at the hut where Theresa has been left by the bandits and they read the note that has been left in her hand. But by this time it is getting late, so it is decided to stay there for the night and push on full speed the next morning.

Early the next morning an aeroplane arrives from across the border with orders to stop the invasion of Mexico pending diplomatic negotiations. This greatly angers both the troops and leaders, as they think of all the outrages they have seen perpetrated in the name of Mexican liberty. Scenes pass before their eyes of the towns burned and plundered and the women ravaged, the homes ruined. Bob and Major think of poor Liberty in the hands of the ruthless bandits and they sigh, as they can do nothing but hope for the best.

Meanwhile in Washington the diplomatic negotiations are proceeding and there seems to be no end of talk, nothing but talk, when American blood is being spilled on the border.

Both Bob and Pedro decide to go on to see if they cannot in some way enable Liberty to escape. They at last come up to the Mexicans and stealthily approach. They arrive just in time to see Lopez showing Manuel a large store of arms and ammunition for the use of the rebels. But they are too eager to hear what is going an and get a little bit reckless. They are seen by the Mexicans and after a struggle are captured and led away to the mountains with Liberty.

TIMOTHY DOBBS, THAT'S ME (Episode No. 8, "Borrowed Plumes"—Two Parts—Oct. 2).—The cast: Timothy (Carter De Haven); Jeff (Robert Milash); Polly (Marcia Moore); Tom (Dan Duffy). Written by Bess Meredyth. Produced by Wallace Berry.

Timothy and Jeff are in reduced circumstances. They are now living on a park bench, but ever Timothy has the motion picture "bug" and daily visits the studios. But each time he calls he is turned down. Finally one morning he hears a director call for fifty people and he is for rushing past the gateman, but that worthy stops him and informs him that it is women and not men that they want.

Later, as he is walking along the street, he sees a commotion in front of a motion picture theater and finds that the cashier and usher have eloped. Timothy suggests to the manager that he will take the cashier's place and bring an usher for him.

Then we see the two installed and everything is working nicely until Timothy sees Polly. He insists upon escorting her to a seat, leaving Jeff to sell Tom, her escort, a ticket. Tom becomes furious and tears up the tickets, but Jeff will not allow him to enter without a ticket, so Tom hunts up the manager, who becomes somewhat angry when he sees the crowd going from his theater because there is no cashier.

Timothy makes a hit with Polly and she invites him home, but her father is not enthusiastic. While Polly is phoning, Timothy tries on the dress and hat she has just received and, getting an idea, decides to be a woman, since it is women who are wanted in all the positions. So he departs—with the garments. Polly raises a hue and cry and with Tom starts in pursuit.

Timothy secures a position in the same theater as cashier, but makes Jeff acquainted with his disguise. When he sees Polly and Tom approaching he picks up his skirts and makes a mad rush for the back entrance, pursued by the others.

As usual, he ends up at a studio, where the directors all fight over him and try to flirt with him. He finally is assigned to one of the directors, who is much elated, but Timothy soon comes to grief, as his wig comes off, and the last we see of the hero he has dropped all his ladies' apparel by the wayside, closely pursued by Polly and the others, and Timothy ends up in the bushes in the park in his B. V. D.'s.

SOMEWHERE ON THE BATTLEFIELD (Special Release—Two Parts—Oct. 6).—The cast: Dr. Kovis Miklos (Hobart Henley); Dr. Rejto (Wm. Welsh); Fraulein Emma (Claire McDowell). Scenario by Elliott J. Clawson. Produced by Hobart Henley.

Somewhere in Servia near the fighting lines is an improvised hospital where the injured and dying are cared for. Dr. Kovis Miklos and Fraulein Emma have long been at the little hospital and the two have become greatly attracted to each other, yet ever the doctor seems to be laboring under some difficulty which makes him reluctant to speak his mind. Dr. Rejto, another physician, seems to be forever watching the movements of Dr. Kovis.

One day a little drummer boy is brought into the hospital and he pleads with Fraulein for goat's milk. She determines to obtain some for him, and, together with Dr. Kovis, they seek out a woman up in the mountains from whom they obtain the milk. But it is too late. The Servian woman from whom they obtain the milk becomes their good friend and often they visit her. Finally Fraulein gives up the hospital work and goes to live with her.

As Dr. Kovis is going off duty one day a man is brought in whom he goes back to attend. He secures a note which he reads furtively; then he leaves hurriedly. Dr. Rejto has been watching and discovers that the man brought in is not injured and so Rejto orders the arrest of Kovis. The soldiers pursue him, but he manages to elude them and arrives at the Servian woman's home badly injured. He tries to make light of his wound, but tells Fraulein Emma that he is a Servian spy. This almost stuns her, but the love she has for him overcomes the feeling of disappointement.

Soon after the soldiers knock at the door and she commands Kovis to lie down on the couch, and she tells the officers that Kovis is dead. When they examine him it seems true. They decide to eat and while they are thus engaged Fraulein notices Kovis moving, as does the officer, but when the latter examines Kovis again he finds that he is dead. When the soldiers leave Fraulein, Emma calls joyously to Kovis. But he is really dead.

GOLD SEAL.

IN THE HEART OF NEW YORK (Three Parts—Oct. 3).—The cast: Hugh Van Dyke (Ben Wilson); Frederick Grey (Chas. Ogle); Rose Grey, his daughter (Edna Hunter); "Red" Leary (William Welsh); Detective Harrigan (Howard Crampton); Mrs. Cassidy (Margaret West); Mame, her daughter (Dixie Compton). Written by William Addison Lathrop. Produced by Ben Wilson.

Hugh Van Dyke is a wealthy bachelor who has just returned from a long stay abroad. He renews old acquaintances at the club and meets Grey, an elderly man who has a grown daughter. At home Hugh receives his agent and takes a large amount of money that the latter Superintendent and Technical Director of Laboratory, is open to connect with reliable concern; 15 years' laboratory experience with leading houses in America and Europe. Address "C.," c/o M. P. World, 17 Madison Ave., N. Y. City.

TransVerteR
Automatically supplies only such voltage as arc requires. No waste of current in ballast.
HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
431 Prospect Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, U. S. A.

REFLEX CARBONS
Jones & Cammack
Sole Distributors for the U. S.
Corner Bridge and Whitehall Sts., New York

Get acquainted with the
ERBOGRAPH WAY
of Developing and Printing
ERBOGRAPH COMPANY
203-11 West 146th St., New York City

I have For Sale the following equipment. Make me an offer. I need the money.
9x12 Gold Fibre Screen and Frame.
30 Amp. Westinghouse Rectifier with new tube.
No. 6 Powers Machine.
Wonder Clock.
12x9x8 Asbestos Booth.
ADDRESS
Maryland Amusement Co.,
2609 TILBURY ST. PITTSBURG, PA.

The Original and Leading Moving Picture Journal in Europe
The Kinematograph Weekly
The reliable Trade organ of Great Britain; covering the whole of the British Film market, including the American imported films. Read by everyone in the industry. Specialist writers for Finance, Technical Matters, Legal, Musical, Foreign Trading (correspondents throughout the world)—and every section devoted to the Kinematograph. Specimen copy on application to:—
The Kinematograph Weekly, Ltd.
6-11 Tottenham Street, London, W. Eng.

NATIONAL DRAMA CORP.
1465 BROADWAY
NEW YORK CITY

L. A. MOTION PICTURE CO.
Manufacturers of high grade studio equipment
215-217 E. Washington Street
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

MENGER & RING, Inc.
MANUFACTURERS OF
Poster and Lobby Display Frames
304-8 W. 42d St., NEW YORK
Phone Bryant 6621-22

Dr. Heinzel's Pine Ozon Extract
the best air purifier—Ozone Generator, disinfectant, and most agreeable Perfume. A $1.25 bottle diluted with water, makes a one-gallon spray.
HEINZEL CHEMICAL COMPANY, INC.,
63 Park Row New York

TANKS and RACKS
that give satisfaction
Write for Folder No. 14
Pacific Tank & Pipe Co.
Los Angeles—San Francisco, Cal.

gives him. That night the house is robbed by a couple of crooks and the next day Hugh puts Detective Harrigan on the case. After a couple of weeks, Harrigan reports that he has located the crooks, but cannot get any evidence on which to hold them. Hugh decides to do a little detective work on his own account.

Rose Grey has been doing settlement work and is helping Mrs. Cassidy, whose daughter, Mame, has fallen in with bad company. Mame promises to reform and go to the prayer meeting that night. But on the way she is met by "Red" Leary and persuaded to go to the saloon instead.

When Mame does not come to the meeting Rose is worried and goes to get her in the saloon. There she is assaulted by ruffians. But at a nearby table is Hugh, who is disguised as a loafer, spying on the crooks. He comes to her rescue and takes her away. She takes a liking to him and takes him home to get her father to give him a job. Her father does not let on that he knows Hugh and says that he will help him, although he does not think there is much hope for his redemption. Hugh becomes a regular attendant at the mission.

Some time later Hugh thinks that he has located the crooks and gets Harrigan to rope in the gang. Just as they are entering the saloon where the gang hangs out they see Mrs. Cassidy ejected from the place. Upon entering they see Mame angry with the man for having so treated her mother. She takes a ring off her finger, and, flinging it on the floor, says she is through. Hugh picks up the ring and sees that it is one that was stolen from him. The crooks are arrested and Mame returns to her mother.

Then Hugh rushes to the home of the Greys with a big coat over his dress suit. He folds Rose in his arms and asks her to be his wife. She accepts and then he takes off his coat and tells her that he is not a bum after all. At first she is a little peevish because of the deception he has played, but it does not take long before Hugh is forgiven and the picture ends with the lovers in each other's arms.

UNIVERSAL.

ANIMATED WEEKLY NO. 38 (Sept. 20).

Bathing Beauties Parade, Oakland, Cal. Exhibit fashionable bathing costumes in mermaids' unique pageant.

Winning Golf Championship.—Record throng sees star capture amateur title, Merion Links, Philadelphia, Pa. Subtitle: Crowds following players. Winner, "Chick" Evans, right; loser, R. A. Gardner.

"Flivvers" Are Fast, Too.—Victor has to make 62-mile speed to win.—Chicago, Ill. Subtitle: "Demon" Harvy, winner.

Starting Alaskan City.—Lots sold at auction by Uncle Sam, soon will be populous town on new United States Railroad line. Subtitle: Summer time in Alaska.

Historic "Death God."—Rare pottery vessel used by natives of Santo Domingo many centuries ago, in religious ceremonies, is brought to United States by Theodoor de Booy, of the Museum of the American Indian.—New York City, N. Y.

Singer Enters Lions' Den.—Madame Schumann-Heink sings at the movie metropolis, Universal City, Cal. Subtitle: Voice calms the savage beasts.

Training for War.—U. S. field artillery in battle manoeuvers.—Fort Sill, Okla. Subtitle: Mountain batteries fire.

America's Best Athletes.—Stars of track and field winning senior Amateur Athletic Union championships.—Newark, N. J. Subtitles: Five-mile race. 100-yard dash. Simpson breaks hurdle record. High jump. Broad jump. Pole vault.

Monkey Acts for Movies.—150 pound Simian walks slack rope and rides bicycle.—Denver, Colo.

Girls' Marathon Swim.—Misses brave choppy water and heavy current in hard-fought contest on the Ohio River.—Cincinatti, Ohio. Subtitle, Miss Farrell, of Dayton, Ky., the winner.

Parade of Protest.—8,000 car strikers march to enlist sympathy against traction magnates.—New York City, N. Y. Subtitle, Wire nettings protect motormen from strike sympathizers. Jitneys come in handy.

$17,000,000 Bridge Span Falls.—Scores saved, some die, when largest bridge in world collapses while being lifted into position.—Quebec, Canada.

Booming Deep Waterways.—Secretary of Navy, Josephus Daniels, greets delegates at Atlantic Deeper Waterway Association at ninth annual convention, Philadelphia, Pa. Subtitle, Submarines give diving exhibition. The deadly torpedo in action.

Coney Island Mardi Gras.—Thousands witness parade and jollification at famous beaches' resort, Coney Island, N. Y.

Cartoons by By Mayer.

WE HAVE a large assortment of film in stock. Why can't we arrange for your supply of new or slightly used film in all lengths for all parts of the globe?

The Film Exchange

729 Seventh Avenue, New York
Our Reference—Established 1908

"ARGONAUTS OF CALIFORNIA"
DAYS OF '49
A Thrilling Historical Masterpiece in 10 Reels
Grafton Publishing Film Company
LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA
STATE RIGHTS NOW SELLING.

Get acquainted with "FULCO"
The Department Store of the MOVING PICTURE TRADE
MACHINES EQUIPMENT SUPPLIES
Our catalog covers the line from A-Z
FULCO
E. E. FULTON COMPANY
152 W. Lake St. CHICAGO, ILL.

TO RENT at Tappan, N.Y. 19 miles from New York

The place known as the Haring Homestead. It contains a glass studio and an outdoor open-air platform, a very large residence of about 18 rooms and numerous outhouses. This place has heretofore been occupied by the Helen Gardner Picture Players, the Dra-Ko Film Co. and others. Sufficient ground will go with the rental of the house to satisfy any and all reasonable needs of the lessee.

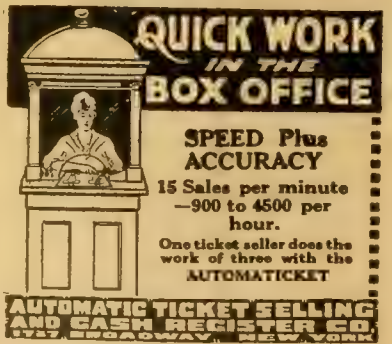
For further details communicate with FINKLER & McENTIRE, Attorneys, 2 Rector Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York.

Rebuilt machines at following ridiculously low figures:

Powers No. 5	$25.00
1912 Motiograph	45.00
Powers No. 6	95.00
Powers No. 6A	115.00
Powers No. 5 Heads—not rebuilt, but in first class shape	10.00

Address

EVERYTHING-FOR-YOUR-PLAYHOUSE
HOMMEL'S
947 PENN AVE.
PITTSBURGH, PA.



QUICK WORK IN THE BOX OFFICE
SPEED Plus ACCURACY
15 Sales per minute —900 to 4500 per hour.
One ticket seller does the work of three with the AUTOMATICKET
AUTOMATIC TICKET SELLING AND CASH REGISTER CO.
1547 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

AMERICAN STANDARD MOTION PICTURE MACHINE DURABLE
110 W. 40TH STREET, NEW YORK

In writing to advertisers kindly mention MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

Mutual Film Corporation

CENTAUR.

FOILED (Two Parts—Sept. 30).—The cast: Peevish Pete (Dave Morris); the Leading Lady (Billie Rhodes); the Leading Man (Nolan Leary); the Villain (Eddie Barry).

The town of Red Gulch was to be favored with a show. Pete, a tough of the town, liked a good show and happens to be at the station when the troupe arrives. Billie, Nolan and Eddie are the leading actors. Nolan and Billie are in love, but Eddie also loves Billie. A quarrel starts at the station between Nolan and Eddie and finally the troupe reaches the theater. At the stage entrance Pete intervenes and threatens Eddie. After many controversies each actor is assigned to his room. Pete meets a friend and tells him about Billie and the show, and they decide to attend the performance that night.

On the stage, Bob and Mac, two stage hands, are working and abusing Gus, the property man. In the meantime Nolan has gone into Billie's room, where they are disturbed by Eddie. Eddie, being ejected, swears revenge. Harry is a sleepy man and decides to go to the show. Pete, with his friend, join the audience. Harry comes and sits next to Pete and sleeps. All is ready for the big show. Billie and Nolan are on the stage looking through the curtain. Gus is fixing the props. Eddie gets into trouble again over Billie and, walking away, goes to see Bob and Mac. He gives them money and promises them some more if they queer Nolan every time he goes on the stage. In the meantime the curtain goes up.

The stage represents a living room. George is acting the part of an old man; Billie is his daughter. Eddie, who plays the part of the villain, proposes to Billie, who says that her heart belongs to Jim, the Westerner. Eddie threatens to reveal something about papers held by Billie's father. A fight between George and Eddie ensues. Billie, frightened, calls for help. Nolan wants to come to the rescue, but from behind the stage Bob and Mac hold Nolan's coat, much to the amusement of the audience. Nolan is doing his best to go to Billie's rescue and, finally pulling out of his coat, he comes on rolling on the stage. The curtain falls and the actors try to understand what happened. Eddie is satisfied with this first result.

The second act, entitled "The Chasm of Death," opens with Billie on the stage. The scenery is composed mainly of a chasm and a bridge over. Eddie comes on and starts with Billie to cross the chasm. A slight accident to part of the scenery sends Billie and Eddie back on the stage. Finally Eddie and Billie are on the bridge, when a voice from behind says: "Be brave, Mabel, I'll save you." Nolan, rushing on the stage, puts his foot on a dolly, placed there by Bob and Mac, and comes rolling on the stage, and for the second time he falls. Nolan gets up again and starts for the bridge. Eddie and Billie are on the other side and Eddie destroys the bridge. Nolan finds a rope and starts to swing across the chasm. He succeeds and starts a fight with Eddie. Eddie falls into the chasm and Nolan tries to get on the other side of the chasm, he and Billie hanging on the same rope. But from the other side of the stage Bob and Mac let a sandbag loose, which, hitting Billie, throws her into the chasm. A second swing of the same bag disposes of Nolan. The audience is disgusted with such a rotten show. The curtain falls and the actors start to blame Nolan for all what happened. Eddie gains favor with Billie.

Finally the curtain rises on the third act entitled "Where Virtue Triumphs." The villain gets arrested by the sheriff and the marriage ceremony between Nolan and Billie is taking place. But here again Eddie's money had bribed the stage hands and after having a rope to Nolan's belt, they pull up the back curtain and up goes Nolan. This was the last straw and the audience exits in disgust. But Pete wants revenge and he rushes towards the stage. In the meantime Bob and Mac have been discov-

AMERICAN
Fotoplayer
(Trade Mark Registered)
The Musical Marvel Write for Catalogue
AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER CO.
62 West 45th St. New York City

ered and fired, and at the moment Eddie was gaining Billie's favor they come to Eddie and ask him to pay them having lost their jobs doing his dirty work. Eddie tries to escape, but Pete comes on, gun in hand, and shoots after Eddie. Eddie tries to escape, upsetting scenery and finally gets out of the theater, pursued by Pete, still shooting. And Nolan and Bernie made up and embrace and hope for better days.

CUB.

CATCHING THAT BURGLAR (Sept. 29).—The cast: The Bride-to-Be (Ethel Lynne); her Sister (Billie Rhodes); Brother (Nolan Leary); Father (Gus Alexander), Mother (Mary Talbot), Uncle John (Eddie Barry).

Ethel was to be married and father had figured the expense down to the last cent and really couldn't see how he was to meet it. These things didn't bother son any and he and his chum helped themselves plentifully to wines and other good things, and were only restrained after father had kicked them out of the kitchen.

Uncle John had arrived for the wedding and was temporarily staying away from his club and card games. About this time a burglar scare is started in the neighborhood and the family becomes worried about the wedding presents. George, the son, and Billie, the sister of the bride-to-be, decide to use a novel burglar alarm and go to a nearby store, where they purchase a quantity of flypaper. This they distribute around the house and especially around the wedding presents. Uncle John had wind of a very interesting card game, and while pretending to retire early, in reality he sneaks away to the club.

Ethel and Billie retire and all seems peaceful. Uncle John, returning from the club, is held up and his watch, to which was attached his keys, taken by the robber. Rather than disturb the household, Uncle John gains admittance through the window and becomes helplessly entangled in the fly paper. His efforts to release himself arouse George, who, gun in hands, descends the stairs, encountering much flypaper on the way. In the dining room he encounters Uncle John, whom he supposes to be a burglar, and a fight ensues. The noise arouses father, mother, Billie and Ethel, who descend to the dining room. A policeman is attracted and arrives in time to prevent any tragedy. When Uncle John is finally relieved of his fly paper mask, the two youthful geniuses, Billie and George, are severely spanked.

GAUMONT.

FANTOMAS—(Episode No. 5—The False Magistrate (Three Parts—Oct. 5).—The cast: Fantomas (Victor Navarre); Inspector Juve (James Breon); Fandor (Louis Melchoir); Bebe (Jean Morlas); Ribonard (Francois Martial); Marquis de Tergall (Jean Mesnery); Marquise de Tergall (Ida Pelisse); Rosa (Marie Le Bret).

The Marquis de Tergall was so deeply in debt that he decided to sell the family jewels. After examining them, a jeweler at St. Calais made him an offer of $50,000, which the impecunious nobleman gladly accepted. The jeweler concealed the bag containing the jewels in a drawer of the dresser in the room in the hotel where the sale was made. Upon looking for them they had disappeared. A hole had been bored through the wall and the jewels abstracted by a man disguised as a priest.

That night on his way home the Marquis was attacked and the money he had received from the jeweler was taken from him. He did not know that it was given by an Apache named Bebe to Rosa, a maid in the Tergall employ. This was done through fear that Bebe might be caught in the police dragnet.

Although Fantomas had been sent to prison for life in Belgium, Juve, the detective, was not at all pleased that he had lived. He knew that if could once get him on French soil there were enough crime to the [illegible] credit to make it certain that he would go to the guillotine. Without letting Fantomas know that he was escaping through police aid, Juve substituted himself for the criminal in his cell. He felt certain that Fantomas would at once return to France. Two of his best detectives were detailed to follow him and arrest him as soon as he crossed the border.

However, Fantomas discovered that he was followed. As his train stopped beside one about to go in an opposite direction from a small station on the way to Paris, Fantomas jumped into the baggage coach of the other train, thus eluding the detective. Charle Pradier, who had just been promoted to be judge of the St. Canal district, was occupying a compartment by himself. Fantomas found it necessary to murder the judge in order to escape discovery. Upon searching the clothing of his victim, and discovering it was the new judge he had put out of the way, Fantomas suddenly decided that his safest course was to impersonate the judge and so to St. Calais.

Upon assuming the duties of his office, among the first cases he had before him was that dealing with the mysterious theft of the Tergall jewels and the $50,000. Fantomas discovered that both crimes had been perpetrated by Bebe and Ribonard, the thief who had bored the hole at the hotel. Upon finding these two men, he demanded both the money and the jewels.

Masquerading as the judge, Fantomas discovered that the wife of the Marquis was in love with a young man, by intercepting a note. The Marquis was unable to attend a hunting party because he suffered from a chill. Fantomas cautiously made his way to the basement and turned off the gas for a few moments and then turned it on again. The result of this diabolical act was that the Marquis was asphyxiated. Fantomas secretly accused the widow of committing the crime, because of her love for the young man. She purchased his silence for $20,000.

The following day Fantomas went to the church to meet Ribonard with the jewels. The thief explained that he had hidden them in the bell. He threw down the empty box, rightly thinking that Fantomas would pick it up without opening it. Then Fantomas hastily pulled the ladder which was the only way Ribonard had of descending, away. Then he opened the box only to find it empty. So the next day when the deaf old sexton rang the bell for the funeral of the Marquis, a rain of jewels fell upon the mourners. Fantomas took possession of the jewels as examining magistrate.

Fandor, the journalist friend of Juve, heard of the extraordinary robberies at St. Calais, and went there to make an investigation. He had his suspicion aroused by Judge Pradier and determined to watch him. The false magistrate was informed that the authorities had decided to send to Belgium for Fantomas to question him. He was pleased to think that the man would be brought before him for examination. He also ordered the arrest of Bebe to extort from him the $50,000 stolen from the Marquis. Bebe confessed that he had left the money with Rosa for safe keeping.

The Marquise de Tergall called upon Fantomas bringing Rosa with her. The Marquise brought $10,000 with her, which was all she could raise of the hush money desired by the criminal. Fantomas then saw Rosa alone and took from her the $50,000. When Juve arrived Fantomas discovered that all the doors were being watched. He immediately wrote a note which he gave to the headkeeper. Fantomas then acknowledged his identity and was put in a cell.

The next day, when the bandit was to be examined, it was discovered that he had been released at midnight by the headkeeper of the prison on an order from Judge Pradier. The order stated that the prisoner released as Fantomas was none other than Juve, the detective who was engaged upon a delicate police mission. Thus Fantomas, owing to his quick wit, was again free.

The Latin American Producing Co.
Suite 406 1482 Broadway wants
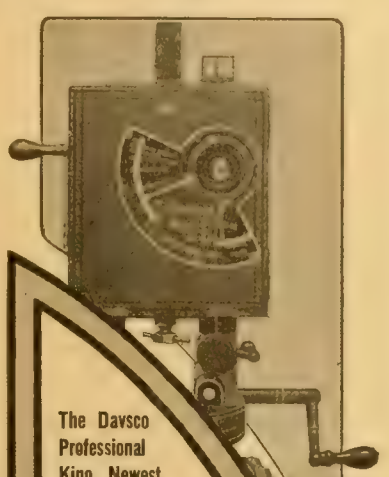
SCENARIOS
for two, three and four reels. Dramas, Sensational especially adapted for Latin American countries, but also modern, social standard High society dramas preferred.

PATENTS
Manufacturers want me to send them patents on useful inventions. Send me at once drawing and description of your invention and I will give you an honest report as to securing a patent and whether I can assist you in selling the patent. Highest references. Established 25 years. Personal attention in all cases. WM. N. MOORE, Loan and Trust Building, Washington, D. C.



The Davsco Professional Kino, Newest Model. Dimensions 5½" wide, 10½" long, 6½" high.
Weight 10½ lbs.

EXCLUSIVE FEATURES

MAGAZINES—Round Aluminum, light-tight, non-warping.
INTERMITTENT—Cam and shuttle type, positive and accurate; made of oil tempered tool steel.
MECHANISM—Parallel sprockets and spiral gears made of brass, connecting with intermittent by a series of gears.
TAKE-UP—Spring belt, absolutely positive.
FOCUSING—Reflecting focusing device on side of camera, enabling the operator to focus directly through the film in an instant. Also direct finder on top of Camera.
PATENTED EXPOSURE INDICATOR—Indicates stop to use for any light condition.
CAPACITY—200 ft.
FILM REGISTER—To 200 ft.
LENS—50 M. M. focus. B. & L. Tessar series 1c F. 3.5 in special focusing device.
CASE—Seasoned mahogany, covered with genuine leather.
Guaranteed to take pictures equal to those exhibited in any theater.
Price complete as described $110.00.
Light weight aluminum head Panoram and tilting top tripod, $25.00.

THE CAMERA FOR YOU.
David Stern Company (Est. 1905)
(The National Camera Exchange)
1047-R Madison Street
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

WATCH FOR
E. & R. Jungle Film Comedies
E & R JUNGLE FILM CO.
Los Angeles, Cal.

When you need a
CAMERAMAN
Phone Bryant 6558
CINEMA CAMERA CLUB
1006 Times Bldg., N. Y. C.

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREEN, INC.
220 W. 42d Street
New York City
"Ask the Exhibitor Who Owns One."

HIGHEST GRADE
Developing and Printing
FILM TITLES
We guarantee all work, give prompt delivery, at lowest prices. Can furnish Expert Camera Man on short notice.
STANDARD MOTION PICTURE COMPANY
R. 1620, 5 S. Wabash Ave. Chicago
Phone Randolph 6693

VOGUE.

POULTRY A LA MODE (Two Parts—Oct. 1).—The cast: Rube (Rube Miller); Ben (Ben Turpin); Mohammed Alo (Walter Rogers); Omaho (Lillian Hamilton). Directed by Rube Miller.

Rube and Ben are neighbors; one raises ducks on one side of their line fence and the other has a flock of geese on the other. They are caught flirting with a pretty girl by their wives and are warned to attend to their ducks and geese. They go to their respective homes and get water for their fowls but quarrel and throw all of it at each other.

The ducks and geese each send a representative through the fence to look for water to quench their thirst. In a nearby part of town lives a wealthy Turk who is engaged in securing wives to fill the harem of his Sultan. Into the Oriental splendor of the Turk's place of abode the duck and goose strut and there they find a pool of refreshing water. They hasten back to tell the rest of their flocks, but not until Rube and Ben have followed them to the place and behold a wonderful sight. The water in the pool has been treated with a magic liquid and when the duck and goose jump in they are turned into two beautiful maidens. When Rube and Ben try to seize the damsels they change back into a duck and a goose.

Rube and Ben are ejected from the magnificent residence and hasten home, liberating their ducks and geese, which they drive back to the Turk's home. The fowls waddle into the pool and a multitude of laughing girls replace them as the magic spell works.

Rube and Ben creep in stealthily, capture the Turk, and lock him in a huge chest, while they romp with girls. The Turk's favorite appears and flirts with the two truant husbands. Rube and the favorite sit together on the top of the chest in which the Turk is hidden. The Turk regains his senses, finds a brace and bit, which have been left in the bottom of the chest, and starts boring. Freeing himself he dashes out. Excitement reigns and a wild fight starts between Rube, Ben, the Sultan and several policemen who have been summoned by an attendant. All is in the midst of chaos when Rube and Ben fall into the magic pool and are awakened from the slumber into which they have fallen by the water thrown upon them by their vigilant wives.

MUTUAL STAR PRODUCTION.

The MANAGER OF THE B. & A. (Signal—Five Parts—Sept. 25).—The cast: Constance Emory (Helen Holmes); Dan Oakley (Leo D. Maloney); Roger Oakley (Paul C. Hurst); General Corning (N. Z. Wood); Griffith Ryder (Thos. G. Lingham); Thomas Emory (William N. Chapman); Gordon Holt (William Brunton). Directed by J. P. McGowan.

Thomas Emory, manager of a local branch of the Buckhorn and Antioch, finds one day that he is minus a position due to his negligence in office. In his place is appointed temporarily his former assistant, Gordon Holt.

Later, on an unexpected trip to the branch office, General Corning, the president of the B. & A., and his private train are narrowly saved from accident by the act of one of the minor superintendents along the division, Dan Oakley. In reward for the deed of daring which shows to the company's president of what stuff the young mechanic is made, Oakley is made manager over the head of Holt.

With the introduction of new blood into "the works" the old regime of banker's hours and shiftless work is dealt its death blow. As a consequence the radical young manager incurs the enmity of the editor of the Antioch Herald and the leader of the Labor Party, one Griffith Ryden, who stirs up the men against him. But in spite of opposition the new manager "makes her pay."

Due to the activities of the Labor Leader, a strike is called. Although the subsequent turmoil, hunger and dissatisfaction among the strikers is distasteful to the fighting manager, he stands his ground and keeps up his record by means of the men who remain loyal. A personal bitterness grows up between Ryder and Oakley since Constance Emory, the daughter of old Thomas Emory, the former manager, has evinced an interest in both which sways from one to another as her father's sympathies vary.

The strike culminates in the cutting of the pipes leading to the water tanks, which results in the explosion of an over-heated engine boiler and a fire. The journey for aid to the next town to get the fire-fighting apparatus through a roaring forest fire which threatens to lick up the puny train with its tongue of flame, falls to the brave young manager. On his return he has won not only the hearts of his men, but that of the beautiful Constance, who promises to become his partner for life.

BEAUTY.

THE DEACON'S CARD (Sept. 26).—The cast: Deacon (Orral Humphrey); Norah, his daughter (Joe Taylor); Tom, her sweetheart (Jof Massey). Directed by Orral Humphrey.

The deacon has been elected president of the Smithville Anti-Gambling League and his admirers, led by Parson Jones, are arranging to start a whirlwind crusade against the gamblers. He has a winsome daughter, Nora, with whom Tom is much in love, and proposes to her the night of the deacon's election to his high, distinguished position among the hosts of reform. Naturally Nora refers Tom to her father, the deacon, and Tom, in his perturbation, pulls out his handkerchief and dashes a deck of cards to the floor.

Tom is banished at once. The deacon gets down on his knees to pick up the cards, and just at that moment the Anti-Gambling League Committee calls. The deacon thrusts the cards in his coat-tail pocket to get them out of sight, and at the request of the Committee launches upon a fervid speech against gambling.

In the meantime, Nora and Tom have seized the opportunity to elope and get married. Waxing eloquent in his oratory, the deacon pulls his handkerchief to wipe his heated brow and scatters the cards all over his hearers. They denounce him as a hypocrite. He rushes to get Nora to prove how he got the cards, but finds her gone.

The Committee calls on the Parson to demand the deacon's expulsion from the church and finds that dignitary in the act of marrying Tom and Nora. After promising to withdraw all objections to Tom, the latter exonerates him of the blame in the card matter. Tom signs the pledge to abstain from card playing in future.

Miscellaneous Subjects

UNITY FILMS SALES CORP.

THE YELLOW MENACE (Episode No. 6, "Torture Chamber"—Two Parts—Oct. 9).

When Ali Singh learns that it was Najla who was responsible for the raid on his house-boat, he determines to torture her for her disloyalty and has her suspended on a rack, which is operated by an electric current, which, if allowed to continue running, would practically rend limb from limb. Hong Kong Harry, seeing Najla in torture, is not able to endure the thought of her suffering and, though in terrible fear of Ali Singh himself, interferes with the operation of

All The Players

of prominence in any sized picture can be furnished instantly—WIRE US YOUR WANTS—If you fail to display the face of a popular player who is appearing at your house, you are overlooking an opportunity for larger receipts. THE FACE OF A WELL-KNOWN PLAYER prominently displayed will draw more money than the mere announcement of a name.

LARGE HAND COLORED PICTURES

Size 22 x 28 inches, 75 cents each. Every prominent player.

FAC-SIMILE OIL PAINTINGS, all sizes, from $8 to $25 framed. Quotations submitted on any size, framed or unframed.

THE SEMI-PHOTO POST CARDS, $3.50 PER THOUSAND, of over 600 players. The indispensable article for your mailing list.

PHOTOGRAPHS, SIZE 8 x 10, of all the prominent players, 600 different names, 20c. each.

LARGE PICTURES, HAND COLORED, size 11 x 14, all the prominent players, $2.00 per dozen; in aluminum frames, 50c. each.

GRAVURE FOLDER, containing pictures of the prominent players, including stars from the stage, $10.00 per thousand.

SINGLE COLUMN CUTS of every prominent player, 40c. each.

KRAUS MFG. CO.

220 West 42nd Street, NEW YORK

12th Floor Candler Building

Send for Catalogue of over 600 players and samples free. Write us, giving details of your dull nights, and we will send you a remedy.

If You Need a New Machine

and can't afford to pay cash, write us today and we will help you out.

Our easy payment plan enables you to purchase any make machine at a small investment. DON'T DELAY—GET BUSY—WRITE TODAY for full particulars.

Amusement Supply Company

Dealers in Motiograph, Simplex, Powers, Edison and Standard Machines, Transverters, Motor Generators, Rectifiers and everything pertaining to the Moving Picture Theatres

3rd Floor, Mallers Bldg.,

Cor. Madison Street & Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Developing and Printing

Expert and efficient service. Titles a specialty. In the heart of the business section. Finest indoor studio on the coast, equipped with indirect lighting, giving no glare or shadows. Rented by the day, week or month.

Superior Films Company

ROBERT A. BRACKETT, Manager

Entire 10th Floor

643 So. Olive Street, Los Angeles.

the torture rack and fixes the machine so that it will not run.

Again the police with Manning and Bronson surround Ali Singh's haunt in a dismal New Jersey marsh, but are not able to capture Ali Singh. The three girls attempt to escape, but only May Manning is lucky enough to succeed. She makes a dramatic leap from an upper story through the use of a knotted sheet. Margaret and Najla attempt to follow her lead, but are prevented by Ali Singh's followers, and they are taken away, still in the clutches of the Demon.

CONSOLIDATED FILM CORP.

THE CRIMSON STAIN MYSTERY (Episode No. 3—"The Broken Spell"—Two Parts—Sept. 4).—(Note. The description of the first two episodes of this serial was on page 1604 of the September issue).

Harold Stanley's first impulse is to give publicity to the fact that Florence is hypnotized by an unknown, but upon the protestations of Dr. Montrose he decides to keep the fact quiet. A nurse is sent to care for Florence and Harold lays plans to bring Florence out of her trance. Harold goes to Clayton's studio and finds Clayton on a couch in a semi-conscious state while Vanya Tosca is bathing a wound in his forehead. Vanya denies knowledge of how Clayton was injured. Clayton remembers nothing. Harold suspects that Vanya knows more than she wishes to tell.

Next day as Dr. Montrose is seated beside Florence's bed his gaze shifts and he looks in the long mirror and sees the door behind him slowly open and Pierre La Rue enter. The presence of Pierre in the room acts upon Florence and Dr. Montrose immediately realizes that La Rue is responsible for her condition. Dr. Montrose springs to his feet to attack La Rue, but La Rue vanishes through the door. Picking up a heavy vase, the doctor throws it after fleeing La Rue, but misses him and smashes the door. The shock brings Florence out of her trance. Harold Stanley reaches the house in time to hear the crash of the vase upon the floor. Florence is completely conscious. She remembers nothing of what has transpired during the last few days.

Harold tells her she was hypnotized and she recalls her experience with La Rue in Clayton's studio. Harold informs Florence and the doctor that a new murder had been committed the night before in the Old Lent House in the Bronx. Florence begs to go along on his investigation of the murder. Harold promises to take her later and as he leaves the house he runs into Vanya Tosca, who gives a weak excuse for her presence in the neighborhood. Harold takes Vanya in his automobile and tells her of the discovery of a new clue.

Later Vanya goes to the Crimson Stain Den and tells Pierre and his henchmen of Harold's activities. They plan to put Florence and Harold out of the way. Accordingly Vanya is assigned to get Harold to Clayton's studio and Tanner is assigned to get Florence to the Old Lent House.

Vanya telephones Harold and gets him to come to Clayton's studio. At the studio she goes into another room to bring Clayton and Harold drinks and mixes a sleeping powder in each one's glass. Harold breaks his glass accidently and leaves to keep his appointment with Florence just as Clayton succumbs into unconsciousness.

Florence receives a note in Harold's hand writing stating that he is in trouble and asking her to accompany the bearer to the Lent House in the Bronx. Later when Harold arrives to keep his appointment he finds Florence is gone, but on the floor is the note which she dropped in her hurry. Harold gives chase and reaches the Lent House just as Florence is bound and gagged by Tanner and the chauffeur. In the ensuing fight he rescues Florence and both make their escape just as the Lent House is demolished by a bomb explosion.

THE CRIMSON STAIN MYSTERY (Episode 4.—"The Mysterious Disappearance"—Two Parts—Sept. 11).—Felix, the doctor's man of mystery, tells Dr. Montrose that a patient is awaiting him in the laboratory. The doctor finds Tanner waiting. Tanner demands the drug which the doctor refuses at first, but is compelled to give it to him because of Tanner's threatening attitude.

Parrish, the detective, pays Harold a visit in the latter's office to warn him to cease his attacks upon the police for their failure to solve the mystery. Robert Clayton, the artist, comes in at that moment and Parrish, unsatisfied, makes his departure. Listening at the door, Parrish hears Harold remonstrate with Clayton for not dropping the acquaintance of Vanya Tosca. Robert ridicules the thought and tells Harold he is on his way to Vanya's apartment. Parrish walks away.

Speeding along in her automobile, Florence espies Tanner. She follows. Reaching Vanya's apartment, Tanner slinks in, knowing full well that Florence is following him. As Florence enters the apartment, Tanner grabs her by the throat and gags her. Tanner then pushes Florence into a closet, and as he enters the hall he sees Clayton come in, but Clayton does not see him.

Vanya comes in shortly afterward with Lambert, a fresh victim. Robert sees the pair come in and hides behind draperies, from which vantage point he sees everything that is going on. He sees Vanya and Lambert making love to each other. Vanya goes into another room to bring her new lover a drink and a mysterious arm reaches out from behind a curtain and grabs her throat.

At that moment a pistol is fired. Harold, who is passing the house, hears the shot and rushes in and finds Lambert dead on the floor and Robert unconscious beside him, clutching in his hand a pistol. In the closet Florence struggles to get the gag out of her mouth and screams. Her cries attract the attention of the police and as a detective throws open the door to the closet Parrish steps out.

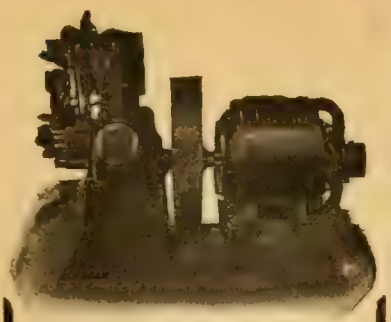
When the detective broke into the house the fingers that clutched at Vanya's throat let her drop and she regains consciousness, telling the detectives what little she knows of the whole affair. Robert Clayton is accused by Parrish of the murder of Lambert.

In the meantime Tanner has spirited the unconscious Florence into a taxicab which is taking them to the den of "The Crimson Stain" gang. Florence regains consciousness and jumps out of the taxi. Tanner precludes following her because of the crowd.

Robert is in the den of "The Crimson Stain" gang in a sort of hypnotic trance. Later Stanley and a detective go to Robert's studio in search of a clue to his disappearance. Robert writes a note in which he admits being guilty of the killing of Lambert, then he walks out upon the roof and continues walking along the edge in his trance.

Stanley and the detective come up at that moment and see him in this perilous position. They rush up and save him just as he is about to step off into space. Robert is arrested by the detective for the murder of Lambert. At the Montrose home, Florence is awaiting the arrival of her father, and as he enters she tells him of her experience.

THE CRIMSON STAIN MYSTERY (Episode 5. "The Figure in Black"—Two Parts—Sept. 18).—Satisfied in his mind that Robert Clayton is guilty of the murder of Truxton Lambert, the detective places him under arrest. Stanley objects. The note which Clayton wrote admitting his guilt is discovered on the table. Clayton denies writing it. Stanley is convinced of his friend's innocence. The detective is in doubt and insists upon arresting Clayton.



2 k. w. Direct-connected Outfit

The above shows our k. w. Direct-connected

Brush Electric Lighting Set

For many users our 4 k. w. Lighting Set is larger, and perhaps more expensive than necessary. The 2 k. w. outfit is just as good in its way as the other.

Send for catalogue

The Chas. A. Strelinger Company

Box MP-2

Detroit, Michigan, U. S. A.

For the fullest and latest news of the moving picture industry in Great Britain and Europe.

For authoritative articles by leading British technical men.

For brilliant and strictly impartial criticisms of all films, read

THE BIOSCOPE

The Leading British Trade Journal with an International Circulation

American Correspondence by W. Stephen Bush of "Moving Picture World"

85 Shaftesbury Avenue, London, W.

Specimen on Application

A Dependable Mailing List Service

Saves you from 30 to 50% in postage, etc. Reaches all or selected list of theatres in any territory. Includes name of exhibitor as well as the theatre in address. A list of publicity mediums desiring motion picture news. Unaffiliated exchanges looking for features. Supply houses that are properly characterized as such. Producers with address of studios, laboratories and offices. Information in advance of theatres being or to be built.

W74.

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY COMPANY

16 Fifth Avenue, New York — Phone 3227 Chelsea

425 Ashland Block, Chicago — Phone 2003 Randolph

Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

In the meantime Parrish calls on Doctor Montrose. Doctor Montrose being out, Florence meets Parrish and tells him that murder has been committed and that she has seen it. Her story is interrupted by the arrival of Doctor Montrose. As Parrish steps out to meet the doctor a mysterious arm reaches out from between the folds of the draperies, grabs him by the throat and drags him in.

Upstairs in the laboratory, Doctor Montrose notices that the secret panel leading into an adjoining room is open. Looking in, he sees Vanya, Tanner and Pierre. Tanner is putting the mask on Pierre. Realizing that this is his opportunity to destroy Pierre, the doctor puts into the drug a swift poison and when the masked figure comes into the room, the doctor gives him the mixture. Tanner comes in and interferes. When they tear off the mask the doctor receives the shock of his life.

In the meantime Stanley notifies Florence by telephone of Clayton's arrest. Florence says Clayton is innocent, and at the behest of Stanley she agrees to come to the studio to point out the clues which she believes disprove Clayton's guilt. In the Crimson Stain Den, Pierre and his followers declare that Florence must be put out of the way because she knows too much. Pierre assigns the masked figure and another henchman whom he masks to do the work. The two masked figures go to Clayton's studio to await Florence's arrival.

In the studio Stanley sees the two masked figures open the skylight and drop in. He hides behind the portiers. One of the masked figures leaves. Stanley engages the other in a fight and is knocked down by a heavy blow on the jaw. The second masked figure joins the first in the waiting taxicab outside wherein Florence is struggling on the floor. They drive off to the Lent House.

They carry Florence into the house and as they are about to strangle her they hear the purr of an engine, and an automobile filled with policemen drives up. One of the masked figures hides in a closet just as the police enter, making a prisoner of the second masked figure. The noise brings Florence to her senses and she accuses the masked figure of the murder of Truxton Lambert. She tells her story, and the sergeant removes the hood from the masked figure, revealing—a surprise that makes them gasp with amazement!

This person says that the man who killed Truxton Lambert is in the closet. The police open the closet and the first masked figure steps out and throws a bomb on the floor which explodes. In the excitement he makes his escape in the taxicab. The police follow. The pace is so rapid that when the bend in the road is reached, the masked figure cannot stop and the machine plunges over a pier into the sea. Believing the masked figure dead, the police retreat. When they are gone the masked figure emerges from the sea.

WORLD FILM CORP.

THE DARK SILENCE (Five Parts—Sept. 25).—The cast: Mildred White (Clara Kimball Young); Derwent Ainsworth (Edward T. Langford); Dr. Mario Martinez (Paul Capellani); Sibil Ainsworth (Barbara Gilroy); Fifine (Jessie Lewis). Directed by Albert Capellani.

Mildred White, a young American girl, studying art in Paris, is saved from a burglar's attack by Dr. Mario Martinez, a Spaniard. She doesn't understand his type, and resents his advances. She is, however, attracted to his friend, Derwent Ainsworth, a young sculptor. The friendship ripens into love and it is not long before the wedding day is set. A letter from Derwent's sister, Sibil, comes just before the auspicious event telling him to come home immediately as his father is dangerously ill. He decides to go at once, and as there is not even time to say good-by to Mildred he confides his difficulty to Dr. Martinez, who has just entered and whom he asks to explain to Mildred. Dr. Martinez seizes his opportunity—by veiled innuendos, pretending to help Mildred, he encourages her suspicions of her lover, which are confirmed some time later by seeing the half-burned letter from Sibil.

Upon Derwent's arrival in England, he writes Mildred begging her pardon for his sudden departure and explaining everything. This letter falls into the hands of Dr. Martinez, who conceals it. He finally convinces her that her affections are wasted on Derwent and urges her to go with him. Too unhappy to care what becomes of herself, Mildred agrees.

After the death of his father, Derwent hastens to Paris and is bitterly disappointed to learn that Mildred has gone to meet Dr. Martinez. He rushes to Dr. Martinez' apartment, denounces him furiously and then joins the army. Mildred learns that Derwent has been seeking her and that Martinez has lied to her about him. In despair she joins the Red Cross Society. She is called to nurse Derwent who has been blinded in battle. Concealing her identity she nurses him devotedly; he soon comes to love the faithful nurse, confides in her about the "other woman" in his life who was so heartless and faithless.

WILLIS
and
INGLIS
Wright and Callender Building
LOS ANGELES

The New $20,000 Concern

"The Motion Picture Electric and Equipment Corporation" was formed and financed in our offices.

This is the fourth deal consummated by us within a short time.

Management
Publicity
Financing
Books and Plays

"Advancing with the Industry"

When Sibil comes to see her wounded brother, Mildred learns for the first time the grievous mistake that she made. Derwent refuses to return to England without his beloved nurse and finally the two are married. Sibil appeals to Dr. Martinez, who has won a reputation for his operations on the blind, and in behalf of her brother. Anxious to atone for the wrong he has done Derwent, Martinez consents to perform the operation.

Mildred learns of the intended operation—knows if her husband's sight is restored he will recognize the deception she practiced and fears he will turn from her. However, love for her husband is stronger than all else and she begs Dr. Martinez to perform the operation. Anxiously awaiting the outcome, Mildred prepares to leave the house as soon as she learns her husband's sight is restored. Dr. Martinez, however, fully repentant, tells the recovered Derwent the whole truth, that Mildred is innocent and that only he is to blame. Derwent seeks out Mildred and the two happily embrace.

B. S. MOSS.

THE POWER OF EVIL (Six Parts—Oct. 1).—Stuart Merwin, who is heir to the Stuart millions, loves Laurine Manners, who has been introduced to society at the home of Mrs. Willie Clowes, a widow of decidedly energetic temperament. Tommy Carter, a sprig of society, is also in love with Laurine.

Merwin's father has been, during his lifetime, a confirmed alcoholic, and the taint of his dissipated habits is bred in the bone of his son. At Mrs. Clowes' party, Merwin, urged by the hereditary craving for strong liquor, overindulges. He becomes helpless, and in that condition is seen by Laurine, who is disgusted with him.

After leaving Mrs. Clowes' home in disgrace, Merwin enters a disreputable resort, known as "Harry Slavin's." He has hardly seated himself at a table before Jeano; a woman of the streets and a habitue of Slavin's, becomes involved in a fight with her paramour, "Slick Mike," a crook. Merwin's decent instincts are aroused and he springs from the table. He fells the bully, but the effort is too much for his befuddled mind, and he crumples to the floor in a senseless heap, but Jeano senses that in the sordid wreck who lies before her there is the germ of better things. Inspired by the fact that he has interfered in her behalf, Jeano takes Merwin to her home, and constantly urges him to build up a new life.

Merwin obtains employment in a humble occupation, but with the courage of a new birth in his soul, he endures the toil. In the meantime, Laurine has become a member of the fast set. Mrs. Clowes, herself a woman who regards society as being her lawful prey, urges Laurine on to a desperate flirtation with Tommy Carter.

Seeing that Merwin has reformed, Laurine renews her determination to marry the young millionaire, and under Mrs. Clowes' guidance she succeeds. Although he is married to Laurine, Merwin's heart still reverts to Jeano. Soon after their marriage Laurine seeks her old friends and Merwin finds himself neglected. Heartbroken, he reverts to the old life. He again visits Slavin's resort and becomes a broken down wreck. Jeano, who has adopted the uplift work of the Salvation Army, is horrified one night when on entering Slavin's place she stumbles across the out-sprawled form of the man she loves. On the same night, Laurine and her fashionable friends have planned a slumming party, and after imbibing numerous quarts of champagne, they decide to visit Slavin's place. Laurine has scarcely stepped across the threshold when she comes face to face with Jeano who is ministering to Merwin.

As the women face each other, Laurine sees in Merwin's face his adoration for the girl who attempted to work his redemption. On her knees, Laurine begs Merwin's forgiveness. Merwin, his better instincts aroused, takes Jeano by the hand and they leave the sordid hovel to begin anew together.

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS, INC.

WANTED—A HOME (Five Parts—Oct. 2).—The Cast: Mina Rogers (Mary MacLaren); The Widow (Nannie Wright); Gladys (Grace Johnson); Gwen (Marian Sigle); Harvey Gorman (Charles Marriott); Dr. Prine (Jack Mulhall); Dr. Carey (Dana Ong); Cal Morgan ("Kewpie" Morgan); Roberts (Ernest Shields).

Mina Rogers, an orphan girl, is engaged as housemaid by a party of professional nurses. After a week's employment Mina is told that her services will be no longer required. The day she is to leave the telephone rings and Mina makes an appointment for one of the nurses, Grace Kelcy, to undertake the care of Harvey Gorman, a wealthy invalid. Taking a desperate chance Mina presents herself at Gorman's, impersonating "Miss Kelcy," and begins her duties.

Roberts, a villain, is retained as Gorman's male nurse. Dr. Prine takes a marked fancy to Mina and observes how carefully she nurses his patient. Roberts discovers that Mina is not a trained nurse, confronts her with her deception, and thus obtains a hold upon her by promising to remain silent.

Mina repulses the advances. Roberts makes Jane, a household servant in love with Roberts, believe an intimacy between Roberts and Mina and turns to its worst possible construction, an incident Roberts has created in his endeavors to conceal Mina in his villainous plans. Gorman's wealth includes an immense ranch in the West, and when Roberts is called to witness Gorman's will he discovers that this valuable property is bequeathed to Cal Morgan, the foreman of the ranch.

Following Mina to her room Roberts demands that she immediately go West, impersonate a girl sent by Gorman to recover her health; marry Morgan before he learns of his inheritance and divide the spoils with Roberts. Meanwhile Roberts is to use his position as Gorman's nurse to feed his patient poison in small potions, and ultimately end Gorman's life. Jane bursts into the room, acuses Mina of immoral practices with Roberts, calls the household servants to witness Mina's disgrace and forces the nurse to give up her position.

Mina then decides to co-operate with Roberts and leaves for the West, following a telegram Roberts has sent to Morgan, with Gorman's signature attached to instructions that open the hospitality of the ranch to Mina for an indefinite time. Dr. Prine and his patient Gorman, are both mystified at Mina's sudden and unexplained departure, and it is not until Roberts relates the household scandal that Prine believes ill of the girl.

Gorman's increasing weakness prompts Dr. Prine to call another physician into consultation. The presence of arsenic in a stimulant that is being given Gorman is thus discovered and Roberts overhearing the discussion between the two physicians, realizes that his crime is about to be discovered. After sending a message to Mina, followed by a letter, explaining that their plans have been frustrated, Robert disappears.

Meanwhile Mina, established on the ranch, has attracted the sincere love of Morgan and thereby gained the enmity of Morgan's housekeeper and her two marriageable daughters. The three women connive by secretly searching Mina's effects to discover that she has been a nurse, and when the communications come from Roberts advising Mina to "make her get-away" the plotting females open them and confront Mina with evidence of her craftiness.

Morgan still believes in Mina and is in a fair way to urge marriage upon the girl when Dr. Prine arrives at the ranch to investigate the confusing and suspicious circumstances that point to Mina. The girl unburdens her heart to Morgan and Dr. Prine and in the end finds happiness as the doctor's wife.

CHRISTIE FILM CO.

HIS BABY (Sept. 25).—The cast: The Young Bachelor (Neal Burns); His Valet (Dave Morris); The Girl (Betty Compson); The Child's Mother (Jane Waller); The Other Girl (Ethel Lynne). Story written by Neal Burns. Directed by Horace Davey.

Neal, a young and rich bachelor, leaves home one night for a gay time. Jane, a poor and down and out widow, with a baby in her arms, is walking the streets and notices Neal come out of his home. His kind face impresses her and she decides to leave her baby in his care. Neal arrives home about 1 a. m. and finds the baby on his steps. He takes it inside and puts it to sleep in his own bed. The next morning, the effect of wine gone, he is dumfounded to find the baby in his bed.

While discussing the affair with his valet, Ethel, his fiancee, calls him on the telephone. Baby starts to cry and Ethel, hearing the noise, asks about it. Neal starts to say that he has a baby and Ethel becomes angry and hangs up without giving Neal a chance to explain. Neal makes a rush to his fiancee's home, but she will listen to nothing and breaks the engagement. Neal and his valet attempt to take care of the baby, but it is a difficult job. Neal decides to get married. After an attempt with Clarice has failed, Neal realized that under the circumstances, he must use diplomacy to win a wife.

Sitting in the park with baby, Neal sees a peach coming towards him and he pretends to cry. The peach proves to be kind hearted and beautiful Betty. She looks at Neal in sympathy and approaching, speaks to him. Neal explains that the baby's mother has gone. Betty, of course, takes it for granted that he is a widower and that baby needs a mother. They soon become interested in each other and in a short while Betty agrees to marry him. They go to Neal's home and call a minister.

In the meantime, however, Jane wins five hundred dollars in a lottery and she makes a wild dash to Neal's home to claim her baby. At first poor Betty is all upset, but she listened to Neal's explanations and forgave him his deception.

Ethel happens to see Jane and baby coming out of Neal's home. She gets the whole story from Jane and decides to ask forgiveness of Neal, but too late, for Betty has supplanted her for all time.

BY THE SAD SEA WAVES (Oct. 2).—The cast: The Widower (Harry Ratterberry); His Daughter (Babe Rhode); Her Friend (Ethel Lynne); The Widow (Stella Adams); Her Son (Harry Ham); His Friend (Nolan Leary). Story written by Edna McBeth. Produced by Al E. Christie.

Mr. Henry and Billie, his daughter, are summering at the seashore. To father's dislike, Billie has fallen in love with Harry, who is spending his vacation at the same beach with his mother, Mrs. Stella. One day, while father is sleeping on the porch, Billie sneaks away and joins her sweetheart. Billie tells him that her father thinks that he is a mamma's boy and couldn't earn a cent if he tried.

A few minutes later, Harry and Billie, in bathing suits, are enjoying a little chat under the shade of an umbrella. But father's butler, Gussie, always on the lookout to bring somebody into trouble, and seeing Billie and Harry together, rushes home to notify Mr. Henry. In the meantime father has missed Billie and goes out searching for her. He meets Gussie who tells him where to find his daughter. But Ethel, Billie's friend, overhears the conversation and runs to notify Billie of her father's approach. The two lovers are nearly caught, but quickwitted, Billie tells Ethel to act as Harry's sweetheart, while she is hiding behind the umbrella. Father is fooled and coming home, Gussie pays dearly for his supposed mistake.

Nolan is Ethel's sweetheart and chances to meet Billie and Harry as they are coming out of the bath house. A ride on the roller coaster appeals to the young folks. But again Gussie happens to see them and rushes with the news to Mr. Henry. Father takes another chance and after an exciting chase on the roller coaster he catches Billie and Harry. An explanation made by Mrs. Stella, who happens to pass before the roller coaster at the time Mr. Henry is scolding his daughter for going out with Harry, fails to give any satisfaction and Billie is taken home by her father.

Aided by Ethel, Nolan and Mrs. Stella, the two lovers decide to play a joke on father Mr. Henry and his daughter are to go bathing that afternoon. It is an easy thing to bribe the bath house attendant. While father is out in the ocean Mrs. Stella sneaks into his dressing room and starts to pull her hair down. When father comes back to his room, Mrs. Stella starts to cry for help. Nolan is at hand disguised as a detective. Ethel and the bath house attendant are witnesses, and when father is threatened with a five year sentence, he loses his head and gives his consent to the marriage of the two young people.

GREATER VITAGRAPH (V-L-S-E).

THE FALL OF A NATION (Seven Parts—Sept. 18).—The cast: Virginia (Lorraine Huling); Angela (Flora MacDonald); Vassar (Arthur Shirley); Waldron (Percy Standing); Billy (Paul Willis); Thomas (Philip Gastrock). Written and produced by Thomas Dixon.

After a prologue exemplifying the foreign immigrants' debt of gratitude to the Union, the play proper opens with the scenes of political conflict preceding the great conspiracy. Vassar's National Defense Bill is defeated in Congress. Virginia Holland, though admiring his pluck, spurns his principles and encourages Waldron, the professed friend of Peace.

Practically without warning the storm breaks over New York when 20,000 aliens of European military training rise at Waldron's signal, capture the National Guard armories over night, and train the big guns on New York's unarmed citizenry. A wild exodus ensues to Long Island where an American army is hastily raised. But while this is taking place the powerful fleet of the Confederation of Northern Europe has met and defeated the Atlantic squadron. The convoyed Imperial army, 150,000 strong, effects a landing and in a three day battle rout the American utterly. Waldron put on regal uniform and is hailed viceroy of the provinces of North America. He won possession of all the country is captured by the rout-ing forces. Vassar is a fugitive in the West and Waldron sends forth Valerius on the mission of enrolling her American sisters in the Woman's Imperial Legion of Honor."

The final scenes of the play show that Virginia does what Joan of Arc has done. Professing to fulfill the viceroy's mission, she organizes a gigantic conspiracy to free the enslaved Union. Allied with John Vassar, General Hood and the other American leaders, she atones for her former folly by risking life and honor for the cause of Freedom. Here are shown scenes like the Sicilian Vespers where an entire population rises to exterminate foreign usurpers. Conspicuous in the dreadful yet glorious day are the Daughters of Jael, an oath-bound band of women patriots.

THE CHATTEL (Six Parts—Sept. 25).—The cast: Blake Waring (E. H. Sothern); Leila Bard (Peggy Hyland); Mrs. Delavan (Rose E. Tapley); Mr. Bard (Charles Kent); Walter Horly, a broker (John Lark Taylor); Maid (Florence Radinoff). Written by Paul West. Produced by Fred Thomson.

Blake Waring, a financier, whose life code is to have the best of everything at any cost, is surrounded with every conceivable luxury, but he wants a wife to complete his happiness. He is desirous of obtaining a beautiful picture, "The Chattel," owned by Roger Carvin, another financier, who cannot be induced to sell it. Later, Carvin, in stringent circumstanecs, is forced to part with it at an auction where Waring obtains it. Here he sees Leila Bard, and is attracted to her. At the opera he is presented to her by Mrs. Delavan. Determined to have Leila, he lavishes attentions on her until she is deceived into believing he loves her, and finally consents to marry him. On the eve of the wedding, her father confesses his financial ruin in a letter, explaining his present position was held through dishonesty. He then kills himself. Waring, nonplussed at first, decides to possess Leila in spite of all this and conceals Bard's suicide, making restitution under promise of secrecy.

As time passes, Waring begins to grow distant and exacting. Waring, on Leila's birthday, presents her with a lovely necklace, but the sentiment is driven away when she finds that it has been selected by a friend of Waring's. When Leila returns to her home late one afternoon after spending the time at a matinee with Mrs. Delavan, she is reproved by her husband for not being home before him. He is overheard by Harding, Waring's closest friend, who is astonished at Blake's manner. A few days later, Waring, trying to engineer a great financial deal to impress his associates, invites them to dine with him at home. Harding, who is also invited, finds he has a previous engagement which cannot be put off, and stops at Waring's house to tell him. Waring is not at home, but his wife receives Harding's message. As Harding is incidentally telling Leila to overlook her husband's brusqueness, Waring appears and accuses his wife of making love to Harding. Harding goes away crestfallen. Leila and Blake have a dramatic and pathetic scene where Waring tells her that she is "his chattel," and that he cleared her father's name. Leila tells him she will be no man's chattel. The guests arrive, and Waring repents his bitterness toward Leila, for fear she will refuse to see his guests.

Leila professes interest in business matters and finds out the inside information concerning the business deal. After the departure of the guests, Waring feels pleased with Leila's generosity and admires her, but won't relent. Leila is disappointed and the next day she departs for town with her jewels where she goes to the president of the Consolidated Trust Company and negotiates a loan of $75,000 on them. With the money she buys the stock under an assumed name. The stock rises higher and higher and finally she sells it to Waring. She takes the money to Waring with the jewels and tells him: "The chattel has come to buy back her freedom!" Then she leaves. Leila, knowing she is not legally free, goes to Mrs. Delavan's cottage. When Waring, after an illness, is brought home he destroys the picture "The Chattel."

After a month he sends for Mrs. Delavan and questions her as to Leila's whereabouts.

SPECIAL ROLL TICKETS

PRICES

Five Thousand	$1.25
Ten Thousand	2.50
Fifteen Thousand	3.75
Twenty-five Thousand	5.50
Fifty Thousand	7.50
One Hundred Thousand	10.00

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000 $2.50. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated. Stock tickets 5,000 to 25,000 fifteen cents per thousand, 50,000 ten cents, 100,000 nine cents.

NATIONAL TICKET CO.
Shamokin, Pa.

She is moved by the change in Waring and confides in him. When strength returns, he hires a little cottage near Leila's and there lives alone. Sammy, a small boy, brings provisions to both Leila and Blake, who is living under the name of Hope. She does not know that her neighbor is her husband. After a short lapse of time, he slips up to her cottage in the night and leaves flowers on her steps. Waring keeps Leila's picture on his table. Sammy notices the resemblance to Leila in the picture and tells her of it. Sammy tells Waring what he has said to "the lady next door," and Waring has Sammy write a note to her asking if he may visit her. As she is answering the letter that night, she accidentally knocks over the lamp. The fire spreads rapidly and Waring rushes to her rescue, and the past is forgotten. They begin life anew.

THE SCARLET RUNNER (Episode No. 1, "The Car and His Majesty"—Two Parts—Oct. 2).—The cast includes Earle Williams, Charles Kent, L. Rogers Lytton, Marguerite Blake, Templer Saxe and Thomas R. Mills. Written by C. N. and A. M. Wilson. Produced by Wallie Van and W. P. S. Earle.

Christopher Race, forced by his uncle to earn his own living for a change, buys Scarlet Runner, an exceptionally fine automobile. He at first tries hiring it out to private parties, but meets with no success. Finally, after a warning from his uncle that he must earn a stated sum by the end of the year or suffer disinheritance, he turns his car into a public conveyance and tours the streets. He finds the sovereign of a foreign power in a broken-down car and carries him to his destination. By means of his car, and its terrific speed, he is able to thwart a plot which nearly causes the death of Martin Linden, who is a friend of Christopher's and who is engaged to marry a relative of the latter's, Lady Ivy. He causes the destruction of the plotters and the happy reunion of the lovers, all by his red car and his ready wit. He earns the stated sum, and more, too, and then fares forth once more in search of further adventure.

KLEINE-EDISON-SELIG-ESSANAY.

THE COUNTRY THAT GOD FORGOT (Selig—Five Parts—Oct. 2).—The cast: Steve Brant (Thomas Santschi); Cal Hearn (George Fawcett); Mike Donovan (Will Machin); Mrs. Helen Brant (Mary Charleson); Craig Wells (Chas. Gerrard); Ruth Randall (Victoria Forde); Sheriff Grantwell (Chas. Le Moyne). Written and directed by Marshall Neilan.

Helen Brant, wife of Steve Brant, had known nothing for years but the solitude of the desert, and she longed for the pleasure of the outer world. Steve Brant, together with Cal Hearn, his partner, were miners. Their years of work were nearing conclusion, and Steve was overjoyed with the thought that within a few more months he could take his wife back to God's country.

Men of the government reclamation service came to the section, and Craig Wells, the paymaster, while in search of water, met Helen Brant, and became attracted to her. Later, while her husband and Cal Hearn were hard at work, she told Wells of how she came to marry Steve Brant. "Years ago her husband, Cal Hearn and Mike Donovan were three mining partners. The saloonkeeper at a frontier mining town had a pretty daughter, named Ruth. The girl served the miners with food and drink. One day the girl was made the subject of an insult and Mike Donovan went to her rescue. A struggle ensued in which Mike, struck on the head with a bottle, was felled to the floor.

"Steve Brant and Cal Hearn rushed to Mike's assistance. The three partners were about to be overpowered by a gang of desperadoes when Cal Hearn drew his revolver, shot the leader of the gang in the wrist.

"Mike Donovan and Ruth, the girl, were married, and Steve Brant and Cal Hearn were present at the ceremony," continued Mrs. Brant. "As a result of the union, I was born, but my mother passed away. Leaving me with friends, the three returned to the desert to search for gold. Later, my father and the desperado with whom he once before had fought, met again. The desperado shot and killed my father, and in turn he was slain by Steve Brant. They worked and slaved for me in this here hell hole. And with the passing of years when Steve asked me to be his wife, I consented—more out of pity than anything else, as I felt I owed him something."

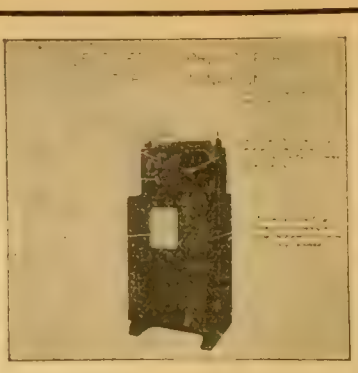
Following Helen Brant's story, she and Craig Wells met frequently. He eventually induced her to flee with him to the big city. Cal Hearn, however, who had heard Helen's agreement to elope with Wells, informed Steve, who remarked that he would not itnerefe if his wife loved the man. Taking the pay roll, Wells fled with Helen. But before she left Steve had taken the gold which he had saved and placed it in Helen's bag with a note. At midday a party of men from the government reclamation camp rode up to the shack and informed Steve and Cal that Craig Wells had disappeared with the pay roll. Not wanting Helen to run away with a thief Steve and Cal started out after Wells.

Wells' horse stepped into a treacherous hole, and its leg was broken. While Wells went back to look over the trail, Helen followed instructions to unload everything she could spare out of the saddle bags. As she unloaded the bags, she found the gold and a note from her husband, which read: "I am enclosing a little gift for you to get a start on. I realize now that you did not get a chance to pick your man. God bless and keep you, girl."

Back on the trail Wells discovered that he was pursued. He turned to Helen, seized the gold and was about to take it when she exclaimed: "It is all right to take his wife, but you cannot take what he has slaved for twenty years to get." Wells tried to force the woman to go with him, but she refused. A struggle followed and she was overcome. Wells took the gold and the water bags, and rode off on the one sound horse. It was not long before the pursuers reached Helen. Steve took her back to the shack, while Cal, his partner, led the pursuers on after Wells.

Hell's Gate, a western village, was theonly outlet from the desert and Craig rode into the town. The horse was recognized by the sheriff as the animal the officer had sold to Steve Brant a year ago. As he questioned Wells regarding the ownership of the horse, the pursuers arrived. Well's identity and his crime were explained, and the sheriff placed him in jail.

Back in Steve Brant's shack a doctor was quickly summoned, and he said that Helen would live. The husband was overjoyed, for Helen had finally realized her abiding love for him. In the little western village Cal Hearn and his companions obtained possession of the jail keys. The sheriff was conveniently absent. They took Wells out of jail, and the prisoner, with hands tied behind his back, and surrounded by the men, one of whom carried a rope, rode away. Later the posse returned and with it came one riderless horse.



Easy Focusing

The carbons of the alternating-current arc both burn considerably and therefore both must be adjusted often in order that the arc shall be in the correct position to give proper focus and light distribution of the picture on the screen. Only the one carbon of the direct-current arc burns appreciably and the latter is therefore more easily kept in focus.

If your electric service is alternating current, a

Westinghouse-Cooper Hewitt Rectifier Outfit

will convert it into the direct current you need. Much of the time that the operator spent in focusing with the alternating-current arc can then be spent in giving better attention to operating the film mechanism, giving better and more even pictures and therefore pleasing your patrons all the more. Write for folder 4205-A for details.

Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Company
Dept. CR
East Pittsburgh, Pa.

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE.

HEARST INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL, NO. 75 (Sept. 19).—Salonika, Greece.—The Russian forces being used in the Allies offensive campaign in the Balkans, arrive here and disembark while crowds on the quay cheer them. Exclusive pictures by Ariel L. Varges, staff cameraman of the International Film Service and official cinematographer for the British army in the Balkans.

Escondido, Cal.—15,000 persons gather here to celebrate the annual "Grape Day" and eat ten tons of luscious Muscat grapes, the product of vineyards in this vicinity.

Detroit, Mich.—American and British players contest in a game of auto-polo, filled with thrilling incidents, the British winning by a score of 2 to 1.

New York.—The striking street-car men of this city, and sympathetic labor organizations, hold a mass meeting in Union Square and are addressed by William B. Fitzgerald, general organizer of the street-car men's union.

Modes of the Moment.—Latest creations in fall hats originated by Lucille, Lady Duff-Gordon, are displayed by beautiful Lucille models.

Indian Head, Md.—A 16-inch shell fired from the guns that were being tested, tears a great hole in the side of a house here, smashing the kitchen stove and wrecking kitchen utensils.

Charlestown, Mass.—The training ship Ranger, which carried a large number of rookie sailors on a trip to the West Indies, returns to its home port and the cadets are presented with diplomas for their training work on shipboard.

Bowdinham, Maine.—500 prize sheep are pastured on the farm of W. B. Kendall near here.

Laredo, Texas.—The First U. S. Engineers construct a pontoon bridge across the Rio Grande River to the Mexican side. One of a series of exclusive pictures by the Hearst International cameramen on the Mexican border.

New York.—A bevy of beautiful British ballet artistes arrives in America preparatory to becoming an important part of the Ziegfeld "Follies of 1916."

London, England.—A giant Zeppelin, bent upon destructive work over the British metropolis, is wrecked and falls to earth near here. Only a mass of tangled wreckage is left of the German war craft.

Santo Domingo City.—The armored U. S. cruiser Memphis is blown upon a coral reef by a terrific hurricane off this coast and forty men are killed, while eighty more are seriously injured. Other members of the crew are rescued under the most thrilling circumstances. The powerful war vessel is left a hopeless wreck upon the rocks to be battered to pieces by the waves.

HEARST-INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL, No. 76 (Sept. 22).

San Antonio, Texas.—Members of the Illinois and Kansas National Guard march in review before the staff officers of Generals Funston and Green, and prepare for a ninety-mile overland hike, the longest march on record.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—A large herd of elk roam at will in the beautiful natural woods of Forest Park.

London, England.—A military burial is accorded the German members of the crew of a raiding Zeppelin which fell and was destroyed by flames near the British metropolis.

Hampstead, L. I.—A new range-finding camera to be used in the determining of enemy locations, is invented by A. J. Motlau. This camera is for use by aviators and photographs a wide area from a height of 25,000 feet.

Windsor Park, England.—King George and Queen Mary enjoy the contest and water sports indulged in by the British life guards.

New York.—Governor Charles Whitman is nominated to succeed himself as the head of the Empire State's government, by the Republicans and Progressives.

Jacksonville, Fla.—A large farm here is given over to raising of alligators. Several of the finest specimens in captivity are seen among the alligator families.

New York.—Seth Low, former Mayor of New York and for many years president of the Columbia University, widely known as an educator, is honored by an impressive funeral which is attended by prominent men of all parts of the country.

Bremen, Germany.—Remarkable exclusive pictures of the German super-submarine, Deutschland, arriving after its initial trip to America. Pictures were made by Nelson E. Edwards, staff photographer of the Hearst-International News Pictorial, by special permission of the German government. Crowds are shown upon the banks, cheering the Deutschland and her commander, Captain Koenig, and German officers receive him at the pier.

Fashions.—The latest garments for fall and winter wear are shown through the courtesy of J. M. Gidding & Company, Fifth avenue, New York.

Salonika, Greece.—The Russian horde in the Balkans to aid in the prosecution of the great allied offensive, are given a rousing reception by the populace when they march through the streets of Salonika.

THE WORLD'S WONDERLAND (Curtis Scenic No. 1—Sept. 25).—Beginning the journey through Yellowstone National Park, showing the Mammoth Hot Springs, Jupiter Terrace and other natural miracles.

They Do It Every Day (Animated Cartoon Comedy by T. E. Powers).

On the 'ard 'igh Road (Animated Cartoon Comedy by W. C. Hoban.

THE WORLD'S WONDERLAND (Curtis Scenic No. 2—Oct. 2).—The second step of a trip through Yellowstone National Park, showing the famous geyser region.

Round and Round again (Maud the Mule). (Animated Cartoon Comedy by F. O. Opper.)

The Great Auto Race (Krazy Kat). (Animated Cartoon Comedy by George W. Herriman).

THE FLOWER OF FAITH (Superb Picture Corp.—Five Parts Oct. 2).—The cast: Ruth Judson (Jane Grey); Hugh Lee (Frank Mills); Ephram Judson (Albert Travernier); Tom Judson (Percy Helton).

Ephram Judson is an itinerant evangelist. He is always accompanied by his daughter, Ruth, and his son, Tom, the latter a youth of 17. They enter a community of devout Christians and hold a series of meetings. On the outskirts of the community lives Hugh Lee, an outcast. His only sister had been burned to death on her wedding day when he renounced the world and his God.

Accidentally he meets Ruth Judson, the evangelists daughter. For the first time since the tragedy, the world looks bright to him. Ruth induces him to attend the Sunday service. But in the midst of it, he pictures his sister's death, and bursts forth into a violent denunciation of religion. The worshippers are shocked and pursue him to the woods.

The collection that day was large and the money is given to young Tom Judson to take to the treasurer. Tom has formed the acquaintance with the village sport, who meets him and inveigles him into a game of cards. Tom stakes the church funds and loses. The gambler turns the money over to the village grocer in payment of a bill and the distressed boy, who has witnessed the transaction, sees the grocer hide it. Tom steals the money, but is pursued and slightly wounded by the grocer. He makes his way to the only place of refuge he can think of—the cabin of Hugh Lee, the unbeliever.

Tom believes he is dying and pleads for his sister. Lee fetches her at night to the cabin. Meantime the grocer has aroused the community, including the evangelist, to hunt down the thief. The boy is traced to Lee's cabin, which is attacked. Ruth, aroused, as she was from her slumber, is found in the cabin in her night clothes, but she still shields her guilty brother and Lee. The fury of the mob breaks loose, Lee is dragged from his cabin and a noose placed about his neck. Ruth refuses to tell why she was in the cabin, despite the pleadings of Lee to save her honor, and give her brother up to the law. She declares that God will save them all.

A storm is raging. Lighting its way with fire-brands, the mob marches Lee to the scene of the revivals after having fired the cabin. The leader of the mob throws the end of the noose over a tree and gives the horse Lee is riding a crack with the whip. Just at that moment a terrific bolt of lightning strikes the limb, severing it from the tree and throwing Lee to the ground. It strikes, too, the mob leader, killing him instantly.

Tom, driven from the burning cabin, has followed the mob and arrives on the scene just as the hand of God saves an innocent man. He confesses his guilt, clearing Lee and his sister's honor and changing a frenzied mob into a rejoiceful gathering. The picture closes with Lee acknowledging the power of faith that has saved him and clasping Ruth in his arms.

PATHE EXCHANGE, INC.

PATHE NEWS NO. 75 (Sept. 16).—New York City.—Eight thousand striking employees of the traction lines unite in a monster demonstration to arouse sympathy for their cause.

Beekman, N. Y.—Regiments of the New York militia, first of the National Guard to be ordered back from service at the Mexican border, return to Camp Whitman until mustered out. Subtitles: (1) Wives and friends greet their long absent soldier boys. (2) The men are learning the operation of the 4.7 howitzer, the first to be used in the United States army. (3) Shrapnel shells, which are proving so destructive in the European war, are used for these powerful guns.

Sacramento, Cal.—A most thrilling spectacle of what occurs when two huge locomotives crash in head on collision at a terrific speed is staged at the State Fair. Subtitle: (1) Immense volumes of steam pour out of the smashed boilers.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Rescued from the claws of its crazed mother lioness, a little cub is now being nursed by an altruistic canine together with its own little pup at the local zoo.

Bessarabia, Russia.—The engineers often find it necessary to build pontoon bridge across many streams on their way to the Balkan front. Subtitles: The Cossacks then stream across the structure, eager to get down to the aid of their new ally. (2) The smallest Cossack in the war, decorated several times for his bravery.

Rosedale, L. I.—No longer can it be said of women folk that they cannot perform the arduous tasks of civic duty for here is an example where they even clean up the town.

Safety First on the Street Car.—Subtitles: (1) A common cause of accident is to get off the car with the bundle in the wrong hand. (2) The right hand is the right hand for the bundle. (3) Don't be in a hurry, there are more cars behind. (4) Boys who hang on behind one day will fall and get hurt. (5) When you get off the car, look around to see whether there is an automobile behind. (6) Look out for passing cars before you cross the street.

Cambridge, Mass.—Harvard commences its football season and a large squad turns out for practice, promising good material for a strong eleven. Subtitles: (1) Rushing the "line," which in early training consists of a "charging sled." (2) The flying tackle, one of the most difficult football plays, is taught by means of a dummy.

Asbury Park, N. J.—President Wilson opens his summer capitol, located in a modern office building, where he will be in touch with the multitudinous duties of his office during his vacation. Subtitle: (1) His Secretary, Joseph P. Tumulty, in conference with Postmaster Burleson.

PATHE NEWS, NO. 76, 1916 (Sept. 20).

Charlestown, Mass.—The Nautical Training School holds its graduating exercises and twenty-two cadets are awarded the diploma of efficiency in naval tactics.

Sacramento, Cal.—California National Guard, just back from the Mexican border, demonstrate the value of their military training received while in Uncle Sam's service. Subtitle: When the troops and wagons have retreated over the bridge it is blown up to prevent the enemy's pursuit.

Galveston, Texas.—The beautiful terpsichorean art reaches its glorious climax as Albertina Rasch and her company of pretty coryphees interpret their classical dances on the sands of the Gulf shore. Subtitle: And they dwell on the rock of the sea, these mermaid devotees of the dance.

Indian Head, Md.—A catastrophe is luckily averted when the missile of the great sixteen-inch shell invades a private dwelling after tearing through its thirteen-inch armor plate target and a fifty-foot sand hill. Subtitle: The huge projectile, weighing 2,100 pounds, which caused the damage. This is the monster sixteen-inch gun used by the United States which promises to be the greatest demon of destruction in the world.

New York City.—The hand of time flies merrily around as the gay metropolis winds up its summer frolic at Coney Island with an elaborate Mardi Gras. Subtitle: And then the multitude wends its homeward way to return when the sun shines bright again.

English Channel.—To prevent the frequent passage of enemy submarines through the English Channel, the Allies are now using a specially consctructed wire net to trap the undersea boats. Subtitle: The nets are spread between floating casks and dragged out to sea.

San Francisco, Cal.—Notre Dame College celebrates its Golden Jubilee with impressive ceremonies, a fitting tribute to its courageous founders. Subtitle: Archbishop Hanna officiates at the open-air mass.

London, England.—Many thousand workers of

WHY NOT SAVE

THE INTEREST ON ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS

EVERY YEAR—AND BEGIN NOW?

On account of the greatly increased cost of paper, engraving, etc., we have been compelled to make the single copy price fifteen cents. For the present direct subscription prices will remain the same. This means a saving of four dollars and eighty cents yearly on direct subscriptions. In addition you get your paper earlier.

It will pay you to fill out this blank and mail at once with your remittance.

ONE YEAR.....$3.00

SIX MONTHS.....$1.50

See title page for rates Canada and Foreign

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue, New York

.....

.....

.....

Cut out and mail Theatre.....

all classes hold a great demonstration in protest against the rapidly mounting cost of living.

Windwood, N. J.—True to the name of their organization, Redmen of American don costumes of the aboriginal Indians when they gather for their annual convention.

An Engineering Problem (Magazine Section).—Drawn by J. F. Leventhal. Photos furnished by J. R. Brey. Subtitles. A span 634 ft. in length had to be placed between the two cantilevers of the Quebec Bridge. The connecting span was built in shallow water, three miles below the bridge. It was towed to the bridge site, and then suspended on the four corner hangers. How the hydraulic jacks, which had a lifting capacity of 2,000 tons, were operated. The strain was too great and the $700,000 structure went down, carrying 11 men to their death.

THE MOODS OF MEDORA (Pathe—Two Parts—Oct. 1). Medora a woman with a past, marries but soon wearies of her marriage bonds. She runs away with another man, leaving in her place a woman who looks exactly like her. Her husband is completely fooled and is astonished by the change in his wife. The ship on which Medora and her companion sailed is sunk and they are drowned. Thus fortune smiles on the lives made happier by the subterfuge.

GRIP OF EVIL NO. 12—INTO THE PIT (Two Parts—Oct. 1). Lured by an appeal to his sympathy John Burton finds himself trapped in the Pit, a retreat for denizens of the underworld. Through the aid of a reformed young crook he makes his escape and by a strange twist of fate the climax that forecasts his ultimate answer to the question: Is Humanity in the Grip of Evil" is the means of turning the tide to a renewed faith in the good of the world.

FLORENCE ROSE FASHIONS NO 5—BETTY SELECTS HER BRIDESMAID FROCK (Pathe—Oct. 1).—Betty is called by wedding bells to act as bridesmaid. Many costumes are selected both for the nuptials and the afternoon teas and social functions the days before the ceremony.

SOME TROPICAL BIRDS—PARROTS (Pathe—Oct. 1).—An intimate study of tropical birds, their beautiful plumage, brought out in colors.

THE SPANISH PYRENEES (On same reel as foregoing).—A scenic of nature's boundary line between France and Spain. The small villages nestling at the foot of the majestic guardians of the valleys—the tiled roofs and quaint architecture lend beautiful contrast to the high mountains.

THE SHIELDING SHADOW (Episode No. 1, "Treasure Trove"—Two Parts—Oct. 1).

Stephen Walcott favors the suit of Sebastian Navarro, a Spaniard, for his daughter Leontine's hand, foreseeing in the marriage a prop to strengthen his tottering fortunes. Leontine is deeply in love with Jerry Carson, a penniless young writer, who has taken passage on her father's ship. The ship burns at sea and all are reported lost save the captain and a seaman. Jerry, however, has managed to swim ashore, where he finds in a bottle a manuscript written by a shipwrecked scientist, Matthewson, which gives the location on an island of a buried fortune. Matthewson also writes of some black pellets he has manufactured which will give the finder "power beyond the dreams of all men."

Sebastian, thinking Jerry dead, tries to hasten his own marriage by having One Lamp Louie forge a paper which casts a blot on Jerry's memory. Jerry, after many hardships, arrives shortly after the paper is shown to Leontine and her father, and tries to secure it from Diego, Sebastian's brother. During the struggle Diego falls and is killed, his head hitting a heavy desk ornament. The only witness is One Lamp Louie, who sees it through a window. When Jerry is found bending over Diego, he is arrested on a charge of murder. Louie keeping silent, fearing he will be implicated also.

TRIANGLE FILM CORP.

MANHATTAN MADNESS (Fine Arts—Five Parts—Oct. 1). The cast: Steve O'Dare (Douglas Fairbanks); the girl (Jewel Carmen); the butler (George Beranger); the maid (Ruth Darling); Count Marinoff (Eugene Ormonde); the villain (Marcey Harlan); Jack Osborne (W. P. Richmond). Directed by Allan Dwan.

Steve O'Dare, a rich young man who has lived for some years on his Nevada ranch, returns to New York for a visit. He goes to the University Club, of which he is a member. There follows a week of New York gayety with his club companions, but Steve fails to get thrills out of the pleasures of the Great White Way. He tells the boys there isn't a thrill in Manhattan. This announcement is made while he is lunching at a country club. Through an open doorway he sees at a table in the garden outside a middle aged couple of distinguished appearance and a beautiful girl. Upon inquiring of his companions who the people at the table in the garden are he is told that they are the Count and Countess Marinoff and their ward.

One of the men at the table offers to bet him $5,000 that if he will stay in New York a week he will get the thrill of his life. Steve takes the bet. Remembering that he has sold stock to Count Marinoff he wonders whether it might not be possible for him to meet the ward. The problem is solved when the Count calls Steve up and asks him to come to his home. Steve goes and meets the ward, who mystifies Steve by making mysterious signs to him. The Count informs Steve that the girl is crazy. A note is passed to Steve by the girl's maid which tells him that the girl is in great peril and wants him to help her. The Count, being called away, the maid directs Steve to go up to the second floor. Ascending the stairs he drops through a trap door on the landing and is bound and gagged by the Count's butler, but the maid releases him, and he telephones to the boys at the club and asks some of them to come out to the Count's house. The boys come, and a battle follows between the Count and his servants on one side, Steve and the clubmen on the other. Steve battles up through the house to the roof with one of the Count's henchmen, who has carried the ward off in his arms early in the conflict. After finally knocking the villain cold Steve searches for the girl but cannot find her. All the men who have been fighting, both his friends and the Count have mysteriously disappeared.

As he is at his wits end he sees the face of the butler peeping through a sliding panel in the wall. The panel quickly closes and Steve kicks his way through it and finds himself in a banquet hall where the whole company of his friends and supposed foes are dining together, the persecuted ward beaming at him from the end of the table. It is then explained to Steve by his friend with whom he made the bet that he had been given the promised thrill, the members of the party, except the clubmen, being members of the theatrical profession, especially engaged for the doings. Just then there arrives four of Steve's cowboys, for whom he telephoned at the same time that he telephoned the club. With their aid Steve quickly turns the tables on the jokers. While cowboys cover the party with their guns Steve, announcing that he, like Lochinvar, came out of the west, grabs the girl and rides away with her. She is not an unwilling captive and an hour later the weary party still held under the guns get a wireless from Steve that he is quite willing to pay his bet—he has had the thrill of his life, for he is married and sailing away on his wedding tour.

PLAIN JANE (Kay Bee—Five Parts—Oct. 1).—The cast: Jane, "The Orphint" (Bessie Barriscale); Mr. "John Sophomore Adams" (Charles Ray); Ethelda Rathbone (Mabel Johnson); Frederick Verstner (W. Burgermaster); Nora O'Grogan (Fanny Midgley). Directed by Charles Miller.

John Adams is working his way through college. Jane is the little slavey in his boaring house. John at first has no idea of falling in love with Jane, but she is completely gone on him from the beginning. In fact, he has his eyes on Ethelda Rathbone, a young college girl.

There came a time when John wanted to attend a ball at which Ethelda was to be present; but he hadn't a dress suit. Jane chanced to become aware of this, and with her scanty savings rented him one. Of course she couldn't tell him she did that, but she pretends that it was left there by a former boarder. So he goes to the ball. But boys will be boys, and his classmates rip the coat up his back, and he is compelled to come home without having seen Ethelda at all.

Jane takes the suit back to the dealer, unaware that it is ruined. When the dealer discovers it, he demands payment. There follows a scene in the street in which she is humiliated. It was then that old Frederick Verstner, the town photographer and a man of considerable means, came to the crowd. Hearing her pitiful story, he made good the amount to the dealer.

Shortly after this, Jane went to Verstner's to have her picture taken that she might give it to John. A newspaper in New York was offering a prize for the most beautiful photograph of a college girl, and Verstner's was crowded with girls from the school. Verstner took a picture of Jane, and, by loosening out her tresses and placing something filmy about her shoulders, he made her look beautiful. Through a course of circumstances, and without Jane's knowledge, this photograph is sent along with the others to the paper. And it wins the prize.

Jane is, of course, as much surprised as the rest. And so is John. Verstner adopts the girl, educates her and makes her the most popular girl in the place. And then comes a great awakening for John.

POWER'S 6 B

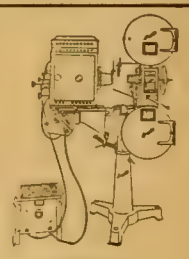
This is the Day of the Specialist!

We Specialize in the Best of Modern Equipment for

THE MOTION PICTURE THEATRE

Projection Difficulties Solved. Tell Us Your Projection Troubles and Benefit by Our Suggestions.

Send for Our New Catalogue.



SIMPLEX

Piteco Carbon Economizers Each 75c. Better Than The Best

We Equip Motion Picture Theatres Completely.

PICTURE THEATRE EQUIPMENT CO.

PROJECTION ENGINEERS

1604 BROADWAY, at 49th Street

NEW YORK

CONSULT US FOR MODEL PROJECTION

Classified Advertisements

Classified Advertisements, five cents per word, cash with order; one dollar minimum; postage stamps accepted.

NOTE:—Beginning with issue of October 7th, Classified Advertising Rate will be one dollar per insertion up to twenty words, over twenty words, five cents per word, including name and address.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS:—The Publishers expect that all statements made in every advertisement will bear the strictest investigation.

SITUATIONS WANTED.

CAMERAMEN furnished with outfits for all classes of work. Local pictures, industrial, educational or studio. Universal Camera Co., 1007 Times Bldg, N. Y. City.

LIVE WIRE MANAGER, expert booker, operator nine years, vaudeville moving pictures, desires change. Worby, 646 E. 182d St., N. Y. City.

EXPERIENCED SCENARIO WRITER, several years staff writer for one of the world's largest producing companies, open for staff engagement or will furnish adaptations, etc., to order. R., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

WANTED, by former dramatic critic, fiction editor and writer, a position with established photoplay producing company or motion picture magazine. Creative artist. Expert on reconstructions and adaptations. Graphic synopsis writer. Keen sense for dramatic, aesthetic and literary values. Experienced novelizer. Highest references. Address Resourceful, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

HELP WANTED.

FOR SELLING Dr. Heinzel's Pine Ozon Extract, the greatest air purifier, ozon generator, disinfectant and most agreeable perfume; one bottle at $1.25 makes, with water, one gallon best spray; agents wanted. Heinzel Chemical Co., 63 Park Row, N. Y. City.

THEATERS FOR SALE OR RENT.

SPLENDID CHANCE to purchase a brand new moving picture and vaudeville theater including real estate. (Brick building) seats 800, large stage, only house in town of 6,000 inhabitants. 10c. admission. Fully equipped. Now in operation. Free & Brannigan, Tarrytown, N. Y.

HAVE TWO THEATERS in city of 20,000. Total seating capacity 1,400. Investment about $22,000. Will sell either theater or prefer live wire partner with $5,000 cash. Exceptional opportunity. Address P., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

ARE YOU CAPABLE of standing prosperity? Do you want to buy one of the best medium-sized picture houses in one of the largest towns in the central part of New York State? Receipts from August 27th to September 2d, $417.85; September 3-9, $518.60; September 10-16, $887.80, making a total of $1,824.25, in twenty-one working days. Expenses less than half. This enterprise is positively worth $20,000. Personal reasons compel the owner to sacrifice for $7,000. Income property in Buffalo, Rochester, Jamestown or Syracuse will be considered as cash or will accept $4,000 down, balance from the business. Trial will be given one week or one month. Lewis, the only successful broker in the U. S. A., 580 Ellicott sq., Buffalo, N. Y. Send for copy of our catalogue. Free.

FOR SALE—Two specially constructed moving picture theaters in one of the best manufacturing cities in Western Illinois. Both houses making money. Nothing like this ever offered. Fully equipped, run seven days a week. No brokers or agents need apply. Best reasons ever given for selling. For information address Lock Box 561, East Moline, Ill.

THEATERS WANTED.

CASH FOR YOUR MOVIE—I am a practical successful moving picture broker. Seventeen years of continuous success. Selling upwards of one million dollars' worth annually, sales, exchanges and leases. Lewis, the Moving Picture Broker. Established 1896. Offices, 578-80 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—Slightly-used Simplex projectors, guaranteed perfect and good as new at reasonable prices. Second-hand Motiograph in good condition, cheap. Room 206, 1482 Broadway, N. Y. City.

BARGAINS slightly used Simplex, Power's and Motiograph machines. Lowest prices—fully guaranteed. Hallberg, 729 Seventh Ave., N. Y. City.

3,000 OPERA CHAIRS steel and cast frames 60c. up. All serviceable goods. Player piano new. Four asbestos booths, several machines. J. P. Redington, Scranton, Pa.

OPERA CHAIRS—3,500 slightly used, 50c. up; 1,200 upholstered, $1.00 up; airdome seats, new, 80c.; maple folding, 40c. Write for catalogs with direct factory prices. Atlas Seating Co., 10 E. 43rd St., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE—835 chairs, 2 Power's machines, fire extinguishers, hook and axes, 2 Diehl exhaust fans, 1¼ H. P. D. C. Manager, 136 E. 14th St., N. Y. City.

ANOTHER FIBRE SCREEN for sale. Only $20, taken in exchange for scenery. Frame $7.50 extra. Size of screen 12x15. Sample furnished. Will ship C. O. D. Superior Scenic Studio, Wilkes Barre, Pa.

TWO STANDARD No. 2 machines. A-1 condition, guaranteed, $60. Each complete. Special Universal Motor Company, 406 East 149th Street, N. Y. City.

CALCIUM LIGHTS—Good light necessary for good projection, better light at lower cost can be had by using the Oxy-Hydro-Cet process; the most brilliant, most economical, most convenient portable light for moving pictures in existence; no ozone or ether required; costs less than 30c. per hour; write for circulars containing valuable information concerning light. S. A. Bliss, 504 Bryan Avenue, Peoria, Ill.

BARGAINS—Two Power's 6A's, fine condition, complete with or without motors. Ship immediately privilege examination. New Mirroroid screen cheap. Box 368, Canton, Ohio.

FOR SALE—Two Edison moving picture machines in good condition with 1914 base and legs. One pin movement. Will sell the two for $75. Single, $40. W. H. Heffley, Duncannon, Pa.

FOR SALE—Bargain. Complete traveling moving picture outfit, including Power's 6A machine, Ozo Carbide gas outfit, also electric lamp and rheostat. Outfit is new, never been used. Includes Kleine's Universal Stereo Lens, two extra M. P. tubes. Slides, film mender, light chemicals, Bio carbons, extra reels and condensers. 18,000 fine film subjects. First class condition. Outfit cost over thousand dollars, will sell cheap on account of having secured valuable permanent Government position. W. C. Burgert Tampa, Fla.

FOR SALE—135 penny chocolate vending machines for theater chairs. Big money makers. Cost $1.50 each. Make offer. A. L. Schulz, Hot Springs, Va.

A NUMBER of national projectors, take standard film, nitrogen bulb. Almost new fully guaranteed, $35 each, complete. J. G. Bell, 331 4th Avenue, Room 1108, N. Y. City.

CAMERAS, ETC., FOR SALE.

MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS and tripods for sale and for rent. Cameramen furnished anywhere. H. R. Hoover & Co., 229 West 42nd St., N. Y. City.

CAMERAMEN'S NOVELTIES—Laboratory outfits, special machinery, photoplay directors viewfinder, flexible cranks, effect devices, static preventers. All film work, repair. Eberhard Schneider, 14th St. and Second Ave., N. Y. City.

ARE YOU GETTING your share of the big money in the motion picture business? Take pictures for advertising, home talent, news weekly. Openings everywhere. Every movie theater should own a moving picture camera and tripod. We are specialists in equipping beginners. Our new Davsco M. P. camera is the sensation of the year. 200 ft. capacity, aluminum magazines, side focusing device, 50 MM B. & L. Tessar lens F:3.5 in newly patented mount and exposure indicator. Weight, 10½ lbs. Our price complete, $110. Write for details and specifications. We have several good used motion picture cameras we have taken in exchange. Ensign, 110 ft. capacity, Zeiss Tessar F:3.5 lens and panorama and tilting top tripod, complete, $75. Ernemann 100 ft. capacity, Ernon F.3.5 lens, $57.50. Vista, 150 ft. capacity, Zeiss Tessar F:3.5 lens, $60. Highest grade developing and printing. Titles, 8c. a foot. Write us today. David Stern Co., 1047-R Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

KINEOGRAPH, 150 foot; leather covered, F.3:5 lens. Only $60. Ray, 326 Fifth Avenue, N. Y. City.

FILMS WANTED.

WANTED—Used five-reel features with advertising matter in good condition. Mail list to Big A Film Company, 145 W. 45th Street, N. Y. City.

WANTED—Five-reel features, single, two-reel comedies, etc. State prices, titles, condition. Missouri Film Exchange, 2915 Gamble, St. Louis, Mo.

FILMS FOR SALE OR RENT.

OVER SEAS BUYERS should communicate with me, second-hand American pictures at European prices. Donald Campbell, 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

WE SPECIALIZE in used educational, industrial, scientific and scenic films. Good subjects at 1½c. per foot and up. We have what you want. Send for our lists and terms. New York Film Laboratories, Film Sales Dep't, 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE—Special state right proposition on our new 5-reel feature. Write for particulars. State territory wanted. 101 Ranch Motion Picture Dept., Bliss, Okla.

FOR SALE—The following features: "Fantomas," serial, 20 reels. "Cora, the Temptress," 4 reels. "Are They Born or Made?" 4 reels. "Dukes Talismen," 4 reels. "New York Girl," Keystone, 2 reels. Federal Feature Film Co., 145 W. 45th Street, N. Y. City.

ONE AND TWO-REEL subjects (American make) in good condition with plenty of posters, at $5.00 per reel. Also 4, 5, 6-reel features in first class condition, with full line of advertising. Bargains. Queen City Feature Film Company, 123½, Opera Place, Cincinnati, Ohio.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SCENARIO WRITERS—Manuscripts neatly typewritten, including carbon; thirty cents per thousand words. Corbo & Corbo, 125 Newark St., Newark, N. J.

For Your LITTLE WANTS in the Moving Picture Industry

the LITTLE ADS in the Classified Department

WILL GET YOU EXCEPTIONAL RESULTS

Send your copy, accompanied by remittance—The Rate is Five Cents per Word, One Dollar per Annum.

INDEX

TO CONTENTS

Advertising for Exhibitors.. 67
Arey, Wayne, Thanhouser Star..... 90
Arnold, Helen, Prize Winner..... 92
"Ashes of Embers" (Famous Players)..... 63
At Leading Picture Theaters..... 85

Back to the Screen..... 79
Baumer, N. J. 91
Billy the Exhibitor..... 80
"Blocked Track, The" (Kalem)..... 64
Bluebirds by the Dozen..... 91
British Notes 81

Calendar of Daily Program Releases....120, 122
"Chalice of Sorrow, The" (Bluebird). . .. 61
Chicago News Letter..... 55
Cincinnati Exchanges Generous..... 108
Cincinnati Screen Club Elects..... 108
Comments on the Films..... 94
"Common Law, The" (C. K. Y.)..... 65
Cronjager, Henry, Cameraman..... 81

Detroit's New Regent Opens..... 109
Dismisses Censorship Appeal..... 106

Essanay to Have Chaplin Revue.. 85
Extend "Girl from Frisco"..... 89

Facts and Comments..... 47
Fairer Censorship for Minneapolis..... 115
Farrell Heads Boston Pathe..... 104
Feature Market, The..... 49
Film Men Firm Against Censorship..... 51
"Fires of Conscience, The" (Fox)..... 62

General Film Program..... 93
Getting at Suburban Patrons..... 114
Going On at Mutual Studios..... 90

Hallowe'en Ball to Be Brilliant..... 106
Horne a Product of Stage..... 88

"Idle Wives" (Universal)..... 65
Indiana Theaters Expect Good Season..... 112

Kalems for October..... 84

"Land of the Lizards, The" (Mutual)..... 65
"Light That Failed, The" (Pathe)..... 63
Lincoln, E. K. 80
List of Current Film Release Dates, 142, 144, 146, 148
Lurid Film Has Had Its Day..... 115
Lyon, B. F., With International..... 87

Manufacturers' Advance Notes..... 97
May Now Expect Censor Appeal Board..... 117
Metcalfe, Earle 89
Minneapolis Operators' Wage Demands..... 115
"Mishaps of Musty Suffer, The" (Kleine)... 61
Mitchell, S. D., Sabbaterian Active..... 114
Morosco Makes Denial..... 52
Motion Picture Photography..... 75
Moving Picture Exhibitor, The..... 54
Moving Picture in Politics, The..... 53
Music for the Picture..... 76
Mutual Program 84

Nashville Theater Consolidation..... 112
New Group of Independent Manufacturers.. 60
New Jersey Convention..... 54
News of Los Angeles and Vicinity..... 57
No Copyright Established..... 50
Notes of the Trade..... 102

Observations by Man About Town..... 82
"One Step Too Far" (Kalem)..... 64

Pantages to Make Comedy Films..... 117
Pathe Increases Output..... 87
Perceiving the Invisible..... 48
Photoplaywright, The..... 70
Picture Shows Become Commodity..... 113
Picture Theaters Projected..... 103
Political Power of the Screen..... 78
Private Showing of "The Common Law"... 83
Projection Department 71
"Pueblo Legend, A" (Biograph)..... 62

Quartette of Kalems, A..... 64

Reviews of Current Productions..... 61
"Revolt, The" (World)..... 63
Richardson in Washington..... 77
"Romance of Billy Goat Hill, A" (Red Feather) 66
"Rummy, The" (Triangle)..... 64

San Francisco Censorship Abolished..... 111
"Scarlet Runner, The" (Vitagraph)..... 65
Screen in Politics, The..... 49
Signal's New Serial 92
"Stolen Plumage" (Kalem)..... 64
Stories of the Films..... 126

"Through the Wall" (Vitagraph)..... 62
Toronto Expects Brisk Business..... 113
Triangle Program 64
Turning 'Em Out at Triangle..... 88
Two Biograph Reissues..... 62

Universal Program for Week of Oct. 2..... 86
Utica Exhibitors Organize..... 54

"Vagabond Prince, The" (Triangle)..... 64
Vice Film Suppressed..... 52

War Films, America Wants to See..... 50
"Web of Guilt, The" (Kalem)..... 64
Week of Paramounts, A..... 83
Washington Exchanges and Censors..... 105
"White Rose of the Wilds, The" (Biograph). 62
Will Try Fraudulent Advertising Law..... 105

TO ADVERTISERS

CARBON AND CARBON ACCESSORIES.

Jones & Cammack..... 129
Speer Carbon Co..... 151

CHAIR & SEATING MANUFACTURERS.

American Seating Co..... 153
DuPont Fabrikoid Co..... 143
Foco Chair Co..... 147
Steel Furniture Co..... 153

ELECTRICAL & MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT.

American Auto-Arc Co..... 141
Amusement Supply Co..... 132
Bell & Howell Co..... 150
C. & C. Electric & Mfg. Co..... 145
Calehuff Supply Co..... 152
Fulton, E. E..... 130
Hallberg, J. H..... 119
Hertner Electric & Mfg. Co..... 145
Hommel, Ludwig & Co..... 130
Lucas Theater Supply Co..... 152
Northwestern Electric Co..... 151
Picture Theater Equip. Co..... 138
Porter, B. F..... 149
Strelinger, Chas. A..... 133
Typhoon Fan Co..... 149
Wagner Elect. Mfg. Co..... 154
Westinghouse Elec. & Mfg. Co..... 136

FILM EXCHANGES.

American Maid Film Co..... 147
Bradenburgh, G. W..... 152
Film Exchange, The..... 130

LENS MANUFACTURERS.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co..... 143

MANUFACTURERS OF MOVING PICTURES.

American Film Co., Inc..... 25
Artcraft Picture Corp..... 34
Biograph Co. 122
Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.....Colored Insert
Christie, Benjamin. 30
Christie Film Co..... 33
Clara Kimball Young Film Corp..... 27
Consolidated Film Corp..... 32
E. & R. Jungle Film Corp..... 131
Essanay Film Mfg. Co.....3, 45
Gaumont Co. 24
Grafton Publishing Film Co..... 130
Great Northern Film Co..... 150
Herald Film Corp.....16-18
Herbert Brenon Film Corp..... 29
International Film Service.....22-23
Kalem Co. 46
Kitty Gordon Film Corp..... 28
Kleine, George. 10
Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service. 8-9
Knickerbocker Star Features.....124-25
McClure Pictures. 31
Metro Pictures Corp.....Colored Insert
Motion Picture Forum..... 44
Mutual Film Corp.....Colored Inserts (2)
National Drama Corp..... 129
Paramount Pictures Corp.....35-43
Pathe Exchange, Inc.....Colored Insert, 19-21
Thanhouser Film Corp..... 2
Triangle Film Corp.....14-15
Unicorn Film Service..... 7
Universal Film Mfg. Co..... 4-6
Vim Comedies. 123
Vogue Films, Inc..... 26
World Film Corp.....11-13

MISCELLANEOUS.

Automatic Ticket Selling & C. R. Co..... 130
Bioscope, The. 133
Botanical Decorating Co..... 153
Bulletin, The. 150
C., care M. P. World..... 129
Cinema Camera Club..... 131
Cine-Mundial. 153
Classified Advertisements. 139
Corcoran, A. J..... 152
Crystal Film Corp..... 119
Eastman Kodak Co..... 143
Erbograph Co. 129
Evans Film Mfg. Co..... 149
Finkler & McEntire..... 130
General Chemical Co..... 149
Gunby Bros. 150
Heinzel Chemical Co..... 129
Il Tirso Al Cinematografo..... 150
Kinematograph Weekly, The..... 129
Kraus Mfg. Co..... 132
L. M., care M. P. World..... 152
Latin American Produce Co..... 131
Marion, Louise M..... 103
Maryland Amusement Co..... 129
Motion Picture Electricity..... 152
M. P. Directory Co..... 133
Moore, Wm. N..... 131
National Ticket Co..... 135
Pacific Tank & Pipe Co..... 129
Richardson, F. H..... 150
Richardson M. P. Handbook..... 145
Rothacker Film Mfg. Co..... 155
Standard Motion Picture Co..... 131
Superior Films Co.....132, 150
Willis & Inglis..... 134

MOVING PICTURE CAMERAS.

Gennert, G. 151
Los Angeles M. P. Co..... 129
Motion Picture Scope Co..... 150
Stern, David Co..... 131
Universal Camera Co..... 152

MUSIC AND MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

American Photo Player Co..... 130
Berg, S. M..... 152
Harmo Pipe Organ Co..... 150
Seeburg, J. P., Piano Co..... 121
Sinn, Clarence E..... 153
Wangerin-Weickhart. 151

POSTERS AND FRAMES.

Menger & Ring..... 129

PROJECTION MACHINE MANUFACTURERS.

American Standard M. P. Mch. Co..... 130
Enterprise Optical Co..... 141
Power, Nicholas, Co..... 156
Precision Mch. Co..... 148

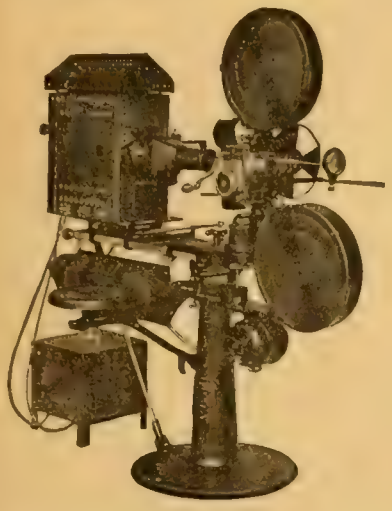
PROJECTION SCREEN MANUFACTURERS.

Genter, J. H., Co., Inc..... 149
Gold King Screen Co..... 103
Radium Gold Fibre Screen, Inc..... 131

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.

Decorators' Supply Co..... 145

GET WHAT YOU ($250.00) PAY FOR ($285.00)



THE LATE MODEL MOTIOGRAPH

In Performance

It can boast of clear, steady pictures on long or short throw, its simplicity is spoken of by all its operators.

On Low Maintenance Cost

You don't find die cast or bronze gears or soft bearings in the MOTIOGRAPH. Every part is made from selected material—parts most subject to wear receive a Special Heat Treatment and with ordinary use the MOTIOGRAPH will outwear all other projectors.

SERVICE

With each MOTIOGRAPH goes a year's guarantee and should the machine with no apparent cause become out of adjustment you may send the mechanism to the factory—it will be put in good working order with not one cent of cost to you.

THE MOTIOGRAPH REPRESENTS THE ESSENCE OF SIMPLICITY, STRENGTH AND DURABILITY.

THE ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO., 574 W. Randolph St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Western Office: 833 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

Seeing is Believing

You, of course, want a perfect, continuous white light on your screen. You don't want any flickering or unevenness of light you get from hand-feed, shown in top picture.

So sure are we that it will satisfy your most exacting demand for a perfect, continuous, shadowless, exactly focused, automatically maintained white light on your screen, we will send you the

Auto-Arc on 30-Days' Trial with a positive guaranty that if it isn't satisfactory in every respect, we will take it back at our expense and return you your money. We want you to put it to the test of actual trial in your own operating booth, attached to your own lamp house, see it do its perfect work independent of manual care, as shown in right hand picture, and then decide. We want you to see how much better pictures it makes; what a good talking point it is for you and your house. Better pictures, you know, mean better patronage and that means more money in the box for you. Fits any standard lamp house. Any operator can understand it. Write today. You'll want one in your house. Price $60.00 f. o. b. factory, Owensboro, Ky. Address all letters to American Auto-Arc Co.

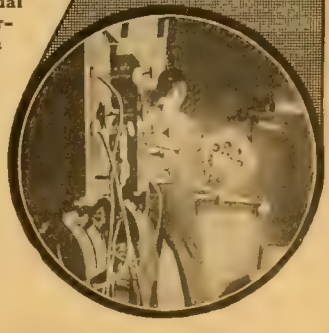
INCORPORATED

407 S. Dearborn St. CHICAGO, ILL.



List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 120, 122.)

General Film Company

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Biograph, Selig, Vitagraph.

Tuesday—Biograph, Essanay, Kalem.

Wednesday—Biograph, Essanay, Kalem, Vim Feature Comedy.

Thursday—Selig, Vim.

Friday—Kalem, Knickerbocker, Vim, Vitagraph.

Saturday—Essanay, Kalem, Selig, Vitagraph.

BIOGRAPH.

Aug. 29—Enoch Arden (Two parts—Drama) Biograph Reissue No. 76).
Sept. 4—Iola's Promise (Reissue No. 77—Dr.).
Sept. 6—Man's Enemy (Reissue No. 78—Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 11—For the Son of the House (Reissue No. 79—Drama).
Sept. 12—A Blot in the Scutcheon (Reissue No. 80—Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—The Unveiling (Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 81).
Sept. 20—Strongheart (Three parts—Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 82).
Sept. 25—The Sunbeam (Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No 83).
Sept. 26—The Wedding Gown (Two parts—Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 84).
Oct. 2—An Indian's Loyalty (Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 85).
Oct. 4—Under the Gaslight (Three parts—Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 86).
Oct. 9—A Tale of the Wilderness (Drama—Biograph—Reissue No 87).
Oct. 10—A Pueblo Legend (Two parts—Drama—Biograph—Reissue No 88)

ESSANAY.

Aug. 29—His Stolen Fortune (Two parts—Dr.).
Aug. 30—Vernon Howe Bailey's Sketch Book of Washington (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A scenic subject on the same reel.
Sept. 2—The Higher Destiny (Three parts—Drama)
Sept. 5—The Pacifist (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 6—The Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 15 (Cartoon).
Scenic on the same reel.
Sept. 9—A Million for a Baby (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 12—The Greater Obligation (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 13—The Fable of the Slim Girl Who Tried to Keep a Date that Was Never Made (Comedy).
Sept. 16—The Woman Always Pays (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 19—When Justice Won (Two parts—Dr.).
Sept. 20—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 16 (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A scenic subject on the same reel.
Sept. 23—The Way of Patience (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 26—Peter, the Hermit (Two parts—Comedy-Drama).
Sept 27—Dreamy Dud (Cartoon—Comedy).
Sept. 30—Twin Fates (Three parts—Drama).
Oct. 3—An Old Fashioned Girl (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 4—The Fable of "The Kid Who Shifted His Ideals to Golf and Finally Became a Baseball Fan and Took the Only Known Cure" (Comedy).
Oct. 7—His Little Wife (Three parts—Dr.).
Oct. 10—Money to Burn (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
Oct 11—Canimated Nooz Pictorial, No. 17 (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A Scenic subject on the same reel
Oct. 14—Lost, Twenty-four Hours (Three parts—Comedy).

KALEM.

Sept. 2—The Secret of the Box Car (No. 95 of "The Hazards of Helen"—Drama).
Sept. 5—Ham the Fortune Teller (Comedy).
Sept. 6—The Ore Plunderers (Fifth of "The Girl from Frisco"—Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 8—Meter in the Kitchen (Comedy).
Sept. 9—Ablaze on the Rails (No. 96 of "The Hazards of Helen"—Drama).
Sept. 12—Patented by Ham (Comedy).
Sept. 13—The Treasure of Cibola (No. 6 of "The Girl from Frisco"—Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 15—The Mysterious Double (Comedy).
Sept. 16—The Hoodoo of Division B (No. 97 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Sept. 19—The Mud Cure (Comedy).
Sept. 20—The Gun Runners (No. 7 of "The Girl From Frisco"—Two parts—Dr.).
Sept. 22—That Pesky Parrot (Comedy).
Sept. 23—Defying Death (No. 98 of "The Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Sept 26—Bumping the Bumps (Comedy).
Sept. 27—A Battle in the Dark (No. 8 of the "Girl from Frisco"—Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 29—Rival Artists (Comedy).
Sept. 30—The Death Swing (No. 99, of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Oct 3—One Star Too Far (Comedy).
Oct 4—The Web of Guilt (No. 8 of the "Girl From Frisco" Series (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 6—Stolen Plumage (Comedy).
Oct. 7—Hazards of Helen Railroad Series, No 100, "The Blocked Track" (Dr.).

LUBIN.

July 17—Otto's Vacation (Comedy).
July 20—The Rough Neck (Three parts—Dr.).
July 22—Americans After All (Comedy).
July 24—Otto, the Salesman (Comedy).
July 25—By Right of Love (Two parts—Dr.).
July 27—In the Hour of Disaster (Three parts—Drama).
July 29—It Happened in Pikersville (Com.).
July 31—Otto the Gardener (Comedy).
Aug. 1—The Price of Dishonor (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 8—Their Mother (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 15—A Lesson in Labor (Two parts—Dr.).
Aug. 22—The Usurer's Due (Two parts—Dr.).

SELIG.

Aug. 28—Out of the Mist (Three parts—Dr.).
Aug. 28—The Selig-Tribune, No. 69, 1916 (Topical).
Aug. 31—The Selig-Tribune, No. 70, 1916 (Topical).
Sept. 2—Tom's Strategy (Drama).
Sept. 4—The Selig-Tribune No. 71 (Topical).
Sept. 4—His Brother's Keeper (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 7—The Selig-Tribune No. 72 (Topical).
Sept. 9—Taming Grouchy Bill (Comedy).
Sept. 11—The Selig-Tribune, No. 73, 1916 (Top.).
Sept. 11—The Pony Express Rider (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 14—The Selig-Tribune, No. 74, 1916 (Top.).
Sept. 16—In Jungle Wilds (Jungle—Zoo—Animal—Drama).
Sept. 18—Into the Northland (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—The Selig-Tribune, No. 75, 1916 (Top.).
Sept. 21—The Selig-Tribune, No. 76, 1916 (Top.).
Sept 23—A Corner in Water (Comedy).
Sept 25—Power of the Cross (Two parts—Dr.).
Sept. 25—The Selig-Tribune, No. 77, 1916 (Top.).
Sept. 28—The Selig-Tribune, No. 78, 1916. (Top.).
Sept 30—The Raiders (Dram).
Oct 2—In the House of the Chief (Three parts—Drama).
Oct 2 The Selig-Tribune, No. 79, 1916 (Top.).
Oct 5 The Selig-Tribune, No. 80, 1916 (Top.).
Oct 7 The Canbyhill Outlaws (Western—Drama).

VIM FEATURE COMEDY.

Sept. 13—His Strenuous Visit (Comedy).
Sept. 20—The Honeymoon Car (Comedy).
Sept. 27—Artistic Atmosphere (Comedy).
Oct. 4—A Grain of Suspicion (Comedy).
Oct. 11—Their Installment Furniture (Com.).

VIM.

Sept. 8—A Bag of Trouble (Comedy).
Sept. 14—Stranded (Comedy).
Sept. 15—Payment in Full (Comedy).
Sept. 21—Love and Duty (Comedy).
Sept. 22—The Man Hunters (Comedy).
Sept. 28—The Reformer (Comedy).
Sept. 29—Tangled Ties (Comedy).
Oct. 5—Royal Blood (Comedy).
Oct. 6—Strictly Business (Comedy).
Oct. 12—The Candy Trial (Comedy).
Oct. 13—Watch Your Watch (Comedy).

VITAGRAPH.

Aug. 5—The Bond of Blood (Three parts—Drama) (Broadway Star Feature).
Aug. 7—Pa's Overalls (Comedy).
Aug. 11—Romance and Roughhouse (Comedy).
Aug. 14—Conductor Kate (Comedy).
Aug. 18—There and Back (Comedy).
Aug. 19—The Wandering Horde (Three parts—Drama) (Broadway Star Feature).
Aug. 21—Did He or Did He Not? (Comedy).
Aug. 25—The Yellow Girl (Novelty).
Aug. 28—The Fair Fare (Comedy).
Sept. 1—Love and Trout (Comedy).
Sept. 2—A Fool and His Friend (Three parts—Drama) (Broadway Star Feature).
Sept. 4—It's a Bear (Comedy).
Sept. 8—A Villainous Villain (Comedy).
Sept. 11—Busting In and Out of Society (Com.).
Sept. 15—Loot and Love (Comedy).
Sept. 16—The Thorn and the Rose (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Dr.).
Sept. 18—A Perfect Day (Comedy).
Sept. 22—Sand Scamps and Strategy (Com.).
Sept. 25—Getting By (Comedy).
Sept. 29—She Who Last Laughs (Comedy—Drama).
Oct. 2—Making an Impression (Comedy).
Oct. 6—A Vampire Out of Work (Comedy).
Oct. 7—Cantrell's Madonna (Three parts—Drama—Broadway Star Feature).

General Film Company Features

BROADWAY STAR FEATURE.

July 1—Letitia (Three parts—Drama).
July 15—Waters of Lethe (Three parts—Dr.).
Aug. 5—The Bond of Blood (Three parts—Dr.).
Aug. 19—The Wandering Horde (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 2—A Fool and His Friend (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 16—The Thorn and the Rose (Three parts—Drama).
Oct. 7—Cantrell's Madonna (Three parts—Drama).

KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE.

July 28—The Sand Lark (Three parts—Dr.).
Aug. 11—The Better Woman (Three parts—Drama).
Aug. 2—Faith's Reward (Three parts—Dr.).
Sept. 8—A Deluded Wife (Three parts—Dr.).
Sept. 22—A Lesson from Life (Three parts—Drama)
Sept. 29—For the Governor's Chair (Three parts—Drama).
Oct. 6—The Better Instinct (Two parts—Dr.).
Oct. 13—From the Deep (Three parts—Dr.).

Just one clear picture after another with

Eastman Film

The film that made motion pictures practical plays a big part in their present stage of perfection.

Look for the stencil mark "Eastman" in the margin.

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

To Get the Crowds Right Along

Give them the sharp, clear, snappy pictures that bring out the full interest of the footage. That counts quite as much as catchy titles, famous stars or thrilling stories. You can be sure of this result with the

Bausch and Lomb Projection Lenses

They are a great help to the success of your reels—and success there means success at the box office.

Bausch & Lomb objectives and condensers are considered as the standard by leading owners and operators—and they prove their worth from the start.

Edison & Nicholas Power machines are regularly equipped with Bausch & Lomb Lenses and your film exchange can get them for you.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.
566 ST. PAUL STREET ROCHESTER, N.Y.

New York Washington Chicago San Francisco

Leading American Makers of Photographic and Ophthalmic Lenses, Microscopes, Projection Lanterns (Balopticons) and other high grade optical products.

Leading Stars in All Good Theatres

DU PONT Fabrikoid covered theatre seats are water, dust and vermin proof—handsome as leather. Comes in all grains and colors. Any grain or finish desired. Test it out in your home.

SAMPLES SENT ON REQUEST.

Du Pont Fabrikoid Co.
WILMINGTON, DEL.
Canadian Factory and Sales Office:
TORONTO, ONTARIO

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 120, 122.)

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

ANIMATED WEEKLY.

Sept. 20—Number 38 (Topical).
Sept. 27—Number 39 (Topical).
Oct. 4—Number 40 (Tropical).
Oct. 11—Number 41 (Topical).

BIG U.

Sept. 10—Mountain Blood (Drama).
Sept. 14—For Her Mother's Sake (Drama).
Sept. 15—The Timber Wolf (Drama).
Sept. 17—Brick Top (Comedy).
Sept. 22—No release this day. Replaced with Rex, "To Another Woman."
Sept. 25—The Halting Hand (Drama—Special Release).
Sept. 28—The Lie Sublime (Two parts—Dr.).
Sept. 29—The Shadow Sinister (Drama).
Oct. 2—The White Man's Law (Drama—Special Release).
Oct. 5—The Eternal Way (Drama).
Oct. 12—No release this day.

BISON.

Sept. 16—Replaced with Universal Special Feature, "The Caravan."
Sept. 18—After the Battle (Two parts—Drama) (Special Release).
Sept. 23—The Broken Spur (Two parts—Dr.).
Sept. 30—A Jungle Hero (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 7—A Mountain Tragedy (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 14—Night Shadows (Two parts—Drama).

GOLD SEAL.

Sept. 5—The Code of the Mounted (Three parts—Drama)
Sept. 13—Love's Masquerade (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 26—Husks of Love (Three parts—Dr.).
Oct. 3—In the Heart of New York (Three parts—Drama).
Oct. 10—Cheaters (Three parts—Drama).

IMP.

Sept. 15—The Angel of the Attic (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—Buzzard's Prey (Drama) (Special Release).
Sept. 24—A Desperate Remedy (Comedy—Dr.).
Sept. 25—The Bigamist (Two parts—Drama—Special Release).
Sept. 29—No release this day.
Oct. 8—No release this day.
Oct. 2—Title not decided.
Oct. 13—A Soul at Stake (Two parts—Drama).

JOKER.

Sept. 2—The Elixir of Life (Comedy).
Sept. 9—The Deacon Stops the Show (Com.).
Sept. 16—In Onion There is Strength (Comedy).
Sept. 23—Musical Madness (Comedy).
Sept. 30—The Inspector's Double (Comedy).
Oct. 7—Father Gets in Wrong (Comedy).
Oct. 14—The Oil Smeller (Comedy).

LAEMMLE.

Sept. 16—No release this day.
Sept. 18—A Wife's Innocence (Drama) (Special Release).
Sept. 20—No release this day.
Sept. 21—Poisoned Lips (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 23—No release this day.
Sept. 25—The Injustice of Justice (Drama—Special Release).
Sept. 27—No release this day.
Sept. 30—No release this day.
Oct. 4—No release this day.
Oct. 7—No release this day.
Oct. 2—Title not decided.
Oct. 11—No release this day.
Oct. 14.—No release this day.

L-KO.

Sept. 12—Tillie's Terrible Tumbles (Three parts—Comedy).
Sept. 17—No release this week.
Sept. 20—Cold Hearts and Hot Flames (Two parts—Comedy).
Sept. 24—No release this day.
Sept. 27—A Surgeon's Revenge (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 1—No release this day.
Oct. 4—Safe in the Safe (Two parts—Com.).
Oct. 8—No release this day.
Oct. 11—Lured But Cured (Two parts—Com.).
Oct. 15—No release this day.

NESTOR.

Sept. 8—No release this day.
Sept. 11—Nobody Guilty (Comedy).
Sept. 15—Speeding (Comedy).
Sept. 18—A Silly Sultan (Comedy).
Sept. 22—No Release this day.
Sept. 25—Model 46 (Comedy).
Sept. 29—No release this day.
Oct. 2—With the Spirit's Help (Comedy).
Oct. 9—Almost Guilty (Comedy).
Oct. 13—Pat Rooney in "It's All Wrong" (Comedy).

POWERS.

Sept. 7—Making a United States Soldier (Educational).
Sept. 14—Hunting Whales in Japan (Educational).
Sept. 21—No release this day.
Sept. 24—No release this day. Replaced with Rex, "To Another Woman."
Sept. 28—Behind the Scenes in Japan as Seen by Dr. Dorsey (Educational).
Oct. 5—Pen and Inklings in and Around Jerusalem (Educational).
Oct. 12—The Beautiful Temples of Ceylon As Seen by Dr. Dorsey (Educational).
Oct. 15—When Little Lindy Sang (Drama).
—Diplomacy (Cartoon—Comedy).

RED FEATHER.

Sept. 4—The Narrow Path (Five parts—Dr.).
Sept. 11—The Whirlpool of Destiny (Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—Black Friday (Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 25—If My Country Should Call (Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—Under Suspicion (Five parts—Dr.).
Oct. 9—A Romance of Billy-Goat Hill (Five parts—Drama).

REX.

Sept. 10—No Rex release this day—replaced with Big U.
Sept. 17—The Small Magnetic Hand (Drama).
Sept. 18—Under the Spell (Drama) (Special Release).
Sept. 22—His Mother's Boy (Drama).
Sept. 25—Dark Corners (Drama—Special Release).
Oct. 1—Ashes of Remembrance (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 6—No release this day.
Oct. 8—The Human Gamble (Two parts—Dr.).
Oct. 2—The Slave (Drama).
Oct. 13—No release this day.
Oct. 15—No release this day.

VICTOR.

Sept. 12—Jane's Choice (Comedy).
Sept. 14—Baby's Toofs (Two parts—Com.).
Sept. 19—No release this day.
Sept. 21—High Speed (Comedy—Drama).
Sept. 26—No release this day.
Sept. 28—No release this day.
Oct. 1—In the Lap of the Gods (Drama).
Oct. 3—No release this day.
Oct. 5—No release this day.
Oct. 6—A Charming Villain (Comedy).
Oct. 2—The Memory Mill (Drama).
Oct. 10—No release this day.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

Sept. 11—Timothy Dobbs, That's Me, No. 5 ("Hired and Fired"—Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 11—Liberty, No. 5 ("Love and War"—Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 11—The Caravan (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—Timothy Dobbs, That's me, No. 6 "He Almost Lands An Angel" (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—Liberty No. 6, "The Dester of Lost Souls" (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 25—A Hero by Proxy (No. 7 of "Timothy Dobbs, That's Me"—Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 25—Liberty No. 7, "Liberty's Sacrifice" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—Borrowed Plumes (No. 8 of "Timothy Dobbs, That's Me" Series (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—Liberty No. 8, "Clipped Wings" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 6—Somewhere on the Battlefield (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 9—Breaking Into Society (No. 9 of "Timothy Dobbs, That's Me"—Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 9—Liberty No. 9, "A Daughter of Mars" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 12—Behind Life's Stage (Two parts—Dr.).

Mutual Film Corp.

AMERICAN.

Aug. 3—The Madonna of the Night (Three parts—Drama).
Aug. 7—The Little Troubadour (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 10—The Power of Mind (Three parts—Drama).
Aug. 14—Ruth Ridley Returns (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 17—The Holly House (Three parts—Dr.).
Aug. 21—Enchantment (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 28—The Key (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 4—Atonement (Two parts—Drama).

BEAUTY.

Aug. 13—Too Bad Eddie (Comedy).
Aug. 16—Perkins Mystic Manor (Comedy).
Aug. 23—In a Prohibition Town (Comedy).
Aug. 30—Two of a Kind (Comedy).
Sept. 6—The Boomerang Goldbrick (Comedy).
Sept. 19—The Stinger Stung (Comedy).
Sept. 26—The Deacon's Card (Comedy).
Oct. 3—Slicking the Slickers (Comedy).

CENTAUR.

Aug. 26—The Spite Husband (Two parts—Dr.).
Sept. 2—The Trap (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 9—The Jungle Flashlight (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 16—Tangled Hearts (Two parts—Dr.).
Sept. 23—The Father of Her Child (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 30—Foiled (Two parts—Drama).

CUB.

Sept. 12—Harmony and Discord (Comedy).
Sept. 15—Jerry and the Blackhanders (Com.).
Sept. 22—Movie Struck (Comedy).
Sept. 29—Catching That Burglar (Comedy).
Oct. 6—Oh! For a Cave man (Comedy).
Oct. 7—Won by a Fowl (Comedy).
Oct. 7—That Wonderful Wife (Comedy).

FALSTAFF.

Aug. 15—The Guiders (Comedy).
Aug. 22—Fare Lady (Comedy).
Aug. 27—A Swiss Sea Dog (Comedy-Drama).
Aug. 29—In Mexico (Comedy).
Sept. 5—Musickers (Comedy).

GAUMONT.

Sept. 10—Reel Life, No. 19 (Mutual Film Magazine).
Sept. 13—See America First, No. 53 (Scenic).
—Kartoon Komics (Cartoon).
Sept. 14—Fantomas, No. 2 (The Man in Black Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 17—Reel Life, No. 20 (Mutual Film Magazine).
Sept. 20—See America First No. 54 (Scenic).
—Fantomas No. 3, "The Mysterious Finger Print (2 parts—Drama).
Sept. 24—Reel Life No. 21 (Mutual Film Magazine).
Sept. 27—See America First, No. 55 (Scenic).
—Kartoon Komics (Cartoon—Comedy).
Sept. 28—The Crook Detective (No. 4 of "Fantomas"—Three parts—Drama).
Oct. 1—Reel Life No. 22 (Mutual Film Magazine).
Oct. 4—See America First, No. 56 (Scenic).
—Kartoon Komics (Cartoon—Comedy).
Oct. 5—The False Magistrate (No. 5 of "Fantomas" (Three parts—Drama).
Oct. 8—Reel Life, No. 23 (Mutual Film Magazine).

MUSTANG.

Aug. 18—El Diabolo (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 25—Nell Dale's Men Folks (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 31—The Forgotten Prayer (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 1—The Gambler's Lost Love (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 8—Matchin' Jim (Two parts—Drama).

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

Aug. 23—Number 86 (Topical).
Aug 30—Number 87 (Topical).
Sept. 6—Number 88 (Topical).
Sept. 13—Number 89 (Topical).
Sept. 20—Number 90 (Topical).
Sept. 27—Number 91 (Topical).
Oct. 4—Number 92 (Topical).

(Mutual Releases continued on page 146.)

Be Ready For The Fall Crowds
Order Your Transverter Now

THIS fall is going to open the biggest and most profitable business the moving picture industry has ever seen. To get your full share of it, you must have good pictures. You can't have good pictures without good projection. Good projection demands a strong, brilliant, steady, white light.

To insure a perfect arc and ideal light at all times, you need the

TransVerteR
TRADE MARK

Specially designed on scientific lines for the purpose, the price of Transverter equipment, considering its capacity and quality, is lower than that of any machine on the market.

Sold on positive money-refunded guarantee if not as represented.

We Can Deliver Promptly

We are prepared to make deliveries in two or three weeks' time. A large stock of materials, which we purchased at the advanced price, and our ample facilities, place us in a position of unusual advantage to take care of your urgent orders. Get your order in now to insure delivery in time for your needs.

For complete information and prices, write for September Bulletin.

THE HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
1908 W. 114th St. Cleveland, Ohio.

Ornamental Theatres

Plaster Relief Decorations

Theatres Designed Everywhere

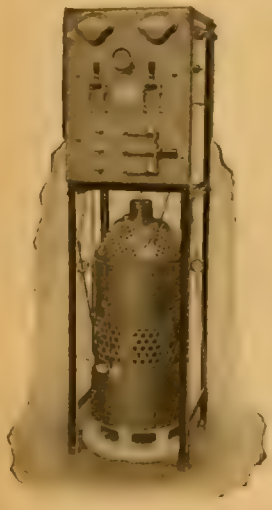
Write for Illustrated Theatre Catalog. Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.
Archer Avenue and Leo Street
CHICAGO, ILL.

Hill Motor Generator
For Moving Picture Arc Lamps

DELIVERS true direct current from alternating current, producing

STEADY WHITE LIGHT PROJECTION OF TRUE COLOR VALUE, NO FLICKER OR FLARE



And three times the illumination is obtained on a standard screen up to 120 ft. throw as compared to the alternating current arc for the same current.

It is most economical for voltage reduction of direct-current service lines to the 60 volt, required at the arc. It eliminates current wasting resistances, and gives the greatest flexibility for accurate voltage control. The capacity is sufficient for two lamps burning simultaneously and the dissolve is accomplished without a break.

Vertical in form, with base covering 15 square inches, it takes up the minimum of space in the booth; and running in ball bearings, it operates noiselessly and without vibration. It is a special machine, designed especially for motion picture work.

Write for information and Booklet M. P.

C & C ELECTRIC & MFG. CO., Garwood, N. J.

New York Philadelphia Boston Chicago
Branches in all Principal Cities 213

RICHARDSON'S
MOTION PICTURE
HAND BOOK
FOR MANAGERS and OPERATORS

Published by

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

RICHARDSON'S MOTION PICTURE HAND BOOK is a carefully prepared guide to perfect projection.

It is an invaluable help to every single individual in the trade who has to do with the mechanical handling of motion picture film or the management of a moving picture theatre.

There are over 680 Pages of Text and the illustrations include detail diagrams of all the leading makes of projection machines.

Substantially Bound in Red Cloth $4.00

Sent Postpaid on Receipt of Price by

MOVING PICTURE WORLD, 17 Madison Ave., New York City
MOVING PICTURE WORLD, 917 Schiller Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
MOVING PICTURE WORLD, 305 Haas Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 120, 122.)

(Mutual Releases continued from page 144.)

MUTUAL CHAPLIN RELEASES

The Floorwalker (Two parts—Comedy).
The Fireman (Two parts—Comedy).
The Vagabond (Two parts—Comedy).
One A. M. (Two parts—Comedy).

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES DE LUXE.

Sept. 21—The Land o' Lizards (American—Five parts—Drama—No. 137).
Oct. 5—The Shadow (American—Five parts—Drama) (No. 141).

MUTUAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

Sept. 18—The Secret of the Submarine No. 18 Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 25—The Secret of the Submarine No. 19 (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—The Secret of the Submarine, No. 20 (Two parts—Drama).

MUTUAL STAR PRODUCTIONS.

Sept. 19—The Three Pals (American—Five parts—Drama—No. 136).
Sept. 25—The Manager of the B. & A. (Signal—Five parts—Drama—No. 138).
Sept. 25—The Torch Bearer (American—Five parts—Drama—No. 139).
Oct. 2—Dulcie's Adventure (American—Five parts—Drama) (No. 140).

THANHOUSER.

Sept. 22—A Flaw in the Evidence (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 29—The Black Terror (Two parts—Dr.).
Oct. 5—Arabella's Prince (Two parts—Dr.).

VOGUE.

Sept. 17—Doctoring a Leak (Two parts—Com.).
Sept. 24—Paste and Politics (Two parts—Com.).
Oct. 1—Poultry a La Mode (Two parts—Dr.).
Oct. 8—A Touch of High Life (Two parts—Comedy).

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

BALBOA.

Sept. 18—Grip of Evil, No. 10, "Down to the Sea" (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 25—Grip of Evil, No. 11, "Mammon and Moloch" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 1—Grip of Evil, No. 12, "Into the Pit" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 8—The Grip of Evil, No. 13, "Circumstantial Evidence" (Two parts—Drama).

GOLD ROOSTER PLAYS.

Sept. 18—The Test (Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 25—Saint, Devil and Woman (Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 8—The Pillory (Five parts—Drama).

PATHE.

Sept. 18—Victims of Vanity (Two parts—Dr.).
Sept. 24—Some Tropical Birds—Parrots (Colored—Educational).
—The Spanish Pyrenees (Scenic—Colored).
Sept. 25—Broken Lives (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 1—The Shielding Shadow, No. 1, "Treasure Trove" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 1—The Moods of Medora (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 1—Florence Ross Fashions, No. 5 "Betty Selects Her Bridesmaid Frock" (Fashions).
Oct. 8—The Shielding Shadow, No. 2, "Into the Depths" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 8—U. S. Customs Inspection (Educational).
Oct. 8—The Sword of Damocles (Two parts—Drama).

PATHE NEWS.

Sept. 27—Number 78, 1916 (Topical).
Sept. 30—Number 76, 1916 (Topical).
Oct. 4—Number 80, 1916 (Topical).
Oct. 7—Number 81, 1916 (Topical).
Oct. 11—Number 82, 1916 (Topical).
Oct. 14—Number 83, 1916 (Topical).

ROLIN.

Sept. 18—Luke and the Mermaids (Comedy).
Sept. 25—Jailed (Comedy).
Oct. 1—Luke's Speedy Club Life (Comedy).
Oct. 8—Heinie and the 400 (Comedy).

Miscellaneous Releases.

ARTCRAFT PICTURES CORP.

October—Less Than the Dust (Drama).

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAY INC.

Sept. 18—Behind the Lines (Five parts—Dr.).
Sept. 25—The Evil Women Do (Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—Wanted—A Home (Five parts—Dr.).
Oct. 9—The Chalice of Sorrow (Five parts—Drama).

CELEBRATED FILM CORP.

Sept. 4—Hans and Fritz (No. 1—Cartoon—Comedy).

CHRISTIE FILM CO.

Sept. 18—A Seminary Scandal (Comedy).
Sept. 25—His Baby (Comedy).
Oct. 2—The Sad Sea Waves (Comedy).

CONSOLIDATED FILM CORP.

Sept. 18—The Crimson Stain Mystery (Episode No. 5—Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 25—The Crimson Stain Mystery, No. 6 (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—The Crimson Stain Mystery, No. 7 (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 9—The Crimson Stain Mystery, No. 8 Two parts—Drama).

FOX FILM CORPORATION.

Sept. 4—The Unwelcome Mother (Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 11—Her Double Life (Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—Where Love Leads (Five parts—Dr.).
Sept. 25—Fires of Conscience (Five parts—Dr.).

FROHMAN AMUSEMENT CORP.

October—The Conquest of Canaan (Drama).

THOMAS H. INCE.

July—Civilization (Drama).

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE INC.

Sept. 1—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No. 70, 1916 (Topical).
Sept. 4—Beatrice Fairfax, No. 5, "Mimosa San" (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 5—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No. 71, 1916 (Topical).
Sept. 8—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No. 72, 1916 (Topical).
Sept. 11—Beatrice Fairfax, No. 6, "Forbidden Room" (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 12—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No. 73, 1916 (Topical).
Sept. 15—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No. 74, 1916 (Topical).
Sept. 18—Beatrice Fairfax No. 7 (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 19—Hearst-International News Pictorial No. 75, 1916 (Tropical).
Sept. 22—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No. 76, 1916 (Topical).
Sept. 25—Beatrice Fairfax, No. 8, "The Ainslee Ball" (Two parts—Drama).
Sept 25—The World's Wonderland (Curtis Scenic, No. 1).
—Animated Cartoons on same reel.
Sept. 26—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No. 77, 1916 (Topical).
Sept. 29—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No. 78, 1916 (Topical).

IVAN FILM PRODUCTIONS.

October—Her Surrender (Drama).

LEWIS J. SELZNICK PRODUCTIONS, INC.

August—War Brides (Drama).

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION.

Sept. 18—The Wheel of the Law (Rolfe—Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 25—The Dawn of Love (Rolfe—Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—The Iron Woman (Popular Plays & Players—Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 9—Life's Shadows (Columbia—Five parts Drama).
Oct. 16—A Diplomatic Romance (Quality—Five parts—Drama).

PARAMOUNT PICTURES CORPORATION.

Sept. 18—Daughter of MacGregor (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 21—Ashes of Embers (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 25—Like Father Like Son (Klassic—Comedy.)
Sept. 25—The Quest of Life (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 28—Anton the Terrible (Lasky—Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—Nearly a Deserter (Paramount—Comedy).
Oct. 5—The Storm (Lasky—Five parts—Dr.).
Oct. 9—Intrigue (Morosco—Five parts—Dr.).
Oct. 12—Her Father's Son (Morosco—Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 16—Witchcraft (Lasky—Five parts—Drama).

PARAMOUNT-BRAY CARTOONS.

Aug. 31—Farmer Al Falfa's Revenge (Cartoon—Comedy).
Sept. 7—Bobby Bumps and the Stork (Cartoon—Comedy).
Sept. 14—Colonel Heeza Liar's Bachelor Quarters (Cartoon—Comedy).
Sept. 21—What Happened to Willie (Cartoon—Comedy).
Sept. 28—Bobby Bumps Starts a Lodge (Cartoon—Comedy).

PARAMOUNT-BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL PICTURES.

Sept. 11—Motoring in England (Scenic).
Sept. 18—Glasgow to Edinboro (Scenic).
Sept. 25—Bonnie Scotland (Scenic).
Oct. 2—A Scotch-Irish Reel.
Oct. 9—In Old Ireland (Scenic).

C. POST MASON.

July—The Wonder City of the World, Greater New York by Day and Night (Three parts—Scenic).

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION.

Releases for week of Sept. 17.

The Social Secretary (Fine Arts—Five parts—Drama).
The Wolf Woman (Ince—Five parts—Dr.).

Releases for week of September 24.

Diane of the Follies (Fine Arts—Five parts—Drama).
The Dawn Maker (Kay-Bee—Five parts—Drama).

Releases for week of October 1:

Manhattan Madness (Fine Arts—Five parts—Drama).
Plain Jane (Kay-Bee—Five parts—Dr.).

Releases for week of October 8:

The Rummy (Fine Arts—Five parts—Dr.).
The Jungle Child (Kay-Bee—Five parts—Drama).

UNICORN FILM SERVICE.

(Releases for Twenty-first Week.)

Sept. 18—The Cave in the Canyon (Hiawatha—Drama).
Sept. 18—The Taming of the Crew (Gayety—Comedy).
Sept. 18—Faith (Puritan—Drama).
Sept. 19—The Tornado (Rancho—Two parts—Western—Drama).
Sept. 19—A Village Hypnotist (Judy—Com.).
Sept. 20—The Broncho's Brand (Utah—Dr.).
Sept. 20—A Miserly Mason (Gayety—Comedy).
Sept. 20—Man's Make-Up (Supreme—Drama).
Sept. 21—The Trust of Kings (Lily—Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 21—Lazy Lulu (Hippo—Comedy).
Sept. 22—Hostile Tribes (Utah—Drama).
Sept. 22—Following Father's Footsteps (Nippo—Comedy).
Sept. 22—The Sport of Law (Supreme—Dr.).
Sept. 23—Breaking-Up House (Gayety—Two parts—Comedy).
Sept. 23—Consequences (Sunset—Drama).
Sept. 24—Heredity's Mark (Lily—Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 24—A Modern Jonah (Jockey—Comedy).

WORLD PICTURES.

Sept. 4—The Almighty Dollar (Paragon—Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 11—The Velvet Paw (Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—Friday the 13th (Five parts—Dr.).
Sept. 25—Dark Silence (Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—The Scarlet Oath (Five parts—Dr.).

CLEVER THRILLING

A

DETECTIVE STORY

ALFRED HERTEL

in

The Man With The Missing Finger

NOW BEING BOOKED IN

Minnesota, North Dakota,
South Dakota, Northern Wisconsin

A Film of Real Merit
That Will Get You the Business.

AMERICAN MAID FILM CO.

451-452 Loeb Arcade Minneapolis, Minn.

Write or Wire. Bookings Are Going Fast.

Circulation Plus is what the advertiser buys when he contracts to announce his wares through the columns of the

Moving Picture World

—and the "Plus," represented by a reputation for honesty and high principle which has been established by years of conscientious effort, is an important consideration.

The MOVING PICTURE WORLD is an integral part of the Moving Picture Industry—it does not merely exist because of the Moving Picture Industry.

All Eyes on a Line

Press Catch

Tilt Forward

Push Back

A NEW CHAIR

That Enables Everybody to See and Be Comfortable

Can be changed from an adult's chair to a child's chair by pressing the catch and raising as illustrated. Returns to adult's position and locks just as easily.

It provides a child with a seat proportioned to his body, a foot rest the right height and puts the child's eyes on a line with those of adults, enabling him to see without annoyance to others or discomfort to himself. The

All eyes on a line

FOCO

Adjustable Chair

offers theatre owners something for which there is a real need. Fortunately it is not an extra expense but an added source of profit because it—

Does away with the free kids.

Increases the patronage of children; also the adults who come with children.

Attracts patronage of adults who won't now attend because of discomfort of holding children on their laps.

Attracts patronage from theatres not equipped with Foco chairs.

FOCO Chairs cost new only a few cents more than ordinary chairs. Made in all sizes and finishes, both veneered and upholstered. Old chairs can be converted into Foco Chairs at considerably less than the cost of new chairs.

Write for booklet showing reel of actual chairs in use.

Family Opera Chair Organization

317 N. 10th Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Upholstered Chair in Child's Position.

Upholstered Chair in Adult's Position.

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 120, 122.)

GREATER VITAGRAPH (V-L-S-E, INC.)

Sept. 4—The Return of Eve (Essanay—Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 4—His Wife's Good Name (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 11—The Phantom Fortune (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—Through the Wall (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—The Fall of a Nation (Seven parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—The Combat (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 25—The Chattel (Vitagraph—Six parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—Scarlet Runner, No. 1, "The Car and His Majesty (Vitagraph—Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 9—Scarlet Runner, No. 2, "The Nuremburg Watch" (Vitagraph—Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 16—Scarlet Runner, No. 3, "The Masked Ball" (Vitagraph—Two parts—Dr.).
Oct. 23—Scarlet Runner, No. 4, "The Hidden Prince" (Vitagraph—Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 30—Scarlet Runner, No. 5, "The Jacobean House" Vitagraph—Two parts—Drama).

GEORGE KLEINE.

July 26—The Mishaps of Musty Suffer, Series 2, No. 6, "Strictly Private" (Comedy).
July 31—Gloria's Romance, No. 11, "The Fugitive Witness" (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 2—The Mishaps of Musty Suffer Series 2, No. 7 (Comedy).
Aug. 7—Gloria's Romance, No. 12, "Her Fighting Spirit" (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 9—The Mishaps of Musty Suffer Series 2, No. 8 (Comedy).
Aug. 14—Gloria's Romance, No. 13, "A Midnight Riot" (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 16—The Mishaps of Musty Suffer Series No. 2, No. 9 (Comedy).
Aug. 21—Gloria's Romance, No. 14 (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 23—The Mishaps of Musty Suffer Series No. 2, No. 10 (Comedy).
Aug. 28—Gloria's Romance, No. 15, "The Murderer at Bay" (Two parts—Dr.).
Sept. 4—Gloria's Romance (No 16, "A Modern Pirate"—Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 11—Gloria's Romance No. 17, "The Telltale Envelope" (Two parts—Dr.).
Sept. 18—Gloria's Romance, No. 18, "The Bitter Truth" (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 25—Gloria's Romance, No. 19, "Her Vow Fulfilled" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—Gloria's Romance, No. 20 (Two parts—Drama).

States Right Features

CALIFORNIA MOTION PICTURE CORP.

Nov.—The Woman Who Dared (Seven parts—Drama).

SAMUEL CUMMINS.

July—Germany's Battles at Verdun (Four parts—Topical).

EXCLUSIVE FEATURES, INC.

July—Where Is My Father? (Seven parts—Dr.).

FLORIDA FEATURE FILMS.

August—The Human Orchid (Five parts—Dr.).

GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO.

Sept.—Pages from Her Life (Five parts—Dr.).

KEMBLE FILM CORPORATION.

August—America Preparing (Ten parts—Top.).

B. S. MOSS MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION.

August—In the Hands of the Law (Drama).

MONARCH PHOTO-PLAY CO., INC.

October—Common Sense Brackett (Six parts—Drama).

NEW YORK FILM COMPANY.

Apr.—The Folly of Revenge (Nola—Five parts—Drama).

PIEDMONT FILM CO.

June—The Mirror of Life (Five parts—Drama).

L. E. RUBEL & H. A. FARGO.

July—Uncle Sam Awake (Seven parts—Top.).

SIGNET FILMS.

July—The Jockey of Death (Drama).

SHERMAN ELLIOTT, INC.

October.—The Crisis (Selig—Drama).

SUPERIOR FILMS CO.

Sept.—The Faucet (Drama).

THE NATIONAL DRAMA CORPORATION.

June—The Fall of a Nation (Thirteen parts—Drama).

UNITY SALES CORPORATION.

Sept. 18—The Yellow Menace (Episode No. 3, "The Poisonous Tarantula—Two parts—Drama).
Sept.—The Lottery Man (Comstock—Drama).
Sept.—Torpedoed by Cupid (Eagle—Two parts—Comedy).
Sept. 25—The Yellow Menace, No. 4, "The Plot of a Demon" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—The Yellow Menace, No. 5, "The Haunted House" (Two parts—Dr.).
Oct. 9—Yellow Menace, No. 6, "The Torture Chamber" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 16—The Yellow Menace, No. 7, "Drops of Blood" (Two parts—Drama).

SPEAKING OF GENEVA MOVEMENTS
THIS VITAL PART OF SIMPLEX PROJECTOR GAVE NINE YEARS' SERVICE

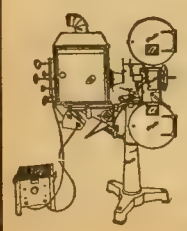
Actual Photograph of the Star Wheel and Cam which was used every day for nine years at the Eden Musee, New York, N. Y.

Performed One Billion, Eighty-eight Thousand, Six Hundred Seventy-two Revolutions during this period and is still in a practical and usable condition.

The Geneva Movement used in Simplex Projectors is scientifically constructed and built of the most enduring material and therefore withstands the constant grind required of the intermittents, today.

SIMPLEX Projectors will outwork and outwear any other Motion Picture Machine in the World.

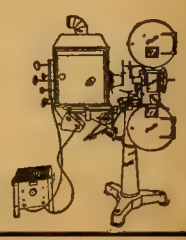
Simplex



THE PROJECTOR OF QUALITY

Send for Catalog "A"

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.
317 East 34th St. New York



HYDROQUINONE

GENERAL CHEMICAL COMPANY

NEW YORK PHILADELPHIA CHICAGO

ADVANCED PROJECTION OF INTOLERANCE

D. W. GRIFFITH'S COLOSSAL SPECTACLE at the LIBERTY THEATRE, NEW YORK, introduces NEW IDEAS in the ART of PROJECTION. The WORLD'S BEST PROJECTORS are equipped with SPECIAL SPEED CONTROLS and TIME REGISTERING DEVICES so that the Musical Director has absolute control of the SPEED, thereby SYNCHRONIZING the MUSIC perfectly with the PICTURE. For the WORLD'S BEST PROJECTORS equipped with TIME REGISTERING Devices and Perfect Arc Control Rheostats, consult the Exclusive Distributor

B. F. PORTER, 1482 BROADWAY, AT TIMES SQUARE, NEW YORK

Quality means EVANS means Perfection

We do PARTICULAR Work for PARTICULAR People
Developing and Printing ONLY

EVANS FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY

Telephone 6881 Audubon

416-418-420-422 West 216th Street, New York City

HE WHO INVESTS WISELY IS SURE OF RESULTS

Do you realize that a Mirroroid Screen will exert a most powerful influence toward obtaining a better and greater class of patronage and naturally greater earnings to you?

9689—MIRROROID SCREENS IN USE TO DATE—9689

It has been proven the screen supreme the world over—the only screen on earth that will eliminate haze, glare, eye-strain, fade-away and out-of-focus effect, regardless of how close or at what angle pictures are viewed from—because it is the only screen in the world made with a rough or matte finish.

Mirroroid Is Your Best Advertising Medium.

As an exhibitor you are in the same class as a merchant. He sells his goods—you, screen results. You both must please your patrons and make them steady patrons. They always recognize quality, want quality, and will go where quality is to be had. Please your patrons and they will please you in increased earnings.

Let us impress upon your mind that we will send you large, free samples—12x14. Test, compare with any screen on earth. Realize Mirroroid is sold for 33 1/3 cents a square foot. Why—yes, why, pay more for an unguaranteed screen—a hand or air-brush painted window shade?

OUR 5-YEAR GUARANTEE

Mirroroid will not crack, peel, turn black or tarnish. It is also waterproof, and can be washed with soap and water.

READ--The Proof of the Pudding--READ

"We installed several of your Mirroroid Screens in our different houses—the first bought March 16, 1911. It, as all others, has been in constant service since. All have given that same satisfaction as when first installed.

"By comparisons I have made with all makes of screens I am more than convinced MIRROROID leads them all in quality, durability, and perfect projection results. Inclosed you will find check, full amount for another 12x15 screen, Silver White. Rush.

"Yours very truly,

"R. L. MACADAM."

"Sydney Amusement Co., Sydney, Nova Scotia, Sept. 5th, 1916."

Mr. Exhibitor, this testimonial is but one of many received this week—one of over 3,000 on file. Think—use your own brains—realize! Why pay more for an unknown and untried screen as to durability, etc. Write for samples now. Let us give you projection contentment.

THE J. H. GENTER CO., INC. The oldest and largest screen manufacturers in the world. Newburgh, New York.

COOL & VENTILATE BY TYPHOONS

1544 BWAY. TYPHOON FAN COMPANY NEW YORK CITY

Bell & Howell Company
OF CHICAGO

:: Announce the opening of their ::

NEW YORK OFFICE DISPLAY ROOM
and Service Department

:: Rooms 614-615 Candler Building ::
220 WEST FORTY-SECOND STREET

OUR PERMANENT DISPLAY
Includes
CINEMATOGRAPH CAMERAS
FILM PERFORATORS ::
FILM PRINTERS :: :: MOTOR GENERATORS AND ACCESSORIES

THE SMALL PROJECTOR

$135.00
COMPLETE

THAT GIVES PERFECT RESULTS ON THE SCREEN

That's the reason for the big and rapidly increasing sale — and for the enthusiastic endorsement of

THE PORTOSCOPE

It most successfully embodies in condensed construction, the essential features of standard machines. Projects a brilliant, flickerless picture that wins sales on its self-evident superiority.

The Portoscope runs standard film—Illumination from 1000 c p incandescent, arc or calcium light. It is built into a carrying case about the size of a suit case. Affords safety without a booth. Anyone can operate it. Standard stereopticon attachment

The portable machine in actual use for nearly two years. Not an experiment, but a thoroughly practical, dependable machine. The projector purchased by the Westinghouse Electric Company, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, The Willys-Overland Company, Burroughs, Maxwell, Ford and scores of other concerns which demand the best.

Sold only by the most reliable dealers. Sold only by those who are conscientious in recommending high grade projection equipment.

Exercise good judgment. Write today for our proposition to high-class dealers.

MOTION PICTURE-SCOPE COMPANY
563 West Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.

SCENIC and EDUCATIONAL FILMS
Write for descriptive catalogue containing subjects from all parts of the world.
NO RENTALS
GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO. 110 W. 40th St. New York, N.Y.

Perfect Developing and Printing
Negatives Developed . 1c ft.
Positive Printing . . . 4c ft.
TITLES in any language complete 5c per foot
Cards Free Tinting Free
Satisfaction guaranteed by our fifteen years' experience Special price on quantity orders
GUNBY BROS., Inc., 145 West 45th Street, New York City

A Genuine PIPE ORGAN
can be operated from the simple keyboard of the piano. ORGAN ALONE — PIANO ALONE — OR BOTH TOGETHER. Write for particulars
HARMO PIPE ORGAN COMPANY
128 West 42th Street NEW YORK
1423 McCormick Bldg. CHICAGO

CANADA MOVIE MARKET
Only One Paper Reaches It Every Week
Write for Rates
THE BULLETIN
106 RICHMOND ST. W. TORONTO

IL TIRSO AL CINEMATOGRAFO
The most important Film Journal in Italy.
Published every Monday at Rome. Excellent staff, special bureau of information. Correspondents in all parts of the world. Yearly subscription for foreign countries: $3.00.
Business Office: Via del Tritone 183, Rome, Italy

Projection Engineer
Is your screen result unsatisfactory?
Is your projection current costing too much?
Are you planning a new theatre?
Are you contemplating the purchase of new Equipment?
Theatre plans examined and suggestions made as to operating room location. Operating rooms planned, etc., etc. Will personally visit theatres in New York City or within 300 miles thereof. Fees moderate.
(YOU ALL KNOW HIM) F. H. RICHARDSON (YOU ALL KNOW HIM)
Room 1434, 22 E. 17th St., New York City

STUDIO FOR RENT
DAY, WEEK OR MONTH
Finest indoor fire-proof studio in the world. Center of the business district Los Angeles. Equipped with indirect arc lighting. No glare or shadows.

Commercial Developing and Printing — Titles

Miniature—Novelty and Trick Films to Order.
Negatives Bought and Sold—Releasing
SUPERIOR FILMS CO. 643 So. Olive St. (Film Row) LOS ANGELES
Entire tenth floor

PROTECT YOUR PROJECTION

BY USING

SPEER CARBONS

Trade Mark

SOLD BY LEADING MOTION PICTURE SUPPLY HOUSES

SPEER CARBON COMPANY
DEPT. "W"
ST. MARYS, PA.

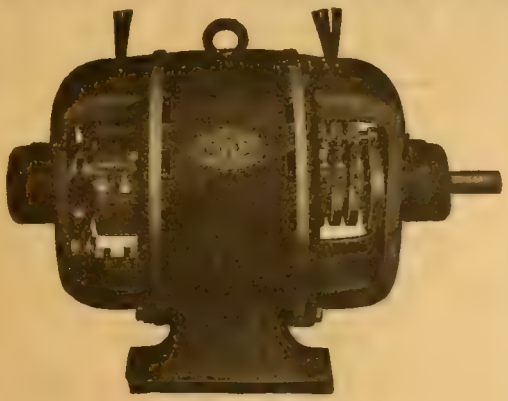
Weickhardt Pipe Organs

are not stock instruments, but built to order according to the ever varying individual requirements. Result: Wonderful musical effects, such as only a real, complete and genuine MASTER PIPE ORGAN can produce.

WRITE FOR THEATRE ORGAN CATALOG

WANGERIN-WEICKHARDT CO.
112-124 BURRELL STREET
MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN U. S. A.

"MARTIN" ROTARY CONVERTER



For Real

"SUN-LIT PICTURES"

PERFECT REEL DISSOLVING

The voltage of the "MARTIN" poly-phase converter is maintained constant, so that the starting of the second arc does not disturb the light given by the first making the dissolving of the reels as simple as if the arcs were operated in a Direct Current district. Our emergency panel does away with expensive compensarcs and cuts the wiring and installation cost in half.

Write for further information.

NORTHWESTERN ELECTRIC CO.
600 W. Adams St., Chicago 1010 Brokaw Bldg., New York

PHOTO CINES NO 4 CAMERA and TRIPOD

fitted with Zeiss Tessar Lens F3.5—

Automatic diaphragm dissolve, single turn and reverse action, film punch, adjustable frame line.

Price $250.00 Complete

SEND FOR COMPLETE CATALOGUE

TOPICAL-PATHE-DEBRIE CAMERAS AND ACCESSORIES

G. GENNERT

24-26 E. 13th St. New York
320 S. Wabash Ave. Chicago
455 S. Olive St. Los Angeles
693 Mission St. San Francisco

G. W. BRADENBURGH

802 Vine Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

FEATURE FILMS FOR SALE

Sealed Orders	Barker	7 reels	$175.00
From Gutter to Footlights	Barker	5 reels	100.00
An American Gentleman	Liberty	5 reels	125.00
For $5000 a Year (new)	Liberty	5 reels	175.00
Hearts United (new)	Liberty	4 reels	100.00

All films in splendid condition. Plenty of posters, photos, etc., gratis. Write for lists of bargains in one, two, three and four reel subjects. All films sent C. O. D., privilege of examination and partial delivery on receipt of 25% with the order.

The Universal Camera For Motion Photography

Write for Illustrated Catalogue

The UNIVERSAL CAMERA CO.
859 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago

Branches { 1007 Times Bldg., New York
{ 821 Market St., San Francisco

MANAGER

Thoroughly competent—original ideas. Ten year vaudeville and picture experience. Would like to connect with large theatre or film concern.

INTERVIEW SOLICITED

L. M., c/o M. P. World, 17 Madison Ave., N.Y.C.

BARGAINS IN MACHINES

Twenty-two machines slightly used, first class condition, Simplex, Power's 6 A's, Power's 6's, Edison B's, and Edison D's, low prices, quick sales.

CHAS. A. CALEHUFF, 1301 Race Street, Philadelphia

Perfect Laboratory Results

Are Impossible Without

Perfect Laboratory Equipment

—and it is unpardonable in these days of high class photoplay productions to mar a picture by handling it carelessly after the camera work has been done.

CORCORAN TANKS

are known the country over for the high quality of the work which their superior construction makes possible.

Send for Circular No. 8

A. J. CORCORAN, Inc., 11 John St., New York

FREE to all SOUTHERN EXHIBITORS, if you will cut this out and mail to us with the name of your theatre—one year's subscription to THE COSIKI the liveliest, classiest, and most up-to-date monthly humor paper in existence, will be sent to you free each month.

LUCAS THEATRE SUPPLY CO.
ATLANTA GEORGIA

COLUMBIA THEATRE BUILDING
47th Street and Broadway
New York City

Oct. 7, 1916

Mr. Theatre Manager:

Aren't you just a little bit tired of hearing your pianist, organist or orchestra grind out that monotonous mechanical movie music? As soon as you hear the first few notes, don't you know what is coming? If you want to remedy this, write me or have your musicians do so.

If you're from Missouri, let me show you that I have something better to offer.

Musically yours,

S. M. BERG.

MOTION PICTURE ELECTRICITY

By J. H. HALLBERG

THIS WORK COVERS

ELECTRICITY
ELECTRIC SERVICE
ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT
PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS
REFERENCE TABLES, ETC.

An up-to-date treatment of Moving Picture Theater Electric Installation and Projection, by a practical, experienced, electrical expert.

Illustrated and Substantially Bound. 280 Pages. $2.50 per Copy. Postage Paid.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue New York

Non-Breakable and Sanitary STEEL
HIGH Quality
LOW Price and CAST IRON

Opera Chairs
immediate shipment on many styles; Second Hand Chairs; out-of-door seating. Send measurements for FREE SEATING PLAN. Mention this paper.

STEEL FURNITURE CO.
Grand Rapids, Mich.; New York, 150 Fifth Ave.

Are You Tired
of playing waltzes and popular songs for all your pictures? Try "bringing out" the dramatic scenes with dramatic music. The

Orpheum Collection
contains the best music of this kind published. Issued in Three Series:

No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3.

Piano (24 pages each), 58 cts. for each series; $1.15 for any two; $1.70 for all three. Violin, 40 cts. each; 75 cts. for any two; $1.05 for all three. Cornet, 35 cts. each; 65 cts. any two; 95 cts. all three. First and second series have parts for Cello, Flute, Clarinet, Trombone and Drums. Practical for Piano alone, or in combination with any above instruments. Discounts on orders for four or more parts. Send for free sample pages. Note new address.

CLARENCE E. SINN
1103 Grace Street Chicago, Ill.

When you want Opera Chairs remember we have

50,000 CHAIRS ALWAYS IN STOCK in 6 different designs in Antique Mahogany and Circassian Walnut finishes, assuring you of a satisfactory selection and

IMMEDIATE SERVICE

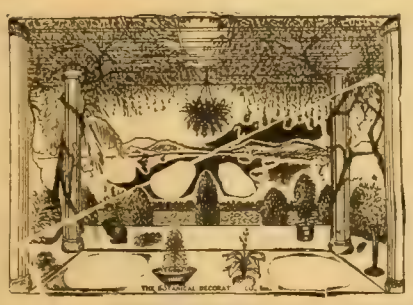
Other designs of unupholstered and Upholstered Chairs in unlimited numbers furnished in 25 to 50 days after receipt of specifications, depending on character of chair selected. We will be pleased to forward you illustrated literature on Veneer (plain) Chairs, or Upholstered, kindly state in which you are interested.

Our consultation service, specializing in designing economical arrangements for theatre seating, is tendered to you without any charge whatever.

AMERICAN SEATING COMPANY

General Offices: 1018 Lytton Bldg., Chicago
Sales Offices in all principal cities

FLORAL THEATRE DECORATIONS



A good or bad impression is most always gained by the first glance.

FLORAL DECORATIONS GIVE ARTISTIC ATMOSPHERE

It produces charm-delights your patrons.

Artificial flowers are practically everlasting and need no care—the effect is the same as natural ones.

Our expert decorators are at your service—ready to give you ideas and estimates.

Write for beautifully colored catalogues—mailed free to you.

BOTANICAL DECORATING CO.
MANUFACTURERS OF ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS AND PLANTS
208 W. ADAMS ST., CHICAGO, ILL.
We quote absolutely the lowest prices ever offered on reliable goods.

CINE-MUNDIAL

A monthly publication, printed in Spanish and devoted exclusively to the interests of the moving picture industry throughout South America and Spanish-speaking countries.

MORE than 5,000 exhibitors and film buyers in Latin America receive our publication monthly. Is it possible that you are not interested in this new market?

ADVERTISING RATES: $50 A PAGE

CINE-MUNDIAL
17 Madison Avenue New York

$4.80 A Big Saving Each Year $4.80

On account of the greatly increased cost of paper, engraving, etc., we have been compelled to make the single copy price fifteen cents. For the present direct subscription prices will remain the same. This means a saving of four dollars and eighty cents yearly on direct subscriptions. In addition you get your paper earlier.

It will pay you to fill out this blank and mail at once with your remittance.

ONE YEAR.....$3.00
SIX MONTHS.....$1.50
See title page for rates Canada and Foreign

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue, New York

.....
.....
.....

Cut out and mail Theatre.....

THE MORNING REGISTER,
FRIDAY, JUNE 23, 1916

WHITE LIGHT CONVERTER IS INSTALLED AT SAVOY

Latest "Movie" Perfector Put in Here

If you should have occasion to visit the office of Mr. Perrin, manager of the Savoy moving picture theatre, do not think he is secretly competing with the city municipal electric plant. The merry hum of that machine in the corner, which looks like a dynamo or a motor, is a new $400 Wagner White Light converter, installed Tuesday of this week by Manager Perrin to give the "movie" public of Eugene the best and most up to date service in his line.

The Wagner White Light converter produces the pictures on the screen with a white light instead of a yellowish light as formerly obtained. It also gives a clearer, steadier light that is free from vibration and is therefore much easier on the eyes of the audience.

It also makes possible the running off of the reels to be shown each day without the stop and delay necessary under the old system by which two machines were used in order that the audience would not be kept waiting longer than necessary. The day it was installed five reels, 5000 feet of film, were run off at both the afternoon and evening shows without delay between the reels.

While the moving picture houses in the larger cities have these machines, the one installed at the Savoy is the first in Eugene.

Provides Direct Current.

The principal purpose of the converter is to manufacture a direct current of its own for use in the "movie" machines in the operator's room. A direct current can be secured in Eugene but must be taken in quantities of 500 volts which is too much for a moving picture machine, according to Mr. Perrin, manager of the Savoy.

This machine takes the alternating current and makes its own direct current, thus giving a steady current that eliminates practically all remaining vibration, cut down before to a minimum by the mechanical efficiency of the modern picture machine.

Mr. Perrin also figures that he has made a good investment as well as securing a machine that will give his patrons the benefit of the latest and most modern up to date piece of moving picture apparatus on the market.

One of these converters placed in a large theatre in Portland has been used for several years with no cost except the replacement of the inexpensive brushes on the machine which were wearing out when Mr. Perrin visited the theatre recently.

Latest Perfected Apparatus.

Installed in Manager's Office.

Quiet Operation (Merry Hum).

Best—Most Up-to-Date.

The Wagner WHITE LIGHT Converter

No Yellowish Light.

Clearer, Steadier Light, Free from Vibration—Easier on the Eyes.

Continuous Picture.

Wagner, Quality

Eliminates Vibration.

Good Investment.

Converter—No Upkeep Except Inexpensive Brushes. Get Complete Details from

Wagner Electric Manufacturing Company,
Saint Louis, Missouri

"Call for Mr. Showme!"

Yes, Sir!—We're paging you right this minute—at the rate of about one hundred dollars per page—and, it's worth a whole lot more to you if we can induce you to send your negatives to us for Perfect Developing and Printing.

Whether you want one print of a two hundred foot local picture, or fifty prints of a magnificent five reel feature, you want, require and can secure the screen brilliancy representative of the supreme degree of film quality.

You want this, naturally, you require it both for artistic and commercial reasons, and, you can secure it certainly, satisfactorily and economically

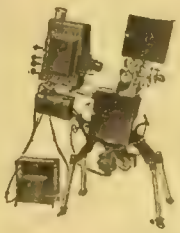
There are reasons—Come and see them.

by doing business with the

Rothacker Film Mfg. Co.

1331 Diversey Parkway

Chicago, U. S. A.



NPCo

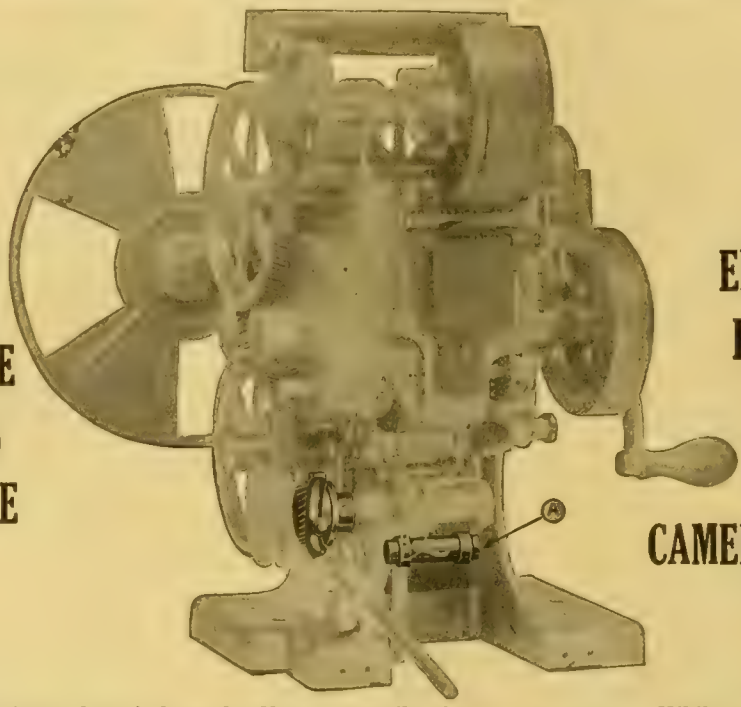
"Sixteen Years of Knowing How"

Power's Loop Setter

AUTOMATICALLY PREVENTS LOSS OF THE LOWER LOOP

THUS ELIMINATING THE MOST FREQUENT CAUSE OF TROUBLE IN MOTION PICTURE PROJECTION

A DEVICE AS SIMPLE AS IT IS EFFECTIVE



AN EXCLUSIVE FEATURE OF POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH

When the lower loop is lost, the film necessarily rips or tears apart. While making repairs an impatient audience is entertained by a dark screen.

Power's Automatic Loop Setter eliminates this constant source of trouble by continuously maintaining the lower loop.

The loop forms around Roller A. Any slackening of the loop draws the roller upward thus disengaging the take up. The loop immediately assumes normal proportions. The roller springs into its original position and the take up again starts to operate.

YOU SHOULD HAVE OUR CATALOGUE G, WHICH GIVES COMPLETE DETAILS OF MANY EXCLUSIVE FEATURES. MAILED UPON REQUEST.

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

NINETY GOLD STREET NEW YORK

Vol. 30, No. 2 October 14, 1916 Price 15 Cents

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "The Crisis" (Selig).

Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510

GLADYS HULETTE
THANHOUSER STAR
NOW APPEARING IN THANHOUSER-MADE
PATHE GOLD ROOSTER PLAYS
"The Shine Girl"
"Prudence, The Pirate"
In Preparation
"Her New York"

"The Make-Good Comedies"

L-KO

The Box-Office Comedy Attraction Supreme

The reason you want to know whether a comedy is funny or not, is because you know that the laugh getters get the crowds. When you book an L-KO Komedy you have the positive assurance that you are getting the funniest films of the day.

You can't beat them; you can't tie them. They are alone in their particular field. Dan Russell and Alice Howell are the funniest comedians in the business, and like a winning ball team they always have the best of support. Keep your eye on L-KO releases. Watch out for "Crooked From the Start"

"The Surgeon's Revenge"
"Cold Hearts and Hot Flames"
"Lured But Cured"
"A Rural Romance"
"A Million Dollar Smash"
"Safety First"

Remember that when you book an L-KO you can advertise and boost to the limit. You can have a special comedy night and you will be asked to repeat. There is only one L-KO. All releases listed above are Made under the personal supervision of J. G. BLYSTONE Director General

L-KO KOMEDY COMPANY

6140 SUNSET BOULEVARD

Hollywood - - - - - - - - - - - - CALIFORNIA

Eastern Offices 1600 Broadway, New York City

The extraordinary popularity of Red Feather Features is based on the fact that the percentage of big plays produced under the Red Feather Brand exceeds that of any brand coming from a single producer.

Every Monday there is released a Red Feather Photo Play that is a winner from the box office standpoint and that pleases the crowds to the extent of a renewed and insistent demand for Red Feathers.

Were you fortunate enough to secure and show:

Kerrigan in "The Beckoning Trail"
Mersersau in "The Narrow Path"
Phillips in "If My Country Should Call"
Davenport in "Barriers of Society"

Watch for future releases announced on this page. They will help boost you to success. You can book Red Feather Photo Plays through any UNIVERSAL Exchange.

GREAT OPPORTUNITY STATE RIGHTS

NOW SELLING ON

IDLE WIVES

Produced by The Smalleys

The Play that astonished all New York.

The Play with all Humanity in the cast.

The Play that lifts the curtains on Society's glass houses.

For Terms, Prices and Complete Information on Territory Now Open write, wire or call on the STATE RIGHTS Department of the UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

CARL LAEMMLE, President

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

1600 Broadway, NEW YORK

PEREZ (DWEEDLEDUM)

"The Scream of the Screen"

—IN—

Tweedledum Comedies

FIRST RELEASE:

Torpedoed by Cupid—One Reel . . . . October 9th

FOLLOWED BY

A Scrambled Honeymoon—Two Reels . October 16th

Some Hero—One Reel . . . . . October 23rd

Tweedledum's Busy Night—Two Reels . October 30th

PRODUCED BY
EAGLE FILM COMPANY
Jacksonville, Fla.

BILLY DUNN
Supervising Director

EXCLUSIVELY DISTRIBUTED BY

UNITY
729 7th AVE., NEW YORK

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service

By special arrangement with F. Ziegfeld, Jr.
GEORGE KLE NE presents
Miss
Billie Burke
in
GLORIA'S ROMANCE

Supported by Henry Kolker
A Motion Picture Novel by Mr. and Mrs.
RUPERT HUGHES

NO higher standard has ever been attained in the art of cinematography than that achieved by the twenty chapter novel, "Gloria's Romance." No greater star has ever been presented on the screen. No greater cast has ever been assembled. No author greater than Rupert Hughes has ever been employed to write a continued photoplay. No producer has ever attempted such a great undertaking. No serial production has ever been favored by such tremendous patronage. Billie Burke in "Gloria's Romance" remains the SUPREME attraction. Bookings may be made Now at any Exchange of the KLEINE-EDISON-SELIG-ESSANAY Service

GEORGE KLEINE
80 Fifth Avenue New York City.

2187 DISINTERESTED SPECTATORS

19 TRADE AND DAILY PAPER CRITICS

23 PROGRAM AND OPEN BOOKING MANAGERS

51 EMPLOYEES OF THE STRAND THEATRE

7 IMPORTANT STATE RIGHT BUYERS

WITNESSED THE TRADE SHOWING OF

- here's what they said -

W. STEPHEN BUSH
MOVING PICTURE WORLD
"THE PATHOS AND COMEDY IS ADMIRABLE - ITS A GREAT STORY"

PETER MILNE
MOTION PICTURE NEWS
"IT IS THE BEST SHOW I'VE EVER LOOKED AT"

FELIX F. FEIST
WORLD FILM CORPORATION
"YOU'VE GOT A GREAT BOX-OFFICE PICTURE"

WID NOTED CRITIC AND EDITOR OF "WID'S REVIEW"
"IT IS INDEED A GREAT PICTURE"

C.A. KRACHT
EDITOR OF THE MOVING PICTURE MAIL
THIS PICTURE DESERVES HONORABLE MENTION - AND IT WILL GET IT"

LOUIS ROSENBLUH
NOTED FILM MAN AND HEAD OF VARIETY FILM CORP'N.
"DON'T SELL THIS 'TILL YOU SEE ME".

BEN DAVIS
NEW YORK TRIBUNE
"IT BROUGHT TEARS TO MY EYES - IT IS LIFE ITSELF"

JOE LEE
PROMINENT REPRESENTATIVE OF NUMEROUS EXCHANGES
"IT IS ONE OF THE FINEST FILM PRODUCTIONS I HAVE EVER SEEN"

MR. WOLF
NOTED N.Y. EXHIBITOR
"IT IS GREAT, I CONGRATULATE YOU ON THIS PICTURE"

CRITICS CREDITED "JAFFERY" WITH BEING THE FINEST PICTURE PRODUCED IN YEARS

"THE CONQUEST OF CANAAN" IS AS GREAT IN EVERY RESPECT

SEE NEXT ANNOUNCEMENT FOR RELEASING ARRANGEMENTS

IT COULD HAVE BEEN SOLD IN THE LOBBY IF WE HAD DESIRED TO DISPOSE OF IT ON VARIOUS PROGRAMS

FROHMAN AMUSE

WILLIAM L. SHERRILL PRES.

THE FROHMAN AMUSEMENT CORPORATION'S

Production of

"The CONQUEST OF CANAAN"

with

EDITH TALIAFERRO
JACK SHERRILL
AND
RALPH DELMORE · MARIE EDITH WELLS
BEN HENDRICKS · GENE LA MOTTE
WALTER HEIRS
AND 2000 OTHERS

MENT CORPORATION
18 EAST 41ST ST. N.Y.C.

Unicorn

THE ACME OF FILM
PRODUCTION . .

Screen selected subjects of the leading open market producers of America . .

Twenty one reels weekly .

One to three reel subjects consisting of really HUMAN DRAMAS - AMUSING COMEDIES and POWERFULLY VIRILE WES-TERNS . . . . . .

THE QUALITY SERVICE for all theatres -
large and small .

Twenty eight exchanges

UNICORN FILM SERVICE
C O R P O R A T I O N

126 West 46th Street,

New York City.

Films

ADVERTISED EVERYWHERE

McCLURE PICTURES

by all of the

McCLURE PICTURES

McCLURE PUBLICATIONS

McClure Building McCLURE PICTURES New York City

THE CRISIS
WINSTON CHURCHILL
THE CRISIS, Winston Churchill's great story of the Civil War, has been made into a gigantic moving picture spectacle by the Selig Polyscope Co., Inc. Many characters appear whose names are enshrined in the hearts of all Americans, among them the titanic figure of Lincoln, the great Emancipator. The entire National Guard of the State of Mississippi was employed at Vicksburg in the filming of the battle scenes described in the novel. It would be hard to conceive of a more comprehensive or elaborate picture of the great struggle between the North and South than is shown by this production, the interest of which can hardly be exaggerated.

A Drama produced under the personal supervision of William N. Selig and presenting the great crisis in our national life with splendid power, with a sympathy, a sincerity, and a patriotism that are inspiring Presented by Sherman-Elliott INC.
220 W. 42nd St. New York City

The SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

Has Secured

EXCLUSIVE RIGHTS

To Film

THE WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP BASEBALL SERIES

EVERY MOVE MADE ON THE DIAMONDS TO BE PRESENTED

ALL THE BASEBALL STARS TO BE FILMED IN ACTION

A Money-Getting Feature in Five or More Reels

BOOK NOW

KLEINE - EDISON - SELIG - ESSANAY SERVICE

Exchanges in Twenty-three Principal Cities

The Shielding Shadow

10 REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD BOOK

PATHE'S NEW WONDER SERIAL IN 15 CHAPTERS

1. A great money maker. It will make more money for you than any fifteen five-reel features.
2. The advertising behind it; the two greatest newspapers in every big city will carry our advertising on it. Also there are bill boards, sign boards, complete publicity booklets—everything to fill your house.
3. The stars—Grace Darmond, Ralph Kellard and Leon Bary.
4. The production—the very best, by experts, Louis J. Gasnier and Donald Mackenzie.
5. The thrilling story by George B. Seitz, author of "The Iron Claw," the most successful serial writer in the business.
6. Fair rentals—prices have doubled but you'll more than double your business. The Pathe policy is to charge what a film is worth. This serial is worth double.
7. Pathe is the world's greatest serial house. Our many serial successes are the guaranty for the success of this.
8. For fifteen weeks your audiences are sure of thrills, mystery romance, and sustained interest.
9. Being completely finished before release you can see it before you book it.
10. It cost more than any serial ever made and it was money well spent!

Get the Pathe Exchange serving you to show it to you—you'll book it!

Complete Publicity Booklets

PATHÉ

PRODUCED BY ASTRA FILM CORP'N

The GRIP of EVIL

PATHE advertising that brings the crowd to your doors!

The Pathe policy is to help you fill your house when you show a Pathe picture. Therefore we are advertising this Master Plot in 14 Chapters in the following fine list of papers. There's one here to help you, Mr. Exhibitor!

Albany Times Union
Syracuse (N. Y.) Journal
Atlanta Constitution
Birmingham (Ala.) Reporter
Baltimore American
Boston Herald
Buffalo Times
Butte Daily Post
Daily Times, Florence, S. C.
American, Charleston, S. C.
Wilmington (N. C.) Dispatch
The Intelligencer, Anderson, S. C.
Goshen (Ind.) News-Times
Cleveland Leader
Columbus (Ohio) State Journal
Dallas News
Rocky Mountain News, Denver
Des Moines Register & Leader
Montour (Ia.) Gazette
Jefferson (Ia.) Free Lance
Stuart (Ia.) Herald
Spearfish Enterprise, Spearfish, S. D
Galveston News
Houston Chronicle
Shamrock (Okla.) Blarney
Drumright (Okla.) Daily Derrick
Los Angeles Record
Milwaukee Free Press
Redgranite (Wis.) Herald
Minneapolis Tribune
St. Paul Pioneer Press
Newark News
Plainfield (N. J.) Courier-News
New Orleans Item
Jackson (Miss.) Daily News
Bridgeport (Conn.) Standard
Waterbury (Conn.) Democrat
New Haven (Conn.) Union
Daily Advocate, Stamford, Conn.
Omaha Bee
Philadelphia North American
Pittsburgh Chronicle
Altoona (Pa.) Times
Portland (Ore.) Telegram
East Oregonian, Pendleton, Ore.
Providence (R. I.) Tribune
Richmond Times-Dispatch
Rochester Photoplay News
St. Louis Times
Illinois State Journal, Springfield
Evansville (Ind.) Journal-News
Salt Lake City Telegram
San Francisco Daily News
Seattle Post Intelligencer
Washington Star
Wichita Beacon
Worcester Evening Post

Featuring JACKIE SAUNDERS and ROLAND BOTTOMLEY

BILLBOARDS EVERYWHERE. Complete Publicity Booklets.

Produced By BALBOA

PATHE

AT LAST - KIPLING
ON THE SCREEN!

The masterpiece of the world's most celebrated author

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED

has been put into a five part Gold Rooster Play by Edward José, famous for his successes "The Beloved Vagabond" and "The Iron Claw." Featuring supported by Lillian Tucker, Claude Fleming and José Collins.

Robert Edeson

Released Oct. 15th

PATHÉ

24 hours in advance of all other news weeklies

I. V. Calvert, Manager of the New Garrick theatre of Minneapolis, has this to say of the

Pathé News

"Without exception the Pathé News has given our theatre during the past two years every event of local or world-wide interest at no time less than twenty-four hours in advance of all other News Weeklies. I consider Pathé News equally as important as the feature attractions, and the perfect program not perfect without it."

You get it first and you get it best in the Pathé News!

SELZNICK LJS PICTURES

WAR'S CRUELLEST WOUNDS PIERCE THE HEARTS AT HOME

THIS IS "THE GIRL HE LEFT BEHIND HIM"

HERBERT BRENON'S

PRESENTATION OF

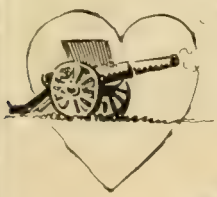
NAZIMOVA

in

WAR BRIDES

by

Marion Craig Wentworth



SOLE DISTRIBUTOR

LEWIS J. SELZNICK ENTERPRISES INC.

NEW YORK CITY

SELZNICK PICTURES

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG IN "THE COMMON LAW"

SCORES A VERITABLE TRIUMPH

BROKE ALL WEEK-DAY RECORDS FOR MY HOUSES.—
MARCUS LOEW

WHAT THE FOREMOST AUTHORITIES ON MOTION PICTURES HAVE TO SAY

The million and more readers of the book will find the appealing love story of Valerie West, the artist's model, and Louie Neville, the painter, absorbingly revealed on the screen. The sensational touches that gave the novel such wide vogue have been retained, but are depicted with such exceptional taste as to give offense to none.—VICTOR WATSON in the NEW YORK AMERICAN.

"The Common Law" attracted throngs to the theatres, both downstairs and an on the roof. . . . Beautiful models are never more beautiful than when played by Miss Young, and Miss Young is even prettier as Valerie West in the Chambers novel than she was as Trilby.—JOHN LOGAN in the NEW YORK HERALD.

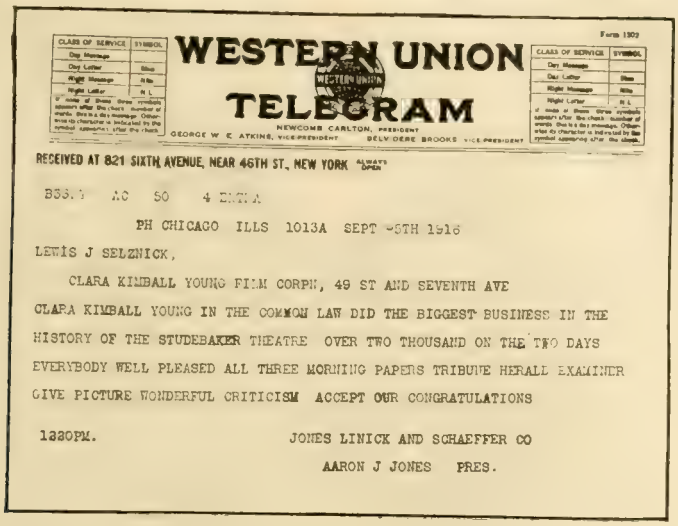
"Clara Kimball Young Scores a Great Hit in 'The Common Law'"—This picture is playing to capacity audiences at the Marcus Loew theatres. The initial Selznick production makes him one of the most important producing factors in America from the beginning.—NEW YORK EVENING WORLD.

"A Magnificent Production"—Lewis J. Selznick has made an even greater photoplay of "The Common Law" than Robert W. Chambers made a successful novel.—NEW YORK EVENING SUN.

In "The Common Law" Lewis J. Selznick has again shown that he is a great believer in the necessity of lavishness in making a picture a sure winner. He has spent an enormous sum in the production, and yet he has not been wasteful as he has made every dollar count in the production of a remarkable picture. No detail missing; every dollar spent will bring back many dollars to the treasury of his producing company.—LEWIS SHERWIN in the NEW YORK GLOBE.

A beautiful and popular star, a story by one of the most popular authors of the day, and magnificent direction by Albert Capellani gives to this Selznick picture the impetus such as few producers have been able to gain. . . . Photographically the picture is also a superb production.—"ZIT" in the NEW YORK JOURNAL.

SELZNICK PICTURES



Form 1202

CLASS OF SERVICE | SYMBOL
Day Message | Blue
Day Letter | Blue
Night Message | Nite
Night Letter | N L

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM

NEWCOMB CARLTON, PRESIDENT
GEORGE W. E. ATKINS, VICE-PRESIDENT DELAVERE BROOKS VICE-PRESIDENT

RECEIVED AT 821 SIXTH AVENUE, NEAR 46TH ST., NEW YORK "AWAY OPEN"

B33.9 AC SO 4 EXTRA

PH CHICAGO ILLS 1013A SEPT 25TH 1916

LEWIS J SELZNICK,

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG FILM CORPN, 49 ST AND SEVENTH AVE

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG IN THE COMMON LAW DID THE BIGGEST BUSINESS IN THE HISTORY OF THE STUDEBAKER THEATRE OVER TWO THOUSAND ON THE TWO DAYS EVERYBODY WELL PLEASED ALL THREE MORNING PAPERS TRIBUNE HERALD EXAMINER GIVE PICTURE WONDERFUL CRITICISM ACCEPT OUR CONGRATULATIONS

1230PM. JONES LINICK AND SCHAEFFER CO

AARON J JONES PRES.

Mr. Capellani, the director . . . has wrought quite wonderfully. . . . It is so admirably done that it nowhere hangs heavily. . . . It is a well-made picture technically, and Miss Young is both beautiful and histrionic.—KITTY KELLY in the CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Clara Kimball Young is charming and appealing. Her leading man and the rest of the cast are wonderfully capable. Capellani, the director, is a positive genius. If the future productions of the Lewis J. Selznick Enterprises are of this remarkable calibre this organization will receive a hearty welcome from the American public.—OMA MOODY LAWRENCE in CHICAGO EVENING POST.

Congratulations to Clara Kimball Young in the successful launching of her great motion picture venture and more congratulations to Lewis J. Selznick, the daring producer, with his first "C. K. Y." picture. The Studebaker is playing to capacity audiences and you are lucky to be able to get into the theatre at all during the opening engagement of "The Common Law." Albert Capellani is the director among all directors.—ROB REEL in CHICAGO AMERICAN.

If he (Robert Chambers) is one of those proud authors who scorn the plebeian movie, he will, after seeing how the Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation has handled his brain child, take movies to his heart and embrace them. . . . Miss Young fulfills the extravagant description Chambers gives his beauteous heroine. . . . Capellani staged "The Common Law" in a masterly fashion. . . . Miss Young holds the center of the stage and charms with her truly exotic beauty.—LOUELLA O. PARSONS in the CHICAGO HERALD.

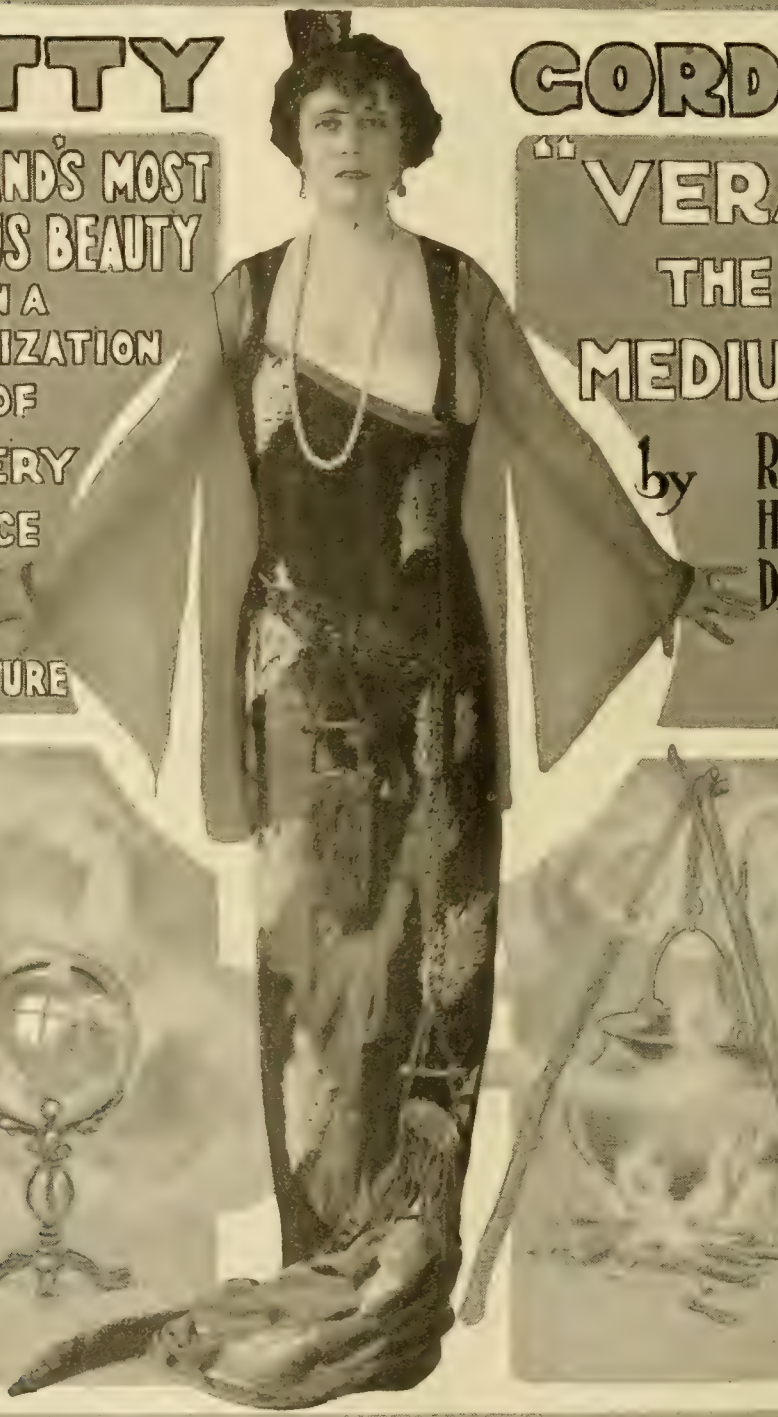
It is an assured triumph. It has the magnetic personality of a beautiful star, the splendid stage craftsmanship of Capellani, and the justly popular novel of Robert W. Chambers. As a picture "The Common Law" rivals some of the most spectacular revues. It is scenically magnificent.—W. K. HOLLANDER in the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS.

"Something Different Wins"—If Lewis J. Selznick turns out more subjects as good as this one—a tense, interesting and human story for the sophisticated—he may well stick out his tongue at his disagreeable competitors, who scoffed at his idea of something different. —JUANITA GRAY in the CHICAGO EXAMINER.

SELZNICK PICTURES

KITTY GORDON

ENGLAND'S MOST FAMOUS BEAUTY IN A PICTURIZATION OF MYSTERY ROMANCE AND ADVENTURE



"VERA THE MEDIUM"

by RICHARD HARDING DAVIS

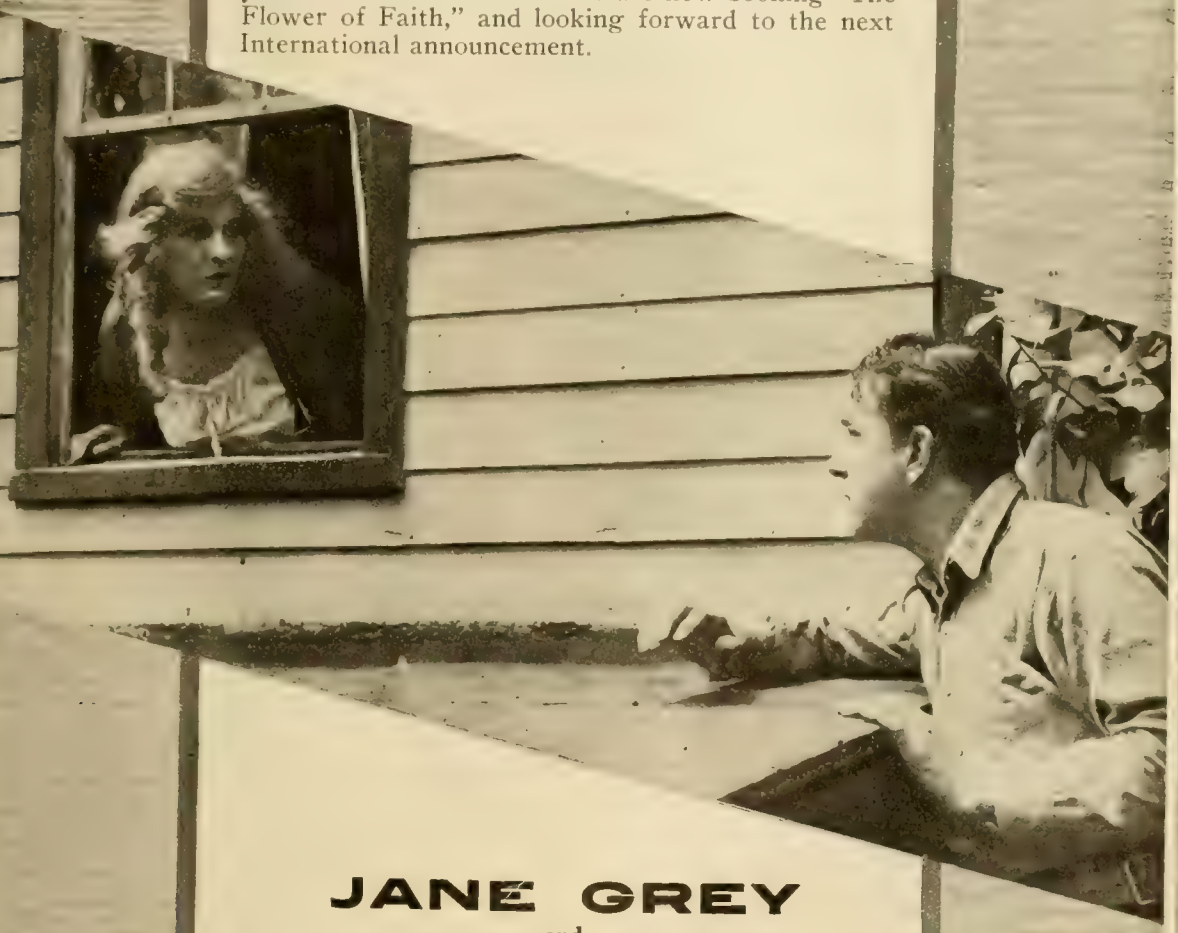
SOLE DISTRIBUTOR
LEWIS J. SELZNICK ENTERPRISES INC.
NEW YORK CITY

INTERNATIONAL'S

Latest Golden Eagle Feature

"THE FLOWER OF FAITH"

Exhibitors everywhere proclaimed "Jaffery," the first Golden Eagle Feature, one of the best features of the year. These same exhibitors are now booking "The Flower of Faith," and looking forward to the next International announcement.



JANE GREY

and

FRANK MILLS

are featured in this production.

It combines scenes of simple country life with stirring incidents of the frontier. It culminates with a gathering of night riders and a magnificent storm scene.

PRODUCED FOR THE

INTERNATIONAL

Film Service, Inc.

By Superb Pictures Corp.

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE INC.

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE INC.

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE INC.

"PLAY BALL"

A Timely Baseball Picture.

Managers McGraw and Donovan and their teams of Giants and Yankees, together with 18,000 enthusiastic New York fans, are among the actors in this episode of BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

HARRY FOX AND GRACE DARLING

as usual, are the stars.
With them are featured

OLIVE THOMAS AND NIGEL BARRIE

It is the latest episode of

Beatrice Fairfax

729 SEVENTH AVE. NEW YORK

Scenario by BASIL DICKEY

PRODUCED FOR THE
INTERNATIONAL
Film Service, Inc.

Story by
BEATRICE FAIRFAX

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE INC.

METRO

announces William Shakespeare's

Romeo and Juliet

Produced by QUALITY Pictures Corporation with

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN

and BEVERLY BAYNE

Directed by John W. Noble and Francis X. Bushman.

Assisted by Edward Elsner and Rudolph de Cordova.

METRO'S SPECIAL

METRO believes its best service to the exhibitor lies in productions that guarantee great box office returns and offers ROMEO AND JULIET as the supreme profit maker of the year.

PRODUCED at a cost of $250.000 with a cast of 600 chosen players, this, the Love Story of the Ages eclipses the possibilities of the spoken drama.

STARS of the Greatest Popularity with Motion Picture audiences in the most magnificent spectacle drama in the history of the screen.

PAULINE FREDERICK
Famous Players Star
Greatest Stars on Earth Play in Paramount
PICTURES
FPL
LASKY
Paramount
Pictures

"Greatest Stars on E "

Why Paramount is paramount

Because of its towering program, because of its superior producers and their hundred stars

FAMOUS PLAYERS, LASKY, MOROSCO AND PALLAS — there's weight for you!

Put them on the scales with their hundred stars, with their resources for new plays, with their means for gorgeous productions and budge them if you can with all the weight you can muster in Filmdom!

Think of showing Marguerite Clark, Pauline Frederick, Fannie Ward, Marie Doro, Leonore Ulrich, Lou-Tellegen, Dustin Farnum, or any of the hundred Paramount stars when no one else in your district shows them!

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

FPL LASKY Paramount Pictures M P

"Greatest Stars On Earth"

Famous Players, Lasky, Morosco and Pallas

Make 104 Plays a year for Paramount, released at the rate of two a week

THIS program is tearing thru opposition—it is girdling the nation as one Paramount family—it is making money for exhibitors in all parts of the country as money has never before been made by them!

To get this program under any conditions would be a "beat," but think of getting it for yourself with all the Paramount protection!

Think of the reputation it gives your house—the sweep it gives your box-office—the foundation it's laying for the years to come.

All you've ever dreamed or hoped for in a service is to be found in Paramount's. By all means confer at once with your local Paramount Exchange.

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

FPL LASKY Paramount Pictures M P

Scene from
THE LASH

Paramount Pictures of the Week

RELEASED MONDAY, OCTOBER 2nd

JESSE L. LASKY

PRESENTS

MARIE DORO

IN

THE LASH

A STIRRING SOCIETY DRAMA

Produced by

JESSE L. LASKY FEATURE PLAY CO.

JESSE L. LASKY, President — ARTHUR S. FRIEND, Treasurer — CECIL B. DeMILLE, Director General

Released by Paramount Pictures Corporation

Paramount Pictures

Scene from
THE STORM

Paramount Pictures of the Week

RELEASED THURSDAY, OCTOBER 5th

JESSE L. LASKY
PRESENTS

BLANCHE SWEET

IN

THE STORM

The wilds of Maine the background, with love the theme

Produced by

JESSE L. LASKY FEATURE PLAY CO.

JESSE L. LASKY
President

ARTHUR S. FRIEND
Treasurer

CECIL B. DeMILLE
General Director

Released by Paramount Pictures Corporation

Paramount Pictures

ANN PENNINGTON
FAMOUS PLAYERS STAR

Forthcoming Paramount Pictures

DANIEL FROHMAN

PRESENTS

ANN PENNINGTON

IN

THE RAINBOW PRINCESS

A drama of circus life with a charming love story

Produced by

FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM CO.

ADOLPH ZUKOR, President

Canadian Distributors, Famous Players Film Service, Limited
Calgary, Toronto and Montreal

Released by Paramount Pictures Corporation
Monday, October 23rd

FPF LASKY Paramount Pictures

Scene from
WITCHCRAFT

Forthcoming Paramount Pictures

JESSE L. LASKY

PRESENTS

FANNIE WARD

IN

WITCHCRAFT

THE COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY PRIZE PLAY

Produced by

JESSE L. LASKY FEATURE PLAY CO.

JESSE L. LASKY	ARTHUR S. FRIEND	CECIL B. DeMILLE
President	Treasurer	General Director

Released by Paramount Pictures Corporation
Monday, October 16th

Paramount Pictures

LEONORE ULRICH
MOROSCO STAR

Forthcoming Paramount Pictures

LEONORE ULRICH

IN

THE INTRIGUE

A story of international scheming to obtain the rights to an X-Ray gun—the invention of an enterprising young American.

The "Dramatic Mirror" says: "There is no questioning the entertaining quality of this production."

Produced by

PALLAS PICTURES

Released by Paramount Pictures Corporation
Monday, October 9th.

Paramount Pictures

PARAMOUNT

ANNOUNCES ITS SECOND COMEDY

"BRIDGET'S BLUNDER"

(ONE REEL)

THIS NEW ONE REEL-ROAR OF

BLACK DIAMOND

will be released October 16th

PRODUCED BY

UNITED STATES MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION

WILKES-BARRE, PA.

J. O. WELSH, Pres. F. W. HARMON, Vice-Pres. D. L. HART, Treas.

PRODUCED BY

Paramount Pictures Corporation

FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.

NEW YORK, N.Y.

WORLD PICTURES BRADY-MADE

NOW!

Let us sell your seats!

Let the energy and seat-selling power of the World Film Corporation help you.

World franchise holders know that a great personality is watching and guiding the production of every foot of their films—and touching every foot of their films with seat-selling force.

William A. Brady is the New York representative of every World film exhibitor. He is choosing the scenarios, selecting the casts, supervising the direction, censoring, building, thinking, planning — all to make it even easier for World exhibitors to keep every seat sold.

World films and World service attain a higher seat-selling perfection every day.

Put the World Film energy and power at work FOR YOU.

And sell ALL your seats SOLID TIME!

Let The World DO IT.

WILLIAM A. BRADY
in association with WORLD PICTURES
presents

ALICE BRADY
in
"The Gilded Cage"

Directed by
HARLEY KNOLES

CONSENSUS of PRESS OPINION

THE BIGGEST CINEMA SPECTACLE EVER PRODUCED.

BROADWAY'S UNPARALELLED SUCCESS.

THOS H. INCE'S

THE GREATEST CINEMA SPECTACLE IN THE WORLD.

THE MASTER WORK OF A MASTER MIND

CIVILIZATION

STILL STANDS SUPREME

The biggest and safest proposition ever offered in the motion picture business.

EXECUTIVE OFFICES, TIMES BLD'G. NEW YORK, N.Y.

Evening Newspaper * TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1916

"CIVILIZATION" AND OTHER HITS

ENID MARKEY
In "Civilization" at Park Theatre

All Great Spectacles Have Now Been Seen

AND STILL

THESE FAMOUS WRITERS ASSERT.

"Greatest of all"
"ZIT" - Sept. 12th.

"Masterpiece of the Twentieth Century"
JANE M'LEAN. Sept. 13th.

Yet in spite of the disasters shown, there runs through the picture a theme of such beauty that when it is ended you feel that you have indeed been walking on the mountain tops. It is impossible to compare "Civilization" with any other production, as it stands alone in its majesty, terror and soul-thrilling power.
STELLA FLORES - Sept. 21st.

OPENED LAST SPRING
AND STILL PLAYING TO CAPACITY

THOS. H. INCE'S
$1,000,000 CINEMA SPECTACLE

CIVILIZATION

SOME TERRITORY STILL OPEN TO STATE RIGHT BUYERS

EXECUTIVE OFFICES,—TIMES BLDG., NEW YORK, N.Y.

Keystones are
Comedies of Quality
(Released only by Triangle)

TRIANGLE

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF OCTOBER 8TH

WILFRED LUCAS in "RUMMY"

TRIANGLE—FINE ARTS

A brilliant story of big-city newspaper life this picture offers a remarkable exhibition of character interpretation by the star, Wilfred Lucas. Starting as a dapper, energetic, "live" reporter, with a promising future, circumstances cause him to lose faith in his wife and he sinks to the depths of humanity, a shriveled, sodden wreck.

His work is truly wonderful, and your patrons cannot fail to recognize it—and appreciate it. A big, strong, vital play, told in the Triangle way, "Rummy" will, without question, be one of your big successes.

BESSIE BARRISCALE and CHARLES RAY in "PLAIN JANE"

TRIANGLE—KAY BEE

All the world loves a romance—the pretty, simple tale of the love of a maid for a man, and when your patrons have seen "Plain Jane" and the way Bessie Barriscale wins the man of her choice, they won't be able to help loving this picture.

A dainty, sweet, old-fashioned love-story, this Triangle Play will go right to the hearts of every audience—whether it be composed of young or old.

If you want to take advantage of Bessie Barriscale's popularity, if you want to "cash in" on the excellent work she has done in previous pictures, watch carefully for "Plain Jane."

KEYSTONE COMEDIES

Two corkers coming this week, just as good as ever.

MUTUAL SERIES

Give your patrons a 5 weeks' tour on this GAUMONT SPECIAL

FANTOMAS

GAUMONT SPECIAL

THE PHANTOM CROOK
THE MAN IN BLACK
THE MYSTERIOUS FINGER PRINT
THE CROOK DETECTIVE
THE FALSE MAGISTRATE

A railway train and your theater are alike: The last hundred empty seats are all profit—when you fill them. Book "Fantomas" and you are sure of a crowded house each week for five consecutive weeks. "Fantomas" will do for you what it does for others, pack your theater to the doors.

"Fantomas," an international success, has made millions for exhibitors all over the world. The Atlanta Mutual Branch Manager reports, "The 'Fantomas' Series is creating a sensation throughout this territory." All other Branches say the same.

Millions have read the "Fantomas" stories this summer in a great syndicate of newspapers. Cash in on the interest already created by showing the world's greatest criminal on the screen.

Show "Fantomas" as a profitable preliminary to Gaumont's next sensational series, "The Vampires, or The Arch Criminals of Paris." This will be issued weekly in 9 episodes, each complete in three reels.

Gaumont Co.

FLUSHING, N. Y. JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

MUTUAL NEWS

"What's Going On In The Mutual"

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION. 68 EXCHANGES

VOL. I | OCTOBER 14, 1916 | No. 5

New Helen Holmes Chapterplay First Release Oct. 23rd

IN RESPONSE to more than 6,000 requests from exhibitors for another Helen Holmes serial," the Signal Film Corporation has made a new chapter-play starring this popular favorite. The first chapter will be released on Monday, October 23. A new chapter will be released weekly thereafter. The new picture is undoubtedly the greatest production in which Miss Holmes has ever appeared. She easily outdoes all the daring deeds she has previously performed and yet the story is entirely logical. Every exhibitor knows how important a box-office asset Helen Holmes has proven to be. Every exhibitor knows that this leading woman has a tremendous following. He can imagine how much more of a box-office magnet a new play will be in which Helen Holmes outdoes all previous efforts.

"A Lass of the Lumberlands."

The new Helen Holmes picture is entitled "A Lass of the Lumberlands." As one can gather from its title, it is a story of the great timbering regions in the far North. Helen appears as the daughter of a great lumber baron who controls vast tracts of standing timber. Ere the first chapter ends Helen, as a baby, is borne across a lumber-jam just as the huge mass of lumber is torn apart by a dynamite explosion. This is but the first of the thrills which are to come. Years later, Helen, now a young woman, becomes an operator on the railroad running into the big timber country. Railroading, lumbering and all the hazards and perils that are involved in such tremendous undertakings in a wild, lawless country, form the background of the story.

Thrills Come Thick and Fast.

There is not a dull moment in the entire length of "A Lass of the Lumberlands." Thrills come thick and fast. The great lumber trust engages in a fight with the independent owners of timber. Helen's father heads the forces of the gigantic corporation. Helen leads the smaller owners in their fight to live. On the swirling rivers, over the tracks of the lumber company, in the forest, the fight goes on. The tale grows more thrilling with each succeeding chapter. Every exhibitor who booked the previous Helen Holmes serial, "The Girl and the Game," knows the business it brought him. Hundreds have already booked "A Lass of the Lumberlands." It may be booked at any Mutual exchange.

The Week's Releases

Mutual Star Production.

Brand.	Title.	Leads	Reels.
American,	Philip Holden, Waster..	Richard Bennett..	5
Turner,	Redeemed	Florence Turner..	5

Tuesday, Oct. 10th.

American,	Citizens All.....		2

Wednesday, Oct. 11th.

Beauty,	That Sharp Note.....		1

Thursday, Oct. 12th.

Mutual,	Mutual Weekly No. 93.....		1
Gaumont,	See America First and Cartoons		1

Friday, Oct. 13th.

Thanhouser,	At the Edge of the Aqueduct		2
Cub,	Inoculating Hubby.....		1

Saturday, Oct. 14th.

Cub,	Those Primitive Days.....		1
Cub,	Those College Capers.....		1

Sunday, Oct. 15th.

Vogue,	Ducking and Discord.....		2
Gaumont,	Reel Life.....		1

President Freuler Fights Censorship

"Treason and incendiarism" are the words with which President John R. Freuler of the Mutual Film Corporation denounces the movement to gain an indorsement of federal censorship from motion picture producers. Mr. Freuler, in a telegram last week to David Wark Griffith, who is aiding in the fight against censorship, went on record as follows:

"The Mutual Film Corporation and the other interests which I represent will never at any time, under any conditions, submit to or participate in any proposal to accept censorship in any form. We are fighting and will continue to fight every form of censorship existing or contemplated, city, state or federal. Acceptance of any form of censorship would mean the violation of the primary principles of Americanism and a surrender of our right to our business. There is no possible value, even temporarily, in acceptance of federal censorship as a foil against state censorship, since it is established beyond question that the states would still retain whatever censorship power they may have. Any film man who stands for such a policy should not be in the motion picture industry, and will not be for long. The Mutual Film Corporation will fight to the everlasting finish for its principles."

The lumber jam that is shown as the climax of the first chapter of "A Lass of the Lumberlands" is a real one, which actually cost the lives of some of the men who attempted to break it up.

Richard Bennett's Debut in Mutual Star Productions

RICHARD BENNETT, famous on the speaking stage and well remembered by exhibitors everywhere for his splendid performance in "Damaged Goods," is the star of the newest Mutual Star Production. Its title is "Philip Holden—Waster." It inaugurates a splendid series of Bennett productions, each better than the one before. Richard Bennett will amaze you by his cleverness in this newest of photoplays. It is five reels in length. Every audience will wish it was longer. Every exhibitor who runs it will have his patrons demanding more Bennett productions without delay. By booking the entire series of Bennett Mutual Star Productions he will be able to cash in on that desire of his patrons.

"Philip Holden—Waster."

"Philip Holden—Waster" is a deliciously whimsical little play. It is indescribably humorous in places. It is highly dramatic at others. Its sub-titles are sure to occasion chuckles of real glee. Philip Holden is a young author who doesn't appreciate the value of a dollar. His brother, Miles, is just the opposite. He fairly worships Mammon. Philip falls in love with Helen Langdon, a vivacious maid who appreciates Philip's literary talent. Philip sets forth to carve out a fortune for himself. He tries in vain to land a position. At last he undertakes the sale of stock for a wild-cat mining concern. The orders roll in. Philip accepts certificates of stock in lieu of salary. And then the mine proves a veritable bonanza. Philip finds himself so rich that even his banker begins to patronize him. By chance he overhears a scheme of his brother Miles' to drive down a certain stock. He speculates on the tip and grows more wealthy. "Philip Holden—Waster" is so good it simply cannot be described in words. It has to be seen to be appreciated. It is now available at sixty-eight Mutual exchanges. October 9 is the release date for this unusual picture.

"Redeemed."

The week of October 9 will see the release of another Florence Turner Mutual Star Production. "Redeemed" is its title. Magnetic Florence Turner scores an even greater artistic triumph in this new picture than she has already done in previous releases. This popular favorite is known and admired wherever pictures are shown. The entire Florence Turner series may be booked at any Mutual exchange.

AMERICAN FILM COMPANY, INC., Presents

The Star of "Damaged Goods"

Richard Bennett

in

PHILIP HOLDEN
—WASTER.

A Modern Drama In Which This Noted Star Even Surpasses His Wonderful Success In "DAMAGED GOODS".

First Of A Series Of Mutual Star Productions Featuring Richard Bennett. Five Acts. Released The Week Of Oct. 9th Through 68 Mutual Exchanges.

TURNER FILM COMPANY Presents
The Popular Star
Florence Turner
in
REDEEMED
A Powerful Drama In Five Acts, Portraying a Story of Intense Human-Interest. Released the Week of Oct. 9th.
Fifth Of A Series Of Mutual Star Productions Featuring This Celebrated Star.—Book The Entire Series Now At Any Mutual Exchange.

The "Series" Idea

The trail has been blazed! A new era in film distribution and exhibition is here! And the Mutual Film Corporation leads in offering exhibitors feature productions of the greatest magnitude in "series"—groups of Mutual Star Productions in five and six acts featuring America's most popular stars, each picture being an individual and complete feature of superior merit.

The "series" idea was originated by the Mutual Film Corporation. It was fashioned out of a thorough study of the exhibitors' needs. It was born of actual experience in the operation of a number of profitable motion picture theatres. It has now come to be the big thing in film distribution and exhibition.

Here are the basic reasons for the success of the Mutual "series" idea: It means steady patronage. It enables the exhibitor to offer his patrons big stars in superior productions on definite days at regular intervals. It means economy in theater operation. It enables the exhibitor to advertise each "series" of pictures heavily yet at a lower cost per picture than the cost of advertising each picture separately. It builds prestige. It establishes a standard—a reputation for high quality and consistent programs.

The sixty-eight Mutual exchanges in America are now offering exhibitors exceptional opportunities to secure big feature attractions in "series." Mutual Star Productions include:

The Mary Miles Minter Series
The Richard Bennett Series
The Helen Holmes Series
The William Russell Series
The Kolb and Dill Series
The Margarita Fischer Series
The Florence Turner Series, and others.

The Charlie Chaplin series of Mutual Special Features is also available at all Mutual Exchanges. Wire, write, or call on your nearest Mutual exchange. Book a few of these "series." Arrange for special days and special advertising—and watch your box office receipts grow!

Mutual Film Corporation

JOHN R. FREULER, President

Sixty-Eight Exchanges Located in the Principal Cities of America.

ARTCRAFT PICTURES CORPORATION

JOIN THE ARTCRAFT CIRCLE!

The Successful Theatre of Tomorrow Lays Its Foundation Today

In Building for the Future the Progressive Exhibitor Instinctively Books the New Superior Productions of

MARY PICKFORD

The First, "LESS THAN THE DUST," has been completed and surpasses the most extravagant expectations. Star and story are perfect; cast and director have done nobly. This emphatic stimulus to the motion picture Art-Industry will be supplied in a few weeks.

HUNDREDS OF
LEADING THEATRES
WILL PRESENT THESE PRODUCTIONS
BY ARRANGEMENT WITH

ARTCRAFT PICTURES CORPORATION

729 Seventh Avenue, New York
AND IN 15 OTHER CITIES.

ARTCRAFT PICTURES — Distributors of the Best in Motion Pictures — ARTCRAFT PICTURES

General Film Service

Don't Lose An Hour

in booking Essanay's one, two and three act comedies and dramas for your variety program. There is intense action and fascinating interest in every foot. They make your theatre pay.

LILLIAN DREW
is presented in
"Money to Burn"
2 act comedy-drama Oct. 10

RICHARD C. TRAVERS
MARGUERITE CLAYTON
are presented in
"Lost Twenty-Four Hours"
3 act comedy Oct. 14

"CANIMATED NOOZ PICTORIAL No. 17"
By Wallace A. Carlson
1 reel with reason Oct. 11

Book at once the
ESSANAY-CHAPLIN
Comedy "POLICE"

Essanay
GEORGE K. SPOOR PRESIDENT
1333 Argyle St., Chicago

General Film Service

OCTOBER 12th
HARDY & RUGE AS PLUMP & RUNT
IN THE CANDY TRAIL

OCTOBER 13th
BURNS & STULL AS POKES & JABBS
IN WATCH YOUR WATCH

KLEINE-EDISON-SELIG-ESSANAY

SERVICE

HENRY B. WALTHALL
with Antoinette Walker
is presented in
A Stirring Drama of Love and War
"The Sting of Victory"
in 5 acts
Book It Now
By Charles Mortimer Peck
Directed by J. Charles Haydon

EDNA MAYO
with Eugene O'Brien
is presented in
The Artistic and Fascinating
Drama
"The Return of Eve"
in 5 acts
Released Oct. 16th
By Lee Wilson Dodd
Directed by Arthur Berthelet

ESSANAY
GEORGE K SPOOR PRESIDENT
1333 Argyle St., Chicago

KLEINE-EDISON-SELIG-ESSANAY

SERVICE

Fame and Fortune

lie in the way of the exhibitor who books Essanay's great features. Their proven worth means big box office receipts and a reputation for your house through showing exceptional pictures. Look these over:

"The Return of Eve"
"According to the Code"
"Sherlock Holmes"
"Charlie Chaplin's Burlesque on Carmen"
"The Discard"
"The Misleading Lady"
"A Daughter of the City"
"The Raven"
"The Man Trail"
"In the Palace of the King"
"The Slim Princess"
"The Sting of Victory"
"That Sort"
"The Little Shepherd of Bargain Row"
"The Havoc"
"Vultures of Society"
"Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines"
"The Alster Case"
"The Crimson Wing"
"The Blindness of Virtue"
"The White Sister"
"Graustark"

Essanay

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

FIRST

ESSANAY-CHAPLIN-REVUE

5 ACTS OF 1916 5 ACTS

THE YEAR'S GREATEST

LAUGHTER FROLIC

COMING SOON

Especially arranged by the Essanay company from the Essanay-Chaplin comedy successes "The Tramp," "His New Job," "A Night Out."

INFRINGERS BEWARE

All Essanay-Chaplin comedies are copyrighted in the Library of Congress and infringers will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

All New, Special Paper and Advertising Material

GENERAL FILM SERVICE

TRADEMARK
Reg. U. S. Pat. 1907

Essanay

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle Street, Chicago

General Film Service

Watch Mr. W. P. Pierce!

This ultra progressive manager of the New Theatre, Salina, Kansas, knows that

Good Comedies Win

So he gives his patrons 30 reels of

General Film Service Fun

in a week

Remember, please, Mr. Exhibitor, that Mr. Pierce selects only

General Film Service Comedies

He knows they get the money and build up his patronage—and bank account.

GENERAL FILM COMPANY, Inc.

440 FOURTH AVENUE NEW YORK

Signal Film Corporation

Announces HELEN HOLMES

A LASS OF THE

FIFTEEN CHAPTERS
RELEASED OCT·23rd.

EXHIBITORS: You know of the tremendous box office receipts you enjoyed for fifteen weeks with HELEN HOLMES' previous success—"The Girl and the Game." NOW we announce a successor to "The Girl and the Game"—a new and spectacular chapter play in fifteen feature chapters—a production that we believe will eclipse any serial now on the market IN ACTUAL PROFITS TO THE EXHIBITOR. The title is "A LASS OF THE LUMBERLANDS." The star is HELEN HOLMES. The Director is J. P. McGowan, who directed "The Girl and the Game." The author of the story is E. Alexander Powell. The release date is October 23rd. Bookings are now being made at all Mutual Exchanges.

WIRE OR WRITE YOUR NEAREST

In a New and Spectacular Chapter Play

LUMBERLANDS

DIRECTOR: J·P·McGOWAN
BOOKINGS AT MUTUAL EXCHANGES

The scenes in "A LASS OF THE LUMBERLANDS" are laid in the great North Woods where the opportunities for big, spectacular scenes are great. The gigantic lumbering industry furnishes backgrounds of a new and striking character. Mountain railroads are brought into play. Swirling streams, saw mills and logging camps suggest some of the settings that make "A LASS OF THE LUMBERLANDS" a play of tremendous action.

If you're seeking big box office receipts for fifteen weeks if you want to build up a steady, regular patronage—if you want another fifteen weeks of the success you enjoyed in "The Girl and the Game"—BOOK HELEN HOLMES IN "A LASS OF THE LUMBERLANDS" NOW!

The price of this big feature is low—VERY LOW. You're bound to make BIGGER PROFITS than with any serial on the market. Investigate. Write or wire your nearest Mutual Exchange—QUICK!

MUTUAL EXCHANGE AT ONCE!

General Film Service

Knickerbocker Star Features

OCTOBER 13.....

JOYCE MOORE

IN

FROM THE DEEP

The Story of A Mans Regeneration

SUPERVISED BY

H. M. & E. D. HORKHEIMER

K

GFS

General Film Service

DEEDS NOT WORDS!

William N. Selig is one of the pioneer manufacturers of motion pictures. He is among the very few that, since the inception of the art, have never missed a release date.

It was William N. Selig who first discovered the possibilities of California as a producing center and who sent the first movie stock company to the Golden State.

In our next week's Ad we will tell you more about the wonderful influence wielded by the Selig Company in promoting the motion picture art.

IN THE MEANWHILE—

Book "Only A Rose," a multiple reel drama of true heart interest, released Monday, October 16. Also, "An Eventful Evening," a one reel drama, released Saturday, October 21.

"The Selig-Tribune," the World's Greatest News Film, is released every Monday and Thursday through General Film Service. It gets the news and shows it first !

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

58 E. Washington Street CHICAGO, ILL.

General Film Service

"GRANT, POLICE REPORTER"

KALEM'S LATEST

FEATURE

SERIES

Ready, October 20th

A feature, says the dictionary, is "something of prominence and importance." A feature, says the wise exhibitor, is "a picture that I can advertise, knowing it will draw patrons and please them."

Neither definition mentions LENGTH—for length does not guarantee PROMINENCE, IMPORTANCE, ADVERTISING VALUE, DRAWING POWER or SATISFACTION.

Every Kalem release is a feature—for each Kalem release measures up 100% in every point that makes up the definition of a real feature.

It costs money to do this. For instance, on "Grant, Police Reporter," we are paying more for each one-reel story than many five-reel scenarios cost. We are giving you two stars, George Larkin and Ollie Kirkby. We are giving you productions that are setting new per-foot records for programme releases of any length.

"Grant" is no exception. The same exacting test is met by "The Girl From Frisco," "Ham Comedies," "The Hazards of Helen."

BOOK FEATURES—But book intelligently. Remember that five features on one programme give you five times the punch of the average five-reeler. And remember further, that booking features on which you can't make money is not booking intelligently—it is BUSINESS SUICIDE!

"The Code Letter" is the first "Grant" release, on October 20th.

HAVE YOU GOT YOUR SHARE OF THE WINNINGS ON "THE SOCIAL PIRATES?"

KALEM COMPANY

235 West 23rd Street New York City

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX
EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter
J. P. Chalmers, Founder.
Published Weekly by the

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY
17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.
(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President
E. J. Chalmers.....Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie.....General Manager

The office of the company is the address of the officers.

CHICAGO OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.

PACIFIC COAST OFFICE—Haas Building, Seventh St. and Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone, Broadway 4649.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands.....$3.00 per year
Canada.....3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid).....4.00 per year

Changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and be clearly written. Two weeks' time may be required to effect the alteration.

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—One dollar for twenty words or less, over twenty words, five cents per word.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTE—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

"CINE-MUNDIAL," the monthly Spanish edition of the Moving Picture World, is published at 17 Madison Avenue by the Chalmers Publishing Company. It reaches the South American market. Yearly subscription, $1.50. Advertising rates on application.

Saturday, October 14, 1916

Facts and Comments

AS A famous director put it the other day when he was discussing censorship "there have been instances where politicians were known to accept 'graft,' but it happened about three thousand years ago in Babylon." A prominent official in Boston is accused of having had a financial interest in a feature which he at first refused to pass. He is getting a lot of publicity and is threatening to sue the naughty newspapers for libel. All joking aside there has up to now been comparatively little grafting on the part of the censors, though we know of a little now and then and here and there. If the censors were to become common and the institution were to be permanent a grafting and collecting bureau no doubt would soon be established.

* * *

THE worst scheme of taxation for motion pictures that we ever heard of is reported from Massachusetts, where the legislature is to be asked to put a two-cent tax on all tickets of admission to motion picture theaters. It is proposed by a special committee which is investigating the subject to provide funds for an old age pension and the two-cent tax on admission tickets is to be used for providing the fund. We are glad to add that owing to the lively opposition of the Massachusetts motion picture exhibitors, led by President E. H. Horstmann, the scheme has little chance of going through. The impudence of the proposition is monumental.

* * *

THOMAS EDISON some time ago in an interview with a member of our staff remarked that it took about seven years to make a dent in a strongly rooted prejudice. Well, we are not doing so badly judged on that basis. We have made a fairly large dent on the prejudice against the motion picture. Hence our surprise at manifestations of prejudice from such men as Luther Burbank and Charles Hanson Towne, one a famous naturalist, the other on the way to fame as a minor poet. Burbank thinks that the motion picture does not make people think hard enough, while Poet Towne opines that the motion picture "commercializes" the dramatic writers, the story tellers and especially the poets. These gentlemen will eventually see things differently, but we cannot start their education right here. Burbank should know that we cannot all be geniuses and inventors and that the screen does not aim at breeding scientists. If it does no more than stimulate it is doing good work. As to the graver charge of the screen corrupting the poet why we have to think that over or refer it to a committee. You will both hear from us anon.

* * *

ON ANOTHER page of this week's issue of The MOVING PICTURE WORLD the reader will find brief comment on the records of the friends and foes of the motion picture in the House of Representatives. We will keep the list standing where it is until election day and we earnestly hope that the readers of The MOVING PICTURE WORLD will be guided by the records we have printed when they vote or work for Congressional candidates.

* * *

WE PRINT in this week's issue an interesting symposium of opinions given by Mayors of various towns representing different sections of the country on the question of Federal censorship. The views of these Mayors are altogether apropos and would seem to show pretty conclusively that even municipal censorship would not be influenced very much by Federal control or regulation. It may seem like carrying coals to Newcastle, but in view of the late pronouncement in favor of Federal censorship the publication of these views can do no harm.

* * *

WITHOUT expressing any decided opinion on the merits of the controversy between exchange men and exhibitors in regard to the payment of all the freight charges by the exhibitor, it seems to us that an attempt to squeeze the exhibitor is poor policy. The new rule which compels the exhibitor to pay the freight both ways is a departure from an arrangement hitherto satisfactory to all parties concerned. The exhibitor is the man on whom the prosperity of all depends, and every effort should be made to co-operate with him in a spirit of friendliness.

Creative Methods—Maeterlinck

By Louis Reeves Harrison

MANY brilliant men have unconsciously foretold the advent of moving pictures, as did Wilde when deploring the fixity of painted scenes by great masters, when he invoked the gods to give them the supreme charm of motion, but one of the strangest of all such prophetic utterances, unconsciously prophetic, was that of Maeterlinck at the beginning of his "Treasures of the Humble." He there said, "It is idle to think that by means of words any real communication can ever pass from one man to another." His full meaning, strangely confirming his statement, is unknown. What had he in mind when he asserted that no real communication can pass from one of us to the other by means of words?

Listen to a number of people talking incessantly and decide whether they find pleasure in hearing what others say or in trying to voice their own thoughts. Between two in conversation, neither one after the other's money, each has a turn by common consent, not a turn to listen, but a turn to talk. Go listen to a sermon or a lecture and notice how little you bring away. The average human mind can not digest and assimilate to advantage except, as every creative writer knows, during a period of isolation. Maeterlinck may have meant that we become most surely aware of what we wish to know when in silence and alone.

Back of this may be hidden—only the great dramatist himself knows—the secret of remarkable effects produced by Maeterlinck's plays. He has succeeded, more than any other distinguished playwright, in conveying a dramatic idea without saying much. In fact, his characters seem to say so little that is intense, with no action to precede and enforce utterance, that clever critics have been unable to say how he gets his powerful effects.

From the few examples I have seen and read, my impression is that he is trying to picture thought. Words inadequate, action quite as often distracting as enlightening, he slows up on both that his audience may have time to absorb what he wishes to convey, some with their minds and some with their senses, as in an exquisitely presented motion-picture story. He seems to write for the eye more than for the ear, the eye ever searching for truth and beauty, that it may make a record which the mind can contemplate in silent periods of thought.

Two children of a peasant family are sent by a fairy to search for the Blue Bird much needed by her child, as by all of us. We follow the adventures of the children in vague wonderment, now and then glimpsing a beautiful idea. They find their grandparents sleeping in heaven—"there are no dead"—and wake them. We live after death, awake only when we are thought of on earth, where we have done something worth while to be sweetly remembered by those left behind. The children visit the Palace of Night. Night is in terror because Man is solving his mysteries, and so they progress amid pictured thought.

The children awake in their cottage—it was all a dream—and find what they have been seeking everywhere is there in their humble home—the Blue Bird is Happiness. "Symbolism!" cries the clever critic, but it is far beyond symbolism. The wondrous creative genius of Maeterlinck calls up some strange and beautiful images, but he is ever intent on formulating what he has thought out in his dream life, mindful of course that people go to the theater to see something happen, but avoiding the theatric, the "eternal triangle," the "unwritten law," and all those primitive aspects of life which are raw when they are not blood red.

Maeterlinck, like Ibsen, evolves a principle. It may concern religion; it may relate to politics; it bears on our inner life quite as well as on that without; it may be connected with any department of human knowledge. His object is to discover the truth and make it known in a form which addresses itself winningly to minds not receptive when truth is trumpeted. He may bring forth a whole body of principles in one play, only his propaganda becomes a source of delight, an invigorating tonic concealed in delicious fruit, through his delicacy of creative method.

He invokes symbolism in "Monna Vanna," a noble sacrifice of person, of self-respect, of all that makes honor precious to a splendid woman, for the lives and happiness of her brothers and sisters by thousands, a sacrifice which would be beyond the appreciation of man did he not see its examples every day in marriages arranged for a girl by her family. Thousands of fine women burn their natural hopes and aspirations on the matrimonial altar for the sake of other lives than their own. Materlinck reincarnates them in "Monna Vanna."

"Joyselle" may well be called symbolic, and it loses accordingly, lacking the breadth and vigor of "Monna Vanna," but through it creeps a similar poetic significance. Love refuses sacrifice of the individual and "triumphs over fatality as against the converse lesson of Monna Vanna," (Maeterlinck's own statement). He gives victory to love in true motion-picture fashion, though that end, also as in moving pictures, is of doubtful value. "Compensation" must always be considered, especially when an audience is asked to sit through nearly five reels of harrowing incident, but there are times, as in tragedy, when it must yield to complete artistry of effect.

It may be called weak in Maeterlinck that he can not always put his own theories into practice, though that may be the fault of his medium. He abhors the primitive, the arid, the brutal, much that is traditional in melodrama, and he hopes that the theater may yet show stories having in them phases of recognizable human experience. He went to the theater "hoping that the beauty, the grandeur, and the earnestness of humble day-by-day life would there be revealed." "What I beheld was only a man who told me at wearisome length why he was jealous, why he poisoned, why he killed, why he responded to impulse alone."

Yet this great dramatist reverts to the theatrical in some of his finest plays, to episodes exhibiting men and women responding to primitive emotion instead of to reason that controls feeling. He is compelled to do this so far as events are concerned, but his method, that of portraying the drama of our secret thoughts, filters through. His method is that of some fascinating moving pictures, those without the stereotyped villain, revealing by subtle art that each of us is his own villain.

The theory of Maeterlinck's method is causing some stage plays to meet with tremendous success. His books indicate that he is after an analysis of the individual, inclined to penetrate the drama of the human soul, not especially for the intellectual, but for all who have become aware of self-struggle in their careers. This method suits the complex character of today and reaches the modern audience with greater force than outward manifestations of violent emotion, and it is not fanciful. Nothing is more real just at present than man's desire to know himself and to adjust himself to new realities instead of to the old.

Firm Against Censorship

By W. Stephen Bush.

THE unanimous protest by the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry against every form of legalized censorship was nothing more than the happening of the expected. The law of self-preservation left the meeting no other choice.

We were glad to note that the advocates of Federal Censorship were given the fullest opportunity to be heard. Federal Censorship had been built up into a great hope. It had been pointed out as a haven of refuge for the oppressed film men. Men of legal learning had been mysteriously but very positively assuring us that Federal Censorship was the great cure for all the ills we suffered from. At the meeting every argument in favor of the theory was advanced. Never before has the falsity of these arguments been shown more clearly. The fond belief that Federal Censorship would in some unexplained way mitigate and perhaps abolish the horrors of all other kinds of censorship was completely exposed as a groundless superstitition. The discussion upon the subject disclosed the hollowness of any hope built on Federal Censorship. We expect that in the immediate future we will hear very little of the magic of the censorship emanating from the Federal Government.

The Moving Picture World is and always has been against every form of legalized censorship because we believe it absolutely wrong in principle. We would be against Federal Censorship as wrong in principle even if we were convinced that it would tend to eliminate or weaken other forms of censorship. We cannot understand upon what line of reasoning any one has the right to assume that a Federal Censor will be any different from a state or a municipal censor. No matter who is clothed with arbitrary power over matters of taste and ethics in motion pictures he is bound to err and abuse his power. The question of censorship is not one of expediency nor yet one of personality, but one of principle.

The Convention of the National League of Motion Picture Exhibitors of America, which was held in Chicago, and which was the biggest and most representative gathering ever held, had gone on record as unalterably opposed to every form of legalized censorship. No other organization in the industry could have lived a month if it had failed to put itself in accord with the exhibitors on the most vital question before the industry today. Now that the entire industry has made a complete confession of faith we hope that we are in better shape than ever for fighting the common enemy.

The men who had at first been attracted by the ignis fatuus set up in Washington have fully recanted their mistake and are on record as standing loyally and enthusiastically with the great majority. None of them ever favored censorship on principle, the harshness of censors, the constant persecutions by self-appointed reformers and ignorant persons had driven them well nigh to despair, and even the false hope of Federal relief had appealed to them in their distressful state of mind.

What we all have to turn to now is the fight against the men who have made themselves conspicuous as champions of censorship. Here too the exhibitors have set the example in co-operation with The Moving Picture World. The man who fathered an oppressive censorship bill in this state, Senator W. T. Cristman of the 32nd Senatorial District, has been signally defeated in the primaries for the Republican nomination for the senate The motion picture men in the district have done their share to beat Cristman. The friends of the latter saw fit to make the censorship of motion pictures the dominant issue in his campaign and the papers in the counties of Hamilton, Fulton, Lewis and Herkimer were filled with advertisements urging the Republican voters to favor Cristman because the "motion picture trust and the big Kodak trust were against him on account of his stand in favor of clean pictures." The defeat of Cristman is all the more remarkable when it is considered that the district is but sparsely settled and the number of motion picture houses comparatively small.

Our Friends and Our Foes

By W. Stephen Bush.

THE House Committee on Education consisted of fifteen members of whom eleven favored the Hughes Federal Censorship Bill and of whom four stood with the motion picture men and fought the bill vigorously. We owe the four friends on the committee a great debt. They not only worked against censorship in the committee room but they submitted a splendid minority report which has been printed in full in The Moving Picture World. Exhibitors have shown their power in the defeat of the champion of censorship in this state. We hope that every man interested in the exhibition of motion pictures whether as owner or employee of a motion picture theatre will vote for the friends of the screen and vote and work against its enemies.

OUR FRIENDS.

William Waller Rucker, representing the counties of Carroll, Chariton, Grundy, Linn, Livingston, Monroe, Randolph, Sullivan. (Second Illinois Congressional District.)

Mr. Rucker stood staunchly by the rights of the motion picture and discomfited the contentions of the self-appointed reformers by many clever and pertinent questions.

Caleb Powers, representing the counties of Bell, Clay, Clinton, Cumberland, Harlan, Knox, Laurel, Leslie, McCreary, Monroe, Pulaski, Rockcastle, Russell, Wayne and Whitley. (Eleventh Kentucky Congressional District.)

Mr. Powers was active in fighting for a minority report against the Smith-Hughes Federal Censorship Bill.

Edmund Platt, representing the counties of Dutchess, Orange, and Putnam. (Twenty-sixth Congressional New York District.)

Mr. Platt joined in the minority report and took a most lively and intelligent part in the proceedings before the committee.

Frederick William Dallinger, representing the county of Middlesex, Mass., consisting of the Cities of Cambridge, Lexington and Melrose and the towns of Arlington, Belmont, Lexington, Stoneham, Wakefield, Watertown and Winchester. (Eighth Massachusetts Congressional District.)

Mr. Dallinger secured a re-hearing on the censorship bill which had been favorably reported by Mr. Hughes' Committee. He became the ardent champion of the freedom of the screen at every session of the committee. He fought the Federal Censorship bill as vicious in principle and fraught with danger to the American people and their liberties. To no man does the motion picture owe a greater debt than to Mr. Dallinger. The exhibitors in his district are making a great fight for him. His district is a close one politically and every vote will count. Let Mr. Dallinger find out on election day that the motion picture men have appreciated his splendid services on their behalf.

OUR ENEMIES.

We print herewith a list of Congressmen who as members of the House Committee on Education have voted in favor of the Federal Censorship Bill. We have reported the defeat of Judge Hughes in the Democratic primaries of the Twelfth District of Georgia. If any of the other members appear as candidates for re-election we hope that the motion picture men in their respective districts will do all in their power to beat them:

Robert L. Doughton, Congressional District consists of the counties of Alexander, Alleghany, Ashe, Cabarrus, Caldwell, Iredell, Rowan, Stanley and Watauga in the state of North Carolina. (Eighth North Carolina Congressional District.)

John W. Abercrombie (at large), of Tuscaloosa, St. Clair County, Alabama.

Claudius Ulysses Stone, representing the counties of Bureau, Marshall, Peoria, Putnam, Stark and Tazewell in the state of Illinois. (Sixteenth Illinois Congressional District.)

John A. Key, representing the counties of Crawford, Hancock, Hardin, Marion, Morrow and Wyandot. (8th Congressional Ohio District.)

William Joseph Sears, representing the counties of Brevard, Broward, Clay, Dade, Duval, Monroe, Orange, Osceola, Palm Beach, Putnam, St. John, St. Lucie, Seminole and Volusia. (Forth Florida Congressional Dist.)

Benjamin Clark Hilliard, City and County of Denver, Col. (First Colorado Congressional District.)

Horace Mann Towner, representing the counties of Adams, Appanoose, Clarke, Decatur, Fremont, Lucas, Page, Ringgold, Taylor, Union and Wayne. (Eighth Iowa Congressional District.)

Simeon D. Fess, representing the counties of Champaign, Clark, Clinton, Fayette, Greene, Logan, Madison, Union and Warren. (Seventh Ohio Congressional District.)

Robert M. McCracken (at large), Boise, Idaho.

S. Taylor North, representing the counties of Armstrong, Clarion, Indiana and Jefferson. (Twenty-seventh Pennsylvania Congressional District.)

Leisure Breeds Quality in Films

By W. Stephen Bush

Such is the Creed of an Able and Ambitious Danish Director Who Has Come Here to See and to Learn

REMBRANDT was never more enthusiastic about painting, Michel Angelo never thrilled with greater pride of his art, Mozart never kindled with greater love for melody than Benjamin Christie throbs with devotion to the screen. He has so far only made two pictures: "Sealed Orders" and the one he has just brought over and which he calls "Blind Justice." In both is revealed a distinct school of motion picture art: original, daring, subtle, intuitive. There are some things which this director knows how to paint with exceeding skill—scenes of child-life and glimpses of intimate domestic bliss.

We are moved to speak in such personal fashion of Mr. Christie because he has left his native Copenhagen and has set foot on Manhattan Island. This Dane is a target for the interviewer. Keen of wit, widely traveled, thoroughly original, ambitious to achieve great and good things for the screen, producer of one remarkable epoch-making film, Mr. Christie is well worth introducing to the readers of the Moving Picture World. Physically he is a worthy descendant of the Vikings and the Norsemen; he would make a fine warrior in the "Ring of the Nibelungs."

"You know," he said to me, "we are perhaps a little bit slow over in Denmark. My studios in the suburbs of Copenhagen are never overworked. What we are striving after are mainly quality and originality; we want one as much as the other. My associates are two young men like myself, men of considerable means with a keen desire to see me produce things that are worth while. That is my life ambition—to excel in productions for the screen, to find new ways and new stories. The new stories are the hardest to get. The longing for the new on the screen has been responsible for my burning of the midnight oil. I was complimented about my work in 'Sealed Orders,' but I assure you I was not satisfied with it. I wanted to produce something worthier of praise, something that would make educated people fall in love with my work and yet retain its appeal for the masses. I tried to do this in 'Blind Justice.' Do you think I have succeeded?"

He noticed my hesitation and quickly said: "Well, we will leave it to the American public." I want to say right here that my hesitation was not due to any doubt as to the splendid artistic qualities of the new film play.

"No, I could not produce twelve such pictures in a year," said Mr. Christie in answer to my question. "I will consider myself lucky to produce three or four at the very most."

Mr. Christie thinks in terms of praise of America in general and American films in particular.

"I admire your houses," said he, "and your films. Sometimes they show traces of sameness; you have certain stereotyped formulas which some of your producers follow invariably, such as the eternal triangle. Then there always is the fierce chastisement for the 'masher' or the villain in your love dramas. It's always the punch on the jaw. You see, Denmark being a small country, we producers have to depend on the markets of the outside world and hence we have to consult the tastes and customs and prejudices of all the various countries in the world. Do you know what happened to 'Sealed Orders' in Germany? Why, the general staff would not permit it, because it looked so much like a spy drama. A grave German officer with a monocle, surrounded by younger officers all bemonocled, looked at the film and were horrified. I changed it into a smuggler film, altering one or two scenes and supplying new titles, and it received the approval of the military censors. Now, in Russia they have a pronounced taste of their own. They are a melancholy lot and therefore insist on unhappy endings. Nothing chagrins them more than to see the villain punished. They want bad luck for hero and heroine from the start to the finish."

Asked what he thought of American scenarios and American directors, Mr. Christie modestly declined to express an opinion other than that he thought very highly of the care bestowed by American producers on their scenarios.

"One thing struck me in some of the film plays I have seen here," he continued; "directors seem to be anxious to make everything as plain to the audience as possible. You perhaps neglect the elements of suspense and surprise. I never tell my audience more than is absolutely necessary to keep up their interest. I do not hesitate to invite them to guess and then disappoint their guess. I think enough should be left to the imagination of the public. To prepare everything for them, to make them see the solution of all problems at once is apt to deaden their interest. Audiences as I know them love to be mystified; if the climax is satisfactory they do not mind having their curiosity piqued a little now and then."

Mr. Christie is greatly impressed with the American market. Although the types in his plays are scarcely to be distinguished from the Anglo-Saxon type, he believes in securing some first-class American talent in connection with his plans for the future.

TEXAS EXHIBITORS AT STATE FAIR.

October 25 will be Motion Picture Exhibitors' Day at the Texas State Fair to be held in Dallas, October 14 to 29, inclusive. The Texas Amusement Managers' Association has made arrangements with the Fair Association for a special program for that day for the entertainment of the visitors. In addition to this the local film exchanges and supply houses will join and give a banquet at the Oriental Hotel, Wednesday noon. In the morning an informal reception will be held in the lobby of the Oriental. At 10.30 a conference of all amusement interests will be held for an hour in order to discuss any matters of state-wide interest. Organization work has been going on rapidly in this state for the past three months and it is probable that by the time the next session of the Legislature convenes, which is in January, 1917, the entire amusement interests will be so cemented together that quick and uniform action by the members of the trade can be had on very short notice, should anything affecting their interests come up.

Protest Meeting of Exhibitors

The Question of Return Charges on Films Acted Upon by Big Gathering in Wurlitzer Hall—What One of the Exchange Men Says

MOTION Picture Exhibitors in the three Boroughs of the Greater City of New York, and, indeed, in the whole Metropolitan District including Long Island and Eastern New Jersey are up in arms against a rule which has recently been adopted by the exchange men regarding express charges, and which, according to the contention of the exhibitors, is unjust and unwarranted.

A special call for a mass meeting of exhibitors was issued by Lee A. Ochs, president of the New York organization, for Wednesday, September 27th, at Wurlitzer Hall on Forty-first street between Sixth avenue and Broadway, New York. The meeting was well attended, the following theaters being represented:

NEW YORK—Peter Tosh, Rex theater, Second and Third avenue; Rainbow Amusement Co., 1439 Third avenue; A. & A. Theater, P. Spassino, 118 Manhattan street; Wm. A. Leith, Comedy theater, 446 East 14th street; I. Rothman, Park theater, 465 East 149th street; A. Levy, 180th Street theater, 645 East 180th street; John J. Wittman, Eldorado theater, 1297 Wilkins avenue; Samuel Suchman, Golden Rule theater, 3755 Third avenue; N. Schachet, Bronx theater, 3843 Third avenue; S. Rothman, Pictorium theater, 941 East 180th street; Nathan Vinegrad, Nicholard theater, 3220 Third avenue; U. Schoeberg, Savoy theater, 3425 Third avenue; I. A. Gorman, Yorkville Casino, 210 East 86th street; Harris & Blumenthal, Owing the Palace theater, 176th street and St. Nicholas avenue; Classic theater, 181st street and St. Nicholas avenue; Nicholas theater, 174th street and St. Nicholas avenue; Big Three Amusement Co., Fleischmann & Golden, Majestic theater, 185th street and St. Nicholas avenue; F. W. Doelinger, Claremont theater; Lee A. Ochs, Costello & Vancouver theaters; A. Weiss, Avenue A theater, 51 Avenue A; Charles Steiner, New 14th Street theater, Regent, Colonnadu and Classique theaters; S. A. Moross, Riverview theater; Coleman's theater, 745 Westchester avenue; Avenue theater, 2735 Third avenue; Franklin theater, Lenox avenue and 132d street; S. H. Beck, Heights theater, 150 Wadsworth avenue; Mensche Bros., Casino Playhouse, Ninth avenue and Second avenue and 34th street theater, 34th street and Third avenue; Rothenburg & Rothmann Pleton theater, 941 East 180th street; M. Gordon, 823 Third avenue, Windsor theater; Rosin Bros., 393 Grand street, Garden theater; H. Ruchmil, St. Mark's theater, 133 Second avenue, and King's theater, 4048 Third avenue; H. Stravitz, Grand Central theater, 699 Third avenue; Charles Miller, Tuxedo theater, 42d street and Third avenue; Osceola theater, 258 St. Ann's avenue; Port Morris Casino, 580 East 138th street, owned by T. Petteis; Max Levinthal, 10 Forsyth street, Bronx; Geo. Becker, Odion theater, 145th street.

BROOKLYN.—Palace theater, 14th and Second avenues; Bunny theater, Jacob Goldmar, 257 Prospect avenue; Chas. Crameby, Fulton Auditorium, 1298 Fulton street; Simon Barr, Subway theater, 158 Myrtle avenue; Maurice Goodman, owner Wyckoff, Imperial, Broadway, Lyceum, Willoughby theaters; S. Ashrheimer, Raly theater, 1980 Fulton street; W. B. Fulmer, Montauk Arcade, 2540 Pitkin avenue, Elite theater, 2705 Pitkin avenue; G. Koenigswald, Sunset theater, 4765 Fifth avenue; Lew Smith, New Kingston theater, 1065 St. John's place; J. Wasserbach, Midwood theater, 1307 Avenue J; J. Nathan, Navy theater, 211 Sands street; Wm. Brandt, New Albany theater, St. John's place and Albany avenue; Geo. R. Cristian, Dorchester theater, 828 Coney Island avenue; J. H. Vreeland, American theater, East 92d street and Flatbush avenue; J. B. Millar, Sheridan and Liberty theaters; Isaac Hartstall, Bunny theater; A. E. Sceekin, Nassau theater, Grand street; Hanover theater, 571 Fulton street; Paul C. Thiele, Park View theater, 2 Prospect Park; Frank Peunell, Palace theater, 5604 Sixth avenue; Harry Shapiro, Peerless theater, 433 Myrtle avenue; A. Finn, Hamilton theater, 284 Hamilton avenue; Wm. N. Hollander, 1923 Fulton street; Joseph Klein, Electra theater, 1160 Broadway; A. J. Stockhammer, Victoria theater, 1368 St. John's place; Schwartz & Muller, Oxford theater; R. Sanders, owning the Manhattan theater, 188 Prospect Park West, and the Globe theater, 226 15th street; S. Sonin, owning the Lincoln theater, on Lincoln avenue, and the Pastime theater, Bedford avenue; J. Berman, Stanley Playhouse, 2075 80th street.

A. Jutkowitz, Columbia theater, Far Rockaway, N. Y.

P. Koch, New Columbia theater, Grand street and Wordil place, Maspeth, Long Island, N. Y.

M. J. Gerson, owning Unique and Auditorium theaters, Whitestone, Long Island, N. Y.

E. Dunning, Majestic theater, 2903 Jamaica avenue, Richmond Hill, L. I.

R. F. McMahon, President Active Amusement Co., Glen theater, Glen Cove, L. I.

Antonio Esoisuti, Palace theater, Morristown, N. J.

M. W. Raleigh, Danforth theater, Jersey City, N. J.

President Ochs briefly stated the object of the meeting. He said that under a system which had been in vogue for some time past, and which had worked to the satisfaction of both exchange men and exhibitors, the latter had paid for the delivery of the film while the exchanges paid for the return express charges. "Recently," the speaker continued, "there has been formed an organization of exchange men ostensibly to encourage social intercourse among the members. I believe the name of the organization is the 'Film Club.' A short time after the formation this new charge was sprung upon us without any notice. We did not even get a hearing. Mr. Beck, whom I believe represents the Mutual, is the originator of the new rule. I believe this new burden which is to be put on the shoulders of us exhibitors is unjust.

"Three years ago there were 1,089 exhibitors in Greater New York, according to the license bureau, today there are a little over 500. I claim and believe that these reductions are directly or indirectly traceable to the rapidly rising cost of film. There is not a business in the world which does not gladly deliver goods gratis. If I buy ten cents worth in a department store it is brought to my house. Why should the film business be an exception.

"None of us are making any too much money now, and if these exactions continue I don't know where we will wind up. I took the matter up with several prominent producers in the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, but I got very little satisfaction there. Some of the producers promised to take their exchangemen out of this Film Club, but so far only one man has kept his promise, Mr. Irwin.

"I am not going to suggest any thing to you, I had rather the meeting go on record. I tell you that if we allow the exchangemen to put this imposition upon us, other impositions and exactions will follow, and the exhibitor will be at their mercy."

Mr. Gerson, after the conclusion of the President's remarks, made a motion that the exhibitors present authorize the Borough Presidents to act for them in the regulation or cancellation of any film service which is now being used in the respective houses of members of the meeting.

Mr. Raleigh, of Jersey City, seconded the motion and supported his position in a short but vigorous speech. He thought the time for resolutions had passed, and something of practical value should be done without loss of time.

Mr. Hollander, also in support of the motion, related how the Brooklyn exhibitors had met Mr. Beck in conference. He said that Mr. Beck defied the exhibitors to do their worst. According to Mr. Hollander, Mr. Beck alluded to the fight between the Board of Trade and the Exhibitors organization, and said that a handful of exhibitors had scared the Board of Trade, but that they could not scare Mr. Beck.

"Rather than submit to this extortionate charge," cried Hollander, "I for one will keep my house closed for a week or two. All the Brooklyn exhibitors feel that way, and we have told Mr. Beck that we have declared war, and that we propose to win." This last remark was followed by considerable applause and cheering.

The resolution offered by Mr. Gerson was then put to a rising vote, and was carried with but one dissenting voice. With about half a dozen exceptions all the men present signed a power of attorney to the Borough Presidents Ochs, Wittman, and Mannheimer, allowing these officers to cancel, renew or change the film service of the signers in any way they saw fit in the interest of the signers.

Speaking to a representative of the Moving Picture World, Mr. Ochs said, that speedy action might be expected by all the aggrieved exhibitors.

Manager Beck's Side of the Controversy.

Arthur F. Beck, general manager of the Mutual Film Exchange, who, according to the exhibitors, was the leading spirit in imposing the return express charges on the theaters, was seen by a representative of the Moving Picture World at his office, 71 West Twenty-third street. Mr. Beck gave the World man a lengthy statement only part of which refers to the question in dispute between him and the exhibitors Mr. Beck said among other things:

A very surprising statement has been attributed to our very good friend and customer, Lee Ochs with respect to his attitude toward the meeting held by the exchangemen of New York City for the purpose of forming a mutual acquaintance organization. It has been said that he could have authorized the use of such phrasing as that which headed the newspaper article in question, notably—"Fears Anti-Exhibitor Policy." Surely this statement was misinterpreted and surely a man of the broad intelligence of Mr. Ochs could not believe for a moment that anyone or any number of exchangemen or exchanges could consider for a moment a policy that is "anti-exhibitor," as he terms it. Common sense tells us all that any business [illegible] that would endeavor to conduct their or his business policy on the basis of "anti-customer" would be [illegible] road toward [illegible]

[illegible] wish to state that the purpose of their association is for the mutual exchanging of ideas for the betterment of the business. By no stretch of imagination could any remarks or speech made at any meeting held so far, mention or hold any suggestion of meaning by so much as one word, a policy that could be described [illegible]

In fact, there has been no meeting that has been held behind closed doors or that was not [illegible] exhibitors or exhibitors. We all know that the first meeting was requested and inspired by the exhibitors' league in order that a general plan be formulated to help meet the situation caused by the ruling of the Board of Health against the picture theaters during the present prevalence of infantile paralysis. The next great need for some cohesive organization was shown when the exchangemen were forced to meet together for the purpose of ascertaining the possibilities of obtaining a substitute transportation service in the event of the general railroad tie-up, which seemed imminent. During the first meeting it developed that a united request had been made to the exchanges for assistance to the exhibitors, through representatives appointed by them, and that no two exchanges had made the same answer to the appeal. One exchange, for instance, had interviewed different exhibitors and arranged for a fifty per cent. reduction in film rental to some, no reduction to others, ten per cent. reduction of some existing contracts and suspension of similar contracts to others. Another exchange had refused to grant any reduction or suspension at all, etc. At the meeting matters were discussed frankly and openly with the exhibitors, and a mutually agreeable arrangement was entered into and lived up to by all parties concerned. At the second meeting above mentioned, it was discovered by the committees appointed that the combined efforts of the exchanges would enable them to subsidize enough transportation service, such as automobile trucks and busses, electric street car, special film cars, motor boats and river packets, etc., to adequately take care of the exhibitors, no matter where located or how. It was found that this same system would enable the exchanges to secure the new releases from the western coast within seven days' time and never touch a steam road, so that film service to the exhibitor would be uninterrupted. There is no doubt that had the railroad strike culminated in a general tie-up of transportation facilities the motion picture exhibitors' business would have been the least to suffer, that is, from the standpoint of being able to secure his goods as usual. These matters showed clearly the crying need for some arrangement whereby the exchange could keep more closely in touch with each other and current topics. The theme of such association or meetings might very well mark toward "preparedness," but hardly "peace" or "war."

In conclusion the exchanges wish to state that they want business, good clean business, and want to handle it in a good clean manner; that by no means do they want to antagonize those upon whom they depend for this business; that exchangemen who conduct their business along the lines of some of the exchanges and policies of 1909 should be eliminated; that exhibitors who conduct their business by unfair, unclean and unbusinesslike methods are the real "anti-exhibitor;" that the quicker any association together will standardize any policies to eliminate "deadbeats," "fly-by-night" exhibitors, "shoe-string" theater owners, "cut-throat" competition and short-sighted business methods, the better it will be for the real exhibitor as well as the exchange. We serve notice that we consider Mr. Lee Ochs a capable and worthy president of an organization that the exchanges wish to confer with and meet and discuss with relative to any idea or policies that will tend toward the accomplishment of the above conditions, and a closer and better cooperation regarding kindred interests.

Relative to the recent action of the exchanges regarding the prepayment of express charges will say that this is a portion of the policies of the parent offices which they have enforced in practically all their offices outside of New York City, for a considerable period. IT IS A POLICY OVER WHICH THE EXCHANGE MAN HAS NO JURISDICTION, and is simply a business charge that is definitely stated and signed to upon 95 per cent. of the film contracts now being in force. If the exchanges have heretofore not enforced this clause, the exhibitor has been lucky to that extent, and if the exchanges have not been able to make money for the past year owing to their loose methods of conducting their affairs relative to these seemingly small charges it is no reason why they should continue to do this.

Kalem's Big Week

Releases for October 16 Include First Episode of "Grant, Police Reporter."

THE week of October 16th is marked with red ink on the Kalem release calendar, since it includes the issue of the first episode of the new "Grant, Police Reporter" series. This is "The Code Letter," which, as announced in last week's World, will be ready at General Film exchanges on Friday, October 20th.

First-run bookings already arranged for at the various exchanges indicate that the first episode of the new one-reel series will make the week a record one for Kalem. In addition to George Larkin and Ollie Kirkby, others in the cast of "The Code Letter" are Robert Ellis, William McKey and Arthur Albertson. Among the thrilling scenes shown are those in which Larkin climbs hand over hand on a pipe stretched between two twelve-story buildings, a perilous trip along a six-inch ledge from one window to the other of a skyscraper and the climax when a scaffold rope to which he is hanging is cut.

"The Yellow Hand" is the episode of "The Girl from Frisco" series, scheduled for this week. Marin Sais and True Boardman are featured in this two-reeler, issued on Wednesday, October 18th.

Ham and Bud are present on the release scheduled with "A Saurkraut Symphony," released Tuesday, October 17th, in which they are the working force in a factory making the commodity mentioned in the title. "A Saurkraut Symphony" marks the debut of Henry Murdoch, with the Ham forces and thus presents an all-star quartette in Ham, Bud, Ethel Teare and Murdoch.

The Helen Gibson release for the week is known by the working tile, "A Fight With Death." Billy Boy, the Kalem youngster, has a prominent part in this picture, the climax of which shows Helen rescuing the child from a runaway car by a daring feat. P. S. Pembroke, G. A. Williams and George Routh are others in the cast of this one-reeler, issued Saturday, October 21st.

New Sherry Quarters Formally Opened

Film Men Look Over Handsomely Appointed Offices and Exchange of Paramount Distributor.

THE William L. Sherry Feature Film Company offices and exchange were formally opened on the evening of Tuesday, September 26. The fine quarters comprise the entire ninth floor of the Godfrey building, at Seventh avenue and 49th street. There is a floor space of 8,700 feet, more than double that of the area formerly occupied in the Leavitt building. To greet President William L. Sherry and Vice-President M. V. Sherry during the course of the evening there was a host of exhibitors. Hiram Abrams, James Steel, Raymond Pawley and Kenneth Hodkinson represented the Paramount, of which program the Sherry company is the distributor in New York State. Among others were Mitchell Mark and Harold Edel of the Strand, Carl Pierce of the Morosco company and Miss Lenore Ulrich.

On the Seventh avenue side of the floor are seven executive offices and at the corner of 49th street a large one occupied by Mr. Sherry. All of these with the exception of the latter are separated by mahogany and glass partitions reaching three-fourths of the way to the ceiling. Mahogany fruniture prevails throughout these eight rooms. In each is a special stenographer's desk. The private telephone exchange has sixteen extensions, and each office is equipped with an inter office phone.

The occupants of the executive offices are S. J. Stoughton, general sales manager; Harry Danto, Aaron Corn and Frank Lappen, salesmen; E. V. Morrison, publicity department; N. J. Sennett, general manager; stenographers' corps, and Mr. Sherry. The remainder of the floor is devoted to the printing office, in which is a complete equipment for the issue of Sherry Punch, the house organ, as well as circular letters, etc., and a part of which are two multi-color presses; an elaborate poster and herald room, stock room, inspection room, booking and bookkeeping departments and a fine projection room. There are two fireproof built-in film vaults and another large compartment for office valuables. These all have automatic fire-closing attachments.

The present splendid quarters of the Sherry company represent the expansion of but three years and a half. It was on March 15, 1913, Mr. Sherry opened offices in the Times Building for the exploitation of "The Prisoner of Zenda," the New York state rights for which he had purchased from the Famous Players. Mr. Sherry was one of the organizers of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, of which company he is now vice-president. He has around him an organization of forty-one employes. In the beginning there was but one assistant, Miss S. L. Cinader, now Mr. Sherry's private secretary. There is a branch office of the company at 145 Franklin street, Buffalo.

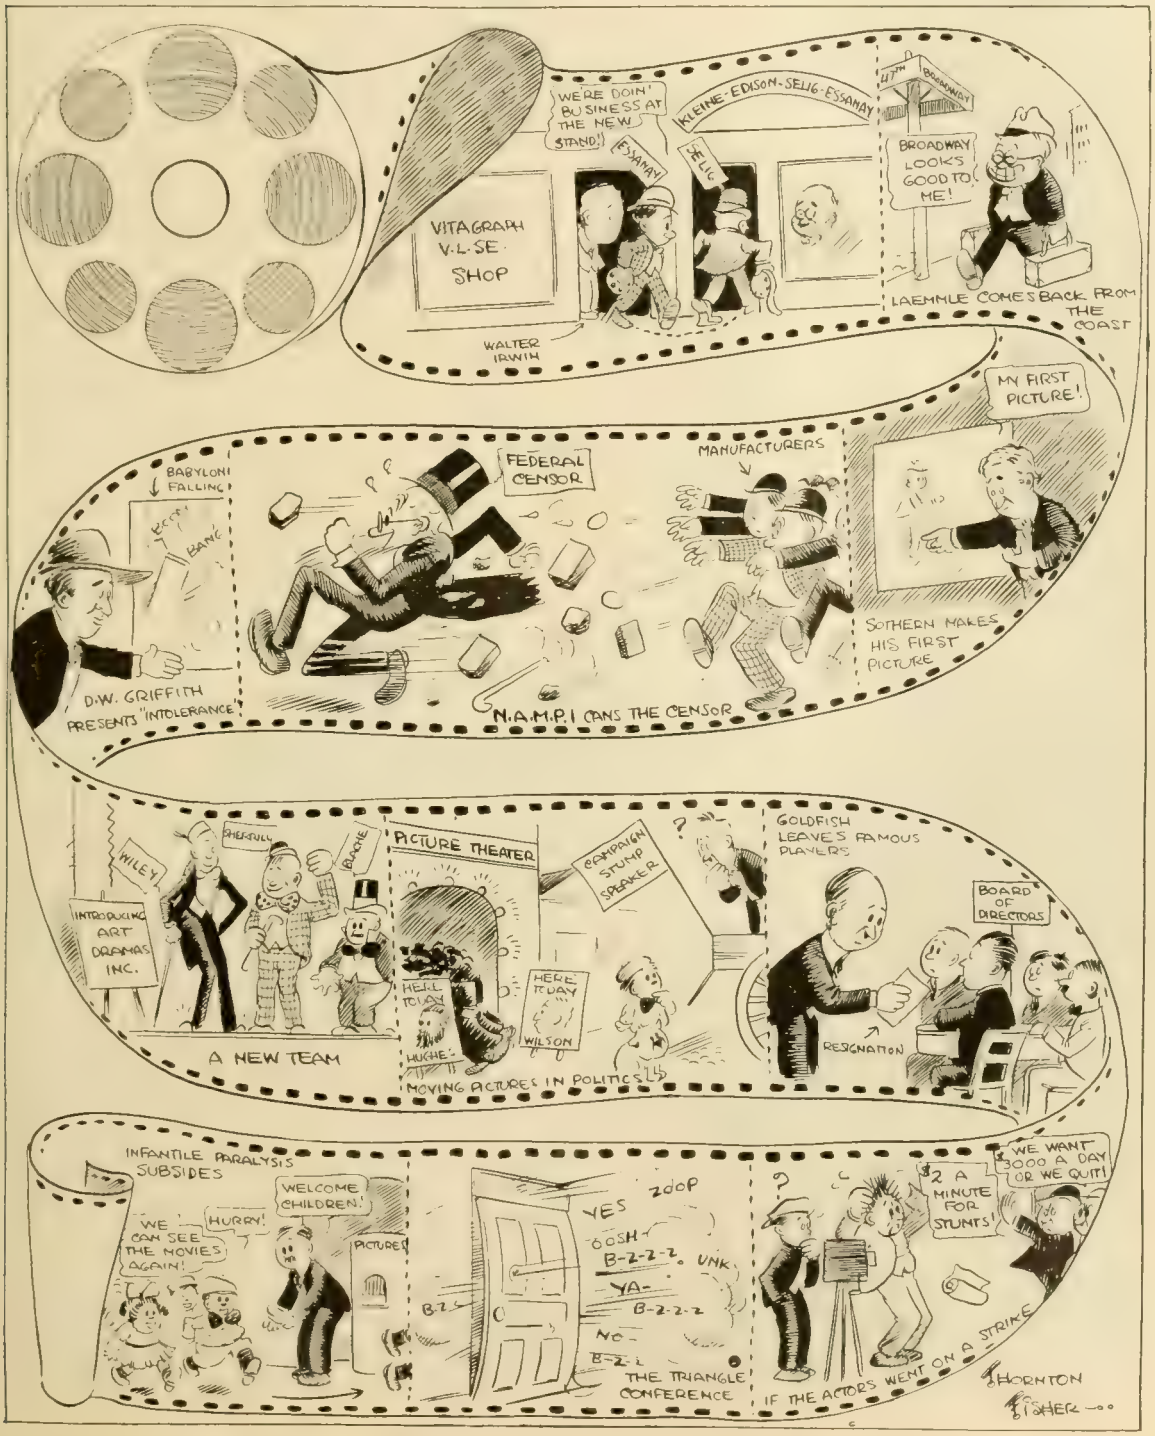
Mr. Sherry has earned the congratulations that are being extended to him on his success in the film exchange business.

NEW FIRE REGULATIONS AT WASHINGTON, D. C.

There is a rumor in Washington that the fire marshal is working on proposed amendments to the police regulations governing the storage and handling of motion picture films. This means that some one must erect a film building, if the exchanges are to be maintained in Washington as heretofore, for it is not believed that the premises now occupied will come within the proposed law.

It is said that the District Commissioners will require the storage of imflammable moving picture films in vaults or rooms of fireproof construction, which vaults or rooms shall have self-supporting brick or concrete walls. The brick walls would have to be 13 inches thick, laid in cement and extend from the ground. The concrete walls would possibly have to be 10 inches thick. The top and botom of the vaults or rooms would have to be waterproof and made of brick or concrete arches, without the use of wood. The size of these vaults or rooms would probably be restricted to say, 50 or 100 cubic feet, and fireproof doors would be required at the openings. Fixtures, shelving and furniture in these vaults or rooms, and rooms used for rewinding films, as well as the storage of posters, would have to be of metal. There would be certain requirements regarding the use of electric lights and switches. No other regulations would cover the number of reels that might be kept in the examining room at the one time, each enclosed in a metal box, when not being rewound or examined, and the same would apply to the number of films that might be kept in the booth of the moving picture theater in much the same manner.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD NEWS REEL for ..SEPTEMBER..



New Triangle Exchange Proposition

Distributing Branches Now Owned by Parent Company Will be Sold in Part to Local Investors—Alfred Weiss Gets New York Branch

ANNOUNCEMENT is made by President H. E. Aitken of the Triangle Film Corporation to the effect that a substantial interest in the twenty-one branch distributing offices of his company will be sold to local investors at the different points where the branches now exist. This is a reversal of the tendency to centralize the distribution of pictures which has prevailed in the trade for the past few years beginning with the organization of the General Film Company. At the time the General was organized all exchanges were owned by individuals or companies working independently of the producing companies. The General bought the interests of such exchanges as it desired to incorporate in its organization, and, in most instances, placed the former owner in charge of the branch. This policy has been followed by the Universal and Mutual companies, and other distributing concerns which have since been organized have dealt with the exhibitors through their own branch exchanges.

Now comes the announcement from Triangle that this entire policy is to be reversed and that a certain interest in each of its branch exchanges will be sold to outside parties. This subject has been under advisement for some time and a definite agreement was reached at a meeting of the directors of the company last week. It is termed a "semi-co-operative plan of distribution which permits the return to active participation in film circulation of the independent exchange man."

In discussing the reasons for the change President Aitken said:

[illegible] the service to exhibitors has been less satisfactory and the expense has increased.

It is not unnatural to believe that when the independent exchange is put back into business the service to exhibitors will improve, the gross business will increase and the expense of doing business will fall off. A comparison with other businesses verifies the belief that a man in business for himself will invariably give better service to his customers than the same man as a representative of a distant corporation.

Not only the producer and the exchange man, but each individual benefits greatly from extra promotion effort on each film. Moreover, the more prints of a film that are bought by exchanges, the better it is possible to make the pictures.

The idea on which we are now working tends in two directions—first, toward the independent ownership of exchanges through which Triangle films will be supplied to theaters, and, second, toward a constant increase in the number of smaller exchanges within each general exchange district.

[illegible] own should be attracting the most vigorous and able film men the country over. A good many who have owned exchanges in the past, but who, because they refused to work for large corporations as exchange managers, have actually left the business, are indicating to us their desire to return to it again as independent exchange men.

The exhibitor in any district will not (when this system is thoroughly installed) be dealing with the agent of a distant concern, but with the owner of a nearby independent business. The whole change, while it seems a radical one, is, as a matter of fact, a natural development caused by the demand on the part of the exhibitor for better service and on the part of the public for better film. Curiously enough, it is at the same time a reversion from the more or less artificial system of the last few years to the strength that gave the film industry its original impetus—a strength which was taken away from it when the first large combination of producing companies put the independent exchange out of business for their own profit.

One point which has been very interesting and which has been, I [illegible] has been accepted, not only by well-known exchange men throughout the country but by prominent producers, distributors and exhibitors with whom I have talked.

Kessel and Baumann Approve Plan.

Adam Kessel, Jr., president of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, controlling Kay-Bee and Keystone studios, said this among other things:

[illegible] try, as I put in six years or so as an exchange man before entering the [illegible] co-operative plan is one that is going to be of the greatest possible benefit to the industry as a whole. While enormous sums have been necessarily used in the installation of the numerous branch offices of the great manufacturing and distributing companies, this expenditure has [illegible] throughout the country. To my mind it has been the lack of personal interest and personal touch in the relations of the branch managers and the exhibitors.

To the great bulk of exhibitors throughout the country the main office of the company is far off, and to a great extent unsympathetic with their problems and necessities. If readjustment of relationships is necessary, the branch manager has largely had no discretion to make that readjustment, but has been forced to communicate with the main office, receive instructions from there, and then follow those instructions to the letter. I know that this is a wrong method. I know that the men on the ground, the men familiar with the local conditions, are the ones who should make such readjustments, up or down, as may be necessary, and that the manufacturing company should back these men and their judgment to the limit. Speaking for Kessel & Baumann, I can say that the new Triangle plan is most heartily indorsed by us.

Charles O. Baumann, vice-president of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, expressed his sincere approval of the new Triangle distributing plan, and its application to the best interests of the film industry.

Thomas H. Ince and Mack Sennett, respectively producing directors of Kay-Bee and Keystone studios, as well as important cogs in the Triangle organization, both expressed their hearty approval of the new plan just prior to their departure from New York for Los Angeles.

Where Triangle Exchanges Are.

The twenty-one branch exchanges of the Triangle Film Corporation are well located. The complete list follows with present manager's name given:

[illegible] Los Angeles, 645 South Olive street, G. C. Parsons.
CALIFORNIA—San Francisco, 111 Golden Gate avenue, B. F. Simp[illegible]
[illegible] 1145 Champa street, W. S. Rand.
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA—Washington, 708 Thirteenth street, N. W., J. H. Butner.
GEORGIA—Atlanta, 111 Walton street, A. C. Bromberg.
ILLINOIS—Chicago, 5 South Wabash avenue, R. C. Seery.
LOUISIANA—New Orleans, 340 Carondelet street, N. I. Ehrlich.
MASSACHUSETTS—Boston, 48-50 Melrose street, W. H. Bradley.
MICHIGAN—Detroit, 71-75 Broadway, A. I. Shapiro.
MINNESOTA—Minneapolis, 16-18 No. 4th street, R. E. Bradford.
MISSOURI—Kansas City, 19th and Main streets, J. M. Cummings.
MISSOURI—St. Louis, 3320 Lindell blvd., Floyd Lewis.
NEW YORK—Buffalo, 86 Exchange street, G. A. Hickey.
NEW YORK—New York, 1459 Broadway, S. Exkman, Jr.
OHIO—Cincinnati, 215 East Fifth street, C. C. Hite.
OHIO—Cleveland, 704 Sincere Building, H. A. Bandy.
PENNSYLVANIA—Philadelphia, 1227 Vine street, Arthur Lucas.
PENNSYLVANIA—Pittsburgh, 414 Penn avenue, C. C. McKibben.
TEXAS—Dallas, 1814 Commerce street, L. B. Remy.
UTAH—Salt Lake City, 144 East Broadway, W. S. Rand.
WASHINGTON—Seattle, 1206 Fourth avenue, Ray A. Grumbacher.

Weiss Gets New York Branch

Old Time Exchange Man and General Manager of Triangle Puts Over a Half-Million Dollar Deal.

ALFRED WEISS, former general manager of the Triangle Film Corporation, and one of the best known film men in the country, has just closed one of the biggest local film deals on record. After H. E. Aitken, president of the Triangle Film Corporation, and its officers, decided to interest local capital in the twenty-one branch offices on a chain stretching across from Maine to California, Mr. Weiss was the first man who was invited to bid for the New York franchise. While the deal involved over a half million dollars, Mr. Weiss was not overawed, and contracts were signed one week after the proposition was suggested to him.

The Triangle local franchise gives the holder the right to rent, circulate and distribute the brands under the Triangle trademark, such as Fine Arts, Ince-Kay Bee and Keystone productions and conduct a regular exchange business, the same as done heretofore by the general organization in the territory embraced by the New York Triangle branch.

Mr. Weiss is a veteran exchange operator and started more than fifteen years ago the Alfred Weiss Film Exchange at 219 Sixth avenue, New York City, and which for years was one of the most popular in the metropolitan territory. He later sold out to the General Film Company and aligned himself with the Mutual on the invitation of Mr. Aitken, then president of that corporation. He was one of Mr. Aitken's chief advisers in the organization of the Triangle combination.

The new venture is capitalized at $500,000 and Mr. Weiss is its president and general manager.

It is said that the branch at Boston will be the next to be affected by the new plan and that the others will follow as radiply as proper arrangements can be made.

Pottering Around in Old Pa.

Our Projection Expert Looks 'Em Over in a Number of Towns in the Keystone State

FROM Chambersburg to Pittsburgh, via the Lincoln Highway, is 165 miles and is a most thoroughly enjoyable ride. The highway crosses the Alleghany Mountains and there is hardly a level mile in the whole run. The road is in excellent condition, the views at dozens of points beautiful and magnificent. There are hills by the hundred to negotiate, mountains to climb, with long, swift coasting on the other side. Yes, son, it is certainly some ride from Chambersburg to Pittsburgh.

Arriving in the latter city Operators' union headquarters was quickly located at 223 Diamond street, where R. C. Freeman, president and business agent, did the honors, afterward piloting us to a hotel.

The boys offered all kinds of entertainment for the evening, but we side-stepped knowing full well that acceptance would mean early (in the morning) bed for us. But hardly had "the boys" been shooed out of the room when our old friend, Ludwig Hommel, put in an appearance and insisted upon filling us so full of dinner that we could scarcely wiggle. Well, of course, that meant exercise, so, it being Saturday night, one perfectly good ten cent ticket to the Grand theater on Fifth avenue, was purchased, the main idea being that the needed exercise would be obtained in throwing imaginary bricks at the operator and manager for racing the films. But, alas (Oh joy), it was not to be, for while the show was run somewhat faster than it should have been, still the speed was not very objectionable, and was really surprising when we consider that the house was jammed full, with many standing. The light was well handled and the illumination good. No one knew I was in the theater. My compliments to Manager Mason, and to Operators Joseph Dean, secretary Pittsburgh Operators' Union, and J. W. Sike, who were on duty. The Grand employs two shifts of two operators—four in all.

Next morning President-Business Agent Freeman and Brother J. J. Clair, showed up at the hotel with a big gasoline buggy and we proceeded to view the sights of Pittsburgh.

At 3 P. M. the operators and exhibitors of the city gathered in the Moose Temple, and for two hours we handed out projection lore, served hot and without gloves. At the end of the lecture we offered to answer any questions which might be propounded, whereupon one brother popped up and asked: "How soon can you come back to Pittsburgh?" Which I was unable to answer.

A vote of thanks was tendered and I feel that I have added to my list of valued friends many Pittsburgh men. In fact, the officers of the local remarked to me after the lecture: "Rich, old man, next time you come to this town we will guarantee you the time of your life."

The men had regarded the invitation to me as something of an experiment. They were just a little skeptical as to the value of the lecture. Well, they were convinced, as others have been, and were frank in saying that much good would accrue from my visit, which I sincerely hope and trust will prove to be the fact.

At Greensburg, Pa., a beautiful little city perched upon the brow of a hill, I met and shook hands with M. Manos, manager of the Lyric theater, of which William Feldus is operator. Mr. Manos, or the company he represents, is erecting a $75,000 house, which will be opened for business this fall.

Leaving Pittsburgh we went to Morgantown, W. Va., and were greeted by a glad-to-see-you smile which spread all over the countenance of Brother H. W. Prettyman, secretary of Local Union 578, and overflowed into the surrounding atmosphere. The hills of southern Pensylvania and northern West Virginia, plus the crooked clay roads, had been pretty strenuous, but we nevertheless visited all the theaters, and had short chats with the managers and operators thereof. The Grand runs vaudeville, plus pictures. The Strand was closed for that day, as the Governor of West Virginia, supported by a troop of political spell-binders, was to occupy its stage that evening, after which, at midnight, your humble servant was due to lecture from the same hallowed spot. At the Dixey the picture was brilliant, the speed correct, and altogether it was what could be fairly termed a very good picture. At the Arcade the same could be said, except that the illumination was not as brilliant as one could have wished. The meeting was not held until midnight, as several of the men in Fairmont, W. Va., twenty-five miles down the Group of Pittsburgh Operators, Photographed at a Recent Outing.

Monongahela river, had sent word they would motor over after the shows closed and be with us.

After the lecture, which lasted until 2 A. M., the editor attempted to make a quiet get-away, with intent to seek his temporary happy hotel home and the "hay." But this budding ambition was quickly squashed and a very genuine surprise was sprung on our unsuspecting and perfectly innocent self. We were conducted up a mysterious stairway and into what seemed to be a private residence, or apartment, and there the assembled multitude, to the number of twenty-five, were served a real sure-enough West Virginia dinner, or maybe it was breakfast, by three charming ladies, who no doubt had endangered their immortal souls by thinking the feminine equivalent for profanity about men who would keep them up until that unholy hour. The editor drew, among other goodies, the rear leg of a pullet, killed at midnight, in the dark of the moon, and probably in a graveyard. I could really tell it was killed at the dark of the moon at midnight, because the meat was dark. But it was some feed, and if there was any one present who failed to enjoy it, most emphatically his looks belied his feelings. The Morgantown men are progressive. There are not so many of them, but what there are, are "on the job." I noticed one highly desirable thing about Morgantown exhibitors and operators, namely, they do not assume the attitude of "master and servant" toward each other, but talk together as man to man. This is, in my opinion, the ideal condition and one to be highly commended.

From Morgantown we went north to Uniontown, and then swung eastward on what is known as the "National turnpike," which we followed to Gettysburg, stopping for the night at Cumberland, where I stopped to get some postcards, and noticing a gentleman with a sort of air of possession standing in front of the Victoria theater, across the street, I went over and discovered that he was the manager of the house. I had intended to go twenty or twenty-five miles further that night, but after learning there were seven theaters in Cumberland, I told him that if he could get the managers and operators together in one of the theaters at 11 o'clock I would stay over and give them a talk on projection. The manager of the Victoria is a progressive. He and his operator, together with the manager of the nearby Empire, quickly assented and agreed to notify all managers and operators.

At 11 o'clock a part of them did gather and with two or three exceptions, remained and listened attentively to a two hour talk. The exceptions looked like managers, though they may not have been. They came in late, remained a short while and left. Doubtless the matters I was speaking of, which had proven of huge interest to some of the best operators and biggest theater managers in the East, did not interest them sufficiently to justify wasting the time. Cumberland needs a corking good shaking up. Those houses I saw were all tagged with the legend, "Admission Five Cents," and, moreover, they were very poor specimens of the store room theater. Now this is not said to hurt any one's feelings, because the managers and operators of two of those houses showed by their interest they meant well, but I am prepared to say that the moving picture industry at Cumberland, taken as a whole, decidedly is non progressive.

From Cumberland to Hagerstown is but a continuation of the wonderfully beautiful drive in which the world is spread out at one's feet in a succession of magnificent views. In Hagerstown I stopped to have Nancy Hank's chains tightened and eat lunch. While searching for a purveyor of food I noticed a fine, handsome looking gentleman in front of a moving picture theatre, his pose suggesting possession, therefore I inquired: "Are you the manager?" To which ready assent was given by C. W. Boyer, who introduced his operator, Victor Ohler.

After a pleasant chat I proceeded to satisfy the inner man and then visited the Palace theater, J. F. Sanderson, manager, Clyde Morgan, operator. The Palace is the pioneer moving picture theater in Hagerstown, seating about 600, and has a 14 foot picture. It is a commodious and very pretty house.

While at the Palace I was introduced to Ernest Westfall, manager of the Maryland, who insisted that I visit his theater, it being but a short distance away. In fact, all of the Hagerstown theaters are within a block of each other. The Maryland is considered the finest theater of the town. It is, considering Hagerstown's size, a magnificent house, seating 1,600. The stage is fully equipped to handle road attractions. The lobby is as fine as you will find in any but the very best houses in New York City. The screen is set back on the stage some 15 feet, and is entirely blocked in in black clear out to the proscenium arch. The operating room is built of hollow tile, and is equipped with two projectors supplied with current by a Fort Wayne AC to DC compensarc. There was but one thing to criticise, viz.: the width of the observation ports. I recommended that they be enlarged and this Friend Westfall agreed to have done. David Williams, the operator, is an up-to-date man who is very well posted on the technical art of projection.

Immediately across the street from the Maryland is the Colonial, another splendid example of the up-to-date moving picture theater. The Colonial is strictly a moving picture house, seating 1,200. It is managed by Fred C. Wright, a gentleman who impresses one as being "on the job," and while a student of his business, still he is willing to listen to advice and criticism and give the same due consideration, and that, let me tell you, marks the real manager, or for that matter the real operator. It is only the confirmed bonehead who knows it all and regards advice as superfluous.

The principal criticism in the Colonial is too much light color around the screen, and not enough black border. The stages setting around the screen is delicately beautiful. In front, on the floor, are tastefully arranged beds of artificial flowers. Around the screen is a sort of arch, painted a very light yellow, and up this arch are twined artificial vines carrying blossoms. It is very pretty indeed. Unfortunately this particular scheme does not lend itself in the best possible way to the needs of practical projection. My advice to Brother Wright is to paint that arch black or else cover it with black velvet, even though it be at the expense to some extent of marring the beauty of the stage setting.

The projection equipment consists of two projectors taking current through a Wagner Motor Generator set. The machines are equipped with arc controllers. Norman Taschman is in charge of projection; sorry, but I did not have the pleasure of meeting him.

Hagerstown theaters are, as a whole, distinctly high class, and that, of course, means that Hagerstown managers and operators are high class. It is a real pleasure to meet such men, and to inspect such beautiful houses. I don't think I have ever seen a town of 25,000 having theaters as beautiful and up-to-date as those of Hagerstown, Maryland.

From Hagerstown we went east to Gettysburg, examined the battle field and gave it our distinguished approval. It is a wonderful place, comprising twenty-five square miles, or 16,000 acres of land, in which are fifty miles of government made macadam roads. There are 1,296 monuments, 288 mounted cannon, and five steel observation towers. In addition to this there are dozens and dozens of really beautiful statues; also there is the National Cemetery, in which a large number of Union dead are buried. I rode all around both the Confederate and Union lines of battle, down to the "Devil's Den," through the "Valley of Death," where thousands met death, and right square up over the top of the far-famed "Little Round Top." It was a really wonderful sight, and one which I have long wanted to see, because my respected paternal ancestor took part in that particular scrap.

At York, Pa., a flying visit was paid to the Hippodrome, where we shook hands with Manager Kline Henderson, and inspected the operating room. The York is a very long house, seating 900. One goes up on the roof and along a walk thereon for fully one hundred feet. The operating room is on the roof fifty feet from the screen. Two projectors are used. The picture is larger than it should be, as I explained to Friend Henderson. Two or three feet less width would give better general results and be amply large for the throw. Wm. Williams is operator. The Hippodrome would be a very pretty house if its interior, now white plaster, were properly decorated.

At Columbia, Pa., I stopped at the Star theater for just a moment and received a hearty greeting from its manager, W. E. Powell, who as soon as I made myself known, made it very plain that he was a "frien' of mine."

Another town which deserves very much more than passing mention is Lancaster, about seventy miles west of Philadelphia. I stopped there to get lunch, intending to spend about twenty minutes, but remained for two hours and even then really did not want to leave in that time. I was only able to inspect the two theaters owned by the Hamilton Amusement Company, viz: the Hamilton and the Grand, and the Hippodrome, which is controlled by them. All three of these houses are splendid examples of the modern up-to-date photoplay theater. The seating capacity is large, the screens are blocked in in black, the lighting arrangements are good and the interiors beautiful. This applies to all three houses. The operating room of the Grand is very good indeed. It is of the asbestos type, but has a very high ceiling and is ample in size. The only criticism is that its interior is not painted black. The ventilation of the operating rooms of all three theaters is excellent, and the operators are up-to-date men who know their business. I glanced at the result on all three of the screens, and it was distinctly good. Cecil Patterson projects the pictures with two machines at the Hippodrome. F. E. Moore and John Workman are the operators at the Hamilton, but unfortunately I cannot remember the name of the operator at the Grand.

And now I want to speak particularly of the Hamilton theater. Lancaster is, by comparison, a small city, but the Hamilton theater would do distinct credit to the Great White Way of New York City. It is managed by George M. Krupa, whose acquaintance, as well as that of his charming frau, whom I suspect is about an equal partner in the "managership" end of things, it was my privilege to form. The entrance is through a very beautiful lobby, at a guess, 100 feet long by 30 wide, in which are twelve large mirrors, set low so that the ladies can inspect their plumage as they pass in and out. The ceiling is supported by twelve large marble columns. To the right is the ladies' rest room, and the gentlemen's smoking room, both very tastefully and conveniently fitted up. The theater seats 1,150. Its cost was well up toward the one hundred thousand dollar mark. The ceiling of the auditorium is flat but at the sides it comes down to meet the wall in a wide cove, or arch, and just where this cove meets the wall are insets about every ten feet, wherein are colored lights which supply illumination to the auditorium. The lighting effect is absolutely as good as that of any theater I have ever viewed. The only thing which marred the general effect was a too brilliantly illuminated clock face immediately above the picture. I suggested to Friend Krupa that he cut down the illumination to not more than one-fourth of its present value, and make the clock hands larger so they can be seen with faint illumination. This view he agreed with, and said it would be attended to at once. The operating room was one in which there was practically nothing to criticise. The whole interior of the room is black. The observation ports are of good size, and are equipped with shadow boxes. There is an 18-inch vent flue, with inlet air openings, near the floor. The projection equipment consists of two projectors taking D. C. current through rheostats, placed right up against the ceiling, where they ought to be. There is an up-to-date fireproof rewinder, which I suggested ought by all means to be run by a motor. The shelves are substantial, and are of asbestos board. On the wall I noted the operator's tools, neatly racked, and a test lamp all wired up ready for business. Needless to say the operator has a Handbook, and what is more he studies it. The setting of the screen is very pretty indeed.

Taking it altogether, considering the size of the city, I desire to extend my congratulations and compliments to the Hamilton Amusement Company, and to Brother Krupa, manager of the three houses. I do not believe it has ever been my pleasure to see three houses of equal class in a town of that size, meaning by this, houses in which there was very little to criticise, either in the auditorium, in the projection, or in the operating room.

From Lancaster Nacy Hanks barely touched the top of each hill, except in Philadelphia, where there were too many speed cops on the job to make that kind of riding altogether safe.

The total trip was 1,094 miles. The jumps were long, but we feel that considerable good was accomplished—certainly enough to justify both the work and the expense. We have formed new friendships and renewed old ones; also, I believe, we have accomplished considerable toward the perfection of screen results in the various towns visited.

BILLIE BURKE IN INTIMATE HOME DRAMA.

Billie, Burke, famous star of the George Kleine motion picture novel, "Gloria's Romance," it is whispered, is soon to be cast for a far more important role. Ere the leaves fall from the trees, Gossip reports, the radiant Billie will appear as the leading woman in a drama of life called "Mother." The all-star supporting cast will include, of course, Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., husband of Billie, and a tiny youngster, name and sex later to be announced. Success is assured, for never was there a happier pair than Billie and Flo, and never a more gorgeous setting for such a drama than "Hastings-on-Hudson," the country home of the Ziegfelds.

When the marriage of Billie Burke to the famous producer of the "Follies" was first announced, a few pessimistic know-it-alls remarked "Just another of those stage marriages—they'll be divorced in a year or two." But such has proven far from being the case, and those who know both intimately declare that Billie and Flo are more like sweethearts today than they were on their marriage morn.

With the arrival of a little heir to the Ziegfeld fortunes Billie Burke will have indeed consummated a romance within a romance, for it was during the filming of the Rupert Hughes novel, "Gloria's Romance," at the George Kleine studios that the secret of the Ziegfelds was first admitted to the world. A host of film fans, friends in the industry and associates during the filming of the great George Kleine motion picture novel will join in the toast, "Here's to you, Baby Ziegfeld; may you be one-half as clever as your famous daddy and one-half as beautiful as your radiant mother!"

James Morrison Joins Ivan

IMMEDIATELY following the completion of one of the most important roles in the new Vitagraph play, "The Battle Cry of War," successor to "The Battle Cry of Peace," James Wood Morrison left the Vitagraph organization and joined the Ivan Film Productions. His first vehicle under his new affiliation will be in the enactment of the principal male role of "The Sex Lure," the next Ivan all-star cast production.

James Morrison.

James Morrison was born in Mattoon, Ill., on November 15, 1888. Both his parents were born and raised in Illinois. He was educated in the public schools of Mattoon, and later on attended the University of Chicago, but left prior to receiving a degree. He went to New York and attended the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, wherein he was taught the rudiments of pantomime. Among his fellow students were Helen Gardner and Tom Powers. After leaving this school, these three were again associated with the Alberta Players, producing pantomime in the vaudeville theaters. Other theatrical engagements of Mr. Morrison's were with the Marlowe and College Stock Companies in Chicago, "Brown of Harvard" and other road shows, and different engagements in vaudeville.

Pantomime appealed directly to Mr. Morrison and he determined to apply to the Vitagraph Company for a position in the motion picture business. Mr. Morrison has appeared in a great number of pictures. His greatest successes have been in "The Seventh Son," "The Modern Prodigal," "The Christian," "Mother's Roses," "The Wheels of Justice," "In the Days of Famine," "Mortmain" and "The Battle Cry of War."

ALFRED VOSBURGH AND ESTELLE ALLEN WITH MOROSCO.

The two latest acquisitions to the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company studios are Alfred Vosburgh, the handsome leading man, and Estelle Allen, the clever ingenue, whose work under Vitagraph, Ince, Edison, and other trade marks will well be remembered. Alfred Vosburgh has appeared in motion pictures since his twentieth birthday, five years ago, and has enjoyed considerable success with Vitagraph, American and Ince. He will make his initial appearance on the Paramount program in the forthcoming Vivian Martin release, "Her Father's Son," produced by Morosco.

Estelle Allen has also considerable stage experience, her greatest work behind the footlights having been evident in "Barriers Burned Away." Prior to her engagement in this play, Miss Allen played several years on the stock stage.

T. H. DAVIDSON IN NEW YORK.

T H Davidson of the well known Davidson Film Agency, London, England, arrived in New York on the Baltic September 29. Mr. Davidson, who enjoys the distinction of being one of Great Britain's greatest distributors of films, is here with the intention of looking into various propositions that have been made regarding organization among foreign distributors of American films.

Selig's "Crisis" a Great Production

Reviewed by James S. McQuade

Winston Churchill's Famous Novel Finely Visualized, the Principal Characters Being Ably Sustained by Splendid Cast

THE CAST.

Judge Silas Whipple, who believes in Lincoln.....George Fawcett
Colonel Comyn Carvel, who believes otherwise.....Matt B. Snyder
Virginia Carvel, a fair 'Rebel'.....Miss Bessie Eyton
Stephen Brice, from New England.....Thomas Santschi
Mrs. Brice, Stephen's mother.....Miss Eugenie Besserer
Clarence Colfax, in love with Virginia.....Marshall Neilan
Eliphalet Hopper, the Mole.....Frank Weed
Lige Brent, a steamboat captain.....Will Machin
Abraham Lincoln.....Sam D. Drane
General W. T. Sherman.....Cecil Holland
Union and Confederate officers and soldiers, slaves, militiamen, artillerymen, Northern and Southern statesmen, rivermen, members of the Southern aristocracy, etc.

Scene from "The Crisis" (Selig).

LITTLE need be said about the great popularity of "The Crisis" in book form. It was first published in May, 1901, and since then no less than thirty-two reprints of the edition have been made to satisfy the demand. In addition, two reprints of a special edition issued in 1904 have been required to meet the wishes of certain readers.

Just as the play is the thing in a dramatic success, so in a photodramatic success the story is the all important factor; and as we have in "The Crisis" a great story, one that is well suited to the requirements of visualization, we naturally expect to find a great photoplay in the Selig production.

In this, I am bold to predict, no one will be disappointed. For myself, the oftener I viewed the films the stronger this conviction became. I refer, of course, to critical viewing and not to viewing for entertainment only.

Colin Campbell's adaptation of the Churchill novel shows a comprehensive grasp of its possibilities for moving pictures. He has used from the book, with a few exceptions, all that contributes to the interest of the spectator, and he has furnished him the very atmosphere in which the story develops. In this connection I except the lack of greater prominence to the fine character of Captain Lige Brent, whom Colonel Carvel esteemed so highly that at one time he considered him worthy to become the husband of his beloved daughter, Virginia. On the other hand, Mr. Campbell has changed the story of the book for the better, where he affords the spectator a view of the scene in which the gallant Colonel receives his death wound. Mr. Churchill, to the disappointment and even grief of many readers, lets him pass out of the story without giving any definite knowledge of his fate.

I can see no good reason for changing the book story where Colonel Carvel steals through the Union lines to see his daughter Jinny, as he endearingly calls Virginia. In the film story, Mr. Campbell makes it appear that through the reading of an item in a St. Louis paper, which told of the serious illness of Judge Whipple, the Colonel had made the dangerous journey to see his old friend. And the films show where a brother officer gives him the greatcoat and the hat of a Union officer to serve as a disguise, as he leaves the Confederate camp. In this greatcoat we see him as he stands by the deathbed of his friend, Silas Whipple.

On page 454 of the fifty-cent edition of "The Crisis" the Colonel answers Virginia's question, "Why did you come to St. Louis at all?" by saying, "I came to see you, Jinny, I reckon." And on the same page the following description is given of him as he looked at that time: "His hair was nearly white and his face seared. But he was a fine, erect figure of a man, despite the shabby clothes he wore, and the mud-bespattered boots." It seems to me that in these "shabby clothes" and "mud-bespattered boots" Colonel Carvel would have been a much more affecting figure than he is in the disguise of a Union officer.

In the production of "The Crisis," Mr. Campbell has given us, undoubtedly, the finest effort of his career as a director. In the opening scenes he reveals at a glance the underlying burden of the story—the abolition of slavery and the throes suffered by the nation in its accomplishment. In the posed picture showing Abraham Lincoln freeing the slave, the spectator will marvel at the almost perfect resemblance of Sam D. Drane (now deceased), in face, mien and stature, to the martyred president.

Viewing the numerous exteriors and interiors used in the production, the intelligent spectator will be amazed at the outlay and labor involved, never to speak of the imagination, knowledge, art, skill and painstaking required for the successful accomplishment of such a task. The battle of Vicksburg, in which the most spectacular scenes of the production are shown, was filmed on the historic ground where the grave men in blue and gray fought and died over fifty years ago. Thousands of men of the National Guard of Mississippi participated in the filmed battle, and Admiral Porter's fleet is also represented by the rain of shells that light up the beleaguered city by night as they explode.

The entire Selig company was there, and Thomas Santschi and Tom Mix are seen in thrilling action. The former is seen charging up the heights with his command, and the color bearer falls by the explosion of a shell at his feet. As Stephen Brice, Mr. Santschi seizes the colors in one hand and the wounded man in the other and dashes up the slope followed by his impetuous men.

On the slope of another hill we see an officer on horseback. A shell explodes deep in the sand beneath the horse, and we see horse and ride fall and roll over and over, until the bottom of the hill is reached. That man was Tom Mix, and the horse is one of his favorite mounts, which has already been seen in various astounding stunts, in Wild West pictures. William N. Selig brought master and horse all the way from California to perform this one spectacular feat.

The procession at night, in Freeport, Ill., where Abraham Lincoln and the "Little Giant" met in one of their most important debates, is another memorable exterior. The marching throngs in the streets, which are lit by the sputtering flare from old-time transparent banners that bear the names of Lincoln and Douglas, will be viewed with more than passing interest. The night scene showing the great outdoor assemblage listening to the two leading Americans of their day will create a sense of sacredness that only lovers of Lincoln's memory can know.

But it is impossible from a space viewpoint to dwell on the many other deserving scenes of this finely filmed story, so I shall confine myself to the replica of the well-known engraving showing Lincoln and his cabinet, on the signing of the declaration of force against the seceding States, as made under the direction of Mr. Campbell. Compare the original engraving with its imitation on the screen. The latter was made in the Selig studio with actors and a room specially built, and the furniture and the other essentials. Is it not a wonderful likeness of the original, so far as President Lincoln and the members of the cabinet are concerned, and in other particulars?

If you look closely enough, you will see a small deep box on the large table. That box has great historic value. It is the box that Lincoln used (when he did not use his hat) for his private dispatches and papers, when on his stumping rounds. Mr. Selig was fortunate enough to secure it for this scene. He has been just as careful, to a nicety, in other important scenes in his filmed story of "The Crisis."

To the assignment of the characters of the story, Mr. Selig devoted careful attention and a wide knowledge of actors and their special abilities. In this he was ably assisted by Director Campbell, whose judgment on fitness and ability for a part is almost a second nature. The result of their joint efforts and judgment is a cast that, for fine ensemble acting, has been rarely surpassed. True, I think the assignment of certain characters might have been still more happily made, but that is only a one man's opinion.

George Fawcett's Silas Whipple is one of the finest heavy characters I have ever seen presented on the stage or the screen. A perfect study of the man as he is revealed in the book, is evident in Mr. Fawcett's admirable impersonation. And no better opposite could have been chosen than Matt B. Snyder for the role of Colonel Comyn Carvel. To watch them in their wordy passages at arms has nearly always a grim humor and begets a real fear of disaster to their life-long friendship in the mind of the spectator.

Judge Whipple is a man of granite in the book, and Mr. Fawcett's art makes him still more so on the screen. Inflexible in will and purpose, fearless for the right as he sees it and easily moved to anger in its defense, strong in friendship unto death, soft of heart beneath a rugged exterior and readily susceptible to the gentle influence and direction of his women friends, Mr. Fawcett's Silas Whipple will appeal to every spectator as a man of real flesh and blood—a great, unusual type of man.

The scene showing the death of Judge Whipple will go down as a classic in moving picture art. When I think of the millions of people that will be moved to tears by the powerfully affecting spectacle of this strong-souled man going out fearlessly into the Beyond, as the melody of "Lead Kindly Light" falls on his enraptured ears, I am amazed in contemplating the power of the moving picture to sway mankind.

Mr. Snyder's conception of Colonel Carvel and its expression are most happy. He brings out mirthfully at times the almost boyish roguishness of this old Southern gentleman, whom Time has failed to tame. Take, for example, the scene at Glencoe, where one of the disputes between the old friends is caused by the Colonel's aggressiveness. You cannot fail to smile at the roguish look on his face, as Virginia leads him by the ear from the room. His quickness with the pistol is a proverb among his friends, and we see it illustrated twice on the premises of Carvel & Co., but without bloodshed.

Without Virginia Carvel in the many amusing and exciting scenes between the Colonel and the Judge, they would fall exceedingly flat, and Miss Bessie Eyton's Virginia is always a joy, and sometimes much of a puzzle as well. Miss Eyton's characterization of the Southern belle is the best effort she has made in moving pictures up to the present time. The happy ease with which she shows the changing moods of Virginia impresses one that she is actually living the part.

How delicately and with what exquisite fineness she overcomes the scruples of Judge Whipple and induces him to make up and be friends on several occasions. And what a peacemaker she is between the two friends. In the Carvel home she assumes the air of mistress without effort. In her early contact with Stephen Brice she more than once touches the quick of that polished young Bostonian by her haughty Southern manner and pointed retort; and poor Clarence Colfax, who has loved her since they both were children, with all his patrician arrogance, lowers his colors when she takes him to task and shows him what he must do to be a real man. In short, Miss Eyton is not only clever and artistic in her impersonation of Virginia, but she looks beautiful and captivating as well.

Thomas Santschi is somewhat old to look the part of Stephen Brice when a student in Judge Whipple's office, but his acting is up to the mark. As a lieutenant in Union uniform Mr. Santschi is a fine, strapping figure of a man, and the dashing charge he makes with his men at the battle of Vicksburg has been referred to already.

Miss Eugenie Besserer's Mrs. Brice is a splendid characterization. One is always pleased to see her on the screen. As Clarence Colfax, Marshall Neilan is seen in several brilliant exploits during the civil war. In the part of Eliphalet Hopper Frank Weed gives a faithful depiction of that mole-like creature, and Will Machin is a likeable type of man in the character of Captain Lige Brent.

Sam D. Drane's impersonation of Abraham Lincoln is really remarkable in my eyes. It cannot fail to delight millions of others. How sad to think that Mr. Drane was called by the final summons before he ever saw himself in the pictures! I believe that his Abraham Lincoln in "The Crisis" will be a lasting monument to his memory.

The photography of "The Crisis" will add to the pleasure of viewing it. The subtitles are set in artistic, pictorial panels and appear bold and clear.

"The Crisis" is shown on the screen in three acts, the entire length being a little over ten reels.

The first showing of "The Crisis" in New York was at the Strand Theatre on the morning of September 29, a large number being present as the guests of H. S. Sherman, president of Sherman-Elliott, Inc., the owners of the fine Selig production. Among these were Winston Churchill, the author of the book from which the story was taken, and Booth Tarkington. Mr. Churchill declared he was delighted with the work of the Selig company. There seems to be no doubt in the minds of those who gave expression to their opinions that the treatment of the subject had been marked by the highest of intelligence—in adaptation, in direction and in acting—that "The Crisis" was a really great photoplay.

At the office of Mr. Sherman, 220 West 42d street, it is said the announcement that the territory east of Chicago is for sale on a state right basis has brought a host of inquirers. Mr. Sherman says it will be a case of "first come, first served." The production is being offered on a scale befitting its great cost, and special publicity aids have been designed for those showing it.

Society of Motion Picture Engineers Holds Annual Meeting

A Comprehensive and Interesting Program of the Meeting at the Hotel Astor.

THE Society of Motion Picture Engineers is now holding its annual meeting at the Hotel Astor, New York City.

The program for each day of the meeting, October 2 to 4 inclusive, is as follows:

MONDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1916

10.00 A. M. Meeting called to order. Completion of organization, election of new members, election of officers and Board of Governors; Reports of Committees.

1.30 P. M. Paper by W. Benton Westcott, Boston. Subject, "Precision, the dominating factor in motion picture machines."

Subjects proposed for discussion as to a standard to be recommended by this Society:

1. Standard unit projection speed in feet per minute.
2. Size of lantern slide mat for slides used with motion picture machines.
3. Standard rewind spindle-speed for thousand foot reels.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1916

10.00 A. M. Paper by G. Francis Jenkins, Washington. Subject, "Condensers, their contour, location, size and support."

Subjects proposed for discussion as to a standard to be recommended by this Society:

4. The standard thousand foot reel, size, width and hole.
5. Uniform reel carrier for thousand foot reel.
6. Standard nomenclature.

1.30 P. M. Paper by Don. J. Bell, Chicago. Subject, "Perforations." Questions.

Subjects proposed for discussion as to a standard to be recommended by this Society:

7. Film perforations, size, shape and location.
8. Location of picture base-line with respect to marginal perforation of film.
9. Size of projection machine aperture.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1916

10.00 A. M. Paper by W. C. Kunzmann, Cleveland. Subject, "Motion Picture Arc Light Carbons, their manufacture, test and use."

Subjects proposed for discussion as to a standard to be recommended by this Society:

10. Legal candle-power per unit screen surface.
11. Standard perforation for safety film for "home" machines.

1.30 P. M. Paper by J. C. McGeorge. Subject, "Transforming devices."

Subjects proposed for discussion as to a standard to be recommended by this Society:

12. Standard voltage for D. C. generators.

New business.
Selection of next meeting place.
Adjournment.

In announcing the meet, the society explains its aim and objects as follows:

Every new industry standardizes sooner or later, whether we will it or not. It is the engineer's duty to direct this standardization along right lines—standards of terminology, equipment, data, quality, performance, nomenclature and unconsciously perhaps [illegible] his responsibility to fix standards having due regard to the interest of all concerned, whether engineer, maker or customer.

It is confidently believed from the character of the incorporators and the spirit of the initial meeting in Washington, that (1) this Society was formed with an honest intent to be of service to the industry at large; (2) without any ulterior or selfish motive whatever; (3) that the officers and members alike intend to give largely of their time and energy to the promotion of the general good, and without expectation of financial reward.

"All matters of general interest deemed worthy of permanent record shall be published in serial volume as soon as possible after each regularly called Members' meeting. A copy shall be mailed to each member in good standing to his last address of record. Extra copies shall be printed for general distribution, and may be obtained of the Secretary on payment of a fee fixed by the Board of Governors. Article 12 of the By-Laws.

It is believed that these papers are likely to be prepared with as much care and be as eagerly sought for as are the publications of other engineering societies, and of particular value in our own industry because it is yet in the formative stage.

Reviews of Current Productions

EXCLUSIVELY BY OUR OWN STAFF

"The Gilded Cage"

Five-Reel Peerless Photoplay, Starring Alice Brady—Released by the World Film.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel

THE scenes of "The Gilded Cage" are laid in a mythical kingdom called Balkany. J. I. C. Clarke is the author of the five-reel Peerless photoplay, and has created an engaging romance of "The Prisoner of Zenda" school. The story unfolds along well established but always effective lines, and Hartley Knoles has given it a picturesque and intelligent production. The picture opens with the assassination of the King and Queen of Balkany. King Comus has been "making ducks and drakes" of the funds of his country, and the people rise in revolt. The Princess Honore is called to the throne

Scene from "The Gilded Cage" (World).

She is young and beautiful and is loved by the prime minister, Baron Stefano, who hopes to wed her and gain the crown. The young Queen says him nay, however, and Stefano resolves to make the kingdom a republic and place himself at its head. The prime minister keeps up the dissatisfaction of the people by continuing the heavy taxes, and rumors of another uprising reach the Queen. Donning the garments of a peasant girl she joins the throngs at a fair and endeavors to learn for herself the true feelings of her people. Here she meets Prince Boris, who has renounced his title and lives as a peasant. Through the mistake of a spy, Boris and the Queen are thrown in prison for plotting against the ruler of the country. The Baron learns of the mistake and determines to profit by it, but Queen Honore escapes from the dungeon and returns to the palace. A plot to execute Prince Boris is frustrated by the people, who refuse to allow the soldiers to shoot him. They turn on the Baron instead and beat him to death. Boris learns the identity of his peasant girl, and the story ends with the proper finish for a romance of this class.

Alice Brady is a pleasing and dramatically competent figure as Princess Honore, and Irving Cummings is a manly Prince Boris. Alice B. Francis, Gerda Holmes, Montagu Love, Arthur Ashley, Sidney Dalbrook and Clara Whipple add to the merits of the performance.

"Our American Boys in the European War"

Motion Pictures of the American Ambulance Corps at Work in France—Released by Triangle.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

A FOUR-REEL moving picture showing the work of the American Ambulance Corps on the side of the Allies, and released by the Triangle Film Corporation, gives a particularly vivid reproduction of the exciting and dangerous duties now being performed in France by the men of the 120 American ambulances engaged in conveying wounded soldiers from the firing line to the hospitals. The pictures were taken by the French government and show the courage and skill displayed by the corps in getting their charges from the trenches and hurrying them beyond the danger line. Other interesting incidents of the great war, some of an amusing nature, are on the films. Individual pictures of several of the more famous American air-pilots now serving in France are also included. The American Ambulance Corps has "brought out" 150,000 wounded to date and is doing a great work for humanity. The ambulance service is being run in connection with the hospital established and maintained by American generosity, and the pictures will be shown for the benefit of that service. The Triangle Film Corporation has agreed to handle the distribution of the pictures free of charge, and the names of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Robert Bacon and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney are prominently identified with the cause.

Two New-Old Biographs

"The Power of the Press," Three-Reel Melodrama, and "The New York Hat," a One-Reeler with Mary Pickford, to Be Released Next Month.

Reviewed by Ben H. Grimm.

"The Power of the Press."

"THE Power of the Press," to be reissued by Biograph in three reels, teems with old-fashioned melodrama, and if for no other reason than that it is more or less of a departure from the style of present-day dramas, is welcome. We can never get away from a secret liking for the old "thrillers," in which the Dastardly Villain relentlessly persecutes the Poor Young Girl, to whom "Rags is royal raiment when worn for Virtue's sake," and this production is typical of that sort of melodrama. The story is interesting, and the action fast, and of its type "The Power of the Press" is an excellent example.

Lionel Barrymore and William Russell both did the sort of work in this picture that has led them to their present places. As Steve Carson, the hero, Mr. Barrymore lent an interpretation to his role that added greatly to its ability to hold interest.

Scene from "The Power of the Press."

The heroine was played by Vivian Prescott and Betty Gray, William Jefferson and A. C. Marston were also in the cast.

The story follows more or less the stereotyped form of melodrama, with the villain persecuting the heroine while her husband is in jail as the result of a "framed up" occurrence, and trying to obtain her rightful inheritance of Alaskan gold. The husband and his cell-mate, a bank defaulter, are released unexpectedly from jail, and a series of melodramatically logical events lead up to a newspaper taking up the case in behalf of the innocent man who spent several years in jail for the villain's crime. The "power of the press" brings about a just and happy adjustment of the lives of those concerned.

The picture will be released November 1.

"The New York Hat."

"The New York Hat" is one of the best one-reel picture that Mary Pickford and David W. Griffith turned out for the old Biograph company, and despite the several years that have passed since its first showing, the film still ranks considerably higher than many releases of to-day. As the poor country girl who becomes the possessor of a "New York" hat, Miss Pickford plays upon the emotions of the spectator at will, and most of the time she chooses to draw you into sympathy with her.

The story, with its homely, country-village settings, concerns the secret bequest of Mary's mother, who turns over to the care of the village parson a sum of money she has saved. This money is to be used in buying things that Mary's girl-heart craves, and which the crabbed father will not buy. Mary, in rags, appears at church in a millinery creation that is the envy of everyone. The fact that the parson bought it starts scandal, but everything is cleared up when the dead mother's secret bequest is made known.

An interesting feature about this one reeler is the fact that there are working "extra" in many scenes: Mae Marsh, Claire McDowell, Dorothy Gish, Lillian Gish, Robert Harran, and Jack Pickford. The minister is played by Lionel Barrymore, the father by Charles H. Mailes.

"The Shielding Shadow"

No. 5 of the Pathe Serial Well Staged and Absorbing Develops Greater Mystery.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

A GREAT deal of action in this number takes place in the home of Bianca, a queen of the underworld. In her home is a secret apartment to which access is had through a panel in one of the walls, and in this secret apartment are conducted the shadiest business transactions of her gang. The pursuit of One Lamp Louie's confession, which would free Jerry Carson from the accusation of murder placed upon him and uncover the villainy of Sebastian, Leontine's husband, continues to raise considerable excitement. The mysterious stranger, Ravenger, succeeds in penetrating the secrecy of the hidden apartment, and for his pains is shot at lightning speed through a trap door and into a chute. A short time afterward, when the main characters of the story, including Leontine, have in one manner or another found their way to the hidden apartment, the Shielding Shadow single-handed outwits them all and frees Leontine from the clutches of the gang, placing her in possession of the paper containing the confession. This is later snatched from her on the street by One Lamp Louie, who trails her. This episode closes leaving us wondering how the cuff link of Ravenger came to be found on the floor of the hidden apartment when the fray was over. An enteresting number, entitled "Through Bolted Doors."

Scene from "The Shielding Shadow" (Pathe).

"How Life Begins"

Remarkable Three-Part Biological Film Reveals by a Simple and Beautiful Method the Mystery of Life's Beginning.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

TO GIVE a properly detailed review of this remarkable picture, it would be necessary to have a grasp of one's subject such as is enjoyed by those who have so carefully arranged its film presentation. It must therefore suffice the reader that we give an opinion on, rather than an analysis of the picture.

The film, "How Life Begins," was produced by Geo. E. Stone, A. B., of Berkeley University, in collaboration with J. A. Long, Ph. D., Assistant Professor of Embryology of the University of California. The combined efforts of these two men for a period of over eighteen months have brought a result that should revolutionize educational picture methods. The picture is a revelation; a complete, simple, and beautiful method of revealing to child and adult alike, the wonderful dual system by means of which all life originates. Previous to this we have had to revealed to us in film "The Birth of a Flower," "The Life of a Frog," and "Microscopic Pond Life," each of which is but a part of the great story taught in this new effort to simplify the science of life, to visualize, as it were, the mystery of the origin of life, as far as the human mind can penetrate.

In the treatment of their subject Messrs. Stone and Long have shown remarkable discernment; the simplicity and delicacy with which they have followed their subject through the plant and animal kingdoms, explaining each step by diagrams and nicely worded subtitles, as well as animated illustrations of what the microscope revealed, will elicit unlimited admiration and gratitude.

Schools and educational institutions of all kinds will do well not only to adopt this film as a permanent method of revelation, but to clamor for more along the same line, for subjects treated not in part but as a whole, and of practical use in the class room.

"Beatrice Fairfax"

"At the Ainsley Ball" and "Outside the Law," the Eighth and Ninth Episodes of the International Serial.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

"At the Ainsley Ball."

A YOUNG man wso discovers that his girl is falling in love with "a fascinating foreigner," applies to Beatrice Fairfax for assistance. This ever ready young woman calls in Jimmy Barton, and before the end of the ninth episode they unmask the gentleman from over the seas, and show a deluded young lady that she has had a narrow escape from a clever fortune hunter. There is to be a ball at the home of Miss Ainsley, and the foreign gentleman arranges an elopement, after seeing to it that the lady's French maid puts her mistress' jewels in her handbag. Beatrice and Jimmy learn just what costumes the elopers are to wear at the ball, procure duplicates and prepare to trap the crafty foreigner. The maid hands Jimmy the bag by mistake, and Monsieur Versale rushes Beatrice to an auto, and makes off with her down the road, in place of the trusting Miss Ainsley. The lady, her true lover, and the quick witted Jimmy give chase in another car, rescue Beatrice and defeat Versale.

The two reels move with good speed, and unwind a story that will compare with the best of the series. Grace Darling, Harry Fox, and Mae Hopkins lend expert aid to the acting end of the production.

"Outside the Law."

The best moment in "Outside the Law," the ninth episode of the "Beatrice Fairfax" series, is when Jimmy Barton steals Scene from "Outside the Law" (International).

the necktie. The story is serious drama, to be sure, but this comedy touch is so clever that it makes the deepest impression of any incident of the plot. The two reels give Harry Fox a number of excellent comedy openings, and that young man is anything but slow in taking advantage of them. His acting of a vegetable peddler is full of capital fooling. The plot turns on a young married woman who is in the power of a blackmailing sheet, called "The Vampire." The editor holds compromising letter of hers, and Beatrice and Jimmy break into the editor's room and secure the package. Admirers of the series will follow this episode with breathless interest, punctuated by peals of laughter. Harry Fox, Grace Darling, and Mae Hopkins have the leading roles.

"The Little Orphan" Stolen.

A print of "The Little Orphan" has been stolen from the Pioneer Feature Film Corporation, 130 West 46th street, New York City. Any person who buys the print will not be the rightful owner, as same is stolen goods.

"The Yellow Menace"

Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth Episodes of the Unity Sales Corporation Serial.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel

"A Message from the Sky."

THE tenth episode of "The Yellow Menace" shows Ali Singh in a successful attempt at carrying off both May Manning and Margaret Bronson. Soto, one of the "Mighty Ones" Japanese helpers then, drops a message from an aeroplane at the feet of Manning, telling him that the only way to save the two girls from torture is to surrender himself to Ali Singh.

Scene from "The Yellow Menace" (Unity).

The Mongolian also squares accounts with Hong Konk Harry for interfering with Najla's punishment. He has the man flogged until he is half dead. Later Najla steals into the room and does all in her power to ease the pain of the poor wretch.

The rapid movement of events which has marked the progress of the preceding episodes, is found in "A Mesage from the Sky."

"The Half Breed's Hatred."

Manning, having given himself up to Ali Singh in order to save Margaret and May, the three are rescued by the treachery of Hong Kong Harry in episode eleven. Actuated by a desire to get even with Ali, the half breed conducts the police to the leader's den. Ali however escapes.

"The Aeroplane Accident."

In the twelfth episode several of the scenes take place at the Aviation Field on Long Island. Ali attempts to steal a government aeroplane, that he may discover the secret of its construction. Manning learns of his intention, and the machine is fixed so that it will fall after ascending two thousand feet. Ali outwits this scheme by sending up one of the Japs in place of himself and the man is killed. The fall of the machine is not particularly well managed but the rest of the aviation scenes are the real thing. The acting and general production of the three episodes compare favorably with the preceding numbers.

"The Power of Evil"

Five-Reel Photoplay by George Bronson Howard, Featuring Henry King, Marguerite Nichols and Lillian West.

[redacted]

THE ... tional as its title. There is a mingling of widely diversified characters in the story, and the scenes range from a millionaire's palace to a low dance hall, and also include [redacted] Howard, the author of the scenario, to introduce a number of telling situations. This he has failed to do. There is plenty of dramatic building material but the actions of most of the characters display such a lack of common sense that what is intended for an impressive scene often invokes a smile. The argument that men and women may have acted in just such [redacted] the theater or the screen. Stupid people never command respect, even in [redacted] even less consideration, and a course of conduct that does not square with the dictates of an ordinary amount of gray matter [redacted]

A short resume of the plot of "The Power of Evil" will bear out the above contention. A young millionaire, whose father dies from the effects of the drink habit, marries a young girl, after he has promised her to stop following in his father's footsteps. He keeps his word, loads his young wife with affection and all that money can buy, and, at the end of a year or so, finds that she cares only for idle pleasure, and has acquired a taste for liquor herself. While she is away at the seashore, the husband runs down a young woman with his automobile, in the heart of a city. Instead of taking the girl to a hospital, he removes her to his own home, and has her nursed back to health. The injured girl is a former pickpocket who has determined to get on the right road. The wife returns home, sees the interesting invalid, imagines the worst, and divorces her husband. He takes to drink again, is befriended by the reformed thief, now a Salvation Army lassie. After dividing his fortune between the divorced lady and a number of charities, he joins the army himself and is discovered at his new calling when his ex-wife and a party of friends go slumming. She asks him to call; but he clings to the woman who has regenerated him, and the impression is created that he will eventually make her his wife.

Here is another example that to a certain order of humans there is no middle course; if a man sin and sink to the lowest depths of degradation, when he reforms he must go to the other extreme and become a preacher of the word. To such minds there is nothing between heaven and the bottomless pit. The millionaire's acts in letting his wife leave him for the [redacted] of a lot of dangerous companions and in taking the injured woman into his own house, rob him of the spectator's sympathy. As for the wife, her behavior is without one extenuating circumstance.

The material part of the production is excellent. Henry King's performance of the millionaire has many good points, but he might move faster and show deeper sense of humor. Margaret Nichols gives a consistent impersonation of the foolish young wife, and Victory Bateman is equally artistic as a shallow society matron. Lillian West as Jeano, the girl who finds the right road, is the most impressive member of the cast. Frank Erlanger is admirable as a faithful old valet.

Triangle Program

"Somewhere in France," an Animated Five-Reel Ince with Louise Glaum in a Spirited Role and "The Old Folks At Home," an Interesting Five-Reel Story.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

"Somewhere in France."

SOMEWHERE in France is a true motion-picture story in that it keeps along one single line of interest from beginning to end, and it is TOLD by screen methods rather than by an attempt to illustrate the story by Richard Harding Davis. At every stage of rather difficult presentation there is a delightful consistency of method and treatment, with only such flashes of war movement as are necessary to give the effect of plausability. Not only is it a hard story to tell, in spite of an abundance of exciting situations, but it is a hard story to end satisfactorily. The brother of a disgraced French officer, whose downfall and suicide are accomplished by a woman spy in the German service, attempts to bring her to justice by entering the German secret service himself.

In this position of double peril he is finally enabled by a turn in the tide of war to cause her arrest and incarceration, but she displays so much resource herself that she becomes an undesigned heroine. She is taking just as big chances as he is, with all the added humiliations to which a woman is subjected in such a position, and Miss Glaum's delightful methods add to the cause of the woman. There is suggested the possibility of trying Louise in the role of a resourceful girl who is not an adventuress, who could play the part of one for some worth-while purpose. Her native artistry, that which causes her to dress according to the varying moods of varying situations, and the intelligence with which she portrays though and feeling, equip her for the part of a bright girl in the midst of trying environment.

"The Old Folks at Home."

"The Old Folks at Home" Fine Arts, gives some inkling of a delicate analysis of human nature which has made the short stories of Rupert Hughes very attractive. But Rupert Hughes, the writer and master of his medium portrays human nature as he has known it in days gone by, and his grasp of motion picture methods is those of days barely gone by. But for some delightful characterization and daring philosophy "The Old Folks at Home" is a mere repitition of what has been discarded by modern writers for screen production. The story will get over in good shape because it comes from a true creative font and is handled with a fair amount of skill, but the material it contains could be best seen to advantage in three reels. The attenuation visible at times causes interest to drag when it needs augmentation.

It is the old story of the country boy going to the city with sudden wealth and falling into the hands of an unprincipled woman, our dear old friend, the adventuress, who regularly appears several times a week. He commits murder and is shielded by his parents, one of them a "Senator." Their lying and evasion in condoning the capital crime is about to be discovered when the simple-minded old mother, caught lying on the witness stand makes a personal appeal to the jury and frees her guilty son. In that scene, admirably done by Josephine Crowell, lies the intense moment of the story, its crisis and its only reason for existence. She is the real star, with a good second in the foolish boy, impersonated by Elmer Clifton, but Mr. Beerbohm Tree is in the cast as the "Senator" and does fairly well.

"The Social Buccaneer"

Five-part Bluebird Production Features J. Warren Kerrigan and Louise Lovely in Adaptation of Isham Novel.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald

BY ARRANGEMENT with the Dodd-Mead Co. a five-part adaption of Frederick S. Isham's novel is presented on the Bluebird program with the release date set for October 16. J. Warren Kerrigan and Louise Lovely are the featured members of the cast with Maud George, Harry Carter, Marc Robbins, Hayward Mack and other competent players in the support. The director has evidently been at a disadvantage in working from a badly constructed adaption which causes the untutored spectator to worry from the beginning to the end with the problem of what it is all about. The fact that Chattfield Bruce, acting while in China buying goods for an American firm the method of the pirate Wong Lee benefitting the poor by stealing from the rich, determines to follow the same line of philanthropy is kept too much of a secret. The plot to divest Nathan Goldberg, a Hebrew merchant who annually beats the custom of thousands of dollars of cotton jewels locked away in the family safe although clearly defined, lacks in the development of the picture the clarity of motive that the story has provided. Much of the force of the story is lost by the treatment given it.

Scene from "The Social Buccaneer" (Bluebird).

J. Warren Kerrigan in the role of Chattfield Bruce has found it difficult to give any degree of color to his impersonation of the character while Louise Lovely has had considerable of her opportunities. One of the best impersonations, that of the Hebrew merchant, has been done by Marc Robbins. The settings throughout are pleasing, and many of the exteriors are particularly charming. It is unfortunate, however, that the make-up of the majority of the players in the Chinese scenes is unconvincing.

Mutual Program

"Dulcie's Adventure," Five-Reel, Featuring Mary Miles Minter; "The Torch Bearer," Five-Reel, Featuring Wm. Russell, and "The Pawnbroker's Shop," Two-Reel Charlie Chaplin Farce.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison

A SIMPLE story, not at all adventurous, of Virginia life, obviously intended to give Miss Minter some ingenue opportunity, "Dulcie's Adventure" is not particularly calculated to draw very heavily on the resources of this very charming young actress. Her directors may imagine that it would not do to accord her an impersonation of difficulty, one in which she has to do more than roll her eyes and smile a little now and then, but it is worth trying. The possession of beauty does not mean that a girl is destitute of brains, but the antiquated theatrical conception of a nice American girl is that she must be innocent of anything approaching mentality. The only woman of resource in stagey plays is that old stock conception the "adventuress."

Miss Minter in "Dulcie's Adventure" is a mere shuttlecock between the battledores of circumstance and a vulgar aunt, the ancient theatrical conception of an aristocrat, a stock character intended for an effect on the old fashioned gallery. Whoever is responsible for the selection of that sort of stuff is many years behind the times. All modern stories for presentation in any form are not drawn from these stock characters but from human anture as it is easily recognizable in front. Humanity as we know it to be furnishes material for all up-to-date dramas. Mary Miles is very sweet and lovable in the impression she gives, and she deserves the role of an intelligent American girl, not one who could be led to marry a professional crook, a notorious criminal, disguised as a gentleman. She is an accomplished young actress in sore need of finer opportunity.

"The Torch Bearer" is simply another case of putting a live young actor into a story that belongs to last century. William Russell is a manly-looking fellow and apparently ambitious to rise out of the mediocre type of his own, and can inject it into a role with high, individual color. He is put into a story which contains the usual hackneyed tricks, the exchanged letters, the man of fine position and purposes whose father has been unjustly accused of murder, the deepest trench that antiquated device the villain's dying confession, the opposition of that stock villain, the political boss, always showing on an uplifted cigar, appearing regularly on the screen every week in the year, the Western girl of frankness in contrast with what only theatrical people imagine to be conventialism in the East, and all the rest, including a bit of the "Guardie and the Girl" business which is almost as badly overworked as "Cinderella." It would be a pleasure to see Mr. Russell in a vigorous American character, concerned in some live issue of today and forever out of class theatricalism.

"The Pawnbroker's Shop" is amusing through the ingenuity and attractive personality of Charlie Chaplin. That he holds so well after a surplus of publicity is largely due to the fact that he works hard every moment to keep the audience in a good humor. He is a glutton for the hard work of being perpetually funny. It has become such a habit to laugh at him, that it would be dangerous not for him to attempt a serious role. People would laugh anyway because it is his solemnity in all the stupid things he does which has kept audiences so long amused.

"Anton the Terrible"

A Strong Lasky Feature in Which Theodore Roberts Takes the Leading part with Great Success.

Reviewed by W. Stephen Bush

THIS Lasky feature telling a highly dramatic story of Russian life is made acceptable by the superb acting of Theodore Roberts. This is not to say that the feature possesses no other merits. On the contrary, there are the usual excellences of the Lasky school added to a lively and plausible plot. In appearance the star is a typical Cossack—a Russian of the Russians. His part calls for deep and violent emotions and for the portrayal of many moods. Theodore Roberts never fails to rise to the occasion. His personality no less than his performance dominates every one of the big and stirring moments. He is on the whole well supported.

Anita King gave a creditable rendering of a fine part, though at times her training and experience showed itself. The ascent to stardom is not as easy as all that. Remarkable talent was shown by the actress impersonating the girl whom the rich boy betrayed and the problem of how she might have been established there is solved for the delicate and skillful way in which the part had been conceived and acted. The feature is not without its digressions and might have been [illegible] for about three hundred feet more or less had been cut out.

Scene from "Anton the Terrible" (Lasky).

Atmosphere, lighting effects, settings, perfection of detail, the usual Lasky characteristics were much in evidence.

ULRICH RELEASE POSTPONED.

Due to a change in the Paramount release schedule, Lenore Ulrich's new photoplay vehicle, "The Intrigue," will be shown in the Paramount theaters commencing October 9th in place of October 2nd. The new Pallas Pictures subject will first be seen in New York City at the Strand theater where it will be given an elaborate presentation. Miss Ulrich, who is now in New York, will appear personally at the opening exhibition and plans to be present each day during the week it appears at the Strand.

Four Kalem Releases

"The Reformation of Dog Hole," Ninth Episode in "The Girl From 'Frisco" Series; "To Save the Special," a "Hazards of Helen"; "The Love Magnet," Ham Comedy, and "The Battered Bridegroom," Ivy Close Comedy.

Reviewed by Ben H. Grimm.

"The Reformation of Dog Hole."

"THE Reformation of Dog Hole," the ninth episode of Robert Welles Ritchie's "The Girl from 'Frisco" series, is an interesting departure from the type of story found in the preceding chapters. In this two-reel number there is little of the mysterious element, but interest nevertheless is kept suspended throughout. There is more of the "wild" West in this film, too, and more of that elusive power to hold that is always in evidence when a girl is a success where a mere man has failed. While the film is melodramatic as a whole, its tendency is toward humor in many situations, and the result is a pleasing picture.

Scene from "The Reformation of Dog Hole" (Kalem).

Barbara Brent (Marin Sais) this time undertakes the position of station agent at Dog Hole, where the cowboys have been shooting up the railroad property. She wins the regard of the cowpunchers when, at the point of a gun, she makes their leader plug up the holes he has shot in the water tank. John Wallace (True Boardman) gets into several fights with the gambling hall keeper in his endeavors to shield Barbara. She wins her way further into the hearts of the cowboys when she beats them all at poker. She has ruined the gambler's business and for revenge he plans to wreck the special train carrying Barbara's father. Miss Sais does some spectacular riding to a switch and beats out the special, after she and the cowboy foreman have used dynamite to get out of a box car locked by the villain. Her poker winnings Barbara uses in the purchase of stock of the railroad for the cowboys, so that they are part owners, and as such will protect, and not destroy, their own property.

In the cast are: Marin Sais, True Boardman, Frank Jonasson, Ronald Bradbury, Edward Clisbee, Steve Murphy and Jack Wilson. Directed by James W. Horne.

"To Save the Special."

"To Save the Special" is one of the best and the most thrilling numbers of the "Hazards of Helen" series. In this reel Helen Gibson's undoubted nerve is given a severe test, and she responds with a realism that makes the nerves tingle. She is called upon to stop a runaway team from the back of another horse. Credit is due for the manner in which these scenes were photographed, too, for they are quite close-up and the action of the girl and the horses registers with unusual power to thrill.

There is more to the story in this number than there was in many of the recent "Hazards." The real action starts when a driver at a mine gets a load of dynamite from the siding at the Lone Point station. The driver has been given an unruly horse by the stable-keeper. The horses are frightened by a train and run away. Down past the station they speed, and Helen jumps on another horse and is after them. She leaps to the back of one of the runaways and diverts their course from the railroad track just as they are about to crash into the special train. The villains are killed by the explosion when the wagon turns over.

Helen Gibson, P. S. Pembroke, George Routh, Ray Lincoln and G. A. Williams form the cast.

"The Love Magnet."

"The Love Magnet" is a lively Ham and Bud reel. Bud is jealous over the attention paid Ham by Ethel, and, led by an advertisement, buys a love magnet that is guaranteed to attract beautiful young women. It does, and Bud is almost smothered by a bevy of beauties. Ham in turn becomes jealous and goes to get a similar magnet, but the magnet professor is out and Ham steals a magnet. He gets the wrong kind of a magnet, though—one that attracts old maids. They pursue him until he overtakes Bud, with whom he changes magnets. Then both are pursued to the sea. They jump in and swim until they hear the siren voices of mermaids, who also succumb to the magnets, and Ham, Bud and the mermaids swim out to happiness. Ham, Bud and Ethel Teare are the leading figures.

"The Battered Bridegroom."

Ivy Close is featured in this one-reel comedy, whose cast includes Henry Murdoch, who lends most of the comedy touches to the film. The story is built on rather old lines—the father who won't let his daughter marry the poor young man, and who picks out an old, rich fossil for her. Ivy escapes from a locked room and becomes a manicurist for the barber (Henry Murdoch), but is ousted by the latter's wife. Through a series of more or less humorous incidents the barber, who is being chased by his wife, carries Ivy into a motorboat with him. The action becomes fast here, and several stunts are performed by Arthur Albertson, who rescues the girl from the motorboat, thereby winning her as a bride.

In addition to the three players named, the cast includes William McKey and Mary Taylor-Ross.

"The Conquest of Canaan"

A Filmed Version of Booth Tarkington's Book Produced by the Frohman Amusement Corporation.

Reviewed by W. Stephen Bush.

BOOTH TARKINGTON offers many temptations to the film man and likewise many opportunities. It surely is not an easy thing to put the subtleties of a Tarkington story like this on the screen, but the effort has succeeded measurably. In the painting of characters and types the great author has a masterly way of his own, most captivating on the printed page and altogether delightful on the screen, provided the thing is well done.

The temptation in filming a story which is so largely one of atmosphere and characterization was to indulge in undramatic digressions and in prolonged attention to minor details. This temptation the producer has not, at all times, successfully resisted, but as he has almost invariably caught the spirit of the book audiences will be in a forgiving mood. Some of the characterizations were exceedingly fine; there were moments, too, when the scorn of the author for sham and pretense and his irrestible power of ridicule appeared on the screen vividly and amusingly. Settings throughout were fine, the portrayal of the ludicrous types left nothing to be desired. Indeed the rich and unctuous humor changing with biting wit in which Tarkington abounds were most skilfully transfered to the screen; not always but often.

The dramatic materials in the story were most ordinary and conventional sort, some times badly melodramic and at times tinged by a mawkishness of sentiment.

Scene from "The Conquest of Canaan" (Frohman).

The acting left something to be desired. Jack Sherrill had really a difficult, almost an ungrateful part which only a man of exalted histrinoic talents could have carried off. Sherrill showed flashes of talent, he was earnest and ambitious, but his performance at times fell short of the best standard. Edith Talliaferro showed great talent and an evident liking for her role but she was at times inclined to be "stagy." The minor parts were rendered surprisingly well; a fact which contributed not a little to the good points of the play. The "action" of the play does not get under way until well toward the end when events begin to move more rapidly and lead to a well directed and well rendered climax. The film as it was shown privately at the Strand was, I understand, six thousand feet long. It is to be reduced to five thousand. This can be done without doing the play the least harm.

Two Metro-Rolfe Releases

"The Wheel of the Law," a Five Reel Screen Drama, Starring Emily Stevens, and "The Dawn of Love," Also a Five Reel Picture, With Mabel Taliaferro in the Feature Role.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel

"The Wheel of the Law."

THE Wheel of the Law" striking examples of what intelligent direction and competent acting can do for a scenario. This five-reel photoplay, produced by the Rolfe company, and written by Katherine Kavanaugh, is a preach-Scene from "The Wheel of the Law" (Metro.

ment against convicting a man on circumstantial evidence. The machinery employed by the author in the expounding of her thesis is somewhat complicated but is generally interesting. Dramas that are designed to present an abstract proposition are apt to lose something from the human side of the story. The leading male character in "The Wheel of the Law" is an ambitious district attorney who has won a reputation by his ability to secure convictions on circumstantial evidence, and the plot makes him work with might and main to convict a man of murder, after he has been promised the governorship by the real murderer if he secures the conviction. The lawyer's wife is the sister of the innocent man, but he will not listen to her pleadings until she shows her husband that it is possible to entangle even a district attorney in the same mesh.

The story is told in narrative form lent in the excellent form in which it is presented cannot fail to hold the undivided attention of the spectator. The superior qualities of the production are many and reflect great credit upon director George H. Baker. The scenes depicting stage life have never been surpassed and seldom equalled. Th acting of Emily Stevens, Frank Mills, Edwin Holt, Harry Davenport, Raymond McKee, Jerome N. Wilson, Charles Eldridge and Rowa Raymond was also of the best.

"The Dawn of Love."

Channing Pollock and Rennold Wolf are responsible for the story of "The Dawn of Love." The scenario of this Rolfe photoplay was made by June Mathis. The scenes are laid on the New England coast, among fishermen and smugglers, and tell a pleasing love story of which a fishmaiden of the regulation stage type is the heroine. The first four reels are fine examples of photographic art, the backgrounds of rocky coast and rolling ocean being skilfully utilized. The sensational features in the last reel are not on a par with the rest of the picture.

Mabel Taliaferro acts the fishergirl with grace and charm and is given capable support by Robert W. Frazer, Leslie H Stowe, Peter Lang, Martin J. Faust, H. H. Turner, Frank Bates, and Jack Mond

"The Battle of the Somme"

A Five-Reel Kinematographic Record of the Deadly Allied Offensive from June to July.

Reviewed by W. Stephen Bush.

FIFTY feet of a war-picture taken at the seat of war is worth fifty thousand feet of posed battle scenes, no matter how clever the director, and no matter how lavish the expenditure. What is a battle film worth? As an historic record its value is almost beyond compute. As a lesson either in the horrors of war or in the importance of preparedness it is a document which convinces instantly. As an entertainment offered indiscriminately to the theater-going public its value is not so clear. There are scenes in it which are sure to interest and even enthuse any audience, scenes of military display, and of stern preparation for battle, such as we see rarely in the weekly news.

It is easy to understand how these films must have appealed to the British public. No finer testimony could be had of the splendid morale of the British fighters, of the thoroughness with which the Allied offensive advances, of the tremendous pressure on the foe. To us neutral not engulfed ni the passion of war, the most touching incidents are the willingness of friend and foe to treat each other as human beings once the battle is over.

A good deal of the film is devoted to showing German prisoners, most of them wounded. We see them apparently fresh from the scene of fighting, some of them with their hands high in token of surrender; we see them in a temporary concentration camp; we see them marching under guard to the train, and the last we see of them they are being loaded on freight cars for transport to England.

Ruins and corpses are spread through the picture. The destruction of a village is shown; an appalling spectacle and a pitiful one. The battle field here and there, and indeed everywher is strewn with corpses mostly of the enemy. The burial of human beings recently killed, and often mutilated, covered with blood and dirt, is shown at some length. The prompt and careful treatment of the wounded, friend and foe alike, is visualized in some detail, too much detail perhaps. Life in the trenches is shown in all its terrible phases. The cameraman was both privileged and daring, for there are scenes that could only have been taken with the special favor of the government, and at the imminent risk of life. A British charge in which two soldiers were put out of action the moment they attempted to dash from their trench, is fearfully realistic, and brings home the constant presence of death in the midst of the soldiers.

The advance of sturdy columns of English and Scottish soldiers, the rushing forward of artillery, the bombardments, the bursting of clouds of shrapnel in the air, the preparations for a bayonet attack on wire entanglements, and indeed all the pomp and circumstance of war are to be found in these films. All the artillery work was highly interesting.

The films were brought here by Charles Urban, official photographer for the British government, whose pictures of the training of Kitchener's Army, and the North Sea fleet were shown at the Lyceum last Spring.

At the end of the war films some wonderful colored pictures of battle ships at sea and in maneuvres were shown. A more extended comment on these will be found in next week's issue of the Moving Picture World.

"The Firm of Girdlestone"

Harold Shaw Makes Attractive Adaptation of Sir A. Conan Doyle's Novel for Greater Vitagraph.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

THE strength of characterization provided by the famous author in the very least of his stories goes a long way toward making them especially well adapted to screen visualization. While the director has failed in a few minor details in the present instance, the general impression left by the picture is that it is a forceful, well-made production, an excellent cast portraying sincerely the various interesting types. Charles Rock appears as the hypocritical head of the firm of Girdlestone, with Fred Groves as his vicious son. Hayford Hobbs as Tom Dimsdale, Wyndham Guise as Major Tobias Clutterbuck, Edna Flugrath as Kate Harston, and Molly

Scene from "The Firm of Girdlestone" (Vitagraph).

Terraine as Rebecca the Girdlestone maid, all do creditable work

The story of the treacherous manner in which the Girdlestones planned to mend their shattered fortunes provides many fine dramatic situations which have been well handled. The scenes which take place at Hampton Priory where old John Girdlestone confines his ward with a determination either to force her to marry his son, or in the case of failure in this effort to secretly end her life that the stipulations of her father's will providing for the transfer of his fortune to John Girdlestone may be fulfilled, are absorbing. The uncanny atmosphere of the old Priory where the spirit of the dead monk was said to walk at midnight, is well sustained.

This is the kind of melodrama that the average audience will thoroughly enjoy; the old world atmosphere stimulates the imagination, and places the mind in a receptive mood to receive a story that reverts at times to the dust of ages

"Barriers of Society"

Five-Reel Red Feather Production Follows the Destiny of Two Lives Fated for Each Other.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THIS five-reel offering, by Clarke Irvine, owes much of its interest to two factors of universal interest in the plot conception, rather than to any special strength of presentation. It takes up two young lives at the beginning, those of a girl born in luxury, and a boy who is the offspring of a poor fisherman and his wife. Fate brings the lives together for a moment, and then they separate. The meeting, as the subtitle explains, is an incident to the girl, and an epoch to the boy.

There is a pleasing allegorical touch to all of the opening scenes, and the interest of the observer is well maintained. Then, with the hand of destiny at work again, the young man is employed aboard a yacht on which the girl is traveling with her father. The owner of the yacht loves the girl, but she repels him. The owner, with the collusion of the mate, pretends the yacht is sinking, and casts himself adrift with her alone in a boat. They go to a desert island, where they are followed by the young sailor, who makes a long swim to be near at hand. In this primitive and always interesting situation, bad blood results between the men, and the sailor finally kills the yacht owner to save the girl.

The film has some weaknesses of construction, but tells an entertaining story. It has no high dramatic moments, but carries the interest quite well without them. Dorothy Davenport, Emory Johnson, Richard Morris and others are in the cast.

"Tweedledum" Going Strong

Andrew J. Cobe Visits New York Office of Unity Bringing Many Orders for New Comedy Series.

ANDREW J. COBE, vice-president and general manager of the Unity Sales Corporation, was in New York the past few days after a sojourn of two weeks in the Chicago offices of the company. Mr. Cobe brought with him a bunch of new contracts covering bookings on the new Tweedledum comedies which guarantee that these new releases will be off to a flying start from the very beginning. "'Tweedledum,' says Mr. Cobe, "is sure to prove the sensation of American filmland just as he was on the other side. There is no one like him in this country. Of course we are not sure that he will be as popular as Chaplin, but his comedies in Europe, when he was with the old Eclipse Company, sold more prints than Chaplin or any other comedian in the business. Think of selling 950 copies of one picture. That's what they did on the other side with Tweedledum's' "Near Sighted Cyclist," and Billy Dunn has plans under way that will give Tweedledum a chance to outdo anything he has ever before attempted. Watch for this fellow. He's a wonder."

Among the exchanges who have already booked these comedies are the Eastern Feature Film Co., Boston, for the New England States; Merrit Feature Film Co., for New York and Northern New Jersey; United Mutual Exhibitors Film Co., for Eastern Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Southern New Jersey; Liberty Film Renting Co., Pittsburgh, for Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia; Unity Pictures Corporation, Minneapolis, for Minnesota, North and South Dakota, and Northern Wisconsin; Monarch Feature Film Co., Kansas City, for Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, and Nebraska. The Unity exchanges in Houston, Texas, and Atlanta, Ga., will distribute the comedies in the South and Southwest, and Mr. Cobe reports that negotiations are well under way for exchanges in the West and Chicago, which will mean Tweedledum pictures will have a showing from one end of the country to the other.

BROCK BUYS RIGHTS TO CRIMSON STAIN.

O. E. Goebel, President of Consolidated Film Corporation, presenting "The Crimson Stain Mystery," the sixteen episode super-serial photoplay, consummated a deal with Henry J. Brock, of 1006 Candler Building, this week whereby Mr. Brock acquires the world rights exclusive of the United States and Canada to "The Crimson Stain Mystery." The largest sum ever paid for serial motion picture rights is involved in this transaction.

Mr. Brock's purchase of Consolidated's first production is further proof of the box office value of "The Crimson Stain Mystery." Others to put the stamp of approval on this great serial are Marcus Loew and Alex Pantages, who have booked this serial for their respective circuits of vaudeville houses.

"The Whip," in Eight Reels

Work on Big Drury Lane Spectacle Progressing Rapidly Under Director Tourneur.

THE photoplay version of "The Whip," the biggest dramatic spectacle ever sent to this country from the Drury Lane Theater, London, will be in eight reels. The production is under Maurice Tourneur's direction and is being carried to completion in the Paragon Studio at Fort Lee.

In all, three full months will have been expended upon the making of this picture, which is expected to be a revelation in the transference of drama from the speaking stage to the screen.

For the racing scenes which form the climax of this very human and stirring story the entire company was taken by special train to Saratoga during the recent Jockey Club meeting at that famous resort lasting through the month of August.

One morning the Saratoga newspaper contained a large advertisement inviting visitors and residents to appear at the track to take part in a great moving picture spectacle, and so many were attracted by the idea that the grand stand, paddock and lawns were fairly jammed with a jostling, good-natured holiday crowd—just what was wanted for this particular part of the big play.

For the horse show episode which forms another important portion of the drama the members of the cast are transported en masse to Long Branch, where they are photographed as elements of the real horse show which is the great social event of the year with the summer visitors to that seashore colony. A great number of men and women prominent in American society also appeared in the picture, forming a quite remarkable animated background for the characters in the story.

The company chosen to play the principal parts in "The Whip" is made up in part of players who appeared in the original American cast during the two years' run of the spoken drama at the Manhattan Opera House, New York, and in part of actors and actresses who have already won distinction in the moving picture world

The leading male role is in the hands of Irving Cummings, who at the moment is varying his activities in the studio by playing at night in the new comedy "Object Matrimony," by Jules Eckert Goodman and Montagu Glass, the latter being also the author of "Potash and Perlmutter."

In the "opposite" part in "The Whip" will be found Miss Alma Hanlon, an exceedingly gifted and attractive young actress who has gained high recognition in the theater and upon the screen.

June Elvidge, handsome, statuesque and talented, is to be the fascinating creature to whose wiles most of the complications of the narrative must be attributed.

Dion Titheradge, a young English actor of note, Paul McAllister, the popular star of a number of successful stock companies, Alfred Hemming and Warren Cooke will interpret the remaining vitally important personages.

The production will be released early in November by The Whip Motion Pictures Co., Inc., Fort Lee, N. J.

"SEVENTEEN" IS UNDER WAY.

Actual work has been started on the Famous Player adaptation of Booth Tarkington's celebrated novel "Seventeen' in which Louise Huff and Jack Pickford are co-starring under the direction of Robert G. Vignola, for the Paramount Program. One striking change which is noticeable in the arrangement of the stellar roles is the appearance of Louise Huff as Lola Pratt, the baby talk lady instead of Jane, the apple-sauce-and-bread consuming expert, the role she was originally intended to play. Jack Pickford will of course, play William Sylvanus Baxter, in accordance with the original announcement, made at the time of the acquisition of the rights to the popular novel. The others in the cast include Winnifred Allen, Madge Evans, Helen Lindroth, Walter Hiers, Dick Lee, Richard Roson, Julian Dillon and Anthony Merlo.

SELIG'S BASEBALL PICTURE.

Every play made on the baseball diamond, including preliminary practice, conferences of the managers, the throngs of people seeking seats, these and all other interesting details in connection with the world's champion baseball series will be filmed by a staff of cameramen engaged by the Selig Polyscope Company. There will be a dozen or more of these cameramen on the playing fields working for the Selig company which has secured exclusive rights to film the world's series.

The feature baseball film in five or more reels, will be released through the twenty-three exchanges in all the principal cities, operated by the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay service. It is stated that exhibitors of motion pictures are already taking a great interest in the forthcoming feature film which will be produced on entirely different lines than any sport pictures attempted.

Plans have been perfected by which a film will be presented that will give almost as much satisfaction to the spectator as if one had attended the ball games. All the stars of the opposing teams in fact every detail will be filmed and presented to movie and baseball fans in the form of an entertaining story.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Shun the Slavers.

EVERY time political New York seeks to make capital of the fact that certain police officials stand in with the brothel keepers, certain sensation mongers jump in and rush out a few "white slave" pictures which are nothing more than lewd subjects permitted under the guise of "warnings." Always there are to be found men and women so eager to figure in the public prints that they endorse these alleged crusades and spout virtuously about the great moral lessons contained in the salacious films, just as there are people who will be cured of anything from gout to goitre to get their pictures in the patent inside papers. None but these self-fooled reformers see the great moral lessons conveyed. None but the reformers care a whoop about the lessons. Half grown boys and girls are not "warned." They go to see something "hot" and they complain if they do not get it. Older people attend in the same spirit. No one cares about the social purity side of the anti-vice side, or the moral aspect in any part. They go to see sensationalism, and they go in crowds. With the moral aspects of this matter the Moving Picture World has nothing whatever to do. It is a trade and not a religious paper, and it is not its province to deal with the morals of the matter, nor does it attempt to, but the publishers of this paper have a large capital invested in the plant and the good will and prestige of the publication represents another considerable sum, and because it is dependent upon the prosperity of the trade for its own earnings, it sets its face against the presentation of the salacious whether presented as such or under the thin veneer of reform. The business is already at a low ebb, brought there by the failure of the manufacturers of stories to give stories in their films. They trust to mechanical effects and stars to excuse the lack of story that is the real essential of any photoplay, and the alleged plots are so thin and tiresome that the more intelligent patrons are slowly dropping away. For this very reason, perhaps, the exhibitors seek to bring fresh crowds to their theaters with these vice pictures. They do not offer them to further the crusade against vice. They do not present these films in their theaters to further the ends of morality. They use them because they know that a "smutty" picture will always draw a crowd, and they think that they can hide behind the pretentious "anti" title of a fictitious film concern and make money from their crowded houses.

As a matter of simple arithmetic this is not so. Sensational pictures do not make money. They bring into the house an immediate return in dollars, but they drive from the house the dimes that make the steady income. The roughnecks that crowd the house to see the salacious are not the regular patrons. They are people brought into the house to look at something supposedly forbidden. They may not get it. If they do not, they stay away thereafter. If they do they demand something worse for the next attraction. If they do not get it, they stay away, but the crowd that goes to see filth does not form the regular photoplay clientele, and these pictures do drive away the regular clientele.

Prove it for yourself. If you are determined to run one of these white slave pictures, make a note of the business you have been doing, then note the business you do for the ten weeks following. Making due allowance for the summer season's dullness, you will find that you are losing out, not much perhaps, only a few dollars, maybe, but assuredly you will find that you have driven from your house profitable clients; profitable because they are steady patrons. You cannot fool your decent patrons by prating about social uplift and terrible lessons. That sort of talk fools no one. You are pandering to a debased element with pictures of vice or at least you announce such, and no one will, for a single instant, regard you as other than a panderer and a sharer in the profits of lechery. This may be strong talk, but it is the truth, unpleasant as it may sound. In presenting these pictures you are unfair to yourself, to your public and to the business in which you are engaged, and you won't even make money in the long run. If you want to profit by vice, close your picture theater and see the political boss about protection, but do not prostitute the picture business for the temporary and impermanent immediate profit. You can do a big business for a few days, or perhaps a week, but it will take you months to regain your former standing, and, moreover, you'll get in bad with your new friends, for the pictures themselves are pretty poor and tame to boot, and one inhuman critic has been moved to remark that the heroine of one of the best advertised features is too homely to interest even a slave master. Get wise to yourself in time. Don't try to fool your own conscience with the thought that this is a moral lesson. You know better than that.

All of this comes under the head of Advertising for Exhibitors, for about the worst advertisement a theater can have is a black eye with its regular patrons, and the attitude of the regular is best summarized in a remark made to this writer the other day by a woman on her return from the summer's vacation. "We found a nice little picture theater," she said, "and the girls went several times. But the fourth time they ran a picture that was awful and we didn't have the courage to go out, and we could only sit still and hope that no one would recognize us and suppose that we had come knowing what the picture was to be. And match this with an extract from a recent letter: "——— ——— is an awful sting, and I heard a lot of kicks. There are no scenes in the houses and it isn't even a leg show. Everyone is sore." Just as a matter of business, think it over. You'll assuredly make money for a few days with these films, but you are putting a heavy discount on your future business for the immediate cash. It is just twenty-five years this month that this writer started in on amusement publications, and he has seen a lot of changes in that time, and it is the invariable history of all amusements that an era of crude filth is followed by an era of depression and yet, with midnight matinees of "Damaged Goods," sex control stories and the rest of it, some people wonder what has happened to the pictures. The answer is that clean amusement has become contaminated by filth. Let the other fellow have the rot and you make capital of the fact that you offer clean amusement and a couple of years from now you'll refuse to trade bank accounts. We are all in this business to make money, but the far seeing want to remain in the business and keep on making money, and it cannot be done with ultra sensation, straight or in the guise of reform.

"Showmanship."

An exhibitor writes his views on showmanship, but he doesn't seem quite to get our idea. He says:

> Well I have read your "Picture Theater Advertising" which you sent a few weeks ago. I am going to get a lot of good out of this book, but there is quite a portion which don't strike my fancy. You mention one place where a man must be a natural born showman to make a successful picture exhibitor. Well I think that is just what is wrong with the game right now, there is too many circus stunts pulled off both among exhibitors and manufacturers as well. I am running a couple of serials supposed to be the most popular in the field and this is what one of my exchanges did. I am paying $10.00 for two day's run on the serial ——— ———, and they addressed a letter to another house stating that they had a later and better drawing card than my serial and quoted a price of $5.00 for one day's run, but when I called them to task about it, they will not give me the ——— ——— for less than $10.00 even for one day. They were willing to book something later and which, they claimed, drew better than my serial right against me in my own village of 1,800 inhabitants, not caring evidently whether it killed my game or not just as long as they got an extra booking. What do you think of that kind of a stunt? I suppose that you like frank statements, so here is another passage I don't like in your book You say to ignore your competitor and then further down the page, you state that it might be a good idea to even pretend to have a big scrap on with him while in reality you are friends. More circus stunts, but I don't approve of them. I am just a new man to the game as it is played now, but in 1909 I was in the business for a year and still have the back issues of "The Moving Picture World." I believe on the last day of 1910, I played the first multiple reel picture ever put out, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and it was a winner with us. I also remember, what has since been decided as the first "Mary Pickford" picture, but at that time they did not mention names to any great extent, so Mary Pickford was known merely as little Mary and the Imp has a full page advertisement in the World stating that "Little Mary" had gone over to them. Mary's first picture was "The Violin Maker of Cremona," and it was a very interesting picture.

Our correspondent does not quite get the proper definition of showman. A showman is one who adroitly sells amusement. If he needs a ballyhoo he has a ballyhoo, if he neds a grinder, he has a grinder, if he needs a street parade he has one. If he needs velvet carpets, plush draperies, silent ushers and a general tone of dignity, he goes in for that sort of thing. He suits his methods to his clientele, if he is a real showman. If he is a circus faker he cannot get along without a bass drum and a clown, but we wrote "showman" and not "circus faker," and we mean what we wrote. The trouble is that too many persons confound showmanship with circus methods. They think that showmanship means making a loud noise. It does not. It means suiting the method to the clientele, and a real showman is not necessarily noisy, indeed he seldom is really noisy. It is customary to regard the late P. T. Barnum as a great showman. He was not. Any real showman will tell you so. James A. Bailey proved it, perhaps better than others when he forced Barnum to take him into partnership. That was the real start of the Greatest on Earth. B. F. Keith was not a showman. E. F. Albee is not a showman. Percy G. Williams is, and yet hundreds know Keith for the one man who knows of Williams. Oscar Hammerstein is not wholly a showman. He is a fine self advertiser, an adroit real estate manipulator and an indifferent composer of music, but he never made money with his theaters or grand opera enterprises. His son, the late William Hammerstein, who seemed to have all the energy of a Georgia cracker with the hookworm, was a real showman, and while he lived the Victoria paid the cost of the opera and other things. When he died—well, Rothapfel has the site now. The showman sells amusement. The man who merely makes a noise sometimes does and does not. He can only make a noise and when this device fails, he fails as well. The showman does not always make a noise, but he does not fail. There are too many circus stunts being pulled off right now by exhibitors and manufactures, but these people are not showmen. They are bluffs. Don't buy a tin horn and think that is showmanship. One of the best showmen we know was the late Charles Frohman, and his were the reverse of circus methods. If you are reading the book in the same light as this correspondent, please amend you definition.

And please read it understandingly. We do not, for example, say that "it might be a good thing" to join the opposition a a fake fight. The paragraph reads:

> Perhaps in time you'll come to like the opposition man. You may even do as some do and plan fake opposition fights, working together on your advertising and getting up a scrap that lets interest run high while all the time you are the best of personal friends in private. But if you cannot bring yourself to this, you should not, in any event, try to actually fight.

And the very next paragraph goes on to urge:

> Take the attitude that officially there is only one house you know about, and that is the one you run.

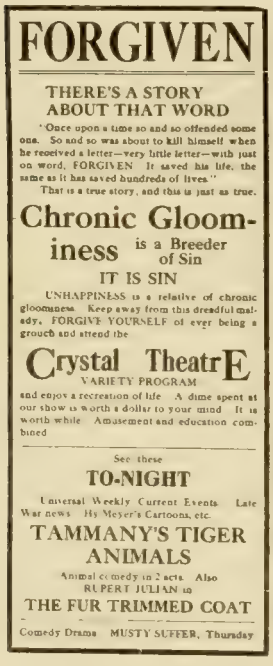
The other method is mentioned because it has been tried and worked well when nicely done, but it is not urged, nor is it offered as a good idea. The book is a compendium of all ideas that have worked well, and this is instanced, but not recommended.

And nothing in the book refers to the methods of an exchange in cutting under a client. That is plain rotten, and such an exchange cannot last long, since the new man, who is favored, will presently also become angered at some sharp practice.

There is too much circusing in the wrong places, but some of these are not showmen, they are pitchmen and grafters in the wrong field. If you can get people with quiet methods get them that way. They are apt to have more money and have it more often than the hoi polloi, but suit your tactics to the patronage and you will be a showman—an all round showman. A showman is never a faker. He makes good by legitimate practice. Others make good, for a time, in other ways, but they do not last. We've been in the business and we know the answers by their first names.

Udells.

Here are a couple of more studies in display from Dave Udell, of the Crystal and Majestic, Paxton, Ill. Both are two elevens, a bit longer than usual, but space must be cheap down there or else space is cheap



FORGIVEN
THERE'S A STORY ABOUT THAT WORD
Once upon a time so and so offended some one. So and so was about to kill himself when he received a letter—very little letter—with just on word, FORGIVEN. It saved his life, the same as it has saved hundreds of lives.
That is a true story, and this is just as true.
Chronic Gloominess is a Breeder of Sin
IT IS SIN
UNHAPPINESS is a relative of chronic gloominess. Keep away from this dreadful malady. FORGIVE YOURSELF of ever being a grouch and attend the
Crystal TheatrE
VARIETY PROGRAM
and enjoy a recreation of life. A dime spent at our show is worth a dollar to your mind. It is worth while. Amusement and education combined
See these
TO-NIGHT
Universal Weekly Current Events. Late War news. Hy Meyer's Cartoons, etc.
TAMMANY'S TIGER ANIMALS
Animal comedy in 2 acts. Also RUPERT JULIAN in
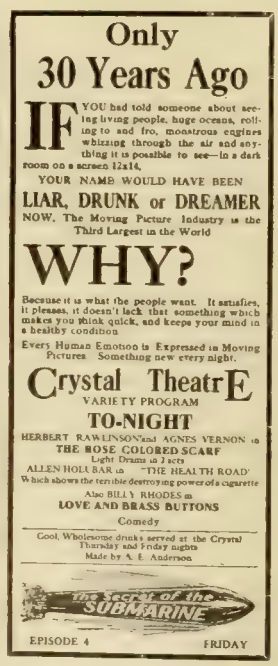
THE FUR TRIMMED COAT
Comedy Drama. MUSTY SUFFER, Thursday



Only
30 Years Ago
IF YOU had told someone about seeing living people, huge oceans, rolling to and fro, monstrous engines whizzing through the air and anything it is possible to see—in a dark room on a screen 12x14,
YOUR NAME WOULD HAVE BEEN LIAR, DRUNK or DREAMER
NOW, The Moving Picture Industry is the Third Largest in the World
WHY?
Because it is what the people want. It satisfies, it pleases, it doesn't lack that something which makes you think quick, and keeps your mind in a healthy condition
Every Human Emotion is Expressed in Moving Pictures. Something new every night.
Crystal TheatrE
VARIETY PROGRAM
TO-NIGHT
HERBERT RAWLINSON and AGNES VERNON in
THE ROSE COLORED SCARF
Eight Drama in 2 acts
ALLEN HOLUBAR in "THE HEALTH ROAD"
Which shows the terrible destroying power of a cigarette
Also BILLY RHODES in LOVE AND BRASS BUTTONS
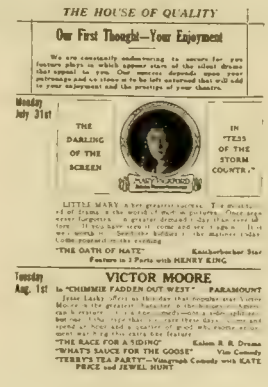
Comedy
Cool, Wholesome drinks served at the Crystal Thursday and Friday nights
Made by A. E. Anderson
The Secret of the SUBMARINE
EPISODE 4
FRIDAY

because it makes business. It will be noted that in almost all of this Udell advertising the effort is directed at interesting the patrons in the pictures as a whole rather than in the pictures of the moment. It works out about fifty-fifty, but the house comes first. Don't merely advertise your films. Advertise for patrons.

Dated Indents.

The Winchester, New Haven, Conn., sends in some programs, four pages, 5 by 7 inches, with a dated indent and general good arrangement. The front page carries a cut of the house and sometimes a cut of some player featured in a current bill, while the back carries an underline and comment on the plays and players of the week. Most of them directly refer to the date of playing and so have a double value. It is important to connect an item with a curent play, where possible, then if the item interests, the interest is transferred to the appearance



THE HOUSE OF QUALITY
Our First Thought—Your Enjoyment
Monday July 31st
THE DARLING OF THE SCREEN
IN "TESS OF THE STORM COUNTRY."
LITTLE MARY
"THE OATH OF HATE" Knickerbocker Star
Feature in 3 Parts with HENRY KING
Tuesday Aug. 1st
VICTOR MOORE
In "CHIMMIE FADDEN OUT WEST" PARAMOUNT
"WHAT'S SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE" Vim Comedy
"TERRY'S TEA PARTY"—Vitagraph Comedy with KATE PRICE and JEWEL HUNT
Wednesday Aug. 2nd
VIRGINIA PEARSON
In "HYPOCRISY" FOX FEATURE
"A CALIPH OF NEW BAGDAD" A Fine Vitagraph Drama
With pretty LEAH BAIRD in 3 Big Acts
Thursday Aug. 3rd
DUSTIN FARNUM
In "GENTLEMAN FROM INDIANA" PARAMOUNT
SELIG WEEKLY "THE RIVALS" VIM COMEDY
"JANE'S HUSBAND" with clever EDITH STOREY
Friday Aug. 4th
CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG
In "THE FEAST OF LIFE" WORLD FILM
"CROOKED TRAILS" SELIG DRAMA
"CLERKS AND BOSSES" LUBIN COMEDY
VERNON BAILEY'S SKETCH BOOK OF PARIS
Saturday Aug. 5th
JANE GRAY
In "THE LITTLE GREY LADY" PARAMOUNT
PEARL WHITE in Chapter 7 of "THE IRON CLAW"
SIS HOPKINS in "THE INNOCENT VAMPIRE"
"SKIRTS AND CINDERS." WILLIAMS AND VIOLINS'
Both Fine Comedies

of the film at the house. Don't boom the actor unless he is working for you, then making him interest will help your business.

A Progressive Contest.

T. W. McKay, of the Grand, Rutland, Vt., is making an intelligent effort to boom the "Who's Guilty" series. He announces that he will give a season pass each week to the person who writes the best comment on the current installment. He gives out a special sheet on which the comment is to be written, which says:

Rutland, Vt.,.....

T. W. McKAY, Manager,
Grand Theatre, Rutland, Vt.

Dear Sir:—
In the drama entitled.....
which I saw at the Grand, I believe..... to be the one "WHO'S GUILTY" for the following reasons:

There follows a blank space for the name, address and phone call of the entrant and the announcement that the editor of the local paper will judge the efforts. It would be well to leave out that part of the greeting stating that the film was witnessed at the theater, since this might make trouble with the post office department. The lottery law is loaded at both ends and liable to go off at the middle. Otherwise the scheme is a good one and may be worked with almost any serial, though it works best with this Pathe type of "Who" story.

Improved.

The Grand, Pembrooke, Ont., sends in three programs, two good ones and another that was evidently added to show how bad they used to be. This last is a "staggered" program, the program boxes and advertisements alternating so that one has to study to see which is which. They must have seen a light, for now they get out a neat eight page and colored cover, with a drawn front page with time table, house facts and date, and the advertisement matter is all on the left hand pages and the program is on the right hand pages, and as though this were not enough we get this announcement:

> You were sitting in the theater—your interest was intense—The poor blind orphan had fallen into the hands of a heartless wretch, while her sister had been abducted by a worthless nobleman, all the while the music played entrancing melodies. The reel came to an end—while your thoughts were with the unfortunate orphans, and you were speculating as to the outcome of the play with your eyes glued to the screen—up goes a slide: When in Doubt use Dolton's—or something to that effect. A pail of cool water dashed into your face would not have been more disappointing and unexpected than this slide.—Forgive us for past errors—it won't happen again. After the first of July the only slides we'll show will be those announcing our coming events and patriotic slides. You come to the Grand to be amused and entertained, not to read advertisements. The fact that we will deny ourselves a few dollars a week derived from slide advertisements will be one more step towards proving to you that we do all we can to please our patrons.

That means as much to the house as the new program does. It is an affront to an audience to make them watch a lot of tooth paste and similar advertising. They pay you to entertain them, not to annoy them. Deliver the goods and make the slide users turn to the program instead. They will if they are live wires. The Grand has made a real clean up, and now each week a house talk is helping to help the audience appreciate the house.

Plain and Neat.

The Walbrook, Baltimore, comes out with a bi-weekly four pager, the twin programs running on the inside and a cut front and back. The house information is run as an underline below the two programs. The arrangement is neat and effective, but the back page could be better devoted to house talk than to the booming of an individual star. Boom your attractions, but first take care of the house. You have that with you seven days a week. The style announcement is unusual and good. It may help others. It runs:

WEDNESDAY, JULY 26th.

Mr. H. B. Warner (late star of "The Raiders") appears in "The Beggar of Cawnpore," a five act drama from the Triangle-Kay Bee Studio.

Mr. Mark Swain appears in "His Bitter Pill," a two act farce from the Triangle-Keystone Studio.

THURSDAY, JULY 27th.

Miss Virginia Pearson (late star of "Blazing Love") appears in "Hypocrisy," a five act drama from the Fox Studio.

Mr. Harry Watson, Jr., appears in "Out of Order," No. 9 of the "Musty Suffer" Series.

The Hearst Cartoonists contribute "Krazy Kat at Looney Park" and "A Quiet Day in the Country." The Hearst mannikins appear in "Fashions d'Art."

In the last section a better spelling would be "mannequins" in place of the older form. This is more generally applied to costume models and has some slight novelty that may interest.

Better Still.

The Kansas City branch of the V-L-S-E is now printing its tip sheets on specials. These specials, which are virtually full instructions to exhibitors on how to handle the big four features, have already been mentioned, but in their printed form they are still more handy and it would be a good plan to have enough run off to supply the other branches. L. J. Scott has struck a good lead in these stunt sheets, and he gets out practical stunts, which cannot always be said of some prepared booklets. Both Scott and Tom North are peculiarly apt in getting up stunts that are workable. There is real press work in this:

PUBLICITY STUNTS.

There are a number of variations to this idea any one of which will cause more comment than anything you have pulled off. If you are a pusher you can get the town on edge.

Probably nothing attracts more attention than an automobile wreck. About two weeks before showing the "Ne'er Do Well," plant a nice wreck on the most prominent corner in town. Secure a car from any garage—a stripped down car will do as well as any and the cost will be very small. Turn the car clean over or lean it up against a telephone post with the wheels lying at a distance. Have all tags and identification marks removed. Have a coat in the car or under it. Place a letter in it written by Darwin K. Anthony to his son telling he has put up with his carousals and joy rides as long as possible and from now on Kirk can either work or starve.

Unless your experience has been considerable it would be best to let the newspaper man in on the secret as you may not be able to fool him. If he is a good fellow he will enjoy slipping a corking good story like this over.

But imagine the talk which will start when they find that letter and no victim. That is good for a mystery story. Then when the night-watchman, whom you have posted, admits having seen a young fellow hobble down and drag himself aboard a freight you have meat for another story. Then some friend of yours mails a postal from up the line to the garage man.

It is signed by Kirk Anthony, the Ne'er Do Well." He says he is going to Panama to make good and will not have any more use for the car, so donates it to him.

There you have another story, for, of course, your friend, the garage man, goes to your friend, the newspaper man, stopping, however, to show it to everyone he meets. Can you imagine of anyone not knowing about Kirk Anthony, his automobile and the fact that he is known as the "Ne'er Do Well" after that?

Do not overlook what is said about springing the fake to the newsmen in advance. A reporter will help plant a story with enthusiasm, but fool him once and your house can burn down and he'll still have the writer's cramp. The only safe way to plant a story is to plant one so that he will never get on. Otherwise tell him before hand and are partly dated in that the "tonight" is followed by the day, but it would be better still to add the date in smaller type just below. It need not be more than an eight point line, but it will better identify the bill. And it is always well to let the name of the theater rise to the top of the bill instead of sinking it in the center, where it gets mixed up with the main title. In other respects the bill offers some good points, including an underline that runs for the next four or five days and is changed. Perhaps, in a small town, the daily throwaway will become a part of the ordinary routine of life, but as a rule it does not work well if used too often unless Edmund Reid's scheme is followed and there is offered some local gossip. His old time daily paper was no more than a large throwaway, yet it carried a lot of foreign advertising as well.

What Does It Mean?

The Third Street Theatre, Easton, Pa., in a recent program offers for sale stock in its building, the lease and fixtures of "the best located theater" and the lease on a new theater. We hope it does not mean that they are going out of business.

George Does It.

George Walker is the operator of the Masonic Theater, Ellenville, N. Y., and when he isn't operating or doing little things like that, he is the publicity man and in odd moments he draws cartoons. He sends in a clever cartoon and some throwaways, getting out a throwaway every day. We do not know how the newspaper situation is in the town, but a daily throwaway is apt to be regarded as too much a matter of course. It is more valuable when held for special events and is not made too common. Then they should make a loud noise and not carry too much stuff. If the program is known far enough ahead, it would be better to get out a single weekly program and then use throwaways not more than twice a week. These bills are not badly displayed for a country town

A Town Topics.

W. L. Chisholm, of the Orpheum, Fulton, Ky., is using the social stuff, just the same as Barrett McCormick and other hustlers. The least hint of a theater party is enough to get an item over to the daily paper, and a treat at the drug store on the way home. This is a scheme so simple, so cheap and so effective that it is odd more managements do not take the trouble to work it. Any small town paper is glad to get personal stuff and will use all that comes, and small town citizens differ not at all from big town people in their liking for a press notice. For his own advertisement he uses only a four-inch single column, but makes it a reader with the house name the only display, and it stands out as well as would four tens that are merely a jumble of type.

An Annual.

The Majestic, Grand Junction, Colorado, is making its "Merchant's Matinee" an annual event, but, unlike the old form of merchant's matinee, it also partakes of the nature of the familiar "dollar day" most merchants offering some special bargain for the Saturday set. In a town of ten or fifteen thousand, the big house that works in with the stores can do all sorts of stunts to mutual profit, and yet so few managers seem to realize the fact. Manager Becker is now running his own theater ticket stamps right along and in other ways he helps to get them into town. Naturally his Movie Fan is well patronized by the local merchants, and he has plenty of space to give them since he prints eight full-sized pages.

Starting It Off.

Francis A. Mangan sends an invitation to attend the inaugural of the fall season at the Cumberland, Brooklyn. We have never had a chance to visit the house, but have sent the family there frequently, though it is out of our direct line of travel, but our better half likes the atmosphere of the house. Mr. Mangan has done what few have done, yet all can do. He makes a feature of the fall opening with a really pretentious musical program of both vocal and instrumental numbers with a feature, and some singles. The house always does go strong on its musical program, but by making a special event of the "opening" the regulars, who have dropped out through the summer either because of the heat or on account of their vacations, are coaxed back for the special and so fall into the habit of being regulars again. Compared with the cost of the extra soloists the results in renewing business are great. You do not have to go into it so heavily, but you can mark your fall opening with some special event and so impress upon the minds of the half persuaded that theater going time is here again. It is in these little points that the Cumberland keeps ahead and so holds its ground above the majority. We do not think it chance that of the three educational series match the feature—Yellowstone Park for Where the Trail Divides and scenes in Holland for Hulda from Holland. That's figuring the right way.

His Own Herald.

C. R. Blubaugh, of the Vaudette, Fort Scott, Kansas, got out his own herald for "The Battle Cry of Peace," and though in only one color it works better for him than the stock herald because he can put his own advertising on the back. He is also using the monthly calendar. The monthly calendar is as popular as the door knob used to be, but the approach of wintry weather will probably bring out the door knobs again. They are handiest when it blows and snows, for it preserves the matter from the elements. He should follow the rest and have the calendar punched for hanging up. If the printer has no punch to work in the press, a fifteen cent drive punch and a hammer will do the work as well.

A NEW HELP FOR MANAGERS

Picture Theatre Advertising

By EPES WINTHROP SARGENT (Conductor of Advertising to Exhibitors in the Moving Picture World

A TEXT BOOK AND A HAND BOOK, a compendium and a guide. It tells all about advertising, about type and type-setting, printing and paper, how to run a house program, how to frame your newspaper advertisements, how to write form letters, posters or throwaways, how to make your house an advertisement, how to get matinee business, special schemes for hot weather and rainy days. All practical because it has helped others. It will help you. By mail, postpaid, $2.00. Order from nearest office.

Moving Picture World, 17 Madison Ave., New York

Schiller Building
Chicago, Ill.

Haas Building
Los Angeles, Cal.

The Photoplaywright

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

INQUIRIES.

Questions concerning photoplay writing addressed to this department will be replied to by mail if a fully addressed and stamped envelope accompanies the letter, which should be addressed to this department. Questions should be stated clearly and should be typewritten or written with pen and ink. Under no circumstances will manuscripts or synopses be criticised, whether or not a fee is sent therefor.

A list of companies will be sent if the request is made to the paper direct and not to this department, and a return stamped envelope is inclosed.

Working Up Fives.

PROBABLY many readers will snort in disgust at the inquiry of a man who wants to know about fives. He writes:

> One thing I cannot seem to understand at present is where people get enough material for a five reeler. I'm sure it would be appreciated if you would take this up in the paper some time.

Now to the man who knows—and who forgets the time when he did not know, this seems to be the acme of foolishness. It is, to the trained writer, it is to the gifted natural plotter, but there is nothing that probably puzzles the generality of writers at the present moment more than this one question, and many of them have not the nerve to ask. This correspondent unconsciously supplies his own answer when he says that he does not seem to be getting ahead though he has been writing earnestly for a little less than a year and has turned out eight or nine reels of stuff

We wrote the questioner that he got five reelers out of his head—the same as he got his one reelers—but that he had to train his head a little. That's the entire thing in a nutshell. You must train your intelligence, through exercise. Hundreds of men can lift a hundred pound bar bell, who cannot carry it the length of an average gymnasium. Other hundreds can carry it the length of such a room, but could not bear the burden half a day. In countries where the topography or lack of beasts of burden necessitate human carriers, there are thousands of men who can carry a hundred pound load and more at a brisk pace, half a day. It is merely a matter of practice, just as typewriting, setting type, digging ditches or writing scripts is a matter of natural ability plus training.

Practice makes perfect, according to the adage, but perfection is never reached. Practice brings proficiency, would be a better reading. Nine reels is not a month's work, to say nothing of a year. Nine reels is not even the commencement of study. Nine reels should suggest themselves to the person of average intelligence before he even starts to plot. Lately we did nine synopses—that precise number—in parts of two afternoons—seven of them in one afternoon. We gather that the correspondent has taken the usual course of the uninstructed and has written one play and worked on that until he thought he got it right. Then he has taken up the next. That is not the way. The beginner should study plotting and nothing but plotting until he is so familiar with plots and plot formation and development that he is thoroughly grounded. Then, and not until then, should he study form and expression. It does him no good to know all about leaders and inserts and close-ups and panorams until he has something to write about, and one idea is not sufficient equipment. If we had a school we would keep our pupils so plotting for at least a year, no matter what their natural ability. Plotting is all there really is to play writing. You must have a plot or you have no play. But having a plot, you must be able to tell it, and so a knowledge of standard form is required. Unless you can plot, a knowledge of form will not even get you a job as adaptor, though so many think they will take studio jobs when they find they cannot think ideas.

The way to get five-reel plots is to write one-reel plots and then two and three-reel stories and so to the fives. It takes longer than jumping in to write fives at the start, but what is the use of writing fives unless you write good ones—ones that will sell, and you cannot write and sell five-reelers unless you have passed the one-reel plot stage, either in photoplay or fiction work.

You write a five just as you write a one, only you put more story into the five, more than five times as much story, because a five-reel play will run five times as long as a one-reel, and you cannot keep it at the tempo of a one-reel. You must get better and better as you go along. You must keep the interest rising. You cannot fall back to the one-reel level in your second reel, nor permit the third to be as slow as the second. No matter what the length of your story, you can sustain interest only through a rise in interest. You do not—in fact, you cannot—ascend to the climax of a five as rapidly as you reach the apex of a one. You must start more slowly and rise more gradually, but every hundred feet of film must be more interesting than the preceding hundred feet, whether you write a two-hundred-foot subject or run ten thousand feet. And the only way to learn how to do this is to write so many good one-reel stories that you are able to do a fair two and then do so many good twos that you will find some of them are fair threes, until, at last you find yourself wishing you had six reels instead of five. And about that time you'll be back on ones, or writing tens, for the fives are commencing to slip already.

Do a hundred plots. If that does not work do two hundred or three or ten hundred. It is the only way you can learn to write, and you will find that perhaps a couple of years from now you are then collecting for the time you think you are now wasting on practice plots. The time is not wasted, the labor is not wasted. When you get so you can command a thousand dollars for a subject, you'll find that you can write them quickly and easily because of the time you are putting in now on seemingly unprofitable practice work.

Telling Comedy.

Did you ever listen to a prosy person try to tell a humorous story? He may have a good theme, but his recital is so filled with "ifs" and "ands," and "buts," "in the meantimes", and "it should be rememebereds," that the pleasure in the story is lost in the recital. It is the same way with film comedy. If you load your stuff down with explanation it cannot carry the weight. Tell the story directly, swiftly and with an appearance of enjoyment. Make the recital of the story joyous; as though you yourself were laughing at the idea. Labored comedy is about the greatest infliction the photoplay patron is called upon to endure.

Reissues.

An actor points out that the reissues are going to make trouble for players and authors alike. Each reissue means one script less to be sold and one job less for the players. He wants us to campaign against the reissue idea. But we think that the reissue is a good idea when the reissues are the best work of an earlier day. Some of those old Biographs are just as good now as they were when they were making the popularity of the pictures, and they are new to many, if not most, of the present day playgoers. And the reissues but serve to point out how few of the old stories were good. They form but a small percentage of the general product and will not seriously affect the market. One releasing concern is said to have purchased more than a million feet of old stuff. They will not realize on it all, because they cannot dispose of poor stuff whether it is new or reissue, and a certain amount of this product going out will merely serve to emphasize still further the need for better material now. Don't worry about reissues. Once we worked for a publishing concern that started to use up the stuff that has accumulated in the safe. It was hard sledding for a couple of months, but in the end the rest of the stuff was dumped into the furnace and the market was better than ever.

The Knockers' Club.

The Evening Sun seems to have been selected as the official organ of the Knockers' Club of New York and it gives much space to letters from disgruntled photoplay writers, not all of them based on fact and good faith. One man claims that he entered into a contract with one concern to deliver a multiple reel a week and had to wait seventeen weeks for his first money. This sounds all right until it is realized that real writers do not contract to turn out a multiple a week. By another company he was told that his name had been associated on the film with a well known dramatic writer and that that should be honor enough. Evidently he never heard of lawyers. Lawrence McCloskey collected not long ago for a script he had written on order, when the company declined to pay for on the grounds that it had decided not use the play from which the script was made. There was no delay. The case went to court and the next time the firm was sued it settled before the case came to trial. These half truths serve only one good purpose. They frighten from the game the timid ones who start in feeling that their scripts will be stolen.

High and Dry.

Having been given his choice between an immediate vacation and a prospective straight jacket, John William Kellette took the vacation, and after visiting Rutland, Vt., where he used to bully a linotype machine, he is to go to Lake Bomosene, nearby. Being the driver of the water wagon, "Kell" is not dismayed by the idea of a vacation in an ultra dry community, and says that when he gets back he'll dig up some copy for us.

For the Museum.

If you have invented a peculiarly novel piece of business, a new idea in leaders or anything out of the ordinary, send in a copy of your carbon, after production, for the photoplay museum of Columbia University. Before the end of next season we want to see the museum provided with a collection of real scripts as well as bits. All contributions will be credited to the donor, a special label being provided for this purpose.

The THIRD Edition of

Technique of the Photoplay

IS NOW READY

This is virtually a new book under the old title. More than double the text and with an arrangement especially adapting it for the student. The most complete book ever written on the subject of scenario or photoplay construction.

By Mail, Postpaid Three Dollars

Address all orders direct to nearest office.

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Ave., New York City

Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill. Haas Building, Los Angeles, Cal.

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Manufacturer's Notice.

IT is an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be endorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor

Important Notice.

Owing to the mass of matter awaiting publication it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two to three weeks. In order to give prompt service, those sending four cents stamps (less than actual cost) will receive carbon copy of the department reply, by mail, without delay. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in the department, one dollar.

Both the first and second set of questions are now ready and printed in neat booklet form, the second half being seventy-six in number. Either booklet may be had by remitting 25 cents, money or stamps, to the editor, or both for 40 cents. Cannot use Canadian stamps. Every live, progressive operator should get a copy of these questions. You may be surprised at the number you cannot answer without a lot of study.

Operators' Union Directory, I. A. T. S. E.

Notice—Each union is entitled to have its roster of officers, meeting nights, etc., listed here once per year, free of cost. Preserve this list as it will not be republished. The mail address of the secretary should be included, and the address of regular meeting place, if any.

Local Union No. 453, New Rochelle, N. Y.

President, Joseph Tyroler; Vice-President, Charles Jackson; Financial Secretary and Treasurer, Louis Goldshlag; Recording Secretary, Thomas W. Dougherty, 9 Pine street, New Rochelle, N. Y.; Business Agent, Emil Kessler; Sergeant at Arms, A. E. Bell. Meetings held second and fourth Wednesdays of each month at Room 306, Proctor Building, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

Question No. 158.

What slope should the balcony and the gallery floor have? How would you determine it?

Roll of Honor on Question No. 147.

The Roll of Honor on Question 147 contains the names of Joseph H. M. Smith, Fort Worth, Texas; Wilson Hays, Barton, Md.; Ralph Gwynn, Longmont, Colo.; W. B. Allen, Edmonton, Canada; G. A. Yager, Anadarko, Okla.; C. E. Linstruth, Carthage, N. Y.; D. A. Snyder, Bangor, Pa.; Leon Pagenhardt, Westernport, Md.; M. M. Moon, Sherman, Texas; F. N. Irvin, Lufkin, Texas; J. H. Hanson, Lubec, Me.; M. Capobianco, Roseto, Pa.; L. J. Shafranek, Cleveland, Ohio; Frank Harris, Tacoma, Washington, and F. F. Bell, Palestine, Texas.

I have concluded to publish the reply of Brother Hays.

Answer to Question No. 147.

By Wilson Hays, Barton, Md.

The Question:

What do you understand by emergency lights? Where should their switches and fuses be placed, and at what point should the emergency light circuits be attached to the supply? What, in your opinion, should be the limit of size in picture and why?

The Answer:

Emergency lights are those ordinarily left burning while the show is on, such as exit, foyer, hallway, auditorium, side lights and a portion of the ceiling lights where indirect lighting is used. Exit and emergency lights not only should, but must be tapped to the main house feeders on the street side of the main house fuses and switch. They should be protected by their own main fuses carrying all exit and emergency light circuits; also by individual fuses for each circuit. They must be controlled by switches located in the box office, and by no other switch; this for the reason that in case of fire, or other alarm, there is always the possibility of some excited employe pulling the main house switch, thus plunging the entire theater in absolute darkness at the very time that the lights, particularly exit lights, are most needed. One can never tell what an excited person will do. An usher has actually been known to rush to the switchboard and pull the main house switch when an alarm of fire was given. If the exit and emergency lights are located ahead of the main switch such a blunder would not extinguish these lights, and the box office man or woman certainly would not pull the switch, and thus it would be practically impossible to plunge the entire auditorium into total darkness. It is also possible that in case of fire a heavy short circuit might occur, due to something falling across the wires, thus possibly blowing the main house fuses, which would amount to the same thing as pulling the main house switch.

As to the size of picture, why that will be governed by local conditions, and several things must be taken into consideration in this connection. The picture as projected through the machine aperture is approximately 11/16 x 15/16 of an inch in size. It will therefore be readily understood that the magnification is, in any event, tremendous, and the greater the magnification the greater will every defect in photography be magnified, and the greater will be the movement of the film on the screen, since every movement of the film at the aperture is increased at the screen in direct proportion to the size of the picture. Also it must be remembered that as the picture size is increased light strength must be made greater very rapidly. A 12 foot picture is considered as being "life size," and a picture of this size is perfectly distinct, in all its details, to the person of normal vision seventy-five or even one hundred feet away, and it is very seldom there is any bona fide reason for the use of a picture larger than 12 feet, so far as distinctiveness of vision goes. It must, however, be granted that in a large house a 12 foot picture is too small, especially if the screen is located on a large stage. The size of the picture may be greatly increased, but always at the expense of light, brilliancy, sharpness of definition, and magnification of defects. The possible limit of size might be open to argument. It would depend upon how much one is willing to expend for current, and how bright a picture is required; also mirror screens do not exceed 18½ feet in width, and for a throw of 50 feet, 18 feet is about the limit, since with a wider picture at this distance optical difficulties are encountered. At less than 50 feet the limit of picture size decreases rapidly, since with very short focal length lenses it is difficult, if not impossible, to obtain sharpness in definition. With a throw of 75 feet a 20 foot picture is the limit, while at 100 feet almost any size you can illuminate may be projected.

[In answering the last half of the question everyone except Ralph Gwynn, Longmont, Colo., failed to incorporate one of the principal reasons for limit in size of picture. I will publish separately Friend Gwynn's answer in the department, or rather his answer to the last half of the question, since it brings up something which is new and interesting.—Ed.]

Angle of Vision.

Ralph Gwynn, Longmont, Colo., contributes a reply to Question 147, a portion of which deals with the limit of size in pictures. The reply was not suitable for publication as an answer to the whole question, but it brings up an interesting point which fully justifies its publication in the department. His reply is as follows:

According to Dr. Buell, an eminent psychologist, the human eyes are capable of taking in anything within a radius of 170 degrees horizontally, without moving the pupils of either side. Taking this fact into consideration, it seems to me that eye fatigue resulting from constantly being compelled to shift the eyes to follow any particular object across the screen would be greatly reduced if the screen were of such size as would not exceed the cone formed by a 170 degree angle, having its apex on a line perpendicular to the screen at the intersection of this line with the front row of seats. Let me illustrate. Screen "1" exceeds the 170 degree cone of vision of spectator "A" which will necessitate a continuous moving of his eyes, or if the screen be large enough, a moving of his whole head in order to see the complete picture. Screen 2, which just occupies the cone, may be easily viewed by those in the front seats without any eye strain resulting from this particular source. Screen 1 would, of course, fall within the 170 degree angle of vision of those sitting farther back, but where room is limited it is often desirable to extend the seating as close to the screen as possible. This is not the principal argument against employing too large a screen, but it is suggested as a possible defect where ideal conditions are desired. The screen should be designed to harmonize in size with the width of the house. A 9 x 12 screen would appear insignificantly small in a house 100 feet wide, and practically no method of decorating the screen end of the house would serve to reduce the lack of proportion. Frank Rembusch authoritatively says that for a house 75 feet long and 25 feet wide a screen 9 x 12 feet is the best arrangement, and for houses of increased length and width the size of the screen should increase proportionately. He also adds that a large screen will cause an elongation of faces and figures. I feel free in assuming that the distortion would be more pronounced the closer one approached the screen, and much more noticeable at the top than at the bottom of the picture, the inaccuracy being in the eye rather than in the optical system of the machine. The same effect of distortion will be produced by standing at the bottom of a large sign, whose proportions are perfect, and looking up. Faces and figures will appear elongated. A third, but less important, point, from the perfect projection standpoint, is economy. If light and lens systems are already as near perfect as possible, an increased screen area will necessitate a brighter light to maintain the same brilliancy of screen illumination. If we go too far we are apt to run into another optical snag; since a lens of short E. F. is necessary to project a large picture at a short distance, and such lenses seldom give sharp, well defined pictures. Within the limitation of the above suggested difficulties the size of the picture is decidedly dependent on local conditions, and no particular standard can be established which would give the best effect in all places. For permanent public exhibition it is not advisable, and seldom necessary to reduce the size of the picture below 9 by 12 feet. Besides being sufficiently large to enable patrons sitting in the back seats to distinguish details, the maximum size of the screen should be governed by the first mentioned limits, viz.: the cone of vision and distortion.

The point raised by Friend Gwynn is interesting, although I cannot agree with his deduction. The human eye does see or "take in" everything through a very wide radius, though I am not prepared to say whether or not 170 degrees is the exact figure, though, presumably, it is, since the professor certainly ought to know. I am, however, prepared to make the assertion that, whereas the human eye does take in everything in a wide range of vision, still it always focuses on one point. Try it. Pick up a typewritten sheet of paper and look at the whole thing and see if your eye does not instantly focus on one word or letter. Look at the walls of a room and see if you can look at the whole wall without your eyes focusing on one spot. If you can your eyes certainly are different from mine, and if this is a fact, then the larger the picture the more violent will be the gymnastics the human eye will have to perform in order to read the film story, and this becomes tremendous when one is seated close to a large screen. My own view of the matter is that no picture larger than 16 feet should be allowed where the front row of seats is within 20 feet of the screen. I would welcome discussion on this important point.

Measure the Light Ray.

Byron Sherwood, Trenton, Mo., says:

> Will you, through the department, supply some information, to myself, the owner, which will be passed on to the operator? Machine No. 1 has a limit of distance between condenser and aperture 21½ inches, and machine No. 2 has 16.25. Present lens system: machine No. 1 diameter of objective 1 9-16; back focus 4⅝; condensers one 6½ and one 7½. Machine No. 2: diameter of objective 1⅝; back focus 4 15-16; condensers 6½ and 7½. Table No. 1, page 141 of the Handbook, makes no provision for lenses of these diameters working under our conditions. I suppose you will say that I am losing light. If so, what percentage am I losing, and am I losing it by paying for current which I do not get, or losing it on the screen? Would my picture be better if I had the right system? What size lenses ought I to have for each machine? Picture 9 x 12 at 82½ feet. Am using a double arc 35 ampere transverter.

Yes, you are losing light and lots of it, and it is, counting in your current bills, in this way: turning to plate 9, figure 50, page 120 of the Handbook, you will find precisely the condition you have. Now if the light beam between the aperture and the lens was concentrated so that the entire beam entered the lens, as per plate 5, figure 46, page 119, then you would be getting more light. That is plain enough, isn't it? Well that being so you would get a brighter screen, or you could cut down on your current and get the same brilliancy you are now getting. You have a 4⅝ inch back focus on one machine; ⅝ is .625 of an inch. Looking down in the second column from the right—the column headed "21,"—you will find the figures 6.29, which is very close to your back focus, and looking over in the left hand column opposite 6.29 you see 2⅜, which is the smallest lens diameter you can use with the condenser 21 inches from the film, using two 7½ inch condensers. A 2⅜ lens is, however, pretty large, and whereas your present lenses have altogether too small a diameter, still if you are going to continue using the ordinary lens, I would recommend that you get one not less than 2 inches in diameter. If, however, you are willing to pay the price, which will be considerable, I can get you a lens that will not only give you a sharp picture but will practically stop all light loss, and thus pay for itself within a comparatively short time. These lenses are something new and they are pretty costly. I would, nevertheless, recommend their installation. With ordinary lenses I would recommend two 7½ inch condensers, with the limit of distance on the machine that allows 21 inches between the condenser and the aperture, and a 2 inch diameter lens. With the other machine there is nothing you can do to stop light loss unless you can get the lamphouse back where it ought to go. If you were using heavy amperage that would be something else again, but you are not. As a matter of fact the lens I have spoken of is the thing you need, and the only thing that will meet your requirements under the conditions named.

Condensers.

One who signs himself a "Union Operator," Victoria, B. C., asks what size condensers he should use, the space between them, and the distance between them and the film. He is using No. 2 Gundlach Manhattan 6¼ E. F. objective which has a diameter of 2½ inches. This lens has been stopped down to 1⅜ inch diameter. Its back focus is 4 15-16 inches. The lamps are old Edison ones, and the mechanisms one Power's Six A and one Power's Six. Says he cannot, at present, get more than 14 inches between the front condenser and the film, but could get six or seven more by making the table longer, only the size of the room prevents that. On one machine the nearest the back condenser and crater can be gotten together is 2⅞ inches, and the other 3¼ inches. Says he has the second edition of the Handbook and intends to get the third as soon as he can raise the cash; also has all ten volumes of Hawkins' Electrical Guide.

In the first place, Union Operator, you must sign your name to letters, though the name will not be used if you so request. In the second place take out that washer, or at least increase the opening to 2 inches. Use two 7½ inch condensers placed as close together as you can get them, and get your lamphouse back as far as you can. My advice would be to put a shoe stretcher into that operating room and expand it 2 feet at least, front and back. My next advice would be to throw away those old Edison lamps. Out of date equipment of that kind does not pay the manager, from the boxoffice point-of-view. You have not said what amperage you are using, but 2⅞ inches ought to be close enough to the condenser in any event. I would by all means advise you to get the third edition of the Handbook, and when you have studied "Matching Up the Lens System" you will find that topic alone will be worth to you at least twice the price of the book. I cannot give you any very intelligent advice because your operating room conditions are, as you describe them, such that it would be impossible to put my advice into practice.

Reflected Light.

L. C. Merchant, Falfurrias, Texas, propounds the following:

> Am using 110 volt, 60 ampere A. C., and the generator at the power plant is pulled by an 80 H. P. distillate engine which produces very unsteady current. If the engine misses the voltage drops pretty low, but, of course, we cannot help that. I would like to ask the following: First: Why did a very bright spot develop about the center of the top of the picture? The spot was there last night when I started the show, and it is the first time. Not a single adjustment had been changed for several weeks. I have the new Handbook and have searched it through and can find no answer except that the lens might be wrong. But if that is the case why did the spot wait until last night to show up? The shutter is not right, but it is set where it is giving the best results. It is impossible to get it right as it is an inside shutter and there is very little room for adjustment. The aforesaid spot will show, but very dim, when the wide, or solid, blade of the shutter has the aperture entirely covered.
>
> Question No. 2 is, what is the best thing with which to paint a screen for an open air theater, or airdome? Have looked through the Handbook and the best it recommends is alabastine for a muslin screen. But that don't work here, since every time it rains the albastine washes off. I painted over the alabastine with white lead and oil, but that seems to glare considerably. Have a solid wall of ship lap and the muslin stretched as tight as it will stand over that. As long as I kept it painted with alabastine the wind did not bother, but since I painted it with lead and oil the wind gets behind it and causes great waves to run in every direction, and this is very noticeable on the picture. The only reason I can see for this is that when the screen was painted with the albastine the air could escape through the cloth, but with lead and oil paint there is no escape for the air after once it gets behind the screen. I would like to hear from the editor on these things; also to receive any advice experienced operators may see fit to give.

With regard to your first question the bright spot is probably due to reflected light. Set the machine so that the aperture is entirely covered by the wide blade of the shutter, and then blow smoke all around the front end of the machine and see if you do not see a ray of light coming through somewhere. If you don't, kindly let me know.

As to the second question, if you have the third edition of the Handbook turn to page 184 and you will find paint data. Your paint is evidently an oil paint, whereas you should have mixed it about one-third boiled linseed oil and two-thirds turpentine, so that the surface would be a dull, dead one, instead of glossy. I see no reason why the screen should wave when painted and not when coated with alabastine, since alabastine makes a coating which I would suppose would be practically impervious to air. However one thing is certain, and that is the screen is not stretched tight enough. Otherwise there could not be waves such as you speak of. My advice is to pull that screen up as tight as a fiddle string. If the muslin you have won't stand it get stronger cloth and stretch it on a frame such as is described in the Handbook, pages 190-191. The better way would be, however, to nail ½-inch furring to the shiplap, put lath on the furring and make a cement finish plaster screen, to which you can apply paint mixed as follows: White zinc ground in oil, 3 parts; white lead ground in oil, 1 part. Mix with one-third boiled linseed oil and two-thirds turpentine, then add enough ultramarine blue to make a very light blue in the pot and apply a sufficient number of coats to make a perfectly white surface, then border screen with black.

A New Reel.

George R. Collins, Salisbury, N. C., sends sample of a new reel for examination, and has, at my request, sent one of these reels to John Griffiths, Ansonia, Conn., for test. Personally the thing looks too good to be true, but Mr. Collins assures me that after months of trial it works like a charm.

It consists of a cast iron hub about 2¼ inches in diameter, in the center of which is another cast iron hub of less diameter, the one resting on the other. The center hub is shoved on the take-up spindle and locked in the usual way, and turns the outside hub and reel by friction, there being no direct connection between the two except the friction supplied by the weight of the reel. That is all there is to it, except a groove and ball which allows the reel to turn in but one direction, thus enabling the operator to rewind. It is simple, strong, perfectly true, and if it works as Mr. Collins claims it does, it would obviate all necessity for take-up tensions on the machine itself. I will have more to say about this particular thing when I get the report from Friend Griffiths.

From Newfoundland.

J. P. Kiely, St. Johns, N. F., writes:

> I have trouble with my machine. It is an Edison Model D, and has been in use but one year. Every two or three minutes it starts to grate, and then will run smooth again. Had my operator look it over, but could find nothing wrong. It gives a sharp, steady picture. I find the department very interesting, and will be looking for a reply in the next issue thereof.

My dear Mr. Kiely, I am sorry, but I guess you will have to look in several weeks' issues. Right now there is at least four weeks' matter in type, one week in manuscript form, and a stack of mail in front of me that would choke an elephant. You should have enclosed four cents for a carbon copy of reply, but owing to whence the letter comes I will send it anyhow.

It is difficult to diagnose a case from the meager description supplied. First, carefully examine the machine and see if the screws holding the side bar which carries the outer bearing and the fly wheel shaft are tight. If you have a Handbook these screws are 1133—1133, plate 1, page 582. Next examine the shutter gears and see that nothing is loose, and they are not badly worn. Also examine the small pinion in the fly wheel shaft which is driven by gear 19439, plate 1, page 582 of the Handbook. From you description it would seem that the trouble must lie in the gears. You certainly don't get any first run film up there, therefore it cannot be emulsion on the tension shoes. It is possible the bearings carrying the fly wheel shaft are badly worn, which might produce this kind of trouble, though I hardly think so. Your inforamtion is so very meager that it is almost impossible to give an intelligent answer. I would suggest that you send $4.00 to the Moving Picture World at once, and get a copy of the third edition of the Handbook. I can assure you that it will be worth to you many times its price. There are full, complete, illustrated instructions on all leading makes of projectors, including the Edison Model D.

Wants Brilliancy.

A. L. Fell, Suffolk, Va., says:

> Dear Friend: Although I have never before written, still I feel that I can address you as "dear friend," since I am a constant reader of the department, which has been a great help to me, and should be to anyone who wishes to improve himself in the art of projection. I have only been operating about two years, and realize there is still much for me to learn, but if study and hard work will do any good I will get there some day. Am using two Power's Six A machines with a 98 foot throw. Objectives are 6 inch E. F., which gives me a 15.03 picture. We are going to move the screen back 14 feet, which will give a 112 foot throw, and, using my present lenses, I figure the picture will be about 17.45. Now would that give much loss of light, or should I get a new lens and make a smaller picture? What I want is brilliancy. Am sorry to say I don't own a Handbook, but if the good Lord spares me I very soon will.

Yes, brother, if you owned a Handbook you could get the answer to this question in less than a minute, which same is true of hundreds of other questions which doubtless puzzle you from time to time. The answer to this particular question is on page 102. In your particular instance you have a 15.03 foot picture at 98 feet; 15.03 feet is 180.36 inches, which divided by 98 gives 1.840 of an inch spread for each foot of throw, and for the additional 14 foot of throw you say you will have we get 25.760 inches additional width of picture, which added to 180.36 gives 206.120 inches, or, discarding the fraction, 17.17+ feet, as the width of the picture. We have discarded some of the fraction, therefore the answer is not precisely accurate, but the method is shown. Under the new condition your objective will have a shorter back focus—be nearer the aperture—therefore no additional light loss will be set up, but it will require much more light to give the 17 foot picture the same brilliancy the 15 footer has, and unless you have a very large house fifteen feet is large enough.

Long Beach, California.

From several sources information has come that Long Beach, Cal., stands in need of a very decided shaking up so far as things relating to projection be concerned. I am told that the very best houses in town, which have baby nurseries, pipe organs, and all sorts of trimmings, charging 10, 15 and 25 cents admission, are only paying their operators $12.00 per week with a 1 to 11 P. M. grind. I am also told that at least one opeartor in Long Beach is working from 1 to 11 at $10.00 per week.

Now if this is true, and I have every reason to believe it is, I would like to ask Long Beach theater managers if, in their opinion, this spells ordinary horse sense. Is it not rather ridiculous to place the art of Mary Pickford, of Sarah Bernhard and Anita Stewart in the hands of a $10.00 or $15.00 a week man? Don't you think it sounds rather absurd to pay an actress several thousand dollars a week, and then place the reproduction of her work in the hands of a $10.00 per week man, or even a $15.00 per week man? Honestly now, with one hand on the New Testament and the other on the Koran, Mr. Long Beach Manager, does that not sound rather absurd on the face of it? Do you think you can get high class service at such an absurd figure in these days of high cost of living? Why, good heavens, my dear Mr. Manager, a teamster gets as much or more for driving a span of mules, and it really does not require much brain power to act the part of pilot to a dray.

Now please understand, Mr. Manager, all this is beng said absolutely, wholly, and entirely for your own good. I am not trying to stir up trouble between you and your operators, but I must point out the F-A-C-T that if you want high class results on your screen in order to fill those fine seats with patrons, and KEEP THEM FILLED with patrons you will need something more than a $10.00 or $15.00 a week man to interpret and reproduce the work of the artists you show on your screen.

I expect to be in California next winter, or in the early spring, and possibly may be able to address the theater managers and operators of Long Beach. Most certainly, under the conditions, I will be glad to do so if they wish it.

How About It?

L. Morris, manager Park theater, Jacksonville, Texas, sends the following letter, which is countersigned by B. Hugh Mullens, operator:

> Dear Mr. Richardson: In looking over old copies of the World I find two comments published April 1, 1916, and March 25th, sent you from Nacogdoches, Texas, in which he lambasted the Park theater in this town unmercifully regarding films sent that theater. This house changed hands in February this year, and in that time no films have been sent to Nacogdoches from this theatre With regard to the serial "Who Pays?" it has never been run in this city. As to why Nacogdoches should send in an erroneous report of this matter we cannot understand, but we do know that the operator at the above place has got things twisted. We would thank you kindly to give this space in order to correct the above charge.

You certainly are fully entitled to that courtesy. I must again warn operators to be very careful in sending in reports such as that sent by Nacogdoches. Such things ought to be published for the good of all concerned, but it is practically impossible for this department to check up all these things, and we must, in cases of this kind, proceed upon the assumption that the man who sends in a report, which he knows will be published and seen by the accused, will not make the report unless he knows positively that he is right. It would be rather foolish to do otherwise. Nacogdoches is now placed in a decidedly bad light, and it is his own fault. I don't imagine that he intended to make an incorrect report, but he should certainly have been more careful.

A Correction.

In September 9th issue appears an article entitled "The Auto Arc Control," in which the American Lighting Company of Chicago is named as the owner. This is an error. The contrivance is now owned by the American Auto Arc Company, Owensboro, Ky., and Chicago.

A Sweet Singer.

James McCormack, dean of the Vitagraph projection operators, has burst into song. He presents "My Texas Mary," being guilty of both words and music. It may be had from the McCormack Music Company, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Has Seen Our Map.

Paul Baron, Coleman, Alberta, Canada, says:

> Though this is the first time you have heard from me, I nevertheless feel acquainted with you, having seen your photograph in the Moving Picture World. Am a regular reader of the department, and know I, for one, have been benefitted by the questions; also I firmly believe that the answers ought to be published in book form. I am running one Powers Six hand driven projector, taking D. C. through a 240 volt Power rheostat. The distance of projection is 80 feet to a white painted screen. The picture is 12 feet 4 inches; the diameter of my 6 inch E. F. objective is 1½ inches; the arc is 3 inches from the rear condenser. Distance from film to apex of front condenser is 14 inches, with two 6½-inch condensers spaced ¼ inch apart, using ⅝-inch carbons, positive cored, negative solid. Light spot at film is 1½ inches; have good light, and have broken no condensers for three years. Enclosed find postal order for 40 cents for first and second sets of questions. Will send for a handbook after pay day. I notice W. B. Allen of Edmonton, Alberta, is on the job. There are over eighty motion picture machine operators in this province, and Alberta operators need a good shaking up and waking up. Am sending you photograph of our mining town; also two of Crow's Nest Mountain, which is quite some bump on the landscape Please send me W. B. Allen's address. We are using Universal films, "Peg o' the Ring," and Pathe's "Iron Claw," which is some serial Films come in good condition. There are five theatres east of me in this line of mining towns, but no sign of organization. In closing, I thank you for the great work you are doing in the department. You will hear from me again.

Brother Allen's address is Room 324 Muttart Building, Ninety-seventh Street, Edmonton, Alberta. You may be getting a good light all right, Brother Baron, but you are wasting a lot of it at the objective. When you get the Handbook I would advise you to study "Lining Up the Optical System" carefully. Also if you are paying for current by the kilowat I would strongly recommend a motor generator set, or mercury arc rectifier. Taking 240 volt current through a rheostat is mighty wasteful. As to Alberta operators needing a shaking up and a waking up, why, I dunno. You are in a better position to judge of that than I am, but if it is true, why they should not forget the fact that while it is very easy to drift along with the current, it takes a mighty long time to get anywhere. This is the age of hustle; it is the gasoline age, and he who does not keep up with the procession is very likely, sooner or later, to lose sight of it entirely, drop out and not even be missed. If Alberta operators are in the "slow" class, why it is up to them to advance the spark, give it a little more gas and speed up. The photographs were very nice indeed. Many thanks.

Not a Bad Bargain.

The following is received, with strict injunction to carefully conceal identity of the writer:

Have the second edition of the Handbook and last week got the third; it certainly is four dollars well expended. The paper and printing and binding are probably worth considerable less than one dollar, but the information contained therein is worth about one hundred dollars, therefore I say it is not exactly a bad bargain. I note that on page 236 your artist made an error in lettering the voltmeter and ammeter. On page 303 you say: "Any change in voltage across the arc will cause a corresponding change in the amperage of the arc." This is quite true, with one exception, viz.: where current is taken from a constant current generator. (You are wrong, brother. Even when current is taken from a constant current generator the same thing would hold true if there is resistance between the generator and the arc. Of course, if you took current from a constant current generator supplying current at arc voltage, then you are right.—Ed.) Street arc lights are mostly connected this way, but possibly you will come back at me with a statement that you were only considering projection arcs. However, the G. E. has, as you doubtless know, been making a constant current generator for moving picture use for some time, but lamps have to be connected in series, with short circuiting switches. The carbons may be pulled apart from 3½ to 4 inches before the arc breaks, therefore you are all right, F. H., with this single exception, and there you are wrong. As to "Dissolving Moving Picture," page 606 of the Handbook, also page 789, July 29th issue, why I long ago started dissolving pictures standing between the two machines and working both dowsers at the same time. This can be done so perfectly that even you would have difficulty in detecting the change. And now for the punch marks. For more than two and a half years I have dissolved one picture into the next within two or three feet of the end, and I have never punched a film. I have been in theatres where one could have anything within reason, such as good ventilation, toilet and wash rooms, and no fight about overtime, so I just cut out all the little punch marks and return them to the exchange, but owing to the fact that I also cut their punch numbers out they kicked. When running a matinee, the first show I allow end of part one to show before dissolving, carefully noting the last two scenes—particularly the last. Then before rewinding I look over the last four or five feet and make careful note of how it ended. With this information I could make a very nearly perfect dissolve right at the last end of the film. Not a few of the boys scratch a small line in one corner for two or three pictures. This they can see and the public hardly notices it. Another way is one punch hole placed on the dividing line. This you see only shows a little and only for two pictures. On some of the Edison features they end every reel with a title and begin the next with the same, only they forgot themselves once that I know of and had one title yellow and the next blue. Once in the serial "The Goddess" they had the same picture ending the reel and beginning the next. This looks good, but really is not, as it makes a jump in the action when one dissolves, like several feet of the picture had been cut out. So after two years of thinking of this thing I suggest this: Within fifty or seventy-five feet of the end of the film that the manufacturers square off one corner of the picture, so that instead of the picture being round on the corner it would be straight. If this could be done with the negative it would need give no further concern, since it would always appear in the positive. This I think should be continued until about five feet from the end. It would thus give the operator his cue to start the second arc, and the end of the mark would tell him when to dissolve. I say make this continuous for seventy-five feet, so it would be impossible to miss it if one happened to be feeding the arc.

This is practically the thing this department has already suggested, and which the Universal has agreed to adopt, though I don't know whether or not it has yet been put into practice.

Location Secret.

From a city, name a dark, dense secret, comes the following, which was received in June, but mislaid:

On page 797, April 29th issue, under the heading "A Visitor," you ask: "Why is this so?" As far as I know light does not generate heat until it strikes an object—that is light passing through a plain piece of film takes longer to catch fire than something dark. You mention Brother William W. Lewis of No. 162, I. A. T. S. E.; he is at present holding forth in Chicago.

The new Edison was installed in a new theatre in Chicago, Ill.—two of them in fact. A man from the factory was on hand to run them; also a No. 157, I. B. E. W. man. This is an operators' union, but somehow they haven't first-class ones, outside of perhaps five. Mr. Edison's Super machine, as it now is (then was.—Ed.) cannot run first run film in nine and ten minutes. Now you'll come back and tell me that I must not run film at nine and ten minutes. All right. I know that much, but the point is when the guy who pays you the money, and takes in the money, says: "More speed," you either give him what he wants or——. Recently I ran eight reels, not short ones, in one hour and fifteen minutes, and while running them the manager called more speed. I told him nothing doing, as he was getting eight reels in seventy-five minutes. He afterward told me he did not know I was running that fast. And 75 per cent of the theatres here run 9 to 11 minutes a reel. Two years ago I was running 5 reels an hour—7 to 11—four shows. Our competitor was running three shows, with the same seating capacity. We were doing more business—we had more people, therefore could spend more money on better films. The difference is counted by the dollars and cents at the box office. After running a matinee and holding them, I asked the owner if I could start my first night show at 6.30 instead of 7. Well, I ran five complete shows in four hours and ten minutes, and Miss Cashier turned in $16.00 more than the biggest we ever had.

I meant to finish about the Edison machine. Two are now being used in South Bend, Ind., and giving complete satisfaction; most likely they don't use the speed. There was too much backlash between the upper sprocket and film shoes, making the picture unsteady when new film was run at 9 minutes. Have one of your first Handbooks, I believe published in 1907, about 2½x5 inches in size and about 40 pages

As to the Edison Super, I am informed that changes are being made which will enable it to satisfy the worst speed-demon manager than can be dug up. I call its refusal to handle film at excessive speed a positive VIRTUE. Real honest-to-goodness theatre managers don't overspeed the films, but unfortunately not all managers are in that class. That it gets more money (if it does) is no excuse, because the rights of others are involved and abused.

Information Wanted.

George B. Carter, Elmira, N. Y., says:

I refer you to page 940, August 5th issue, for description of our equipment. We use 50 amperes to get a fair illumination, but most of the pictures appear like a crayon drawing—the letters not being clear cut. A Gold Fibre curtain is used, and the angle of curtain and machine is the same. The very top letters appear clear, but further down they are not. Use ⅝ carbons top and bottom. Can it be the lenses? Ought we to require such a high amperage if the current is properly handled? Can we get a first-class man to come on and put things in satisfactory shape, and what would it cost? Is our screen too large to have a clear picture all over?

I would not use an 18-foot picture; don't think it is necessary; 16 is plenty large enough, but you should have the picture bordered in black, as per page 178, figure 69, of the Handbook. Yes, the modern practice in high-class theaters is to use high amperage and secure brilliant illumination, but for 50 amperes you should use ¾-inch cored carbons above and ⅝-inch cored or solid below, preferably solid. If I understand you correctly, the letters at the top of the screen are clear cut, but at the bottom they are fuzzy. You have not, however, described the effect. Turn the objective lens half way round and see what alteration is produced. If the effect is the same it is not in the lens. Possibly you have slight travel ghost, and if so this can be eliminated by an adjustment of the shutter. If you will write describing the effect more clearly I will be in better position to help you. I do not believe it is necessary to have any one go up there.

Richardson's

MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK

For Managers and Operators

Over 700 pages and over 300 illustrations help to make a book that will be a lasting monument to its author's knowledge, ability and diligence. No such work on Projection has ever before been attempted, nor likely to be for many years to come. Price is $4.00 per copy, postpaid.

Address All Orders and Remittances to Nearest Office

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue, New York

Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill. Haas Building, Los Angeles, Cal.

Motion Picture Photography*

Conducted by CARL LOUIS GREGORY, F. R. P. S.

Inquiries.

QUESTIONS in cinematography addressed to this department will receive carbon copy of the department's reply by mail when four cents in stamps are inclosed. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in this department, $1.

Manufacturers' Notice.

It is an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be endorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor.

Soft Focus and the Angle of the Lens.

By P. D. Hugon.

Author of "Hints to Newsfilm Cameramen."

EVERY cameraman knows that the cinema lens works at a narrow angle, but some still believe that the aperture of the lens has something to do with the angle, and that a certain 2-inch lens gives "soft focus" because it works at a slightly shorter focal length than another a matter of one millimeter. To dispel these illusions is the object of this brief survey.

The expression "angle of a lens" may mean four things, hence the confusion. It may mean:

1. The maximum angle which the lens could embrace, if it were given the largest plate it can cover. This is the manufacturers' angle. It depends on the length and diameter of the lens barrel, as well as on the optical properties of the lens glass, and it will be noticed how close together the lens combinations are in a wide angle lens for ordinary photography. In cinema work, this is of no interest at present.

2. The angle at which the lens covers a certain size plate from one top corner to the opposite bottom corner (the diagonal of the plate). For a 2-inch lens on a film; this angle is 34 degrees; for a 3-inch lens, 22 degrees; for a 6-inch, 11 degrees.

3. The floor angle, calculated on the base of the plate (or shown by check marks on the floor). This is the angle which most people unconsciously refer to. In the case of the 2-inch lens, on a film, this angle is 28 degrees; for a 3-inch, 19 degrees; for a 6-inch, 95.

4. The height angle. In practice, this is the most important one, as the whole art of placing the camera quickly depends on a quick estimate of the angle. In one scene, the director wants to cut at the waist, in another at the knees; in a third a few feet of floor in front of the artist must be included; and in a fourth the branch of a tree. In the standard case of the 2-inch lens on the ¾-inch high film, the angle is 21 degrees. There is a leading French camera outfit that includes a comparatively wide-angle lens of 1½-inch focus, working therefore at an angle of 28 degrees (height). This solves many a problem in copying upright print, etc.

It will be seen, therefore, that the angle, in practice, depends entirely on the relationship of the focal length to the size of plate used. For instance, the same 2-inch lens would fully cover a plate if that size was made, 1½x1.3 inches. The floor (or width) angle would then be no longer 28 degrees, but 41 degrees.

What the Iris Does.

The iris diaphragm cannot in any way modify the angle of view. This you can easily verify, on any camera.

At full aperture, focus at infinity on a well-defined object; mark its outline on the ground glass; then stop down to F/32. The outline will remain the same, showing that the angle remains the same.

This confusion about diaphragm and angle of lens is due to the fact (vaguely remembered by most camera users) that the iris does have something to do with a different kind of angle—with rays of light entering the lens at a certain angle.

From any point (using the word in the mathematical sense of the word), rays of light are reflected in all directions. Those that are reflected in the direction of the lens all try to enter it, some straight through the center, some at an angle which the lens bends and returns towards the plate. The object of the lens is precisely to make these rays, at whatever angle they arrive, reproduce the image of their source all at the same point—get on top of one another, so to speak—so that they all make only one image. This is fairly easy for rays that come at a narrow angle, but some come at such extreme angles that they throw their image too far or too near (which you will easily understand if you recollect the elementary laws of reflection and refraction, and the working of mirrors). But as the image does not stop before the plate, or go through it, it registers out of focus, at the wrong place, too high or too low. We therefore have a number of images representing one point, and we call that point "out of focus"—which is merely a relative term, anyway.

What the iris diaphragm does is merely to cut off some of those rays that would enter at too wide an angle. Cutting them off reduces the light, hence the necessity for longer exposures.

But the point from which these rays proceed was visible all the time; it was included in the angle of the lens. The iris diaphragm reduces the light angle, so to speak, but does not affect the view angle.

Depth of Focus.

"Has the angle of the lens anything to do with depth of focus?"

Yes, since the angle, as we have shown, is merely a relationship of focal length to size of plate. Depth of focus is entirely due to focal length and iris aperture.

"Does this mean that a 2-inch F/3.5 lens, and a 2-inch F/4.5 lens will have the same depth of focus, when both working at F/4.5?"

Yes, certainly; but equal depths of focus does not mean equal crispness, unless the two lenses are of the same quality. A rapid rectilinear and an anastigmat may have the same depth of focus exactly, but the apparent results (due to varying degrees of crispness) will cause confusion. "Focus" is only a relative term, to express a tolerated limit of error. All focus is not equally crisp. "Why is it, then, that a certain 2-inch lens gives soft focus?"

Because, like portrait lenses, it is intentionally imperfect in its optical corrections, by allowing some spherical aberration to remain. As the picture obtained is nowhere very crisp, there is less contrast between focus and non-focus than there is in an even more famous 2-inch lens which gives much sharper definition.

In other words, the last-mentioned lens is almost too good for use at full aperture, as it emphasizes the lack of sharpness of the parts not focussed on. But when stopped down it is exceedingly crisp at all depths; and it cannot be surpassed on flat objects of architecture. But the so-called soft focus lens is preferred for full aperture work in which near and distant objects are combined. It is almost exclusively used in the dull and misty climate of England; while the crisp focus lens is almost exclusively used in California, where the light is good enough to stop down.

That is why the best camera manufacturers supply both lenses with each outfit.

Amidol Now Manufactured in America.

It is a pleasure to add to the rapidly increasing list of American manufacturers of photographic chemicals for which we were hitherto dependent on foreign countries, The Eastman Kodak Company, Mallinkrodt, Abbot Alkaloidal Company, Dr. Thatcher and others are manufacturing Hydroquinone, metol, kathol, etc., and now Brewster & Robbins, Manufacturing Chemists of South Amboy, New Jersey, announce that they are manufacturing Diamidophenol chloride, which is the chemical name for the foreign developing agent sold under the patented name of Amidol.

Amidol is, in many respects, an ideal positive developer for motion picture films, giving rich blue black tones which may be modified to a pure black and then to olive tones according to the amount of bromide used.

It is particularly suitable for prints which are to be sepia toned, as it can be depended upon to give always the richest of browns and never, if properly manipulated, to produce the sickly yellow brindle color given by other developing agents. It gives fine grained negatives of ample density of crisp positives, but is soft working and with ordinary care will never produce soot and whitewash effects.

As no alkali is required, prolonged development is possible without ill effects to the emulsion or fingers.

Amidol oxidizes faster than other coal tar developers except pyro, but does not fog or stain, and where a sufficient quantity of work is being produced it will permit of continuous use until exhausted. That means that it can be used for tank development where pyro cannot, but it will not keep for days in the tank as metol hydro will.

A simple formula for Amidol developer for motion pictures is:

Amidol	10 ounces
Sodium sulphite (anhydrous)	6 pounds
Water	10 gallons

"As good as gold." "As white as snow." "As fine as silk." Why do other papers in this field invariably try to compare with the standard of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD? There's a reason.

*Copyright, 1916, by the Chalmers Publishing Co.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by CLARENCE E. SINN and S. M. BERG

Musical Setting for "The Common Law."

Released by Lewis J. Selznick Productions, Inc.
Prepared by S. M. Berg.

MR. BERG desires to express his acknowledgment to Mr. Albert Cappelini, the Director General of this picture, for his admirable musical suggestions, which have been embodied in the Cue Sheet.

Musicians' Notes.

This "Musical Suggestion Cue Sheet" is not designed to solve every possible musical requirement of the film, but is intended as a guide and a help to the leader—what to play for the picture. Musicians will find it of valuable assistance, not only by relieving to a degree the tedium of rehearsals, but by assisting materially in overcoming those conditions encountered when the film is not available until the hour of the performance.

Musical Suggestion Cue Sheets can be obtained (free of charge) by managers from their local exchange in advance of the date of release. This will afford to the progressive leader an opportunity to acquaint himself with the general character of the film drama he is to portray with his orchestra.

Together with the suggested music at the title or descriptive cues where it is to be played, the tempo or characteristic is given so that the leader can select or substitute any or all of the numbers from his own library, thereby avoiding financial outlay, though still carrying out the suggested interpretation, incorporating his own individual taste and being free to carry out his manager's ideas together with the particular requirement in music of the patrons of the theater.

The timing of the picture is based on a speed of 15 minutes to a thousand feet. The time indications will help the leader to anticipate the various cues which may consist of printed sub-title (marked T) or a described action (marked D). For instance: 76 T "I have promised myself" is a sub-title and is printed reading matter on the screen. But 74¾ D "When Valerie Leaves" is a description of action.

Valerie West (Miss Clara Kimball Young, a beautiful young girl, left penniless by the death of her mother, applies for a position as model at the studio of Louis Neville, an artist. Charmed by her beauty he engages her and as the days pass, their attraction for each other ripens into love. His parents, however, are set upon his marrying Stephanie Swift, their adopted daughter. Stephanie, finding Louis avoiding her, seeks the cause and pleads with Valerie not to marry Louis. She promises her but urged by Louis to an early marriage, she pledges herself to become his wife by "Common Law." After a series of incidents, his parents realizing the true character of Valerie, consent to their marriage and the picture closes with the realization of their happiness.

The character of this picture is a modern society drama. There are many changes of scene and action, which will require particular attention from the leader. For instance: At 9 Valerie returns with flowers is a pathetic scene of her mother dying, which lasts but half a minute.

At 15. There is a flash of chorus girls dancing.

At 43½. Fantastic dance which should be carefully followed in tempo.

From 60½ to 71 are continuous scenes of New Year's celebration.

At 65½. 12 o'clock striking chimes, New Year's Eve.

Liberal use of horns, rattles, etc., should be permitted in these scenes.

Note particularly: In the Cue Sheet are effects such as train and telephone bells. Piano only according to action, at 39½.

The theme selected is "Poudree" (Valse Lente Intermezzo) Popy. In the playing of same the temp should be carefully varied according to the emotion on the screen.

Schedule time for projection: 117 minutes (7 reels—5000 feet).

Further inquiries concerning any phase of this work should be addressed to Mr. S. M. Berg, Columbia Theater Buliding, New York City.

Time.		Sub-Titles or Descriptive Cues.	Music and Tempor Characteristics.
O	D	Opening.	Poudree—Popy. (Valse Intermezzo) THEME
1¾	T	Valerie West. (Miss Clara Kimball Young).
3½	T	Jose Querida.	Liselotte—Adam. (Moderato rubato).
4½	T	"Haven't I told you, time"
6½	T	"Neville's work lacks soul."	The Golden Youth—Rosey. (Hesitation Waltz).
7¼	T	"I can't find the right model."
9	D	Valerie returns with flowers.	Andante Pathetique No. 10—Berge.
9½	T	The Nevilles.	A La Mode—Rosey. (Allegretto).
10½	T	Stephanie Swift. (train effects).
12¼	T	"I'll see you in the morning.	Sparklets—Miles. (Moderato).
13¾	D	Valerie reading.
15	T	"I am working in the Gaiety—" (flash of girls dancing).	Popular two-step.
16	T	End of Part One.
16¼	T	"Charming girl when are you—"	Violetta—Herman. (Allegretto giocoso).
18	T	"There's not another one--"
19½	D	When Valerie brings letter. (girls rehearsing dance).	Popular two-step.
22	T	"Mr. Angel, the backer of the—"
24¼	D	When Valerie leaves theater.	Enchanted Hour—Mouton. (Andantino).
27½	D	Valerie knocks at studio door.	Repeat: THEME.
28½	T	"Begging your pardon, Sir"
30	T	"Undress."	Dramatic Tension No. 9—Andino.
33	T	End of Part Two.
33½	T	Absorbed in his work.
34¼	T	"I have never posed before—"	Repeat: THEME.
36¾	T	"Will this girl do?"	The Little Puritan—Morse. (Moderato Gavotte).
37¾	T	"It is not your fault—"
38½	T	"What has become of Neville?"
39½	D	When Valerie takes up photo. (Piano only according to action).	Cupid's Caress—Roberts. (Valse Lente).
42½	T	"Querida has invited me--"
43½	D	At the party. (Fantastic Greek dance).	Moment Musical—Schubert. (Moderato).
45¼	T	Next morning. (Telephone bell).	Captain Cupid—Bratton. (Allegretto grazioso).
46¾	D	At the restaurant.
49	T	Querida replies in person.	Felice—Langey. (Andantino Canzonetta).
50¼	T	"Oh, busy of course—"
51	T	End of Part Three.
51¼	T	Valerie's Beauty becomes—	Repeat: THEME.
53¾	T	"I am in town shopping—"	Yester-Love—Borch. (Intermezzo Andantino).
55½	D	When Stephanie leaves.
57	D	Stephanie calls on Valerie.	The Melody of the Bell No. 12—Herbert.
59½	D	When Louis telephones. (Telephone bell).
60½	T	New Year's Eve. (Dancing scene).	Popular two-step.
63	D	At Rector's. (Horns, rattles). (Flash of girls dancing).	Popular Dancing Waltz.
65	D	At the Neville's home.	Andante Pathetique No. 23—Borch.
65½	D	At Rector's. (12 o'clock chimes).	Popular two-step.
67½	T	End of Part Four.
68½	D	At Louis' Studio.	Repeat: THEME.
69¾	T	"Was it necessary to lie—" New Year celebration). (toy horns, etc).
71	T	"I have come for Valerie."	Serenade—Kautzenbach. (Allegretto).
72½	T	"Valerie will you be my wife?"
74¾	D	When Valerie leaves.	Petite Serenade—Norton. (Allegretto).
76	T	"I have promised myself--"
77½	T	"Our child died."	Canzonetta—Godard. (Allegretto Moderato).
80	T	"One of the Wests of Brookline?"
82	T	"I love her and will marry her."	Repeat: THEME.
83	T	End of Part Five.
83½	T	Valerie comes home with Rita.

85¾	D	When Querida mounts horse.	The Bim-Bim—Adam (Allegro moderato).
87¾	T	"I have lost my way, Querida."
89	D	When Querida embraces Valerie	Agitato No. 6—Kletert
90¼	D	At the Neville home	Romance—Kurganoff. (Andanto sostenuto)
92	T	"This is the girl"
95	D	When Louis leaves house. (Train effects).	Inspiration—Edwards. (Andanto Sostenuto)
99¼	T	End of Part Six
100½	D	When Valerie writes letter.	Repeat: THEME.
103½	D	When Louis reads note.	Admiration—Jackson. (Moderato grazioso).
104	T	New York again
105¼	T	"Forget the unpleasant past."	Allegro Agitato No. 8—Andino.
106	T	"I was sitting on the window ledge—"	Water Lilies—St. Clair. (Andante moderato).
110½	T	"The Common Law" is wrong—"
111¾	T	My dear Miss West—(Letter)	Spring Flowers—Wood. (Andante).
113½	T	"Yes, will you—"
116	D	Valerie enters Louis' studio.	Repeat. THEME.
117	T	The End.

For the convenience of readers of the Moving Picture World, the prices of the above suggested music will be found in Berg's advertisement.

Musical Conditions in New York.

By. S. M. Berg.

Among the numerous inquiries received from musicians throughout the country, one of the most common is "What are my chances in New York City?"

Some go into detail on their years of experience they had as musicians, telling the class of music they are conversant with, and how they are able to compose and arrange. Others will write me they hear of the enormous salaries being paid to certain men, and that here in this great city is the opportunity to get one of the big salaried positions that are frequently offered. Then many will tell me of the poor opportunities for advancement in the town they are in, and how they have been told by their relatives and friends of their capabilities, that New York is the only place for them to come to and quickly climb the ladder of success. I have in no way exaggerated or overdrawn but have endeavored to state clearly from my personal experience in the past ten years, what is the real condition of affairs in New York.

The Musician's union which is allied to the American Federation of Labor, has a membership of about 7,000. It is financially strong, and has usually won everything it has gone after. All of the leading theaters playing Drama, Opera, Comic Opera, Musical Comedy or Burlesque, and the leading motion picture theaters engage exclusively union musicians. The Hotels, Restaurants, Cafes and Cabarets engage on the average about 33 per cent union musicians.

The largest combination in greater New York, of theaters which play pictures or vaudeville and pictures the conditions are peculiar, as no outsider really knows how the music is handled. The company trade under one man's name. Some of the houses playing vaudeville and pictures engage union musicians.

The rest have non-union men, and when the question "why" is asked, the answer is given that he books the shows but has no financial interest in the house.

The second largest company controls a number of theaters playing vaudeville and pictures or pictures only. The whole combination is non-union, and the third largest circle of theaters playing vaudeville and pictures only, the musicians again are non-union.

The union scale of salaries for pictures in New York City for the two shows a day, seven days a week is $28.00 per man, double for leader, and the price per man ranges to about $40.00 according to the scale of admission prices. On the face of such a statement as this, it would appear that fair wages and plenty of work is open to musicians, be they union or non-union. Here is the other side of the question.

As stated before, the union is composed of 7,000 members. The test for capability as a musician is ridiculously simple. In fact candidly it is disgraceful and some years ago when they were making an effort to control things, almost anybody that had the slightest idea of drawing a melody out of an instrument was accepted as a union musician, and qualified to take any job. A story is told, that a certain man who was in the habit of getting jobs for musicians at weddings, etc., according to the laws of the union, he could not be a contractor, and claim one-half of the leader's money unless he was a member of the union so it became necessary for him to become a musician and play some instrument. He took lessons on the flute and after two months applied for membership. He endeavored to play the "Star Spangled Banner" and after three attempts to play the first half was accepted.

There is a large number of men who are members of the union who are not qualified musicians in the true sense of the word. This raises the question "What is a qualified musician?" One who is acquainted with what is known as Standard Music and is able to play his part in any combination. Qualified to read with ease at sight, he should be a master of his instrument and be able to play the cadenzas, passages, etc., which are frequently marked solo in orchestrations, but I regret to state there is a large percentage of men without these capabilities. Now to the non-union men.

Owing to the war conditions, we have lying idle in New York over a thousand foreigners, who were in the habit of traveling to Europe as boat musicians. Then possibly there is another 3,000 men who are non-union. There is a second union the American International Musical and Theatrical Union which claims to have about 3,000 members but are not allied to the Federation, their scale of prices being lower. Possibly my readers will now begin to realize what all the mean. Qualifications with the exception of very few instances cut no figure. Price is the consideration. Non-union men work for less. Union men that are in need are forced to accept below the scale. Union musicians can be found working in any of the three theater circles. Non union men and at very low salaries. Over two thirds of the Restaurants, Cafes, Cabarets, have all kinds of mixed combinations. An instance was brought to me a few days ago at a picture theater at which application as director was made by a well-known Italian leader, a man who is in the habit of dressing in a white uniform with many medals. He explained to the proprietor what a good director he was and what a good orchestra he would give him. When prices were talked of, he said "My price is so much." When asked the price of the orchestra he quoted the union scale but was told the theater could not pay it. After much discourse he exclaimed "I have a friend in the outer office, permit me to bring him in." His friend was brought in and after explanations were made told the proprietor he could supply the rest of the men, union men too, at a moderate figure which was far below the union scale.

I trust that my readers will not feel that I am falsifying my statement. There is a large body of competent qualified men, with honorable ideas but the abnormal conditions of New York forces a number of them who possibly have the best of intentions but whose wives and children are in need of the necessities of life, to accept such propositions. What can they do?

A word as to the positions in the leading dramatic houses. This class of job is the easiest in the business. A stranger could not get one of these positions as they are almost all in the hands of men who have had them for years. Possibly for no other reason than they are known to the managers.

The few organists who are receiving high salaries are the exception. I am sure that if one were to insert an advertisement in the Evening Telegram (which has a column for musicians), for an organist wanted to play 7 or 8 hours a day at a salary of $30.00 a week, one would get 20 or 30 applicants.

In my earlier days I have been as far west as dear old 'Frisco, and have traveled from New Orleans to Northern Canada. My personal experience with the qualification of musicians is far beyond the New York average. The salaries are not so high but the cost of living is much cheaper. The musician in the small city is looked upon with respect and is recognized as a professional man. He has the opportunity to do a little teaching but unfortunately here in this great city one might almost classify a musician as a necessary evil. In fact this very expression was used in my presence by a well-known restaurant proprietor. I sincerely hope that the day is not far distant when conditions will be changed.

In this great city the sincere and earnest musician is deserving of a living wage, but my knowledge of conditions is that many qualified musicians willing to accept a postion for $18.00 a week to play 7 hours a day and 7 days a week, cannot find the work. With such conditions as these can you say that New York is the stepping stone to prosperity for musicians?

"SEVEN DEADLY SINS" NOT AN ALLEGORY.

The recently published statement that the new McClure release, "Seven Deadly Sins," is to be an allegorical series is announced by McClure Publications to be a misinterpretation.

While based upon a morality theme, "Seven Deadly Sins" is far removed from plays of the type of "Everyman."

The action occurs in the present, amidst the glamor and glitter of Metropolitan life. "Envy," "Pride," "Greed," "Sloth," etc., will be represented by men and women of today whose characters are the embodiments of such sins.

FRANK CURRIER ENGAGED BY METRO.

In the cast of Emily Stevens' new Metro-Rolfe production, "The Wager," is Frank Currier, whose wife, Ada Dow Currier, was Julia Marlowe's first dramatic teacher. Mr. Currier was associated with R. E. J. Miles in bringing Miss Marlowe to the attention of the critics and public at a special matinee performance of "Ingomar," and later, when she had proved her worth as a star, organized the company headed by Miss Marlowe, in which Joseph Haworth was her leading man in "Romeo and Juliet," "The Hunchback" and "Twelfth Night."

MURRAY TO MANAGE BERNHARDT.

Geo. H. Murray announces his retirement as New York representative of the Morgan Lithograph Company, after a period of five years in the above capacity, and returns to theatrical activity, from which field he deserted to form the Morgan connection. Mr. Murray's re-entree to theatrical affairs will be as general business manager for Mme. Sarah Bernhardt's final visit to America, which will begin October 9th and will include the principal cities of the United States and Canada, under the direction of Wm. F. Connor. This will mark Mr. Murray's fourth tour in the interest of the Divine Sarah.

Motion Picture Educator

Conducted by REV. W. H. JACKSON and PROF. HARDIN LUCAS

"INTOLERANCE" REVIEWED EDUCATIONALLY.

INTOLERANCE as a picture is the present climax of educated kinematography. Viewed educationally it marks the educational progress of moving pictures in that particular way in which we have always contended that the moving pictures would become an educational factor in themselves. In the school of experience—that best of schools—the moving picture has outgrown its crudeness and its need of censorious guardians; while thus outgrowing its early surroundings it has graduated as well in wisdom and culture as in age. "Intolerance" is the great proof of all this.

Accustomed as we have now become to the advertised "Greatest picture ever produced," it is a pleasure to see an instance wherein, within legitimate limitations, this overworked advertisement has its just measure of truth; many great pictures have been produced, but none greater than "Intolerance."

In its place among pictures "Intolerance" has already perhaps had wide and sufficient "reviews," yet, while not classified as an educational picture it is at once the product of educated kinematography, and allows itself to become the source of much educational value, bringing it therefore within the more select list of those pictures which possess a value most distinctly educational in all its parts and purposes.

In its subject matter "Intolerance" is worthy of close study —a study due as a reward to the maker for his thought and labor—as also it will in turn reward the student. As depicting the horrifying results of intolerance in all ages its plain truths are well told. As a rebuke to certain forms of "reform" it merits support. It should be taken for granted that an attack on genuine reform is not intended, but rather the special reform, born, not necessarily of fanaticism, but of that spirit of intolerance which is too often ignorance in high places, self-righteousness and personal conceit.

In this great picture four periods are brought forward to illustrate conspicuous times of intolerance. Ancient or Babylonian; Sacred, as shown in the time of Christ; Medieval, or the French period of 1572, and Modern, as illustrated in the present day problems. The first thing for which Mr. Griffiths must be commended lies in the fact that he sought assistance, counsel and advice from those greatest authorities peculiarly fitted to advise and help in each period; herein he laid well the foundation of the purpose to make "Intolerance" one of the greatest of pictures, for indeed it is built upon the greatest of possible authorities. The benefit of this method of preparing the material for this work is now found by the student in that, whether it be scene or story, he learns from fact and not fiction, truth and not opinions.

Mentally dividing the teaching of the picture into three parts: The Great, The True and The Weak (weak by comparison and not indicating inferiority) one seems better able to interpret the teachings of the picture. Beginning with The True one learns the truest lessons of intolerance as found depicted in the attitude of the Pharisees toward the Christ, and of Catherine de Medici against the Huguenots.

The world is more familiar with these events, especially the former, the teachings of Christ being more and more dwelt upon every day than those of any other person or period. A great sermon is preached in that portion of the picture where the Pharisees seek to entangle Christ in His possible judgment upon the case of "The woman taken in adultery." His call for sinless accusers to be the first to administer punishment, and His pronouncement, "Neither do I condemn thee; go and sin no more," are perhaps the best exponents of the title of the picture itself. The too late repentance of Catherine de Medici is its own answer to the great sin of a most terrible intolerance in which she had been the leader.

Do we find any satisfaction in thinking that the Modern Period of the picture presents the Weak subject of the spirit of intolerance? Here alone in the whole picture is there room for debate; there are those who differ with Frank P. Walsh upon fundamentals of causes, although agreeing upon the facts of existing evils.

The "Boy of the Modern Story" was as much a victim of the "frame-up" and "clear and circumstantial evidence" as he was of the intolerant spirit which put into action and brought those forces intended to destroy him; let us hope too that the spirit of the "Jenkins Industrial Magnate" may be only exaggerated to call attention to existing evils.

The truly great part of the picture is verily the Babylonian period. Here may be found everything that is greatest in every class of reproductive work. Now wonderful and there dreadful; here gorgeous and there awe-inspiring. The great city, the terrifying armies; those fearful battle scenes thrilling with an unusual overwhelming holding power, keeping the beholder spellbound with all he sees while all the time conscious of its truth and truthfulness. Pen cannot write, tongue cannot relate; the eye must see, the mind must read the vastness, the glory and the shame which in their wonderful blending are without doubt the greatest scenes ever brought before mortal eyes. Babylon is great, but Babylon is fallen, is fallen the victim of Intolerance and Jealousy. It is worth stopping to wonder if the masses of the people will see and comprehend this greatest of pictures. It is cast in a very high sphere, it demands "the full measure of man's mind," it calls for the scholar, the student, the religious and social teacher and to the "master and the man" to fathom its depths and explore its heights. "Intolerance" is a lesson in the classroom, a sermon in the church, a revelation in the social order commanding the attention of a world which has suffered and is still suffering from an intolerance which the central figure of the Sacred Period came to destroy, giving his life as a victim to it.

W. H. J.

CHANGES IN PERSONNEL AT UNIVERSAL CITY.

The following additions to the personnel of the thirty-two companies now working at Universal City have been made in the last fortnight: On August 20, R. H. Ryan to play juveniles under Director Garwood; on September 2, Earl Page to play juveniles under Director M. K. Wilson; on September 4, Nan Christy to play ingenues under Director George; Annette De Foe to play characters under Director Cochrane; George Beranger to play juveniles under Director McDermott; on September 5, Florence Vidor to play ingenues under Director De Grasse; H. C. De More and Willis Marks to play characters under Director Lois Weber; Miriam Shelby to play heavies under Director Carleton.

On August 30, H. M. Holden was engaged to play characters under Director Mong; on August 31, H. V. Sarno to play heavies under Director Kelsey; B. Larton to play characters under Director Ryder; on September 2, Louise Owen to play heavies under Director Morton; on September 5, Barney Furey to play heavies under Director Worthington; on September 6, Arthur Hoyt to play characters under Director Worthington; H. De Roy and H. C. De More to play characters and George Hupp to play juvenile roles under Director Lois Weber; on September 7, Grace Marvin to play characters under Director Lois Weber; Tom Walsh to play characters, Franzi Gunn and R. H. Ryan to play leads under Director Millarde.

DEATH OF FRANCIS CARLYLE.

Francis Carlyle, a well-known actor both on screen and stage, died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Joseph S. Murray, Hartford, Conn., on Friday, September 15, after a long illness. The deceased was a brother of Robert L. McNabb, for some years past a manager of motion picture theaters in New York. He was a member of the Screen Club of New York.

Muybridge Motion Picture Experiments

By S. Clark Patchin

Interesting Story of the First Attempts at Motion Photography, Told by Joseph Thwaite, Who Assisted in the Experiment

IN PALO ALTO, Cal., in 1878, the first real motion picture was taken, according to Joseph Thwaite of Spokane, who arranged a row of cameras to take the pictures which he claims were the first ever thrown on the screen in San Francisco. The origination of the idea Mr. Thwaite claims for Edward Muybridge. The pictures were taken on the ranch of Leland Stanford, then Governor of California, and Mr. Thwaite, who spent fifty-four years working with a camera, tells the story as follows:

Joseph Thwaite.

"I came to San Francisco from New York in 1859 and in 1862, I think, I began to work in one of the oldest photograph galleries in San Francisco, Bradley Rulofson. Mr. Rulofson, of this firm, had gotten acquainted with Muybridge when he first came into California as a book agent. Muybridge made $30,000 out of some famous book along in the early 70's, I don't remember what it was, except that I do remember that he had for display to his possible customers his list of subscribers and the name of General Grant, then president, headed the list. Muybridge was a corker. He went after the big fellows and, of course, the little ones walked right into his net without coaxing.

"With his money he went to Europe, visited London, Paris, and went also to Australia, I believe, before he landed back in San Francisco flat broke. In Paris he had picked up some old cameras and had gotten interested in the picture taking game. He spent some months in our gallery, learning the inside rudiments of picture taking and development. I taught him myself how to make his first picture bath.

"Those were the days of the cyanide of potassium bath, of the hand-sensitized plate and of the albumen paper print. The plate was coated with collodion and immersed in a silver bath.

"Muybridge opened a gallery of his own, but the quiet indoor work palled on his restless, action-loving, roving disposition, and the next thing we knew he was taking outdoor pictures. His Yosemite Valley pictures made him famous. He got an order for 100 sets at $20 a set from some railroad. Later he showed his pictures in Paris and all over Europe, and got some fancy prices for his work.

"Governor Stanford then hired him to take some pictures of his horses in motion. The Governor had gotten into some controversy about the way a fast harness racing horse moved his feet. I think one of his contentions was that occasionally all four feet would be off the ground, but I forget. Anyhow, he arranged with Muybridge to do the photographing. Muybridge had already been doing some experimenting in action pictures, and this was his scheme.

"This was prior to the introduction of the film process, and was conducted under the old wet-plate process, in which it was necessary to use twenty-four cameras instead of one, as at the present time.

"The cameras were arranged on a bench one foot apart, with shutters devised by Mr. Muybridge, and each connected by an electric button. The track was of rubber, some 60 feet in length, and thoroughly whitened by whitewash. The background was a framework, and whitened the same way.

"For horses under the saddle threads were stretched across the track, and as the horse broke the thread the impression was made.

"For horses in harness a wire was stretched across the track, and the wheel of the sulky coming in contact with the wire caused the same result. For men and animals a thread was used with the same result. Birds in motion were made with a photo gun.

"From the negative thus made transparencies were made. These were placed on what Mr. Muybridge called his zoogyroscope, being illuminated by an oxyhydrogen lantern, and as the glass turned throwing the image on the screen. These were the first photos of animals in motion ever thrown on a screen. After the demonstration in the San Francisco art gallery Mr. Stanford took Mr. Muybridge to Europe, where, in Paris, he gave an exhibition to many of the most prominent artists, who were very much surprised and highly delighted with the exhibit.

"Very few people know this true story of the origin of moving pictures. From the crude things he had to work with Muybridge was a wonderful picture producer.

"Naturally, the success of the new picture scheme attracted the attention of scientific students all over the world and the Scientific American of June 5, 1880, thus describes the Stanford-Muybridge experiment:

"'Our readers will recall the interesting illustration of the motion of a trotting horse drawn from E. J. Muybridge's instantaneous photographs, which appeared in the papers of October 19, 1878. The suggestion then made that the motion of horses and other animals might be happily exhibited by an arrangement of such photographs in connection with a zotrope has been carried out, and according to the San Francisco Call of May 5 a private exhibition of the device had been given by Mr. Muybridge in the gallery of the San Francisco Art Association.

"'Mr. Muybridge calls his instrument the zoogyroscope. It is described as a circular glass, having a series of photographs of the animals to be represented in motion, the photos being successively illuminated by an oxyhydrogen lantern as the glass turned, throwing a single, continuous, yet nonchanging picture upon the screen. While the separate photo had shown the successive position of a trotting or running horse in making a single stride, the zoogyroscope threw upon the screen apparently the living, moving animal.

"'Nothing was wanting but the clatter of the hoofs upon the turf and an occasional breath of steam from the nostrils to make the spectator believe that he had before him genuine flesh and blood steeds. In the views of hurdle leaping the simulation was still more admirable, even to the motion of the tail as the animal gathered for the jump, the raising of his head—all were there. Views of an ox trotting, a wild bull on the charge, greyhounds and deer running and birds flying in midair were shown—also athletes in various positions.'

"I suppose that my being one of the early tutors in picture taking rudiments was the reason Muybridge asked me to prepare the cameras. I well remember the occasion. The horse that was used for the experiment was Abe Edgerton. Occident, Governor Stanford's great trotter, with a record of 2:16. was not used. There was another animal photographed over the hurdles.

"I saw Occident, Lucy and Goldsmith Maid race at Alameda in 1872. The governor thought a lot of that great racer.

"I never did hear what became of Muybridge, but imagine that he is, of course, dead. He was two or three years older than I and I will soon be 78.

"I left San Francisco in 1881 and opened a place in Portland in 1881 that I called 'The Little Gallery Around the Corner.' I took pictures there for 30 years.

"The picture business has seen some wonderful changes and I've been through many of them in the last 60 years. I guess, like every other photographer, I'll die poor. I never knew one who saved anything worth while.

"The interesting character of the work has been also in the people. I've met some of the Coast's greatest characters. The West has been just as rich in picturesque people as in picturesque scenery. I'm only sorry I haven't 57 more years to live in it."

WALLACE PYKE ENGAGED BY PALLAS.

Wallace Pyke, the well known character man, has been engaged by Pallas Pictures and will be seen under this brand on the Paramount Program in the forthcoming Dustin Farnum vehicle, "A Son of Erin."

A Plea for Truthful Portrayal

Prominent Chinese Characterizes as Untrue the Photoplay Conception of Life and Habits of His Countrymen

T. L. LI,
President of the Chinese Students' Club of Iowa University.

THE universally recognized principle underlying the establishment of the moving picture show is that it is a social agency to give the public through their intuition and at their leisure moments creative and instructive pleasures. Failing instruction, it loses half its value as such; failing instruction and pleasure, it loses its entire value; while failing both and showing disagreeable, indecent and immoral scenes, it not only forfeits all its value, but virtually becomes a social hindrance in the way of progress, enlightenment and civilization, and thus must cease to be.

While having accomplished, it must be admitted, much toward these two ends—instruction and pleasure or recreation—the American moving picture show is as yet not free from, at least, one serious defect—indeed, a real violation of the very principle to which it primarily owes its existence. This has to do with the shows concerning the character of the Chinese inhabitants in this country. So far as known, what they display about the Chinese may be fairly summed up in a few words—smoking opium, gambling, fighting, robbery, murder, arson, rape, or any combination thereof. As the proverb says, that praise magnifies what is good and aspersion amplifies what is bad, it is needless to say that these shows certainly exaggerate what is really committed by the Chinese.

However, it would not be so bad, if they merely exaggerated the dark side of the Chinese immigrants. But unfortunately, more than this, their very frequency and monotony profoundly mislead the American public to think that such are all the Chinese who compose the Chinese nation. This is a misconception. Dr. Edward, president of the Harvard Medical College in Shanghai, China, in an address to a Chinese student club, of which the writer was then a member, remarked that it would be just as great a mistake for the Chinese to exemplify the American people by what they have seen of the American tramps, drunkards, rascals, and what not in Shanghai, as for the American to pick up a few of the meanest Chinese laundry-men in New York or Boston as samples of the Chinese people. It is, therefore, clear that no people has the right to denounce another people simply on the ground that a few individuals of the latter do not behave themselves.

Granted, for the sake of argument, that the film truly represents what is done by the Chinese and by all the Chinese, still there is no necessity, nay, no advisability, of introducing such shows to the public. In the first place, they do not educate the people, because they are evil suggestions, which ought to be eliminated as much as possible for the sake of social morality. In the second place, they do not really afford pleasure or recreation, because they are, as a rule, horrible, disagreeable, unpleasant and uninteresting. On the other hand, as a result of their influence, they produce and intensify among the Chinese inhabitants and Americans who live side by side, in the same society, racial prejudice, friction, disdain and antipathy, which benefit no American, but injure the Chinese as to their feeling and reputation. What results, then, are to be obtained from such shows?

Furthermore, shortcomings and weak points are common to all peoples, no matter how civilized they may be, for human beings are not perfect. Read a few of the leading American newspapers and note what is done, say, by the immigrants from Europe, the center of modern civilization, you will unmistakably discover that what the film charges to be committed by the Chinese immigrants is nearly daily practiced by the former. Yet we do not see shows which solely and invariably display them as such. What reason have the film companies to single out the Chinese as the target for criticism and attacks?

As any other people in the world, the Chinese possess good traits as well as bad ones. Their filial piety—the soundest foundation for social structure and the highest virtue of mankind—has never failed to be praised and reverenced among scholars. Their conjugal virtue, which is seldom disturbed by such an alarming social evil as divorce, so prevalent in the Western world, especially in the United States, constitutes the wonderful stability of the Chinese family and society. It is said that there is probably no other people who is so persistent in seeking education as the Chinese, for it is the attainment of which distinguishes a Chinese most promptly and prominently in the family, society and the Government; while the simplicity, honesty, frugality and industry of the Chinese masses have almost become their hereditary qualities for nearly a hundred generations and served as the cornerstone upon which the grand edifice of the Chinese empire has rested for a duration of over three thousand years amidst all sorts of storms. That all the ancient peoples have faded away one after another, but the Chinese alone still stand united and intact, tells truly that there must be something in the quality of the Chinese themselves. A German writer has recently said that, in his opinion, "the finest elements for future citizenship are in China."

Nowadays, exchange of civilization and culture among nations is as much mooted as exchange of knowledge and experience among individuals. What is here above described is the best there is in the Chinese people—things which are essences and fundamentals of Chinese civilization and culture, things which the Western world usually lacks, things of which the American public understand pitifully little. If the Western world should ever attempt to enrich its own civilization by adopting the good points of the Oriental civilization at all, these are unquestionably what it should first understand. Would it then not be a great service to the country for the film companies to show the American public what is good in the Chinese people whereby they may understand it and make good what they terribly lack?

Besides, the fine arts of the Chinese are among the wonders of the world; the scenery of Southern China, particularly along the Yantze Valley, is one of Nature's beauties, charms, grandeurs and sublimities. Their modern establishments and achievements—the Kalgan extension, one of the most difficult, yet one of the best built, pieces of railway; the rail-bridge over the Yellow river, one of the greatest modern works, built with immense labor, toil and vexation; the arsenals of Hang-Yang, Shanghai and Canton; the wonderful iron mines of Tai-Yeh; the stupendous coal mines of Pinshang; the modern schools, colleges and universities; the new factories, and so on—are manifestations of the progress of the Chinese and indications of their latent potentialities. All these and a hundred and one other things can be put into the American film and exhibited to the public with great interest and instruction, for these open their eyes as well as amuse their minds. Why not show these instead of the horrible, disagreeable and untrue scenes about the Chinese, which are neither interesting nor instructive?

Moreover, such a modification of the shows would not only educate the public, but also revise their attitude toward the Chinese, which, in turn, will call forth from the latter's hearts a quick response. Then, and only then, can it be expected that the friendly relationships between China and the United States, already established through diplomatic, commercial, religious and educational channels, may be so strengthened and fortified as to last forever for the best interest and benefit of the people of the two countries.

Otherwise, if the American film companies disregarding reason, justice and humanity continue their immoral and pernicious practice of making money at the expense of the reputation and honor of the Chinese, one thing is certain to come. The resentment of the Chinese in this country must sooner or later be carried back into China, where there are, be it remembered, thousands of American merchants and others whose very success in China depend much upon the good will of the Chinese people. Supppose they pick up, as an act of retaliation, the worst features of the "little foreigners" in Shanghai and put them into the film, distributed to all the large cities; what would become of the Chinese good will toward American merchants and others; what would be the Chinese conception or idea about the Americans as a whole, and how would the Americans feel about it? The answer is to be left to the American public, which is generally sane, fair and judicious.

HOUSE MANAGER MARRIED.

S. de Fazio, house manager of the Paramount theater at Minerva, Pa., was married recently. In connection with the wedding celebration Mr. de Fazio installed in the theater a new $12,000 organ. The management is also contemplating the rebuilding of the entire front of the theater.

STRAND THEATER, OWOSSO, MICH.

New Picture House Has Captivating Front, and All Appointments of Modern Photoplay Palaces—Is Situated in Prominent Part of City—Influential Men Identified With Company.

"THE prettiest theater in Central Michigan" is the universal verdict on the Strand, Owosso, Mich., which was opened early in July and which has been playing to capacity business since. The house has a regular picture program, which includes Bluebird, V-L-S-E, and Triangle, but the silent drama gives way about once each fortnight to a good comic opera or drama. The Strand is fortunately situated on the site of the Owosso theater, a legitimate house which was in existence for a half century and in which many "legitimate" stars have appeared.

The Owosso Theater Company, incorporated, owns the Strand. The officers are Dr. G. N. Finch, president; Eugene S. Brewer, city engineer of Owosso, vice-president and general manager; Major M. J. Phillips, at present on the border with the Michigan troops, secretary, and Frank W. Rayen, of the Citizens' Savings Bank, treasurer.

There are 602 leather upholstered seats in the Strand, all 20x22 inches; the spacing is 30 inches downstairs and 32 inches upstairs. Every seat has a perfect view of the stage and the nearest is 35 feet from the 12x16 foot screen. The stage is 32x44½ feet, with a proscenium opening 26 feet wide and 27 feet high. It is 80 feet to the top of the fly loft. It is over 40 feet from main floor to ceiling. There are 300 forty-watt colored lights on dimmers.

Strand Theater, Owosso, Mich.

Acoustics are perfect, and a whisper from the stage is audible in any part of the house. The retiring rooms for men and women are tasteful and expensive and are fitted with window curtains, draperies and rugs. There are waiting rooms with toilet facilities for men and women both upstairs and downstairs. Dressing rooms for the artists are located under the stage.

Double flow ventilation and heating with washed air has been provided. The cooling system is very effective. On the season's hottest day the air cooled 17 degrees within 10 feet after passing the blower. This was due to the evaporation of water and ice. There is a complete change of air every six minutes throughout the theater. Air is forced in and out by the use of three blowers, each operated by five horsepower motors.

Old rose gives impressiveness to the theater interior. The front is terra cotta trimmed. Old ivory, sepia toned, indirect lighting and a National cash register ticket selling device are two equipment novelties that have caused much favorable comment. A handsome marquis protects the sidewalk in front of the theater. An illuminated sign, 45x30 feet, elevated 80 feet, can be seen all over the city and proves a magnet for those looking for wholesome amusement.

Practically all theaters in the district, which is a feeder for Owosso, are much smaller. Owosso is surrounded by the wealthiest agricultural territory in the state, and the management is making a play to capture the patronage of the many automobile owners who live in it. Their mailing list includes 1,800 names of auto owners within ten miles of Owosso. The Strand was looked upon as so desirable a prospect that the owners refused the offer of thousands of dollars of additional capital. The four officers of the corporation are the sole stockholders.

The booth equipment is modern and complete. It includes two Motiograph projectors, model 1916, motor driven, with a Fort Wayne rotary converter, changing alternating current "juice" to direct current. There is a ventilator 30 inches square to the roof, and a No. 5 Ventura fan force out 4,420 cubic feet of air per minute. The booth, which is fitted with a spotlight, is of concrete. It is 8½x12 feet and 8 feet high.

STAR THEATER, OGDENSBURG, N. Y.

Well-Conducted Picture House Owned by F. Gilroy—To Have Popular Photoplayers Appear From Time to Time.

THE Star theater in Ogdensburg, N. Y., owned and managed by F. Gilroy, is a pretty and comfortable place in which to find an evening's amusement. In it one will always find a well-balanced program of pictures picked from various programs, among which are: Paramount, Triangle, Metro, Fox, etc. The air in the auditorium of the Star at all times is healthful, for the place is equipped with an efficient ventilation system. The temperature is never too warm nor too cold, but just right, no matter what the season, and the musical accompaniment to the pictures invariably elicits words of praise.

The seating capacity of this up-to-date place of amusement is 1,302. The chairs are wide, and the rows have been placed at such a width from each other that one does not experience difficulty in trying to get in or out of a full row. Three shows are given daily. Answering a current request from his patrons to see the popular photoplayers in person at the Star, Mr. Gilroy has decided to invite a leading picture star at intervals. Macklyn Arbuckle, who recently appeared, was thunderously received, and the receipts on that day jumped perceptibly. Many automobile patrons of the Star who live some distance from the place hurried to see Mr. Arbuckle off the screen, and the accompanying photograph which was taken on the day that he was at the Star and which shows a number of automobiles standing outside of the entrance bears out the statement that the Star has an auto clientele.

Star Theater, Ogdensburg, N. Y.

The Star is a fireproof structure, and the front is well illuminated. The house is kept very clean, and the posters of scenes of the pictures to be seen at the Star and the portraits of the photoplayers have been placed in neat frames in the lobby and on the outside of the house. A glass canopy, adequately illuminated, extends to the curb. The Star is a photoplay house of which the people of Ogdensburg can be proud.

RODGERS AND COLLINS LEASE GRAND.

I. W. Rodgers and John A. Collins of the Criterion theater, Poplar Bluffs, Mo., have leased the Grand theater at Hope, Ark. The extensive improvements that are being made in the Grand include a balcony and an enlargement of the parquette floor, which will allow of a hundred extra seats being installed. The balcony will also accommodate a hundred extra. It is expected that the renovated Grand will be ready for business on October 2. Mr. Collins will direct the Grand, while Mr. Rodgers will manage the Criterion at Poplar Bluff.

COZY THEATER, LOUISVILLE, KY.

Switow Adds Another Photoplay House to His Growing List—Is Situated in an Excellent Quarter of the City—Though Not Ornate in Decorations Structure Is Nevertheless Attractive—Fireproof Throughout.

M. SWITOW, of Louisville, who for several years has been one of the leading and largest exhibitors south of the Ohio River, president of the Switow Amusement Company, and stockholder in many other moving picture houses, recently opened the Cozy Theater, the latest addition to the picture ranks of Louisville. This house is located in South Louisville, a rapidly growing suburb, which is now inside of the city proper, but which has a very large working class population and a big area to draw from. The The house is operated by M. Switow, as proprietor.

The theater itself is not a separate building, as has been the case with most of the Switow houses, but occupies the ground floor in the new lodge building of the Suburban Lodge of Masons. However, the theater was erected for moving picture purposes under a lease agreement made with Mr. Switow in advance, and was designed largely on his suggestions by the local architectural firm of Joseph & Joseph, who have built over a half hundred theaters in Kentucky,

Cozy Theater, Louisville, Ky.

Tennessee and Indiana during the past few seasons. The building occupies an excellent site at the corner of Third and Central avenues, in the heart of a district which is largely peopled with a money spending class.

Needless to say the Cozy has been making good from its start a few weeks ago. The house has a seating capacity of 440, and runs two shows each evening, one at 7.30 o'clock and the second at 9 o'clock. The admission prices are 5 cents for children and 10 cents for adults. The expense of operating the theater is rather light. Of course the rental is the main thing, but nothing elaborate is demanded by suburban people, and the house is operated by a small force. Sam Switow, a son of M. Switow, handles the active management. A ticket seller, an operator and an assistant operator, a piano player and one usher make up the force; a porter, of course, being included. The theater is steam heated.

The building in itself is attractive, being built of rough texture, rich red brick, set off with stone trimmings. The auditorium is 35x65 feet, and of fireproof construction throughout. The walls are eighteen inches in thickness, the floor of solid concrete, and the ceiling supports consist of steel "I" beams, extending directly across the ceiling and covered with plain plaster. There are four long beams and two short ones, making panel effects in the ceiling.

There is nothing ornate about the interior of the Cozy. The walls are finished in old rose, while the ceiling finish is ecru. The room is approximately square, except at the rear, where the walls have been built diagonally across the rear exits at each side of the stage. The seats are finished in green and are of standard dimensions, set thirty-five inches from back to back. They are anchored into the concrete floor with leaded bolts. The green seats, rose walls and ecru ceiling tone in nicely.

The floor has a gradual pitch from the vestibule doors to the stage. A dry well, with sewer connections, has just been installed so that the floor may be flushed out with a hose each day. Directly in front of the stage is an eight-foot space across the theater which is used for the orchestra and a passageway. The music is furnished by an upright piano, and an electrical instrument. There are twenty-four rows of seats divided by two side aisles, each aisle being forty-eight inches wide. There are nine seats to the row in the center aisle group, and from four to five in the side or wall groups. The aisles are padded with heavy rubber runs.

In lighting the theater the semi-direct system has been used, consisting of four large white fixtures down each side of the house, and suspended from the ceiling. There is also a row of lighting fixtures in front of the stage and behind the screen opening, but these fixtures are not used at present. The stage itself extends out about five feet from the screen.

All woodwork in the theater is of pine, finished in mahogany. The doors all open outward except the swing doors on the inside of the vestibule. The latter extends across the front of the lobby and is cut into two three sections, these being an entrance and exit lobby, each 5x5 feet, and the ticket or box office in the center, which is 5x8 feet. The lobby is eight feet wide and 18 feet long. It is floored in large red tiles. Five brass poster frames are used at the front of the building, there being one six-sheet frame, two three-sheet, one single, and one double. The walls at the side of the lobby have also been equipped with lattices upon which posters are hung.

Directly off the auditorium and to the left of the entrance is the women's rest room. This room is fitted with two mirrors, given plenty of light, an electric fan and the usual toilet fixtures. The men's smoking room is on the opposite side of the building and opens from a passageway connecting with steps leading to the operator's room. All electric switches for the electric sign and house lights are in a box on this passage. The operating room is of steel construction and opens into the main auditorium by the portholes only. Two Power's 6A machines, a spot light and a compensarc make up the equipment in this department which is presided over by Ernest Carpenter, one of the best known photographers and operators in the city, and by his assistant.

BIJOU THEATER, GREENVILLE, S. C.

Nine Years in One Location and Still Doing Good Business—Curtis & McBee, Proprietors.

NINE years ago Curtis & McBee opened the Bijou theater in Greenville, S. C. Today the house is still in its original location, and it has been a paying proposition since it was started. Although we have not been told so, we believe that a number of improvements have been made in the Bijou from time to time in order that it may be kept up to date. The accompanying illustration of the lobby and front looks like one of a modern picture house and tends to certify this belief.

Bijou Theater, Greenville, S. C.

The structure has been built of fireproof material, and seats 325. The floor of the lobby is of tile, and the name, Bijou, has been worked into the tiling. Running as a trimming along the bottom of the lobby wall is a slab of marble. Above this for a height of about ten feet is glazed terra cotta. This is surmounted by a narrow strip of marble which also outlines the box office and the entrance doors to the auditorium. The box office is in the center of the lobby between the doors, which are done in mirrors. The walls of the lobby are adorned with neatly framed pictures of photoplayers, and the general color scheme of the lobby and the auditorium is pleasing and harmonious.

The operating room contains two Power's machines, a 6A and 6B, and the projection is in charge of a competent man. A Mirror screen is used. The program is made up of productions from General Film Company, Pathe, Universal, Mutual, etc. The exterior is abundantly illuminated.

CORONADO THEATER, LAS VEGAS, N. M.

Browne & Rosenwald Establish High Grade Picture House—A Credit to Industry—Exterior Abundantly Illuminated.

THE Las Vegas Amusement Company of Las Vegas, N. M., opened on September 15 the Coronado theater in that city. The opening was attended by big crowds and augurs well for a prosperous career of the Coronado. The accompanying architects' washdrawing of the facade shows what a magnificent and imposing front the structure has. The Coronado is situated at the corner of Sixth street and Main avenue, a most advantageous location.

The exterior is done in terra cotta, with massive pillars and a beautiful arched entrance. The lobby is spacious and cool, and artistically decorated. The auditorium has a seating capacity of 650. The stage is unusually large for a motion picture theater. Two Simplex machines are used and a mercury arc rectifier.

The heating and ventilating system in the new theater is of the best. The cooling arrangement for summer, which also can be used as a ventilator, is so constructed that a powerful fan, driven by an electric motor, draws the air from outside the building and forces it over an air washer so that the air is cooled and freed from dust and dirt. By the use of this device it will be possible to keep the temperature in the theater 20 degrees cooler than the atmosphere outside, even with a crowded house, and the air is kept circulating by the motor-driven fan. The lighting system both inside and out is excellent, 520 tungsten lights being used on the exterior and in the lobby alone.

Architect's Drawing of Coronado Theater, Las Vegas, New Mexico.

The Coronado is probably the most modern playhouse in the State of New Mexico from the standpoint of comfort and safety. There are seven exits, making a total of 42 feet of exit space. They are properly designated by lamps, and the doors are of a pattern which can be opened from the interior by a simple push, but they cannot be opened from the outside. Nobody need worry about the exit being locked at some critical emergency. The aisles vary from three to nine feet in width. There are nine boxes in the rear of the structure which can seat 60 persons.

The interior lighting is the indirect system with beautiful fixtures. The screen has been set in a shadow box, which permits of the auditorium being lighted without interfering with the pictures. No expense was spared to make this building artistic and pleasing to the eye. The admission prices are 5 and 10 cents. H. P. Browne is president of the Las Vegas Amusement Company and Cecilio Rosenwald secretary and treasurer.

PALACE THEATER, LONG PINE, NEB.

Although there are only 1,100 inhabitants in Long Pine, Neb., that town can boast of a moving picture theater with a seating capacity of 400. That photoplay house is the Palace theater, under the management of Eugene A. Upstill. It was opened on November 17, 1915, and its daily receipts since that time have been quite satisfactory. The dimensions of the structure are 48 by 100 feet. The interior of the Palace is illuminated by the indirect lighting system. The operating room, which is fireproof, is 6 by 7 feet in size, and has as a part of its equipment two Powers 6A motor-driven projectors and a Fort Wayne compensarc. Although the house is primarily devoted to pictures, the management books occasionally a good road show. In addition to running the regular program subjects, Mr. Upstill has shown such big features as "The Battle Cry of Peace" and "The Birth of a Nation." Both of these pictures drew exceedingly heavy patronage, and it is Mr. Upstill's intention to continue the policy of exhibiting like big subjects.

The Palace Theater, Long Pine, Neb.

CRESCENT THEATER, BELZONI, MISS.

Thursday, September 14, marked the opening of the Crescent theater, Belzoni, Miss. As can be seen from the accompanying illustration, it is a pretty little theater for a town with only 2,000 inhabitants. The building in which it is situated is built of brick and other fireproof material, and its front is ornamented in terra cotta. The structure is two stories in height. The name of the theater has been artistically worked into the glass embellishment across the lobby entrance, and an illuminated two-side electric sign also bearing the word "Crescent" has been suspended above the main entrance. The box office, which is located in the middle of the lobby and which is decorated in stained glass, is built of the same material as other parts of the lobby: artistic and plain terra cotta. Portraits of photoplayers adorn the walls, and the posters are framed. The Strand has a seating capacity of 450. The balcony has been set aside for the exclusive use of colored people. The interior is plain, but nevertheless pleasing. "Peggy," a Triangle subject, was the opening picture. The Strand's bill is made up of regular program pictures and features. The admission prices are 5 and 10 cents; 5 cents for children under 12 years of age.

Crescent Theater, Belzoni, Miss.

BROWN NEW MANAGER OF STRAND.

W. C. Brown is the new manager of the Strand theater, Grand Rapids, Mich. He succeeds T. Parker Junkin. Mr. Brown is an experienced theatrical man.

Quality the Remedy for Trade Ills

William A. Brady

"Overproduction," "Too Much Competition" "High Salaries" and "Program System" Are Excuses.

I FAIL to coincide in a number of the reasons called upon to account for certain conditions which assert themselves from time to time in the motion picture business. A manufacturer produces a photoplay which for some reason or other—usually because it is not up to the mark—falls short of expectations, or perhaps entails a considerable loss. He immediately springs to the conclusion that the business is suffering from overproduction, or too much competition, or that salaries of the principals are too high, or that the program system is killing off pictures, or that he is the one individual victim of some malign influence which does not exist in fact.

There is no overproduction of good pictures. There is no such thing as too much competition in meritorious output. Salaries of actors who draw the public pay themselves automatically. And, finally, the program system is the only one under which the exhibitor can thrive and the producer exist at all.

It is the inferior picture that is overproduced, precisely for the same reason that applies to every kind of business. There is nobody of whom I have ever heard who can tell to a moral certainty that the great public will respond to his photoplay. But if he possesses the knowledge of what makes drama, and knows good photography from bad, and has a fair knack of mending broken bridges, the producer is in a position to establish a first-rate average of quality.

And quality is what counts. It makes overproduction, competition and the rest look sick.

There is a theory which finds expression in print once in a while to the effect that experience as a producing manager for the speaking theater is valueless in the motion picture world—that the two lines are so far apart as to nullify a man's skill in one of them when he applies himself to the other.

Never in the world was there a more absurd assertion. For example, when I came into the motion picture field I noticed among other matters that scenery, properties, costumes and the like were not always on hand when the actors were ready to proceed, and that long delays ensued, during which the salaries and other expenses ran on. This would not amount to much on the speaking stage, where rehearsals are not usually paid for, but what would be thought of a producing manager in the "regular" theater who allowed his play to go up to its actual first night without a complete equipment of scenes, props and dresses?

It was this very experience of mine in theater productions which showed me one of the most common and serious channels of that absolute wastefulness and disregard for consequences which have been so costly to photoplay producers. Waste, leakage, lack of being ready, squeezing through by the skin of the teeth, and not taking the pains to master every angle of the business—these are the essential shortcomings which bring loss to some producers and send them on a panic-stricken hunt for excuses.

It is no state secret that when I first went rummaging through the belongings of the World Film Corporation, I found several complete photoplays lying upon the shelf which could not be marketed. How many of these there were, or what I did with them, does not matter. They were there, representing a very big expenditure which had been tossed into the discard.

There was no legitimate excuse for such a condition. Nobody in particular was to blame for it, for such situations are apt to crop out in a business that has grown too fast for many persons to keep up. I mention the matter as the only real case of overproduction with which I am acquainted. If these pictures had been good enough to sell in the first place, they would not have been overproduced.

This brings us around to a point worth considering. When a man or company is dealing in an article for which there is a general demand, and cannot find a satisfactory outlet for his product, the chances are that the product itself is at fault, not that the trouble lies in market conditions, high salaries or any other outside influence or condition.

The biggest things I have ever been driving at in my direction of the World-Brady pictures were (and are) the stoppage of waste, the systematization of production and the perfection of the output. We are now so far ahead that we could quadruple our releases if we so desired, or we could sit back and rest on our oars for five or six months entirely without inconvenience.

So you see we have plenty of time to devote to the improvement of quality, as still another alternative, and in my judgment the one that fully answers every croak about overproduction, high salaries, competition or any of the other imaginary ills of a business which is entirely amenable to rational consideration.

Mutual Sales Force Revamped

Opening of Fall and Winter Campaign Brings Changes in Alignment of Organization.

THE opening of the fall season and the usual arrangements for the handling of the added business that always comes with the approach of cold weather has resulted in numerous additions and changes in the sales and executive forces of the Mutual Film Corporation's sixty-eight branches.

Plans have been drawn up and arrangements completed for the erection of two-story buildings to handle the Mutual's business in Boston and in Cincinnati. The Boston building will be located at 123 Pleasant street, in the heart of the Boston film trade.

B. Tolmas, former salesman of the Mutual's New York Twenty-third Street branch and of the Philadelphia office, has been appointed manager of the Philadelphia branch. J. W. Pierce has been made his assistant. The sales force at this office will consist of J. Safron, W. Naismith and B. S. Daniels.

E. G. Evans, until recently manager of the Mutual's Baltimore office, has been transferred to Washington in the same capacity at the Mutual's branch here. O. D. Weems, formerly salesman at the Baltimore branch, has succeeded Mr. Evans.

The Indianapolis office has been put in charge of William Engelman, previously manager of the Evansville, Ind., branch. Norman D. Nixon, former salesman, has been appointed to the management of the Evansville branch.

M. S. White, formerly assistant manager of the Oklahoma City office, has been transferred to Kansas City as assistant manager of that city's branch. Harry M. Young has been sent to Kansas City as salesman. O. S. Taylor, formerly Phoenix, Arizona, branch manager who resigned some time ago on account of ill health, has again returned to the Mutual fold. He will assist Jack Brainard to manage the Oklahoma City branch.

W. J. Drummond, a former manager of the Mutual's Spokane office, has again returned to the Mutual as manager of the Los Angeles branch. N. E. Levi, salesman out of the San Francisco office, has been transferred to Los Angeles, where he used to be.

The following salesmen have recently been added to the Mutual's forces: J. Herrington, Spokane; A. S. Kirkpatrick Seattle; W. H. Teeple, Buffalo; Lloyd Hammond, Detroit; F. E. McCoy, San Francisco; Arthur Hogenson, Detroit; H. S. Waterman, Los Angeles; Charles A. Gardner, Cleveland; Alfred Raymond, Dallas, Tex.; Leon Klasky, Indianapolis, and M. Kauffman, Toronto, Ont.

C. B. Price, the Canadian General Manager, has just returned to his office at Toronto after a trip through the Mutual's Canadian branches. He announces the appointment of T. C. Malcom as manager of the Montreal office to succeed N. Hepworth, who has left for the European front.

Hunter Bennett, sales manager for the Mutual, has returned from an eastern tour and is shortly to visit a number of western centers.

UNIVERSAL DISCLAIMS CONNECTION WITH HAL REID-REPUBLICAN FILM.

The Universal Film Mfg. Co. wishes emphatically to call the attention of the motion picture industry to the fact that Hal Reid was not an employee of that organization at the time he produced a political film for the Republican National Committee attacking the present administration.

Mr. Reid had absolutely no co-operation from the Universal in the preparation of the picture, which was a private venture of which the Universal had no knowledge until it learned of it through the columns of the New York World.

Sherrill On the Fence

'E Don't Know Where 'E's At Regarding "The Conquest of Canaan"—Will It Be Open Market or Program?

"THE Conquest of Canaan," the most recent release of the Frohman Amusement Corporation, which was given its first public showing last week at the Strand theater, seems likely to throw the Frohman Corporation over to the open market.

"Jaffery," now on the Hearst International program, with eight features on the World program and one with Pathe, William L. Sherrill, president of the concern, was besought by numerous independent exchange owners, immediately after the showing, with the result that this picture, which created so favorable an impression, is likely to reach the open market within the next few weeks.

The venture into the independent field by the Frohman concern will make an important event, for during the past five months the productions of that concern have stood out as bright spots in the general field, and with Augustus Thomas' "The Witching Hour" and other great dramatic classics under option or in work, important independent exchanges throughout the country, which are endeavoring to produce "The Conquest of Canaan" can rely on a number of high-class features per year to add to what other independent subjects they have.

Immediately following the showing of "The Conquest of Canaan," Mr. Sherrill was besieged by prominent film men who endeavored to show him the advantages of the open market, such expert film reviewers and buyers as Joseph Lee, Louis Rosenbluh and Joseph Friedman.

Mr. Sherrill in leaning toward the independent exchange said:

"We have had a number of pictures on programs and in very few instances have the handling of our subjects been what it should. 'Jaffery,' which Mr. Hearst purchased from us outright, was exploited by the International Film Service in a manner becoming the fineness of the feature, with the result that during the first week of its life it played about fifty theaters in greater New York, and because of the attractiveness of the story and production and the added strength of the advertising and publicity given the picture, it more than satisfied the exhibitors.

"Any number of well-known exhibitors have communicated with us since seeing the picture at the Strand and asked us if we were going to put the picture through a program. I told them we had not decided, and they spoke for the open market.

"One prominent theater owner, whose name I cannot mention, said: 'I've been playing three different programs, two days each week, and my business has fallen off considerable. I will play 'The Conquest of Canaan' a week. There are new faces in it, new ideas, novelties that my program features do not possess, and my audiences are being bored with the faces I am compelled to show them.'

"I have not definitely decided to put the picture on the open market, for I have several offers from program managers, but they insist on buying the world's rights, which I cannot give, for we have disposed of our European, Australian and other foreign rights for two years to come. If we decided this week to go to the open market, we have almost sufficient offers now to cover the entire United States, but I want to be sure of my ground first."

That the Frohman concern is on the right track, in so far as their themes and finished pictures are concerned, two paralleling criticisms stand out. Julian Johnson, editor of the Photo Play Magazine, in speaking of "Jaffery" said: "It has no predecessor and it proves that clean dramatic pictures can be made perfectly without resort to the sensational or morbid. It is the best picture I have seen in three years."

Joe Lee, a prominent state right buyer and representative of various exchanges, wrote Mr. Sherrill, in part, as follows, after viewing "The Conquest of Canaan": "It is undoubtedly one of the most interesting subjects, properly produced, clean, legitimate and consistent, that it has ever been my pleasure to look at. I have seen ninety-five features during the past month, and yours is the best of all. It is by far the best picture Frohman has yet made."

Felix F. Feist, of the World Film Corporation, designated the picture as a great box-office attraction, and no less than three other program managers have made offers for the picture.

A definite announcement of the disposition of "The Conquest of Canaan" will be announced in display advertisement in this publication next week.

Kate Price Now a Vim Star

THOSE who have followed the fortunes of Vitagraph and its stars from its early beginnings will remember Kate Price, the laugh-making star who has twinkled for seven years in Vitagraph productions. Her most recent appearance was with Fatty Arbuckle, the Triangle comedian, in the "Waiters' Ball," in which she shared the heavyweight honors with Arbuckle himself.

Immediately after her work in this picture was concluded, she was signed on a long-term contract with Vim production by Mark Dintenfass and Louis Burstein, to star with "Babe" Hardy, the famous Vim comedian, and Raymond McKee in Vim comedies released on the General Film Service.

Kate Price.

Raymond McKee is another newcomer to the Vim staff with a record for ability. He was formerly with Lubin, then with the Edison Company. His last picture was with Emily Stevens in a Metro release. The first picture in which the trio appear will be "A Maid to Order," the Vim release for October 26.

A brief synopsis follows: When Raymond's frivolous young wife informs him that household duties were too hard for her, they ask Kate, the cook, where a neat maid can be secured. Kate being the proud possessor of the luxury of Plump as her husband, instantly sees a chance whereby she can keep the job in her own household and also force Plump to work for his daily bread. Informing the young couple that she knows a jewel of a maid, she hurries home and dresses Plump in some of her clothes. Both Raymond and his wife are impressed with the appearance of the new maid and try to make it as pleasant as possible for her. However, Kate's jealousy comes to the surface when she sees her loving man petted by the young wife, and Plump, to his disgust, is forced to submit to the attentions of Raymond.

Finally when the young wife discovers her husband flirting with the maid, her anger arises suddenly and she orders Plump out of the house. Raymond intercedes for the maid and matters rest until Kate again catches the wife petting Plump. Then everything is certainly all off and in the confusion Raymond learns that the supposed maid is a man, so between the three-sided attack poor Plump is done up to a frazzle.

RICHARDSON COTTON KILLED.

Well-Known Essanay Character Actor Struck by Automobile on Wisconsin Highway.

Richardson Cotton, well known character actor both in photoplays and on the speaking stage, was killed by an automobile Sunday, September 24, at Ephriam, a summer resort near Sturgeon Bay, Wisconsin.

Mr. Cotton had gone to Ephriam with a company of Essanay players, where exterior scenes were being taken for "The Chaperon," an Essanay feature. He was to take an important character part, but had not yet started work. On Sunday evening he took a stroll along the country road. At a sharp turn in the road an automobile going at a high rate of speed struck him. He was killed instantly.

Mr. Cotton joined the Essanay Company two years ago and had taken prominent character parts in many plays. He was an exceptionally versatile actor, and was born in Massachusetts forty-eight years ago. He was on the speaking stage eighteen years before joining the Essanay Company. He began his career with Dan Ryan in Shakespearean roles, afterwards playing with Thomas Kean and with Ward and James. He played leads in stock in Chicago and Minneapolis. He was a member of the Strollers Club, Chicago. A widow and daughter survive him.

Mutual Schedule

Richard Bennett and Florence Turner Head the List of Releases for October 9.

RICHARD BENNETT, in the most artistically handled and most perfectly acted screen production which has conveyed the talents of the eminent American actor to the public, "Philip Holden—Waster," heads the schedule of Mutual Film Corporation's releases for the week beginning October 9. This Mutual star production will appear on Monday, October 9.

"Philip Holden—Waster" is a re-title for the drama, "His Brother's Keeper," which was written for Mr. Bennett by Kenneth B. Clarke before the star's journey out to the coast, and which, from the first announcement of Mr. Bennett's present contract with the Mutual, was named as the vehicle for his second Mutual Star Production. "The Sable Blessing," which was intended for Mr. Bennett's premier in Mutual Star Productions, and was announced as such, was delayed before release, however, and postponed until a later date. Thus "Philip Holden—Waster" will mark the popular player's first appearance in pictures since the famous "Damaged Goods," over a year ago.

In "Philip Holden—Waster" Kenneth B. Clarke, the author, has contrived for Mr. Bennett one of the most delightful character portrayals and some of the most naively charming situations, which at the same time contain all the thrill, the suspense and surprise element necessary for a compelling drama, which have ever found their way to the screen. Mr. Bennett is supported by an exceptionally able cast, including Rhea Mitchell, Adrienne Morrison (Mrs. Richard Bennett), George Periolat, Clarence Burton and Orral Humphrey.

A second Mutual Star Production will go out from the Mutual during the week of October 9. Florence Turner, whose previous Mutual productions have charmed the country, will appear October 12 in "Redeemed," produced by Larry Trimble. The plot of "Redeemed' contains all the elements of drama which bring out the best and strongest response from Miss Turner. It is a vital story of throbbing human interest, tense moments, big surprises. In it is reflected the best work of both Miss Turner and her director.

On Monday, October 9, a very unusual drama of two-reel length, featuring Winnifred Greenwood and Edward Coxen, entitled "Citizens All," will be released. In this screen story is combined a touching plot with an amusing combination of whimsical characters, colored by the good old red, white and blue of its patriotic background.

It is the story of the reconciliation of a stubborn old German music teacher and of a still more obstinate French fencing master over the cradle of their grandchild, the young parents of which had run away and married in spite of their father's objections. The cause of the disagreement of the two old foreigners had been the merits of their native lands. With the reconciliation, the hatchet is buried in the good old U. S. A., and they become citizens, all.

Miss Greenwood and Mr. Coxen, in the roles of the younger members of the respective families, are supported by Clarence Burton as the German music teacher, George Fields as the French fencing teacher, and Louise Lester as the landlady.

On Friday a second two-part drama will find its way to the public. "At the Edge of the Aqueduct" is its title, and in picturesqueness of setting and in convincing plot it is one of the best dramas of short story length which has ever proceeded from the studios of the Thanhouser Company. The story deals with the love affair of a young school teacher, the engineer at work on the aqueduct, and a jealous farmer, president of the school board.

The regular weekly Beauty comedy of the week appears on Tuesday, October 10. John Sheehan, Carol Halloway, John Steppling, Vera Sissons, Robert Klein, Dick Rosson and Earl Montgomery, old favorites of the Mutual, will be seen in this two-reel funny picture, entitled "That Sharp Note." It is a picture mix-up of diplomatic relations between a group of warring and neutral nations, with a note to the "Flyser" which gets sadly tossed and turned in the sending.

Ben Turpin and Rube Miller, up to their usual high-water mark in the perpetrating of funny comedy situations, will be seen in a two-reel Vogue on Saturday, October 15, entitled "Ducking a Discord." There are funny situations a-plenty, as well as the real thrill, which always accompanies these "slap sticks with a reason" which come from the hands of these two popular comedians.

There will be three one-reel comedies of "Cub" brand on the Mutual's program for the second week in October. "Inoculating Hubby" will appear on Friday, October 13. "Those Primitive Days" and "Their College Capers" will go to the public on Saturday, October 14.

The usual release of Mutual current news, Mutual Weekly No. 93, will appear on Wednesday, October 11, as will "See America First" and Harry Palmer's Kartoon Komics, in split reel.

The Mutual's magazine in film, "Reel Life," will be released on its regular day, Sunday, and will contain interesting material of pertinence to today's business and educational activities.

Fifteen Reels of Pathe

Big Program Makes Its Appearance Beginning With Week of October 8.

THE Pathe program for the week of October 8 contains a five-part Gold Rooster play, "The Pillory," the second episode of "The Shielding Shadow," two reels; the thirteenth chapter of "The Grip of Evil," two reels; "The Sword of Damocles," a two-reel drama; "Heinie and the 400," a one-reel comedy; "U. S. Customs Inspection," a one-reel educational, and Pathe News Nos. 82 and 83, a total of fifteen reels.

"The Pillory" was made by Thanhouser and features Florence La Badie. It has been aptly described as a modern "The Scarlet Letter" and is a scathing criticism of the "unco guid" who, in their eagerness to point out the mote in their neighbor's eye, held not the beam in their own. The character portrayal is remarkable and honors are about equally divided between Miss La Badie as the girl and Nellie Spaulding as the bigoted, hypocritical aunt.

The second episode of "The Shielding Shadow" is remarkable for the scenes in which Jerry Carson is dragged into the depths of the sea by a giant octopus. This has never been done in pictures before and furnishes a thrill which will arouse any audience. Speculation will be rife everywhere as to how these scenes were made.

In the thirteenth chapter of "The Grip of Evil" it becomes increasingly evident that John Burton is not so decided as he was in the opinion that all humanity is bad. The reasons for his increasing doubt are most attractively portrayed.

"The Sword of Damocles" is a powerful story of a musical genius, dragged down by drink, who sells at a ridiculous price his masterpiece to a man who straightway has it produced under his own name. Over the purchaser's head, like the Sword of Damocles, hangs the knowledge that he is parading under false colors and in the end his deception is discovered with tragic results.

"Heinie and the 400" is a rough and tumble comedy in which as a social lion Heinie bats 400.

"U. S. Customs' Inspection" presents the intimate side of a department, little of which is known by the majority of people. The film was made with the approval of the U. S. Government.

Plans a Continuous Performance

Mary Pickford Engages Directors in Relays to Prevent Idleness Between Productions.

MARY PICKFORD, having completed her first picture since she decided to make her artistic future alone and unhampered, has instituted a radical reform in her own producing organization and one that promises much in the way of increased efficiency and economy in production. She has installed what might be called an interlocking system of directors. This means that instead of waiting a few weeks after a play is finished while the director cuts and assembles it, then more waiting while he has a short rest and gets a new story in shape for production, Miss Pickford will have alternating directors and thereby lose little time between her pictures. Under the new system Maurice Tourneur will direct the second Pickford release for Artcraft Pictures Corporation, while John Emerson is cutting and assembling the first, "Less Than the Dust," for release in October.

At the present speed Mary Pickford expects to be true to her own artistic standards and to enable distributor and exhibitor to proceed without fear in their plans for an even schedule of successful presentation. John Emerson, to whom the star generously gives credit for the idea on which the new system is based, expects to have "Less Than the Dust" ready for release in a few weeks, and the preliminary shipment of eighty prints in the exchanges in ample time to comply with release obligations. The bulk of his staff will be available for Maurice Tourneur in the direction of the second Artcraft production.

Triangle Coast Activities

Fine Arts, Kay-Bee and Keystone Forces Busy on Many Feature Productions.

Out at the Triangle coast studios Dorothy Gish has been having an exciting time during the filming of the Fine Arts production, "Atta Boy's Last Race." It had been planned to stage the film drama at Tia Juana, just over the Mexican border in Lower California, but it was found that the Mexican atmosphere was too strongly flavored to be suitable for the character of the production. So the race was filmed in San Francisco.

Wilfred Lucas is playing a doctor in his new vehicle, bacterially called "Bugs." The doctor is a fanatic on science, and Mr. Lucas is drawing the character from life, the scientist being a physician he once interviewed when he was a newspaper man, before becoming a player. Mr. Lucas, at the start, collided with an open cupboard door, and had his scalp badly gashed. The shaving was necessary for treating the wound. Now, in order that all the scenes may match, Lucas has had to undergo tonsorial treatment every three days.

Mae Marsh plays a little violinist in the new play, "The Wharf Rat." Robert Harron is featured in this production, while Spottiswood Aitken is prominently cast as a musician. While Miss Marsh went through the various early scenes with all the motions of a virtuoso, the resultant melody was an ominous and fearful thing. Finally the director, Chester Withey, hit upon the idea of substituting carefully greased twine for the regular violin strings. Consequently, Miss Marsh's bow was able to slide harmlessly and noiselessly during the impassioned moments of the drama, and the members of the cast found it possible to contribute undistracted enthusiasm.

The Triangle Ince studios have been centering attention upon stellar combinations these days. Raymond B. West is directing Dorothy Dalton, Louise Glaum and Charles Ray, with Robert McKim, J. Barney Sherry, J. J. Dowling and Margaret Thompson in the supporting cast. An immense court-room set was erected in the Culver City glass studios.

Director Reginal Barker has gone on his vacation after finishing a story of the Italo-Austrian war in which Clara Williams appears as a star supported by Charles Gunn. Before leaving he completed in one week sixty-five separate scenes in this drama. These were elaborate scenes in which hundreds of people participated in a specially constructed Austrian village at Inceville. A full troop of Austrian cavalry, a dozen ox carts piled high with furniture and surrounded by a motley crowd of fleeing peasants and a dozen ambulances figured prominently in the action.

Bessie Barriscale has likewise departed on her vacation, her first real rest in three years. Dorcas Matthews, too, is taking a vacation. Her rest, however, is enforced, since she has undergone a hospital operation. She will be out in time to take a leading role in a play being written for Miss Barriscale.

Frank Keenan is playing in a drama of sixty years ago, depicting life on the Mississippi. A whole complete interior of an old palatial Mississippi River steamboat, a duplicate of the famous craft of the cotton, tobacco and gambling days of the ante-bellum period, was built for the filming of the drama.

William S. Hart has started work on a new vehicle. He will, of course, play a Westerner and contribute some skillful stunts with the lasso, on which he has been regularly practicing. Hart is again a bad man, a two-gun expert with a record, in this newest drama of Monte M. Katterjohn.

At the Triangle Keystone studios Fred Fishback has started a new Ambrose comedy in which Mack Swain is assisted by Tom Kennedy and Luella Maxam. It is described as a comedy of schoolboys along new lines. A second company, directed by J. F. MacDonald, is filming a cowpuncher comedy in the San Fernando Valley.

Chester Conklin has been devoting himself to a water comedy, "A Tugboat Romeo," down at Balboa beach. W. S. Campbell and Harry Williams are directing.

Slim Summerville and Bobby Dunn are featured in a comedy of artist life in the studios of New York, "His Busted Trust." A monkey, "Happy," by name, plays a vital part in the story. In charge of his trainer, he rehearsed his part over and over, but when the camera started grinding he acquired a violent antipathy to Summerville. Between "Happy" and Summerville the studio came to the verge of wreckage.

"A Scoundrel's Toll," directed by Glen Cavender and featuring Mary Thurman, Dale Fuller, Gene Rodgers, Ed Kennedy and Ray Griffith, will shortly be finished.

Walter Wright has been working at Chatsworth Park filming "The Twins," in which Ora Carew and Baldy Belmont are featured. This farce has such more or less strenuous stunts as a runaway, cliff jumping and other feats which go to make up a day's work at the Keystone studios.

Ethyle Cooke—Thanhouser Leading Woman

WHEN you see Florence La Badie's name in the cast of a photoplay, close by you will find Ethyle Cooke's. At the Thanhouser studios they wouldn't think of casting a Florence La Badie feature without putting Ethyle Cooke in it. Miss Cooke plays what the directors call "heavy leads." She usually is an unscrupulous women who gets Florence into a pile of trouble.

Ethyle Cooke.

In "The Fugitive" Ethyle committed a murder and let Florence take the blame. In "The Fear of Poverty" Florence stole Ethyle's finance. In "Saint, Devil and Woman" Ethyle suffered at the hands of a man who has Florence in his power. In "The Pillory" Ethyle was a thief who tried to drag Florence down. She's a bad, bad woman. Ethyle Cooke is—if you know her only through her work in Thanhouser-Pathe productions. You'd think that Florence La Badie would shudder every time Ethyle Cooke came near. But she doesn't. Ethyle is Florence's best friend.

And Ethyle is the most domestic woman at the Thanhouser studios. She is married and has two children. The accomplishment of which she is most proud is her ability to make fancy embroidery.

Harry Benham, formerly with Thanhouser is Ethyle Cooke's husband and her children are Leland Benham, eleven years old, and Dorothy, aged five. Both of the Benham children have had wide motion picture experience.

Ethyle Cooke was a dancer in "Madame Sherry" when she and her husband decided to try motion pictures. For six years she has been with Thanhouser. At first she played bits, but such talent did she show that she quickly was given leading parts and featured in many Thanhouser productions.

LOU-TELLEGEN TO RETURN TO STAGE.

Lou-Tellegen, popular Lasky star, upon completion of "The Black Wolf," which is now in the course of production at the Lasky studios in Hollywood, will terminate his spring and summer engagement with the Lasky Company and return to the stage.

Reversing the usual order, Tou-Tellegen will this winter appear in a dramatization of one of the screen plays in which he has been presented by the Lasky Company. Just which screen play he will reproduce on the stage is not yet determined, but among the dramas in which he has been starred by the Lasky Company are many that possess unusual stage possibilities, notably "The Victory of Conscience," his last release on the Paramount Program, which has already attained a great popularity throughout the country. Lou-Tellegen plans to tour the country in this new play, starting from Los Angeles so that the great following which he has created through his screen work for the Lasky Company may be able to see him in person in the living form in one of the plays in which he appeared in shadow.

The photoplay which Tou-Tellegen will adapt to the stage for his use will be announced shortly. Thus for one of the few times since the association of the screen with popular stage stars the public will be able to choose between the play on the stage and screen in the same play.

It is announced by the Lasky Company that after the completion of Lou-Tellegen's tour through the country he will return to the screen under its management.

The Motion Picture Exhibitor

MARITIME PROVINCES ORGANIZE.

Exhibitors Get Together at St. John and Form League—A Good Start Made.

NEW BRUNSWICK, Nova Scotia and Prince Edwards Island, the three most easterly of Canada's provinces, known as the Maritime Provinces, have stepped into the limelight of the moving picture universe with a thoroughgoing and up-to-date organization, as far as the managers are concerned at any rate. The meeting was held in the Board of Trade rooms, Halifax, N. S., on Saturday afternoon, September 16, when representatives from the most important theaters east of Montreal were present. The name of the healthy infant is the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of the Maritime Provinces of Canada.

Walter H. Golding, President of Maritime Provinces Exhibitors.

It may truthfully be laid to the credit of the Moving Picture World that the Maritime Provinces are now a solid unit for organized effort in forwarding the interests of the picture business, for was it not the inspiring address of F. H. Richardson, projection expert, in St. John city a few weeks ago that inoculated the brotherhood? Right there and then it was decided to hold a formal meeting—Halifax managers extended the invitation—and the meeting came off with a vengeance.

Managers from St. John, N. B., Fredericton, N. B., Moncton, N. B., and other westerly points, chartered a special Pullman and armed with organization literature of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, supplied by President Lee A. Ochs, also having in their party special newspaper writers and a stenographer-secretary, whirled off to the Nova Scotian capital. There they were joined by a large party of managers from all parts of that province, by theater owners and lessees from Sydney to Yarmouth. Big film men got hep to the situation, too, and from Toronto came W. C. Gookin of the V-L-S-E, Phil Kauffman of the Famous Players Film Service, L. H. Watrous, manager of the V-L-S-E Montreal branch, and L. E. Ouimet, Pathe's Canadian general manager and Nestor of the film business in the Dominion. All the Eastern Canadian film branch managers were on hand, too, in fact the censors were represented as well. The gathering was most comprehensive in its scope.

Narcisse V. Gastonguay, manager of Orpheus Hall, Halifax, welcomed the delegations on behalf of the local brotherhood. He felt sure the earnest purpose of the meeting would make history. Organization had been sorely needed in the three provinces for a long time, and the deliberations about to be entered upon should place the large interests in this section of Canada upon a firm basis of cordial co-operation. He then moved that Walter H. Golding, manager of Keith & Albee's Imperial theater, St. John, and one of the prime movers in bringing about the organization meeting, take the chair pro tem. Mr. Golding was duly elected. Steve C. Hurley, manager of the Unique and Lyric theaters, St. John, N. B., and another booster for organization, was chosen secretary, and M. Kathleen Golding, secretary of the Imperial theater, St. John, N. B., was appointed stenographer.

Chairman Golding outlined the purposes of the meeting. He told of correspondence with Lee A. Ochs of New York, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, and with F. H. Richardson, Motion Picture World expert, and urged a prompt and efficient get-together. The motion picture enterprise had been suffering too long as a chopping-block for tax-greedy legislators; it had been the tootball of that well-known pest, the anonymous newspaper letter-writer and while censorship was not as drastic in the Eastern section of Canada as in other localities, it was a growing evil since it had the effect of cutting pictorial productions to pieces and if censorship was to be maintained at all, it should be along federal lines.

It was decided to call the new organization the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of the Maritime Provinces of Canada, and that as closely as local conditions would allow it should adhere to the constitution and by-laws of the parent organization in the United States. A nominating committee was appointed by the chair to form a slate of officers for the new body. The committee deliberated for a few minutes and returned with the names of the following, who were elected by the unanimous passage of the report:

President, Walter H. Golding, St. John, N. B.; vice-president, N. V. Gastonguay, Halifax, N. S.; secretary, Steve C. Hurley, St. John, N. B.; treasurer, G. J. B. Metzler, Halifax, N. S.; vice-president for N. B., F. W. Winter, Moncton, N. B.; vice-president of N. S., R. J. Macadam, Sydney, N. S.; vice-president for P. E. I., F. G. Spencer, St. John, N. B. (Owning houses in P. E. I.).

The Executive Committee is to be composed of the officers and provincial vice-presidents.

The constitution and by-laws of the American body were then read section by section and with slight modification, which adapted them to the Canadian situation, they were passed and will therefore stand as the granite foundation of the Maritime Provincial League. The reading of the various clauses was in itself an inspiration to the assembled managers and also somewhat of a revelation to them. They pointed out more clearly than a general discussion would produce the power and privilege that lay in the idea of organization, and it was with enthusiasm that the policy of the new body was decided upon.

After this considerable amount of detail had been completed, visiting film men were asked to discuss several matters of vital interest to all present. Phil Kauffman of the Famous Players Film Service, Ltd., Toronto; W. C. Gookin of the V-L-S-E offices, Toronto, and L. E. Ouimet of the Specialty Film Import, Ltd. (Pathe Interests), Montreal, spoke and although some of the matters discussed elicited very warm discussion, especially in the matter of pre-payment plan, the cordial feeling remained unruffled.

After the film men, some operators and others retired, the managers met in private session to take vote upon some of the more important questions developed during the discussions of the earlier part of the meeting. Among some of the resolutions passed unanimously was the following proposed by R. J. Macadam, a large theatrical owner in Nova Scotia, and seconded by J. M. Franklin, manager of the Strand theater, Halifax, dealing with the matter of deposits on film service. The resolution read as follows:

Whereas, It is the custom of some film exchanges doing business in Canada to demand advance deposits on the service they furnish to exhibitors, and,

Whereas, This method of extracting money from theaters is out of harmony with all established customs of business and is manifestly unfair to exhibitors, and,

Whereas, The system now in vogue with all exchanges of being paid for service on or before the delivery of films is an adequate protection against all delinquencies of payment on the part of the exhibitors.

Resolved, That the managers' association of Eastern Canada in convention assembled affirm its determined opposition to the policy of exchanges demanding advance deposits from exhibitors and respectfully request all exchanges practicing this system to discontinue it, and further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to all film exchanges doing business in Eastern Canada.

A resolution also moved and seconded by Messrs. Macadam and Franklin and in especial appreciation was the following:

Whereas, All branches of the moving picture industry derive great value from the sympathy, advice and publicity which has been accorded it by the leading newspapers and magazines of this continent, and

Whereas, Public opinion is to a very great extent molded by the press and broadened by its intelligent criticism, and

Whereas, The press is of the invaluable value to producers in guiding their efforts to harmonize the screen drama with public sympathy, be it

Resolved, That the Managers' Association of Eastern Canada in convention assembled express its thanks and appreciation to the newspapers and magazines which have so defended the rights of the moving picture industry and helped to guide its actions, and further

Resolved, That this convention express to the Moving Picture World its special thanks for the great service it is rendering to the cause of the organized exhibitor

W. C. McKay, manager of the St. John Opera House, was the mover of a resolution suggesting that the new league inform the film dealers that its members are willing to pay their bills within the current weeks as a compromise between the credit plan and the pre-payment system now in process of enforcement.

There were numerous important motions put, seconded and carried during the long business session, and one point which all the managers seemed to agree with hearty voice was what they termed to be the evil of being forced to book serial stories as a "pig-in-a-poke." The managers pronounced strongly against signing contracts for such features unless either the vending agency or the individual manager himself were absolutely assured by personal scrutiny that the whole series was of sufficient merit to warrant the booking of it. In some cases such films had absolutely failed as attractions after five or six episodes and great injury was wrought upon the houses by the remaining chapters. Therefore, the league moved that central distributing agencies should be absolutely sure of the quality of their goods before they accepted them from the manufacturer and in this way a great step forward in co-operation would be taken.

In connection with the pre-payment plan and its remedy, the C. O. D. shipping of film to all dissenters, an exhaustive discussion arose. Some managers of good standing threatened to close their houses rather than submit to this treatment after having been such fair dealers for years. Others said it would only be penny wisdom and pound foolishness for them to take such a drastic measure as this, and one man was frank enough to admit that he could not afford to pay in advance for his pictures. All of these arguments, which were somewhat modified in subsequent conversations, cleared the atmosphere on this vexed question, and at a subsequent business session some of the hasty decisions of the first meeting were rescinded.

In fact, all minds were more or less purged of bitter opinions and radical views by the frank open discussion of questions near to the managerial heart and it is almost certain that misunderstandings concerning pre-payment and C. O. D. systems, which arose through the rather crude and undiplomatic manner in which these strictures were announced by some film agencies, were dispelled.

The social element which entered in the Halifax convention was delightful. No royalty was ever treated better. The managers of theaters entertained the party in their houses; automobiles were constantly flitting the visitors over the interesting parts of Halifax, which is taking such an important place as a port of departure for Canadian troops, and on Sunday, the 17th, a sail on the magnificent harbor, out on the Atlantic and into the charming Northwest Arm was the happy lot of not only the convention members, but of all theater workers of Halifax, who included talent playing the various houses. Buffet lunch was served aboard and motion picture cameras and kodaks were constantly clicking. The presence of British war vessels, the gigantic transport, "Olympic"; the dock-yards, steel net booms across the harbor and all that sort of war-like thing was great divertissement for the strangers. Before returning to land President Golding mounted the hatchway and called upon a representative personage from each group present for either a speech or some item of entertainment. Everybody responded handsomely and sealed the bond of unity more closely than ever. Particularly interesting were the extended remarks of W. C. Gookin, of the V-L-S-E, Toronto; L. E. Ouimet, of the Pathe interests, Montreal, and Phil Kauffman, of the Famous Players Film Service, Ltd., Toronto. A. E. Wall, of the Board of Censors, N. S., and R. J. Macadam were also instructive in their remarks. Miss Alice Fairweather, writer for the St. John Standard, which paper had the enterprise to send their representative along to the convention, made a regular business-woman speech and was loudly applauded.

When the St. John special pullman pulled out of Halifax with the delegates living west of Halifax, a big crowd was down to the station to give them a cheery send-off.

The next meeting of the league will be held in St. John in the autumn of 1917. In the meantime the Executive Committee will hold several sessions. During the Halifax convention about thirty managers enrolled on the charter membership roster and handed in their $10 annual fee.

Working in West Virginia

Organizer Herrington Stirring Up Interest in An Exhibitors' League.

A CONFERENCE for the purpose of effecting a State organization of motion picture exhibitors in West Virginia will be held at the McClure House, Wheeling, W. Va., on Sunday, October 8. Frederick J. Herrington, national organizer of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, has arranged to meet a number of the leading exhibitors of Wheeling and vicinity to consider plans for the proposed organization. West Virginia formerly had one of the best working organizations in the country and Herrington expresses the belief that much can be accomplished by again bringing the exhibitors of that State together. The old organization, which has been inactive for some time, was affiliated with the national body, but disbanded in 1913, following the split in the ranks at that time. The following stirring appeal has been issued by Organizer Herrington:

Fellow exhibitors of Wheeling, W. Va., and the surrounding territory. You are urgently requested to attend a meeting of exhibitors of Wheeling and adjacent territory at the McClure House, Wheeling, on Sunday, October 8, at 2 P. M., for the purpose of reorganizing the West Virginia branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, which has for its object the improvement of the picture business generally.

The motion picture exhibitor of today is waging a losing battle against a host of enemies worse than any business ever before has had to contend with. An unjust censorship, a discriminating quarantine, the low price of admission, the increased cost of films; these and many other conditions are sapping the very life blood from the theater business. These are conditions we must already contend with, but is that the end of the persecution of our business? We don't know. What is to prevent all these people, official and otherwise, who are trying to regulate our business for us, the business in which we have hundreds of thousands of dollars invested—what is to prevent these people from further imposing unjust restrictions upon our theaters, the necessity for which exists only in the minds of the "regulators"? Individual protests are futile. Only in concerted action may the remedy be found.

What are you doing to help? We are fighting with our backs to the wall. Not for our individual interests, but for the good of the industry. Are you going to join us? Are you going to help us place your business on a profitable basis—a basis of continued prosperity, not one of periods? Or are you going to sit off and sneer because of a previous failure of the exhibitors' league? We don't care if your house is a large or small one. Our fight is a common one, and in order to come out victorious we must stand united.

Come to the meeting and hear and take part in the discussions which will result in improved business conditions.

FRED J. HERRINGTON

EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE COMMITTEE AT ASBURY PARK.

A committee of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, consisting of Lee A. Ochs, Samuel H. Trigger, J. N. Hartsall, Samuel Spedon, F. M. Alexander, and C. R. Macauley, made a trip to Asbury Park on the twelfth of this month for the purpose of meeting Secretary Tumulty, by appointment, and learning from him the attitude of the present administration toward the moving picture industry. President Ochs, of the league, explained the growth of the picture business, and the opposition to censorship throughout every department of the industry. Although not claiming to speak officially, Secretary Tumulty is reported to have said that the administration was opposed to any form of censorship, federal, national, or state.

At the end of the interview, which took place in the summer executive office at Asbury Park, Mr. Tumulty assured the members of the league that the doors of the White House are always open to the leaders of the Moving Picture Industry.

THREE HUNDRED CLERGYMEN SEE "CIVILIZATION."

"Civilization" is establishing record upon record. The other day three hundred representatives of various churches saw the production at the Tremont theater, Boston, and the subsequent apreciations of the Ince spectacle, which appeared in the religious papers, and issued from the mouths of many of these ministers in their pulpit, constituted a remarkable tribute to this production, all the more noteworthy in that they came from a class, the clergy, which at one time was markedly antagonistic to any kind of motion picture production. Now so impressed are they with "Civilization" that some of them even seriously suggest that the picture might have the effect of converting the world to Christian sanity

William A. Brady on Trade Conditions

By Edward Weitzel

President of the National Association Talks About the Past, Present and Future of the Screen

THE National Association of the Motion Picture Industry will become effective in the fullest sense of the word when its membership rolls contain the names of one hundred per cent. of the men engaged in the different professions and trades identified with the industry," said William A. Brady, president of that organization.

"Every activity connected with the motion picture is eligible to membership then, Mr. Brady?" asked the World representative.

"Yes, indeed! This is a composite organization and includes the men who produce and distribute the pictures, also employment agents, projection engineers, publications devoted exclusively to motion pictures, transportation companies, billposting companies, and all employees of establishments and plants in any way connected with the industry."

The President of the National Association was seated in his office at the World Film Corporation, and it was evident by the earnestness with which he spoke that the subject was of vital importance to him. William A. Brady has decided views on the matters that interest him and experiences no difficulty in putting his views into words.

"The meetings last week were productive of much good work, I understand."

"We enrolled a number of the leading corporations, and the question of censorship was fully discussed and an important step decided upon. The exhibitors must censor themselves, but there should be no salacious pictures produced Returning to the question of membership in the National Association, several gentlemen, non-members, were permitted to attend the last meeting and help to shape the policy of our attitude toward censorship, but after they had got what they wanted, they did not join. This was a great mistake on their part. The next twelve months, I feel convinced, will be the crucial months of the moving picture business and I consider it the duty of every one connected with it to join the National Association and give one year's dues."

Mr. Brady paused to sign a document which was laid before him by one of his office force, then continued:

"This business is at the point where it needs a lot of nursing. We have only scratched the surface in regard to its possibilities. If we fail to realize its future, it will be taken away from us, the same as the automobile business was taken out of the hands of its original promoters. So far, the amusement features of the screen are the only ones that interest us—or the public. The public, by the way, is always responsible for the holding back of any big idea—they are slow to accept any new thing. It is the scientific side of the industry, however, that is going to make it expand into a bigger proposition than even the automobile business. The camera in the schools, the filming of the operations of great surgeons and the experiments of famous scientists, the preserving of countless human efforts by a universal medium of expression, is going to give this latest and greatest addition to 'the art preservative' a ten-fold higher standing than it has now. The time is not ripe for this branch of the work, perhaps. The other day I went into the Strand theater and Professor Muensterburg was demonstrating some scientific experiment on the screen. It should have commanded the attention of every one present, but it didn't—the audience kept walking out on him."

"That is the fate of the pioneer in any movement, isn't it?"

"Yes; but some one is going to stick to this side of the game and win."

Mr. Brady lit his cigar and smiled reminiscently before he continued:

"The moving picture had to struggle along at the beginning in much the same way as the flying machine. A number of years ago I gave an exhibition down at Brighton Beach, a reproduction of the Boer War. One day a queer looking chap came to me and wanted to rent the grounds every morning for the purpose of trying out a flying machine of his own invention. We came to terms and the next morning he was on hand with his airship. He never got very high up in the air, however. He would rise about ten feet, then down he would come again. But he kept at it, and each day went a little higher. Word of what he was doing got noised about, and before long he had quite a crowd every day—waiting to see him get killed. They were not gratified entirely, but he did fall and break his leg. Now see what the makers of aeroplanes have accomplished for humanity! It will be the same with the scientific end of the moving picture. Some brave souls will not be dismayed by the apathy of the public and will reap their reward."

"Didn't Pathe have a moving picture theater in Paris, where the facts relating to tuberculosis were shown?"

"Yes, and it was kept running for over a year. I wonder that no one has brought the exhibition to this country."

"To return to the National Association: co-operation and censorship are the biggest questions it has to consider, I take it?"

"Yes. In regard to the first, there should be no 'one man rule.' We are all interested, and every man should do his share. The censorship matter can be fought successfully, if we all put our shoulders to the wheel. A very important move has already been made. By the way, the Revenue Bill, with its tax of one-half of one per cent. on all industries, was mainly defeated by the moving picture men."

In direct line with the expression by Mr. Brady in the foregoing interview that the National Association will become effective when its membership represents 100 per cent. of the industry, word comes from Secretary Elliott of the association that following the definite declaration against censorship several manufacturing concerns have allied with the N. A. M. P. I.

These include the Mutual, Triangle, Fox, Kalem, Thanhouser, Pathe, Wharton, Inc., Crystal, Cosmofotofilm and the Kinecartoon. David Wark Griffith, whose address on censorship was one of the features of the gathering that unanimously decided against it, has also taken an individual membership.

There was a luncheon meeting at Shanley's, Forty-third street and Broadway, on September 27, when the Equipment and Supplies Branch discussed the necessity of organizing its particular branch of trade into a country-wide organization, which would deal, through the national association, with some of the problems that sorely press the dealer at present. There were present E. S. Porter, of the Precision Machine Company; E. Kendall Gillette, Walter J. Moore, J. H. Hallberg, Fred Hawley, J. F. Coufal and William M. Seabury, general counsel of the association, who gave legal guidance regarding the proposed organization, its purposes, its interrelation with the central body, and the co-operative and protective limitations. It was made clear that a better understanding between all branches could only be brought about by frequently getting together, with plain speaking as to grievances and things to be remedied.

The Equipment and Supplies Division is the third of the big sections to organize. The date of its general meeting for that purpose has been fixed for Wednesday, October 4, at 2.30 P. M., at the headquarters in the Times Building.

The national standing committees will soon meet for the purpose of organization. Their work is of basic importance and indicates the thoroughness with which the methods of big business is working to shape the industry to power, vigor and efficiency. These committees are: Standards, Nicholas Power, chairman; fire protection, regulation and insurance, Jesse Lasky; transportation, J. Stuart Blackton; industrial economics, Richard A. Rowland; labor, P. A. Powers.

A campaign conference was held during the week and several letters were received from political candidates requesting the support of the national association. The campaign committee will meet next week to hear the report of the chairman, Lee Ochs, president of the Exhibitors' League of America. Mr. Ochs has already reported that the exhibitors of New Hampshire have begun to effect a strong organization to combat hostile legislation at the coming session of the legislature. The Exhibitors' League will give aid and direction throughout New England.

The national association faces a year that will be filled with activities all over the country, for the forty-four Legislatures soon to convene will be watched for adverse legislation. If any develop all of the resources of the organization will be called into play to defeat it. Legal talent and effective speakers familiar with the work will be aided by the power of the exhibitor to influence public sentiment by the screen. The exhibitors of Philadelphia, where censorship is most onerous, had arranged for a conference with Mr. Ochs, on Sunday, October 1.

Mayors on Federal Censorship

By H. F. Sherwood

Heads of Cities Everywhere Emphatic in Position That Federal Censorship Will Not Be Binding Upon Them

THE censorship question is a vital one to all engaged in the motion picture industry. The problem is to provide something that will satisfy the tastes of individuals in all parts of the country. In the effort to do this more than one device for establishing standards has been suggested. The latest is a Federal censorship board or commission controlling through the transportation of films in interstate and foreign commerce. What effect will this device, if adopted by Congress, have upon the activity of local groups, official and otherwise, attempting to censor for a given community? Would it be as good as a body of volunteers such as the National Board of Review, which controls through its broad-minded point of view and its advisory character?

With the object of securing a definite expression of opinion from those most directly concerned officially with the point of view of the public in the question of Federal censorship of motion pictures, the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures recently sent a questionaire to the mayors of a number of cities in different parts of the country. The results have just been compiled.

The replies represent the views of the chief executives of cities as far apart as Portland, Me., and Pasadena, Cal., and St. Paul and Minneapolis and Baton Rouge.

Only one replied that he would be willing to eliminate the responsibility from local officials, while four-fifths of the total number said they would not. Opinion was more divided regarding the extent to which a Federal board of censorship would satisfy the various elements of a given community. There was strong objection to the idea of limiting the right of each locality to take action for itself should public opinion be against the decision of the proposed Federal Board. With the exception of two mayors, who gave no direct answer, all said they would not permit a film objectionable to their communities to be shown, even if it had been passed by the Federal Board.

Some of the expressions of opinion and comment were as follows:

James E. Woodward Mayor, Atlanta, Ga.—"This is a very large country and peopled by many nationalities. Many large cities are more liberal than smaller ones. A negro prize fight might not be objectionable in some parts of the country but it would not be tolerated in the South. There might be scenes tending to advertise the liquor business which would be illegal in our state. That is a question that should be left entirely to be controlled locally."

Clifford B. Wilson, Mayor, Bridgeport, Conn.—"It seems to me that the fact that a picture has been passed by the Federal Board would not necessarily mean such picture could be exhibited against the desires of a community. It might have weight in claiming the propriety of showing same, but I should think each community should be the final arbiter in all cases."

George M. Wright, Mayor, Worcester, Mass.—"I am of the opinion that if a Federal board of censorship were created it might not always prove satisfactory to the people of this city, and that, therefore, I feel that, as Mayor of this city, I am opposed to the abrogation of any of the rights of this office in stopping the production of any motion picture or other theatrical entertainment which we might consider detrimental to the morals and welfare of the people of this particular community."

Walter R. Stone, Mayor, Syracuse, N. Y.—"I have a strong feeling that voluntary review in some manner, similar to the review your board is now engaged in with many film productions, will in the long run produce the best results, and personally I would like to see the influence of your board extended. The people generally can be depended upon to regulate these public movements in a manner that is entirely proper, and I am convinced they will do so with the moving picture industry once the exhibitors get in intimate touch with what the people want."

W. G. Chapman, Mayor, Portland, Me.—"Believe that each community through proper officials are the best judges of what are the proper pictures for that particular community and those that are not."

Anthony Sunderland, Mayor, Danbury, Conn.—"I believe in the least possible amount of interference with local affairs by either Federal or State laws. I consider the proposed censorship entirely uncalled for, unnecessary, and really un-American, as interfering with personal right."

In summing up it would appear that the feeling is widespread that each locality should retain its right to pass official judgment.

It is impossible for a national body at once to satisfy the tastes of a city like New York having five million inhabitants and those of a market center in an agricultural district in the Middle West. The national reviewing body can only pass upon questions which affect human beings as such and their general social welfare. It will never be possible to eliminate the influence of local taste. The Federal body established by law, however excellent its intentions, is likely to lose flexibility after the manner of all Federal institutions. Its standards would constantly lag behind those which the people were establishing for themselves. It would follow other Federal departments whose sole authority is a law, in making the dictionary its statute book. Dictionaries are notoriously conservative, unelastic and arbitrary. Only human beings change their points of view. That is the reason why a body of high-minded volunteers such as the National Board of Review is likely to be a better guide than a legally bound Federal body.

The way to successfully meet the tastes of each locality is through co-operation. Exhibitors are realizing this, as has been illustrated in a recent "get-together" movement in Detroit. The problem is that of supplying each locality with a guide as to the merit of pictures by a reviewing body whose judgment is recognized as reasonable and just. If local authorities can be sure that the statements they receive are such, and are borne out by experience, each community is put in a position to act wisely through its constituted authorities. The exhibitors by co-operation with these in a friendly spirit will find that legalized censorship will not be demanded by anybody—on the ground of morals at any rate.

The work of supplying localities with information regarding films is one of the tasks which the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures performs. Up to the present time no better way of solving the problem of local censorship has been found. The Board does not believe in legalized censorship, but it does in co-operation for the purpose of raising the average quality of films and stimulating the demand for them.

EDUCATIONAL FILMS WANTED IN HONDURAS.

Consul E. M. Lawton, Tegucigalpa, writes in "Commerce Reports" that the Teatro de Variedades in that city holds a concession from the Honduras Government by the terms of which the owners must give, periodically, a certain number of performances free of admission to the public. Two of the three concessionaires owning the theater are native-born Americans. Both Government and owners are desirous of making these exhibitions of real educational worth to the people and have asked the help of the consulate in Tegucigalpa in securing films such as are sometimes furnished by large manufacturing concerns showing mechanical operations and processes in their factories, or by governmental institutions and departments, showing methods and practices in agriculture, natural history, forestry, and the arts and sciences generally.

The concessionaires do not feel justified in buying the films, but it is hoped that some such films will be loaned gratis for advertising or educational purposes or leased at a nominal rental. The management will gladly furnish necessary banking references as to their responsibility and serious intentions and will give the films all the publicity demanded. If the films can be furnished with titles and subtitles in the Spanish language, so much the better; but this is not entirely necessary, as in any other case a preliminary explanation can be prepared here, in Spanish, for throwing on the screen before starting the picture.

Motion pictures of this sort may not produce actual commercial results of a concrete character, but certainly would help to cement existing friendly relations with the people of Honduras, and, as demonstrating the progressiveness and development of American institutions and commerce, their exhibition is worthy of commendation. It is suggested that, after first making the necessary arrangement with Government officials, the reels might be consigned to the American consulate at Tegucigalpa for a reasonable period, then to be returned or sent in turn to other consulates in Central America for similar use in their respective districts.

IT WAS A MODEST PRESS AGENT.

In a story sent out by the Pathe publicity department and published in our columns the statement was made that the National Sunday Magazine has a circulation of 500,000, whereas the real circulation is over 2,000,000. Those scoffers who believe that a publicity man multiplies everything by ten will find food for thought in this.

"Common Law" Well Received

Initial Showing to Public in Several Cities Given Favorable Comment.

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG has made her long heralded appearance in the first of her own company's productions, a seven-reel adaptation of Robert W. Chambers' novel, "The Common Law," and scored the greatest triumph of her career. In both New York and Chicago, where pre-release showings of this brilliant film production were given last week, the picturization of the popular Chambers story proved a record breaker both in attendance and in the general critical and public acclaim with which it was received.

In New York the picture was screened simultaneously at eight of the Marcus Loew theaters. In point of attendance the picture topped the highest week-day receipts in the history of the Loew houses. Miss Young gave additional zest to the occasion by a whirlwind tour of the city to appear in person before the delighted audience in each theater.

The story of the Chicago pre-release showing at the Studebaker theater, where the picture is being given a sixteen day run, is concisely stated in the following telegram received by Mr. Selznick from his mid-western associates, Messrs. Jones, Linick & Schaeffer, of Chicago.

"Clara Kimball Young in 'The Common Law' did biggest business in the history of Studebaker theater. Over two thousand on the two days. Everybody well pleased. All three morning papers, Tribune, Herald, Examiner, give picture wonderful criticism. Accept our congratulations."

The critics of both cities united in showering Miss Young with bouquets of complimentary phraseology about the supremity of her beauty and unexcelled appeal of her acting. The brilliancy of the work of the splendid cast selected to support the star was also universally commented upon, as was the masterly skill with which Director General Capellani has caught the spirit of the Chambers story and set it forth in seven swiftly moving reels of photographically perfect film.

Plans have been perfected to make the pre-release showing of the picture at the Globe theater in Boston, Monday evening, October 2, another gala occasion. Miss Young will visit Boston to appear before her opening audiences and arrangements for her entertainment by civic and official society have been made.

The regular release date for the picture will be October 16, and so great has been the demand for first showings that the Selznick organization has been forced to make 100 prints, the greatest number ever ordered in the history of motion picture, for a single feature production. This, taken in consideration with the fact that more than a quarter of a million dollars worth of bookings have already been contracted for would seem to prove beyond all doubt the success of the Selznick plan of presenting Miss Young and other brilliant stars at the head of their own companies on an open booking policy.

FRANKIE MANN, THE NEW IVAN VAMPIRE.

Miss Frankie Mann, whose notable work in "Her Surrender" aroused the unanimous approval of the critics, was born in Mill Hall, Pa., is the daughter of Robert Mann, Jr., who previous to the financial panic of 1907 was a powerful financier. Accustomed to every luxury until that time, his high spirited daughter lost no time in vain regret, but making quick inventory of her abilities and inclinations she decided to try the route to fame via the footlights.

Making good in the Castle Square Stock in Boston, she next essayed the Orpheum Stock Company of Philadelphia. The flickering films beckoned her and she deserted the spoken stage for the screen. During her three years with the Lubin organization, Miss Mann appeared in most of the big successes put out by this company, among which are: "The House Next Door," "The Sporting Duchess," "The Climbers," "The Great Ruby" and many others. Miss Mann is rapidly winning for herself an enviable place in filmdom, each succeeding role which she enacts adds new laurels to her already great reputation and her work in "Her Surrender," the latest Ivan production, stamps her as among the foremost leading ladies of the screen world.

MARGUERITE CLARK RENEWS CONTRACT WITH FAMOUS PLAYERS.

Contrary to the rumors that have constantly found their way into print for the last few weeks to the effect that Marguerie Clark, the internationally popular Famous Players star, would abandon the screen and return to the stage, it is announced that Miss Clark has just renewed her contract with the Famous Players.

Kalem Stars Welcomed

Marin Sais and True Boardman Royally Welcomed on Tour of Twenty California Houses.

MARIN SAIS, "The Girl from Frisco," and True Boardman, her co-star in the Kalem series, received a taste of their former stage life during the past few weeks on a tour of California theaters. The personal appearances of the stars on the stages of the photoplay theaters have been met with enthusiastic crowds at each of the dozen houses thus far visited, while eight more are on the list.

Neither the Kalem Company nor the stars was directly responsible for the plan of having the players make a circuit of the theaters. Since the success of the Kalem series of the West exhibitors have been frequent visitors to the Kalem studio at Glendale, which is under the management of Director James W. Horne. Four weeks ago a committee representing the Southern California exhibitors booking the series from the Los Angeles exchange, declaring that "Frisco" had become the most popular feature of their programs with their patrons, requested a possible personal appearance.

Though it meant a considerable sacrifice of time Miss Sais and True Boardman readily assented to the plan and have been appearing at the houses possible to reach without delaying operations at the studio. With the series extended to twenty-five episodes the studio force is now kept working at top speed.

The requirement for unusually elaborate and different settings in each of the two reel episodes of the series makes the demands on the studio force especially exacting. For the tenth episode, "The Reformation of Dog Hole," the episode released October 11, Director Horne found it necessary to construct the entire main street of the fictitious town of Dog Hole. In "The Yellow Hand," issued the following Wednesday, some weirdly realistic settings in the interior of Chinese joss-houses called for the outlay of much time and expense.

The story of "The Yellow Hand" is built on the question of Chinese immigration and involves the operations of the mysterious Dragon Brotherhood. Two hundred Chinese players were engaged for the production by Director Horne, most of them appearing in the temple scenes, while a few have parts of importance, in which they are seen to good advantage.

Ronald Bradbury, Frank Jonasson, Josephine West, Edward Clisbee and Steve Murphy are among the other players seen in these two coming episodes of the series by Robert Welles Ritchie.

OLIVE THOMAS HAS BIG AMBITION.

OLIVE THOMAS has a big ambition for such a diminutive girl. It is to be the greatest motion picture actress in the world. Miss Thomas is now appearing as visiting star in support of Harry Fox and Grace Darling in several episodes of the International Film Service's photoplay series, "Beatrice Fairfax.". She has won unstinted praise not only for the beautiful manner in which she "screens," but for the wonderful dramatic ability she has displayed.

"All of my previous theatrical experience has been acquired in musical comedies," explained Miss Thomas, "and I never realized until I joined the International forces what a really great field the motion pictures offer. Many persons imagine that all one has to do in motion pictures is to look pretty. But I honestly believe that greater talent is required in motion picture work than in the spoken drama."

Miss Thomas is a native of Charleroi, a suburb of Pittsburgh, but the smoke and grime of the great industrial community did not prevent her from becoming one of the most beautiful women in America. She spent all of her childhood in and around Pittsburgh, having lived in another suburb, Glassport, for several years. She was sixteen years old when she landed in New York. That was—well, it was four years ago, but you would never think to look at "Ollie," as her friends all call her, that she has reached the advanced age of 20.

For two years prior to joining the International, Miss Thomas was with the Ziegfeld Follies and attracted wide attention by her grace, charm and beauty.

Miss Thomas' first appearance in "Beatrice Fairfax" is in the tenth episode, "Play Ball," in which she plays the part of "Rita Malone," sweetheart of "Kerrigan," the Giant player.

KATHLYN WILLIAMS TO LECTURE.

Kathlyn Williams, the popular Morosco-Pallas star, has just been honored with an invitation from the Wisconsin State University, to deliver a series of lectures on the art of making motion pictures.

Chicago News Letter

By JAS. S. McQUADE

CAMILLE D'ARCY, for sometime past connected with Essanay's acting forces, died Wednesday, September 27, at her home in this city, after a month's illness. Miss D'Arcy was a well-known stock actress, and she played many years in theaters on the West Side, this city. She took a great pleasure in photoplay acting and scored quite a number of hits during her career. The last picture in which I saw Miss D'Arcy was "The Pacifist," in which she played one of the leading characters, opposite Harry Dunkinson. This production was a comedy, in which Miss D'Arcy played her role with much cleverness. Miss D'Arcy in private life was the wife of Dr. Loren Wilder, of Chicago.

* * *

Watterson R. Rothacker, president of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Co., states that he will issue in a few days a small booklet, 7 by 4½ inches in size, of 50 pages, which will enable every cameraman to identify accurately every scene he exposes. Mr. Rothacker believes that this booklet will make possible the best expert care in developing, and will make it impossible to have any mix-up in the scenes. Many valuable instructions and suggestions to cameramen will be included in the work, and Mr. Rothacker believes that if they are followed they will assist in reaching the highest grade of film quality. A more extensive description of the booklet will appear in these columns when it has been published.

* * *

Frank Marion, formerly president of the Kalem Company, passed through the city one day last week on his way to California. His visit is not in any way connected with moving picture business, as I understand Mr. Marion is studying certain types of Indians for use in decorative art.

* * *

H. H. Buckwalter informs me that the new George Kleine Denver offices are located at 729 Eighteenth street, just a few doors from the new post office, and centrally located for business. The new Salt Lake offices, at 127 East Second South street, are also equally well situated for the convenience of exhibitors. The Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service will be handled from these offices.

* * *

Harry Weiss, general manager of the Central Film Corporation, has added F. E. Whitmer to the sales force of the company. Mr. Weiss has just returned from a ten-day automobile trip through Indiana and Illinois, and reports quite an improvement in conditions since his last visit through this territory, in July. Exhibitors are more optimistic and business has much improved. He reports that the entire coal mining district of Illinois is at present tied up with infantile paralysis, and that notice has been served on all theaters in Princeton, Ottawa, Peru and La Salle, forbidding the owners to allow any children in their theaters, until the epidemic is over. This, naturally, has caused poor business for exhibitors in the section affected.

* * *

Marion H. Kohn, president of the Consolidated Film Corporation, of San Francisco and Los Angeles, made a pleasant call at the Chicago office Tuesday, September 26. After attending to some business in the interests of his company, Mr. Kohn left for New York City the following day. The Consolidated recently purchased "The Ordeal," a six-part Life-Photo production, which will be shown in several western States. Mr. Kohn said that this subject will be included in the opening program of the new St. Francis theater, directly across from the St. Francis Hotel, in San Francisco. The St. Francis is now nearing completion, and will have its formal opening in about four or five weeks. The seating capacity is about 1,600.

* * *

Ralph T. Kettering, publicity manager for Jones, Linick & Schaefer, got out a handsome invitation for the initial presentation of "The Common Law," at the Studebaker. Accompanying the invitation was an attracive imitation booklet, which bore on the front cover a likeness, in colors, of Clara Kimball Young, and on the back the title of the book and the name of Robert W. Chambers, the author.

* * *

Hector J. Streyckmans, well known in film circles here, arrived in the city Monday, September 25, from New York. Hector has left the film business, and will engage in promoting the interests of the new motor truck of the Clyde Motor Truck Co.

* * *

Wallie Decker, publicity manager of the Chicago office of Paramount, informs me that Florence Vidor made a trip by automobile, recently, from Houston, Tex., to Los Angeles, where she will appear with Lenore Ulrich in "The Intrigue," a coming Morosco release on the Paramount program. He states that she was robbed on the way by a band of gypsies, who took everything of value belonging to her machine, but that she managed to arrive in Los Angeles in time to start work.

* * *

Wallace Pyke, the well known character man, has been engaged to appear in Pallas pictures, and will be seen in "A Son of Erin," a coming Dustin Farnum feature.

* * *

Roscoe Arbuckle made a brief stop-over in the city on his way to Los Angeles after a long season in New York. He announced, while here, that he will cease to be a Keystone player in January, when he will begin work for his own company, which will be known as the Comique Film Corporation. J. M. Schenck, of the Loew Enterprises, is associated with him. Mr. Arbuckle gave out that, at the outset, the product of the new company will be confined to comedies in two reels, one of which will be made every month. He justified this policy with the remark, "You can't make people laugh through five reels." He said that, later, the company might make some dramatic pictures, but that he would have nothing to do with their direction. Mr. Arbuckle will not engage any stock company. He, Al. St. John and a girl will be the only regulars, and all the other people required will be hired. For the next three months Mr. Arbuckle will devote himself to building his new studio and completing his plans for the future.

Standard Film Industries Incorporates

Louis B. Jennings at the Head of New Concern Organized Under the Laws of Virginia.

LOUIS B. JENNINGS, president of the American Film Laboratories, Inc., of New York City, announces the incorporation of the Standard Film Industries, Inc., under the laws of Virginia, with a capitalization of $10,000,000. The new company has taken over the American Film Laboratories, which have a large developing and printing capacity. It is stated that but $1,750,000 will be issued, to be used in payment for the interests taken over, the balance of the stock remaining in the treasury, to be issued from time to time as the occasion may require .

Mr. Jennings, who is also president of the Standard, states that arrangements have been completed for distribution through twenty exchanges for the product the organization will control. Franchises will be given to financially sound companies. One of the aims of the company will be the reduction of overhead expenses.

Associated with Mr. Jennings as directors are Philip O. Mills, Anthony J. Drexel, George J. Hurty and Eliot Norton. It is said other banking and Stock Exchange interests are identified with the company.

News of Los Angeles and Vicinity

By G. P. VON HARLEMAN and CLARKE IRVINE

RUMORMONGERS' WAGGING TONGUES.

Coast Film Men Endeavor to Stop Idle Gossip—East Is Blamed for Absurd Stories.

THE past two weeks in Los Angeles have been punctuated at intervals by startling rumors from the east. The stories carried on the wings of this vulture of business and society have been proved unfounded. One of these was that one of the biggest powers in the world would soon control four of the largest companies in a gigantic merger. Another story said a certain big producer would leave his concern and produce for himself.

The latest rumor, the last straw of rumors as it might be called, took us out to Universal City, for it stated there was to be a final absorbing of companies, a forming of a big trust, which would control the whole industry. We went straight to General Manager H. O. Davis. He only smiled when he heard the story and said: "Well, the Universal is not yet taking in any other companies, nor do we expect to take in any company whatever." Mr. Davis said more rumors were in the air at the present than there has been at any other time. The head of the big studio remarked that his company was progressing better and faster than ever. More pictures are now being turned out and with less expense, time and trouble. It is something like eight months since Mr. Davies took charge, and the difference in the atmosphere on the gigantic "lot" is greatly different, too.

Manager Davis Talks of Production.

Of late some very big pictures of quality and individuality have been shipped from the coast plant, and the manager says this policy is to be continued. Bluebird photoplays, made in the west, are getting the money and are getting business. Mr. Davis has just shipped a number of five-reelers, all cracking good plays, which will be released during the fall. One of the big stories, a decidedly novel one, is "Your Family or Mine," a seven-reel subject. At first this was known as "Idle Wives," then another story was woven in and around it, and the title changed. It is a story within a story and is a preachment for the moving picture theater, told in a manner that will strike home. It is an exhibitor's picture. This is the first time such a picture has been made, and undoubtedly will be appreciated by every one in the business.

Another point in Universal's argument is "The play's the thing," which is creating much interest in Universal pictures. Mr. Davis' policy of getting a story as the first step in molding a photoplay has met with success.

WORLD MEN VISIT THEATERS.

This week we took out the gasoline wagon and fared forth to interview the theater men of nearby counties. We stopped in San Bernardino and visited the Opera House, which is run by Mrs. M. L. Kiplinger. Here business is good, with Triangle and Paramount service and other features. Here also are played road shows and other attractions. This house is one of the oldest in the state, being the second theater outside of San Francisco to be built in the early days. "Jaffery" has just started here and business looks good for it.

The Temple seats 610 and is managed by J. G. Knapp, who says business is fine. He runs Metro, Fox and World first run pictures and charges ten cents. The Auditorium is run by A. H. Reeves, who will put in vaudeville soon. Here business is fair, after a rather quiet summer. Mr. Reeves is opening the Empress theater in Phoenix on Oct. 9 with vaudeville and pictures. G. H. Wilson is in charge.

A peculiar circumstance was found at the Temple theater, for here Manager Knapp had just finished a small fight with the exchanges. Some time ago a special dispensation was given the former Temple owners to exhibit Fox films at five cents for the matinee. Knapp bought the house and continued the practice, adding World and Metro pictures to his programs, and maintaining the same price, matinees five cents, nights ten cents. Now somebody in the town has written to the exchanges and they in turn to the home offices about this one theater charging only five cents while the others charge ten. So now Manager Knapp has had to change his price to conform to the rules. But before doing it he said: "What am I going to do? I have to raise the price to ten cents or lose these big pictures, and I can't show my patrons cheaper pictures. I have decided that Temple patrons are entitled to and want only the best, so World, Metro and Fox pictures shall remain in my house, even if the price has to return to its former scale." And he is doing a good matinee business.

We met F. T. Bush, an operator who just came up from the border, where he was working. He used to be in San Francisco, but is going to remain here for a while.

In Riverside is Manager Howe of the Regent and Orpheum houses, who is a booster exhibitor. Although not having the pleasure of finding him in, we noted his house was doing a good business.

At Redlands we met Manager E. Stewart of the Empress, which seats 600 and is modern in every way. It is a duplicate structure of the Tally theater in Los Angeles, and was built by the dean of exhibitors some tmie ago. Here is run Bluebird plays, Metro, Fox, World, Mutual, and one day open. Business is improving.

Los Angeles Film Brevities.

Donald Crisp, featured in "The Escape," later producer and actor, and more recently connected with the Clune corporation as producing director, has resigned after making "The Eyes of the World." It was Donald Crisp who directed Clune's "Ramona," the multiple reel special feature. Mr. Crisp is vacationing before starting another proposition.

* * *

Billy Garwood, for the past six years screen actor and director, will open with "On Trial" at the Morosco theater here in a few weeks. Billy says he is going to take a try at the stage again, and he wonders how he will feel when he steps out on the boards, with a thousand persons watching him, instead of the lone eye of the camera.

* * *

Bob Daly, director, is out of Selig's and is resting before accepting another position. He has been with this firm for over a year and has made many good pictures. His charming wife, known on the screen as Fritzi Brunette, has also left the company.

* * *

The Vogue studio is busy with Rube Miller directing a big picture and R. E. Williamson, who just came from the east, directing Ben Turpin in a comedy with Gypsy Abbott opposite.

* * *

On the night of September 30 there were a large number of men and women actors and directors present at a supper called in Hollywood for the purpose of organizing the Hollywood Players' Club. Wallace Reid, one time leading light in the old Photoplayers' Club, and popular among the players, is at the head of the proposed organization. It is the idea to build a big club house.

* * *

Manager Callis of the Potter theater in Santa Barbara has been doing some great improving in his house. He is prepared for the winter rush and has booked some big attractions for his patrons.

* * *

Mary MacLaren, the Universal Bluebird star, who has appeared in some fine productions lately, spoke from the stage of the Clune Broadway theater one night this week after she appeared in "Saving the Family Name."

* * *

Six horses drawing a big stage in a scene out at Inceville became frightened at pistol shots and yells when the climax to the scene was made, and ran away, tipping the heavy coach over and injuring seven persons. All escaped serious injury except Walter Bryant, who suffered a broken arm and severe cuts and bruises.

* * *

Los Angeles' police commission has put its foot down on officers working in the pictures. In the past a large number of officers, while off duty, have performed for the cameras a part of their sixteen hours of leisure. This pleasant outdoor work will no more be done by the handsome patrolman. The commissioners' reason for the order is not known.

* * *

At Anaheim R. P. Anderson of San Francisco has purchased the Mason theater from M. Hartfield and has taken possession.

* * *

Charles Clary, who finished a big role with Geraldine Farrar at the Lasky studio, has signed with Fox and will start work at the Edendale studio, which, by the way, was his old stamping ground when Selig operated there.

* * *

At Tropico Cole & Miller, Los Angeles, have invaded the theater field, having been negotiating for the Bijou theater, which has been closed for some time. They may open it soon.

* * *

Being sick is not half bad, at Universal City, anyway, where "Doc" Mace holds forth among those sufferers who have been injured in the big battle of shooting scenes and grinding "16" picture comeras. Herbert Rawlinson is still hauling around one leg in a plaster cast, waiting for the ligaments to cement to the bone of his knee, from which they were torn some weeks ago. Viola Smith is also out and says she does not want any more intimate scenes with a runaway horse and wagon.

* * *

Manager P. A. Kelley of the Zaragoza theater, down in Jerome, Arizona, is improving his house by remodeling it, installing 400 new chairs and two new projection machines, together with other necessary and late equipment for the exhibition of pictures.

* * *

Nell Shipman, now with Lasky, grabbed the whole lobby display last week at Miller's theater, where her picture, "Fire of Conscience," was being shown.

* * *

Anita King is motoring to San Diego, where she will spend several days vacationing. After her return she will start a series of talks to school children, mothers and clubwomen. Anita has addressed more such folks than any other one person around here. She is an attraction.

* * *

Al Christie, head of the firm that bears his name, is working like a real Trojan these days. After having been away six weeks it is no easy job to swing the studio and its people back into routine.

* * *

Manager Edward J. Cooper of the Princess theater in Santa Ana, a city about thirty-five miles south of here, dropped into the Moving Picture World office this week and showed us some fine pictures of a lobby display that he used in advertising "God's Country and the Woman." Cooper surely is a live showman, for his display drew the crowds just as he wanted it to. The whole lobby was one northern mountain scene, log hug, wigwams, snow-capped mountains and everything, even icicles.

Manager Cooper also brought in a picture of the house as it looked in the flashlight of a photographer's camera. The people crowded the lobby and took up space on the sidewalk in their endevor to gain entrance to the theater.

* * *

G. P. Von Harleman, our own co-correspondent, friend and good fellow, who is the Pacific Coast representative of the Moving Picture World, has departed Los Angeles for a two weeks' rest and vacation. He just disappeared across the street into the depths of a ticket office, not saying where he went.

* * *

The Essanay Company has added another aspirant for honors in moving picture acting in the person of Mrs. Frances Springer Keith, who shares with her mother the $2,000,000 estate of the late Warren Springer. She is now playing in her first picture at the Essanay studio.

* * *

Orchestra Hall has returned to the field of music and lectures. Among the latter are announced the Burton Holmes travelogues, the Newman Travel Talks and Dwight Elmendorf, each for a period of five weeks. The Burton Holmes lectures will be on "Canada from Coast to Coast" and "The Canadian Rockies," also "Imperial Britain," "La Belle, France" and "The German Fatherland."

* * *

Richardson Cotton, a photoplay actor on the Essanay forces, was killed in an automobile accident at Ephraim, Wis., where a kidnapping story was being filmed in a rugged section of country. It appears that both the driver of the machine and Cotton himself are responsible for the accident, as when Cotton made a leap for the running board of the machine, he was struck by it and instantly killed. Both made errors in estimating speed and direction. The body was brought to Chicago for interment.

* * *

The Orpheum theater, 112 S. State street, this city, owned by Jones, Linick & Schaefer, and the first large house in Chicago that was devoted solely to the presentation of moving pictures, was bombed early Monday morning, September 25. The bomb was placed in the first fire-escape landing, on the alley, at the rear of the theater, and it went off with a noise that was heard in all the downtown hotels. The bomb shattered a thick corrugated iron door into ribbons tore out a couple of seats in the theater balcony, and flying missiles scarred the walls. Every window in the near buildings on the alley, on both sides, was shattered. Aaron J. Jones states that only $15 damage was done to the theater, and that he knows of no reason for the outrage. Business was conducted at the Orpheum at the usual hours on Monday. The police attribute the act to the rival operators' unions in the city, but no clue has been found as yet to the perpetrators.

* * *

It is announced that the Selig Company paid $25,000 for the exclusive rights to the exclusive filming of the world's championship baseball series.

J. H. Herman will take personal charge of at least a dozen expert cameramen, who will be assigned to the work. Jack Wheeler, managing editor of the Selig-Tribune news reel, will also give his assistance. It is expected that the world's series will be played in Boston and Brooklyn, and the Selig Company has already arranged for a special car for the cameramen, film editors, laboratory and laboratory experts. The negative will be developed, cut and trimmed and the positives made ready for release to the public within forty-eight hours after the game is played. Special plans have been completed for filming the games. Not only will there be close-ups of the star players in action, but the entire playing field, stands, and the crowds in attendance will be filmed.

"We expect to film the world's series as they should be filmed," said Mr. Herman during a recent interview. "We believe that our plan to establish dark rooms and laboratories in a special car, and there develop and edit the film will save a great deal of time."

* * *

The following programs have been announced at the prominent downtown theaters in Chicago for the ensuing week:

Studebaker—"The Common Law" (Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation) enters its second week, and will end its 16-day run at this house on Sunday evening, October 8. Big business is reported for this picture.

Fine Arts—Second week of Thomas Dixon's "The Fall of a Nation." Fair business is reported.

V-L-S-E theater—"Ramona" (W. H. Clune) for an indefinite run.

Colonial—"The Birth of a Nation" (D. W. Griffith), which opened Thursday evening, September 28.

MORE PLAYERS ENGAGED AT UNIVERSAL CITY.

The following additions have been made to the personnel at Universal City: On September 8 Wilbur Higby and Mrs. J. B. Mills to play characters under Director Conway; on September 11 George Beranger to play juvenile roles under Director Gerrard, Gladys Boyd to play a school teacher role, Mary Talbot to play characters under Director Carleton, Seymour Zeliff to play characters under Director Conway and Jack Connolly to play characters under Director Worthington; on September 12 Harry Depp to play a juvenile role with Ruth Stonehouse, and Madge Kirby to play an ingenue with Carter De Haven; on September 13 Louise Owen to play heavy roles under Director George; September 14 Burwell Hamerick to play boy roles in general stock, V. Rottman to play juvenile under Director Ryder, Fronzi Gunn to play leads, Tom Walsh to play characters, and R. H. Ryan to play leads under Director Millarde, and Max Stanley to play juvenile roles under Director Macdonald; September 15 Harry Davenport to play characters under Director Worthington.

The Universal Program for Week of October 9

TWO Universal Special Features and a Red Feather will be released on the Universal program for the week of Oct. 9. Carter De Haven will be seen in "Breaking Into Society," a two-reel episode of the "Timothy Dobbs—That's Me" series, while Marie Walcamp, Eddie Polo and Jack Holt star in "A Daughter of Mars," the latest two-reel episode of the new Universal serial "Liberty." In "Breaking Into Society," ninth of the "Dobbs' series which have been produced by Wallace Beery from the story by Bess Meredyth, Carter De Haven is supported by Robert Milash and Margaret Whistler. Besides the principals, the cast of "Liberty" now includes Bertram Grassby, Neal Hart, G. Raymond Nye, Maud Emory and L. M. Wells.

The Red Feather release on October 9 is "A Romance of Billy Goat Hill," a five-reel drama featuring Myrtle Gonzalez, Val Paul and Fred Church. The play was scenarioized and produced by Lynn Reynolds from the book by Alice Hegan Rice. George Hernandez, Thomas Jefferson, Frankie Lee, Jack Connelly and Jack Curtis also play important roles in the picture. On the same day "Almost Guilty," a Nestor comedy featuring Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Priscilla Dean will be released. "Almost Guilty" was written by Walter Newman and produced by Louis Chaudet.

On October 10 Mary Fuller will be seen in "Cheaters," a Gold Seal three-reel underworld and society drama written by E. M. Engleton, picturized by Catherine Carr and directed by Lucius Henderson. Clara Byers, Harry Spingler, Paul Panzer and Johnnie Walker appear in support of Miss Fuller. There will be no Victor release on this date.

On October 11 the L-Ko two-reel comedy, "Lured But Cured," with Gertrude Selby, Dan Russell and Charles Inslee in the principal roles will be released. No. 41 of the Universal Animated Weekly will be released on the same date. There will be no release under the Laemmle brand on this date.

The Universal Special Feature, Flora Parker De Haven in "Behind Life's Stage," a two-reel human interest drama, will be released on October 12. Virginia Corbin, Charlie Cummings, Margaret Whistler and William Welch, appear in support of Miss De Haven. On the same day the Dorsey travel picture, "The Beautiful Temples of Ceylon," will be released as a Powers educational. There will be no release under the Big U brand on this date.

William Garwood and Lois Wilson will co-star on October 13 in "A Soul at Stake," an Imp two-reel Oriental drama written by John Fleming Wilson, scenarioized by Calder Johnstone and produced by William Garwood. Al Barzan, Edward Brady and Andrew Arbuckle appear in support of the versatile Pat. There will be no Rex release on this date.

"Night Shadows," a two-reel western drama written by Willis Robards, will be released on October 14. Alfred Gordon, Edward Carey, Ernest Murray and Alice Nelson play the principal roles. "The Oil Smeller," a Joker comedy written by Charles J. Wilson, Jr., and produced by P. C. Hartigan will be released on the same date with Ernie Shields, O. C. Jackson, Yvette Mitchelle and Albert MacQuarrie in the cast.

"When Little Lindy Sang," a juvenile drama featuring Ernestine Jones, a little colored girl, will be released with "Diplomacy," a cartoon, as a split reel under the Powers brand. "When Little Lindy Sang" was produced by Lule Warrenton. Little Nora Dempsey and Margaret Whistler also play important parts in the picture. There will be no Rex nor L-Ko releases on this date.

The Universal also will release during the week a Rex two-reel drama, a Big U one-reeler, a Laemmle one-reeler and an Imp one-reeler, the titles of which have not yet been decided upon.

ANITA KING WILL LECTURE.

Refuting the theory that screen stars, like children, should be seen and not heard, Anita King, the Lasky star, has arranged to deliver a series of lectures in California on various topics, some relating to the motion picture and its influence on the thought and line of the day and others devoted to more general subjects. These talks will be delivered mainly before schools and women's clubs. On October 3 she will address the Cahuanga School Mothers' Circle on motion picture problems, and on October 24 will be the guest of honor at the opening of the winter season of the San Pedro Women's Club, when she will deliver a talk on the moral influence of the photoplay as a medium of appeal to the mind and heart.

A Week of General Film

A Selig Opens and Closes the Week of October 9—Other Releases Noted.

SELIG productions will open and close General Film Service program for the week October 9-14. "Converging Paths," from the Selig studios, a drama in two parts, presenting Robyn Adair and Virginia Kirtley, will be the first picture shown for the week. This will be followed by a Vitagraph one-reel comedy, "Billy's Melodrama," presenting William Lytell, Jr., and Shirley Moore. The Selig-Tribune will be next thrown on the screen, and as there has been so much news of importance transpiring lately this feature of General Film Service program for that week should be especially interesting. The first day's releases will conclude with a Biograph reissue, "A Tale of the Wilderness," in one act with Dorothy Bernard in the titular role.

To Essanay falls the task of putting theatre patrons of General Film Service theaters in good humor with their first picture, Tuesday, October 10. There will be no trouble doing this, however, as the comedy drama, "Money to Burn," in two parts, presenting Lillian Drew and John Lorenz, has been selected. Then will come a Kalem comedy in one reel, "The Love Magnet," with "Ham" and "Bud" and Ethel Teare providing the fun. Another Biograph reissue in two parts, "A Pueblo Legend," with Mary Pickford, will close the program for that day.

Essanay's split-reel Canimated Nooz Pictorial and scenic film will be the first displayed Wednesday, October 11. A Vim comedy, "Their Installment Furniture," presenting Harry Myers and Rosemary Theby, will follow this, and then will come the tenth episode of "The Girl from 'Frisco" in two reels, "The Reformation of Dog Hole," featuring Marin Sais and True Boardman.

Selig-Tribune and a Vim "Plump" and "Runt" comedy, "The Candy Trial," will be General Film Service's offering for Thursday, October 12.

The Knickerbocker Star Feature promises an unusual treat when "From the Deep," a drama in three parts, featuring Joyce Moore, is presented as the first offering, Friday, October 13. This will be succeeded by "The Battered Bridegroom," a Kalem one-act comedy, with Ivy Close featured. Two more comedies—a Vitagraph, "The Mayor's Fall From Grace," with Anna Schaefer and Jack Mower, and a Vim production, "Watch Your Watch," of the "Pokes" and "Jabs" series, will close the program for that day.

The final day of the week will begin when "Lost Twenty-Four Hours," a comedy in three parts, is shown by Essanay with Richard Travers and Marguerite Clayton as headliners. Then will follow the ever-popular release, an episode of "The Hazards of Helen," by Kalem, featuring Helen Gibson in "To Save the Special." A Selig one-act drama with Tom Mix in the titular role, "A Mistake in Rustlers," will conclude the week's offerings.

NEW CATALOGUE OF STURTEVANT HEATERS.

The B. F. Sturtevant Company of Hyde Park, Boston, has issued Catalogue No. 230, of 136 pages, descriptive of Sturtevant Heaters. The book is printed on an unusual quality of paper, contains many half-tone cuts of the various appliances designed for supplying large buildings, and altoge her from a typographical viewpoint reflects credit on its compiler and publishers. Many pages are devoted to tables giving statistics, for instance, on the heat losses from buildings, whether these be through transmission or leakage, and calculations for designing heating systems. The book will be of interest to those theater owners who make a study of the science of heating and ventilation.

Among the various types of heaters described are the Sturtevant, Mitre Type, Solid Base, Return Bend and London, in sizes to suit all buildings. It is pointed out why the Sturtevant system of the fan or hot blast principle is especially adaptable to theaters, among the qualities claimed for it being flexibility, ready control and regulation, less trouble to maintain ventilation, less radiating surface required, humidity control, and the absence of disfiguration by undesirable steam piping. There is an analysis of the upward and downward systems of heating.

NEW PRESS REPRESENTATIVE FOR DETROIT THEATER.

C. G. Eldridge has been appointed the general press representative of the Duplex theater, of Detroit, Mich., and is conducting a big campaign along advertising and publicity for Paramount Pictures.

Pearl White in Patriotic Role

Famous Pathe Star Will Be Featured in "Pearl of the Army," a Military Serial.

PEARL WHITE will be seen as an American Joan of Arc in Pathe's next serial, "Pearl of the Army," just announced for release November 12. As the title indicates, "Pearl of the Army" is a military serial, outrivaling in interest and in popular appeal "Neal of the Navy," the successful navy serial released by Pathe in the summer of 1915.

The true atmosphere of Uncle Sam's land forces is pictured with an exactness of detail that evidences the careful study made by Guy W. McConnell, the author. Mr. McConnell has spent more of his life studying army conditions from the viewpoint of the enlisted man, of the officer and also the departmental man. In the preparation of his picture story he has had the active co-operation and advice of military experts.

"Pearl of the Army" is heralded as the serial that will unmask the secret foes who menace our peace and prosperity. It will also bring home forcibly to the motion picture millions the dangers that many see ahead of us because of our unpreparedness. The serial is being produced by the Astra Film Corporation, under the direction of Edward Jose, who produced "The Iron Claw." George B. Seitz, author of "The Iron Claw," has adapted the story.

Miss White plays the role of Pearl Dare, a twentieth century Joan of Arc, who awakens America to the dangers surrounding the country. Her millions of admirers who have followed her adventures in "The Perils of Pauline," "The Exploits of Elaine," and more recently "The Iron Claw," will welcome her return in this patriotic picture, which gives her the greatest opportunity of her career.

In the supporting cast are Ralph Kellard, Theodore Friebus, W. T. Carleton and Marie Wayne. Mr. Kellard takes the part of the hero. His work in stock has fitted him to portray his role with sympathy and understanding.

Edward Jose has made a name for himself as a producer of serials. He had a wide experience on the legitimate stage, which carried him to every corner of the globe. He directed "The Iron Claw."

The cast which President L. J. Gasnier has gathered for Miss White's support in this picture is an indication of his determination to make each episode in every way equal to a five-reel picture.

Mr. Seitz is known as a most successful writer of serials. His work on "The Exploits of Elaine," "The Perils of Pauline," and "The Iron Claw" was largely responsible for their great success. Pathe's wonder serial, "The Shielding Shadow," the first installment of which appeared October 1, was also written by him.

Theodore Friebus, who plays the part of the villain in "Pearl of the Army," has a reputation as one of the leading stock actors in the country and for nine years he played leads in New York City and Boston.

W. T. Carlton, who plays Colonel Dare, Pearl's father, is well known from coast to coast as an operatic singer and has thousands of admirers and personal friends gained while he was proprietor and star of the Carleton Opera Company. Mr. Carleton played the part of Pierpont Stafford, father of Billie Burke in "Gloria's Romance."

According to the policy set down by Vice President J. A. Berst, a national newspaper and billboard campaign will be inaugurated to create business for the exhibitor. The National Sunday Magazine, with a circulation of over 2,000,000, will publish the story in addition to scores of other newspapers throughout the country.

A special introductory leader has been prepared to bring home to the motion picture millions the dangers which many see just ahead of us because of our unpreparedness. "Pearl of the Army" has all of the essentials of a successful serial. It has Pearl White supported by an all-star cast, excellent production, and a story of romance, mystery and adventure with a compelling love interest.

At Leading Picture Theaters

Programs for the Week of October 1 at New York's Best Motion Picture Houses.

"The Lash" at the Strand.

AT THE Strand theater Jesse L. Lasky presented Marie Doro in a new photo play, entitled "The Lash," by Paul West. The scenes are laid in the storm-wrecked Island of St. Ba'tiste, and Miss Doro enacts the roll of Sidonie, the daughter of John Du Val, representing the government of the island and whose word in all things is final. Miss Doro is supported by an exceptional cast, including Elliott Dexter, James Neill, Thomas Delmar, Veda McEvers, Raymond Hatton, Jane Wolff and Josephine Rice.

An interesting feature of the program was the appearance of Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of the New York Zoological Park, who delivered a lecture in connection with his motion pictures, illustrating the intimate life of the wild animal and the evolution from the highest to the lowest type. There were also fashion picures arranged by Miss Florence Rose and a new comedy. Helen Scholder and Irene Jonani were the soloists.

"The Return of Draw Egan" at the Rialto.

William S. Hart, in "The Return of Draw Egan," was the feature attraction at the Rialto the week of October 1. As a new Mexican bandit, notoriously quick on the "draw," he is a "Man's man" all the time, and in this story of the outlaw who regenerated a town, winning back his self respect at the same time, acheived a characterization convincing in its realism. Louise Glaum and Margery Wilson are prominent in his supporting cast.

A timely novelty was Miss Claire Niles, who offered "Baseball," an interpretative dance portraying the national game. Mme. Jeanne Maubourg, G. Dubois and A. W. Parent were the soloists.

Robert C. Bruce's scenic pictures, "The Hermit of Hood," "Bits of Yosemite," Charlie Chaplin in "The Pawnshop," a Keystone comedy and the combination news weekly completed the program.

"Ashes of Embers" at the Broadway.

Pauline Frederick in the Famous Players-Paramount production, "Ashes of Embers," was the star at the Broadway theater. In this drama by Forrest Halsey, Miss Frederick appears as twin sister, who are absolutely opposite in character. The one, Agnes, is a sweet-faced self-sacrificing drudge. The other, Laura, is totally without conscience and so utterly selfish that she even steals from the cash drawer of which Agnes has charge, in order to get money for a dress. "Ashes of Embers," by the way, is the first production in which Miss Frederick has starred since signing her two-year contract with the Famous Players, by the terms of which she abandons the stage for at least another two years.

The short subjects on the program included Charlie Chaplin in "The Pawnshop," Paramount-Burton Holmes travel pictures, Paramount Pictograph and Bray cartoons.

Eighty-first Street Theater Bill.

At the Eighty-first Street theater four Triangle pictures were shown Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Dorothy Dalton in "The Jungle Child," and a Sennett Keystone comedy were on the program. On Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Douglas Fairbanks in "Manhattan Madness," and a Triangle Keystone comedy were the picture features.

Bluebird Will Add Stars

To Strengthen Its Policy of "Making the Play the Thing."

THERE is a certain amount of truth in the report that Bluebird Photoplays, Inc., will employ stars in future releases—but stars will always be made subservient to the play in which they will appear. This conclusion is drawn from a statement, issued by M. H. Hoffman, general manager of Bluebird, upon his return, last week, from a conference of Bluebird exchange managers held in Chicago.

"In our determination to co-operate to the fullest degree with our exhibitors," says Mr. Hoffman, "we have decided to take advantage of the 'names' we have ourselves created, and to employ from time to time such outside 'stars' as we may find available to play the leading roles in our plays.

"We are not digressing from our policy to make 'The Play the Thing.' On the contrary, we are strengthening that purpose by making the production and the player conform to the standard of the play itself. The play will always be 'the thing,' and 'stars' will be employed because of their fitness to interpret certain roles, rather than because they have 'names' to conjure with in our advertising.

"Speaking of stars, we have them right in our own organization—stars we have ourselves created—who can't be beat. Then, too, we have the Smalleys, Lois Weber and her husband, Phillips Smalley, were stars before Bluebird was projected and they have contributed in an appreciable measure to the good work of 'putting over' the Bluebird program.

"Coupled with the Smalleys we have Mary MacLaren, a star created by Bluebird out of whole cloth of excellent material. Lois Weber discovered Mary MacDonald among the girls in our stock organization, who were playing 'maids' and small parts. Straightway Bluebird made her a star in 'Shoes.' Not alone did we make the girl a star, but we made her name for her—she was Mary MacLaren when she worked behind a maid's apron, carrying on cards. And in the months to come Mary MacLaren will be starred in numerous Bluebirds. There are those who predict that she will become, eventually, just as famous and just as popular as any other Mary in filmdom.

"Ella Hall had given years of valuable and increasingly artistic service to pictures before Bluebird made her a star. She worked and won her way and in future Bluebirds she will be further established as a star worthy of the designation. Louise Lovely is another Bluebird-made star and another Bluebird-named star, for she was Louise Crabasse before we named her Louise Lovely.

"There are other players in our organization with 'names' to star, and when we decide upon a play that requires the services of a star outside of our own forces, we will secure the necessary player regardless of expense or any financial consideration. But the play will always be 'the thing' with Bluebird."

Weekly List of Paramounts

Great Variety of "Big" and "Little" Features Offered for the Week of October 16.

FANNIE WARD, Owen Moore, and Marguerite Courtot, are the three stars that will be featured on the Paramount Program for the week of October 16th; Fannie Ward in "Witchcraft," produced by Lasky, and Mr. Moore and Miss Courtot in a comedy drama, "The Kiss," produced by the Famous Players. This is Fannie Ward's first production since her return to the Lasky studio in California, and it marks the second appearance of the co-starring of Mr. Moore and Miss Courtot in Paramount Pictures produced by the Famous Players.

For the same week, the "little features" that Paramount will distribute, are the 36th edition of the magazine-on-the-screen, the Paramount Pictographs, the 37th of the travel series of "Trips Around the World," conducted by Burton Holmes; a Paramount-Bray Cartoon, "Farmer Alfalfa Sees New York," from the pen of Paul Terry, and the second Black Diamond Comedy released by Paramount called "Bridget's Blunder."

After having made a thorough tour of England, Germany, Ireland, and Scotland in the weekly "Trips Around the World," Burton Holmes, who is conducting these "Easy Chair Journeys" for Paramount, turns towards the south of the continent, and takes his fellow travelers to Italy.

Paramount Pictographs, the magazine-on-the-screen, has four exceptionally interesting pictorial articles for this week, in "A Newspaper in the Making," "Queer Jobs for the Motorcycle," "Checking up the Umpire," and "Controlling an Oil Gusher."

Paul H. Terry, the well-known cartoonist, is responsible for the clever Paramount-Bray cartoon for this week, "Farmer Alfalfa Sees New York," in which he tells how Farmer Alfalfa made his debut in the great metropolis, and is picked up by a big buck coon, who deems him "easy picking," and conducts him to many crooked and disreputable joints, where Farmer Al gets skinned to the great amusement of his associates and his pet dog.

Paramount will distribute the week of the 16th, its second single reel comedy "Bridget's Blunder," a Black Diamond production, which is far more delightful and screamingly funny than its first, which made an instantaneous hit throughout the country. The story centers around a cook who is in love with a Cop; the latter's affections are centered elsewhere, although he occasionally makes love to Bridget for the sake of the pies and doughnuts which are always forthcoming at such times, only to have Bridget come to her senses one day and set a trap for him into which he walks: she catching him red-handed, and turns him down "cold."

GEORGE C. PEARCE JOINS UNIVERSAL.

George C. Pearce, who played the "king" in "Three Weeks" on the speaking stage, has joined the Universal and is now working under Director A. W. Rice. Pearce was born in New York City and educated at Trinity School for the Episcopal ministry. From the age of eleven to sixteen he was a popular boy soprano, singing in all the principal churches in New York. Some few years later Henry R. Dixey hearing him sing engaged him as leading tenor for his summer opera company at the Old Globe Theatre, Boston. He soon gained recognition not only for his voice but by his dramatic ability.

After several seasons as leading tenor in repertoire opera he joined the late Charles Frohman's Empire Theater stock company, where he remained six years playing light comedy in all the productions made at the Empire during that time. He appeared in such plays as "Under the Red Robe," "The Conquerors," "My Lady's Lord," "Lord and Lady Algy," "His Excellency, the Governor," "Brother Officers" and others.

The Empire stock company at that time included Henry Miller, William Faversham, Robert Edeson, William Farnum, Viola Allen, Ida Conquest, May Robson, Mrs. Whiffen, Margaret Anglin and others. Leaving Henry Miller's company while playing "The Rainbow," he joined the Biograph, where he remained two years.

British Notes

THE project to obtain a film of the British Cabinet in session, a collective portrait of the twenty-three men responsible for the prosecution of the nation's affairs, has been abandoned. Gross caricature of the proceedings by the press is alone responsible for the suspension of a worthy undertaking. Some solace is, however, provided in the release this week of a series of motion picture portraits of many prominent individuals, including most of our Cabinet Ministers, which, on the whole, amply fulfills the purpose of the original scheme in revealing the nation's leaders as they appear in the flesh, free from the dazzling halo of the immensity of their doings. Several of the portraits are disappointingly human. The Premier (Mr. H. H. Asquith) shows up with a marked invitation that must have given Mr. Hepworth (the photographer) the most uncomfortable five minutes of his life. Mr. Bonar Law (the leader of the Opposition) is more composed in the deliverance of a short speech, while Mr. Lloyd George (War Secretary) shows the unconscious complacence of a finished picture player. Other portraits include Earl Grey (Foreign Minister), General French, the Bishop of London, Lord Crewe, Mr. John Redmond (leader of the Irish Nationalists), General Ian Hamilton, Mr. A. J. Balfour (Admiralty), Mr. R. McKenna (Chancellor of the Exchequer), Mr. H. Samuel (Home Secretary), Lord Derby and Sir Hiram Maxim.

* * *

The Monopol Film Co. of Great Britain, sales agents for the Monopol Co. of America, have taken larger office premises. The new address is 16 Great Chapel street, London, W.

* * *

The firm of Bishop, Pessers & Co., Ltd., agents for Balboa films, has been absorbed by the Globe Film Co., Ltd., the screen exploiters of Billy Mason.

* * *

The British business of Pathe Freres is undergoing consummate reorganization. Several departmental changes are being made and I hear it is not unlikely that the firm will introduce an entirely new policy into its exchanges. Mr. Frank Smith, for a long time with the Eastman Kodak Co., is the new general manager, with Mr. J. Wessel as his assistant.

* * *

The Windsor Film Co. expects to release early next year a pictorial "Life of Lord Kitchener."

* * *

An important concession to film importers has just been made by the government. As most American shippers will know when films from abroad arrive in this country they are straightway, now that they pay import duty, placed in bond until the responsible party on this side claims them and pays the duty charges. The importer has not been allowed to see the films, he has had to redeem them from the bonding warehouse and examine them afterwards with the result in not a few cases that unsuitable films have only been discovered as such after incurring heavy dead charges. In future, the Customs authorities will allow film importers to inspect films consigned to them while they are yet in bond and so give them an opportunity of rejecting unsuitable subjects. A warehouse for this purpose has been opened at 35 Endell street, London, where for the convenience of importers a private theater is to be installed. Films consigned to Liverpool, Southampton, or other ports, will be available for viewing while in bond at this address.

* * *

Mr. Ernest G. Foster, of the Western Import Co. (Triangle), has been appointed manager of the American Co.'s rental exchange, recently opened at 89 Wardom street, London, W.

J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

Comments on the Films

EXCLUSIVELY BY OUR OWN STAFF

General Film Company

ANIMATED NOOZ PICTORIAL, NO. 16 (Essanay), Sept. 20.—A split-reel combining burlesque cartoons by Carlson and Canadian scenery. The cartoons are interesting and the scenic unusually beautiful.

THE MAN HUNTERS (Vim), Sept. 22.—Pokes and Jabbs dole out considerable comedy in this reel, which contains more story than several of their recent releases. Pokes, as a correspondence school detective, captures the outlaws in spite of himself, but, nevertheless, is proven a boob. Jabbs gets over considerable comedy as the city detective. Robert Burns, Walter Stull, Ethel Burton, Frank Hanson, Harry Naughton and Robin Williamson comprise the cast.

A CORNER IN WATER (Selig), Sept. 23.—An average one-reel "Western," written and produced by Tom Mix. A desert water hole is taken possession of by Pete Johnson, who refuses a traveler and his daughter permission to use it. A passing cowpuncher drags Johnson from the water hole. Tom, the cowpuncher, is also instrumental in saving father and daughter from hostile Indians. The cast is composed of Tom Mix, Victoria Forde, Joe Ryan, Chet Ryan and Pat Chrisman.

THE SUNBEAM (Biograph), Sept. 25.—This reissued reel is replete with heart interest. The film conveys a touching story of a child, who, when her mother dies, does not realize it. The child is called Sunbeam and she proves her title to the soubriquet by bringing about a marriage between a batchelor and an old maid, and thereby finding a home for herself. The "Sunbeam" is played by Inez Seabury. Claire McDowell, Kate Bruce and Dell Henderson are also in the cast.

THE SELIG-TRIBUNE, NO. 77, 1916 (Selig), Sept. 25.—Leaders of all jurisdictions of 33d degree Masons meet in Pittsburgh, Pa.; collapse of four small banks starts run on bank of Schiff & Co., Chicago; Secretary of Navy arrives at Philadelphia to address delegates of Waterways Commission; fifteen thousand American troops on ninety-mile march from San Antonio to Austin, Texas; big test shell crashes through house, Indian Head, Md.; Chicago society patronizes and aids at fair; Naval Training School graduates receive diplomas after cruise, Charlestown Navy Yard, Md.; Navy Advisory Board meets for conference in Washington; fresh troops arrive at Verdun, France, in support of Allied campaign.

BUMPING THE BUMPS (KALEM) Sept. 26.—A fairly good number of the Ham and Bud comedies. Ham and Bud are rivals for the hand of Ethel, and in spite of Ham's phrenological readings of Bud's bumps, Bud gets the girl. Reviewed in the issue of September 30, page, 2100.

DREAMY BUD HAS A LAUGH ON THE BOSS (Essanay), Sept. 27.—A split reel embracing novel cartoons and Western scenic. The cartoons, by Carlson, are novel in that living figures are combined with pen-and-ink figures, and the figures act out a humorous dream of the cartoonist. The living figures that take part are Cartoonist Carlson and Harry Dunkinson.

ARTISTIC ATMOSPHERE (Vim), Sept. 27.—Harry Myers and Rosemary Theby furnish plenty of laughs in this number of the Vim Feature Comedies. To get artistic atmosphere, the wife takes up painting, much to the disgust and discomfiture of Friend Husband. He adopts a baby in the hope that it will cure her painting mania. After many tribulations the baby does cure the wife's artistic offorts, because she has discovered that the baby is an embryo Caruso.

THE SELIG-TRIBUNE, NO. 78, 1916 (Selig), Sept. 28.—Prominent New Yorkers pay homage at funeral of Seth Low; Troopers at border welcome cooler weather, New Braunfels, Tex.; Miss Thomas goes shopping in wooden shoes, Chicago; cart away ruins of wrecked German Zeppelin at Cuffley, England; annual Dipsea Cross-country Classic run at Mill Valley, Cal.; test armored motor car at Washington, D. C.; Jacob S. Coxey, of Coxey's Army fame, is a Senatorial candidate, Chicago; pictures showing effect of recent bombardment, shells exploding, Verdun, France; demonstrate type of caterpillar tractor used for military purposes, San Diego, Cal.

THE REFORMERS (Vim) Sept. 28.—A fair comedy reel. Plump and Runt get over quite a number of laughs. Convicts, they reform and obtain positions as menials. The daughter of the house steals to silence the enchantress of her wayward brother, and Plump and Runt are accused of the crime. Through a series of rather cleverly burlesqued events the guilty person is brought to book. Assisting Plump and Runt (Babe Hardy and Billy Ruge) are Florence McLaughlin, Edna Reynolds, Ray Godfrey and Bert Tracey.

RIVAL ARTISTS (Kalem), Sept. 29.—Ivy Close is featured in this reel of knockabout comedy. Several humorous stunts are performed. The film is passably good—especially the work of Henry Murdoch. The picture was reviewed in the issue of September 30, page 2100.

SHE WHO LAST LAUGHS (Vitagraph), Sept. 29.—A lively knockabout comedy reel, with Hughey Mack and Patsy DeForest doing most of the work. William Shea is also in the cast which makes this film real humorous. Patsy escapes from a locked room, leaving a note saying she was kidnapped. Her sweetheart, Hughey, is immediately on the trail, as are a bunch of cops and a female detective. The last laugh comes when the kidnappers find that they have kidnapped the lady detective. The action throughout is fast.

THE DEATH SWING (Kalem), Sept. 30.—Helen Gibson performs an unusually hazardous feat in this number of the "Hazards of Helen" series. The thrill comes when Helen jumps to the top of a rapidly-moving freight train from a rope stretched across the tracks. A review of this episode was printed on page 2100 of the issue of Sept. 30.

THE RAIDERS (Selig), Sept. 30.—Tom Mix and his supporting cast have crammed this one-reel Western full of thrills. The number is melodramatic in the extreme. In the course of his search for Mexican outlaws, Tom Gardner (Tom Mix) visits his sweetheart and her father, who are just starting on a trip. A band of Mexican bandits attack the father and daughter. The father is killed and Tom, attracted by the shots, arrives on the scene just in time to rescue his sweetheart. Beside Tom Mix, Victoria Forde, Sid Jordan and Pat Chrisman are in the cast.

General Film Company Specials

A LESSON FROM LIFE (Knickerbocker Star Feature), Sept. 22.—There is an entertaining strain of humor running through the three reels of this film. It is more comedy-drama than straight drama. Marie Empress and Frank Mayo are featured in the story, which deals with the manner in which a novelist's wife, who aspires to be a playwright, is cured of her desire to get in close touch with her characters. The cure comes about when the wife goes to live in the slums, and is amusingly "framed up" by the husband's actor-friend.

THE POWER OF THE CROSS (Selig), Sept. 25.—A rather unconvincing three-reel drama whose only appeal lies in its religious theme. The acting could have been a great deal better. It shows the story of Madge, a stenographer, who marries for money instead of for love. Her lover seeks solace in the work of the Salvation Army. Madge does not love her husband, and when he dies she goes in search of the man she really loves. She finds him an officer in the Salvation Army. She tells him of her love; in turn, tells her that he has found his love in the labors of the Lord. Virginia Kirtley, Eugenie Forde, Robyn Adair and E. J. Brady form the cast.

THE WEDDING GOWN (Biograph), Sept. 26.—A very appealing heart interest picture dealing with a rural romance that almost comes to a disastrous end when the girl goes to the city to be "broadened." Marshall Neilan, Gertrude Robinson and Kate Bruce present the principal figures in a two-part production of the first caliber. It is being reissued by Biograph

PETER, THE HERMIT (Essanay), Sept. 26.—An amusing two-reel comedy-drama. John Junior does a commendable bit of character delineation as Peter, a young scientist who ruins his health by working on a treatise on ants. Like the ants he writes about, Peter crawls away to die. He gets in with a group of tramps, and forgets his ill health. He becomes their leader and wheedles them into working on a wealthy man's estate, whose daughter he rescues. His book is a success and, his health restored, he reaps his reward in the hand of the girl. Vivian Palmer and Harry Dunkinson are also in the cast.

A BATTLE IN THE DARK (Kalem), Sept. 27.—This is the seventh two-reel episode in "The Girl From 'Frisco" series. Interest is kept up to a high pitch in this number. A spectacular fire photographed at night—during the course of the fight between the Hindoos and the ranch hands—lends realism to the melodramatic plot. A full review was printed in the issue of September 30, page 2100.

FOR THE GOVERNOR'S CHAIR (Knickerbocker Star Feature), Sept. 29.—An unusually strong and well-played, three-reel drama, meritorious not only because of its timeliness, inasmuch as its plot is political, but because of its worth as a production. The picture is a screened story of political intrigue, in which the governor, a candidate for re-election, obtains from a dying state's accountant a false confession placing a crime on the governor's opponent. The false confession is stolen by a reporter, the fiance of the accountant's daughter, and suspicion points to the governor's secretary-accomplice and to the other gubernatorial candidate. The plot is logically worked out into the happy situation in which the honest candidate is vindicated by election and the crooked former executive goes to jail.

Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.

THE CHALICE OF SORROW, Oct. 9.—A five-part production featuring Cleo Madison, with a competent supporting cast. The scene of the story which is built along the lines of heavy tragedy is laid in Mexico. This picture will be pleasing to those who like heavy tragedy. A full review of the production appears elsewhere.

Fox Film Corporation

HER DOUBLE LIFE, Sept. 24.—A five-reel melodrama with a crude plot. It is not very interesting. The story is poor and there is no particularly able acting in it.

Greater Vitagraph (V-L-S-E, Inc.)

THE FIRM OF GIRDLESTONE (Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature), Oct. 9.—An interesting five-part adaptation of the novel by Sir A. Conan Doyle. In the cast are Charles Rock, Fred Groves, Hayford Hobbs, Wyndham Guise, Edna Flugrath and Molly Terraine, all of whom do excellent work in portraying the interesting types of the story. A full review of this production will be found on another page of this issue.

THE SCARLET RUNNER, NO. 2 (Vitagraph), Oct. 9.—"The Nuremburg Watch" is the title of the second adventure of the serial, which is more interesting than the first, and treats of how the "Scarlet Runner" was instrumental in saving several lives from being lost through the misplacement of an infernal machine in the shape of a watch. The suspense in this number has been well-sustained.

International Film Service, Inc.

HEARST-INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL, NO. 77, 1916, Sept. 28.—Entire division of National Guard leaves San Antonio on ninety-mile march; President Wilson makes his first campaign speech at Shadow Lawn, N. J.; new Pacific Highway bridge over Sacramento River completed, Dunsmir, Cal.; Fourteenth Regiment, New York National Guard, returns from border; $5,000,000 worth of contrabrand liquor burned in Jackson County, Ore.; Germans make spectacular charge in battle on Western front; society attends Piping Rock Hunt Club's Horse Show, New York; fashions of the moment; Russian soldiers at religious services—shell bursts over trench—with the allied forces in the trenches; steamer Bay State runs ashore off Cape Elizabeth, Me.

HEARST-INTERNAIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL, NO. 78, 1916 (Sept. 29).—National Guard on long hike reviewed by border commanders; Coach Tom Thorp directs Columbia University football practice, New York; Motor Caravan carrying supplies to the allies—other war pictures, near Salonika, Greece; fashions of the moment; U. of California freshmen defeat sophs in pushball contest, Los Angeles, Cal.; Christian converts participate in demonstration, Macao, China; tractor, such as used by allies, demonstrated for motion pictures, Peoria, Ill.; Berlin children forget war at Autumn outing; Meadowbrook polo team clashes with Philadelphia team, Philadelphia, Pa.; with the German army on the West Front.

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay

THE COUNTRY THAT GOD FORGOT (Selig), Oct. 2.—A five-part subject of western life, presenting Mary Charleson, Thomas Santschi, and George W. Fawcett. Marshall Neilan, who wrote and directed the film, deserves praise for his remarkable work. The story is interesting throughout, presenting the true western atmosphere. Photography and settings are at all times good. For a more extended review see page 1820 of the September 16th issue.

Mutual Film Corporation

MUTUAL WEEKLY NO. 91, Sept. 27.—Among the interesting items of this number are the California sixty-sixth birthday being celebrated at Santa Rosa, Cal., a view of the cantilever bridge at Montreal, Canada, that now reposes under the water, an automobile wreck in New York City in which five were killed, and the scene where a Pennsylvania engine sideswiped an express train.

CATCHING THAT BURGLAR (Cub), Sept. 29.—Billie Rhodes is the featured member of the cast in this moderately entertaining comedy. The story treats of how a young couple about to be married try to catch a burglar by spreading sticky fly paper over the wedding presents and on the stairs. The uncle of the bride, coming in late, is caught in the trap, and likewise other members of the family who hurry downstairs to rout the supposed burglar.

REEL LIFE NO. 22 (Gaumont), Oct. 1.—This opens with interesting pictures showing how the natives of the Southern mountains cut up logs, build houses, make chairs, shingles, fences, dug-out canoes and the like. Next comes "A Night With a Police Dog," showing one of the trained canines of the New York force at work. The closing scenes show a reproduction of big league ball plays done by mechanical figures. The number is one of average interest as a whole.

SLICKING THE SLICKERS (Beauty), Oct. 3.—Rather an amusing farce comedy, featuring Orral Humphrey as a member of a gang of bunco men. In this role he outwits his associates who have fleeced him of a roll of wrongly acquired bills, by selling them a plot of land which he states is flowing with oil, with millions in the oil. This he does disguised as an old farmer, and later has his laugh on them while he runs off with the money as well as with the only woman in the gang. This film could not be recommended for exhibition before children.

Mutual Film Corporation Specials.

THE TORCH BEARER (Mutual Star Production), Sept. 25.—A five-part production, directed by William Russell and John Prescott. The story on which the picture is based is an interesting one and treats of how a plot to ruin the reputation of a young man with political aspirations is frustrated by the timely arrival of a confession from a dying Mexican, who has committed the crime of which his father had been accused. A nicely arranged bit of romance places the confession among the papers of a dead friend of the young man's father, whose daughter becomes his ward and afterward his wife. William Russell and Charlotte Burton have the leading roles.

DULCIE'S ADVENTURE (Mutual Star Production), Oct. 2.—Mary Miles Minter plays an attractive role in this five-part production from the American studios. The story follows the fortunes of a young girl who is a descendant of an old southern family, and who is reared by a proud aunt who almost ruins her niece's happiness through her foolish pride in forcing her to marry wealth and position. The production is charmingly developed in the earlier stages of the picture, but dissolves into a rather cheap form of melodrama toward the close. The feminine star is delightful at all times.

AT THE EDGE OF THE AQUEDUCT (Thanhouser), Oct. 13.—A two-reel subject, picturing the trials of a pretty young school teacher in a small town. The effort of the jealous school board president to fix a scandal upon her, by means of a fake photograph, makes an interesting situation. The closing scenes, where the young engineer wrestles with the president near the edge of the aqueduct, have a melodramatic turn. This is well-constructed and tells an entertaining story.

THE PAWN SHOP (Mutual-Chaplin), Oct.—A laughable two-reel number, featuring Charlie Chaplin as a pawnbroker's clerk, assisted by Edna Purviance and Henry Bergman. This hasn't a suspicion of a plot, but is full of the well-known Chaplin small business, and brings laughter all the way through. He sticks a feather duster in an electric fan, repairs an alarm clock with a chisel and a can opener, polishes the "three balls" over the pawn shop and performs other funny antics of various sorts. This is a typical Chaplin number throughout.

Metro Pictures Corporation.

THE WHEEL OF THE LAW (Rolfe), Sept. 18.—A five-reel drama, founded on the evils of circumstantial evidence. Scenes from the life of the theater are exceptionally well reproduced. The work of the cast and the director is of a high order. A review is printed on another page of this issue.

THE DAWN OF LOVE (Rolfe), Sept. 25.—Mabel Taliaferro is the star of this five-reel screen drama. The scenes are laid on the coast of New England and are fine examples of photographic art. The story is pleasing and is well acted. Reviewed at length on another page of this issue.

B. S. Moss Picture Corporation

THE POWER OF EVIL (Oct.)—A five-reel subject, this photoplay shows a man's struggle to free himself from the grasp of the liquor habit. The characters include society people, thieves, and Salvation Army workers. The story is not convincing. A review of the picture is printed elsewhere in this issue.

Paramount Pictures Corporation.

IN OLD IRELAND (Burton-Holmes), Oct. 9.—The reel opens with scenes of the town where the ginger ale comes from. Following Belfast, comes Dublin, and amusing scenes on one of the main streets are introduced by showing them backward. The Dublin Horse Show is another of the features of the city. Romantic spots, such as St. Kevin's Bed, conclude the reel.

PARAMOUNT PICTOGRAPHS (Paramount), Oct.—"A Newspaper in the Making" starts the Pictograph subjects. "Queer Jobs for the Motorcycle" brings out a number of unusual uses to which this useful invention is now put. "Checking Up the Umpire" will delight the baseball fan, as he will be able to see for a certainty if the player is "out." "Controlling an Oil Gusher" explains itself. The subject is given a striking object lesson.

BRAY CARTOON (Paramount).—"O. U. Rooster" is the name of this Bray cartoon. The humor of the drawings will appeal to every one, and the artist's pencil has lost none of its cunning. His birds and beasts act out an amusing story. "The Busy Life of an Orb Weaver," a study of a spider, is on the same reel.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

U. S. CUSTOMS INSPECTION (Pathe), Oct. 8.—An unusually interesting and instructive film, showing the testing and inspection of various articles such as tea, gin, furniture and art specimens in the way of sculpture and paintings, as they enter from foreign ports.

HEINE AND THE FOUR HUNDRED (Rolin), Oct. 8.—The comedy in this film is rather too rough to be thoroughly enjoyable. The acrobatic stunts of Heine and others involved in the plot of the play may be found entertaining to some.

Pathe Exchange, Inc. Specials

THE SHIELDING SHADOW NO. 2 (Astra), Oct. 8.—"Into the Depths" is the title of this number of the serial and deals with the thrilling escape of Jerry from the prison ship, the marriage of Leontine to Navarro on the false report of Jerry's death, and the first appearance of the "shielding shadow." An interesting scene in this episode shows Jerry being attacked by an octopus.

THE GRIP OF EVIL NO. 13 (Balboa), Oct. 8.—"That you be not judged" is the title of this number of the serial, and is one of the most interesting of the stories shown thus far. Some thoroughly human touches will be found in the picture, which is well-staged and well photographed.

THE PILLORY (Gold Rooster Play), Oct. 8.—A five-part production, the story of which was written by Philip Lonergan. The picture made at the Flanhouser studios, features Florence La Badie, and is exceptionally pleasing up to the middle of the fourth reel where to all intents and purposes the story finishes. The remainder of the picture is merely relating of incidents that follow in the lives of those principally concerned in the plot of the story.

Triangle Film Corporation.

THE RUMMY (Fine Arts), Oct. 8.—An exquisite story of human weakness transformed by the hand of destiny to deserved happiness, with Wilfred Lucas in the title role.

THE JUNGLE CHILD (Kay-Bee), Oct. 8.—The story of a girl brought up by South American savages and her return to civilization under auspices that bring about a tragic reversion to first principles. Well done in the main, though a strain on credulity at times. Dorothy Dalton superb in the title role.

Universal Film Mfg. Company

ANIMATED WEEKLY NO 80 (Universal), Sept. 27.—Anniversary celebration in California, police carnival at Washington, D. C., tunnel disaster in New York; sporting events and war scenes are among the interesting subjects contained in this number.

IN THE LAPS OF THE GODS (Victor), Oct. 1. A bright comedy number, by Constance Crawley and Arthur Maude, with Madge Kirby, Lee Hill and Alice Hastings in the cast. The main situation, in which a lady authoress climbs up a fire escape to the room of the man who wants to marry her in order to obtain a fortune, is unique. She is unknown to him by sight and pretends to be a thief. Friends of both parties help carry out the deception. An enjoyable number, done in good comedy style.

ALMOST GUILTY (Nestor), Oct. 9.—A comedy, by Walter H. Newman, featuring Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Priscilla Dean. The prospective bridegroom and his best man celebrate the night before the wedding. In the morning they read an item in the paper which leads them to believe they have committed murder. The paper turns out to be a year old. This works up to a good situation and makes an entertaining number.

IT'S ALL WRONG (Nestor), Oct. 13.—A comedy number, by Ben Cohn, featuring Pat Rooney. The action is of a knockabout sort, showing the misadventures of an eloping couple. A fairly strong number of the kind.

THE OIL SMELLER (Joker), Oct. 14.—A diverting outdoor comedy, featuring Ernie Shield, written by Chas. J. Wilson, Jr. The lord and his outfit are very funny. He opens a water main with his pick and thinks he has struck oil. He afterward elopes with an Indian girl. This is a breezy comedy, nicely pictured and well presented.

Universal Film Mfg. Co. Specials

THE HUMAN GAMBLE (Rex), Oct. 8.—A good Wall street story, in two reels, featuring Dorothy Davenport, Emory Johnson, Alfred Allen and Richard Morris. The father, a broker, disowns his son for gambling. The son and his sister leave home, become confidential clerks to another broker and the latter marries the girl. During her husband's illness the girl saves her father from ruin and the old man repays the debt and all ends happily. This is a bright, entertaining subject, well constructed and quite original in certain situations.

A ROMANCE OF BILLY GOAT HILL (Red Feather), Oct. 9.—A five-reel number, based on a story by Alice Hegan Rice, featuring Myrtle Gonzalez, Val Paul and others. This is brightly pictured throughout, entertaining in subject matter and well constructed. It is located on a southern estate, for the most part, and there are many pleasing characters. The hero is falsely suspected of a shooting, but is cleared by the testimony of a small boy who had been dumb, but whose speech was restored by an operation. This offering should have wide appeal.

TIMOTHY DOBBS, THAT'S ME, NO. 9, "Breaking Into Society" (Universal Special), Oct. 9.—Carter DeHaven continues to be amusing in portraying the embarrassing predicaments of the irrepressible Dobbs, whereas Robert Milash lends valuable assistance as the ever faithful valet. This time master and man, being invited to leave their boarding house, find temporary employment in a cheap restaurant; then locate in a fashionable hotel and in each new emergency reveal considerable resourcefulness. An entertaining two-part production.

CHEATERS (Gold Seal), Oct. 10.—Mary Fuller is the star of this three-part production, which contains a number of charming scenes photographed on a country estate. The characters are introduced at a house party, brought to an unpleasant close with the loss of valuable jewels. The mystery, of course, revolves around the theft, which was committed by the girl portrayed by Miss Fuller. She had been forced to assist her father, a professional crook. Harry Spingler, Paul Panzer, Clara Beyers and Johnnie Walker support the featured player in a good program offering.

LURED BUT CURED (L-KO), Oct. 11.—A two-reel number, in which Gertrude Selby appears as a country girl who enters the city in a box car, accompanied by her dog. She becomes a lady detective and rounds up two villains, whom she sees throw a man over a cliff. The treatment is of a breezy, burlesque style and carries the interest very well, though it is not quite so laughable as some other releases of the type. Dan Russil and another play the villains.

BEHIND LIFE'S STAGE (Universal Special Feature), Oct. 12.—A two-reel subject, by Alan J. Holubar, featuring Flora Parker DeHaven, Chas. Cummings and Margaret Whistler. This tells of a young orphan girl and her little sister, who are forced to give up their lodgings. The eldest girl is employed in a millinery establishment and they sleep overnight in the place. A fairy story is prettily woven into the picture. In the morning the policeman finds them and rescues them from an unhappy situation. This will have a strong appeal to children and will also be enjoyed by older observers. A pleasing offering.

A SOUL AT STAKE (Imp), Oct. 13. Because it carries an atmosphere of mystery and impending danger and because it is admirably acted by William Garwood, Lois Wilson and others, this two-part depiction of the experiences of a young woman missionary in China, is well above the average program offering. Most of the scenes in the first reel transpire on a ship. The second reel deals with the attempt to hold the young woman as a slave, and her deliverance by a man she met on shipboard. Scenes in the palace of the governor are very tastefully staged.

IDLE WIVES (Universal State Rights), October. Lois Weber is the author of this seven-reel drama which belongs to the same class as her other well-known pictures. The story is treated in a realistic manner, but with due regard to decency. It is reviewed on another page of this issue.

World-Pictures.

THE REVOLT (Peerless), Oct. 2.—A five-reel photoplay made from Edward E. Locke's drama in which Helen Ware appeared. The story shows a wife's revolt at the double moral standard. Frances Nelson and Arthur Ashley are the stars. A review of the picture is printed elsewhere in this issue.

THE GILDED CAGE (Peerless), Oct. 9.—Alice Brady is the star of this five-reel screen drama. The picture has an interesting plot, a mythical kingdom of Europe being the scene of action. It is a well written and well acted story of modern times, told in an atmosphere of highly colored romance. A review is printed on another page of this issue.

"Elderbush Gulch" to be Reissued

Famous Two-Reel Indian Spectacle Directed by D. W. Griffith to Be Offered October 24.

In line with the policy of the General Film Company to offer a program of short features with big stars—the Biograph Company are again reissuing "The Battle of Elderbush Gulch," a two-reel "Western," featuring Mae Marsh, Robert Harron and Lillian Gish, and directed by D. W. Griffith.

This subject needs no introduction to the exhibitors—it is known as a standard attraction everywhere—and is equally as popular today as it was when first released. No better endorsement of the quality of this production could be asked for than the fact that it is necessary to issue the third edition of new prints to meet the demand of exhibitors.

Another noteworthy reissue for October is "A Pueblo Legend," in two reels, featuring Mary Pickford and Wilfred Lucas, and directed by D. W. Griffith. When this subject is released October 10th it will also mark the third edition of new prints.

KITTY GORDON'S NEW PICTURE NEARLY READY.

Work on the first production of the Kitty Gordon Film Corporation, the latest of the producing companies organized to provide film features for Selznick-Pictures, has progressed far enough to warrant the belief that the illustrious English beauty is about to make the greatest triumph of her career.

The subject chosen for the first of Miss Gordon's new ventures is a most happy one, being that sprightly and thrilling novel "Vera, the Medium," by the late Richard Harding Davis, for years one of America's proudest literary possessions and famed throughout the world as a war correspondent. In "Vera, the Medium," Miss Gordon essays a role that affords her every opportunity to make the most of her rich and exotic beauty as well as to adorn herself in a bewildering array of startling costumes.

The plot of the story is one of mystery and thrilling adventures and as produced under the supervision of G. M. Anderson, the "Broncho Billy" of Essanay fame, the picture will undoubtedly prove a big drawing card wherever it is shown.

In America Miss Gordon has been seen as the star in a number of highly successful musical comedies and light operas as well as in the principle vaudeville theaters. Last year she succumbed to the lure of the moving picture comera and although hampered by inferiority of scenarios and productions, her first appearance proved her exceptionally equipped to become one of the greatest screen stars in the world.

CONWAY TEARLE SCREEN STAR OVER NIGHT.

Conway Tearle, for years one of the most popular leading men on the American stage, has leaped over night into a position as a screen player of the first rank through his remarkable performance in the support of Miss Clara Kimball Young in "The Common Law." With the physique of an athlete and features of the strongest type of masculine pulchritude Mr. Tearle enters the screen world perfectly equipped physically, and this, together with his unquestioned dramatic gifts make him a most welcome addition to the list of leading film players.

Mr. Tearle has made such an impression by his performance in "The Common Law" that he has been retained as Miss Young's leading man and will be seen in the principal male role in her next feature play, an adaption of the "Foolish Virgin," one of Thomas Dixon's most popular novels.

Manufacturers' Advance Notes

"FIFTY-FIFTY" (Fine Arts).

Norma Talmadge and H. B. Warner are the stars of the Triangle feature releases for the week of October 22. Miss Talmadge appears in "Fifty-Fifty," a Fine Arts production recently made in the East under the direction of Allan Dwan. Mr. Warner's vehicle is the Triangle-Kay Bee drama, "The Vagabond Prince," written by J. G. Hawks, and directed by Charles Giblyn.

In "Fifty-Fifty" Miss Talmadge has the piquant role of an unconventional girl of the New York artist quarter. She marries happily, and a baby comes to the little home. Then the husband drifts away, fascinated by another woman. The adventuress hires a detective to "frame" the young wife, and the husband brings trial for divorce. In a dramatic court room scene, the wife demands the custody of the child, declaring falsely that her husband is not the father of the infant. This apparent sacrifice of reputation for mother love in the end brings about a happy reunion of the young couple.

Scene from "Fifty-Fifty" (Triangle).

Mr. Warner has a picturesque role in "The Vagabond Prince," playing the young Price Tonio of Bothalia. The young nobleman, tired of the false pomp of his little country, comes to the San Francisco Barbary Coast in quest of adventure. There he encounters one Fluffy, a fascinating dancer of the cafes, and, after many adventures, gives up his throne for love of the girl.

Dorothy Dalton plays Fluffy in support of Mr. Warner in "The Vagabond Prince," while J. W. Johnston is leading man for Miss Talmadge in "Fifty-Fifty." In this production Marie Chambers plays the adventuress, Dodson Mitchell is the detective, and Frank Currier the judge.

"PHILIP HOLDEN—WASTER" (Mutual).

"Philip Holden—Waster," the Mutual star production of October 9, featuring Richard Bennett, is the re-title for the five-part production "His Brother's Keeper," announced when Mr. Bennett's contract with the American Film Company was made public as the vehicle for Mr. Bennett's second appearance in Mutual Star Productions.

"Philip Holden—Waster" will be released on Monday, Oct. 9, but instead of marking the star's second appearance in Mutual Star Productions, it will mark his first. "The Sable Blessing," scheduled for release on Sept. 11, was postponed after release date announcement, and will not go out to the public until a date after the appearance of "Philip Holden—Waster."

No more delightful character portrayal nor more artistically and consistently presented drama of the screen has ever been seen than the screen version of Kenneth B. Clarke's delightful story of a young literary dilettante, who finds himself suddenly in love and facing the necessity of earning a living for himself.

Director George Sargent has spared no expense to give this picture its required setting of luxury and ease. Scenes unrivalled in beauty and screen art value have been secured.

Scene from "Philip Holden—Waster" (Mutual).

Dominated by Richard Bennett's delightful personality, "Philip Holden—Waster" yet has room for plenty of other dramatic work of unusual merit. Rhea Mitchell is seen to wonderful advantage in her role of "Helen Landon." Adrienne Morrison (Mrs. Richard Bennett), George Periolat, Clarence Burton, and Orral Humphrey are also in excellent supporting roles.

Scenes from Episode Seven, "The Yellow Menace" (Unity).

"LOVE NEVER DIES" (Bluebird).

For the reason that when it was finally edited and made ready for distribution "The Heritage of Hate" did not conform in all essentials to the Bluebird standard, the melodrama has been withdrawn from that program and "Love Never Dies" has been substituted as the release for Oct. 23.

Harvey Gates in writing the scenario of "Love Never Dies," took his inspiration from Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" and William Worthington directed and produced the play in an atmosphere that would seem to conform with the artistic measures of the musical classic. In the matter of scenes and locations, plus F. F. Baker's cameracraft, care has been taken to present an agreeable composite.

Scene from "Love Never Dies" (Bluebird).

Ruth Stonehouse lends her personal charm and artistry in this release for the first time in Bluebirds. She was selected in pursuance of Bluebird's purpose to make the player fit the part, and her skill as an interpretive dancer made Miss Stonehouse exactly the artist to play the star part. Franklyn Farnum and Kingsley Bendict have supporting roles of equal importance and the other players include little Dorothy Clark, Mrs. Whiting, Arthur Hoyt, Wm. Canfield and Wadsworth Harris.

The plot deals with the stage—grand opera to be exact; a subject of continual interest to the theater-going public. There is no deep villainy, the nearest approach to the conventional "heavy man" being a character operating through selfish motives to create trouble for the true lovers. Thus the happy ending is delayed, while engaging scenes are worked out by the application of a sentiment that will incite popular appeal.

NEW KLEINE BOOKING SCHEME.

A brand new plan for the booking of the George Kleine motion picture novel "Gloria's Romance" is now in effect at all the Kleine exchanges. Exhibitors, instead of booking the picture in twenty chapters, are now permitted to play the attraction as a feature offering, running four chapters of eight reels per night, for a period of five weeks. The new plan is reported to be meeting with much favor among the exhibitors, since it gives the houses that have already run "Gloria's Romance" a chance to stage a Billie Burke Revue by running the whole production again in compact form, and thus taking advantage of all the word of mouth advertising created by the first showing of the picture.

One Kleine manager in talking of the new booking plan said: "Several houses in my territory are doing twice the business they did on the first run of the picture, by staging a Billie Burke Revue. One of the managers told me that he felt confident when he booked the reshowing that he would make a neat profit, but he came into the office the other day smiling from ear to ear and declared that he had no idea of the number of people who had missed the picture on the first run, had heard about it from their friends and now were seeing it for themselves. He also explained that a lot of his summer customers who has been away on vacations and missed several chapters of the first showing were now revisiting his house to witness the chapters they had missed while out of town. I have found that the films as a revue offers a most attractive 'buy' for the exhibitor who never runs serials but is a strong believer in big feature shows. By booking the Gloria's Romance Revue he can give five of the best feature shows he could obtain anywhere and each night advertise those which are to come, thus reducing his advertising expense, for he can spend more money on his first announcement of the booking of five such tremendous features and cover all five showings of the picture. The mere announcement of Billie Burke in five eight reel performances is a sure box-office magnet and the most optimistic estimates of the business which can be done are far exceeded in almost every case. Of course for the exhibitor who has not previously shown Billie Burke in Gloria's Romance the opportunity for big money is just as great as for the man who has already run the picture as a twenty-chapter picture novel, and is now reshowing it as five eight-reel features."

"CIVILIZATION" INCREASES IN MONEY-MAKING POSSIBILITIES.

"Civilization" as a State right proposition, is increasing in value literally from day to day. It is one of the great spectacles before the motion picture public which is making money wherever it is shown. The reasons for this are: One, the unique nature and timeliness of the theme. Two, the excellence and splendor of the production. All that time and money could do were expended to make "Civilization" what it is, the greatest money-maker.

At the Park theater, Columbus Circle, "Civilization" is playing to capacity, and either capacity or S. R. O. attends the spectacle in Seattle and district, in New Jersey, in Minnesota, in Pittsburgh, in Boston, and all the other places in which the picture is either continuously or intermittently shown.

Money-making with "Civilization" therefore, is entirely a matter of arithmetical profession, in plainer language, you put down one dollar, and you take up two or three, as the case may be. It is simply a case of how much you make.

In the entire history of the motion picture, no such proposition as this has been offered to the industry, whether buyers or exhibitors. Particularly as a commercial product, "Civilization" is in demand everywhere. It is the first and only picture of which you can truthfully say this. Some big pictures have been released within recent years which failed in one territory, while they succeeded in others. The reasons for this need not be specified. They may, however, be briefly summarized by the statement that the pictures were of individual or special, but not general interest.

"Civilization" appeals to all, and therefore cannot be excelled in its money-making possibilities.

FOURTH EPISODE OF "THE YELLOW MENACE" THIS WEEK.

The title of the Fourth Episode of "The Yellow Menace" serial just released by the Unity Sales Corporation this week is "The Plot of a Demon." In this episode we have a thrilling picture of the struggle between Najla, the beautiful princess, the Hong Kong Harry, the dope fiend, who forces his hateful presence upon the unhappy girl and almost overcomes her. Further evidences of Ali Singh's treachery multiply and all efforts of the Government authorities to capture him prove of no avail.

VIVIAN MARTIN IN "HER FATHER'S SON."

As its next release on the Paramount Program, the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company will present Vivian Martin in "Her Father's Son" by Anna Fielder Brand and staged under the direction of William D. Taylor.

In addition to Director Taylor's unusual delicate touches, Miss Martin's new vehicle displays various spectacular scenes of unusual realism including a series of immense battle scenes. One of the largest interior sets ever erected at the Moroco studios is also shown, representing a massive ball-room with a high balcony and stairway. It is expected that this and other sets presented in "Her Father's Son" will establish a new record for elaborate beauty and excellence, even exceeding anything that Morosco has yet offered in this regard.

Scene from "Her Father's Son" (Morosco).

The supporting cast discloses another typical Morosco company and included such sterling players as Herbert Standing, Alfred Vosburgh, Helen Jerome Eddy, Joe Massey, Jack Lawton, Lucille Ward, and Tom Bates, the last mentioned portraying one of the most remarkable negro characters ever seen upon the screen. Homer Scott supervised the camera work. The release date is Oct. 17.

"LOST TWENTY-FOUR HOURS" (Essanay).

This rapid fire comedy which made a hit on the stage loses none of its laughs in Essanay's three act adaptation. It has been produced with the same care and regard for mechanical and artistic detail as demanded by a feature of greater length, and this guarantees it as a laugh-getter of extraordinary power. There are many parts in the play it is notable that Essanay has selected for each one, even unto the lesser roles, an actor of recognized merit. This all-star cast of quality, unusual in a film of this length, is headed by Richard C. Travers,

Scene from "Lost Twenty-Four Hours" (Essanay).

Marguerite Clayton, and Harry Dunkinson. It is built on the [illegible] when his wife goes away, falls in with [illegible] and with disastrous results when the spouse unexpectedly returns. It all [illegible] if you can imagine that WAR VIEWS IN MUTUAL WEEKLY NO. 92.

The usual announcement of "somewhere in France," which heads so many news stories and news pictures, is varied this week in The Mutual Weekly, No. 92, by pictures from "somewhere in Russia." A great deal has been said of Russian troops on the western front, but little has been known of western troops with the Russians. The British troops are shown being welcomed by the subjects of the Czar as they enter a Russian town. From England came pictures which show Royal Engineers engaged in the practice work of building pontoon bridges. There are also pictures of some of England's heavy artillery.

Railway telegraphers of the Civil War period to the number of three hundred paid a visit to their distinguished comrade, Thomas Edison, to talk over old times. The Gaumont camera has caught the Wizard of Menlo Park as he greets his comrades of over half a century ago.

Sporting events have a large part of this issue. The San Francisco Bulletin offered a cup for tennis players and the battle lasted twelve consecutive hours. The pictures show fifteen games in progress at one time. From California also come pictures of an exciting old-time rodeo at Modesto. It has some wonderful bucking horses. There is also a picture of a Marathon race at Mount Tamalpais. Society is on the screen in pictures of the races at the Piping Rock, L. I., Horse Show and at the opening of the Hunt Racing season at Belmont Terminal Race Track.

The marine contributions to this reel are the wreck of a coasting vessel near Portland, Me., and the launching of the first steel freighter built at Seattle, Wash.

MABEL TALIAFERRO IN "THE SUNBEAM."

"The Sunbeam" will be the name of Mabel Taliaferro's next Metro-Rolfe five-part wonderplay, following "The Dawn of Love." Miss Taliaferro will play the part of a girl who brings sunshine to the lives of all those with whom she comes in contact. Very little sunshine, however, filters into her own life, her happiness until the interesting denouement being the reflected joy of others.

Some of the leading scenes in "The Sunbeam" are laid in a candy factory. Everything in the life of the gruff owner, played by that veteran actor of sterling qualities, Gerard Griffin, is sweet, so pure, the "sunbeam" tells him, except his disposition. So she proceeds to change that.

The charm of childhood and the beauty of simple things are shown in "The Sunbeam," which makes a direct appeal to the heart. The play is originally from the pen of Shannon Fife, revised and prepared for the screen by June Mathis, these writers also being responsible for another Mabel Taliaferro photoplay, the immensely successful "God's Half Acre." Edwin Carewe, who has directed all Miss Taliaferro's photoplays at the Rolfe studio, will again be her director in this picture.

"THE SHIRLEY GIRL."

The International Film & Producing Company, with offices on the 26th floor of the World's Tower Building, New York, has just made arrangements for the release of "The Shirley Girl Animated Weekly," featuring Miss Marguerite Shirley, the well known English actress and movie queen.

Experienced cameramen and hustling press agents will accompany Miss Shirley all over the United States and scenes of local interest and prominent people will be taken in every city. The different subjects will be realized as "The Shirley Girl Animated Weekly" and will be shown in the different local moving picture houses in various cities. It is the aim of the International Film & Producing Company to put every city on the moving picture map and in this manner every city will have its own independent Local Weekly. This venture is original and important from the publicity and advertising point of view and chambers of commerce, advertising clubs, boards of trade, merchants and manufacturers and various civic boards have promised to co-operate with the International Film & Producing Company.

Marguerite Shirley comes from an old English theatrical family. Her father, Gerard Shirley, was the well known English actor. She was only six when she came to America, but she has been over in the old country many times since and before she did the picture stunts she played in London with the Drury Lane Stock Company and for two years was leading woman in "The Whip."

"The Shirley Girl" will appear under the auspices of the leading newspaper in every city and "The Shirley Girl Animated Weekly" will be released through the management of the paper.

"THE CHALLENGE"—A NEW GOLD ROOSTER PLAY.

Donald Mackenzie, director for the Astra Film Corporation, after almost a year's work on "The Shielding Shadow," Pathe's wonder serial, is beginning work on "The Challenge," a five-reel adaptation of A. H. Woods' play of the same name by Bertram Millhauser. This feature is being made for the Pathe Gold Rooster Program. The story deals with the regeneration of a mining engineer who finds himself, and then conquers the obstacles that nature has placed before the progress of civilization across the Western mountains. It is the story of a man who comes back and comes back big.

The lead of this feature will be played by Miss Helen Chadwick, a "find" made by Louis J. Gasnier, President of the Astra. Miss Chadwick is a beautiful girl with artistic and dramatic ability, who screens admirably, and who bids fair to become a worth while addition to the Astra galaxy of stars.

The cast will include Charles Gotthold, Montagu Love, and Ben Hendricks, all well known upon the stage and screen. Ralph Navarro will assist Mr. Mackenzie.

"CONVERGING PATHS" (Selig).

"Converging Paths" is a Selig feature drama released in General Film Company's regular service on Monday, October 9th. This story, from the pen of Hettie Gray Baker, and produced by Burton L. King, features an all-star cast, including Robyn Adair, Eugenie Forde and Virginia Kirtley.

"Converging Paths" is a story of the city slums, of the regeneration of a young man who has been born and reared in the midst of squalor. How the country girl came to the city in search of fortune; how she, like so many others, failed but in failing achieved a victory in bringing a child of the slums to clean-cut manhood, are but incidents in this unusual film presentation. There are a number of exciting climaxes and situations which will tug at one's heartstrings. The scenic effects are beautiful, and "Converging Paths" is a drama that is worthy of the high standard being set in General Film Service.

Scene from "Converging Paths" (Selig).

SELIG PHOTOPLAYS ON GENERAL FILM LIST.

William N. Selig announces a number of noteworthy comedies and dramas for release in General Film Service in October. For example, "Only A Rose," is a drama of pathos and appeal, with Robyn Adair and Eugene Forde in exceptional parts, and on the same reel is a merry slap-stick comedy, "A Boomerang," both released on Oct. 16. "An Eventful Evening" is an exciting drama, with an all-star cast, released Oct. 21.

"Out of the Shadows" and "Paradise for a Day," are excellent offerings released Oct. 23. "A Close Call," features daring Tom Mix supported by Victoria Forde, in a succession of exciting situations carrying a strong story.

Coming on Monday, Oct. 30, is a Selig comedy drama in three reels entitled, "Small Town Stuff." This production is just the thing for those exhibitors who believe their patrons like to laugh. "Small Town Stuff" tells the story of a home talent performance in Broom Center, and of how a strolling player and his plot were finally vanquished through the efforts of the village reporter and constable. There are elaborate scenic effects, and, despite the comical situations, there is an unusual story. An all-star comedy cast including Lyllian Brown Leighton, Ralph McComas, Martha Maddox, Wm. Hutchinson, Sidney Smith and others are presented. This production is said to be a money getter in every respect. "Tom's Sacrifice" is a thrilling Western drama in which Tom Mix performs some hair-raising stunts.

The Selig-Tribune, the Selig news reel, released every Monday and Thursday in General Film service, continues to set the pace and promises originality and enterprise throughout the Winter months.

THREE SINGLE REELS FROM GAUMONT.

With the fifth "Fantomas" episode having been released October 5, the present series is brought to an end. The Gaumont Company does not follow it immediately with "The Vampires." Hence the week of October 8 has only three Gaumont single-reels to offer. The first day of the week "Reel Life" No. 23 will be released. This issue of the Mutual Magazine in Film is highly interesting to the millions of motion picture patrons who have come to know and love Mary Miles Minter, the dainty little favorite who is now appearing in Mutual Star Productions. Her life both at home and at the studio is pictured under the title of "A Day With Mutual's Youngest Star." A second division is called "A Backyard Farm." The remarkable results to be obtained by intensive cultivation of the soil is the feature of these pictures. "How to Handle a Canoe" tells in pictures the wrong and right methods of handling these frail craft.

"See America First" for October 11, takes spectators on a trip to Richmond, Va. The town is rich in colonial and confederate history, and the camera has caught the spirit of the old south with sympathetic fidelity. This is a split reel, the second half being given up to one of the Gaumont Kartoon Komics, animated by Harry Palmer.

The third single-reel of the week is the Mutual Weekly, which is manufactured and edited at the Gaumont laboratories.

"FARMER ALFALFA SEES NEW YORK" (Paramount).

The Paramount-Bray Cartoon for October 18 is from the pen of Paul H. Terry, and is indeed one of the cleverest pieces of animated cartoon that has come from the Bray Studios, Inc. The story tells about Farmer Alfalfa, who makes his debut into the great metropolis via the Pennsylvania Station gate. He walks to the center of the lobby, but the size of it gives him cold feet, and he tries to retreat, but the gate closes in his face.

A big buck coon sees he is easy pickings, and escorts him to a taxi not free of charge. The taxi driver gets him also, and we soon find him in the middle of the street admiring the tall buildings, entirely surrounded by New York.

He is soon spotted by a crook look-out, who sicks some of the best talent in town after his watch. This beautiful vampire takes him to a Cafe where "lemonade" is served, and Al comes out pickled and trimmed. He then falls into the hands of gamblers, and we find him playing poker and down to his last chip.

His little dog which has stuck faithfully by him, realizing that his master has been skinned, springs to the electric light string and puts out the lights. Farmer Alfalfa gets the tip, and what goes on in the darkness nobody knows, but out comes Al and his little dog with all the coin in the place, and believe me they make the dust fly.

ASTOR ROOF GARDEN IN METRO PICTURE.

The roof-garden of the Hotel Astor, New York, is shown in the cafe and cabaret scenes of W. Christy Cabanne's first offering on the Metro program, as yet unnamed, a five-part wonderplay in which Frances Nelson is starred, and Niles Welch featured. The north end of the roof-garden, near the fountain, was chosen as the ideal spot for the scenes.

In order not to interfere with the Astor's patrons, it was necessary to take the picture at nine o'clock in the morning. A stray tourist who went up to the roof to see the view fled in dismay at seeing a host of men and women in elaborate evening dress at that hour in the morning.

The Astor management sent up a dozen waiters from its other dining-rooms to work in the picture under Mr. Cabanne's instructions.

"THROUGH BABY'S VOICE" (Universal).

Little Zoe Rae comes into her own in "Through Baby's Voice," a two-reel Laemmle domestic drama featuring herself, Douglas Gerrard and Ednar Maison, which will be released on October 18. Little Zoe is a natural born child actress. She can cry on the slightest provocation, laughs the next minute, and has no difficulty expressing all the shades of emotion in between the extremes.

In "Through Baby's Voice" little Zoe enacts the role of a child who brings her estranged parents together. Husband and wife part because of a mutual misunderstanding and the wife's extravagance. The old family lawyer draws up the separation papers, and then plays a little trick on the young married couple which results, some time later, in their reunion. The appeal of the play hinges largely upon little Zoe's appealing acting.

Calder Johnstone wrote the exceedingly fragile story, and the play was produced by George Cochrane, who has made the most of the situations which are all calculated to bring forth all of little Zoe's precocious ability as a child mime.

JUAN LAHOUD BUYS POWER PROJECTOR.

Senor Juan Lahoud, of Caracas, Venezuela, son of the most prominent motion picture exhibitor in that country, has just purchased his fourth Power's Cameragraph to be installed in one of his father's theaters in that country. Mr. Lahoud is a large purchaser of films and other motion picture accessories, and has recently made shipment of a number of the latest American features and of one of the large serials. Mr. Lahoud is himself an actor of ability and at the present time is endeavoring to arrange a test with a large producing company here with a view of appearing on the screen in this country. Aside from speaking Spanish perfectly, he speaks English and French fluently and is the author of several scenarios of merit which he has been successful in placing. Arthur J. Lang of the Nicholas Power Company is the live wire who helped Mr. Lahoud in securing the films and accessories he recently purchased.

TWEEDLEDUM COMEDIES FOR NEW YORK AND NORTHERN NEW JERSEY.

The Merit Film Corporation has concluded negotiations whereby they will become the exclusive distributors in New York State and Northern New Jersey of the famous Tweedledum Comedies made by the Eagle Manufacturing and Producing Company of Jacksonville, Florida, which feature the noted comedian Ferdinand Perez. The pictures will be booked from the New York and Buffalo offices of the Merit Film Corporation, commencing with October 2nd, the first release to be "Torpedoed by Cupid," in one reel which will be followed by a two-reeler on the succeeding Monday, entitled "Scrambled Honeymoon," "Some Hero," a one reeler, "Tweedledum's Busy Night," a two reeler and "Lucky Tramp," a one reeler will follow. This will comprise the releasing program of these comedies for the month of October.

MOTIOGRAPH FOR INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

O. F. Spahr, general manager of the Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co., called on dealers in Cleveland and Detroit last week. He also paid the Ford Motor Company a visit and made arrangements with their Mr. Cousins to have a late model Motiograph machine shipped to the Boys' Industrial School at Lansing, Michigan. Mr. Cousins stated that he wanted nothing but the best for the boys at the Industrial School.

S. A. Louis, of the Rialto Theater Supply Company, Minneapolis, Minn., was a Chicago visitor Saturday and he spent the greater part of the day at the Motiograph factory. Mr. Louis returned to his office Monday with a dozen Motiograph machines. Mr. Louis stated that the Motiograph is a big seller this fall in this locality and it is almost impossible to keep machines on his floor.

"CIVILIZATION" STRONG IN JERSEY.

"Civilization," the Thos. H. Ince war spectacle, was given its initial projection in Northern New Jersey Monday, September 25, at the Strand Theater, Newark, and was witnessed by an overflowing audience. The New Jersey rights for the Ince production are controlled by Frank G. Hall, a prominent exhibitor and Arthur Werner, connected with New York cinema enterprises. The Newark management will be unlimited, after which the picture will be shown in Jersey City, Trenton, Hoboken and elsewhere. Messrs. Hall and Werner also have acquired state rights for "War's Women," a spectacular battle drama also produced by Mr. Ince.

DAVID HOWELLS SECURES IVAN PRODUCTIONS FOR AUSTRALIA.

Vogel & Howell, representing David Howells of Australia and The Co-Operative Film Service of New Zealand, have made arrangements where these two companies will distribute Ivan productions in Australia and New Zealand. The first two Ivan productions to be shown in this territory will be "Faded Flower" and "Her Surrender," prints of which have already been shipped to this territory. These pictures will be first exhibited about the first of November in both Australia and New Zealand.

LASKY FEATURE, "THE BLACK LIST," IN DEMAND.

That the photoplay film fills a very important place in present day life, not merely as a means of amusement or education, but as a vital influence paralleling all modern thought and activity, is indicated by the unusual demand which has arisen all through the country for re-bookings of "The Black List," the Lasky drama of capital and labor, starring Blanche Sweet, which was released some time ago by this company.

Because of the many strikes and threatened tie-ups which at the present time are manifest, exhibitors are sending in requests to every Paramount office in the country for booking dates of this subject, which at the time of its first release created a sensation in labor circles. The production has been shown at labor meetings from coast to coast upon the request of leaders of industrial unions, and it was exhibited at the Labor Forum in Washington High School last February, when through this medium the great labor unions sought to convey their message to the public.

Although not designed in the form of a propaganda either for or against the cause of capital or labor, "The Black List," has as its origin the troubles between operators and miners in Colorado about two years ago, which resulted in serious conflict.

The deep human note in this theme lies in the fight of labor for the right to work. The economic principles discussed are applicable to all lines of industry, and on this account "The Black List" has proven of absorbing interest to people of every locality.

The contrasts in our social life, the inequalities in the state's treatment of capital and labor, the excesses of brutality in the domains of monopolistic corporations, the hate and despair engendered by social injustice—all these things are shown in the course of the picture.

"THE TRUANT SOUL" (Essanay).

The camera has begun turning on Henry B. Walthall's new superfeature, "The Truant Soul," to be constructed in at least seven acts by Essanay. First scenes are being taken in and about Chicago, and when these are completed, Mr. Walthall, Director Harry Beaumont and company will depart for the hill country of Wisconsin to film upward of 150 exterior scenes.

Mary Charleson, long a photoplay star, has been obtained to play the chief supporting part to Mr. Walthall. For some years she has been a favorite and her recent appearance in two large features, in which she gave admirable performances, has served to strengthen her reputation. Patrick Calhoun, a young heavy who has been appearing to advantage in Essanay pictures during the past year, will also be an important principal. He was the villain in "The Little Shepherd of Bargain Row."

For its exterior scenes the play requires a hill country, a barren place of little habitation, and, by chance, a locality even more ideal than required has been found. It lies back of Richland Center, Wis., where towering hills rise abruptly to their summit on one side, only to sweep into deep and beautiful valleys on the other. The field has never been touched for pictures, and amongst the natives a motion picture camera is as much a novelty as would be a grand opera prima donna. Director Beaumont himself spent a week tramping through the hills, where even flivvers couldn't go, to find perfect location.

As a house at the summit of a hill must be burned, and as the natives have failed to build their homes in the high spots, lumber for a complete structure must be carried by hand up the steep sides of a small mountain. Two weeks will be spent in this wild spot, and then the company will return to Chicago studios, where its sets will be awaiting for interior. In all there are nearly 600 scenes to be taken.

SELIG ATHLETICS IN NEW SERVICE.

The Selig Athletic Feature films, ten reels in all, were effective Saturday, September 16, transferred to the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service. Hereafter this notable series will be released through the twenty-two exchanges of the new distributing agency.

The Selig Athletic Feature films have been the greatest innovation that has appeared on the motion picture screens in many months. Such athletic stars as Frank Gotch, Jos Stecher, Dr. B. F. Roller and Hussane, stars of the mat; Mike Gibbons, middleweight boxing champion; Packy McFarland, former lightweight boxer; Willie Ritchey, Jimmy Clabby, the world's greatest billiard players, roller and ice skating champions, the world's most daring auto speed demons, exponents of swimming, baseball stars, in fact the leaders in every known line of sport perform in these films.

It is a proven fact that these Athletic series do much for growing boys by instilling in them the desire for strength. They learn to know that dissipations is not conducive to success in athletics and so stop sowing wild oats.

The Selig Company has issued a complete line of publicity matter to go with the series. One beneficial idea is a series of signed newspaper articles written by such stars as Frank Gotch, Jess Willard, etc. These are gladly published by enterprising editors of newspaper sport pages. Several hundred newspapers have applied for the complete series of ten copyrighted articles. The Selig Comany also has on file many letters from exhibitors of motion pictures and others complimenting the Athletic films. It has been proven that the films have a distinct appeal to women, many of whom are interested in physical culture.

HISTORIC RICHMOND, VA., ON THE SCREEN.

Richmond, Va., is undoubtedly one of the best advertised cities in the United States, its name being heralded throughout the land since the Co .federacy made it its capital, and the Federal battlecry became, "On to Richmond." Hence it is of great interest to managers of motion picture theaters to learn that the Gaumont Company will show Richmond in its "See America First" Series, October 11. Every child in America who has studied United States history will be interested in this historic city.

Among the panorama views are Capitol Square, the Capitol and State Library, Battle Abbey, the spot where the first iron foundry in America was established, the battlefield of Gaines' Mill, the battlefield of Seven Pines, and the Post Office and its environs.

Places of ante-bellum interest shown in this release include the home and school of John Marshall, chief justice of the United States, the graves of John Tyler and James Monroe, presidents of the United States, Gamble's Hill, which John Smith marked as the site of Richmond in 1607, and Washington's Headquarters.

The Civil War is brought vividly to mind by pictures of Confederate Veterans' Home, home of General Robert E. Lee, the Confederate Monument, and monuments to Generals Lee and J. E. B. Stuart, and to Jefferson Davis, the Confederate Museum, and many sites and relics of that period.

On the same reel with this scenic is a Gaumont Kartoon Komic, animated for the screen by Harry Palmer.

MARGARITA FISCHER AS "MISS JACKY."

In the rollicking role of "Miss Jacky," the astonishing daughter of nouveau rich parents who want her to marry a title, much to the young woman's merriment and disgust, Margarita Fischer, the charming star, will make her reappearance on the screen as a Mutual star at an early date.

No more charming vehicle for Miss Fischer's delightful screen talents could have been found than "Miss Jacky." In the role of the daring belle of the fashionable Corona beaches, the naive comrade of all the men who grovel at her feet, Miss Fischer is in her element.

Aside from humor, there is thrill a plenty when the pretty Miss Jacky, determined to gain the attention of one Captain Robert Crowne, commander of one of Uncle Sam's battleships, goes on board disguised as a jacky. All unbeknown to her, the ship sets sail for foreign parts, and she is forced to keep the role she had assumed in play. A stirring fight in which "Miss Jacky" comes in for her share of exciting escapes finally reveals the sex of the slender young sailor, much to the captain's consternation, for he discovers he loves her.

The original synopsis of "Miss Jacky" was written by Alfred Solman, the composer, and was put into working form by Harry Pollard, Miss Fischer's director, and Julian Louis Lamothe.

"TIMOTHY DOBBS" (Universal).

"Tin Teared Terry," the terror of the "Timothy Dobbs" series, makes his appearance in episode ten much to the dismay of Carter De Haven. Carter is very much up against it, but when Terry offers $1,000 to any man who can last over three rounds, Carter determines to make the attempt to get the money.

Carter's tall friend, Jeff (Robert Milash), concocts a clever scheme to land the knockout punch on Terry, and the latter takes the count from Carter. As a pugilist Carter proves that he's a woolly white bear.

He introduces some of his old favorite stunts of the vaudeville stage, and his antics in the ring are ludicrous in the extreme. For instance, when he pulls the famous wampus punch, uppercutting at the same time with a corkscrew whiffenpoofer, it would, indeed, be a brave man who could stand before him.

Ivor McFadden, no relation to Bernarr, and Margaret Whistler appear in support of Mr. Carter, but as a matter of fact Carter doesn't need any support—it's Terry who calls for the stretcher. The "Timothy Dobbs" serial, episode by episode, is steadily making a name for itself. The stories of all the episodes have been written by Bess Meredyth, scenarioized by R. A. Dillon, and produced by Wallace Beery. Episode ten will be released on October 16.

THANHOUSER TO RELEASE "HIDDEN VALLEY."

A different sort of a drama, with beautiful and absorbing scenes laid in South Africa, is "Hidden Valley," starring Valkyrien (Baroness DeWitz), which will be released by Thanhouser through Pathe in November.

Valkyrien, the beautiful Danish dancer, plays the part of the "white goddess" of a wild tribe of ostrich hunters. The "goddess," an American girl, has been captured by the natives, who are about to sacrifice her to their water god, when aid arrives in the person of a young New Yorker, played by Boyd Marshall.

The feature was directed by Ernest Warde, and the South African scenes, notable for artistic photography, were made in Florida. Mr. Warde himself plays the part of the high priest of the savage tribe.

The play gives Valkyrien splendid opportunities. The sacrificial dance of the white goddess is particularly well done.

Pallas-Morosco Celebrities at Sherry Opening.

Left to right: Frank A. Garbutt, Carl Horton, Leonore Ulrich and William L. Sherry.

STRONG APPEAL IN "THE WORLD AND THE WOMAN."

Jeanne Eagles, known for her excellent work on the speaking stage in "Outcast" and "The Great Pursuit," is to be starred by the Thanhouser Film Corporation in "The World and the Woman," a Pathe Gold Rooster play by Philip Lonergan. Eugene Moore is the director. The feature is to be released in November.

Miss Eagels plays the part of a woman of the streets who is spiritually reborn, and becomes a faith healer. Her characterization is splendidly done, and the scenic effects are elaborate.

The story starts in a New York restaurant, and the characters are carried to a little mountain town where the influence of a little child makes the woman turn back and take the better path.

The feature has been shown to prominent Christian Scientists who have heartily endorsed the play.

Miss Eagels is supported by Boyd Marshall, Thomas A. Curran, Wayne Arey, Grace De Carlton, Carey Hastings, and Ethelmary Oakland.

THE DEUTSCHLAND IN BREMEN.

Exclusive motion pictures of the arrival at Bremen of the German supersubmarine liner Deutschland are contained in the Hearst International News Pictorial No. 75, just released.

The latest pictures of the Deutschland were made by Nelson E. Edwards, staff photographer of the Hearst International News Pictorial in Germany. Edwards had the special permission of the German Government. His pictures show the Deutschland, decorated with German flags, ascending the river to Bremen, the crowds along the banks cheering madly. The lense of his camera also caught the welcome extended to Captain Koenig, the intrepid commander of the Deutschland, and his heroic crew as they landed.

Officers high in military circles, Government officials and enthusiastic thousands hailed the submarine commander. Flowers and gifts were showered upon the sailors and they became the men of the hour in Germany.

Notes of the Trade

THE principal character of "The Man Who Forgot," to be played by Robert Warwick for the World-Brady pictures, is a hard drinker who goes on a desperate spree and loses his identity.

* * *

Universal director Joseph De Grasse is picturizing "The Price of Silence," from the story of W. Carey Wonderly, which was prepared for the screen in five reels by Ida May Park. The featured leads are played by Dorothy Phillips and Lon Chaney, supported by Vola Smith, Jack Mulhall and a strong cast of photoplayers.

* * *

Twenty Chicago motorcycle "cops," made up just as the rest of the actors, played several scenes in "The Prince of Graustark," five-act adaptation of George Barr McCutcheon's famous sequel to "Graustark," just filmed by Essanay. Bryant Washburn and Marguerite Clayton play the leading roles. They are arrested for speeding in Paris, and are not captured until a whole army of motorcycle police swoop down on them.

There are a lot of real battle scenes in the funny Mutual Kolb and Dill comedy, "A Peck o' Pickles," a five-part Mutual Star Production, which will appear in the near future.

* * *

The Selig-Tribune, No. 78, released through General Film service on Thursday, September 28th, is unusually interesting. Dignitaries from every section of the United States attend the funeral of Seth Low, former Mayor of New York. Pictures of Verdun, France, before and during its bombardment by the Germans. All that is left of a German Zeppelin which was brought down in England. These and other up-to-date news pictorials are both educational and entertaining.

* * *

"Dead o' Nights" is being filmed at Universal City in two reels by Director Douglas Gerrard. Gerrard plays the featured lead, with Ruth Clifford opposite. The story was written by Willis-Woods.

* * *

"The Gilded Cage," new World-Brady picture, with Alice Brady in the star role, recounts the stirring adventures of a young princess reared in a convent and on a moment's notice called to the throne through the assassination of her father and mother, the king and queen.

* * *

Director P. C. Hartigan is filming "The Rivals," a one-reel comedy, at Universal City. The play features Jane Bernoudy and Ed Sedgwick. The story was written by Walter H. Newman of the Universal staff.

* * *

Harry Beaumont's friends will see him in no more juvenile leads, for several months at least. For the past four years he has been acting and directing, with the acting growing less as his skill in the other end of the business became noted. Now President George K. Spoor of Essanay has assigned to Mr. Beaumont the direction of Henry B. Walthall's next picture, "The Truant Soul," a multiple reel feature, and it will be impossible for him to appear on the screen for some time.

* * *

In "The Honor of the Waynes," starring Robert Warwick, the male character of second importance will be played by Henry Hull, the young actor who has attracted favorable comment by his interpretation of the leading part in "The Man Who Came Back," at the Playhouse. This will be Mr. Hull's first appearance as a motion picture player. Emile Chautard is directing "The Honor of the Waynes" for the World Film Corporation.

* * *

Director John McDermott at Universal City is making preparations for his next story, "Vengeance Is Mine," written by Joseph Le Brandt of the Universal staff. It will be made in one reel. The cast has not yet been selected.

* * *

"Without a Soul" is the title of a forthcoming World Film photoplay with Clara Kimball Young in the central role. The story, called "Lola," was written by Owen Davis, and the release will be made early in November.

* * *

"In the Secret Service" is the title of a two-reel drama being filmed under the direction of Henry McRae at Universal City, featuring J. Warren Kerrigan, with Edith Johnson playing opposite. The story was written by Larry Evans and prepared for the screen by William Parker of the Universal staff.

* * *

Philip Lonergan has just completed a new play for Florence La Badie that will be made at the Thanhouser studios as soon as "Divorce and the Daughter" is completed. The story handles in a new way the present day problem of prison reform and is particularly timely.

* * *

Director William V. Mong is picturizing "His Old Plantation Home," in two reels, at Universal City. Mong and Nellie Allen play the leading roles with a strong cast of photoplayers in their support. This story, written by Mong, deals with the freeing of the slaves down South.

* * *

"Her New York" will be Gladys Hulette's next picture, following "Prudence, the Pirate." Miss Hulette is now at work on "Her New York" at the Thanhouser studios under the direction of O. A. C. Lund. Agnes C. Johnson, author of "The Shine Girl" and "Prudence, the Pirate," wrote "Her New York."

* * *

Directors Maxwell Ryder and Jack Cunningham are filming "Diamonds of Destiny," in one reel, featuring Louise Lovely and Paul Byron. The photoplay was written by Beverly Griffith of the Universal scenario staff.

* * *

"The Whip," upon which Maurice Tourneur is hard at work in the Paragon Studio at Fort Lee, will be shown in eight reels. In the articulate version this was one of the biggest stage spectacles ever seen in America.

* * *

Universal director Rupert Julian is nearing the completion of his five-reel production, "We Are French," prepared for the screen by E. J. Clawson from the story of Robert H. Davis. Julian and Ella Hall play the featured leads, supported by Kingsley Benedict and a large cast of players.

* * *

In "The Heart of a Hero," presently to be issued as a World-Brady picture, Robert Warwick impersonates Nathan Hale, with the lovely Gail Kane as Hale's sweetheart. Nat Goodwin and Maxine Elliott had these parts in the spoken drama, which was by Clyde Fitch.

Helen Badgley, Thanhouser child actress who has been at Block Island, appearing in scenes with Vincent Serrano in "A Modern Monte Cristo," is helping to raise money for the infantile paralysis sufferers in New Rochelle. Her latest contribution to the fund is $6.80, which she collected after giving a singing and dancing entertainment all by herself on the boat returning from Block Island.

• • •

Director Joseph DeGrasse has commenced the picturization at Universal City of "The Price of Silence," a story by W. Carey Wonderly, which was prepared for the screen in five reels by Ida May Park. The photoplay has a New England atmosphere and features Dorothy Phillips and Lon Chaney.

• • •

The last scenes of "Rummy," starring Wilfred Lucas, have been photographed at the Fine Arts studio and Director Paul Powell is about to start rehearsals on a scientific detective story, written by W. E. Wing, author of "Sold for Marriage," and other Triangle productions. Wilfred Lucas will play the principal part with Constance Talmadge opposite him. The supporting cast will consist of Winfred Westover, James O'Shea, G. N. Blue, F. A. Turner and Doc Cannon.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. George Krupa, proprietors of the Hippodrome theater, Lancaster, Pa., will open their new house, The Hamilton, on Monday, September 11, with impressive ceremonies.

• • •

One of George Ade's funniest fables in slang has just been filmed by Essanay. It is "The Fable of the Kittenish Superanns and the World-Weary Snipes," and appeared but a short time ago in the Cosmopolitan Magazine. It contrasts the enjoyment gotten out of life by a group of persons above middle age, who dance and frolic with childish abandon, while the debutantes and their young men gaze upon all amusement with a bored, tired manned. It gave President George K. Spoor of Essanay such a good laugh that he decided to offer it in two reels instead of the customary one.

• • •

Director Lynn Reynolds and his big Universal company, including Myrtle Gonzalez, Val Paul, George Hernandez and Fred Church, are in the vicinity of Fresno, Cal., filming scenes for Reynold's own story, "The End of the Rainbow." It is a story of the early logging days in the west.

• • •

The Missouri Pacific Railroad Co. have placed an order with the Minusa Cine Products Co., for a Minusa Gold Fibre for their private projection room on the eighteenth floor of the Railway Exchange Building, St. Louis. This building is the mecca of all railroad men, consequently, daily performances are given at the Missouri Pacific Railroad, showing a great many travel and vacation trips.

• • •

The picture version of "Bought and Paid For," of which Alice Brady is the star, was made at night by artificial light. "More dependable than daylight, because you can control it," explained the director. The players liked the change. It was back to first principles for them.

• • •

"Tony Plays Ragtime" is the title of a one-reel Italian drama being produced by Universal directors, Maxwell Ryder and Jack Cunningham, from their own story. The leads are played by Claire McDowell and Bugner Larten.

• • •

Harry Dunkinson will soon be seen in a new two-act Essanay comedy for which he furnished the idea. The corpulent comedian has been an ardent swimmer all summer and he conceived a comic plot on a none too efficient nor intrepid lifesaver, who saves no lives, but gets a lot of credit. The picture is entitled "The Lifesaver."

Picture Theaters Projected

CHICAGO, ILL.—A. Tomaslwski, 2224 W. 18th Place, is having plans prepared for a one-story moving picture theater, 25 by 125 feet, to cost $12,000.

AUGUSTA, GA.—L. F. C. Society is having plans prepared for theater, office, and lodge building.

MOULTRIE, GA.—R. J. Corbett will shortly let the contract to erect a $40,000 fireproof theater building.

ANNA, ILL.—Ernest Alden plans to erect a one-story moving picture theater, 33 by 130 feet, to cost $12,000.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Samuel Katz of the Amalgamated Theater Corporation, 5 S. Wabash avenue, and Barney and Abe J. Balban of the General Feature Fixture Company, are having plans prepared for a three-story theater, store, and office building, 100 by 167 feet, to cost $275,000.

FARMER CITY, ILL.—J. W. Kendall plans to expend about $4,000 in making alterations to his moving picture theater.

CROWN POINT, IND.—Cyrus Hayden will remodel his one-story moving picture theater. About $1,000 will be expended for the improvements.

WHITING, IND.—Plans are being considered by Solvensky Dom for a three-story theater, store, and hall building, 50 by 120 feet, to cost $50,000.

PADUCAH, KY.—Gus Lockwood has the contract to convert commercial building into modern moving picture theater for the Desberger Amusement Company. A steam heating system will be installed. The alterations will cost about $3,000.

BALTIMORE, MD.—Nixon Victoria Theater Company will be incorporated with $50,000 capital by Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger Company, of Philadelphia, and others; leased Victoria theater, and will expend from $20,000 to $25,000 to remodel the structure; enlarge stage; install new seats; remodel interior and exterior.

JOPLIN, MO—Frank H. Braecle, Charles Turner, Dr. C. M. Balsley and others will organize company and enlarge Royal theater, to provide seating capacity of 1,500. About $35,000 will be expended for the improvements.

HELENA, MONT.—J. A. Van Wie, Hotel Leamington, Minneapolis, Minn., is considering plans for the erection of a $200,000 theater.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Mrs. Olga Greenbaum, 189 Montague street, plans to spend about $3,000 for improvements to her moving picture theater.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Henry Berg will shortly commence work on improvements to his two-story moving picture theater, to cost $6,000.

RIDGEWOOD, L. I., N. Y.—Plans are being prepared for the Van Cortland Amusement Co., 186 Dresden street, for a two-story theater and office building, 31 by 106 feet, to cost $70,000.

TROY, N. Y.—C. P. Boland, 30 Fourth street, has the contract to make alterations to Proctor's theater, to cost $2,000.

If You Need a New Machine

and can't afford to pay cash, write us today and we will help you out.

Our easy payment plan enables you to purchase any make machine at a small investment. DON'T DELAY—GET BUSY—WRITE TODAY for full particulars.

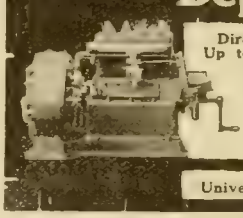
Amusement Supply Company

Dealers in Motiograph, Simplex, Powers, Edison and Standard Machines, Transverters, Motor Generators, Rectifiers and everything pertaining to the Moving Picture Theatres

3rd Floor, Mallers Bldg.,

Cor. Madison Street & Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Dependable Light



Direct current—steady, non-flickering light. Up to 4 K.W. capacity. 60 to 110 volts. 20% overload above current required for picture machine, handling 25 to 50 lamps in addition. Motor, 4-cylinder, 4-cycle, high-grade and fully guaranteed. Compact, inexpensive. Write today for Bulletin No. 20.

Universal Motor Co., Dept. W, Oshkosh, Wis.

BIG FILM COMPANY WANTS GOOD MAN

A young American with knowledge of Export business; must be very capable Salesman and Correspondent, knowing German, French, Spanish, Italian, for handling the sale of films in American and foreign countries on State Right basis. State experience, qualifications, age, etc., and salary expected. Address BOX A, Moving Picture World, 17 Madison Ave., N. Y. City.

Re-orders

Every business man realizes that the stability of his business is measured by re-orders.

If your patrons do not come back, something is surely wrong. If the most experienced buyers in the field come back for more, your policy must be right and your business sound.

Advertising may be measured by the same sure test.

For the past several years the Moving Picture World has carried advertising which came from firms who had carried advertising in every previous issue, excepting such companies as have come and gone in between.

This publication measures its volume of business by these customers who have continued to buy space in every issue on its own individual merit.

After perusing the various issues, you will note our re-orders are as close to 100% as is possible for a publication to run.

Of such a condition any business, whatever its product or sales method, might well be proud.

It expresses the experience of astute buyers, extending over a period of years.

It testifies to the establishment of advertising as an integral factor in economic development, as a profitable investment—not an expense, not a speculation.

It reflects the stability, the soundness, the permanence, of advertising to-day in the proper medium.

The
Moving Picture World
17 Madison Avenue
New York, N Y.

Trade News of the Week

GATHERED BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS

Norwalk Theater's Novel Benefit

During Anniversary Week of Regent Theater at Norwalk, Conn., Samuel Kenter, Owner and Manager, Deposited Ten Per Cent. of Gross Receipts in Bank to Be Given to Most Popular Charity—A Pretty Theater.

By William Flynn, 36 Summer Street, Boston, Mass.

NORWALK, Conn.—The week of September 25th marks the first anniversary of the opening of the Regent theater here. This comfortable and commodious little play-house, costing $75,000, has given its patrons the best procurable, both in the legitimate attractions and moving pictures.

Samuel Kantor, the owner and proprietor, subscribes to Paramount, Metro, V-L-S-E, and Fox service, and carries at all times the majority of the first-run films.

The theater was opened at the time of the "Goddess" serial release, and in celebration of the event, Mr. Earle Williams, of Vitagraph, made a personal appearance, and was enthusiastically received.

Upon looking over the year's receipts, Mr. Kantor asserts that Selig's "Ne'er-do-Well" drew the largest crowd at a fifteen cent admission, running to a capacity house of 1,114 at all showings.

A Novel Benefit.

In acknowledgment of the fine support to the theater by the townspeople, Mr. Kantor has inaugurated an original way of expressing his thanks. Ten per cent. of the gross receipts from the anniversary week performances is to be deposited at a local savings bank, to be presented to a charitable institution chosen by the patrons. With each admission ticket, from now until the 20th of December, is given a blank. The name of the favored institution is to be voted for on this blank, and deposited in a box in the lobby. The votes will be counted on the date mentioned, and the money turned over to the winner on Christmas Day.

Mr. Kantor's program for the week consisted of the legitimate drama, "The House of Glass," on Monday; Tuesday, Lou Tellegen in "The Victory of Conscience"; Wednesday, Pauline Frederick in "The Woman in the Case"; Thursday, Fannie Ward in "Each Pearl a Tear"; Friday, "The Unwritten Law," and Saturday, Margaret Illington in a stage presentation of "Our Little Wife." All performances were augmented by special orchestral music. When legitimate attractions occupy the stage, the manager runs his usual program of pictures at a large public hall, upon which he holds a lease.

Details of Decoration.

The interior furnishings are most attractive, the color scheme being two shades of rose. At the front of the theater, over the large boxes, which seat twenty each, are artistic mural paintings, depicting the various arts. The stage, when not in use for legitimate productions, is nicely banked with flowers. The back-drop is quite an innovation, consisting of a city scene in miniature. When the lights are gradually lowered at the front of the house, as is the custom, the myriads of tiny illuminations from the windows of the embryo city strike a remarkable note of realism, calling forth many exclamations of admiration. The floor and broad shallow stairs leading to the balconies are carpeted in dark red velvet carpet, and the seats are comfortably upholstered in dark leather, with the owner's initial appearing upon the aisle arms of the rows. The lobby floor is parqueted, and the ticket office has an up-to-date automatic ticket distributor. The stained glass canopy, extending over the sidewalk is of artistic design, while above it is a flashing electric sign of the theater's name.

Plague Ban Soon to Be Lifted.

Boston, Mass.—The epidemic of infantile paralysis has made its effect felt in the purses of many Massachusetts exhibitors. Children under 10 years of age and in some cases those under sixteen have been barred from attending moving picture exhibitions in several cities and towns throughout the state.

This action has been taken by local authorities in every case in the hope of eliminating one posible source of contagion in the battle against the dreaded child plague which has spread throughout the state and has claimed many victims. The approach of cool weather, however, is expected to check the disease and the decree against attending moving picture shows will probably be lifted in a short time.

C. A. Walker Marries.

Boston, Mass.—Charles A. Walker of the New England office of the Universal Film Company has been showered with congratulations from his many friends and co-workers in the trade on his marriage to Miss Lydia Greenwood, the beautiful daughter of Mrs. W. H. Greenwood of No. 55 Waldeck street, Dorchester. The wedding came as a surprise although Mr. Walker and Miss Greenwood had been engaged for some time. The members of the family were agreeable to the match but Miss Greenwood decided she would eliminate all the fussing of an elaborate wedding and she and her fiance simply went down town and were married. They later called mamma on the phone, told her what had happened and started for New York on their honeymoon. Mr. and Mrs. Walker will reside at No. 155 Hemmenway street, Boston. Mrs. Walker is the third sister in the Greenwood family to be married this year. She was formerly president of a girls' bachelor club.

The Week In Newark

By Jacob J. Kalter, 51 Strand Theater Bldg., Newark.

NEWARK, N. J.—To succeed Leo F. Levison, who has just been appointed organizer for the World Film with headquarters at Pittsburgh, Lester W. Adler has been appointed manager of the Newark branch of the World Film.

Mr. Adler has had a wide and varied experience in the film business, having started in 1908 with moving picture supplies. After some time at the supply end of the game, Mr. Adler entered the exchange business in New York. He then became an exhibitor, owning and managing several houses in and about New York.

Mr. Adler became interested in the state rights method of booking pictures, and bought the New York state rights for several big productions. At this time Mr. Adler first became connected with the World Film as roadman for the Pittsburgh office. From this position he was promoted to assistant manager of the New York exchange covering New York and Connecticut. This was the last position Mr. Adler held prior to his coming to Newark.

Miss Henrietta Kessel, who was at the Newark branch of the World Film several months ago, is now back at her old position as office assistant. Miss Kessel by virtue of her long connection with the local office is known by practically every Jersey exhibitor, and is extremely popular among them. News of her return was greeted by rejoicings as now exhibitors are assured of every possible attention.

New Coast Amusement Co.

Asbury Park, N. J.—The Coast Amusement Company, with registered offices at Seacoast building, have incorporated with an authorized capital of $75,000. The concern will conduct a general amusement business. The incorporators are L. W. Berry, F. B. Burdge, and M. C. Berry.

Unicorn's Newark Office.

Newark, N. J.—The Unicorn have again opened offices at Newark. Jack Kraemer has been appointed Newark manager, and he has opened offices at 52 Strand Theater building, 118 Market street.

Abboy Amusement Agency.

East Orange, N. J.—Charles J. Gobrick has filed as his trade name the Abboy Amusement Agency with offices at 28 Hilton street, East Orange.

Building Permit Change

By J. M. Shellman, 1902 Mt. Royal Terrace, Baltimore, Md.

Baltimore Council May Change Administration of Building Permit—New Theaters.

BALTIMORE, MD.—An unconfirmed report is now going the rounds in the Council Chambers that an ordinance will soon be introduced taking moving picture privileges out of the hands of the Council and turning them over to the Board of Estimates or the inspector of buildings.

The flurry which occurred recently in the First Branch of the City Council regarding the continuing of the ordinance for the remodeling of the Casino on North avenue near Charles street has subsided and the ordinance has passed to its third reading without comment.

A favorable report has been given to the First Branch by the Committee on Police and Jail on the ordinance authorizing the Southern Amusement Company to build a moving picture theater on the west side of Light street, south of Poultney.

Also the ordinance permitting the erection of a moving picture theater at 2267-13 Madison avenue was continued on its third reading and it now seems that a plan to pass all three ordinances at one time is possible.

It is reported that John T. Langville, Jr., has filed plans for a new theater on northwest corner of Fort avenue and Lehman street. Rohanman, Lewy and Feld expect to build at 607-13 North Fremont avenue. This firm owns the Great Wizard theater. J. M. Eser has bought the Helldarfer project and will build the theater.

Salesmen Exempt from New Tax.

Baltimore, Md.—A new ordinance which was introduced in the First Branch of the City Council by John D. Spencer, representative of the Fourth Ward, which requires a license tax of $100 a day for transient merchants, has been passed. This ordinance, however, does not affect traveling salesmen, for it plainly states that it only affects merchants or agents with "goods, wares or merchandise on hand for delivery." The Merchants and Manufacturers' Association is responsible for this ordinance and it was designed to protect the local merchants.

Maryland Movie Club Meets.

Baltimore, Md.—The Maryland Movie Club, which is an organization consisting of the employes of the moving picture theaters and exchanges of Baltimore, met at their headquarters Sunday night, September 24, to discuss the business of the coming year and the way in which to make the association better in every way. C. B. Murray will be the business agent for the coming year. J. W. Hawkins is president; L. Roy, vice-president, and H. J. Renwer, secretary.

Maryland Licenses.

Baltimore, Md.—On September 20, Adam Deupert, clerk of the Court of Common Pleas, turned over to the state comptroller a certified check for $182,116.88. This amount represented the collections for the quarter ending August 31 from state licenses. It has been estimated that this amount is about eight times more than the receipts which have been received in the past for the same period of time.

The McMullen Act, which was passed by the last legislature, had a great deal to do with the increase. It brought into the state treasury $55,000. At this writing no efforts have been made on the part of the authorities to round up the persons who have failed to comply with the McMullen Act, but it is expected that very shortly that officers of the sheriff and the state's attorney will go after them. The figures show that Baltimore is represented, among many other businesses, as having 87 moving picture houses and theaters.

Relief Benefit at the New.

Baltimore, Md.—Manager L. A. DeHoff, of the New theater, 210 West Lexington street, has arranged to let the Woman's Board of the Fifth Regiment give a benefit for two weeks, except Saturdays, beginning September 25th, to help replenish the funds for relieving the dependent families of the men on the border. Mrs. Washington Bowie, Jr., is chairman of the board, with Mrs. George N. Munsen as her assistant. As a specialty on the program for last week, Manager DeHoff obtained the Hearst International News Pictorial showing the German submarine Deutschland entering the harbor of Bremen on her home trip.

Censors Approve "Purity."

Baltimore, Md.—It is understood that very few eliminations were made by the Maryland Censor Board in the Mutual production entitled "Purity," featuring the far-famed model Audrey Munson. This artistic picture is now running at the Picture Garden theater, 31 West Lexington street, and Mr. Blechman states that he has arranged for a two-week booking.

Private Showing of Two New Serials.

Baltimore, Md.—Through the courtesy of Guy L. Wonders, manager of the Wilson theater, Baltimore, the premiere screening of two big serials were held for the benefit of the Baltimore exhibitors. The first four episodes of "The Scarlet Runner" with Earle Williams in the lead was arranged for by Frank B. Spurrier, manager of the Washington branch of the Greater Vitagraph, and Nat Glasser, representative of the same office in Baltimore, for Friday night, September 22.

On Sunday night, September 24, the first four episodes of "The Shielding Shadow" were screened by H. E. Reddish, local manager of the Pathe, and D. F. O'Donnell, manager of the Washington office.

The Parkway's Coming Events.

Baltimore, Md.—W. H. Webb, president of the Parkway Theater Company, accompanied Bernard Depkin, Jr., on a recent trip to New York and while there Mr. Depkin closed up with the Artcraft Film Corporation for the Mary Pickford releases. He also made arrangements to have Miss Pickford talk to the audience of the Parkway on the night when the first of her new releases will be shown here. This will be done by having a direct wire to New York from the Parkway with arrangements to have it held open for several minutes. This event has been arranged so that it will take place on the first anniversary of the opening of the Parkway, October 23rd. Mr. Hawkes will be in Baltimore at that time and will address the audience personally.

Mr. Depkin also arranged to have Anita Stewart appear personally at the Parkway at the Saturday afternoon and evening performances some time in November, when her latest film entitled "The Girl Phillipi" is shown at this house.

"It has always been the custom of this house," stated Mr. Depkin, "not to have any reserved seats; but owing to the number of calls we have had of late to reserve seats and the demand has been so great that we have decided to reserve the 70 loge and mezzanine box seats until 8:30 p. m., for any party who wishes them at 50 cents each."

Suit to Restrain Use of Films

Hy Art Masterplays Company Brings Suit in District of Columbia to Prevent Samuel Cummins and Fayette Thomas Moore from Using Parts of Certain Pictures in the Film Called "War's Women."

By Clarence L. Linz, 635 Tenth St., N. E., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Edmund K. Fox and Barry Bulkley, members of the Hy Art Masterplays Company, have brought suit in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia to prevent Samuel Cummins and Fayette Thomas Moore from displaying parts of the films known as "Across the Mexican Border" and "Germany's Battles at Verdun," within Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina, Florida, Georgia, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia, requiring them to cut all such parts from the film entitled "War's Women."

The co-partners claim that in July they entered into a contract with the defendant, Cummins, whereby they obtained the exclusive rights to book these two films for exhibition purposes in the states named; that they have gone to considerable expense in arranging bookings and in furnishing advertising matter; that they have actually exhibited the films in the District of Columbia, Virginia and North Carolina, and that they have also booked "Germany's Battles at Verdun," in Baltimore, for a total of about three weeks.

It is alleged that Cummins disregarded the contract and that he has used in the film, "War's Women," between 750 and 1,000 feet taken from the films in questfon. It is declared that the most sensational, vital and most interesting parts of these two films have so been used. Fred S. Swindell is attorney for the plantiffs.

Confederate Veterans Reunion Here.

Washington, D. C.—A. Brylawski, manager of the Cosmos theater, has been appointed a member of the finance committee which proposes to raise a fund of $40,000 to be used in connection with the reunion of the United Confederate Veterans in this city next spring. It is estimated that there will be perhaps 500,000 people visit Washington for this week.

"Tom" Moore's Statuettes of "Purity."

Washington, D. C.—"Tom" Moore has caused the distribution of one hundred plaster statues made to represent "Purity." The statues are of a woman in the nude, having draped from one shoulder to the opposite arm a blue silk streamer made of one inch ribbon, bearing the inscription: "Strand Theater, beginning October first." Mr. Moore has booked the picture "Purity" for a week's run at the Strand theater, with the privilege of extending the booking for as long a time as he desires, and in all probability the one week will be stretched to two weeks.

At the private exhibition of this film recently at the Press Club, there was much favorable comment upon the beauty of the photography, and since that time it has been accorded as much, and probably more, publicity in the local and nearby papers than any other film exhibited in Washington. Mr. Moore and his assistants are planning some novelties to be used in connection with this exhibition.

No Wonder Films Are Stolen.

Washington, D. C.—James Wickham of the Dixie theater, at Eighth and H streets northeast, has reported to the police the theft of a part of a boiler valued at $50. There have been a number of petty robberies of late around town, and it was but recently that a box of films were reported stolen.

The carelessness of those to whom the collection and delivery of films is intrusted seems to be increasing to what may later prove to be a most alarming extent. One may walk along Ninth street, where the majority of the motion picture exhibitors are located, and see in the doorways and even on the sidewalk itself boxes containing films valued at many hundreds of dollars, unguarded and with no one to prevent a thief from making a good, rich haul. It will require only that an exhibitor be "stung" sometime for this practice to be stopped. The exhibitors should take time by the forelock and warn their operators against this practice.

"Jerry" Payne at Artcraft Office.

Washington, D. C.—Gerald H. Payne, or "Jerry" as he is better known to the exhibitors in this territory, has assumed his duties as assistant manager at the Artcraft, 1320 F street northwest, which is presided over by Vivian P. Whitaker. Mr. Payne formerly served in a similar capacity under George Mann, manager of the local Paramount. He joined the latter exchange in October, 1914, as booker, becoming road representative and Mr. Mann's assistant. This change naturally comes in the light of a promotion for Mr. Payne.

Crandall's Much Beautified Savoy Reopens

Theater on Fourteenth Street Opens Again After Two Months Given to Improvements—Will Now Seat More Than 1,400.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Crandall's Savoy theater, on Fourteenth street near Columbia road, northwest, has been reopened after two months' work on improvements representing the expenditure of large sums of money. Radical changes have been made, the most striking of which is the addition of a balcony, which increases the seating capacity of the house to more than 1,400. To effect this, it was necessary to raise the roof and make many other alterations in the structure.

Another distinctive feature is the marquise, which extends the entire width of the house. It is of ornamental steel work, filled in with glass. A spacious lobby, adorned by pillars of Carian marble, gold lacquered mirrors and art panels presents an inviting appearance. The prevailing note in the interior decoration is ivory and old rose, and at intervals along the side walls panels have been placed. Twelve exits make it possible to empty the theater in a minute. Rest rooms for ladies and gentlemen are provided at the entrance to the auditorium. On the exterior powerful electric lights turn night into day. A great sign flashes the name of the theater and is visible for a considerable distance.

Photographs and a complete description of the many improvements and additions to the Savoy will appear in an early issue of this paper.

Film Men to Carve Air Circles.

Washington, D. C.—If you are a devotee of golf, and should happen to find that the price of clubs and balls has risen to unheard of heights, blame it on "Tom" Moore of the Garden, Strand and Plaza theaters of this city. Mr. Moore will be given a further introduction as the leader in motion picture sportdom in the National Capitol in a succeeding issue. However, for a start, let it be known that he has organized a bunch of golf fans, who take a great delight in digging up the perfectly good turf of the various country clubs in and around Washington. The soldiers in his golf army include Harry M. Crandall, F. M. Day, Arthur Robb and J. H. Butler, and there are several others, in fact, nearly a dozen, who have their applications in to join "Tom" Moore's aggegation. But the boys are getting a great deal of sport during the fall afternoons chasing the little rubber ball through the grass.

Deplore Use of "No Children" Signs

Washington, D. C., Exhibitors See in Use of Such Signs the Seeds of Censorship —They Are Not Really Honest.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—There has been considerable comment of late on the part of exhibitors, as well as patrons, on the tendency to use signs which are apt to create a wrong impression as to the character of the exhibition offered in the theater. This is particularly true of such cases where signs of the type "Children under sixteen years of age not admitted." It has been declared by a number of prominent exhibitors that it is such things as this that sow the first seeds of censorship. It is a known fact that should anything appear in any theater that is not suitable for children under sixteen years of age, the police would quickly step in and censor the show, as well as censure the exhibitor. This is bait, pure and simple, of a type not desirable to a first class theater, nor conducive to its best interests. There are as many people who would pass by a house that flaringly advertises its plays as for adults only as there are those whose curiosity would lead them to seek out houses that show films that might be indecent and, no matter which way the cat jumps, such exhibitors will lose a certain class of trade.

Figures Show Increase in Theater Tax.

Washington, D. C.—According to the figures compiled by the Commissioners of Internal Revenue for the month of August, 1916, there was paid into Uncle Sam's coffers through the working of a so-called War Emergency Revenue act of October 22, 1914, by motion picture exhibitors, theater operators and others engaged in like amusement enterprises, the sum of $55,071.30, as against $49,378.84 for the month of August, 1915. This represents an increase of $5,692.46.

The new schedule of taxes applying on motion picture theaters under the more recent General Revenue Act did not go into effect until early in September and there is no compilation at this time showing what these new rates have produced by way of revenue. However, in the last report it is shown that during the first two months of the present fiscal year there was derived from this source revenue to the extent of $251,257.86 as against $235,037.69 for the same two months of the preceding year, showing an increase of $16,220.17.

Exhibitions not otherwise provided for, produced $4,368.54 this August as against $4,394.62 last August. For the first two months of the present fiscal year the figures are $10,521.83, and for the first two months of the last fiscal year $9,561.90.

Roanoke Operator Injured

By Clarence L. Linz, 635 Tenth St., N. E., Washington, D. C.

ROANOKE, VA.—Milton O. Field, a motion picture operator, was badly burned about his left side, arm and hand in a fire which broke out in the operating booth of the Bijou theater. An old film became hung in the machine, causing it to ignite, and it was while Mr. Field was endeavoring to extricate it that he received his injuries. He was overcome by the fumes and fell beside the machine. He was dragged outside of the theater by William Adams, assistant manager of the Bijou. Although some little damage was done to the booth, through the cooperation of a number of operators it was quickly put in shape so that the theater was opened at the usual hour on the following day.

Changes Among Theaters and Managers.

Alexandria, Va.—E. Lawrence Phillips is arranging to open the New Opera House in Alexandria on October 9.

Richmond, Va.—The Bijou theater, which has been running as a picture house, has been made a part of the new international circuit of theaters and again goes legitimate under the management of Harry B. McNiven.

Newport News, Va.—William Koch, of the Onyx theater, has gone to Washington, D. C., to book films to carry his house for several weeks to come, during his absence from this city. He then goes to New York and afterward to some of the western cities.

Danville, Va.—Pryor Bros. have closed their Strand theater, located in the Leland hotel building. Although this is by far the handsomest theater in this place, the location is deemed to be somewhat unfortunate and worked against the success of the house. This firm is making good with the Bijou and the feature house, the Broadway.

Norfolk, Va.—The Bonita theater, on Main street, has been closed and the owners of the property are now converting it into a store.

Mask Ball of Film Men Is Leading Topic

Sale of Tickets Promises Well—Metro to Provide Picture Postals of Beverley Bayne and Francis X. Bushman.

From Philadelphia News Service, 326 Real Estate Trust Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—The masked ball to be given on Hallowe'en, Tuesday, October 31, at the Eagle Temple, Broad and Spring Garden streets, by the Motion Picture Employes' Association, continues to hold the attention of the film world in this vicinity.

Mr. Clarke manager of the Metro Film Company, has generously contributed several thousand beautiful souvenir picture postals of Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, and many other novel features in the way of souvenir gifts will be in order.

The sale of tickets during the past week brought out the fact that Robert Madden, manager of the Ruby theater, Seventh and Market streets, leads the list with $25 worth of tickets and Jack Madden, of the Alhambra Theater, runs him a close second with another large amount. Dave Lodge, who has personal charge of the sale of the pasteboards for the big time, reports having experienced unusual demands for tickets during the past several days and he was quoted as remarking that the receipts so far have exceeded even the most fond expectations of the committee.

Calehuff Road Man Reports Prosperity.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Bill Wert, of the Calehuff Supply Company, 1301 Race street, has recently returned from a week's sojourn throughout the Southern territory and reports having experienced a very profitable trip. Mr. Wert declares that he found business to be very good throughout the territory covered on his trip and he remarked that the moving picture industry has certainly taken rapid strides in Baltimore and Washington. The number of theaters has increased ten per cent. and the demand for equipment and supplies of all kinds has outgrown that of former years.

Plague Ban Off October 2.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Proprietors of moving picture theaters in this city are elated over the fact that the ban on children under sixteen years of age, due to the serious epidemic of infantile paralysis which has prevailed in this vicinity for some time past, will be lifted on Tuesday, October 2nd. The attendance at local theaters has started to increase in leaps and bounds and prospects for a favorable season are exceptionally bright.

Theater Has Advertisements in Cars.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The management of the new Fifty-sixth Street theater, one of West Philadelphia's most beautiful moving picture houses, put over a live one when they adopted the policy of advertising in the street cars and the attendance at that theater has more than justified this means of advertising.

PENNSYLVANIA NOTES.

New House in South Bethlehem.

South Bethlehem, Pa.—The United Motion Picture Theater Company will build a modern moving picture theater in South Bethlehem at Fourth street and Broadway and work upon the new structure has already been started. It is expected that the theater will be completed in time for the Christmas holidays.

The Clearfield Reopens.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Thomas Walsh, proprietor of the Clearfield theater, Clearfield and Belgrade streets, announces the opening of his house on September 30, following a complete renovation both to the exterior and interior of the theater.

Waynesboro, Pa.—Manager A. R. Zook announces that his new opera house, Waynesboro, Pa., will soon be thrown open to the public. This theater is one of the most beautiful in the entire state of Pennsylvania and should meet with the greatest success.

Lancaster's Hamilton Reopens.

Lancaster, Pa.—The new Hamilton theater, on North Queen street, this city, considered one of the most beautiful moving picture theaters in the east, was recently opened under the management of George Krupa and W. H. Snyder. This theater represents an output of $100,000 and is strictly modern throughout.

New Theater Nearly Ready.

West Chester, Pa.—Moving picture enthusiasts of West Chester, Pa., are anxiously awaiting the opening of A. Brown's new theater. This theater is of the most modern design and construction and promises to become one of the leading houses in that section of the state.

Charleston's New Strand Ready

Beautiful New Picture Theater in Charleston, W. Va., Just Completed by T. R. Kearse, of the United Film Company, Is Now Ready to Open—Will Seat 2,000 Persons—Policy Will Include Big Features.

Pittsburgh News Service, 6061 Jenkins Arcade, Pittsburgh, Pa.

CHARLESTON, W. VA.—The beautiful new Strand theater, at Summers and State streets, Charleston, W. Va., is nearing completion and will be opened some time during the present month. This house will be one of the finest in West Virginia and is to operate with high-class photoplays exclusively. The construction and equipment of the building is modern throughout, embodying a number of new features that are the result of the builder's long experience in the moving picture business. The seating capacity of the Strand will be 2,000. The owner is T. L. Kearse, of the United Film Company, of Charleston. Mr. Kearse visited in Pittsburgh several days recently, looking over the feature market while there.

Will Double Savoy's Capacity.

McKeesport, Pa.—The Savoy theater, McKeesport, Pa., is to be remodeled in the near future and enlarged to double its present seating capacity. The owner is H. A. Victor, a prominent figure in the exhibiting business in western Pennsylvania. Mr. Victor has just completed his new Victor theater, one of the finest and most up-to-date houses in McKeesport. The Victor will be formally opened to the public about October 15. Work on the Savoy will be started immediately after that date and rushed to early completion. The building will be extended in the rear, the additional space increasing the number of seats from 400 to 800. The arrangement of the auditorium will be otherwise improved and considerable new equipment installed.

New House for Glenn & McCloud.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—A modern moving picture theater is to be established soon at 2524 Wylie avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., by the firm of Glenn & McCloud, who are newcomers in the local exhibiting field. The structure will be three stories in height and of brick and steel fire-proof construction. The first floor will be occupied by the theater, which is to be equipped in a complete and handsome manner. Plans for the theater are now being prepared for the owner, George Robb. The building will cost between $18,000 and $20,000.

"Hommel's Encyclopedia."

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Ludwig Hommel & Co., the well-known moving picture supply house, 947 Penn avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., is issuing an elaborate catalogue of accessories and supplies bearing the title "Hommel's Encyclopedia of Everything for Your Playhouse." The book is a handsome one and contains a great amount of information valuable to the exhibitor, in addition to a complete list of projection machines and other equipment, all indexed. The firm of Ludwig Hommel & Company has invited all exhibitors to call or write for the book, which is being distributed free of cost.

Guy R. Ainsworth on Trip.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Guy R. Ainsworth, of the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company, with headquarters in the offices of the General Film Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., has left this city on an extended eastern trip in the interests of the Essanay Company's commercial department. Mr. Ainsworth will visit Philadelphia, New York, Boston and other cities expecting to be gone until the middle of October.

Lambrinos Leases Johnstown Globe.

Johnstown, Pa.—The lease on the Globe theater, at Bedford and Main streets, Johnstown, Pa., has been taken over recently by Louis Lambrinos, who will put on high-class feature pictures and vaudeville. Extensive alterations and repairs have been carried out by the new management, making the house one of the most attractive and up-to-date in its locality. The building occupied by the Globe is owned by the Swank Hardware Company, and the theater was formerly conducted by J. G. Foley, a well-known exhibitor and film man. Mr. Foley continues to operate the Globe Film Exchange in Johnstown. Through this exchange he serves thirty-two moving picture houses in the surounding territory, eight of which are controlled in part by Mr. Foley.

C. A. Dempsey Joins Fox.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—C. A. Dempsey, a film man well and favorably known in the Pittsburgh section, has joined the forces of the local Fox office, in the capacity of travelling representative.

Fort Pitt Theater Company.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The Fort Pitt Theater Company, which operates the Pitt theater, Penn avenue and Seventh street, Pittsburgh, Pa., has been incorporated. The capital stock is stated at $20,000. The incorporators are William Moore Patch, Charles E. Rooney, Jr., and William Riehel.

Alpha Theater, Atlanta, Ga.

Official Guardian at Ontario Theater

Manager Fred Guest, of Hamilton, Ontario, Has Discovered Commendable Way of Evading Law Prohibiting Unattended Children at Shows.

By W. M. Gladish, 1263 Gerrard St. E., Toronto, Ontario.

TORONTO, Ontario.—An exhibitor of Ontario has hit upon a plan by which children less than fifteen years of age can be admitted to his theater on special occasions without the parent or an adult guardian. This sounds like a clean cut contravention of the Theaters and Cinematographs Act. The guardian clause of the Act has been bridged by the exhibitor through the appointment of his assistant manager as an official guardian to all children in common when the latter brings a "note" from home.

The exhibitor who is responsible for the invention of the idea is Fred Guest, manager of the Strand and Empire theaters, Hamilton, Ontario. The assistant manager, who acts as common guardian to the broods, is E. Hopkinson. Manager Guest brought out a printed form which he distributed widely among his patrons so that the busy mother can fill out the paper and sent her offspring to the show whenever desired on certain days, namely, school holidays, and Saturday afternoons. This form reads as follows:

To the Manager of The Empire Theater,
Barton Street East, Hamilton.

I hereby appoint E. Hopkinson as guardian of my children..... while in your theater, and wish to state that they go there with my full knowledge and consent.

Parents' signature.....
Address .....
Date .....

Mr. Guest has, incidentally, secured the confidence of his clients by putting on clean picture at all times, and he caters to family patronage.

No official objection has yet been taken to the juvenile system inaugurated by this exhibitor, it is understood.

Toronto's Pretty Rialto Theater.

Toronto, Ontario.—The manner in which a time-worn store-show can be transformed into an attractive picture house has been demonstrated by Manager Cohen of Globe Securities, Limited, in the changes which have been brought about in the Hippodrome, one of the oldest theaters on Yonge street, Toronto's main thoroughfare. It was acquired by the company on a comparatively long lease, and, after a brief period of darkness, was re-opened as the Rialto. The public soon found that it was more than a change in name. Substantial new seats were installed; a new screen was constructed; two of Powers' latest model projecting machines were purchased; both the interior and exterior were redecorated, the inside now being finished in a chummy hue of red; a small but picturesque lobby was created; the floors were covered with a nice, thick, carpet; a noisy blower fan gave way to a suction draft ventilating system, which airs all parts of the house; a substantial metal canopy was placed on an otherwise flat front, and an entirely new feature is a real pipe organ which augments an orchestra of five. In addition, girl ushers have been engaged. There were no ushers of any kind before. Even the exchange managers do not know the old place now. The result has been the attraction of the best trade—and lots of it.

An item of interest in connection with the reopening of this house is that R. E. Willis, former manager of the Starland theater, Winnipeg, has been installed as the man in direct charge of the Rialto. He is booking features and short stuff on the open market.

Exhibitor Joins Overseas Battalion.

Toronto, Ont.—William Ball, manager of picture houses in Lanark and Smith's Falls, has enlisted as quartermaster sergeant in the 240th Overseas Battalion and the management of his theaters has passed to his brother, Percy Ball, who also has charge of the Balderson theater at Perth, Ontario. Two other members of the Ball family are already in active service with the Canadian army.

Interesting Local Items.

Toronto, Ontario. The Toronto film magnates recently travelled to Halifax, Nova Scotia, to lend assistance to the formation of an exhibitors' league. They were W. C. Gookin, Canadian general manager for the Greater Vitagraph, and Phil Kauffman, manager for the Famous.

M. S. Bernstein, formerly attached to exchanges in eastern Canada, has joined the road force of the Famous Players. He is covering Ontario for the present.

C. H. Coburn, assistant manager of the General Film branch at Toronto, has been promoted to the position of manager in succession to H. Law, who is now the Triangle representative in this territory.

United Photoplays, Limited, 37 Yonge street, Toronto, have secured the Ontario sales rights for the Mutt and Jeff releases. First runs of these cartoon films are being booked by the new Regent.

On account of the change in the name of an Ontario town from Berlin to Kitchener, one of the local theaters has found it necessary to alter its title from the "Berlin Theatorium" to "Kitchener Theatorium."

Another set of official British war films has reached Toronto. These depict fighting scenes at the Battle of the Somme, and consist of five reels. The control of the official pictures in Canada is held by the Famous Players.

C. and D. Finlayson, owners of the Parkview theater, Toronto, have taken over the Windsor theater, College street.

Fine New House in St. John

New Brunswick Capitalist Proposes to Build Theater to Seat 1,700 Persons.

By Frederick F. Sully, Box 1992, St. John, N. B.

ST JOHN, N. B.—A well known theatrical man of the Maritime Provinces, Fred C. Spencer, is fathering a scheme to build in St. John a new picture theater to cost at least $100,000, and promises the patrons of the screen a house which shall be a credit to the community. In conjunction with the theatre is being erected a large apartment house, the lower part of which will form the foyer of the theater, while the theater proper will be constructed in the rear.

The ground floor of the theater will measure 145 by 70 feet, and will have a capacity of 1,700 persons. Although the plans are not yet completed, Mr. Spencer informed the Maritime Representative of the Moving Picture World that he intended to embody many new features in the building, and make it unique and up to the minute in every respect. Work will begin shortly on actual construction.

Christoffers Has Fire Drill

Gets His Twenty-six Employees Out of Building in a Half Minute.

By Joseph A. McGuire, 5 Lewis Block, Buffalo, N. Y.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—A fire drill was a recent feature at the Mutual exchange, Buffalo. The writer happened to be present at the time and was impressed with the orderly way in which the twenty-six employes filed out of the building in less than half a minute.

"We never want to feel that we would cause the death of any employe on account of fire or for any other reason," said G. H. Christoffers, manager of the Mutual in this territory, who instituted the drill.

"We have complete fireproof vaults and the New York state factory inspectors have never failed to put their stamp of approval on our exchange. Our employes are enthusiastic in using every possible safeguard against fire and it is little wonder that this enthusiasm is carried into our drills."

The enforcement of the "no smoking" sign is a realty with Mr. Christoffers.

"I do not smoke, chew nor drink in or out of our exchange, but I am no molly-coddle," was his humorous remark. "As to the 'no smoking' rule it will be observed here to the very letter. A man who comes into this place, carrying either a lighted or unlighted cigar, is courteously impressed with our fire regulations and many of our visitors have had to toss their fine Havana perfectos."

New Manager at Local World Film.

Buffalo, N. Y.—J. R. Levy, who has been manager of the Buffalo branch of the World Film for several months, has been promoted to the management of the company's Minneapolis office. Mr. Levy was a member of the Buffalo Screen Club. The members all wished him good health and prosperity on his departure for the West. J. E. Kimberley is Mr. Levy's successor here. Mr. Kimberley is a Buffalo man and has many friends in and out of the film business.

The Popular to Handle Exclusive Features.

Buffalo, N. Y.—The Exclusive Features, Inc., has closed its Buffalo offices. Louis Green, former manager, is representing the Clara Kimball Young features. The Exclusive features are now being handled in Buffalo by the Popular exchange, 23 West Swan street. These include May Ward in "Where's My Father?" Beatriz Michelena in "The Unwritten Law" and "The Victory of Virtue." J. M. Sitterly of the Popular is traveling through New York. He is receiving several bookings on the feature, "The Unborn."

Star Theater Changes Hands.

Waterloo, N. Y.—Stone Bros. have taken over the Star theater, Waterloo.

Colonial's New Name and New Owners.

Endicott, N. Y.—The Colonial theater, Endicott, has changed both its name and owners. The house is now called The Ideal, owned by John A. Laue.

Phoenix Fire Took Theater.

Phoenix, N. Y.—G. A. Hickey, manager of the Triangle Film, Buffalo, has received word from Manager Woodward of the Hippodrome moving picture theater, Phoenix, N. Y., that the house was recently destroyed by fire. The entire business section of the town was also wiped out at a loss of a million dollars. The town had a poor fire-fighting apparatus, consisting of about $200 worth of equipment.

August Linde Buys Happy Hour.

Springville, N. Y.—The Happy Hour theater, Springville, has been sold by Mr. Katzman to August Linde of Mt. Jewett, Pa.

Brandon Promises Big Advertising.

Buffalo, N. Y.—B. J. Brandon, representative of the Serial department of the Mutual Film, Buffalo, has just received word from his home office regarding a very extensive newspaper advertising campaign on the new Helen Holmes' serial, "A Lass of the Lumberlands." The publicity will extend to every leading newspaper in practically every city, town or village of more than 1,000 inhabitants in the United States.

H. H. Fiems in Charge of Buffalo's Happy Hour.

Buffalo, N. Y.—H. H. Fiems has been appointed manager of the Happy Hour moving picture theater, Buffalo, succeeding Harry Somerville. Mr. Fiems was assistant at this house and was formerly at the Arcovict theater, this city. He features variety in his bill, for which he charges five cents admission.

"This is a popular rest house for shoppers," said Mr. Fiems. "Many department store and office employes also come here for the noon hour."

Buffalo Business Notes.

"We have booked our new serial, 'The Shielding Shadow,' in the Lyric theater, Buffalo, daily, except Sundays, for fifteen weeks, commencing October 2d," said James P. Morgan, manager of the Pathe exchange, Buffalo.

N. I. Flikins is outside representative for this serial, which will also be shown at the International theater, Niagara Falls, and the Avon, Rochester.

Manager Crabb of the Strand, Buffalo, is giving Pauline Frederick the title of "Frederick the Great" in connection with her film performances at that house.

J. E. Hornberger of the Strand theater, Brockport, N. Y., was a Buffalo caller. "Our house seats 500 and fall business has opened very satisfactorily," said Mr. Hornberger. "Our up-to-date features include an orchestra and two motor-driven projection machines. We play vaudeville Saturday evenings."

"Eleven to eleven" is the slogan of Manager Franklin of the Family, Buffalo. He gives eight shows daily, beginning at 11 o'clock in the morning and closing at 11 in the evening. He is featuring "War's Women," which he advertises as "making theatrical history in Buffalo."

Charles R. Rogers, manager of the Essemar Film, Buffalo, recently went to New York to obtain new releases.

Local Items.

Lockport, N. Y.—The Strand, a new moving picture theater of Lockport, N. Y., was recently opened by Manager Hornberger.

Rochester, N. Y.—Manager McCallum has opened the Avon theater, Rochester, with vaudeville and moving pictures. This house ran stock this summer.

Rochester, N. Y.—Jack Farren, manager of the Victoria theater, Rochester, recently had as an extra attraction King Baggot, who appeared in person on the program.

Elmira, N. Y.—It is reported that Director Odenkirchen of the orchestra of the Majestic theater, Elmira, has resigned to become musical director at Sol Bernstein's theater in Amsterdam. The new leader at the Majestic is Ralph D. Schwartz, formerly at the Feiber and Shea theaters, Auburn.

"As good as gold." "As white as snow." "As fine as silk." Why do other papers in this field invariably try to compare with the standard of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD? There's a reason.

IN DETROIT.

Marguerite Clark to Remain.

Detroit, Mich.—At the special request of Will M. Elliott, publicity manager in Detroit for Paramount pictures, we mention that Marguerite Clark will remain as star on the Paramount program, notwithstanding reports to the contrary.

May Build in Flint.

Flint, Mich.—Mortimer Hoffman, member of the firm of Hoffman Bros., who operate the Palace in Detroit and the Palace in Saginaw, was recently in Flint looking over the situation with the object of building a theater in that city providing he can get a suitable location.

Present Price of Big Features

Michigan Exhibitors Are Wondering Whether the Prices for Special Features Now Being Offered Will Prove Profitable—Will Make a Try Out—What the Exchanges Say of Expensive Films.

By Jacob Smith, 503 Free Press Building, Detroit, Mich.

DETROIT, MICH.—The thing right now that is having the attention of Michigan exhibitors is the special big feature releases, such as are being produced by the Mary Pickford producing company, the Clara Kimball Young corporation, and the Herbert Brennon producing company. As a result of these and other big releases, Michigan exhibitors are planning to completely rearrange their method of booking, and although they intend to play these new big releases on open booking most of them will continue to play at least four days of contract booking. The high rental being asked for these new releases and the requirement that they be run for a specific number of days—usually longer than exhibitors have been in the habit of so doing—is causing many vigorous protests by exhibitors, some of whom can't yet see their way clear of making money at the high rental.

No doubt in the course of time exhibitors will take a chance and pay the rental asked for these specials, but one thing is absolutely sure—if they fail to make money with the first specials—they will not be apt to take such chances on the future releases. Here is the exhibitor's viewpoint as given the writer, both in and outside of Detroit:

"These specials are being touted as such box-office attractions that we are signing contracts to play them even though the rentals are the highest ever known in the film business. Whether these big features make money or not at the start will determine the future of these open-booking specials. If they fail to make money, exhibitors will not be so ready to play the second and third ones. Of course, if they do make money as they are touted, exhibitors will have no hesitancy in playing all that come along.

"It must be remembered that in nearly every city there are too many picture theaters, and it is not so easy for the exhibitors to make money as some people seem to think. The business is split up too much. How many exhibitors are making more money today than they were a year ago? Very few. And yet the exchanges are constantly talking higher film rental. The big pictures will be all right providing they do make money for the exhibitor."

The Exchange Viewpoint.

Here is what an exchange man said: "The present day producers, realizing the keen competition, are all striving to turn out better pictures than ever before; they are paying more money for their stars and putting considerably more money into their productions. As a business proposition, then, why should they not be entitled to more money from the exhibitor? When bread costs more, the baker increases his prices; when the leaf tobacco goes up, the cigar manufacturer increases his price; when cloth costs more, clothing manufacturers advance, and so it goes right down the line in a commercial business. The price of all commodities is based on cost of production. The big releases that are shortly to come out are very costly, unquestionably, and the producers are right in asking the exhibitor to pay more. If within the next four or five months these big releases do not prove to be big box-office attractions for the exhibitor and make him more money than the average feature, the producers will quit spending so much on their pictures and the price will naturally be cheaper to the exhibitor."

Garson Leases the Isis.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Harry I. Garson, managing director of the Broadway-Strand, Detroit, has leased the new Isis theater in Grand Rapids, Mich., and is now making a number of important changes to that playhouse. He will conduct the Isis along the same lines as the Broadway-Strand. A new stage setting is being installed and a new Wurlitzer Hope-Jones organ. The Isis opened last spring and is a beautiful playhouse. Mr. Garson will direct the management from Detroit, although he will have a house manager for the Isis. He announces that among the attractions to appear for long engagements at the Isis are the features with Clara Kimball Young, Mme. Nazimova and Mary Garden.

W. A. Rusco Retires.

Saginaw, Mich.—W. A. Rusco, for the past ten years a prominent figure in the theatrical business of Saginaw, Mich., has retired at least for the present, having disposed of his interest in the Bijou theater. He may go south for the winter. E. C. Beatty, assistant general manager of the Butterfield chain of theaters, announces that Manager Fleischer, of the Strand theater, will be transferred to the Bijou. Joseph Friedman, manager of the Garden theater in Flint, goes to the Strand in Saginaw. He will book the pictures for the Strand and Bijou in Saginaw and the Garden in Flint.

Artcraft Local Office Opens.

Detroit, Mich.—Frank Rutledge, Michigan manager for the Artcraft Film Corporation, has opened permanent offices at 404 Peter Smith Building, Detroit. He says that applications are coming in so fast for the new Mary Pickford productions that he is not finding time to get out personally to see exhibitors. He says there is hardly a city in Michigan from which an application has not been received. Before going with the Artcraft, Mr. Rutledge was with the George Kleine Co., and was previously in vaudeville. He has been spending a great deal of the past summer at his country home at Spring Harbor, Mich.

K. E. S. E. Exchange Moves.

Detroit, Mich.—Louis Nathan, manager of the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay exchange in Detroit, has moved his offices from the Broadway Market building to 712-713 Peter Smith building, where he will conduct a complete exchange, supplying all paper and film direct from the Detroit branch. This will be a great convenience to Michigan exhibitors and will facilitate deliveries and shipments. Mr. Nathan says that the basis on which his office will operate will be "Service First to the Exhibitor." He reports many applications for service with the best houses and many fine bookings.

Stork Visits the Von der Goltz Home.

A baby girl weighing 16¾ pounds was God's gift at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Von der Goltz, 386 Pennsylvania avenue, on Monday, Sept. 18. It is said to be the largest baby on record in Detroit. Mr. Von der Goltz travels Michigan for the International Film Service and right now is concentrating on "Beatrice Fairfax."

Full House at 15 Cents Admission.

Muskegon, Mich.—Don N. Miller, manager of the Garden theater, Muskegon, Mich., has a house that seats about 550 and which is playing to capacity every night. He runs a policy of three changes weekly and charges a flat admission price of fifteen cents. Even children pay fifteen cents, as Mr. Miller contends that as long as children take up seats they should pay the full price because, after all, all any house has to sell is its seats.

Handsome Theater Promised for Memphis

Heart of the City's Theatrical District on Main Street Expects to See Soon a Picture Theater to Seat 1,800 Persons.

By J. L. Ray, 1014 Stahlman Building, Nashville, Tenn.

MEMPHIS, TENN.—According to reports around the Memphis exchanges, the city is to have a handsome new photoplay house in the near future. The house is to be located on Main street, in the heart of the theatrical district, and will be constructed along splendid lines. It is planned to provide a seating capacity of 1,800, and furnishings will cost well up into the thousands.

Eastern and northern capital is behind the project, and plans are now under way to interest local capital in the formation of a strong business organization to operate the new show house. A Chicago concern is understood to be heavily interested, and important developments are expected within a short time. It is the purpose of those interested to take over the present site of the Van Vleet Mansfield Drug Company, which will shortly move to other quarters. By that time definite plans are expected to be well under way.

Artcraft Gets Two Live Men.

Nashville, Tenn.—W. C. Brandon has been appointed by the Artcraft Pictures to the office of the southern manager, and will have charge of the distribution throughout the South of the new Mary Pickford releases. Mr. Brandon was formerly at the head of the V-L-S-E booking offices at Atlanta, and comes to Artcraft with a broad knowledge of the southern field. Mr. McTyre, formerly associated with Mr. Brandon at the V-L-S-E offices, accompanies the latter to the new company, where he will be connected with the booking department.

United Issues "Kaufman Times."

Memphis, Tenn.—The United Program Film Service has just issued No. 1, Volume 1, of the "Kaufman Times," a paper devoted to the exploitation of its releases. A sure-fire beginning is a set of genuine Bud Fisher Mutt & Jeff drawings, directly under the headings. The United is featuring the Mutt & Jeff cartoon comedies in their service, which are running so strong that extra copies have been necesary to handle the business.

Volunteer State Briefs.

Knoxville.—A new departure at the Gay theater is a short reel program for Saturdays. No features are shown on this day and the weekly change to short subjects is proving a big success.

Memphis.—The Majestic Amusement Company ran the "Melting Pot" at its magnificent new theater to capacity houses, and booked a return engagement of the feature.

Memphis.—The Pastime theater, one of the largest houses in this city, has secured exclusive Beale avenue exhibition rights to the "Yellow Menace" serial. This picture is being extensively booked at the best southern houses through the United Service.

Tennessee Topics.

Nashville.—Among the prominent lights in the southern film firmament to visit the city during State Fair week were Messrs. Oldknow, Brandon, Warner and McTyre, all well-known exchange men.

Nashville.—J. P. Masters, the Bowling Green manager of the Crescent Amusement Company, was a visitor in the city a few days ago. Bernard Gooch, another Crescent man from Hopkinsville, Ky., was also in Nashville.

Memphis.—Mike Frank, of the Rex theater, has left for a month's vacation, which he will spend at Waukesha, Wis.

Memphis.—Jack Stewart, special representative of the Triangle, New Orleans, was in Memphis several days, where he lined up a number of new circuits.

Theater Notes and Changes.

Memphis.—Mrs. A. Gerini, owner of the Queen theater, Memphis, has just sold her other house, the Beauty, to A. R. Richards. Mr. Richards also operates the Lasca theater, a suburban house. The Beauty is a Main street five-cent theater.

Union City, Tenn.—W. C. Morris, a local man, has assumed control of the Empress theater, a Hickman, Ky., house.

Brownsville, Tenn.—Y. E. Yost, who operates a theater at Pontotoc, Miss., opened a house here on October 2d.

Iuka, Miss.—The theater of T. M. Jourdan was badly damaged by fire recently, which necessitated closing the house until extensive repairs can be made.

Grenada, Miss.—A new house is being erected here, which will be opened about November 1st.

Belzoni, Miss.—Levy & Bardey have opened a new theater in this town, which will be known as the Crescent.

Merger of Two Leading Atlanta Theaters

Strand and Vaudette Now Under the Same Management—On Opposite Sides of the City—Better Programs Promised.

By A. M. Beatty, 43 Copenhill Ave., Atlanta, Ga.

ATLANTA, Ga.—Announcement was made Thursday by the directors of the formation of the Strand-Vaudette Amusement company, which in the future will own and operate two of Atlanta's leading motion picture houses, the Strand theater on Peachtree street, and the Vaudette theater on Whitehall street.

While both theaters will be conducted as separate houses, they will be under the same general management, which, with the increased resources provided by the merger, will give the public better programs in each theater. Situated on opposite sides of the city, each with its own firmly established reputation and patronage, the Strand and Vaudette, controlled by one general manager are expected to gain even greater popularity. The merger was accomplished by the sale of the assets of the Strand theater, and the assets of the Vaudette Amusement company to the corporation. A charter was applied for this week.

Ever since they were opened, the Vaudette in 1911 and the Strand about four year ago, both houses have made money. The class of pictures shown in each has never been anything but the best. The Vaudette, operated by John and Gus Evans for years, has maintained and even increased its popularity under the direction of Alpha Fowler, while the Strand for many months has been capably managed by B. Lee Smith.

Mr. Fowler will be active in charge of the affairs of the new corporation as general manager of both the Vaudette and the Strand. He is a theater manager of long experience. He states that the programs of the Strand and the Vaudette will continue to be of the first-class order of highest excellence that they have been in the past.

New Exchange Building, Atlanta, Ga., Occupied by Triangle, Pathe, Universal, Greater Vitagraph, Consolidated, General Film, Fox and a Branch of Postal Telegraph Cable Co.

Local Film Notes.

Spartanburg, S. C.—The Bijou at Spartanburg, S. C., has been remodeled, and reopened under the management of J. E. Schofield.

Atlanta, Ga.—The Atlanta photoplay club held an enthusiastic meeting Thursday evening in the assembly hall of the Ansley hotel. Many successful writers are members of the club. Besides going into the construction of photoplays the club will later make a study of the short story, and is co-operating for the market of their productions.

Columbus, Ga.—After being thoroughly remodeled and renovated, the Grand, at Columbus, Ga., reopened Thursday, September 21.

Cincinnati's Star Theater Has New Policy

Manager Tom Corby Announces Booking of Big Features and a Raise in Price of Admission to Ten Cents.

By Kenneth C. Cram, 610 First National Bank, Cincinnati, Ohio

CINCINNATI, O.—The change of policy at the Star theater, Tom Corby's popular house on Fountain Square, which has been placed in effect came as something of a surprise in picture circles, and to the public as well, but may be taken as a reliable straw showing the direction of the wind. The Star has for a long time been a leading representative of the houses which stuck to the five-cent program of diversified pictures, showing several different subjects, usually in one or two reels. Now, however, the Star has joined the ranks of the "big-time" picture houses, as it were, having secured the first run of William Fox feature releases and Metro-Drew comedies.

Beginning on Sunday, Sept. 24, therefore, the price of admission was raised to 10 cents, in line with that at other houses showing features, and will be maintained at that figure, with two programs a week. Although the Star seats only 300 persons, and is therefore rather small as compared with the larger feature houses, its splendid location on Fountain Square keeps it filled all the time, and in a day's run it will probably show to as many people as some houses with twice its capacity. So far, according to Mr. Corby, the new arrangement has worked splendidly, full houses being the rule, and his clientele seems to be much pleased with the change. "Fires of Conscience," a Fox film featuring William Farnum, was the first Star feature, followed by Emily Stevens in "The Wheels of the Law."

New "Nation" Film Hearing in Ohio.

Cincinnati, O.—The pertinacity of the local legal representatives of the owners of "The Birth of a Nation" is indicated afresh. They propose to have the Supreme Court review the decision of the censors on that picture. Under the procedure determined by the rules of the court, and the statutes applicable, an appeal direct to the Supreme Court from rulings of the board may be taken, if the Court decides that the matter is worth its attention. The motion for a review will be vigorously fought by the legal department of the state, it is understood. It will come up for hearing October 4, and the court will at that time decide whether it will go into the legality of the censors' refusal to permit the film to be exhibited in Ohio.

Exhibitors and Salacious Films.

Columbus, O.—According to President Max Stearn, of the Ohio Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, he will present to Columbus exhibitors at their next meeting a resolution condemning the various more or less unsavory films dealing with forbidden phases of sex discussion. Mr. Stearn declares that exhibitors who are endeavoring to build up a permanent business with the best class of patrons have no desire to secure temporary profits by the exhibition of salicious pictures, and that such exhibitors are much in the majority in his organization as well as most others. It is understood that Dayton, O., exhibitors have already taken action along this line and although many films characterized as highly objectionable from the standpoint have been passed by the censors, the exhibitors of the state intend to protect their patrons by their own action condemning the release of improper subjects.

Ralph Peckham to Drive Local Unicorn.

The management of the Cincinnati Unicorn Film Service office was assumed on September 4th by Ralph E. Peckham. Mr. Peckham came to Cincinnati from Pittsburg where he was located with the Unicorn in a like capacity. While a young man in years, he is one of the older school of film men in the business.

Mr. Peckham is one of the former owners of the Detroit and Toledo offices of the Universal, when they were operated under private franchises.

Mr. Peckham expects to personally [illegible] to the exhibitors of the territory to call at [illegible] in the [illegible]

Will Build Theater in Springfield.

Springfield, O.—A deal has been closed by Pittsburg interests, it is reported, by which a desirable piece of property on High street has been acquired, which will be remodeled and converted into an up-to-date moving picture house, with a seating capacity of between 700 and 800 people. Local men are also interested in the venture, which is to be pushed as rapidly as possible.

Welfare Work of National Cash Register Company in Film.

Dayton, O.—One of the most interesting subjects which will be shown in the future by the Lyman Howe Company, will be the welfare work of the National Cash Register Co. The Howe organization has been busy for several weeks, with the hearty co-operation of the company, in taking the pictures, which were shown to large crowds at the N. C. R. Country Club recently. The pictures will become a part of the Howe repertory of subjects.

Masonic Theater Gets Back Its Old Name

Louisville's House of Many Recent Changes to Be Reopened by Adrian Humphreys and Goes Back to Motion Pictures.

From Ohio Valley News Service, 1404 Starks Bldg., Louisville, Ky.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—The Strand theater, formerly the Masonic, which closed last spring as a moving picture house, will be re-opened shortly by Adrian C. Humphreys, of Louisville, a well known attorney. Mr. Humphreys will operate the house under its former name, "The Masonic," and is arranging to give his patrons some first-class service. The new Mary Miles Minter series, in six releases of five to six reels, has been booked with the theater by the local Mutual office, and it is understood that Bluebird and Kline-Edison pictures will also be shown. It has developed that Judge Allen Kinney, who leased the house for showing the Al. Fields minstrels, a few weeks ago, leased for only the one show, instead of for several weeks as reported.

To Have Its Own Electric Plant.

Winchester, Ky.—The management of the Cozy theater has placed contracts for a private lighting plant which will be installed at once. A number of the theaters in the smaller cities of the state are now installing their own power plants, claiming they get cheaper and more satisfactory service.

Phoenix Amusement Amends Charter

Lexington, Ky.—Amended articles of incorporation have been filed by the Phoenix Amusement Co., operators of the Strand theater, whereby $40,000 worth of common stock has been split so that $10,000 will be of 7 per cent. preferred. The amendment was signed by M. Switow, Louisville, as president; James H. Button, director, of Louisville; and G. D. Wilson, director, of Lexington.

Manager Agrees Not to Use Certain Films.

Georgetown, Ky.—The Better Motion Picture Committee, representing all of the leading women's clubs and other organizations of the city, recently started a campaign for better and more wholesome pictures, and put the matter before Manager A. B. Barkley, of the Georgetown Opera House, in such a way that there was nothing left for him to do, but to agree to eliminate all objectionable films in the future, and to book only the higher grade films of the very best producing companies. It was announced that one line of films would be dispensed with entirely, as objectionable, and not up to the standard set by the residents of the city.

"As good as gold." "As white as snow." "As fine as silk." Why do other papers in this field invariably try to compare with the standard of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD? There's a reason.

Louisville Personal Notes.

E. R. Anderson, manager of the new Amuzu theater, of Midway, was recently in the city calling on the film houses.

Two changes in press representatives of local theaters have been announced during the past few days. John Hoagland has relieved Stewart Cayce, of the Walnut, the latter going with the Louisville Henderson & St. Louis Railroad Co. Bob Rogers has taken over the press work at the Alamo.

Robert Brummett, of Jelico, Tenn., manager of the Palace theater of that city, has been secured by the Dixie theater, of Williamsburg, Ky., to handle the special feature plays screened by the house.

C. H. Berryman, head of the Ben Ali and the Lexington opera house, Lexington, Ky., has resigned from the Fayette County Road Commission, claiming that press of business made it impossible to continue on the commision, and denying reports of friction.

Should Minor Operators Be Left in Charge?

Paducah Exhibitors and Operators Are Arguing the Question Before the City Commissioners.

PADUCAH, KY.—The moving picture machine operators and the exhibitors of Paducah, Ky., are in a controversy before the city commissioners relative to an ordinance requiring all machine operators to be twenty-one years old. The ordinance itself was introduced through the efforts of the operators and is endorsed by John O. Keebler, the city electrical inspector. The operators assert that in other cities similar regulations are in force, and that such a regulation is a protection to the public. The managers contend that they are forced to have apprentices on duty to relieve the regular operators while the latter are at meals, and that the apprentice operators have done good and efficient service, and are capable after a few weeks' training. It is now up to the commissioners.

Autumn Fairs and Picture Shows

Kansas Exhibitors Face Problem Every Fall When Free Agricultural Fairs Come to Town—Big Topeka Fair Brings Little or No Profit to Picture Theaters—Exhibitors and the Small Town Fairs.

From Kansas City News Service, 205 Corn Belt Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—The middle west is near the close of its fall fairs, street shows, state fairs, and other similar events that draw in the people from the surrounding towns. The exhibitors are profiting more or less from the presence of so many people, in the increased patronage of their shows. This possible business is largely overrated in many instances, however. Take Topeka, Kan., for instance, where a great free fair was held, with an attendance of more than 200,000, including perhaps close to 100,000 from near and distance parts of the state. The business of the local exhibitors was nothing extraordinary. Most of them started their shows early in the morning the first day or so—and then postponed the opening till towards noon. These people had come to attend the fair, and went to the grounds in the morning, staying there in most cases until late at night. The local vaudeville and "legitimate" theaters maintained a booth in the fair grounds for the sale of reserved seats; but did not do much more than enough business to pay the extra expense.

In the smaller towns, however, the moving picture exhibitors have frequently been able to do a great deal towards boosting their permanent business, during the street and local fairs. The visitors to the fairs are from nearby territory, who could often come in to the local picture show. Nearly every visitor is a possible patron of more or less regular attendance.

Roy Sweetland, proprietor of the Sixth Street theater, Hiawatha, Kan., is one example of the exhibitor who made good use of a local street fair. He did what other local merchants and business men did—he erected a booth in the district set apart for that purpose, which he decorated with pictures of stars and advertising of his Paramount program; and he gave away souvenirs. He inoculated the visitors with the idea of visiting his show—and the results will probably be permanent.

Another example is E. N. Doyle, manager of the Park theater, Cape Girardeau, Mo. He had a booth in the fair grounds, decorated with Paramount streamers, 24's; with posters and pictures provided by the Paramount exchange. He also gave souvenirs away. Mr. Doyle pulled off the real stunt, however, when he got the directors of the fair to declare September 22 Paramount Day. This was the official designation—and he made the very best use of it.

It is apparent that many other exhibitors besides Mr. Doyle will receive benefit from his work during the fair. And because of that broader benefit, the exchange gladly co-operated, by supplying the materials for the decoration, and for novelty advertising.

An Office Boy Who Will Rise.

Kansas City, Kan.—An office boy can be a mighty useful member of an exchange organization. Kansas City has at least one of the type that keeps his wits about him and his eyes open. This is John Miley, 17 years old, with a common school education—and red-headed. Incidentally he has a good memory and a willingness to serve. John is noted in the office for being able to tell, right off the reel, the name and address of any exhibitor, the name of his theater and the size of his house. John runs the addressograph machine—but not mechanically. He has watched the names so often that he knows them all. But he has gleaned other information about these names, too. He can answer instantly such questions as "Where is Jim Jones?" or "Who's that over at Adalina?" or "What are Smith's initials, at Forsythe?"

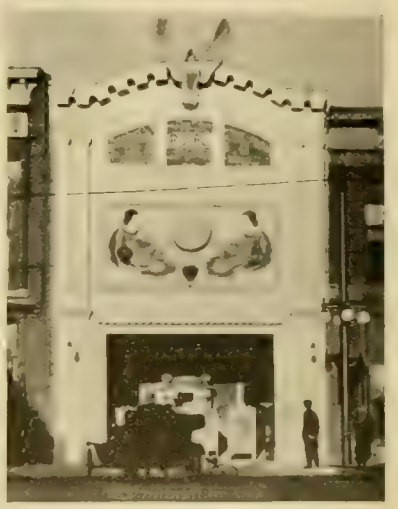
Very Fond of Good Pictures.

Marion, Kan.—One of the youngest moving picture fans in the state of Kansas is the 6-months-old baby daughter of Harry K. Rogers, proprietor of the Auditorium, Marion, Kan. Mr. Rogers is himself widely known among film men. He is giving Marion a living demonstration of the innocuous quality of the pictures he provides for his patrons. This youngster is brought to the theater nearly every night by Mrs. Rogers and takes a keen delight in the show. "And," says Mr. Rogers, "on the square, if we don't run Universal pictures she don't want to stay."

Harry Rogers' Daughter.

A Creditable Small Theater.

Hutchinson, Kan.—C. B. Yost, Hutchinson, is showing what a little hustling can do to bring profits, summer or winter, to a small house. His Royal theater seats only 500, but it is a beautiful house, one of the prettiest for its size in Kansas, with terra cotta front, tastefully decorated. Significance is given the ornament that tops the front, a bird, since Mr. Yost has booked Bluebird pictures. Mr. Yost is running at least every ten days a big picture, and he is after the states rights pictures, which he is proving to be paying propositions for him. He pays the good prices for films, charges 10 cents, sometimes 15 cents, advertises generously—and makes money. He uses novelties and special stunts of his own devising, in addition to newspaper space, and it is the attention to the special subject, with special advertising, that he believes brings the results. He is one who believes in summer shows—he has had a good business the past summer.



Royal Theater, Hutchinson, Kan.

Getting Co-Operation of Local Newspapers

Western Exhibitors Use Slides Boosting Film Column in Local Papers and Favorably Impress the Editors.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Western exhibitors have been receiving pretty good co-operation from their local newspapers, when they went about it in the right way. Many papers have been publishing moving picture pages, and most have used more or less of the publicity matter that the exhibitors or the exchanges have sent them. But the increasing cost of publishing has resulted in many publishers reducing the size of their papers—and incidentally cutting down the pages devoted to moving pictures.

The situation was becoming "nervous," and L. D. Balsly, who looks after Paramount publicity in a group of states, saw that something must be done. This thing must be to show the editors and business managers of newspapers that their interest lay in using considerable space for pictures. Mr. Balsly therefore advised exhibitors to photograph a moving picture page of a newspaper, and make a slide of it, across the face of which would be a strip urging the spectators to read that paper—and suggesting that advertising in the local paper pays.

Many of the exhibitors have done this. And it has brought about a very desirable condition of hearty co-operation on the part of the publishers. The latter feel that the exhibitor is really going out of his way to help along the paper—and the thought is impressed that the moving picture fans do actually take an interest in that moving picture page.

T. S. Morse Traveling for Midwest.

Kansas City, Mo.—T. S. Morse, formerly with the World Film exchange, has just returned from the initial trip for the Midwest Photoplay Corporation through Kansas. Mr. Morse will have charge of Kansas. "I was pleased with the results of the first canvass of the territory in the interests of Clara Kimball Young productions," said Mr. Morse.

Sam S. Schwarz is another addition to the force of the Midwest corporation as cashier. He had formerly been in the retail merchandise business in Des Moines, Iowa.

K. E. S. E. Exchange Expands.

Kansas City, Mo.—The George Kleine exchange in Kansas City is being transformed into the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay exchange, gradually. The past week, an additional room has been secured in the Ozark building, since no other quarters could be found—the Kleine exchange having a long lease on their very attractive and convenient quarters. Many extra clerks and shippers have been employed.

World Film Exchange Busy.

Kansas City, Mo.—The Clara Kimball Young reissues are going like hot cakes with Ohio maple syrup, out of the Kansas City World exchange. Practically every town in the territory evidently is going to have them as soon as they can get them, and the demand is almost swamping the office. It seems to be just what the exhibitors want.

L. O. Maas With United Film.

Kansas City, Mo.—L. O. Maas, formerly representative of the Pathe exchange of Chicago, has been employed at the United Film Service local exchange to handle the "Yellow Menace" in Kansas.

Joplin, Mo.—J. D. Wineland, Joplin, is building a new theater.

Prairie State Film News

By Frank H. Madison, 623 South Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Nebraska Notes of Interest and Theater Changes.

OMAHA, Neb.—West End Nebraska State Teachers Association, which holds here in November, will be the Nebraska Commercial Club, will ask the delegates from out of town to bring pictures telling of the beauties and resources of Omaha and Nebraska.

Tecumseh, Neb.—W. L. Bennett sold the Jewel theater to Leo and Frank Lucey.

In Iowa.

West Union, Ia.—The operating room of the Princess theater was struck by lightning. Leslie Fitzgerald, who was in the booth at the time, was shocked but not injured.

Sheldon, Ia.—B. C. Boggs has sold the Strand theater to G. W. and R. G. Slater.

Cedar Falls, Ia.—Edward Madegan, new owner and manager of the Grand theater, opened that house with "Love's Liar."

Dakota Notes.

Phillip, S. D.—The Gem theater has been opened here.

Minnewaukon, N. D.—Geo Phillips has purchased equipment, and will give shows at Minnewaukon, Church's Ferry, and Starkweather.

Kildeer, N. D.—The Publicity Film Company of Bismarck made films of scenes in Kildeer for the Commercial Club.

Milnor, N. D.—Austin Williams sold the Shubert theater to H. H. Trifford.

TO EXHIBITORS

If you are doing something new and interesting at your theatre let our correspondent know about it. It may help others and help you as well.
Helpfully yours,
THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

FILM NOTES FROM ILLINOIS.

By Frank H. Madison, 623 South Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Theater Changes.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—The Fidelity Film Corporation of Chicago has changed its name to the Ryan Brothers Garage Company, and also changed its object.

Robinson, Ill.—Construction of the new Palace theater on West Main street, which is being erected by S. L. Crebs of Carmi, has been rapid, and it was planned to open the house about the middle of October. The house has been leased to Roscoe Cochran. He has been an exhibitor at Carmi for some time. He will show nothing but pictures, using an orchestra for the musical accompaniment.

Oakland, Ill.—Mrs. Nettie Webber has sold the Grand theater to McQueen Brothers.

Monmouth, Ill.—The Pattee Opera House is now under the management of Del V. Hardin and Charles Ward.

Manistique, Mich.—E. S. Perkins and C. F. Kniseley will erect a moving picture theater on Cedar street.

WISCONSIN FILM NEWS.

Waupaca, Wis.—Slight loss was caused at the Lyric theater when hot carbon fell upon a reel of film. Smoke filled the theater, but there was no panic.

Fond du Lac, Wis.—Frank G. Raymond, of Birmingham, Ala., who has assumed the management of the Henry Boyle theater, has announced his policy. Feature films will be shown first three days of each week, and the last four days will be devoted to vaudeville. Some theatrical attractions will be booked.

West Allis, Wis.—Construction of Loebel's moving picture theater on Greenfield avenue has begun.

J. A. Cressy Interests Open Exchange

New Dallas Distributing Company for Clara Kimball Young Films—Managed by F. M. Sanford—Has Rights in Four States.

By E. E. Hoag, 507 West Jefferson, Dallas, Texas.

DALLAS, Tex.—Still another exchange [illegible] that business has been extremely dull the past few months, and almost every exchange has suffered a decrease in receipts. The new concern will be known as the J. A. Cressey Interests, and will be distributors of Clara Kimball Young and other independent productions. F. M. Sanford will be the general manager. Mr. Sanford, a native Texan, has an enviable reputation, and we predict that he will get his share of the business. When the World Film Corporation was started several years ago, Mr. Sanford was made manager of the Dallas office, and held that position continuously until the latter part of last year. He has friends by the hundreds in the trade in this territory as well as in New York and California, all of whom wish him the very best of luck in his new undertaking.

J. A. Cressey who owns the J. A. Cressey Interests, which will control four states on the Young productions and on other independent features, is a relative of Miss Clara Kimball Young. The offices will be at No. 1304-6-8-10 Southwestern Life building temporarily. L. C. McHenry, who formerly worked for Mr. Sanford with the World Film, will be one of his assistants in the new offices.

Nat Barach, a Young Manager.

Dallas, Texas.—On this page appears the likeness of Mr. Nat Barach, the genial manager of the Southern World Film Corporation of Texas. He, like many another film manager, received his training in the old Warner Features offices. Although Mr. Barach has been in the film business but three short years he holds an enviable record. Long before the dissolution and sale of the Warners offices Mr. Barach joined the World Film forces and has been with this organization practically ever since except for a short time when he was special representative for Fox. He has been with World Film in Pittsburgh, Kansas City and Cleveland, and went to Atlanta the first of this year, from whence he came to Dallas to manage the Southern World Film Corporation. Although Mr. Barach has been in our territory but a short time he has made a host of new friends. Mr. Barach is but 26 years of age, almost the youngest manager in Dallas, but his foresight and sagacious business methods are that of a man much older and with more years of experience.

Nat Barach.

New Theater for Cleburne.

Fort Worth, Texas.—Mr. Green, of Cleburne, came up Sunday to this city and at the invitation of E. H. Phillips he and the World correspondent witnessed a private showing of "Victory of Virtue," an independent production which is being handled by Dallas parties as a state rights proposition. Although this picture was released some time ago it has been shown in but few towns in Texas. Mr. Phillips and Mr. Green will both run it. The picture is good, but nothing extraordinary. Mr. Green is going to erect at an early date a large theater in Cleburne, where he has been an exhibitor for many years, and where he now runs two shows. While at Phillips' Egypt we [illegible] wanted to get some data on lenses, etc., for his new theater, and it would have done Mr. Richardson's heart good to have been with us. This operator genius has been with Phillips for many years and gets perhaps the best projection in the state. (We did not learn his name.) He has invented an automatic switch on the cone of the lamphouse that is a wonder. Mr. Green is going to use his ideas in the construction of the projecting room of his new house.

Who Is This?

Dallas, Texas.—Dame rumor has just informed us that the most popular and the most prominent exhibitor of Texas and of Dallas will become a benedict at an early date. The bride-to-be is, we understand, from one of the oldest, most prominent and wealthiest families of Dallas. As no definite date has been set that we can learn, or any formal announcement made, we do not feel at liberty to give further information, but will let our readers guess who it is.

John Rotchford, Manager of Local Artcraft.

Dallas, Texas.—John Rotchford will be the manager of the Artcraft office in Dallas. Mr. Rotchford arrived in Dallas a few days ago and offices were at once opened temporarily in one of the large office buildings. Mr. Rotchford is snowed under with applications for Pickford contracts at present and is taking care of them as fast as possible. It is understood that all the larger cities of Texas have contracted for these productions almost simultaneously with the arrival in Dallas of the Artcraft representative.

Fort Worth Strand Reopens.

Fort Worth, Texas.—The Strand theater, owned by J. D. Wheelan, destroyed by fire in July and rebuilt, opened on Saturday, September 23. The new Strand is one of the prettiest theaters in Texas and undoubtedly the prettiest in Fort Worth. Mr. Wheelan was using Paramount service exclusively in the Strand, and when the fire occurred he continued to pay for this service, although the theater was closed, which will now enable him to run three changes per week of Paramount program for several months, including three Pickford and three Clarke pictures which were released while he was closed, but which have never been run in Fort Worth. The Strand is decorated in gold, ivory and tan and Mr. Wheelan also had installed a big unit orchestra and the front has been rebuilt and a very ornate awning covers the sidewalk. Altogether it is a very "nifty" place and one "hard to beat."

Two Theaters Turn to Pictures.

Fort Worth, Texas.—Though many places are reporting picture houses changed to vaudeville or stock, two Fort Worth houses have changed to pictures. The Majestic (Interstate House), runs pictures on first half of week and vaudeville last half, and Byers opera house runs features and vaudeville, while heretofore both houses were exclusive vaudeville and road show attractions exclusively.

Fort Worth, Tex.—Pierre Levy, manager of the Hippodrome theatre, has returned from his vacation, which he spent in southern cities of Texas. He says he had a great time at the beach in Galveston. Mr. Vivian, the prominent exhibitor of Denton was a Fort Worth visitor the other day.

Denver Screen Club Has Plans

First of This Season's Weekly Luncheons Brings Out Plans for Club's Coming Social Events—Big Screen Club Ball at City Auditorium—A Dinner Dance—Pool Tournament Begins.

By E. C. Day, Denver Times, Denver, Colo.

DENVER, COL.—After a spell of inactivity due to the summer season, the Rocky Mountain Screen Club came to life again this week. The first of the weekly luncheons to be held during the winter was given at the Albany hotel and plans outlined for a series of big league affairs.

First of all a committee was named to arrange for a Big Screen Club Ball to be held in the City Auditorium. Frank Harris of Vitagraph, George Killam of the Colfax theater and Milton H. Cohn of Paramount were named on a committee to arrange for the presence at the ball of one or more of the nationally famous screen stars and it is planned to make the affair the biggest one of its kind ever held in the West.

Arangements also were made for the holding of a dinner dance for club members and their friends.

Announcement was made of the starting of a pool tournament at the club rooms in which nearly two score members, including sharps and novices, are entered.

Many Changes Among the Managers.

Denver, Col.—The opening of the Artcraft Exchange for the distribution of Mary Pickford films in the Denver district has been the signal for a deluge of new exchange managers in the city.

The ball was set a rolling when T. Y. Henry, former manager of the General in this territory was engaged to take charge of the Artcraft office. This left a vacancy in the General office which has been filled by the selection of A. E. Fair.

Both selections are popular with the trades people in the teritory. Mr. Henry had been manager of the General exchange for several months and gained many friends.

Mr. Fair has been traveling representative for the General for almost a year. Prior to this time he was an exhibitor and also operated a brokerage office for the sale of moving picture theaters.

In the World Film exchange Denham Palmer, former Western District manager and more recently local exchange manager, resigned to accept a position with the Vitagraph company. It is understood that plans for reorganization by the Vitagraph provide for the transfer of Frank Harris, present Denver manager to Omaha and the appointment of Palmer as Denver manager.

George N. Montgomery has come from the East to take charge of the World office succeeding Palmer. Mr. Montgomery has been in the exchange branch of the moving picture industry for four years. He was associated with the Mutual company for some time previous to his joining the World forces. With the latter company he has been a part of the home office organization for the greater part of the time, but at intervals has managed the Minneapolis, Cincinnati and Indianapolis exchanges. He came to Denver from Indianapolis.

C. R. Gilmour Back.

Denver, Colo.—Charles R. Gilmour, former popular manager of the World Film Exchange in Denver and who left here to take charge of the Minneapolis office for the same company returned to Denver this week to assume his new duties as traveling representative for Pathe in the Rocky mountain territory.

J. A. Hayden with General Film.

Denver, Colo.—J. A. Hayden, formerly roadman for the V-L-S-E has accepted a position as roadman for the General Film company.

Colfax Theater Sold.

Denver, Colo.—W. C. Carnahan has purchased the Colfax theater from A. B. Cann and wife. Mr. McCann's poor health compelled him to dispose of his theatrical interests.

Spokane Theater Consolidation

By S. Clark Patchin, 1811 Eleventh Ave. East, Spokane, Wash.

C. E. Stilwell Completes String of Four Picture Theaters—Will Incorporate.

SPOKANE, Wash.—A consolidation of four Spokane moving picture theaters, the Casino, the Class A, the Rex and the Unique, has been completed, and hereafter these houses will be operated by a corporation. C. E. Stilwell, proprietor of the Casino, the Class A and the Unique, will be general manager, and B. W. Copeland, proprietor of the Rex, will be assistant manager and publicity representative.

The new corporation will be capitalized at $50,000 and will assume the active management of the theaters as soon as the legal formalities can be complied with. The articles of incorporation are now on the way to Olympia.

The amalgamation is the result of negotiations that have been pending since Mr. Stilwell purchased the Class A theater from Lee Forbes. Another step was taken last week when he purchased the Casino theater from the Clemmer estate. Both the Class A, first known as the Clem, and the Casino, were established by the late John Clemmer, a pioneer in the film business in the northwest.

By the purchase of the Rex Mr. Stilwell secured the last link in his chain of picture houses. Seven years ago he took the Unique, then a nickleodeon of a primitive sort, and has made it a money-maker. The same is true of the experience of the Rex under the direction of Mr. Copeland. He purchased the interests in it of C. D. Robinson some months ago and has been full owner since that time.

In transferring the Rex to the new corporation Mr. Copeland takes stock in the new corporation and will be actively associated with Mr. Stilwell in the management.

Mr. Stilwell announces that the Casino and the Class A will show "first run" pictures only, while the "second run" pictures will be shifted to the Rex and to the Unique when they are of a character that appeals to the clientele of that theater. The bulk of the offerings will be selected from the releases of the Metro, Fox, World and the Mutual studios, Mr. Stilwell states. He is also negotiating for the new Clara Kimball Young and Mary Pickford productions.

The Casino has seating capacity of about 600, the Class A 400, the Rex 460 and the Unique 325.

The combined house staffs, which will be retained throughout with the exception of the managers, number 31 people, divided as follows: Casino, 10; Class A, 9; Rex, 6, and the Unique, 6.

"Consolidation is the order of the day in the film business as in other lines," said Mr. Stilwell. "We are incorporating for the primary purpose of cutting down the overhead cost of operation without minimizing the quality of entertainment. We have already worked out a combined saving on the four theaters of $1,500 a month by lopping off duplicated positions.

"It is our intention to put this entire saving into improved film service. There will be no cutting in that regard. We will present the best pictures available. We will limit stock to residents of Spokane. We limit individual stock subscriptions to $100."

Mr. Stilwell will make extensive improvements on all the theater properties.

The Hippodrome management has closed a deal for showing both the first and second run features being released by Pathe in Spokane, also for the Pathe News releases.

Denver Now Has an Exchange Row

Welton Street Becomes the Actual Film Center of the City—New and Old Exchange Offices Located Near-By.

DENVER, COL.—The opening of new moving picture exchanges and the moving of old establishments has within the past week given Denver a sizable exchange row on Welton street. The World, Paramount, Mutual, United, Universal and Bluebird exchanges have been located on this street for some time. Recently Unicorn rented quarters a few doors removed from the Universal and now Fox and the new Artcraft company have taken up their abodes in the same locality.

Fox moved from the Ideal building to its new and larger ground floor location at 1442 Welton street after several years spent in its original home.

Artcraft opened offices at 1440 Welton street, next door to Fox following the visit to Denver of A. S. Kain, western manager.

Not to be outdone by the other exchanges, H. H. Buckwalter of Kleine-Edison also moved up town taking quarters in the Wm. Penn hotel at 18th and California streets. This is in the same block with the Metro exchange and only one square removed from Welton street now known as Exchange Row.

With the exception of Pathe which still retains its location in the lower part of the city all the film exchanges are now up-town. The Triangle, General and Vitagraph offices are situated in a group on Champa street and complete the list of local exchanges. Of these only the Vitagraph has an upstairs office.

The centralizing of the exchanges has simplified the work of the exhibitor in these days of mixed programs and now it is possible for a theater owner to gather one day's program from two or more exchanges without being required to sacrifice his early morning rest.

Mr. Exhibitor:—You will get more helpful information by carefully reading one trade paper weekly than by skimming over three or four. The MOVING PICTURE WORLD is the one paper you need.

CALIFORNIA NEWS.

M. H. Kohn Again Visits New York.

San Francisco, Cal.—Marion H. Kohn, president of the Consolidated Film Corporation, is making another hurried trip to New York, the business being in charge of George B. Epstein during his absence. Quarters have been secured for a branch exchange at Los Angeles to be opened as soon as he returns to the Coast.

International Booking Features.

San Francisco, Cal.—The International Film Service, Inc., has booked its first two feature releases at the Tivoli theater, "Liberty," to be shown late in September, and the "Flower of Faith," early in October. The serial, "Patria" will be shown at the Imperial theater, commencing in November.

Walter G. Preddy Incorporates.

San Francisco, Cal.—Walter G. Preddey, who makes a specialty of equipment and supplies for motion picture houses, has incorporated his rapidly-growing business with a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are Walter G. Preddey, M. Davis and S. Davis, the two latter each holding one share of the ten thousand issued.

Sends Machines to Java.

San Francisco, Cal.—George V. Metcalfe recently filled an order for six Powers Cameragraphs No. 6A for shipment to Java, these being sent to a large mercantile concern, which will distribute them.

Managers to Be Censors.

Vallejo, Cal.—A meeting of the four managers of local motion picture houses was held recently, and it was decided that they would act as a board of censorship in the future, passing upon all pictures to be shown there. By co-operation in this manner it is hoped to keep up the standard of entertainments there.

San Francisco Happenings.

Robert Drady, who has been house manager for Pantages theater for some time, will become manager of the Oakland house, succeeding Harry Cornell, who has gone to Minneapolis.

Edward H. Kemp, who handles the Motiograph projection machine in this territory, has returned from a visit to the factory, coming back by way of Los Angeles, where he made a short stop.

A. W. Cowdin, formerly of the Los Angeles office of the Atlas Educational Film Company, which has been closed, arrived here recently, and is now on the road out of the local office.

Messrs. Bonslett & Peters, who recently purchased Fink's theater at Gridley, Cal., were here recently to purchase equipment and arrange for service.

The Filmusic Company has been organized as a subsidary of the Masteroll Perforating Machine Co., 717 Market street, and will cut special music rolls for the accompaniment of moving pictures.

California Briefs.

Chico, Cal.—A fire occurred recently in the operating room of the Lyric theater, destroying two reels.

Redding, Cal.—The new house of Anderson & Wood of Chico, will be opened about the middle of November.

Modesto, Cal.—A. A. Richards has sold the Modesto theater to A. A. Perard.

Dunsmuir, Cal.—The Strand theater will be opened about the first of October.

Calistoga, Cal.—A fire occurred recently in the operating room of Hubbard's theater, causing quite a loss to film and equipment.

Bray, Cal.—E. J. Wright, who recently opened a theater here, has closed it for the winter, and will erect a new house before spring, it having been demonstrated to his satisfaction that a moving picture show can be successfully given in this lumber town.

Berkeley, Cal.—Plans are being made by A. H. Moore and J. P. Dean to erect a moving picture house with a seating capacity of 2,000 on University avenue, near Shattuck.

Santa Clara, Cal.—Hoots & McDaniel have remodeled their house and have opened it again, the opening attraction having been "Poor Little Peppina," featuring Mary Pickford.

Music a Drawing Power on Coast

San Francisco Moving Picture Patrons Show Approval of Fine Music—In Some Theaters Concerts Without Film Are Giving Good Results—Big, New Organ at Turner & Dahnken Theater—Other New Organs.

By T. A. Church, 1507 North Street, Berkeley, Cal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—Fine music is becoming more and more a feature at moving picture houses, and some noteworthy installations of instruments have been made here of late, both in new houses and in old established theaters. In some of these regular concerts are being featured, during which no pictures are shown and times of the day that were formerly dull have been transformed into busy periods, so great has been the interest that has been created.

The Turner & Dahnken circuit has recently installed a magnificent pipe organ in the Tivoli theater, made by the American Photoplayer Company, and one of the largest instruments ever turned out by this concern. The instrument has three manuals and fifty-two stops, its pipes being built into each side of the proscenium arch, and in addition it has all the effects necessary for the proper presentation of moving pictures. At the opening recital, which was an invitational affair, the house was filled with music lovers and organists from several Pacific Coast cities, and took turns at the instrument. Albert Hay Malotte is the permanent organist, and his programs are winning fame for the Tivoli theater, originally erected as a home for opera. The organ is being used both alone and in conjunction with the regular Tivoli orchestra.

Other noteworthy installations of organs in local houses during the past few months have been those in the New Mission theater, the Royal theater, the St. Francis theater now nearing completion, and in the Rialto theater, each representing an investment to the owner of about twenty thousand dollars.

T & D Buying State Rights.

San Francisco, Cal.—The Turner & Dahnken circuit, with six houses within a radius of one hundred miles of San Francisco, and others in Nevada and Oregon, has entered the field as a buyer of state rights, and is ready to make tenders on any feature productions of merit. The productions secured by purchase will be used over its entire circuit, and will then be handled by regularly organized film exchanges. The Peerless Film Service will handle the productions in the territory north of Bakersfield, Cal., while D. S. Markowitz will handle them in the southern part of the state, with headquarters at Los Angeles. In several instances recently the Turner & Dahnken Circuit has paid more for the rental of certain feature productions for its six California houses than the film exchanges are said to have paid for the entire state rights, and this has led to the step that has been taken.

Portola Gets Mary Pickford Films.

San Francisco, Cal.—Arrangements have been concluded whereby the releases of the Artcraft Pictures Corporation will be shown at the Portola theater, one of the leading downtown houses of the city, and upon the completion of the new California theater, they will be shown there. Manager Roth of the Portola, is receiving many congratulations on landing these productions for his house, the bidding for these having been quite keen. Arthur S. Kane, the Western representative of the Artcraft Pictures Corporations, is to make his headquarters at San Francisco, and will shortly arrive here from a trip to Los Angeles. In speaking of the interest taken in these productions manager C. Mell Simmons says: "There is no difficulty whatever being experienced in placing the Mary Pickford pictures, as it seems that every exhibitor wants them. We are finding trouble, however, in de[illegible] just when to give them to [illegible] places, and this takes time."

Kleine Exchange a Busy Spot.

San Francisco, Cal.—The George Kleine film exchange at 288 Golden Gate avenue is the scene of great activities, between the remodeling work that is under way, and the many visits of exhibitors anxious to get in touch with the plans of the Klein-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service. Manager W. O. Edmonds recently returned from a conference of officials and district managers at Chicago, and is about as enthusiastic over the new combination and the forthcoming releases as any one could possibly be. Immediately upon his return work was commenced on remodeling the local office, but elaborate changes will not be made as it is the plan to move to larger quarters closer to Market street as soon as a suitable building is erected. R. H. Allen has been placed in charge of the booking sheet, and San Francisco business, and another road man has been selected in the person of a Mr. Hill. Mr. Edmonds has made a change in the management of the Seattle branch, this now being in charge of Carl Stern, formerly of Denver, and he states that a change in quarters will be made there shortly.

Change in Bluebird Management.

San Francisco, Cal.—Charles I. Luntz, who has been manager of the local branch of the Bluebird Photoplays, Inc. since it opened for business here, has resigned and is now filling a position on the road for the William Fox Corporation. He has been succeeded by Abe Markowitz, for many many years associated with the Universal.

Cory Steps Out of World Branch.

San Francisco, Cal.—M. E. Cory, who has been filling the position of manager of the local office of the World Film for several months, has been succeeded in this capacity by Frank Eberhard, formerly of Chicago. Mr. Cory has not announced whether he will again enter the film exchange end of the business or devote his attention to his theater interests.

New Manager for Pathe Exchange.

San Francisco, Cal.—H. E. Lotz arrived here recently from the East to take charge of the local office of the Pathe exchange, succeeding H. W. Oviatt. Before coming here he was a special representative of the General Film, and at one time was the Canadian representative of that concern. Mr. Oviatt is undecided whether he will remain with the Pathe or not, this matter having been left open pending the arrival of C. R. Seelye.

Progressive Exchange Expands.

San Francisco, Cal.—The Progressive Motion Picture Company, Pacific building, has again found it necessary to enlarge its quarters, and has taken two additional offices for the use of the stenographic department. M. H. Lewis, manager of the Los Angeles branch, was a recent visitor here to confer with district manager Herman Wobber, who returned a short time ago from a trip to the Northwest, accompanied by auditor D. K. Shanks.

All Star to Open New Office.

San Francisco, Cal.—The All Star Feature Distributors, Inc. is preparing to open a branch exchange at Denver, Colo., and manager Sol Lesser is sending John McCormick there to take charge.

Trade Body Asked to Help

Portland, Oregon, Film Men Appeal to Chamber of Commerce to Aid Them in Their Plea for Fairer Censorship—Issue Forced by One Exchange Threatening to Leave City if Fight Must Be Continued.

By Abraham Nelson, 601 Journal Bldg., Portland, Ore.

PORTLAND, ORE.—The motion picture exhibitors and exchange men of this city have again appealed to the Portland Chamber of Commerce and have asked its support in their campaign for fairer censorship and the right of appeal to the courts. Their first appeal for the Chamber's support was made about eight months ago and after numerous delays the trade body went on record as favoring censorship, an issue not before it, and following suggestions made by its secretary, then George E. Hardy, Mayor Albee construed the present ordinance so as to call the censor board an appeal board.

Although the Chamber of Commerce was purported to have made known its findings on the censorship situation in the manner above stated in a letter to the mayor written by Mr. Hardy, which letter has ever afterwards been held over the picture men by the mayor, Portland's film fraternity believed that Mr. Hardy's construction of the Chamber's findings on the question of appeals from censors' decisions was erroneous and that the Chamber of Commerce acted unwisely in spreading the statement upon its records that it favored censorship of motion pictures.

The call recently made by the film men upon the president and secretary of the Chamber was prompted by a letter received by a local film exchange from its head office intimating that if further fighting must be had with the city administration to induce it to remedy the present censorship situation by passing an ordinance providing for an appeal to the courts, the company would withdraw its exchange from the city. A committee composed of Messrs. Todd, Simonton and Sperry, representing the exchanges, first called on W. D. B. Dodson, the new secretary of the Chamber. This committee was followed by one representing the exhibitors, composed of Messrs. Myrick, Holtzclaw and Nelson, which told how the censorship burden is placed on the shoulders of the exhibitors when exchanges leave the city. The committee pointed out that Portland was a logical distributing point in the Pacific Northwest. In answer to a question by Mr. Dodson, the exhibitors' committee stated it did not have any reason to believe the communication to the local exchange from its eastern headquarters to be a bluff.

Stating the new policy of the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Dodson said, "We are making every effort to encourage new enterprises and money to Portland as well as to retain and foster the enterprises." The Oregon Motion Picture Men's Association is compiling data to submit to the Chamber. The picture business is no small item in a community.

Would Line Up Sabbatarian Legislators

Sunday Closing Faction Is Trying to Get Prospective Members of Coming State Legislature to Declare for Closed Shows.

Portland, Ore.—The Sunday closing situation has taken a new turn. It is reported that the Sunday closing faction is trying to line up Oregon's prospective legislators and that when the legislature convenes a strong effort will be made to put over a Sunday closing law that will be similar to the alleged misleading one-day-of-rest-in-seven measure which recently failed to receive a place on the ballot.

It is understood that Rev. G. L. Tufts, the instigator of the proposed Sunday legislation was sent out to Oregon from the East to agitate the question. Rev. Tufts is superintendent of the Weekly Rest Day League.

The Oregon Motion Picture Men's Association is urging exhibitors throughout the state to question the prospective legislators in each district on this important issue.

From Central Oregon.

Portland, Oregon.—C. Catlow, of the Bend theater, Bend, Oregon, was a guest at the Oregon Motion Picture Men's Association's luncheon at the Oregon hotel recently. While Mr. Catlow's theater is in the country where the real cowboys come from and he isn't bothered much with censorship troubles, he has joined the Portland men in boosting for censorship fairness.

Road Man Is Busy.

Portland, Oregon.—E. E. Goehler, road man for Pathe, recently returned from a trip through southern Oregon, northern California and the Coos Bay country. He went as far in land as Klamath Falls.

Mr. Goehler reports that the Coos Bay country has the brightest outlook for future busines in the picture game but throughout the territory covered there is a general awakening of business. He reports a rumor that a third theater will open in Grants Pass soon. George Hunt, who operates the Page theater, Medford, is making plans for a home serial, each episode to burlesque some familiar serial already released.

Finley Gets Game Pictures.

Portland, Ore.—William L. Finley, state biologist and well known throughout the country as a student of wild life, returned recently from a trip to Yellowstone Park, where he took motion pictures of wild animals at close range.

Heard on Film Row.

Eugene, Oregon.—F. A. Perin has sold the Savoy theater.

Portland, Ore.—Following a plan worked out in San Francisco, the Portland Hippodrome has lengthened its film shows and in place of showing two reels only, it will show five, Gold Roosters having been selected.

Marshfield, Ore.—The Orpheum has installed a new machine. C. H. Marsh, who conducts the theater, made a trip to Portland to arange with P. Sabo for this equipment.

Grandview, Wash.—A. V. Chudley, Lois theater, is remodelling his house and has installed a new machine.

Weiser, Idaho.—C. Matt Sears opened the Wheaton theater here recently. He made a trip to Portland to secure equipment for the house.

Portland, Ore.—Bill Mead, road man for Triangle out of Seattle, was a recent visitor on Film Row. Mr. Mead was en route to southern Oregon.

Portland, Ore.—Sol Baum, Northwest manager for Blue Birds, and G. A. Metzger, general manager for Universal in this territory, made recent trips to Seattle in the interests of their companies. Mr. Metzger motored to the Sound City.

Seattle

By S. J. Anderson, East Seattle, Wash.

De Luxe Co. Gets Big Features.

SEATTLE, Wash.—Lewis J. Selznick's new Clara Kimball Young features, and Mutual's production, "Purity," will go to Northwest exhibitors through the hands of the DeLuxe Feature Film Company, so says the manager, Mike Rosenberg, who has just returned from signing the contracts in New York. "Purity" is to be handled as a road attraction with three shows on the go, and Mr. Rosenberg tells us that the contracts are practically already closed for the Clara Kimball Young features in Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane, Portland, and Butte.

Al Rosenberg, the former's brother, is leaving shortly for a trip through Montana to look after DeLuxe interests there. The company's territory includes Washington, Oregon, Montana, and Idaho. Its list now includes, "The Ne'er Do Well," the edition of "The Spoilers," "Neptune's Daughter," Cabiria," "The Christian," etc. Mike Rosenberg handled the first states right feature brought into this territory. That was thre years ago, and the name of the picture was "Arizona," a six-reel Augustus Thomas production.

Colonial's New Policy.

Seattle, Wash.—A change in policy is announced for the Colonial theater by its manager, H. E. Smith. Beginning with the first installment of "The Shielding Shadow" and a Pathe Gold Rooster on October 4, the Colonial will show only Pathe pictures.

Pretty Gloria (Billie Burke) Over Coliseum Entrance.

Ben Ketchum in Charge of Mission.

Seattle, Wash.—Ben Ketchum, formerly manager of the Alhambra, who has been for a couple of weeks in Portland as substitute manager for Jensen & Von Herberg's Columbia theater, has just returned to Seattle to take over the managership of the Mission.

Manager Storck Off to Russia.

Seattle, Wash.—George H. Storck, manager of the Madison theater, is about to make an extended trip to Russia, with which country he carries on an importing and exporting business.

Local Metro Notes.

Seattle, Wash.—We saw some letters this week from exhibitors in this territory to the effect that Metro was the only exchange that sent them an extra show on Friday before the then expected railroad strike.

We wish to correct an error in our letter in the September 16 issue of The World. We stated that Metro pictures were used one day a week in the new Ellensburg theater, Ellensburg, Wash., while Triangle was used six days. It seems that as regards Metro we wrongly informed. Metro is not used in the Ellensburg, but appears two days a week in the Isis, in the same town, of which W. G. Spath is manager.

Ben Ketchum to Manage Orpheum.

Seattle, Wash.—Ben Ketchum, former manager of the Alhambra of this city, is just back from a two weeks visit to Portland, and is to assume the duties of manager at the Orpheum, a former vaudeville house, where stock is now playing. Mr. Berg will retain managership of the Mission.

Mary Pickford Exchange in Seattle.

Seattle, Wash.—Arthur Kane, of Artcraft, representative for the new Mary Pickford films, has just arrived in town, and is preparing to establish an exchange here. When this goes to press the location and the personel of the office staff have not yet been decided upon.

Small Town Theater Burns.

Concrete, Wash.—The Concrete theater, C. D. Stickney, owner and manager, was almost entirely destroyed by fire at 6:30 a. m., September 14. Three Pathe films, which were on the program at the time, were also burned.

Coliseum to Show "The Dark Silence."

Seattle, Wash.—The Coliseum has booked "The Dark Silence," the new Clara Kimball Young feature released on the World program, for an indefinite run, beginning Sunday afternoon, September 24.

World Film Man Covering Oregon in Automobile.

Seattle, Wash.—John W. Drum, special representative for World out of the Seattle office, has just left for Portland in a big White roadster with the Brady name much in evidence on its sides. Mr. Drum will cover the entire Portland territory by automobile.

BRITISH COLUMBIA NOTES.

Stars of the Moving Picture World.

Vancouver, B. C.—The Vancouver correspondent of the WORLD, with the cooperation of exchange and theater managers of the city, recently arranged a display of photographs of "Stars of the Moving Picture World" in the window of a leading jewelry store, and the stunt attracted a great deal of favorable attention. The pictures were displayed in silver frames taken from the stock of the store, and the accompanying window card included the cover of the Moving Picture World itself, flanked on one side by a short strip of negative, and on the other side a paper print made from the negative. Lengths of positive film were festooned about the window, and there were also small photographs of various producing companies at work, taken by the WORLD man in California.

It was not only good publicity for the store, but also for the various film companies, stars of all the organizations being included.

New Allen Theater at Moose Jaw

Well-Known Canadian Theater Owners Complete and Open a Splendid New Picture House in Saskatchewan—Premier Night a Brilliant Invitation Affair—A. J. McKelvie Will Be Manager.

By E. C. Thomas, 821 Rogers Building, Vancouver, B. C.

MOOSE JAW, Sask.—With the recent opening of the Allen theater here, another magnificent moving picture house has been added to the constantly growing number of really fine film theaters in the Canadian West.

The Allen is owned and operated by the Allen Theater Company, Ltd., a corporation with a paid-up capital of $225,000. B. Allen, of Winnipeg, is president; Jule Allen, Toronto, is vice-president, and Jay J. Allen, of Toronto, secretary. The company also owns the Rex theater in Regina and the Allen theater in Calgary, Alberta. The new house in Moose Jaw comes under the general supervision of Herbert L. Gage, who has been appointed general manager of the Allen theaters in Saskatchewan. A. J. McKelvie has been appointed local manager.

Invitations for the opening were extended to the leading people of the city, admission being by invitation card only. President B. Allen was present for the opening, representing the company. The daily papers gave large space to the story of the opening and descriptions of the new house, which is a fine example of modern theater building.

The color scheme is blue and terra cotta, blended with a soft gray tapestry effect in panels reaching from a wainscoting of large tile. Lighting is, of course, indirect.

The front of the house is outlined with a large number of electric lights, and provision has been made for the cold winters by providing lobby doors at the street entrance, which can be kept closed in cold weather, and thus allow waiting patrons to stand in comfort. The entire lobby is finished in tile and marble. Two spacious rest rooms for ladies will be constantly open, whether performances are going on or not.

The entire space under the balcony is devoted to the foyer, the last row of orchestra seats coming back as far as the line of the balcony. Thus none of the seats are located under a low ceiling. The ground floor seats are upholstered in leather, while those in the balcony are done in plush.

While present plans do not contemplate the use of the house for other than picture programs, a large stage has been included, and ample provision made for handling vaudeville or legitimate attractions, if such should be desired in the future.

Stars of the Moving Picture World, a Vancouver Window.

John M. Cooke with Dominion Exclusives

Vancouver, B. C.—Manager E. R. Fauser, of the Dominion Exclusives, Limited, distributors of Fox features in Western Canada, has installed in his new quarters in the Orpheum Theater building a recruit to the film business in John M. Cooke, for many years manager of Sullivan & Considine houses in various western cities. Mr. Cooke thinks that film favorites are harder to keep pace with than vaudeville actors.

William Hanscher Takes Over Theater.

New Westminster, B. C.—William Hanscher, who formerly conducted the Royal theater, showing pictures exclusively, has lately taken over the Opera House, and in addition to moving pictures is on some evenings using four acts of vaudeville, while at other times legitimate attractions are played. The interior of the Opera House is especially pretty, being finished entirely in Mission style. Seating capacity is 760, and on a recent evening the WORLD man found Mr. Hanscher entertaining a crowded house. The Royal is now in charge of W. Boener, formerly of Prince George.

An Exchange Organization in Calgary.

Vancouver, B. C.—H. J. Allen, manager of the Calgary office of the Famous Players, visited Vancouver recently, and when seen by the MOVING PICTURE WORLD correspondent stated that an exchange organization is about to be formed in Calgary, with a view to active co-operation among the various releasing companies.

Concerted action has already been taken by all the Calgary exchanges in regard to the growing practice of demanding film rental in advance, and this policy was put into effect on September 25. As all the local film exchanges headquarters are in Calgary, the new order affects the whole province, as well as western Saskatchewan and a few towns in eastern British Columbia which are served by the Calgary offices, and which were consequently not included in the recent enforcement of this rule by British Columbia exchanges.

Dominion Theater Turns to Films.

Winnipeg, Man.—The Dominion theater, which has for a long time been the home of the "Permanent Players" stock company, will shortly be opened as a moving picture theater, the stock organization having just been transferred to the Winnipeg theater, which was recently altered and improved in anticipation of the event.

Numerous changes will be made in the Dominion, including the installation of a large cathedral organ, and loges in the balcony circle. These seats will be sold at twenty-five cents, while general admission will be 10 and 15 cents.

The house has secured exclusive first run on all Paramount subjects for the down town district.

Laughing and Then Looking Haughty.

Vancouver, B. C.—Moving pictures of the candidates who answered Romaine Fielding's call for a second Mary Pickford for the new Pantages Moving Picture Company were taken by A. D. Kean, the "Cowboy Photographer," during Mr. Fielding's stay here, and were featured at the Pantages during the week following. The candidates were shown singly or in pairs, laughing and then looking haughty (I think).

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending October 7 and October 14

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 304, 306, 308, 310.)

General Film Company.

Current Releases.

(Serial No.)

MONDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1916.

SELIG—Converging Paths (Two parts—Drama) 21256-57
VITAGRAPH—Billy's Melodrama (Comedy) 21258
SELIG—The Selig-Tribune No. 81, 1916 (Topical) 21259
BIOGRAPH—A Tale of the Wilderness (Drama) (Biograph-Reissue No. 87) 21260

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1916.

ESSANAY—Mores to Burn (Two parts—Comedy-Dr.) 21261-62
KALEM—The Love Magnet (Comedy) 21263
BIOGRAPH—A Pueblo Legend (Two parts—Drama (Biograph-Reissue No. 88) 21264-65

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1916.

ESSANAY—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 17 (Cartoon-Comedy) 21266
—A Scenic subject on the same reel 21266
VIM FEATURE COMEDY—Their Installment Furniture (Comedy) 21267
KALEM—The Reformation of Dog Hole (No. 10 of "The Girl From 'Frisco") (Two parts—Dr.) 21268-69

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1916.

SELIG—The Selig-Tribune No. 82, 1916 (Topical) 21270
VIM—The Candy Trial (Comedy) 21271

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1916.

KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE—From the Deep (Three parts—Drama) 21272-73-74
KALEM—The Battered Bridegroom (Comedy) 21275
VITAGRAPH—The Mayor's Fall From Grace (Comedy) 21276
VIM—Watch Your Watch (Comedy) 21277

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1916.

ESSANAY—Lost Twenty-four Hours (Three parts—Comedy) 21278-79-80
KALEM—To Save the Special (No. 101 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series) (Drama) 21281
SELIG—A Mistake In Rustlers (Drama) 21282

General Film Company.

Advance Releases.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1916.

SELIG—Only a Rose (Three parts—Drama).
VITAGRAPH—The Curse of the Forest (Educational).
SELIG—The Selig-Tribune No. 83, 1916 (Topical).
BIOGRAPH—The White Rose of the Wilds (Drama) (Biograph-Reissue No. 89).

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1916.

ESSANAY—The Fable of "The Kittenish Superanns and the World Weary Snipes (Two parts—Comedy).
KALEM—A Sauer Kraut, Symphony (Comedy).
BIOGRAPH—Classmates (Three parts—Drama) (Biograph-Reissue No. 90).

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1916.

ESSANAY—Dreamy Dud (Cartoon-Comedy).
—A Scenic subject on the same reel.
VIM FEATURE COMEDY—A Persistent Wooing (Comedy).
KALEM—The Yellow Hand, No. 11 of the "Girl From Frisco" (Two parts—Drama).

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1916.

SELIG—The Selig-Tribune No. 84, 1916 (Topical).
VIM—A Precious Parcel (Comedy).

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1916.

KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE—Treading Pearls (Two parts—Drama).
KALEM—The Code Letter (No. 1 of "Grant, Police Reporter" (Drama).
VITAGRAPH—The Fasters (Comedy).
VIM—Here and There (Comedy).

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1916.

ESSANAY—Marooned (Three parts—Drama).
VITAGRAPH—The Shot That Brought Happiness (Three parts—Drama) (Broadway Star Feature).
KALEM—Hazards of Helen Railroad Series No. 102 (A Daring Chance).
SELIG—An Eventful Evening (Western-Drama).

COMPLETE AND ACCURATE LISTS of Regular Program and Feature Pictures Can Always Be Obtained from the Pages of the Moving Picture World. These are Published Two Weeks in Advance of Release Days to Enable Exhibitors to Arrange Their Coming Programs. The Stories of the Pictures in Most Cases are Published on a Like Schedule. Each Synopsis is Headed by a Cast, the Players' Names Being in Parenthesis. Lay Out Your Entertainment From the Information in the Moving Picture World and You Will Not Go Wrong.

THE BIOGRAPH program for October offers the following prominent players in one—two and three reels—for release through General Film Company.

MARY PICKFORD BLANCHE SWEET DOROTHY BERNARD
HENRY WALTHALL WILFRED LUCAS EDWIN AUGUST
LILLIAN GISH MAE MARSH MARSHALL NEILAN
LIONEL BARRYMORE ROBERT HARRON WILLIAM RUSSELL

Do you know of another program offering you an equal number of "stars" in a single month?

Think it over!!

General Film Service

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending October 14 and October 21

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 304, 306, 308, 310.)

Universal Film Mfg. Company.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1916.

	(Serial No.)
REX—The Human Gamble (Two parts—Society—Drama)	01812
IMP—No release this week.
L-KO—No release this week.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1916.

RED FEATHER—A Romance of Billy Goat Hill (Five parts—Drama)	01820
NESTOR—Almost Guilty (Comedy)	01821
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Breaking Into Society (No. 9 of "Timothy Dobbs, That's Me" (Two parts—Drama)	01832
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Liberty No. 9 "A Daughter of Mars" (Two parts—Drama)	01833

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1916.

GOLD SEAL—Cheaters (Three parts—Drama)	01822
VICTOR—No release this day.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1916.

LAEMMLE—No release this day.
L-KO—Lured But Cured (Comedy)	01823
UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY—No. 41 (Topical)	01824

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1916.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Behind Life's Stage (Two parts—Drama)	01825
BIG U—No release this day.
POWERS—The Beautiful Temples of Ceylon as Seen by Dr. Dorsey (Educational)	01826

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1916.

IMP—A Soul At Stake (Two parts—Drama)	01827
REX—No release this day.
NESTOR—Pat Rooney In "It's All Wrong" (Comedy)	01828

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1916.

BISON—Night Shadows (Two parts—Drama)	01829
LAEMMLE—No release this day.
JOKER—The Oil Smeller (Comedy)	01830

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1916.

REX—No release this day.
POWERS—When Little Lindy Sang, (Drama)	01831
—Diplomacy (Cartoon)	01831
L-KO—No release this day.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1916.

RED FEATHER—Barriers of Society (Five Parts—Drama	01838
NESTOR—His Own Nemesis (Comedy)	01839
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Fame at Last (No. 10 of Timothy Dobbs, That's Me) (Two parts Drama)	01850
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Liberty No. 10 (Title to be announced later—Two Parts—Drama)	01851
VICTOR—Room Rent and Romance (Comedy—Special Release)	01857

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1916.

GOLD SEAL—The Wrath of Cactus Moore (Three Parts—Drama)	01840

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1916.

LAEMMLE—Through Baby's Voice (Two Parts—Drama	01841
L-KO—Safety First (Comedy)	01842
UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY—Number 42 (Tropical)	01843

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1916.

IMP—The Eel (Two Parts—Drama)	01844
BIG U—No release this day
POWERS—No release this day.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1916.

IMP—No release this day.
REX—No release this day.
NESTOR—Pat's Pasting Ways (Comedy)	01845

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1916.

BISON—The Conspiracy (Two Parts—Drama)	01846
LAEMMLE—No release this day.
JOKER—Beans and Bullets (Comedy)	01847

Mutual Film Corporation.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1916.

	(Serial No.)
VOGUE—A Touch of High Life (Two parts—Comedy)	05090-91
GAUMONT—Reel Life, No. 23 (Mutual Film Magazine)	05092

MONDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1916.

MUTUAL STAR PRODUCTION—Phillip Holden-Waster (American—Five parts—Drama) (No. 142)
MUTUAL STAR PRODUCTION—Redeemed (Turner—Five parts—Drama) (No. 143)

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1916.

BEAUTY—The Last Thrust (Comedy)	05093

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1916.

MUTUAL WEEKLY—Number 93 (Topical)	05094
GAUMONT—See America First, No. 57 (Scenic)	05095
—Kartoon Komics (Cartoon—Comedy)	05095

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1916.

GAUMONT—(Three part subject—title to be announced later.)

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1916.

THANHOUSER—At the Edge of the Aqueduct (Two parts—Drama)	05099-100
CUB—Inoculating Hubby (Comedy)	05101

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1916.

CUB—Those Primitive Days (Comedy)	05102
CUB—Their College Capers (Comedy)	05103

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1916.

VOGUE—Ducking a Discord (Two parts—Com.)	05104-05
GAUMONT—Reel Life No. 24 (Mutual Film Mag.)	05106

MONDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1916.

AMERICAN—The Franchise (Two parts—Drama)	05107-08
MUTUAL STAR PRODUCTION Bluff (American—Five parts—Drama) (No. 144)

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1916.

MUTUAL—The Law of Nature (Two parts—Drama)	05109-10

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1916.

MUTUAL WEEKLY—Number 94 (Topical)	05111
GAUMONT—See America First, No. 58 (Scenic)	05112
—Kartoon Komics (Cartoon-Comedy)	05112

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1916.

GAUMONT—Looking Westward (Two parts—Dr.)	05113-14
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—The Voice of Love (American—Five parts—Dr.) (No. 145)

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1916.

CUB—He Wouldn't Tip (Comedy)	05115

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1916.

CUB—That Doggone Baby (Comedy)	05116
CUB—The Deacon's Widow (Comedy)	05117

CHRISTIE COMEDIES

Some of the Live Wires who are handling them:

Peerless Film Company
100 Goldengate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.
Branch Office: Investment Bldg., 8th and Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal.
Territory: California, Nevada, Arizona.

Zenith Feature Film Co.
Produce Exchange Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.
Branch Office. Milwaukee, Wis.
Territory: Minn., North and South Dakota and Wisconsin.

Phoenix Feature Film Exchange
Columbus Ave., Boston, Mass.
Territory: New England.

Electric Theater & Supply Co.
13th and Vine Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.
Territory: E. Pennsylvania, S. New Jersey, Washington, D. C., Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

William Sievers
Grand Central Theatre Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.
Territory of Missouri.

Nolan & Swanson Film Exchange
Curtis Street, Denver, Colo.
Territory: Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, New Mexico, Montana.

Alliance Film Co.
1905½ Commerce St., Dallas, Texas.
Territory: Texas, Arkansas & Oklahoma.

Famous Players Film Service, Ltd.
Toronto, Canada.
Territory: Toronto, Montreal, St. John, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver—Canadian territory.

Hawkins & Heaney
408 Longacre Bldg., New York City.
Territory: New York City, Greater New York and N. New Jersey.

Superior Features of Michigan
71 Griswold St., Detroit, Mich.

Remember: A NEW COMEDY EACH WEEK

EXHIBITORS—If you have not already booked these write or wire

CHRISTIE FILM COMPANY, Los Angeles, Cal.

Head Office and Studio—Sunset and Gower, Hollywood, Cal.
New York Office, 408 Longacre Bldg., F. J. HAWKINS, Representative.

Stories of the Films

General Film Company

VITAGRAPH.

BUSTING IN AND OUT OF SOCIETY. (Sept. 11).—Written and directed by Ralph Whiting.

He is thrown from a freight car, lands on a bull's horns, the bull throws him, he lands on a car fender, is bumped into the air again, and when he comes down this time, he falls on a French count who is on his way to a fashionable reception. He changes with the helpless count and dumps him into an ash barrel, then makes his way to the Brown's as the count. From the time he enters the house until the time when the real count turns up in a barrel, there is much excitement. Then follows a humorous chase in autos and after a collision he is bumped into the air and onto a coal car.

THE THORN AND THE ROSE. (Broadway Star Feature—Three Parts Sept 16) -Authors, Ralph Ince and Dwight Cleveland. Director: Mr. Robertson.

Everett Elliott, a rich and successful artist, on a visit to his country house, falls in love with and marries a beautiful country girl, whom he found trespassing in the lily garden. His friends disapprove of what they regard as a mesalliance, and Elliott and his wife take up like in the west. Here they live for three years, being blessed with a child—a boy. Elliott grows restive. Little gaucheries of which his untutored wife is guilty annoy him. He goes on a visit to New York and there becomes infatuated with Rosa, an adventuress. Abandoning his wife, he elopes with Rosa, and in Europe, travels the pace that kills. The woman tiring of him and learning that his funds are running low, resumes an old time lover. Elliott discovers her treachery and kills Rosa and her paramour. Fleeing the scene of his crime, in disguise, he returns to his old home. He finds his wife crushed and dying and as he folds her dead body in his arms the arm of the law descends upon him.

A PERFECT DAY (Sept. 18).—Author, George Ford. Director: Frank Currier.

For the tenth anniversary of their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Sweet decide to give a picnic party—a journey back and forth by trolley car and row boat to a dinner in the open country. There are five comedy climaxes, the result of mishap and confusion. At the height of each such effect a close-up of Mr. and Mrs. Sweet is shown which fades into a flash of what they planned for and thought would be.

SAND, SCAMPS AND STRATEGY. (Sept. 22).—Directed by Lawrence Semon. Author, Lawrence Semon and Graham Baker.

Percy returns with a roll in time to save the father of his sweetheart from being ousted by Casper, who holds a mortgage on the mill. Casper and his gang undertake to capture the girl and revenge themselves upon Percy. The villains tie the girl to a car of sand headed for a fiery furnace. The villain turns the wheel. Percy arrives in time and his weight thrown against the car sends it back to safety. The villain is caught on the wheel and is spun around. The car with Percy and the girl dashes past barriers and goes through a house on which some of the gang are trying to dislodge father, who has been trown from the cliff and who is hanging to a tree stump. Percy and the girl are cornered on the edge of the cliff and have to take refuge on the rope ladder stretching across the chasm. Percy succeeds in cornering the gang in the powder house and sets the surrounding grass on fire. The gang escapes to the roof, rocking the house on the edge of the cliff. The explosion sends them into the pit. Percy and his friends are reunited. As the villains struggle to extricate themselves a huge quantity of sand is sent down upon them, burying them.

"As good as gold." "As white as snow." "As fine as silk." Why do other papers in this field invariably try to compare with the standard of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD? There's a reason.

GETTING BY (Sept. 25).—Director, John Robertson. Author, Charles Ade.

Father Ray becomes disgusted with his son, Jack, who makes love to the stenographer, Mabel, instead of working. He sends Jack to a farm in Oklahoma, to be a "do'er" instead of a "wo'er." Finding the farm an arid piece of land, Jack grows resentful, sends for Mabel, and they are married. Short of funds, he writes home for more, and fleeces Dad for a deep well drill outfit to save his crops. To obtain more money he ships home several jars of fruit from his supposed orchard. Partaking of some, Dad contracts ptomaine poisoning, and visits Jack's farm to recuperate.

Stalling with Dad around the farm, Jack unknowingly points out a hickory tree for a peach producer. Having never heard of such a tree, Dad grows suspicious, but Jack assures him it is being done by grafting. Dad investigates and learns that Mabel is Jack's wife and that the fresh fruit is canned fruit. Wrathful, he denounces and disowns them, cutting Jack off with nothing but his arid farm. The drill man arrives and tells Jack that they have found no trace of water but that the place is flooded with oil. Realizing Jack's sudden wealth and independence, Dad forgives.

SHE WHO LAST LAUGHS (Sept. 29).—Authors, Lawrence Semon and C. Graham Baker. Director, Lawrence Semon.

Vera Wealthy, heiress to the Wealthy millions, comes home from college which fact is noted in the society columns. A band of kidnappers read the item and plan to capture and hold her for ransom. A nut detective reads the activities of a band of kidnappers and determines to go on their trail. Spencer Spunk, who loves Vera, goes to call on her. Before he reaches the house, however, she has a tiff with her father and in order to repay him, leaves a note that she has been kidnapped. She goes walking in the park. Spunk arrives at the house and is accused by the father. To clear himself, he determines to rescue Vera. Vera, walking in the park, is spotted by the kidnappers, who grab her. As she struggles Spunk rescues her. The nut detective arrives with cops and pursues Spunk, believing him to be the kidnapper.

Spunk takes Vera home and a fond reunion occurs. At this point the cops arrive, led by the nut. Spunk and Vera take refuge in her boudoir and when the nut comes in he chastizes her. The nut creeps along the window ledge to another window, dislodging some flowerpots on the crooks who have arrived. The crooks enter the house and throw Vera in a trunk. They go out and Vera, leaping up, throws the nut into a trunk. The crooks throw the trunk out of the window, tie it to Spunk's racing car, and dash off. Wild pursuit, during which the nut opens the trunk and tries to escape. The machine plunges off a cliff. The crooks open the trunk, expecting to find Vera. They find the nut and submit to capture.

MAKING AN IMPRESSION (Oct. 2).—Author, Anna M. Goebel. Director, Frank Currier.

The Newlyweds arrive home from their honeymoon and occupy their parents' town house while the old folks are in the country. Phillip, Phyllis, Jack and Dorothy are invited to make it a house party. Phillip proposes to Phyllis, but she does not believe he can support her. He boasts of his rich aunt and then receives a little from her, telling him that she is on her way to visit him. She wants to see whether he is capable of taking care of the money she will give him. He has been writing that he is prosperous. The bride and groom come to his rescue and plan to play the part of servants while the aunt remains overnight at the house.

The aunt arrives and is amazed at the actions of the servants. She is served a frightful meal and goes to bed while the others go out to eat. On their return they make such a noise that Auntie awakes and learns of the deception. She plans revenge. Next morning she gives them all work to do. Then she quietly leaves. The others make Phillip do all the work. Aunt sends a letter telling Phillip he is so prosperous that he does not need her financial aid. As the party is plunged into gloom she sends another note telling him to exert some of his cleverness in investing the money she encloses.

A VAMPIRE OUT OF WORK (Oct. 6).—Authors, Tom Brett and Frank Lawrence. Director, S. Rankin Drew.

Theodora Bareback, reluctant to go back to the simple life on a strenuous farm, takes a job as a waitress in a beanery, pending a revival of the vampire business with the Wolf Film Company. Willie Holmes, a son of Broken Holmes, a multi-millionaire, falls in love with Theodora, and to gain father's consent, she vamps the old man. The son catches father in the arms of his promised wife and to escape humiliation, the old duffer consents. He comes across with a mere million, and then leaves for the Orient, deciding that Scranton, Pa., is no place for a man with harem inclinations.

CANTRELL'S MADONNA (Broadway Star Feature—Three Parts—Oct. 7.)—Written by Thomas R. Mills. Author, Cecillie B. Peterson.

Peter Cantrell, an artist, goes to the mountains for his health. He meets and falls in love with Nance, the niece of the innkeeper. When he returns to New York, he promises to send for her. But the designs of Lawson, a wealthy New Yorker, abetted by her uncle, cause Nance to flee to Cantrell. They are married and live happily.

Peter develops consumption and is ordered to Arizona. There is not money enough for both to go, so it is decided that Nance shall stay in New York until her baby is born, and then, if they can earn the necessary money, she will follow him. The baby dies, and Nance's health is wrecked and her beauty gone. She can find no work and Peter's money is gone. But, feeling in her heart that Peter will never be well again, she writes cheerfully and does not tell him that their baby is dead. A well-meaning friend writes her that Peter is starving himself, and, desperate, she goes out on the streets. There, unexpectedly, she meets Lawson again, and goes home with him.

A new, strange life opens before Nance, but she lets no whisper of it reach Peter, and still writes to him of the baby and her work. During a midnight revel, Nance learns that Peter is dying. She tries to slip away, but he sees her, and determined that she shall not go until he is ready to have her do so, he writes Peter telling him the whole story, and reads the letter, mails it and locks her in her room. Toward dawn the old butler releases her.

She reaches Peter before he dies. There she comes face to face with Peter's only masterpiece—a Madonna, painted from his memory of her and his dreams of their child. And there, crouched at his feet, her hand closed over his with the grip of a terrified child, she ends her life.

BILLY'S MELODRAMA (Oct. 9).—Director, Frank Currier. Author, George Plympton.

Billy's favorite indoor sport is reading bloodcurdling thrillers. But he fails to find anything in his library sufficiently exciting to hold his interest, so he decides to write a real thriller himself. He employs a hero, a heroine and a villain. Each time he throws his hero into a trying situation and each time he has the greatest difficulty in getting him out of it. Finally Billy has his three characters up in an aeroplane and the hero is about to hurl the villain to the depths below for his many crimes. But Billy, in his writing, has become so excited that he has thrown a lighted cigarette butt on the floor and this has ignited his celluloid collar. The room is ablaze and the fire engines are outside, when Billy reaches this point in his story. When the firemen come to the rescue, Billy pleads for a few minutes to finish his stofy, but they drag him out unceremoniously and his story is never ended. Billy is next secn in a padded cell where all he can say is "They're up in the clouds and I can't get them down." The story turns out to be a dream.

THE MAYOR'S FALL FROM GRACE (Oct. 13).—The Mayor promises his wife to attend a reception at the Frisbee's house at five o'clock. In the meantime a delegation of politicians wait on him and inform him of the fact that he is to be nominated for Governor. A mild celebration follows. The Mayor is absent-minded and a little drink accentuates it.

Mr. Frisbee has been known to drink. A new footman is instructed that in case Frisbee comes home drunk to put him to bed. Mr. Frisbee goes out to learn the baseball scores and promises not to touch a drop. The Mayor calls at the reception, asks if his wife is there, and his manner is so abstracted that the footman believes him to be Frisbee under the influence. He puts the Mayor to bed.

Mrs. Frisbee goes up to look at her supposed husband. She bursts into tears and wakes up the Mayor. The Mayor's wife, seeking Mrs. Frisbee, hears her husband's voice and Frisbee arrives on the scene perfectly sober, looks through the keyhole, and discovers his wife with another man. Frisbee and the Mayor's wife burst into the room and the Mayor leaps out of the window into the arms of a cop. The lady goes to the station house to make a complaint. The woman is clubbed and dragged off. The Mayor is suspected on the bench, hears the case at once and orders the cops to bring back the woman. They drag out the footman and, not daring to arrest him. The Mayor later attends the reception.

VIM FEATURE COMEDY.

A GRAIN OF SUSPICION (Oct. 4).—Mrs Lowe (Rosemary Theby) sees a bargain in real estate and decides to surprise her hubby (Harry Myers) by purchasing it and paying for it with her own money. The real estate man calls regularly to collect his payments and upon several of these occasions he is seen by hubby who, not knowing who he is, gets jealous. He decides not to say anything about it to his wife who decides to say nothing to her husband until the lot is paid for. The continued visit of the real estate man annoys hubby and he decides to put a detective on the case. The detective gets working; he goes to the office of the real estate man and obtains a good look at him, he then decides to spy around the house. He sees the collector call for his regular instalment and notifies hubby that the mouse is in the trap. He enters the house and arrests the real estate man, much to the surprise of his wife. Hubby comes in and when he is acquainted with the facts in the case he pleads for forgiveness. Wifey forgives him.

THEIR INSTALLMENT FURNITURE. (Oct. 11).—Harry promises wifey a birthday present, but wifey is impatient and instead of waiting for it she goes to hubby's trousers while he is asleep, and helps herself to a roll of bills amounting to $200, which she supposes is her birthday gift. She places it under her pillow and then dreams hubby placed it there. After finding it she thinks her dream has come true and tells hubby he is the dearest man in the world.

Hubby goes to the office and is greeted by numerous bills. After making out checks for all of the bills he discovers that his bank account is overdrawn and when he goes to deposit the $200 he finds it missing.

In the meantime the money has become a burden to wifey and she goes to town to find someone who will relieve her of it. When hubby questions her about it she thinks he is fooling and tells him he must be hungry. Next day during the progress of the wife's birthday party when everybody seems to be enjoying themselves the collectors with the "N. G." checks come to take away the furniture. It does not take long for them to bust up the party and innocent hubby gets a little "busting up" himself.

KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE.

THE BETTER INSTINCT—(Two Parts—Oct. 6).—The cast: Lucy Manley (Jackie Saunders); Ted Gordon (Frank Mayo); Marie Higgins (Lillian West); Raymond Gordon (Daniel Gilfether). Mrs. Gordon (Madeline Woods); Lucy's Father (Richard Johnson).

Lucy, a machine girl in a sweatshop, works beside Marie, a girl whose stunted morality prompts her to take advantage of Lucy's innocence and teach her the art of income without labor. The oppression of sweatshop existence makes Lucy receptive to Marie's proposal. The two girls attend a dance where they are followed by two cadets desirous of gaining the price set by Mme. Mazie, a representative of the white slave traffic. Ted Gordon, a derelict, whose addiction to drink has made him an outcast, overhears Mme. Mazie's proposition. He follows the two girls to the dance. Impressed by Lucy's innocence, he succeeds in thwarting the scheme. Mrs. Gordon, a noted philanthropist, visits the sweatshop. In reality Mrs. Gordon has adopted slum work actuated by the hope that her lost son might be found and restored to her and his father, whose iron will drove him from home on account of his drinking.

At the sweatshop Mrs. Gordon is robbed of her purse by Marie, who induces Lucy to take the purse and escape. Mrs. Gordon discovers the theft and Marie throws suspicion onto Lucy. Lucy's escape is effected by disguise and by utilizing various fire escapes. She gets into a tenement room just in time to prevent Ted, who is in a semi-delirious state, from carrying out his self-destruction. With some of the stolen money, she brings a physician to Ted's room. The physician becomes conversant with part of Ted's history, and also the part relating to Lucy's timely entrance. Lucy overhears a plot and subsequently warns Ted's father in time to prevent his being held up by a couple of thugs. Ted's father has likewise relented, and spends his time in trying to discover the whereabouts of his son, hence his visit to the slum district.

Ted recovers sufficiently to determine (having heard the doctor's story of how the waif had saved him from self-destruction) to abstain from drink and to go West in an effort to make good and then to return home. Before this plan is carried out other incidents occur which alter his plan of leaving.

Lucy's conscience bothers her. She takes the purse back to Mr. Gordon tells her story, and is forgiven. Lucy's father has meanwhile been arrested while in act of "rolling" a victim. While Lucy and Mrs. Gordon are conversing Mr. Gordon returns and recognizes the girl who saved him from being robbed. Lucy recognizes the photograph of Ted (their lost son, as the sick man whom she had helped. She takes her parents to the sick man's room, reconciliation follows, and the next morning the home is made happy by all determining to forget the past and live only for the future. Marie has been captured and landed in jail.

FROM THE DEEP (Three Parts—Oct. 13).—The cast: Mollie Roberts (Joyce Moore); Nellie Roberts (Phyllis Grey); Joe Hardy (Thomas A. Rector); Detective Jim Henderson (Philo McCollough); Chief of Police Reynolds (Daniel Gilfether); "Big Ida" (Florence Horkheimer); "Red the Dope" (Jay Herman); "Slick the Sniffer" (Henry Stanley); Bud McGinnis (Bruce Smith.

Mollie Roberts, and her sister, Nellie, left alone in the world, are compelled to support themselves. Nellie succumbs to the wiles of Jim Henderson, a maried man, and after a baby is born he calls at the humble abode of the sisters. When he heartlessly refuses to help the unfortunate mother and her child, Mollie flies into a justifiable rage, threatens to have him arrested, and orders him from the house. He hastens to his home, tells his wife to pack up, and the two flee to a distant city where he secures a position on the police force as a detective.

Mollie does the best she can for her unfortunate sister and the baby, but the infant dies and the mother soon follows. Mollie, to get away from the scene of sorrow, reaches the city where Henderson is located. After making repeated efforts to find work she is forced to accept a position as singer in a coast resort. Here she meets Joe Hardy, who has fallen in with evil companions, "Red the Dope," and "Slick the Sniffer." There is an exchange of sympathy between Mollie and Joe, both seeming so much out of place. Mollie does not know, however, that "Red" and "Slick" have succeeded in making a dope fiend out of Joe or that the three have planned a robbery.

The burglary is attempted but a frightened servant in the house 'phones for the police. "Big Ida," one of the gang, is on watch. She scents the officers and blows a whistle, which is the signal for Joe to warn "Red" and "Slick." He gives the order but "Red" and "Slick" are caught nevertheless. Henderson, who is with the raiding party, goes after Joe, but the latter outfoots him and reaches the rendezvous of the gang. Henderson returns to police headquarters where "Red" and "Slick" are lined up. The chief of police, the arresting officers and Henderson apply the third degree to the crooks. They refuse to implicate a third party until an officer is sent after "Big Ida." She is placed in a cell. There is a policeman on one side of the door and a stenographer on the other to make it appear that she is confessing. Then a curtain is raised and she is revealed to the startled gaze of "Red" who weakens and tell what he knows despite "Slick's" efforts to stop him.

Henderson scours the underworld for Joe, stopping at numerous places to collect his graft. Entering the Midway Cafe where Mollie is singing he makes the proprietor give him his money. After his departure Joe appears and Mollie gets him a place as an entertainer. During the few weeks that follow they fall in love and Mollie influences Joe to quit taking dope. Henderson discovers Joe and places him under arrest. Mollie confronts Henderson who is dumfounded. She demands in payment of her sister's life that he liberate her lover. Henderson is on the point of doing so when the proprietor of the place, enraged because he believes the detective has tricked him, draws a revolver and kills him. Joe is apprehended and sentenced to a term in prison. Upon the day of his release Mollie meets him and the two leave for unknown parts to be married and to lead a new life.

VIM.

THE CANDY TRAIL (Oct. 12).—The cast: Plump (Babe Hardy); Runt (Billy Ruge); Village Belle (Florence McLoughlin).

Florence, the village belle and heiress, accepts the invitation of Runt, the local sport, for a ride in his new flivver, much to the heartache of Plump, her true but rustic sweetheart. Runt, by his tales of wonderful adventure to be gained in the city he himself soon plans to visit, causes Florence to yearn to be one of the myriad lights that help to make the great White Way burn so brightly. When Runt reaches the city he falls into the clutches of a lawless gang and soon becomes one of its most ardent members.

Scheming to gain [illegible] of her riches, Runt writes to Florence telling her to come to town, where he will [illegible] Poor Plump is heartbroken at the departure of his sweetheart. Premonition tells Plump that his [illegible] in danger. He leaves to [illegible] where he finds a clue to Florence's whereabouts and follows her trail to the den where she is about to fall a victim at the hands of the gang's leader. Using all of his strength Plump routs the gang and [illegible] Florence.

WATCH YOUR WATCH (Oct 13).—The cast: Prof. Fakem (Robert Burns); Jabbs (Walter Stull); Mrs. Jabbs (Melba Andrews); Miss Jabbs (Ethel Burton); Crook (Harry Naughton); Professor (Frank Hanson).

Jabbs, taking a leap at his club one evening, is made the victim of a practical joke by his fellow club mates, who relieve him of his watch. On his way home, he collides with Prof. E. Z. Mark, who, having been presented with a beutiful watch by his fellow professors, is naturally somewhat still under the influence of the happy event. Missing his watch, a minute later, Jabbs naturally suspects that the professor was none other than a clever pick pocket who had used the collision to cover up his light fingered operating. Running back Jabbs catches up with the professor and after administering a severe beating to him forces the professor to hand over his own cherished watch. Not until the following morning when he reads of the robbery of which the professor is the victim does Jabbs realize his error.

In terror that he may at any moment be arrested, Jabbs seeks several ways by which he can rid himself of the watch, which is plainly marked with the professor's name. All his schemes failing, he throws it out of the window to be found by Pokes who gives it to his sweetheart, Ethel, Jabbs' daughter who proudly displays it to her father. Jabbs employs a professional crook to rob his house. The crook forces Pokes to assist him in the robbery. They fight over possession of the watch and both are marched off to jail. Jabbs' home is demolished by the crook and Pokes.

In despair he rushes out and seeing the professor calls to him to come and get the watch, but the professor, fearing another beating, hurries away. He is followed by Jabbs. The professor seeks refuge in the police station just as the crook and Pokes are being arraigned. The crook catches sight of Jabbs and accuses him of hiring him to rob his home and the professor also accuses him of being the man who assaulted him and robbed him of his beautiful watch. The evidence being conclusive all three, Pokes, Jabbs and the crook are led away to the cells, where the crook and Pokes proceed to mete out to Jabbs dire punishment for having been the direct cause of their predicament.

KALEM.

BUMPING THE BUMPS (Sept. 26).—The cast: Ham (Lloyd V. Hamilton); Bud (Bud Duncan); the girl (Ethel Teare); her father (A. Edmondson).

Ham and Bud are jealous rivals for the hand of the fair Ethel. Bud is the favored one and Ham leaves vowing revenge. He notices how clients are flocking to Prof. Fakem, the phrenologist, and evolves a scheme which finds the professor floundering about at the bottom of a well while Ham dons the flowing robes and rakes in the coin of the credulous. Ethel's father, the sheriff, is a student of phrenology, and when Bud asks for his consent to a wedding the reply is, "You'll have to have your bumps O. K.'d by Prof. Fakem." This gives Ham his chance and the manner in which he takes advantage of it furnishes the laughs that complete this comedy.

A BATTLE IN THE DARK (Episode No. 8 of "The Girl from Frisco"—Two Parts—Sept. 27). The cast: Barbara Brent (Marin Sais); John Wallace (True Boardman); Ace Brent (Frank Jonasson); Madah Singh (Ronald Bradbury); Gungha (Edward Clisbee); Madge Merrilies (Josephine West); her father (Karl Formes, Jr.); the prisoner (Gypsy Santoris).

Ranchman Merrilies has fallen into the power of Madah Singh, a Hindu mystic. The Madah has induced him to discharge his ranch hands, replacing them with Hindu "ragheads" and is fast bleeding him of his wealth. Madge Merrilies appeals to her friend, Barbara Brent, to aid her. Barbara becomes a guest at the Merrilies home, while her father pays a visit to Congressman Wallace, owner of the adjoining ranch, who has engaged the discharged hands.

Barbara learns that the Madah is keeping a Hindu girl prisoner in the attic of the Merrilies home and when she investigates finds that the girl is used as "the spirit maiden" to force large sums of money from Merrilies. Gungha, in love with the prisoner, plots to usurp Madah's position as leader of the Hindus. Barbara invades the attic at midnight and finds the chest in which the Hindu has stored the money forced from the ranchman. She takes the prisoner and the money to her room, but Madah, who was preparing for flight with his ill-gotten gains, overhears Barbara and Madge and bursts into the room. Madge escapes and succeeds in phoning to Wallace and Brent for help, while Barbara struggles with Madah for the possession of the chest.

Meanwhile Gungha has decided that the hour is ready for him to strike and sets out for the house after telling his followers to attack if he does not return in fifteen minutes. Madah is overpowering Barbara when Gungha enters by the window and the mystic turns to confront this new opponent. In the struggle that follows a lamp is flung across the room and in a minute it is in flames. Madah escapes, and jumps into his waiting auto with the prisoner and the money chest. Gungha manages to climb on the rear of the auto as it starts, while Barbara mounts her horse and sets out after the Hindus.

Gungha's followers, fearing for the safety of their leader after the expiration of the time limit, start to attack the house and Wallace and Brent arrive just in time to aid Merrilies and Madge in their defense of a burning fortress.

RIVAL ARTISTS (Sept. 29).—The cast: Daisy (Ivy Close); Jack (Arthur Albertson); Demetrius Daub (Henry Murdoch); Mr. Grouch (Robert Ellis); Chloe (William McKey). Author, Frank Howard Clark. Director, Robert Ellis.

Papa Grouch frowns on Jack's suit, so Daisy and Jack plan to elope. Jack, who is an artist, is working strenuously to win a $10,000 prize offered by an art society. Demetrius Daub, who is also an artist—but his specialty is house-painting—hears of the prize offered and decides that "painting is painting," so he tries for the prize. All he succeeds in doing is getting entangled in the elopement of Jack and Daisy so that this event seems endangered for a time, but after a whirl of breath-taking incidents, all ends happily.

THE DEATH SWING (No. 99 of "The Hazards of Helen" (Sept. 30).—Helen, day operator at Lone Point (Helen Gibson); Dick Benton, night operator (P. S. Pembroke); his father (G. A. Williams); Stallings (George Routh). Director, James Davis.

Stallings' plot to spoil the demonstration of Dick Benton's newly invented safety stop for trains seems certain of success when the locomotive is sent running wild down the tracks. Helen saves the day by climbing out on a wire stretching across the tracks and dropping to the speeding engine. The shock of landing momentarily dazes her but it is only a matter of a few seconds before she has brought the train to a stop.

ONE STEP TOO FAR (Oct. 3). The cast: Ham (Lloyd V. Hamilton); Bud (Bud Duncan); Adventurous Agnes (Ethel Teare).

Ham and Bud find themselves in the clutches of the law, but Ham's sturdy physique causes the police captain to offer him his freedom if he will become a policeman. Ham accepts, while Bud, saddened by his rejection, joins forces with Adventurous Agnes, who is a clever crook. As a minion of the law Ham is a scream. For a time the life of ease—with plenty of soft pickings—agrees with him but he goes "one step too far" after arresting Agnes and Bud and when the grand exposure comes Ham is found seated with his prisoners in a two-by-four cell.

THE WEB OF GUILT (Episode No. 9, of "The Girl from Frisco"—Two Parts—Oct. 4).—The cast: Barbara Brent (Marin Sais); John Wallace (True Boardman); Ace Brent (Frank Jonasson); Terry, the foreman (Edward Clisbee); Fannie, a dance hall girl (Josephine West); Siwash (Steve Murphy); Tom Risling (Ronald Bradbury); Wung (Phillipie). Director, James W Horne.

Risling, proprietor of Santa Cora's general store, through jealousy over Fanny, a dance hall girl, plots to do away with Terry, foreman of the Brent ranch. By use of a rope he places a shotgun in Terry's shack so that it will kill him when he enters the door. But fate rules that Wung, Brent's Chinese servant, shall be his victim. Barbara and Wallace quickly decide that the shot was meant for Terry. Siwash, a roystering ranch hand, is arrested because of a drunken threat made to Terry the night before. But Barbara is convinced of his innocence and asks for time to solve the mystery. How she does so, following the slender clue given by a peculiar strand in the weave of the rope used by the assassin, furnishes a mystery story.

STOLEN PLUMAGE (Oct. 6).—The cast: Sylvia (Ivy Close); Alex (Henry Albertson); Babzebe (Henry Murdoch); his favorite wife (Mary Taylor-Rossi); Mr. Fairfax (William McKey). Author, Louis B. Gardner. Director, Robert Ellis.

Though Babzebe has the choicest harem in all the East life is dull, for he has grown tired of the things that surround him and seeks something new. So the Wise Men offer a huge reward to the person who will make Babzebe laugh and smile once more. Algy, touring de luxe, strives to win the prize but when he asks "Why does a chicken cross the road/" Babzebe orders "Off with his head." Algy begs for five minutes' grace and as he wanders about the palace grounds the sight of the Sacred Dumdikky Bird suggests a scheme to him. He overpowers the guards and steals a feather from the fowl.

This time he appears before Babzebe in silence, but he tickles the royal ribs with the precious feather and soon Babzebe is rolling about the floor laughing as he never laughed before. Algy seizes the opportune moment to make his escape. But Babezebe swears to recover the sacred feather and he follows to America. In that far-off land Sylvia listens enthralled to Algy's tales of his mighty prowess and reckless daring in the East. Suddenly Babzebe appears on the scene—and then things happen with machine gun rapidity.

THE BLOCKED TRACK (No 100 of "The Hazards of Helen"—Oct. 7).—The cast: Operator at Lone Point (Helen Gibson); Superintendent Melvin (P. S. Pembroke); butler, ex-telegrapher (G. A. Williams); Strang, an ex-convict (George Routh). Author, E. W. Matlack. Director, James Davis.

On a visit to the State Prison with Superintendent Melvin of the construction camp near Lone Point, Helen gains the friendship of Butler, a former telegrapher who had been wrongfully convicted on circumstantial evidence. Butler is soon to be released and Helen promises to aid him. She does so by securing a position for him as telegraph operator at the construction camp. Here Strang, an ex-convict, recognizes Butler, and attempts to force him to aid his plan to rob the pay car. The action works up to a thrilling climax which finds Helen, pursued by Strang, climbing to the topmost branch of a tree overhanging the railroad tracks, from which she swings through the air and lands on the pay car. Her warning is none to soon.

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

BIG U.

THE HALTING HAND (Special Release—Sept. 25).—Albert and Jim Glendenning, two brothers, are in love with Gertrude Grayson and this is the cause of the first disagreement that the two brothers have ever had. At last, when his brother goes away on a trip, Albert tells the girl that he is dead and so gets her to marry him.

Years later the other brother returns and when he finds what has occurred he persuades Gertrude to elope with him. But at the crossroads they are misled by a sign post and come to a desert instead of the town that they hoped to reach. While proceeding along a cliff Jim slips and falls into the marsh below. When Gertrude reaches him only his hand is to be seen. She takes the hand to try to get him out but the hand closes on hers and she is held prisoner.

Several days later Albert finds the two of them there, the woman still held in the vise-like grip of the hand protruding from the marsh.

THE WHITE MAN'S LAW (Special Release—Oct. 2).—Sergeant Bob Monroe is in love with the Colonel's daughter out on a post in the West. He has a rival in Lieutenant Embree. The lieutenant wrongfully accuses him of assault and he is committed to the guard house pending trial. Florence, his sweetheart, aids him to escape and he goes to an Indian camp to get a horse.

At the camp of the Indians he finds that they are going on the warpath because one of the religious rites has been forbidden. They attack the fort and many of the soldiers are killed, among them Embree. But before dying he confesses that Bob is innocent of his offense. Bob masquerades as the dead chief of the Indians and succeeds in scaring them away. He is given a commission and the hand of the colonel's daughter as a reward.

VICTOR.

THE MEMORY MILL (Special Release—Oct. 2).—The cast: Jane Wright (Grace Lewis); John Todd (William Shea); Chief of Press Gang (William Welsh); Mrs. Wright (Miss Haldiman); Captain Fouche (Tom Moore).

John is in love with Jane Wright, to whom he has been betrothed since they were children. Then one day John is forced to serve as a seaman on a man-o-war. Jane is heartbroken over her lover's departure, and takes passage to France in the hope of finding him. The ship is attacked by the French and Jane is rescued by a French officer who takes her to his home. Later John finds her but she does not know him, as she has lost her memory in the fight. Then he takes her back to the scenes of her youth and the sight of them bring back her memory and all end happily.

NESTOR.

ALMOST GUILTY. (Oct. 9.) The cast: Going To Be Married (Eddie Lyons); His Best Man (Lee Moran); The Bride-Elect (Priscilla Dean). Written by Walter Newman. Produced by Louis Chaudet.

The night before the wedding, Eddie and his pal, Lee Moran, indulge in wine too freely and are hardly able to get to Eddie's apartments. On their way home they get in an argument with the Italian fruit vender. While they are talking, a sneak thief tries to rob the cash register. In the fight that followed Lee and Eddie knock the crook out. A policeman finds their watch, pocketbook and other things they have dropped. The next morning they awaken to find the room in disorder. They read the headlines in the paper saying that murder has been committed the night before and they jump to the conclusion that they have committed murder.

The policeman calls with their belongings and they think he is after them so deny the ownership. Lee and Eddie at last end up at the police station and decide to give themselves up. They show the Judge the paper and confess to the murder. The judge finds that the paper is about a year old and gives them the laugh. About this time Miss Dean and the others rush in and find Eddie well and happy. It is decided to have the judge perform the ceremony and all ends well.

IT'S ALL WRONG. (Oct. 13). The cast: Pat ("Pat" Rooney); Grace's Father's Choice (Ed. Sedgwick); Grace (Yvette Mitchell); Minister (Jean Hershott). Written by Ben Cohn. Produced by Roy Clements.

Pat is in love with Grace, and taxes his ingenuity to have a free rein to woo the girl.

Father's choice is a wealthy man, and under his vigorous supervision, the engagement of the girl and father's choice is announced. The day is set for the wedding, and Pat is in distress, but resolves "never to say die." On the wedding day Pat takes the preacher's car, and, securing another preacher, sends him to the house, intending to manage things in such a manner that the new preacher will marry himself and the girl, instead of the expected groom.

He tells the girl of his plans, and she is enthusiastic. They have a hard time getting the man, the preacher and the girl together, but at last it was accomplished and Pat is about to be married when father arrives. Pat "beats" it with the girl and the minister. The chase extends in and out of the house, and every time he gets a little ahead of his pursuers, Pat stops and has the preacher read a line or two of the ceremony. Just as they are about to be caught the ceremony is over and the father is powerless to undo the match.

BISON.

NIGHT SHADOWS. (Two Parts—Oct. 14). The cast: "Alf Gordon (Alfred Gordon); Ed. Carey (Edward Carey); Ernie, the man (Ernest Murray); Alice, the girl (Alice Nelson).

Alf and Ed live alone in a little cabin in the woods. Neither has ever inquired into the past of the other. One night they are sitting at the fireplace as they hear a shot and a cry for help from the mountain. They both rush out and go in different directions in search of the person who called. Alf finds an unconscious girl with her clothes torn to shreds and picks her up and takes her up to the cabin. There she revives and tells him her tale of woe. It seems that she was happily married when a man contrived to separate her from her husband by falsely compromising her. And then when her husband had left her, the brute had hounded her until just then out on the mountain she had hollered for help.

In the meanwhile Ed had gone in a different way and met the man whom he considered as his bitterest enemy. It was the man who had broken up his happy home some years before. A terrific struggle ensued and at last Ed was victorious. He was exhausted, however, and slowly crawled to the shack. The man whom he had conquered also crawled towards the shack. When Alf and the girl hear the men approaching they put out the light and prepare to kill the first man that enters. The man who turns the knob is Ed, and Alf fires. But the shot goes wild and instead of hitting Ed, it goes past and kills Ernie just as he was on the point of shooting through the window at Alice and Alf. Of course explanations follow and the two lovers are reunited after all the years of misunderstanding.

IMP.

A SOUL AT STAKE. (Two Parts—Oct. 13). The cast: Murphy (Wm. Garwood); Purser (Al Barzan); Clementina Fairlie (Lois Wilson); The Eurasian (Edward Brady); Yuan Woo (Andrew Arbuckle). Scenario by Calder Johnstone. Produced by Wm. Garwood.

Murphy, a gambler by profession, is on a ship bound to the Orient. He is following his means of livelihood until the purser prohibits him from playing cards. Murphy notices a demure little girl and learns that she is Clementina Fairlie, a missionary bound for a post in China. He saves her from embarrassment when an Eurasian who is also a passenger persist in paying her attention. Their friendship ripens and before the ship docks, Murphy promises to look her up at the post.

Clementina leaves for her post and soon after Murphy, rather worried about her, consults with one of the newspaper reporters, and finds that another girl who had come to the same post had been reported missing. Murphy immediately leaves for the post and finds that Clementina had just the day before left for the house of the Governor. Yuan Woo Murphy calls upon the Governor, whom he knows, and Yuan Woo tells him of the pretty white girls which he has visiting him and brings in Clementina who begs Murphy to save her.

Yuan and Murphy decide to play cards for her, the winner to have possession. At first Murphy loses and the Chinaman, thinking he has the best of the situation and wishing to perturb Murphy, orders her feet to be bared and her ankles manacled. But Murphy wins and leaves with the girl but before he reaches the outer gate he is attacked. He manages to escape with the girl and the next steamer finds the two bound for America, and the big-hearted Irishman has become not only a husband but a convert.

REX.

THE SLAVE (Special Release, Oct. 2).—In the family of Colonel James there is born a little girl and at the same time a daughter is born to a couple of octoroon slaves on the plantation. The Colonel leaves on a trip to Europe and leaves the care of the child to the slaves, as his wife is blind. The slaves change the two girls so that the slave grows up as the lady.

In after years the fiance of the colonel's daughter, Bob Warren, sees the slave girl and falls in love with her. His sweetheart gets jealous and sells the slave to a dealer. This makes the old woman who first changed the children repent and she confesses. Young Warren goes after the dealer and brings back the slave girl, now the lady of the house, to be his bride and the real slave is so angry that she kills both herself and her mother.

THE HUMAN GAMBLE. (Two Parts—Oct. 5). The cast: Flavia (Dorothy Davenport); Charles (Emory Johnson); Frank (Richard Morris); John Hill (Alfred Allen). Written by Calder Johnstone. Produced by L. B. Carleton.

Flavia Hill is the daughter of John Hill, a wealthy stock broker. He is opposed to all forms of gambling. Charles Hill, his son plays cards and is ordered out of the house. Flavia overhears the tirade against her brother and declares that if Charles is disowned she will leave home with him. So the brother and sister take a flat and begin life together. She secures work as a stenographer, while Charles gets a position as clerk with Garner & Co., a stock brokerage firm.

She rises rapidly in the favor of Frank Garner and soon becomes his private secretary. A swift courtship ensues and she marries him. Later her husband falls ill and she carries on the business. John Hill, through secret agents, has been trying to corner the copper market. He learns that Garner & Co. are his greatest rivals. A bitter financial war ensues in which Hill becomes deeply involved. There is but one way out—for him to appeal to Garner & Co. for assistance. He calls upon the firm and is shown into the private office, meeting his own daughter. She refuses him aid and he leaves crestfallen and angry.

Flavia realizes that it will mean his financial ruin and his physical breakdown. She is torn between her duty as wife and her duty as daughter. The latter wins and she makes out a check for the amount her father has asked. John Hill has meantime returned to his office, completely broken down and resolved to commit suicide. He takes a revolver from his desk drawer and puts it at his temple. Flavia has rushed to his office and is waiting in the outer office. As he pulls the trigger there is a rap at the door and his hand slips as he turns his head. The bullet misses its mark. Flavia hears the report and rushes into the room just in time to prevent a second shot being fired. She gives her father the check. John Hill figures his profits and hurries back to Flavia with the check for the amount she loaned him with a large profit added. Flavia takes her father to her home, introduces the old man to her husband and there is a happy reconciliation between father, son and daughter.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

LIBERTY NO. 8, CLIPPED WINGS. (Two parts—Oct 2). The cast: Liberty Horton (Marie Walcamp); Theresa (Maud Emory); Pancho Lopez (G. Raymond Nye), Pedro (Edilie Polo), Capt. Bob Rutledge (Jack Holt); Major Winston (Neal Hart); Manuel Leon (Bertram Grassby); Jose Leon (L. M. Wells). Written and produced by Jacques Jaccard.

The last episode closed just as Bob and Pedro were starting out to Liberty's rescue. They travel for some distance over the desert in the direction of the arrow that Liberty left as a guide. At last they come into the vicinity of the camp of the rebels and two men dismount to reconnoitre.

In the meanwhile Lopez is showing Manuel the hidden store of arms. Bob is about to take a shot at the whole outfit just for good luck, when the whole thing is blown up by a shot fired from the other side. It seems that Liberty also sees what is going on and with the rifle that she has stolen from her guard, shoots the powder boxes and so causes the explosion. Lopez and Manuel are seriously hurt and are carried into a nearby. Bob and Pedro do not know what to make of the affair.

Just after the explosion they see the Mexicans going along a ridge in the direction of their horses and know that if they continue they will surely be discovered. They are at last seen and run for their lives. Pedro succeeds in making his escape but Bob is captured. Pedro meets the rangers, who have refused to obey the orders to withdraw and leave their Captain in the desert with a number of Greasers.

In the meantime Bob is being handled roughly by the Mexicans. Lopez and Manuel are glad at the opportunity that is offered to settle old scores and they announce that Bob is to be shot in front of Liberty. But Liberty still has the rifle that she has stolen and as the firing squad lines up to kill the man she loves, she covers Lopez with the gun and says that the order to fire spells his death warrant. Pedro knows that the plucky girl means business and does not dare to proceed with the execution. Then Bob goes over to the shack where Liberty is holding the gun through the window and she unties his bonds.

TIMOTHY DOBBS, THAT'S ME (Episode No. 9, "Breaking Into Society." Two Parts—Oct. 9). The cast: Timothy (Carter De Haven); Jeff (Robert Milash); Landlady (Margaret Whistler). Produced by Wallace Berry.

Timothy and Jeff are back once more in the hall bedroom and are as usual—broke.

The landlady has an admirer, Ike, a dealer in clothes, whose shop is just beneath her rooming house. After delivering the untimatum that Timothy and Jeff must leave within fifteen minutes or pay the rent, she goes downstairs to see Ike and finally talks him into taking her to the big movie ball which is to be given in honor of the great film star.

Timothy gets an idea. With the aid of the bed sheet torn into strips and added end to end, he hauls up two of the dressed dummies which Ike is displaying, removes the clothes and when the landlady returns gives her these for the rent. But, meanwhile, Ike has discovered his loss, called in the aid of the police, and when the landlady tries to sell him the clothes he recognizes them as his own. Timothy and Jeff escape via the fire escape.

They obtain positions as waiter and dishwasher but Timothy breaks so many dishes that the proprietor imposes a fine amounting to three weeks' salary—then Timothy thinks it is time for his departure and so leaves unceremoniously. He then decides to work his nerve; he calls at the best hotel, puts up a story of an auto accident and is given the best room in the house. In one of the drawers he discovers some makeup with a book of instructions and proceeds to get busy. When the negro porter arrives, he thinks that Carter has the small pox which so alarms the proprietor that he shoves a role of money under his door asking him to leave immediately.

Although much surprised Timothy pockets the money, proceeds to get "dolled" and attends the movie ball as the guest of honor, having learned that worthy has been detained. He makes a speech and is quite in his element, when he notices Ike, the landlady, and the restaurant proprietor—and they have noticed him also. Again, Timothy feels the need of a hasty departure and as per usual ends up at a moving picture studio where he presents himself as the star in whose honor the ball was given. And he is getting away with it, too, until the irate star queers the whole thing for him by appearing himself.

BEHIND LIFE'S STAGE (Two Parts—Oct. 12). The cast: Nanette (Flora Parker De Haven); Little Sister (Virginia Corbin); Dan Dolan (Charlie Cummings); Milliner (witch) (Margaret Whistler); Proprietor (black prince) (William Welch).

Nanette has a difficult time endeavoring to provide a livelihood for herself and small sister, and the ogre of her existence is the sour faced landlady. Answering an advertisement for an errand girl in a millinery shop, Nanette is at first refused the position by the milliner, but before he leaves the shop the proprietor, who has seen the pretty little girl, stops her and gives her the position.

In spite of the fact that Nanette promises the payment of her rent, the landlady turns the two into the street. Nanette is frightened yet she bravely leaves the small sister in the park while she goes to resume her duties, promising to return as soon as possible. That evening she decides that the two will sleep in the store, and sneaks the small sister into the store after closing time.

That night Nanette has a dream, in which the milliner plays the part of a witch and the proprietor, the Black Prince, both bent on her destruction. Eventually they seize Nanette and hold her little sister and put them into a boiling caldron. So great is her fear that she awakens and finds herself looking into the muzzle of a gun held by a burglar who has entered the store.

Dan, a policeman, who has long wished to become Nanette's guardian for life, captures the burglar but is greatly surprised to see Nanette and her small sister. And so great is Nanette's joy at being delivered from the menaces of her dream that she suddenly throws her arms around the astonished Dan, and then realizing what she had done, she takes her sister and quickly leaves the shop; but Dan follows closely and later has the pleasure of recuing her from a high board fence upon which her dress is caught. She promises to allow him to care for her the rest of her lift.

JOKER.

THE OIL SMELLER. (Oct. 14). The cast: Lord Helpus (Ernie Shields); Chief Coco Cola (O. C. Jackson); Doe Eyes (Yvette Mitchell); Catch-Up Brave (Albert MacQuarrie). Written by Chas. J. Wilson, Jr. Produced by P. C. Hartigan.

Lord Helpus goes prospecting for oil in the West, and meets a modern Indian maid who has quarreled with her lover because he will not buy her a roadster. Lord Helpus falls in love with the girl, Doe Eyes, and has a fight with her lover, Catch-up Brave, who swears to be revenged. He follows Helpus who with the aid of the dog, strikes what he thinks is an oil well.

The lover sends a wireless back to the Indian encampment and the band start on the warpath after Helpus, riding in the Chief's new Ford. Helpus sends the dog back with a note to the town telling of his discovery.

Helpus escapes with the aid of Doe Eyes and comes upon the townsmen who start off to rescue Doe Eyes. Being tied on to the back of the machine with a hawser, Doe Eyes has chewed her way to freedom and is found by Helpus. They all start off to a new oil well, which is found to be a pipeline which Helpus has punctured with his pickaxe. Doe eyes deserts Helpus and returns to her tribe, while Helpus alone in the desert, consults his guide book and finds there is nothing left for him to do but die.

L-KO.

LURED BUT CURED. Two Parts—Oct. 11). The cast: A Criminal (Dan Russell); His Partner (Chas. Insless); Miss Peabody (Gertrude Selby).

Alice arrives in town on a freight car and then her troubles begin. She takes a cab but the driver has had a bit too much and it is not long before he loses control of the cab and the vehicle goes careening up the road. It is wrecked and the outcome of the whole affair is that Alice is stranded. But in the meantime she has witnessed a murder and rushes to the police station to tell the authorities about it. She claims that she is a detective. The authorities decide to take a chance and give Alive a badge of power.

It is not long before Alice gets on the trail of the crooks and they begin to see that the town is not a safe resting place for their carcasses. So they leave, but not before Alice sees them in the act. They know that she is the only eye witness of their deed of crime and so they decide that the only way out for them is to dispose of Alice. Accordingly they attack the poor girl, as soon as she gets outside the city limits and Alice takes refuge in a deserted shack.

But the crooks find her in this refuge and decide that she must be killed. They toss a coin to decide which one should do the dirty work. Alice says that she did not see the crime but this does not stop these villains. They go for her and she leads them a merry chase all around the hut. But at last she is cornered and is about to be killed when her dog comes with the aid that she has sent him for. So all ends happily as Alice gets the reward that was offered for the capture of the criminal.

POWERS.

THE BEAUTIFUL TEMPLES OF CEYLON. (Oct. 12). In this picture there are shown many of the beauties of the great island that lies just to the south of India. First views of the principal town are shown and then a trip is made to the interior. The main industry of the island is the raising of tea and those are views of the great fields where the tea is grown. It is collected by the native girls who do nearly all the work of the island.

There are also views of the way that industry is carried on there. Tea is hauled by girls in baskets that are carried on the head.

DIPLOMACY. (Oct. 15). This is a cartoon that represents the relations between the United States and Mexico. The two countries are represented by two men and they are dressed to look like cartoon figures. The picture is quite a novelty as it is really a living cartoon.

WHEN LINDY SANG. (On same Reel as Foregoing). The cast: Lindy (Ernestine Jones), Her Pal (Nora Dempsey); The Teacher (Margaret Whistler). Produced by Lule Warrenton.

Lindy is a little colored girl who is the possessor of a fine, big voice. Every time the class in school sings she raises her voice above the rest and the other children say they will not sing with her. But the teacher consoles her and says that some day she will have an opportunity to use the gift that God has given her.

The next day the school catches on fire and there is a stampede for the door. But Lindy has the presence of mind to burst into song and the children are calmed. In the fire Lindy is hurt. The children now repent of the way they have treated her and bring flowers to the hospital to make amends.

GOLD SEAL.

CHEATERS. (Three Parts—Oct. 10). The cast: Mrs. Daventry (Clara Byers); Her Nephew (Harry Spingler); Count Von Bricken (Paul Panzer); Molly (Mary Fuller); Blinker (Johnnie Walker). Directed by Lucius Henderson.

Among the guests at Mrs. Daventry's house are Count Von Bricken and his daughter, Molly. Count is a famous arctic explorer. There is also present young John Everard, a nephew of Mrs. Daventry's. The young man is very much taken with Molly's charm and becomes interested in her.

The count is also an expert photographer, and to please all the women he takes their photos in their best gowns.

The last night of the party John proposes. Molly says she cannot think of marrying while her father is alive as he would not think of such a thing. John says that she may change her mind and asks her to wear his ring until she makes her final decision.

Several days later the women come to Mrs. Daventry and say that their jewels have been stolen and imitation ones put in their places. A detective is called and is suspicious of the Count as the only ones in the party that are not to be found, Molly and her father, John is heartbroken as he cannot get any trace of Molly. The truth of the matter is that Bricken is the head of a band of crooks and that the photos were taken so that reproductions of the jewels could be made.

Some time later the crooks plan to rob John's home although they do not tell Molly the right name of the owner of the house. She is forced to take part in the job and while they are in the house John comes in. Molly is dressed as a boy and it is only by his ring that he sees on her finger that John is able to recognize her.

Following this the detectives get on the trail of the whole band of thieves and in the attempt to capture them Molly's father is killed. There is no obstacle in the way of the happy marriage of the couple.

RED FEATHER.

A ROMANCE OF BILLY GOAT HILL. (Five Parts—Oct. 9). The cast: Col. Bob Carsey (George Hernandez); Miss Lady (Myrtle Gonzales); Don Morley (Val Paul); Lee Dillingham (Fred Church); Prof. Querrington (Thos. Jefferson); Bertie (Frankie Lee); Basil Sequin (Jack Connelly); Sheely (Jack Curtis). Produced by Lynn Reynolds.

"Miss Lady," as the colonel's daughter is called by the darky servants, has an admirer in the person of Don Morley whom she does not care much for on account of his passion for gay life. However, he promises to reform if Myrtle (Miss Lady) will marry him. As they are out for a canter one day, an accident, caused through the carelessness of Chick's foster father, is just averted. In this way Miss Lady makes the acquaintance of the little chap, Chick, who is dumb.

A storm one day causes Don and Lee Dillingham to seek shelter in a saloon conducted by Sheely. Sheely and Lee fight and Lee shoots, wounding Sheely, but not seriously. Lee gets Don to promise that he will say nothing about it. All of this has been observed by Chick, hidden in an old barrel.

Don, according to the agreement leaves town, and Lee so warps the story that suspicion is fastened upon Don. The Colonel forbids his daughter to receive any word from Don until his name is cleared. Don has left for the west and accompanied by a friend makes a trip to the Orient, where he anxiously awaits a letter from Miss Lady in response to the one he has sent her.

Trough the carelessness of Chick's foster father, a train is derailed. The Colonel is killed, and his friend, Profession Querrington, injured. The latter is taken to the Colonel's home and there nursed back to health by Miss Lady. He falls in love with her, and later, financially embarrassed, and not knowing where Don is, she consents to assume the responsibilities of the Professor's household. But the professor resumes his writing and Miss Lady is quite neglected.

As Don with his friend are ready to return home, he receives a letter from Lee telling him of the marriage of Miss Lady. He is grief-stricken and decides to remain in the Orient while his friend returns home. His friend calls upon the Professor and it is then that Miss Lady learns that Lee has tricked her lover. Don's friend wires him to return home.

Christman eve the Sequins are giving a party but so engrossed is the professor in his work that he sends Miss Lady alone. She will not dance, as her husband does not approve of the pastime. Don, who has returned, goes to the affair, meets Miss Lady and when she tells him that she did not receive his letter, he leaves her. Sequin advises Don to sell a certain bank stock. He does and a few days later the bank fails. This causes the loss of the professor's entire fortune and eventually his death. Then Miss Lady returns to her own home and takes with her Chick to whom she has become attached.

Finally she decides to have him operated upon in the hope of restoring his speech. The operation is successful. Don has been brought to trial for the injury of Sheely and things look bad for him. Chick hears Miss Lady weeping over the fate of Don, and then he tells her that it was the dark haired man, Lee, who did the shooting. They waste no time in running to Don's aid, and he is soon vindicated. Later Don and Miss Lady are married.

UNIVERSAL.

ANIMATED WEEKLY, No. 39. (Sept. 27). Sewing Up An Actor—Joe Martin, "well known movie comedian," has ten stitches taken in cut foot.—Universal City, Cal.

Sixty-Six, But Some Kid!—Monster parade celebrates anniversary of California's admission as a state.—Santa Rosa, Cal.

Ballet Girls Dance By Sea—Albertina Rasch and troupe practice on shore and in surf.—Houston, Texas.

"Cop" Athletes Break Records.—Stars of many police forces compete at big carnival.—Washington, D. C.

Subtitles—Heaving the hammer. Tug of war. Pat McDonald, New York, beats shot record by 3 feet. Erickson, Olympic champion, over the bar. Two New York "cops" and Washington's smallest.

Near Disaster In Tunnel.—Washington flyer wrecked at entrance to under-river tube.—New York City.

What You'll Have to Buy.—Latest Fall fashions that your wife will want.

Women's Work in War.—Wives, sisters, sweethearts take place of men in trenches.—London England. Subtitles: Cleaning cars, Running motor busses.

Warship's Survivors At Hospital.—Men saved from Memphis, wrecked at San Domingo, and mascot they rescued.—Naval Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Bicycling 27 Years.—"Old Timers" who started in 1889 make annual run.—Boston, Mass.

A Familiar Sight.—Regiments bound for trenches, leave so often they pass practically unnoticed.—London, England.

Worse Than a Jitney.—Hard to stick to

All The Players

of prominence in any sized picture can be furnished instantly—WIRE US YOUR WANTS—If you fail to display the face of a popular player who is appearing at your house, you are overlooking an opportunity for larger receipts. THE FACE OF A WELL-KNOWN PLAYER prominently displayed will draw more money than the mere announcement of a name.

LARGE HAND COLORED PICTURES

Size 22 x 28 inches, 75 cents each. Every prominent player.

FAC-SIMILE OIL PAINTINGS, all sizes, from $8 to $25 framed. Quotations submitted on any size, framed or unframed.

THE SEMI-PHOTO POST CARDS, $3.50 PER THOUSAND, of over 600 players. The indispensable article for your mailing list.

PHOTOGRAPHS, SIZE 8 x 10, of all the prominent players, 600 different names, 20c. each.

LARGE PICTURES, HAND COLORED, size 11 x 14, all the prominent players, $2.00 per dozen; in aluminum frames, 50c. each.

GRAVURE FOLDER, containing pictures of the prominent players, including stars from the stage, $10.00 per thousand.

SINGLE COLUMN CUTS of every prominent player, 40c. each.

KRAUS MFG. CO.

220 West 42nd Street, NEW YORK

12th Floor Candler Building

Send for Catalogue of over 600 players and samples free. Write us, giving details of your dull nights, and we will send you a remedy.

QUICK WORK IN THE BOX OFFICE

SPEED Plus ACCURACY

15 Sales per minute —900 to 4500 per hour.

One ticket seller does the work of three with the AUTOMATICKET

AUTOMATIC TICKET SELLING AND CASH REGISTER CO.
1747 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

AMERICAN Fotoplayer

(Trade Mark Registered)

The Musical Marvel Write for Catalogue

AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER CO.

62 West 45th St. New York City

REFLEX CARBONS

Jones & Cammack

Sole Distributors for the U. S.

Corner Bridge and Whitehall Sts., New York

In writing to advertisers kindly mention MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

buckers at "War Bonnet round-up."—Idaho Falls Idaho.

Shell Pierces House New armor plate and sand pile could not stop 16-inch Navy projectile—Indian Head Testing Ground, Md. Subtitle—Steel horse for the kiddie.

On Battle Line With Camera Man—Battle scenes in Carpathians caught in action by [illegible]. Subtitles—Warning of an attack, Crossing the river On March Digging Selves in, Entrenched. Foe's Mines Explode, Cut barbed wire in charge, The Surrender, Bringing in wounded.

Cartoon by Hy Mayer.

Mutual Film Corporation

CUB.

OH! FOR A CAVE MAN (Oct 6). The cast: George (Norman Leary), Harry (Harry Rattenberry), Billie (Billie Rhodes), Father (Harry Rattenberry).

George's sporty ways at college are opposed by his father. George decides to go home for a visit and invites Harry, his chum, to accompany him, but commands Harry to taboo the sporty clothes and be introduced to his father as a minister's son. Harry agrees and dons a ministerial appearing suit. Father is so impressed with the sanctified appearance of the boys that he almost forgives George's bad record at school. An unlooked for element, however, crops up in the form of George's sister, whose reading of novels has inflamed her mind with a longing for a masterful and powerful lover. Harry apparently being anything but that type, fails to excite any interest at all.

Shortly after the boys arrive, the neighborhood is stirred to alarm by a wild man being at large in the vicinity. Billie, George's sister, at once proclaims that she could love a man like that. This gives the boys an idea. It is to masquerade as a wild man, capture Billie by rough means and cure her of her wild desires. Harry disguises in skins and a beard and capturing the unfortunate Billie, forces her to prepare and cook a meal for him. Later her brother disguised as a wild man and holding her in servitude, is worsted and beaten by Harry, Billie is carried away by Harry. She acknowledges him a hero.

The next day Billie discovers the skins and beard and sees she has been duped. About this time, the real wild man having been shot at by an old farmer is skulking in the vicinity of [illegible]. As she comes away angry, the real wild man pounces and attempts to force her to go with him. She thinking it was another of Harry's tricks, Harry who is discouraged with his failure, decides to return to his own home. As he is leaving he sees Billie struggling with the wild man. He rescues her and is thereafter a real hero.

WON BY A FOWL. (Oct. 7). The cast: Mr Newlywed (Neal Burns); Mrs. Newlywed (Billie Rhodes); The Cook (Stella Adams); Her Sweetheart (Harry Rattenberry); Uncle John (George French).

The Newlyweds' peaceful household is thrown into happy excitement by the announcement that their rich uncle John has decided to accept their invitation to a dinner given in honor of his birthday. Uncle John is an extremely nervous and fussy old gentleman, but his wealth [illegible] to his nephews and nieces to court him. Another nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Wise, had bidden for Uncle John's company on his birthday at their house, but [illegible] them to attend the Newlyweds.

The Newlywed cook is a regular cook and has a cop for a sweetheart. When Mr. and Mrs. Newlywed goes to the opera, the cook entertains her boy in blue. When the Newlyweds returned home, the sounds of mirth and loud laughter coming from the kitchen attracted their attention, and upon peeking through the window, Mr. Newlywed is surprised and indignant to find the cook and the cop with many [illegible] about enjoying a high jinks. Mr. Newlywed and his wife enter the kitchen and after ejecting the guardian of the law, begin to lecture the cook. She leaves next morning.

No cook and Uncle John's birthday dinner that night. Mr. Newlywed decides to prepare the dinner himself since it is quite out of the question for his wife to do so since she has never learned the culinary art. Mr. Newlywed, however, has not reckoned on the revenge of the cook who before she left mixed salt and sugar with and vinegar and in and way possible messed things up. Mr Newlywed proceeds with the dinner and by six o'clock all looks well. Uncle John arrives, his temper slightly riled by stumbling over the dog. To add to his discomfort the Wise's ring in to greet him. The Newlyweds are also disconcerted for fear the dinner, adquate for three, may not prove sufficient for five. They decide to make the best of it and the Wise's are invited to stay.

After much fuss and worry Mr. Newlywed eventually get dinner ready. The guests, meanwhile, have gone into the garden and Mr Wise [illegible] hose getting to hand duty he watches them at the hose which he leaves running. The family all seat themselves and dinner is called. The weekend salt and the vinegared flavored wine play havoc, and to add to their peace a tramp enters the kitchen door and steals the roast turkey.

The ejected cop passing the Newlywed house sees the hose running and taking advantage of the city ordinance proceeds to arrest Mr. Newlywed for watering his lawn outside of hours.

The cook has softened towards her former employers and decides to return. She enters the dining room as her lover is about to drag Mr Newlywed away. She remonstrates and Mr. Newlywed is freed. The Wise's retire in bad order, and as the cook embraces Uncle John the Newlywed are again happy.

THAT WONDERFUL WIFE. (Oct. 7). The cast: Harry (Harry Ham); Billie (Billie Rhodes); Si (George French); Mr. Barry (Eddie Barry); Mother (Stella Adams); Mr. Barry (Ethel Lynne).

Harry and Billie make a flying trip for the train and reach the station just in time to see it start. The station agent suggests that they might hire old Si Scudder's auto and catch the flyer at Burbank. As his auto was the only one in town Si charged Harry $15.00 for the use of it. The machine cannot be started, so they hire a farmer's horse and hitch it to the auto. At last they arrive at Burbank. Here the agent informs them that the flyer is two hours late. Two hours is not long but Billie, girl like, get hungry. The expense so far has drained their joint resources to a nickel. Harry gets an idea and [illegible] a blind man gets a tip all from a lady. The banquet over the flyer arrives and they are off for the city.

Arriving Harry puts Billie in a taxi and she goes home. He goes to see Mr. Barry with whom he has a business engagement. Mr. Barry invites him for dinner and to meet his wife. Mrs. Barry, who has repeatedly warned her husband about bringing home unexpected guests, flies into a rage and mashed potatoes goes home to her mother. Barry grasps the only hope left and, going next door, asks Billie to play his wife during the dinner. She consents and all seems well until she faces Harry. Mrs. Barry, meanwhile, repentant returns home. When Mr. Barry answers her ring he is aghast. Fearful of the scene he acts in a way to convince Mrs. Barry that he has been drinking.

Harry and Billie meanwhile are alone in the dining room where Billie throws her arms about Harry sobbing. He is in terror of Mr. Barry's return and breaking away goes into the parlor where he tells Barry in his real wife's presence that his wife in the dining room wishes him to return to his dinner. This excites Mrs. Barry, who flounces into the dining room to meet face to face her friend from next door. Harry and Mr. Barry follow and explanations clear the atmosphere and all is serene.

CHAPLIN-MUTUAL.

THE PAWNSHOP. (Two Parts—Oct.) The cast: Pawnbroker's Assistant (Charles Chaplin); Pawnbroker's Daughter (Edna Purviance).

Charlie is clerk in a pawnshop owned by the father of Edna. Rand is also employed in the shop. Rand is jealous because Edna prefers Charlie, and they constantly pick at each other and fight. Campbell comes to shop ostensibly to pawn an umbrella. He finds no one attending the front of the store and makes a move as though to steal the cash register. He is stopped by Edna's entrance but is not discovered. To cover himself he tells the pawnbroker he would like to buy the business. While the pawnbroker shows him the possibilities of the business a fight starts in the kitchen between Rand and Charlie. The pawnbroker goes in to settle the disturbance. Charlie aims at Rand with the rolling pin but the pawnbroker, just entering, received the blow. They start to chase Charlie and he rushes into the storeroom where he hides in a trunk.

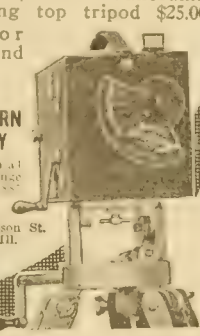
WE HAVE a large assortment of film in stock. Why can't we arrange for your supply of new or slightly used film in all lengths for all parts of the globe?

The Film Exchange

729 Seventh Avenue, New York
Our Reference—Established 1908

A PROVEN SUCCESS

THE DAVSCO Motion Picture Camera—efficient and reliable. Exclusive features not found on any other machine. Equipped with 50 M. M. Zeiss Tessar F:3.5 lens, 200 feet capacity, aluminum magazines. Price complete, $110.00. Panoramic and tilting top tripod $25.00. Write for details and specifications.



DAVID STERN COMPANY

The National Camera Exchange Established 1897

1017 R Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

Artistic Projection

Large sums of money, the best artists available, and the most particular care may produce a truly artistic film.

But its success or failure depends largely on the way it is projected.

Maybe you're trying to get perfect results from an alternating current light. It can't be done.

Any operator who has used both will tell you that the best results can be obtained only by using direct current. It alone produces that steady, restful light so much desired.

A Westinghouse-Cooper Hewitt Rectifier Outfit will give it to you. Furthermore, it will give you regulation of light to suit the very dense and colored films. Operation of outfit is simple and noiseless. Nothing complicated to get out of order. Folder 4205-B will give you further information. Write for it.

Westinghouse Elec. & Mfg. Co.
Dept. FR East Pittsburgh, Pa.

L. A. MOTION PICTURE CO.
Manufacturers of high grade studio equipment
215-217 E. Washington Street
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

TANKS and RACKS
that give satisfaction
Write for Folder No. 14
Pacific Tank & Pipe Co.
Los Angeles—San Francisco, Cal.

In the meantime Campbell goes into the vault in the storeroom. He puts the diamonds into a box and gathers together all the valuable jewels he can find. As the pawnbroker, Edna and Rand come into the storeroom looking for Charlie, Campbell comes out of the vault and covers them with a pistol and backs toward the door to make his getaway. The trunk in which Charlie is hiding is near the door and Charlie opens the lid as Campbell rears him and hits him over the head with the rolling pin, knocking him unconscious. The pawnbroker thanks Charlie for saving the jewels and goes to kiss him. Charlie, however, prefers Edna's caresses. The pawnbroker assumes the attitude of "Bless you, my children," and Charlie gives a parting kick to Rand, who is standing behind him.

VOGUE.

A TOUCH OF HIGH LIFE. (Two Parts—Oct. 8). The cast: A Street Sweeper (Paddy McQuire); A Young Spender (Arthur Moon); His Sweetheart (Gypsy Abbot).

Paddy, the street sweeper, lends his aid to Arthur, a young dude, who, on his way to the train to go for a week end at the beach, stopped too long at the liquid refreshment counter at the corner saloon. He finds Arthur staggering through the streets and takes him to his room to sleep it off. Inspired to generosity by the booze, Arthur insists that Paddy take his wallet and go out and have a good time. The street sweeper puts on his glad rags and starts for the beach with the money and the letter of introduction to some girls which Arthur's sweetheart had given him.

Arriving at the summer resort, he finds himself the center of attraction, until a life guard comes along. Paddy bribes the man to let him have his suit. Then he buys some paint to make him look tanned. The girls all fall for him—that is, all but Gypsy, who comes along to interfers with Paddy's notions of a perfect day. He takes the young lady aside and explains, however, that she must keep quiet for Arthur's sake. In the meantime, the young spendthrift has awakened in Paddy's room, and is hastening via police patrol straight to the point where the sweeper is enjoying himself. Gypsy and Arthur are reunited, and Paddy gets off as easy as could be expected.

BEAUTY.

SLICKING THE SLICKER (Oct. 31). The cast: Barney (Orral Humphrey); Gertie (Jo Taylor); Pete (Joe Massey).

Barney with the aid of Gertie, determines to get the rest of the bunco gang, who have frisked Barney of the stake he has just made. Barney disguises as a rube, lets the gang trim him at cards, then tells then that unless he can sell his farm he can't go on with the game. Gertie takes them aside and tells the men that she knows the farm, and that though the rube doesn't suspect it, there is oil on it.

The gang offers the rube the money they have won from him but he refuses to sell. They finally dig up all they can find and receive a deed to the farm in exchange. On inspection of the land they can find no trace of oil. While they are looking, the rube and Gertie drive up and point out that the oil is in tanks and belongs to the oil trust. The rube tears off his dusguise, puts his arm aroung Gertie, saying "Let me introduce my wife," and speeds away with her, leaving the slickers slicked.

MUTUAL.

MUTUAL WEEKLY NO. 91 (Sept. 27).—Salonica, Turkey.—Reorganizing the Serbian Army. Landing a new regiment.

New York City.—Striking Street Car Men March for Union. Monster demonstration in Union Square for better working conditions.

Boston, Mass.—Naval Militia Graduates. Training ship "Ranger" turns out able seamen.

San Jose, Cal.—Forest Fire Sweeps 600 Acres. Conflagration destroys mountain homes of San Francisco society folk.

New York City.—New York to Boston on High. Joseph J. Ryan completes difficult round-trip in 16 hours.

Indian Head, Md.—Big Steel Shell Wrecks Cottage. Charge from the "Pennsylvania" 16-inch gun penetrates armor plate and sand bank, then cuts through house, imperiling family. Subtitle: A splinter driven through a copper tea kettle.

Spokane, Wash.—United States Vs. Canada.

MAKE YOUR OWN CURRENT WITH A
Brush Electric Lighting Set
Send for 125 page catalogue with very complete information about electrical matters.
THE CHAS. A. STRELINGER CO.,
Box MP-2, Detroit, Mich., U. S. A.

Dr. Heinzel's Pine Ozon Extract
the best air purifier—Ozone Generator, disinfectant, and most agreeable Perfume. A $1.25 bottle diluted with water, makes a one-gallon spray.
HEINZEL CHEMICAL COMPANY, INC.,
63 Park Row New York

"ARGONAUTS OF CALIFORNIA"
DAYS OF '49
A Thrilling Historical Masterpiece in 10 Reels
Grafton Publishing Film Company
LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA
STATE RIGHTS NOW SELLING.

NATIONAL DRAMA CORP.
1465 BROADWAY
NEW YORK CITY

WATCH FOR
E. & R. Jungle Film Comedies
E & R JUNGLE FILM CO.
Los Angeles, Cal.

HIGHEST GRADE
Developing and Printing
FILM TITLES
We guarantee all work, give prompt delivery, at lowest prices. Can furnish Expert Camera Man on short notice.
STANDARD MOTION PICTURE COMPANY
R. 1620, 5 S. Wabash Ave. Chicago
Phone Randolph 8693

MENGER & RING, Inc.
MANUFACTURERS OF
Poster and Lobby Display Frames
304-6 W. 42d St., NEW YORK
Phone Bryant 6621-22

EVERYTHING FOR YOUR PLAYHOUSE MACHINES
SUPPLIES—REPAIR PARTS

All makes of machines carried in stock. We equip theatres completely.
"The Exhibitors Mail Order House"
HOMMEL'S
947 PENN AVE. PITTSBURGH PA.

For Perfect Laboratory Results
INSTALL
CORCORAN TANKS
A. J. CORCORAN, Inc. 11½ JOHN STREET NEW YORK CITY

In answering advertisements, please mention The Moving Picture World

Spokane Polo Club wins from North Fork, B. C., Club.

New York City.—Tube Wreck Injures Many. Pennsylvania switch engine sideswipes express train, blocking tunnel.

Santa Rosa, Cal.—California's 66th Birthday Party. Sons and daughters of pioneers celebrate admission day.

Narragansett Pier, L. I.—Society Women Train for War. National Service School Camp gives instructions for preparedness.

New York City.—Milady's Sport Fashions. Sturmoleather coats are de rigueur for street, motor and sport wear. (Courtesy of Leo F. Sturm, New York City.)

Turlock, Cal.—Melon Day Fete. Thirty tons of melons are consumed by merrymakers. Subtitle: Spectacular water fight was part of the festivities.

Washington, D. C.—Naval Advisory Board on Tour of Inspection. They observe target practice of Atlantic Squadron off Fortress Monroe, Va.

New York City.—Motor Accident Kills Five. Four others fatally injured in early morning joy-ride.

Quebec, Can.—Bridge Falls—25 Dead. Great cantilever bridge now at bottom of river.

MUTUAL WEEKLY, NO. 92 (Oct. 4).

Somewhere in France.—King George with his troops. Mimic battle is staged for his entertainment.

Locust Valley, L. I.—Piping Rock Horse Show. Society turns out to judge thoroughbreds.

Fresno, Cal.—Fruit Special is wrecked. Several injured when freight trains on S. P. collide. Subtitle: "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good." The kiddies enjoyed the raisins.

Seattle, Wash.—The "Niel Nielsen" is launched. First steel freighter here leaves the ways.

New York City.—Hippopotamus family hibernate. Mr. and Mrs. Murphy, with their son Caliph, move from outdoor to warm indoor quarters.

San Francisco, Cal.—Bulletin tennis tournament breaks record. Champions battle for Evening Bulletin Cup for 12 consecutive hours. Over 200 games being played.

Marlow, England.—Royal engineers make marvelous record in building pontoon bridges. Subtitle: England's heavy artillery.

New York City.—Milady's sport fashions. Sturmleather coats are de rigueur for street, motor and sport wear. (Courtesy of Leo. F. Sturm, New York City.)

Portland, Me.—Steamer on rocks; 150 rescued. Coast vessel wrecked in fog on Cape Elizabeth; passengers saved.

Mill Valley, Cal.—Cross country classic on Mt. Tamalpais. Twelfth Dipsea Marathon attracts 2,000 hikers.

One of New York's well known eating places. Dining al fresco, service a la carte, popular prices.

American Lake, Wash.—Troops entertain Governor Lister. The 2d Washington stages sham battle for popular executive.

Belmont Terminal Race Track.—Hunt racing season opens. The bugle calls horses and society to first fall meet.

Modesto, Cal. Yip! Yip-hi! Yip! Yip! Let 'er buck. Where there's wild horses you'll always find wild men.

West Orange, N. J.—Edison greets old telegraphers, 300 old timers journey to wizard's plant.

MUTUAL STAR PRODUCTION.

THE TORCH BEARER. (American—Five Parts—Sept. 25). The cast: John Huntley-Knox and John's father (William Russell); Janet Dare (Charlotte Burton); Mrs. Huntley-Knox (Marie Van Tassell); William Wendell (Harry Keenan). Directed by Wm. Russell.

John Huntley-Knox, the last male in a line long distinguished for wealth and political prominence, is the millionaire owner of the Boston "Star." He is opposing the corrupt ring befouling the city goverament and is aided by William Wendall, reform candidate for the office of district attorney.

When the "gang" threatens to "get" him, John laughs. To protect his interests in case of need, he has the district attorney swear in his reportorial staff to the number of a dozen, as special police. John is a clever boxer, and when, at one of his political meetings, a husky attempts to disturb the proceedings, John takes off his coat and puts his opponent out for the count.

Mr. Exhibitor:—You will get more helpful information by carefully reading one trade paper weekly than by skimming over three or four. The MOVING PICTURE WORLD is the one paper you need.

One morning while at breakfast with his mother and sister John finds in the mail a letter from Red Dog, Wyoming, announcing that Pete Smith, the distinguished Justice of the Peace, is sending east a girl named Janet Dare, daughter of Jim Dare, who, in the letter states, once saved John's father's life in the early frontier days. That same day in a letter to a friend, John's mother expresses the hope that "at least the girl won't eat with her knife." She also writes Janet, extending her a welcome. Janet gets the missive intended for Mrs. J. Bergent Lorgan containing the words so feelingly expressed that at least the girl won't eat with her knife.

Janet arrives, and although reared in an atmosphere of college and possessing all the culture and accomplishments that wealth can bestow, she astonishes the Huntley-Knoxs by appearing in wild western garb and perpetrating upon them all the indignities her fertile intellect can command. In spite of it all, John begins to love her from the first and though, for a time, she successfully hides it, Janet returns the feeling. The political pot commences to boil and John is waited upon by a heeler who threatens exposure of his father's past. The opposition papers stand ready to puolish the details of a murder said to have been committed by John's dignified father in his early life on the frontier. John trembles when he contemplates the effect of such a disclosure on his mother and sister.

In this mood he goes home to supper, and after the meal, while seated in the library and about to put away the legal papers committed to his care by Janet on her arrival, he decides to first ascertain their nature. He is astounded to find that the simple little Janet is heiress to a fabulous fortune in land and live stock in Wyoming. Finally he discovers that the murder attributed to his father was committed by a Mexican through a written confession, yellowed with age, that is with Janet's papers, in the box.

The "gang" attempt to kidnap John's sister, Henrietta, thru the aid of a worthless but aristocratic rake, Harland Rowe, upon whom Henrietta had bestowed a measure of encouragement. The plans are well laid but the conspirators get Janet by mistake.

While she is held captive, John presses his reporters and newsboys into service to locate Janet. In a few hours they capture the taxi-driver, who reveals the hiding place.

In the meantime Janet has put up a valiant fight with her gun and at the moment of the raid comes within a second of shooting John, mistaking him for one of the gang.

Terror and anxiety draw them closer and closer together and they confess their mutual love.

DULCIE'S ADVENTURE (American—Five Parts—Oct. 2) (No. 140).—The Cast: Dulcie (Mary Miles Minter); Aunt Emmie (Bessie Banks); Aunt Netta (Marie Van Tassell); Jonas Spencer (Harry Von Meter); Harry (Alan Forrest).

Dulcie, a poor lonely white child, lives in the South. Her two spinster aunts will not permit her to associate with the neighbors because of Dulcie's claim to dead aristocracy. Dulcie, though a most obedient child, has a habit of wandering over the fence to play with her inferiors, who, according to Dulcie's own code, are not labeled as such. Sometimes she gets caught. Once it is with a two months old pig in her arms. Again it is with Harry, the grocer's son, who gives her a pet squirrel and thus incurs the dislike of the maiden aunts.

But it is not until after the death of Aunt Emmie and with it the cessation of the small income, that the plot begins to thicken. Then Aunt Netta decides that Dulcie must repair the family fortune. She must do it by marrying money. To accomplish this, the child must be taken where money flourishes. Aunt Netta throws her pride to the winds, borrows a thousand dollars from the town lawyer, and forms a deep laid plot.

And so one fine day in June, Dulcie finds herself dressed up in grand style and hurried away to Santa Barbara, Cal., bent, though she does not know it, on a highly successful match. At a fashionable hotel, Aunt Netta lets it leak out that Dulcie is an heiress. Straightway the child is the belle of the town, and though she longs to be back home playing with the grocer's boy, Harry, she is rushed from one tea to another, dined and danced until her head is in a whirl.

Finally Dulcie is forced into the acceptance of one of her suitors, by her aunt and the village lawyer, who assure her that marry, the grocer's boy, is in love with his cousin and cares nothing for her at all. It is a sad little Dulcie that prepares for her wedding day. She has no spirit for the gorgeous wedding clothes, the pearl tiara, the exquisite veil. Her little broken heart is back in the southland.

At last the day arrives. The church is thronged. Dulcie and the man whom she is to marry stand before the chancel rail, when a commotion arises at the door. Detectives hurry down the petal-strewn aisle, and Dulcie is relieved of a husband she does not want by the hand of the law. The groom is wanted for forgery.

In the meantime Harry has decided that he will take things in his own hands. He arrives just as the wedding is being interrupted, learns the cause, and offers to fill the vacant place. It is needless to say that he is accepted, and that he and Dulcie now live happily ever afterwards.

GAUMONT.

REEL LIFE NO 20 (Sept 17) The manner is which the officers are trained for service in the United States Merchant Marine is shown in this release of "Reel Life." The pictures were taken upon the New York State School Ship, "Newport."

The second section of this reel is entitled, "Making a Gown in a Minute." It is illuminating in the facility displayed by a designer of gowns in building them upon the woman who serves as his model. With bolts of various cloths he pins a costume of latest fashion upon his living model.

The fiction section of this film magazine is devoted to another tabloid photodrama founded upon an episode in the "Life" series called "What Would You Do If ?"

BEAUTY SPOTS OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, "See America First," No. 54 (Sept. 20).—The Gaumont cameraman has covered the state thoroughly. In addition to picturing scenes of unusual beauty, he has also caught some views of historical importance. There are pictures of the birth place of Daniel Webster at Franklin, and a statue of the great orator in front of the state house at Concord.

New Hampshire is one of America's greatest summer playgrounds. In these pictures the Gaumont company has brought out the reason for its great popularity. It is due to the charm of its rivers, lakes, and mountains. There are charming views along the Ammonusuc, Saco and Connecticut rivers. Mount Washington is pictured in all its grandeur, and there is an unusual panorama of the Sandwich range. An excursion has been made across the border to picture the wonderful Bald Head Cliff at York, Maine. This is the most wonderful rock formation in the world with the single exception of the Giant's Causeway. It is 700 feet long and 90 feet high.

On the same reel is one of the Gaumont Kartoon Komics. This picture, animated by Harry Palmer is called "Nosey Ned Commandeers an Army Mule."

REEL LIFE, NO. 21 (Sept 24) A section of the reel is devoted to explaining how the lines in the palm of the hand betray character and foretell the future. This is followed with the picture of a man whose arms have been cut off

WILLIS
AND INGLIS
Wright and Callender Bldg.
LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

have opened commodious branch offices at 1742 Ivan St., Hollywood, Cal., to accommodate their publicity, electrical and photographic departments. A completely equipped experimental studio has been added.

"Advancing with the Industry"

The "M. P. World" carries more classified ads than all other trade papers combined—WHY?

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREEN, INC.
220 W. 42d Street
New York City
"Ask the Exhibitor Who Owns One."

PATENTS
Manufacturers want me to send them patents on useful inventions. Send me at once drawing and description of your invention and I will give you an honest report as to securing a patent and whether I can assist you in selling the patent. Highest references. Established 25 years. Personal attention in all cases. WM. N. MOORE, Loan and Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

When you need a
CAMERAMAN
Phone Bryant 6558
CINEMA CAMERA CLUB
1006 Times Bldg., N. Y. C.

AMERICAN STANDARD MOTION PICTURE MACHINE
EASY TO OPERATE
110 W. 40TH STREET, NEW YORK

Get acquainted with "FULCO"
The Department Store
MOVING PICTURE TRADE
MACHINES EQUIPMENT SUPPLIES
Our catalog covers the line from A-Z
E. E. FULTON COMPANY
152 W. Lake St. CHICAGO, ILL.

A Seeburg Pipe Organ will solve your music problems
J. P. SEEBURG PIANO CO
Republic Building. Chicago

at the elbow, yet he is able to earn a living by fancy writing. The third section of the reel is the reproduction of a baseball game played during the world's series last season by Boston and Philadelphia. The game has been reproduced by marionettes and is called "Why Pay a Dollar to See a Ball Game?"

SEE AMERICA FIRST, NO. 55, "The Adirondack Mountains" (Sept. 27).—A special trip was made to the Adirondacks by a Gaumont cameraman who has secured some remarkably effective pictures of Lake Placid, Paul Smith's and Saranac. The advantages of the Adirondacks lie in their combination of natural charm and comforts of civilization. One can enjoy life at a palatial hotel, lodge or club, reached by train, automobile or boat and then by going a few miles find himself in a comparative wilderness.

On the same reel there is a Gaumont Kartoon Komic animated by Harry Palmer.

THANHOUSER.

A FLAW IN THE EVIDENCE (Two Parts—Sept. 22).—A detective who thinks himself clever finds that he is outwitted by an old man. These are the facts of the theft as he reports them to his superiors:

"The valuables in the robbery of a wealthy society matron's home must have been done by the butler and the nurse maid. The girl was on the grounds with the baby. She pretended an attempt was made to kidnap the child. Her cries brought every one from the house. As the butler had planned, he was sent back to telephone for the police. He was alone in the house, sneaked into the mother's boudoir and stole the jewels which she had left scattered about when she ran out in response to the maid's cries. I found some of the loot under the mattress in the butler's room and have placed him and the maid under arrest."

However satisfactory this report may be to headquarters, it does not satisfy the old father of the robbed woman. He may not be a detective, but he knows something about human nature and he reasons this way.

"I noticed that the baby didn't have any use for that detective," he says to himself. "But he does love his nurse and the butler. Babies and dogs can tell more about people than grown ups. I saw the detective try to kiss the nurse the other day, but the butler put him off the grounds. Therefore, he doesn't like the butler.

"The only evidence against the butler is that he was alone in the house and this detective says he found some of the jewelry in his room. The detective was alone in the house a long time, too. He made us stay out on the lawn while he hunted around for clues."

Thinking this, he goes to work to "get the goods" on the detective.

He goes to the secret service man's rooms one night, and gets him to boasting about his great sleuthing. At a given time, the police light a fire, per the instructions of the old man, outside the window. Thinking the house is on fire, the detective runs to a picture on the wall. The old man gives a signal. The police come in and find behind the picture which the detective seems to be guarding the jewels and a lot of other loot. The double crossing detective goes to jail, while the nursemaid and butler are released and sent back home.

THE BLACK TERROR (Two Parts—Sept. 29).—The cast: Jack (Thomas Curran); May (Barbara Gilroy); Frank (Robert Vaughn).

Jack, who loves May, wins only her friendship, until one day, when Frank, the lover whom she has favored, asks her to lend him money to help him save the fortune he has thrown away at the roulette wheel. Unable to get aid from Mary Frank goes to Jack who readily promises to help him out, telling Frank, however, that he will have to wait a week for the money.

That night, Jack's house is robbed, and among the stolen treasures is a small elephant, worth its weight in gold, which Frank had admired that afternoon. A purse found on the floor bears evidence of being the property of Frank. Jack obtains the confession from Frank's butler that his master had come home about midnight the night before, dressed in a peculiar tight fighting black costume and carrying a mysterious black bag.

It would have fared ill with Frank if Jack were not the noble fellow he was. Rather than break May's heart, for Jack still thinks May loves Frank, he refuses to prosecute, preferring rather to treat the incident as a practical joke. It leaks into the papers, however, and reaches May's ears, who thereupon refuses to have anything to do with Frank. By and by she recognizes the true greatness of Jack's character, and consents to marry him. The marriage is consummated while Frank vows bitter revenge.

Frank's butler, out of employment, applies to Jack and is given a position. Later, at a weekend party at Jack's house, the guests catch sight of a terrible figure in black, which frightens them nearly to death. Jack advises them to bring all their valuables to the safe. On returning from a canoe ride later, the guests find the butler unconscious on the floor, and the safe blown open and looted. On recovering consciousness, the butler says that the black terror had attacked him, and that the explosion of the safe had rendered him unconscious. In the week that follows The Black Terror and his accomplice are brought to justice. The guest's theory is right. The Terror is none other than Jack, and his aid, the butler.

ARABELLA'S PRINCE (Two Parts—Oct. 5).—The cast: Arabella (Nellie Parker Spaulding); Prince (Justus Barnes); Clavering Jones (Arthur Levien); Clovering Jones, Sr. (Ernest Howard).

Arabella has dwelt alone in optimistic hopefulness that her neighbor, the grouchy, womanhating sea salt, whom she has raised to the exalted character of "Prince" will some day take notice of her and stop in to have tea with her and her cat. At length, despairing, she writes a pretty little story about her plight, signs it "The Princess" and sends it floating in a bottle down the stream towards the place where her hero is fishing. He scorns it, but Clavering Jones, Jr., aged ten finds it instead, on the banks of a neighboring town.

He writes the Princess and asks if he may come and play. The village gossips get hold of it. The sea salt forsakes his ways, and discovers unnoticed charms in the neglected Arabella. She, however, does not care what he thinks now. The day arrives, and with it Clavering Jones. Both he and the Princess are a little disappointed at the disparagement in their year. But they manage to have a lot of fun playing marbles and eating cakes.

Meanwhile the villagers discover that Clavering Jones is a married man. Headed by the irate salt they approach Arabella's door, bent on routing the scoundrel. The sight that greets their eyes, makes them feel foolish. But Arabella gets her Prince.

Miscellaneous Subjects

UNITY SALES CORP.

THE YELLOW MENACE (Episode No. 7—"Drops of Blood"—Two Parts—Oct. 16).—The action of this episode centers about the determination of Ali Singh to wrest from Maxwell Judson, a famous inventor, a formula used in making a new high explosive called quadrinolite. Judson besides being a scientist is a student of the occult and is trapped into consulting a mystic named Anola Khan, who is none other than Ali Singh. Judson thus falls into the Asiatic's hands, and is tortured by losing his blood, a drop at a time, until he reveals the secret of his invention.

Hong Kong Harry is also punished for his recent effort to shield Najla from torture, by having his opium withheld, though the pipe and the seductive drug are temptingly held before his eyes. Margaret Bronson is released, but returns to her family in a dazed condition of almost entire forgetfulness, due to the poisons which have been thrust upon her while in Ali Singh's power. Manning is nearly killed in his house by a bomb, which does succeed in making an end of Judson, the inventor, when that unhappy man is sent home.

GREATER VITAGRAPH (V-L-S-E).

THE SCARLET RUNNER (Episode No. 2, "The Nuremberg Watch" Two parts—Oct. 9).—Christopher's distinguished cousin, Sir Gordon Race, is defending Lady Mendel, on trial for the murder of her husband. On the morning of the last day of the trial, a veiled woman visits Christopher and gives him a package, saying it contains a gift for Sir Gordon which will bring him luck. She wants Christopher to take it for her. He consents and arrives at Sir Gordon's in time to meet his cousin's fiancee Miss Collingwood, and her mother.

When Christopher gets home again he finds a note warning him that the package contained a watch filled with a powerful explosive. He rushes back to Sir Gordon's, but finds him gone. However, he catches him before he enters the court. He learns that Sir Gordon has given the watch to his fiancee, who has gone hunting. Christopher promises to follow in Scarlet Runner to catch and warn them. He persuades Sir Gordon to remain and defend the woman on trial. The bomb mystery clearly verifies one suspicion in Sir Gordon's mind and he goes at the defense from another angle. He succeeds in breaking down the testimony of Miss Mendel, who has accused Lady Mendel, and in implicating her and her secretary, who, terrified by the fierce questioning, breaks down and confesses.

Christopher overhauls the Collingwoods. He arrives at the house where they are stopping in time to see a burglar attempting to escape with the watch. The explosion comes and Christopher is injured. He recovers in time to share in the happy reunion when Sir Gordon arrives from his successful trial.

CONSOLIDATED FILM CORP.

THE CRIMSON STAIN MYSTERY (Episode No. 6 "The Phantom Image"—Two Parts—Sept. 25).—Analyzing the whole thing dispassionately, Harold Stanley comes to the conclusion that Vanya Tosca knows more about The Crimson Stain Mystery than she has told him. Accordingly, he goes to her apartment to question her. As she is telling her story her eyes suddenly widen and she stops as if transfixed. Puzzled, Stanley follows her gaze but sees nothing. As he bends over her to look into her expressionless eyes he is startled by Florence's voice, and, turning round quickly, he sees her smiling at him from a picture on the wall. This is the secret door to a secret passageway. Florence opens the panel and walks into the room.

Bending over Vanya, Stanley and Florence see in the pupil of her eye a faint photographic impression of Pierre la Rue, whom Florence declares to be the murderer of Stanley's father. With Florence's camera, which she has with her, Stanley photographs Vanya's eyes, and both hurry away to develop the plate.

Busily engaged in developing the plate in the private dark room of the Montrose home, they do not hear footsteps outside the door. It is Pierre La Rue peeping in through the keyhole. Softly locking the door he steals away and returns with a large gas tank containing a deadly gas invented by Dr. Montrose. Inserting a rubber tube in the keyhole he proceeds to pump the gas into the room when the tank explodes. Stanley rushes out of the dark room as Pierre mounts the stairs. Stanley gives chase and fires, apparently hitting Pierre in the left forearm. Clayton coming up at the moment joins Stanley while Florence goes for help. But Pierre has a good start, and, reaching the roof, takes a flying leap into a tree, making good his escape.

Stanley and Clayton rush down stairs to intercept Pierre, the secret panel in the laboratory opens and Felix staggers in apparently wounded. He bathes and dresses his left forearm. In the meantime Florence has found her father, and joined by Parrish, who was in the neighborhood, they enter the house, meeting Stanley and Clayton in the hallway. Stanley explains in a few words and shows the plate with the image of Pierre in Vanya's eyes to the doctor, who in turn passes it to Parrish, who drops it and breaks it.

For a moment a wave of anger surges over Stanley, and then quite accidently he intercepts a meaningful look that Parrish exchanges with Felix, who has come up at that moment. Stanley quickley checks his anger because he believes he has just made a discovery of tremendous value to him in his efforts to solve "The Crimson Stain Mystery."

THE CRIMSON STAIN MYSTERY (Episode No 7—"The Devil's Symphony" Two Parts—Oct. 2).—Whatever suspicion Harold Stanley may have regarding the sincerity of Parrish's efforts to unravel the crimson stain mystery, is further strengthened by Harold's finding of a note in a cipher of some sort on the floor of his office immediately following a short visit by Parrish. After careful study, Stanley succeeds in deciphering the code to read as follows: "Ball Clayton Home Tonight. Must get Clayton fifty thousand dollar necklace. Come to the den immediately. The Crimson Stain."

Harold's first impulse after deciphering the code is to believe Parrish to be a member of the gang, but on second thought he concludes

SPECIAL ROLL TICKETS

PRICES

Five Thousand	$1.25
Ten Thousand	2.50
Fifteen Thousand	3.75
Twenty-five Thousand	5.50
Fifty Thousand	7.50
One Hundred Thousand	10.00

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000 $2.50. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated. Stock tickets 5,000 to 25,000 fifteen cents per thousand, 50,000 ten cents, 100,000 nine cents.

NATIONAL TICKET CO.
Shamokin, Pa.

the Parrish may have come into possession of the note and has not had time as yet to read its meaning, which in all probability he intends to use in his quest for the solution of the mystery. Accordingly Stanley plans to lay a trap for Pierre and his gang. That evening at the ball there are among those present Dr. Montrose and Florence, Parrish, Vanya and several henchmen of Pierre's. It is a masked affair. Outside the house, in the meantime, several mysterious individuals approach the house. Recognized among them are the masked heavy, Pierre La Rue, and Felix.

During the evening Dr. Montrose receives his first intimation that things are not as they should be when he sees Pierre sidling up the stairs to the rooms above. About eleven o'clock, when the fun is at its highest, the lights suddenly go out, and when they are flashed up again, Mrs. Clayton screams that her fifty thousand dollar necklace is gone. In the excitement Florence faints and as she is being taken up stairs, Clayton sees one of the gang bolt for the door. Clayton gives chase but this member of the gang jumps into an automobile and speeds away. Clayton commandeers a passing motorcycle and follows.

In the meantime all is excitement at the house. Downstairs in the ball room the guests are talking about the robbery, while upstairs in Mrs. Clayton's bedroom, Florence is alone, recovering from her fright. At the foot of the bed there is a large box of flowers which was sent earlier in the evening to Mrs. Clayton and as Florence is lying back on the pillow, the cover of the box opens slowly and an ugly, venomous snake crawls out and goes toward Florence.

Clayton succeeds in catching up with the fleeing crimson stain gangster. As the automobile crosses a bridge, Clayton springs into it and grapples with the gangster. Both fall to the roadway and in the struggle Clayton succeeds in shoving his opponent into the stream. At the house, Florence is unaware of her peril. Just as the snake is ready to strike her, a closet door opens and out steps Pierre La Rue. With a swift movement Pierre grabs the snake and throws it out of the window. As Florence turns, Pierre snatches off his mask, revealing the greatest surprise Florence has experienced since the beginning of the Crimson Stain Mystery.

METRO PICTURES CORP.

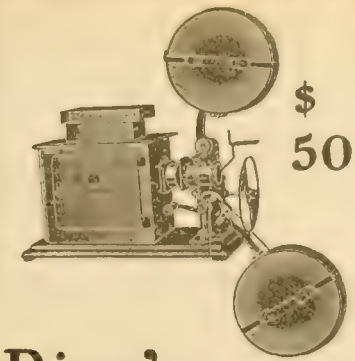
THE IRON WOMAN (Popular Plays and Players—Five Parts—Oct. 2).—The cast: Sarah Maitland (Nance O'Neil); David Ritchie (Einar Linden); Blair Maitland (Alfred Hickman); Nannie Maitland (Evelyn Brent); Elizabeth Ferguson (Vera Sisson); Robert Ferguson (William Postance); Helena Ritchie (Christine Mayo). Scenario written by Wallace C. Clifton. Directed by Carl Harbaugh.

Sarah Maitland manages well the iron mills left her by her husband. She tries to bring up her children, Blair and Nannie, with the same lack of sentimentality with which she conducts her business affairs. Nannie is a loveable girl, but Blair is a headstrong youth inattentive to his lessons. When he is sent to college he indulges in wild extravagance and luxurious surroundings.

Mrs. Maitland receives a letter from the dean of the college complaining of Blair, and she makes him an unannounced visit. Bursting in upon him as he is giving a gay entertainment to a party of friends, she tells him what she thinks of him. She has denied herself everything in order to be able to turn over to him the mills in a prosperous condition on his graduation from college. Blair is so angry at her upbraidings that he tells her to leave. Sick at heart, she returns home.

Blair is graduated by the narrowest possible margin and his mother puts him to work in the mill at a salary of five thousand dollars a year. David Ritchie, son of Helena Ritchie, has studied medicine and has become an interne in a hospital. Both he and Blair love Elizabeth Ferguson. Elizabeth really loves David, but, being easily aggrieved, engages herself first to Blair in a moment of pique, and later to David. She wants to be married at once, but David cannot afford it and when she is left a legacy he refuses to be married on her money. She then marries Blair. David is grief-stricken, and Sarah Maitland furious. She sends for a lawyer, and changes her will, leaving the money she had intended for her son as an endowment for the hospital David wants to build. She informs Blair that since he has proved himself unworthy she will support him no longer, and that he must earn his own living.

Sarah, while watching her men at work in the iron mill, is injured by an explosion. The doctor says that while she may live, she will never again regain consciousness. David hurries to her. He goes to bring Blair and Elizabeth, but finds Elizabeth alone. She has had time to repent her rash action in marrying Blair, and begs David to take her away. He is tempted by his love for her, but both are protected from themselves by the arrival of Helena Ritchie. To save the younger woman she bares the secrets of her own life, revealing the fact that her lover had refused to



$50

Bing's Home Entertainer

Here's a little machine, simple in its construction, and easy of operation, for which there is a place in every home.

It projects motion picture film as perfectly in the home as is possible in the average theater.

Light is provided by a baby arc, supplied with current from the ordinary electric light socket, controlled through a special rheostat.

The baby arc develops 800 candle power, with about six amperes of current. The rheostat supplied is suitable for 110, 150 or 220 volts.

Pictures projected are about 6 x 8 feet in size and splendid results are possible with a throw up to twenty-five feet.

Standard size film is used, making every film exchange in the country a constant source of supply for subjects. Reel boxes are of 1,000 feet capacity.

Set up and ready for use, the machine measures 31 inches long, 31 inches high, and 10 inches broad. The lamphouse is 10 x 6. Weight of machine, complete with arc and rheostat is 24 pounds. Packed for shipment, the weight is 55 pounds.

There is absolutely no fire risk—"Safety First" has been the watchword in construction.

Remember the Price Complete is $50

DEALERS

Write for Special Discount

BING BROTHERS

MANUFACTURERS

John Bing, Sole Representative

381 Fourth Ave., New York

When they reach Sarah Maitland's bedside,

LIFE'S SHADOWS (Columbia Pictures Corp. Five parts—Oct. 20). The cast: Martin Bradley (William Nigh); Madge Morrow (Irene Hawley); Hiram Hardtasker (Walter Stevens); Rodney Thorndyke (Robert Elliott); Chester Thorndyke (Roy Clair); Dulcie Thorndyke (Kathleen Allaire); Mary Graves (Ruth Thorp); Melinda Liggett (Grace E. Stevens); James Durkel (William Yerance); Jim Downing, his man (Frank Montgomery); H. Spencer Seaton (David Thompson); Lem Harding (Harry Linson); Scudder Coleman (Harry D. Blakemore).

Matters are at sixes and sevens in the little town of Purity. The Mayor, James Durkel, is unworthy of his trust. Lem Harding and Scudder Coleman cannot agree as to the boundary lines of their property. Lawyer Bradley is considered one of the worst offenders. He is fond of the whiskey bottle, and has taken as his housekeeper a woman who has no moral status. His kind heart causes him to harbor Madge Morrow, a stranger who cannot obtain employment in the town because no one knows her antecedents.

Hugh Thorndyke, a distiller, returns to Purity with his two sons, Rodney and Chester, and young daughter, Dulcie. Bradley, as town recorder, welcomes them, but is repulsed by the father. Dulcie and Chester make friends with him, however, and his influence changes Dulcie from a snobbish girl to a sweet young woman. Chester imitates his drinking habit, and is ordered away from home. He has fallen in love with Madge and Bradley marries them, thinking to reinstate Chester in his own family. They go to break the news to the Thorndykes, and find that Rodney has been nominated for mayor. Fearing that Chester's marriage to the unknown girl will ruin Rodney's chances, it is agreed that the marriage be kept a secret for the present, and later it is annulled.

The election fight is bitterly waged. Rodney makes a good impression on the people, and Durkel's chances grow less. A stranger, H. Spencer Seaton, comes to Purity ostensibly to collect money for war sufferers. He recognizes Madge, with whom he has had a flirtation in college, and offers to give Durkel information which will lose the election for Rodney. Bradley checkmates him by means of papers which prove Durkel's unfitness to continue in office. Bradley leaves the papers with Chester, intending that Rodney shall think he owes his election to his brother.

Seaton arranges for Madge to meet him that night at the mill, telling her he will return an old photograph. Thinking to compromise her, he arranges for Durkel to come at the same time with the money. Bradley follows. Madge and Seaton struggle, and Bradley breaks in just as Madge escapes with the photograph. Durkel arrives, and there is a fight between the three men. Seaton escapes with the money, and Bradley forces Durkel to leave town. Meeting Rodney on her way home, Madge tells him all about her experience. Each has become more and more appreciative of the other's noble qualities, and when Rodney proposes that they marry and go away she accepts and they take Dulcie with them.

Bradley sends Chester to the meeting at the Town Hall. He throws a note inside suggesting that as Chester has discovered and laid before the people the duplicity of Durkel he be elected mayor, Rodney having withdrawn and Durkel being missing. The office is tendered to Chester on condition that he give up Bradley, whom they call his evil associate, but, mindful of all Bradley has done for the Thorndyke family, he refuses the office. Bradley empties his whiskey flask and gives it to a small boy to fill with bait. He hangs up his sign and continues his law practice in the little town of which he is the unrecognized guardian angel, his wildest amusement now being to sit beside his small chum waiting for the fish to bite.

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS, INC.

"THE CHALICE OF SORROW." (Five parts, Oct. 9). The cast: Lorelei, (Cleo Madison); Isable Clifford (Blanch White); Marion Leslie (Charles Cummings); Rance Clifford (John McDermott); Francisco De Sarpina (Wedgewood Newell); Siestra (Howard Crampton); Pietro (Albert McQuarrie); His Wife (Rhea Maines); written and produced by Rex Ingram.

Opera goers had never heard such a "Carmen" as Lorelei, the American girl, who had come to Mexico City, almost unheralded, and captivated the town. Francisco De Sarpina, governor of the province, coveted the girl, and with his power was able to sweep aside all opposition.

Marion Leslie, an American sculptor, had rejoiced when he secured the commission to supply frescoes for one of the local cathedrals; he could be near Lorelei, his betrothed, during the grand opera season. Rance Clifford is the American consul and his sister, Isable, lives with him at the consulate. When Clifford files a telegram that promises to lead to an investigation of Sarpina's action the American is arrested and thrown into jail. Isable Clifford had at one time relieved the family of Pietro, the jailer, in their distress and thus gained the gratitude of Pietro and his wife. Isable hears of her brother's imprisonment and bribes Pietro to provide Clifford with means of escape.

The Cliffords and Leslie are friendly and when Clifford escapes, he goes to the cathedral, to find shelter until he can plan the next move. Isable has consented to pose for a head of the Madonna and Lorelei is needlessly jealous. Lorelei arrives, demands admittance, and during the brief interval Leslie employs to hide Clifford, Lorelei's jealousy is set aflame. Sarpina discovers that his prisoner has escaped. He elicits from the jailer a confession that involves Isable.

The cunning Mexican devises a scheme to play upon Lorelei's jealousy by forging a note to the opera singer that implicates Leslie and Isable. The forgery fires Lorelei's jealous passion, and she divulges Clifford's hiding place. Leading the Mexicans to Leslie's home she enters to find Clifford and his sister with Leslie. The situation is explained and Leslie directs Clifford and Isable to a nearby hiding place from whence they ultimately escape to safety. When the Mexicans enter Leslie's home, and find the singer and Leslie the only occupants, Sarpina demands that the whereabouts of his prisoner shall be disclosed.

Sarpina's men seize Leslie and torture him, when he will not betray the American refugees. Lorelei is a witness to the scene and when she can no longer bear seeing her betrothed punished, she tells where Clifford and Isable may be found. Leslie is ordered to jail, to be shot next morning. When Clifford and Isable cannot be found (because they have fled) Sarpina tells Lorelei that his vengeance will fall upon the head of her sweetheart. Surrendering herself to Sarpina is given as Lorelei's only method of saving Leslie's life. Lorelei dines with the Mexican brute and agrees to render the tribute demanded of her. First, however, Sarpina must deliver to her passports for two and instruct his executioner that only blanks shall be fired at Leslie in his pretended execution at sunrise.

Five minutes alone with her betrothed is allowed Lorelei. Returning to Sarpina's apartments Lorelei, during a struggle with the Mexican, stabs him dead. Morning breaks, and Lorelei goes, passports in hand, to the place where her sweetheart lies prostrate upon the ground, cold in death. Shocked beyond human endurance, the singer falls upon the breast of her betrothed.

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE.

HEARST INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL NO. 77. (Sept 26)

San Antonio, Texas—Under the command of General H. A. Greene, one entire division of National Guard, consisting of Illinois and Kansas troops, leave on an overland hike of ninety miles, the longest military movement of this kind in history.

Shadow Lawn, N. J.—President Wilson makes his first speech of the 1916 campaign before a large crowd here.

Dunsmuir, Cal.—The new Pacific Highway bridge over the Upper Sacramento river is completed, the final step in the construction of the new roadway connecting Portland, Ore., to San Francisco.

New York—The 14th Regiment, New York National Guard, returns from the Mexican border and is placed in quarantine in its armory.

Jackson County, Oregon—Liquor being transported into Oregon in violation of the law prohibiting the sale of intoxicants, is confiscated by state officers and $5,000.00 worth of "booze" is burned.

On the Western Front—Exclusive pictures by Nelson E. Edwards, showing an actual battle scene in which German infantry make a spectacular charge on the enemy's position on a rugged mountain side.

New York—Society attends the Horse Show of the Piping Rock Hunt Club where some of the best specimens of the equine race are on exhibit.

Fashions of the Moment—Miss Carol McComas, leading lady of "Seven Chances," Cohan Theater, New York, is pictured in the latest gowns of her own creation.

Near Salonika, Greece—Russian soldiers hold religious services, kissing cross held by Russian priest. Shells fired by the Allied gunners, burst over trenches occupied by Bulgarians. Exclusive pictures by Ariel L. Varges, staff photographer of the International Film Service and official cinematographer for the Allied forces in the Balkans.

Portland, Maine—The steamer, Bay State, running ashore in a fog off Cape Elizabeth, is battered to pieces by wind and wave.

THE WORLD'S WONDERLAND (Curtis Scenic No. 3, Oct. 9).—Yellowstone Lake, Pelican Island, and a mud crater are prominent features of the third stage of the journey through Yellowstone National Park.

The Gridiron Hero (Krazy Kat). Animated Cartoon Comedy by George W. Herriman.

He Tries the Movies Again (Happy Hooligan). Animated Cartoon Comedy by F. Opper.

HEARST INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL NO. 78 (Sept 29)

El Paso, Texas.—National Guard troops numbering 25,000, on the longest overland hike on record, ninety miles, are reviewed in the streets of El Paso by the general commanding the Mexican Border Army.

New York.—Under the director of Coach Tom Thorpe, Columbia University football squad enters upon strenuous training for the 1916 season.

Near Salonika, Greece.—In the greatest offensive campaign being waged by the Allies in the Balkans, heavy reinforcements are being rushed to the firing line by motor transports and on foot.

Season's Latest Fashions.—The most recent designs and importations in fall and winter hats are presented through the courtesy of J. M. Gidding, Fifth avenue, New York.

Los Angeles, Cal.—The Sophomores of the University of Southern California defeat the Freshmen in the annual game of push-ball. The game is full of thrilling incidents.

Macao, China.—Recent Catholic converts of the Chinese race take part in a picturesque religious ceremony, with the procession of the Cross.

Peoria, Ill.—The powerful tractor which is being used to such advantage by the Allies in Europe is demonstrated here. Hundreds of these tractors, capable of going where no other motor vehicle can penetrate, have been made in Peoria for use in the great war.

Berlin, Germany.—Unmindful of the war that is menacing the Fatherland on every hand, school children of the great German capital enjoy an outing in one of the city's natural parks.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Meadowbrook and Philadelphia Polo Teams clash in an exciting game of polo, while the Hearst International camera catches the most thrilling plays of the game.

On the West Front.—Exclusive pictures by Nelson E. Edwards, showing the actual progress of a desperate battle for the possession of mountain trenches. The camera catches the bursting shells immediately over the first line trenches, and shows the men, bewildered by the incessant shell fire and crazed by the prospect of cudden and certain death, running wildly about the explosion-torn battlefield.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

PATHE NEWS NO. 77 (Sept. 23).

Washington, D. C.—Twenty-four of America's foremost scientists, comprising the Civilian Naval Consulting Board, gather at the Capitol to be sworn in as full fledged officers of the United States. Subtitle: The way they discuss Government secrets.

London, England.—The remnants of a wrecked Zeppelin, recently brought down by the English anti-aircraft guns in its flight over the very heart of London, are quickly removed by the military officials. Subtitles: 1. Great Britain buries her enemy's heroes, victims of the airship's wreck, with full military honors. 2. The monster Zeppelin which once held the world in awe with its destructive possibilities, but which seems now to have its own peculiar weaknesses.

Bala, Pa.—The South Eastern team easily vanquishes the Mid-western four in the Intersectional Polo contest for the National Championship. Subtitle: The winners.

New London, Conn.—A carefully guarded berth is prepared to hide the German merchant submarine "Bremen" when it arrives after its long overdue voyage.

Responsibility for the War.—Animated cartoon by C. C. W. Morris.—Process patented by J. R. Bray. Subtitles: 1. Poor Europe's homeless cat. 2. "He doesn't know where he's going but he's on his way."

Perkins, Cal.—The European war has made California the largest producer of hops in the world and this year's crop is estimated at more than four million dollars. Subtitle: Some progressive farmers employ machines which separate the little balls of hops from the leaves.

Chicago, Ill.—Sailors from the Great Lakes Naval Training Station give an interesting exhibition drill before thousands of people at the seventh annual meet.

London, England.—The exigencies of war have given rise to many interesting changes of vocation, including the enlistment of the already versatile canine to aid the fire brigade. Subtitle: Toby can extinguish a fire herself.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Huge crowds attend the annual Wisconsin Fair, where the prize products of the state are exhibited.

Shall the United States Increase Her Merchant Marine? (Magazine Sect.)—Subtitles: 1 At the present time the harbors of the United States are filled with foreign ships. 2. The American flag had been completely driven from Pacific liners, until recently, when the American owned "Ecuador" sailed from San Francisco. 3. Captain Nelson is proud to sail again under the Stars and Stripes. 4. The United States has a tonnage of only 3,500,000, while that of Britain is 22,000,000. We have some good ships, but we need more.

PATHE NEWS NO. 78, 1916 (Sept. 27).

El Paso, Texas—Twenty-six thousand men from all branches of the U. S. army parade in the biggest military demonstration in fifty years. Subtitles: 1. Left to right—Generals Morton, Clements and Bell, who stood at the reviewing stand for five hours. 2. The massed army filled a space 8 miles long and 400 yards deep.

New York City—A large crowd turns out to see the New York Giants win their twenty-

$4.80 A Big Saving Each Year $4.80

On account of the greatly increased cost of paper, engraving, etc., we have been compelled to make the single copy price fifteen cents. For the present direct subscription prices will remain the same. This means a saving of four dollars and eighty cents yearly on direct subscriptions. In addition you get your paper earlier.

It will pay you to fill out this blank and mail at once with your remittance.

ONE YEAR.....$3.00
SIX MONTHS.....$1.50

See title page for rates Canada and Foreign

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue, New York

.....

.....

.....

Cut out and mail Theatre.....

ADVANCED PROJECTION OF INTOLERANCE

D. W. GRIFFITH'S COLOSSAL SPECTACLE at the LIBERTY THEATRE, NEW YORK, introduces NEW IDEAS in the ART of PROJECTION. The WORLD'S BEST PROJECTORS are equipped with SPECIAL SPEED CONTROLS and TIME REGISTERING DEVICES so that the Musical Director has absolute control of the SPEED, thereby SYNCHRONIZING the MUSIC perfectly with the PICTURE. For the WORLD'S BEST PROJECTORS equipped with TIME REGISTERING Devices and Perfect Arc Control Rheostats, consult the Exclusive Distributor

B. F. PORTER, 1482 BROADWAY, AT TIMES SQUARE, NEW YORK

Quality means EVANS means Perfection

We do PARTICULAR Work for PARTICULAR People
Developing and Printing ONLY

EVANS FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY

Telephone 8811 Audubon — 416-418-420-422 West 216th Street, New York City

The best theatres in the country are equipped with

Gundlach
Projection Lenses

This is in recognition of their superior illuminating power and perfect correction for a sharp, brilliant picture.

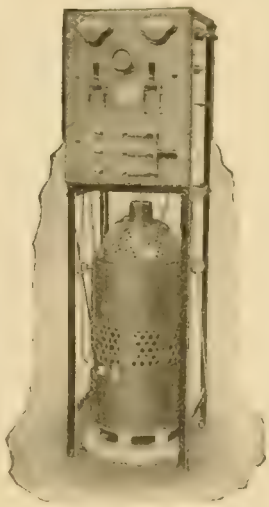
IT'S ALL IN THE LENS

Gundlach-Manhattan Optical Co.
808 So. Clinton Ave., Rochester, N. Y.

Hill Motor Generator
For Moving Picture Arc Lamps

DELIVERS true direct current from alternating current, producing

STEADY WHITE LIGHT PROJECTION OF TRUE COLOR VALUE, NO FLICKER OR FLARE



And three times the illumination is obtained on a standard screen up to 120 ft. throw as compared to the alternating current arc for the same current.

It is most economical for voltage reduction of direct-current service lines to the 60 volt, required at the arc. It eliminates current wasting resistances, and gives the greatest flexibility for accurate voltage control. The capacity is sufficient for two lamps burning simultaneously and the dissolve is accomplished without a break.

Vertical in form, with base covering 15"x15", it takes up the minimum of space in the booth; and running in ball bearings, it operates noiselessly and without vibration. It is a special machine, designed especially for motion picture work.

Write for information and Booklet M. P.

C & C ELECTRIC & MFG. CO., Garwood, N. J.

New York Philadelphia Boston Chicago
Branches in all Principal Cities 213

WHY NOT SAVE

THE INTEREST ON ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS

EVERY YEAR—AND BEGIN NOW?

On account of the greatly increased cost of paper, engraving, etc., we have been compelled to make the single copy price fifteen cents. For the present direct subscription prices will remain the same. This means a saving of four dollars and eighty cents yearly on direct subscriptions. In addition you get your paper earlier.
It will pay you to fill out this blank and mail at once with your remittance.

ONE YEAR.....$3.00
SIX MONTHS $1.50
See title page for rates Canada and Foreign

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue, New York

.....
.....
.....

Cut out and mail Theatre.....

first consecutive game, breaking the world's record for straight victories. Subtitle: 1. John McGraw who built up this great baseball team.

Salonika, Greece—A contingent of Russian troops arrives at the Allies' Balkan headquarters and now a united army is ready to launch its great movement against the Teutons. Subtitles: 1. General Sarrail, Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies in Greece, reviews the new arrivals. 2. Cheering crowds line the streets to watch the proud procession of the troops through the city.

Primitive Methods of Farming in America.—Subtitles: Modern farming methods have not yet reached the wilds of the Kentucky backwoods, where the oxen are still shod and yoked to plow. 2. The farm, and the plow are also of a primitive type. 3. The rate of progress is painful, compared to a modern tractor plow.

Shadow Lawn, N. J.—Thousands make the journey to the summer capitol to hear President Wilson make the opening address of his porch campaign. Subtitles: 1. He upholds his eight hour policy for the railroads. 2. His ardent admirers are then given an opportunity to meet him.

On the Western Front—The Allied Offensive continues with unabated vigor and the huge guns shroud the battlefield with the smoke of their incessant fusillade. Subtitles: 1. The city of Vaux, demolished by the Teuton artillery. 2. German prisoners, captured in their trenches, are sent to rear of the Allied lines. 3.. The victorious troops return to the barracks behind the firing lines for a brief rest.

New York City—The fall moving season is here and in accordance with popular custom Mrs. Murphy and her son Congo give up their summer quarters for their winter residence.

Chicago, Ill.—Mayor Thompson starts thirty-two well known runners on a ten-mile Marathon Race to the South Shore Country Club. Subtitles: 1. Sidney Hatch, the winner, receives an unexpected welcome when he finishes. 2. Girls at the Country Fair parade in pretty regalia featured by sailors from Lake Bluff.

Phoenix, N. Y.—The whole city is wiped out by a devastating fire which seizes every building in its terrible grasp.

New York City—A dozen are hurt as a subway express crashes into an empty train on the elevated structure at 207th street.

THE SHIELDING SHADOW (Episode No. 2, "Into the Depths"—Two Parts—Oct. 8).—Jerry Carson through the plotting of his rival, Sebastian, is unjustly convicted of murder charge. On a prison ship he hides in a cholera victim's coffin and is buried at sea, but manages to free himself and swims ashore. He journeys to his sweetheart's home and cautiously approaching the garden he overhears Leontine, who thinks him dead, promising to marry Sebastian.

Jerry does not know she is doing so only to save her father from financial ruin, and with the stern proviso that she wil be a wife in name only until Sebastian can win her love. With bitterness in his heart, Jerry rushes from the place without making his presence known, steals a yacht and sets sail for a buried treasure for which he has plans. Reaching the spot he finds the skeleton of the dead scientist and in his bony hand three black pellets. While reading in a diary that they will give the finder power beyond the "dreams of all men," he is unconscious of the tentacles of an octopus which are slowly creeping towards him. Suddenly they coil around him and drag him into the depths.

Months have passed and Sebastian and Leontine have gone to New York to live. One night he forgets his compact and tries to force his affections upon her. Suddenly in a corner of the room "The Shielding Shadow" appears—two burning eyes and two ghostly white hands, one of which threatens Sebastian with a dagger. Leontine hears a voice: "be true to your love of Jerry and courageous and all will be well." Sebastian, terror-stricken, flees from the room. Leontine picks up the dagger—a proof that it was no hallucination.

THE SWORD OF DAMOCLES (Pathe—Two Parts—Oct. 8).—A musical genius is kept from the success he deserves by a weakness for drink. An inferior musician passes off the opera the other man has written as his own composition. Over his head the disclosure of the authorship hangs like the traditional Sword of Damocles. It finally falls and the temporarily cheated genius comes into his own.

HEINIE AND THE 400 (Rolin—Oct. 8).—Heinie gains an entree to the upper crust and although for a while he resembles a bull in a social china chop, he finally lands home with a batting average of 500.

U. S. CUSTOMS INSPECTION (Pathe—Oct. 8).—The intimate side of a department, little of which is known by the majority, shown in a very interesting reel taken with the approval of the U. S. Government.

Triangle Film Corporation

THE JUNGLE CHILD. (Ince—Five Parts—Oct. 8). The cast: Ollante (Dorothy Dalton); Ridgeway Webb (Howard Hickman); Laila (Gertrude Claire); Madeline Travers (Dorcas Matthews); Senor Grijalva (Frederick Vroom); Chaperone (Elsa Lorrimer); Gleche (Leo Willis).

Ollante, a Spanish girl, reared by a tribe of Brazilian Indians, rescues and nurses Ridgeway Webb, a lost explorer, from the terrors of the South American jungle. Webb discovers that Ollante possesses a vast fortune and decides to obtain it for himself by making her his wife. He takes "the jungle child" to New York and plans to secure her inheritances, then in the keeping of Senor Grijalva, who is associated with the Foreign Exchange Bank of Metropolis.

With Ollante, Webb has brought her Tupi "mother" Laila. In spite of attempts to civilize the girl, Webb realizes that she cannot give up the traits acquired by her jungle life. Senor Grijalva refuses to relinquish his hold on Ollante's fortune until she becomes civilized, for he appreciates Webb's unworthy motives. Angered, Webb makes every effort to educate Ollante and bring her up to the station necessary, but the girl has realized his duplicity and, heartbroken, retrogresses. Her husband's one concession is a room fitted up to resemble her hut in the jungle, and here Ollante spends more and more of her time.

To celebrate his possession of the inheritance, which he finally gains through fraudulent methods, Webb gives a party in his house. During the evening Ollante is roused by the orgie and, coming downstairs, hears her intoxicated husband denounce her and express the wish that she would go back to the jungle. Ollante steals back to her jungle room and goes through the ancient Tupi ritual of death. At daybreak, Webb, hearing the sounds in the jungle room, enters and ridicules his wife's actions. Sensing finally that she is determined on suicide, he encourages her, and is his drunken maudlin way offers to play the tom-tom while she dances.

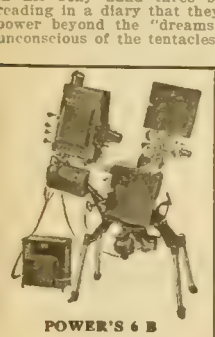
Ollante then determines to slay her husband, and, as she had slain others in the jungle, she dances about them until a favorable moment, when she suddenly springs at him and slowly strangles him to his death.

THE RUMMY (Fine Arts—Five Parts—Oct. 8). The cast: The Rummy (Wilfred Lucas); The Girl (Pauline Starke); Dan O'Sullivan (William H. Brown); The Cub Reporter (James O'Shea); O'Sullivan's Handy Man (Harry Fisher); Managing Editor (A. D. Sears); Newspaper Reporter (Clyde Hopkins). Directed by Paul Powell.

The story opens with a young newspaper reporter, working on a reform paper. The paper is owned by O'Sullivan, a political boss. Our hero is sent down to "cover" the night court. The girl in the story is out of a job, and after vainly trying to get work, is put out of her room. She goes out into the street and in desperation accosts a man. He offers to buy her a meal, but she gets frightened and runs away. A policeman, who has been watching her, follows. She eludes him and hides behind packing boxes on the dock. He finally corners her and she jumps into the river. He jumps in and after a stiff fight, rescues her and takes her to the police station, where the reporter recognizes her as a girl who lived in the same boarding house that he has lived. Feeling sorry for her, he marries her.

Later, she goes to the newspaper office to visit him, and meets O'Sullivan, who immediately evinces interest in her. He makes arrangements to meet her, giving as an excuse that he wants to talk to her about her husband. She goes to his rooms to meet him, only to find that she is trapped. She makes her escape and meets her husband in the hall. His confidence in her is shaken. The reporter, having lost all faith in his wife, descends the social scale rapidly.

Two years later the wife is working as cashier in a restaurant, and the reporter a wreck. Meanwhile the boss, O'Sullivan, not satisfied with the returns from his saloon has an argument with his manager who quits. The manager leaves the place threatening the boss with exposure. He meets and tells his story to the reporter, who immediately takes it up as a great scoop for the reform paper. The manager, however did not tell him the name of the owner, and he starts out to get data on it. The manager tells him how O'Sullivan has persecuted his (the reporter's) wife, and that she has committed no wrong. The reporter starts for O'Sullivan's rooms. On his way he meets a policeman and a friend. They go to the saloon where they find the wife tied to a chair and O'Sullivan standing nearby. O'Sullivan dies of apoplexy as the reporter is about to strike him. A reunion follows between the reporter and his wife.



POWER'S 6 B

Piteco Carbon Economizers Each 75c. Better Than The Best

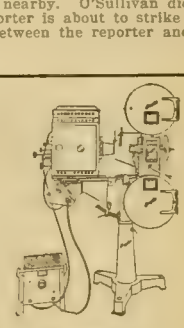
This is the Day of the Specialist!

We Specialize in the Best of Modern Equipment for

THE MOTION PICTURE THEATRE

Projection Difficulties Solved. Tell Us Your Projection Troubles and Benefit by Our Suggestions.

Send for Our New Catalogue.



SIMPLEX

We Equip Motion Picture Theatres Completely.

PICTURE THEATRE EQUIPMENT CO.

PROJECTION ENGINEERS

1604 BROADWAY, at 49th Street

NEW YORK

CONSULT US FOR MODEL PROJECTION

Classified Advertisements

NOTE OUR NEW RATES!

Remittances must accompany all orders as follows: One dollar per insertion for copy containing twenty words or less. Five cents per word on copy containing over twenty words. Each word to be counted including names and addresses.

SITUATIONS WANTED.

CAMERAMEN furnished with outfits for all classes of work. Local pictures, industrial, educational or [illegible]. Universal Camera Co., 1007 Times Bldg., N. Y. City.

LADY ORGANIST desires position in moving picture theatre; studied with best American teachers and two years in Leipzig, Germany, and in Paris under Alexander Guilmant. Excellent references. Concerto, care of Moving Picture World, N. Y. City.

HIGHLY EFFICIENT and reliable moving picture pianist, open for immediate engagement; city or west preferred; over one year in last position. Address Miss I. E., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

MOVING PICTURE OPERATOR, twelve years' experience, wishes to connect with large film exchange. Can take managing theater. Progressive. Care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

MOTION PICTURE OPERATOR desires position in small town where good projection is wanted. Strictly sober and reliable; has 8 years' experience; will go anywhere. Address C. J. F., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

LIVE WIRE MANAGER, expert booker, operator nine years, vaudeville moving pictures, desires change. Worby, 646 E. 182d St., N. Y. City.

YOUNG MAN of ability wishes position as art and technical director, or assistant. If interested, tell me a big setting you require. Will send photos to show ability. Address Technical, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

HELP WANTED.

FOR SELLING Dr. Heinzel's Pine Ozon Extract the greatest air purifier, ozon generator, disinfectant and most agreeable perfume, one bottle at $1.75 makes, with water, one gallon best spray; agents wanted. Heinzel Chemical Co., 62 Park Row, N. Y. City.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

ADVERTISING CLOCK—Live managers, operators, exhibitors can derive steady income by the purchase of one or more clocks. Very little time required. Particulars on request. Publicity Clock Co., Inc., World's Tower Bldg., N. Y. City.

THEATERS WANTED

CASH FOR YOUR MOVIE—I am a practical successful moving picture broker. Seventeen years of continuous success. Selling upwards of one million dollars' worth annually, sales, exchanges and leases. Lewis, the Moving Picture Broker. Established 1896. Offices, 578-80 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

FLORIDA—Want lease on reasonable terms reputable picture theater in Florida. Conditions must be right. C. O. Steinmetz, Orrville, Ohio.

WANTED: To lease, rent or buy theater; Central States preferred; must have good seating capacity. Address O. L., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

WANTED, to buy or lease, motion picture theater or opera house in New York State, town of 2,500 to 15,000 population. Or experienced man and wife will act as manager and cashier respectively. Would be willing to invest some money. Can furnish best of references. Address S. G. H., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

WANTED, moderately-equipped picture house seating six hundred; town exceeding forty thousand; vicinity San Francisco. Address Henry Logan, care of M. P. World, N. Y. City.

THEATERS FOR SALE OR RENT

SPLENDID CHANCE to purchase a brand new moving picture and vaudeville theater including real estate. (Brick building) seats 800, large stage, only house in town of 6,000 inhabitants. 10c. admission. Fully equipped. Now in operation. Free & Brannigan, Tarrytown, N. Y.

VAUDEVILLE and photoplay house located in one of the best towns in Pennsylvania; population of between 40,000 and 50,000. The following are the receipts for the past six days: $[illegible], $177.50, $253, $202.50, $239.90, $255.70; total, $1,425.70. Expenses for week, $1,080.20; net profits, $345.50. The right man can make $15,000 to $20,000 annually. Price, $16,000; half cash. Lewis, 580 Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

FOR SALE, Moving picture theater, New England manufacturing town twenty-five hundred. No chance opposition—protected. Fine business; first-class equipment. Great proposition live wire exhibitor. Reason selling, travel with feature. Address, E. C. Co., care M. P. W., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE—Most beautiful and modern fireproof picture house and show in Northwestern Ohio seating 500, population 3,000; stand investigation. Crescent Theater, Hicksville, Ohio.

FOR SALE OR RENT—Fully-equipped moving picture theater, 425 new chairs, in live town of 6,000 drawing population; if interested come and see it, only fifty-nine miles from New York. J. B. Hampton, Washington, N. J.

FOR SALE—Only picture show in town 2,000. Best equipped house for town this size in State. Guaranteed on a paying basis. Box 61, West Liberty, Iowa.

FOR RENT OR SALE—Moving picture theater, seating capacity approximately five hundred, in centrally located section of Naugatuck, Conn. Population about 17,000. Only one other theater here. Splendid opportunity for responsible parties. John Weisman, Naugatuck, Conn.

FOR SALE—Beautiful house, seating 300, fully equipped. Two Power's 6-A machines, motor drive, best seats, piano, fans and other fixtures. Silveroid screen, doing fine business. Will sell at fair price one-half cash one-half time to be paid out of business; city 50,000; only four other moving picture houses. Acadia Theater, Kalamazoo, Mich. Employing 350 people, making auto accessories only reason for selling.

EQUIPMENT WANTED.

WANTED—"Majestic Theater" electric sign, A. C. current. Write Majestic Theater, Holyoke, Mass.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—Slightly-used Simplex projectors, guaranteed perfect and good as new at reasonable prices. Second-hand Motiograph in good condition, cheap. Room 206, 1482 Broadway, N. Y. City.

BARGAINS slightly used Simplex, Power's and Motiograph machines. Lowest prices—fully guaranteed. Hallberg, 729 Seventh Ave., N. Y. City.

3,000 OPERA CHAIRS steel and cast frames 60c. up. All serviceable goods. Player piano new. Four asbestos booths, several machines. J. P. Redington, Scranton, Pa.

CALCIUM LIGHTS—Good light necessary for good projection, better light at lower cost can be had by using the Oxy-Hydro-Cet process; the most brilliant, most economical, most convenient portable light for moving pictures in existence; no ozone or ether required; costs less than 30c. per hour; write for circulars containing valuable information concerning light. S. A. Bliss, 504 Bryan Avenue, Peoria, Ill.

FOR SALE—Bargain. Complete traveling moving picture outfit, including Power's 6A machine, Ozo Carbide gas outfit, also electric lamp and rheostat. Outfit is new, never been used. Includes Kleine's Universal Stereo Lens, two extra M. P. tubes. Slides, film mender, light chemicals, Bio carbons, extra reels and condensers. 18,000 fine film subjects. First class condition. Outfit cost over thousand dollars, will sell cheap on account of having secured valuable permanent Government position. W. C. Burgert, Tampa, Fla.

OPERA CHAIRS—4,000 slightly used, 40c up. New, 95c., maple folding, 40c. Write Atlas Seating Co., 10 East 43d Street, N. Y. City.

GUARANTEED rebuilt machines. 1908 Motiograph, $60.00; 1913 Motiograph, $90.00; Power's 6A, $150.00; Edison Type B, $75.00; 1911 Motiograph, $75.00; Simplex Motor Drive, $250.00; Edison Exhibition, $65.00; Power's No. 5, $65.00. Going quick; rush your order. Amusement Supply Co., 300-2 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Illinois.

RICHARDSON SAYS—"Install 'Amberlux' Lens Filters." Don't hesitate to spend $3.50 to protect your patrons from sight destroying eyestrain. W. D. Warner, Wyandotte Bldg., Columbus, Ohio.

OPERA CHAIRS, slightly used, bought and sold everywhere. Want to buy assembly chairs. Empire Exchange, Corning, N. Y.

FT. WAYNE COMPENSARC, 110 v. 133 cycle, used two weeks. Like new. $35.00. Leland Stoffer, Fayetteville, Ark.

FOR SALE—Two 40 ampere type No. 115,672 General Electric Mercury Arc Rectifiers complete with extra relays, hand regulators and enclosed fuses. Full 50 amps. D. C. at arc guaranteed. Price $125 each. Collins & Hill, 10 S. La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

EDISON MACHINE complete with all equipment. First-class condition; $50.00. Write for particulars, Hoffman's, Bedford, Pa.

I HAVE for sale the following equipment. Make me an offer. I need the money. 9 x 12 Gold Fibre screen and frame; 30 amp. Westinghouse rectifier with new tube; No. 6 Power's machine, with dissolves, 12 x 0 x 8 asbestos booth. Address Maryland Amusement Co., 2609 Tilbury St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

REBUILT MACHINES at following tremendously low figures: Power's No. 5, $25; 1912 Motiograph, $45; Power's No. 6, $95; Simplex, $110. Power's No. 5 Head, not rebuilt, but in first class shape, $30. Address, Homme Fix, 957 Pennsylvania Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

CAMERAS, ETC., FOR SALE.

MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS and tripods for sale and for rent. Cameramen furnished anywhere. H. R. Hoover & Co., 229 West 42nd St., N. Y. City.

CAMERAMEN'S NOVELTIES — Laboratory outfits, special machinery, photoplay directors viewfinder, flexible cranks, effect devices, static preventers. All film work, repair. Eberhard Schneider, 14th St. and Second Ave., N. Y. City.

ARE YOU GETTING your share of the big money in the motion picture business? Take pictures for advertising, home talent, news weekly. Openings everywhere. Every movie theater should own a moving picture camera and tripod. We are specialists in equipping beginners. Our new Davsco M. P. camera is the sensation of the year. 200 ft. capacity, aluminum magazines, side focusing device, 50 MM B. & L. Tessar lens F:3.5 in newly patented mount and exposure indicator. Weight, 10½ lbs. Our price complete, $110. Write for details and specifications. We have several good used motion picture cameras we have taken in exchange. Ensign, 110 ft. capacity, Zeiss Tessar F:3.5 lens and panorama and tilting top tripod, complete, $75. Ernemann 100 ft. capacity, Ernon F.3.5 lens, $57.50. Vista, 150 ft. capacity, Zeiss Tessar F:3.5 lens, $60. Highest grade developing and printing. Titles, 8c. a foot. Write us today. David Stern Co., 1047-R Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

FILMS WANTED.

WANTED: Used five-reel features with advertising matter in good condition. Mail list to Big A Film Company, 145 W. 45th Street, N. Y. City.

FILMS FOR SALE OR RENT.

OVER SEAS BUYERS should communicate with me, second-hand American pictures at European prices. Donald Campbell, 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

WE SPECIALIZE in used educational, industrial, scientific and scenic films. Good subjects at 1½c. per foot and up. We have what you want. Send for our lists and terms. New York Film Laboratories, Film Sales Dep't, 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE—Special state right proposition on our new 5-reel feature. Write for particulars. State territory wanted. 101 Ranch Motion Picture Dept., Bliss, Okla.

FOR SALE—The following features: "Fantomas," serial, 20 reels. "Cora, the Temptress," 4 reels. "Are They Born or Made?" 4 reels. "Dukes' Talisman," 4 reels. "New York Girl," Keystone, 2 reels. Federal Feature Film Co., 145 W. 45th Street, N. Y. City.

ONE AND TWO-REEL subjects (American make) in good condition with plenty of posters, at $5.00 per reel. Also 4, 5, 6-reel features in first class condition, with full line of advertising. Bargains. Queen City Feature Film Company, 123½ Opera Place, Cincinnati, Ohio.

FOR SALE—First-class comedy negative with sample print. Reindl, 3947 Rokeby Street, Chicago, Ill.

FEATURES FOR SALE; all have paper; are in fine shape; send for list. Six reelers, sixty dollars; five reelers, fifty dollars; four reelers, twenty-five dollars; three reelers, fifteen dollars; Chaplin singles, twenty-five dollars; single reels, without paper, three dollars. M. R. Dick, 811 Produce Exchange Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SCENARIO WRITERS—Manuscripts neatly typewritten, including carbon; thirty cents per thousand words. Corbo & Corbo, 125 Newark St., Newark, N. J.

KINKS FOR CAMERAMEN, linen bound pocket booklet, containing valuable tables and professional secrets. Fifty cents, postpaid. Cameraman, Box 41, East Liberty, Pittsburgh, Pa.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS:—The Publishers expect that all statements made in every advertisement will bear the strictest investigation.

INDEX

TO CONTENTS

Advertising for Exhibitors . . . 227
"Aeroplane Accident, The" (Unity) . . . 222
"Anton, the Terrible" (Lasky) . . . 223
Atlanta Theaters Merged . . . 276
"At the Ainsley Ball" (International) . . . 221
At Leading Picture Theaters . . . 247
Autumn Fairs and Picture Shows . . . 278

"Barriers of Society" (Red Feather) . . . 226
"Battered Bridegroom, The" (Kalem) . . . 224
"Battle of the Somme, The" (Urban) . . . 225
Beatrice Fairfax (International) . . . 221
Bluebird Will Add Stars . . . 257
Brady, William A., on Trade Conditions . . . 250
British Notes . . . 258

Calendar of Daily Program Releases . . . 284, 286
Charleston's New Strand Ready . . . 273
Chicago News Letter . . . 253
Cincinnati's Star Theater Has New Policy . . . 277
Comments on the Films . . . 259
"Common Law" Well Received . . . 252
"Conquest of Canaan, The" (Frohman) . . . 224
Cook, Ethyle, Thanhouser Leading Woman . . . 247
Crandall's Savoy, Much Beautified, Reopens . . . 272
Creative Methods Masterlinck . . . 208
Cressy Interest Open Exchange . . . 279

"Dawn of Love, The" (Metro) . . . 225
Denver Now Has Its Exchange Row . . . 280
Denver Screen Club Has Plans . . . 280
Deplore Use of "No Children" Signs . . . 272
"Dulcie's Adventure" (Mutual) . . . 223

Facts and Comments . . . 207
Fifteen Reels of Pathe . . . 246
Firm Against Censorship . . . 209
"Firm of Girdlestone, The" (Vitagraph) . . . 225
Four Kalem Releases . . . 224

Getting Co-operation of Local Newspapers . . . 278
"Gilded Cage, The" (World) . . . 220

"Half Breed's Hatred, The" (Unity) . . . 222
"How Life Begins" . . . 221

Kalem's Big Week . . . 212
Kalem Stars Welcomed . . . 252

Leisure Breeds Quality in Films . . . 210
List of Current Film Release Dates, 304, 306, 308, 310
"Love Magnet, The" (Kalem) . . . 224

Manufacturers' Advance Notes . . . 262
Maritime Provinces Organize . . . 218
Mask Ball of Film Men Is Leading Topic . . . 272
Masonic Theater Gets Back Its Own Name . . . 277
Mayors on Federal Censorship . . . 251
Memphis, Handsome New Theater Promised . . . 276
"Message from the Sky, A" (Unity) . . . 222
Morrison, James, Joins Ivan . . . 217
Motion Picture Educator . . . 238
Motion Picture Exhibitor, The . . . 248
Motion Picture Photography . . . 235
Music a Drawing Power on Coast . . . 281
Music for the Picture . . . 236
Mutual Sales Force Re-Vamped . . . 244
Mutual Program . . . 223
Mutual Schedule . . . 246
Muybridge's Motion Picture Experiments . . . 239

New Allen Theater at Moose Inn . . . 283
News of Los Angeles and Vicinity . . . 254
New Sherry Quarters Formally Opened . . . 212
New Triangle Exchange Proposition . . . 214
"New York Hat, The" (Biograph) . . . 220
Norwalk Theater's Novel Benefit . . . 270
Notes of the Trade . . . 267

"Old Folks at Home, The" (Triangle) . . . 222
"Our American Boys in the European War" (Triangle) . . . 220
Our Friends and Our Foes . . . 209
"Outside the Law" (International) . . . 221

"Pawnbroker's Shop, The" (Mutual) . . . 223
Pearl White in Patriotic Role . . . 257
Photoplaywright, The . . . 239
Picture Theaters Projected . . . 268
Plans a Continuous Performance . . . 246
Plea for Truthful Portrayal, A . . . 240
Pottering Around in Old Pa . . . 215
"Power of the Press, The" (Biograph) . . . 220
Present Price of Big Features . . . 275
"Power of Evil, The" (Moss) . . . 222
Price, Kate, Now a Vim Star . . . 245
Projection Department . . . 231
Protest Meeting of Exhibitors . . . 211

Quality, The Remedy for Trade Ills . . . 244

"Reformation of Dog Hole, The" (Kalem) . . . 224
Reviews of Current Productions . . . 220

Sabbaterian Legislators, Would Line Up . . . 282
Selig's "Crisis" a Great Production . . . 218
Sherrill on the Fence . . . 245
"Shielding Shadow, The" (Pathe) . . . 221
Should Minor Operators Be Left in Charge? . . . 277
"Social Buccaneer, The" (Bluebird) . . . 223
Society of Motion Picture Engineers Hold Annual Meeting . . . 216
"Somewhere in France" (Triangle) . . . 222
Stories of the Films . . . 288
Suit to Restrain Use of Film . . . 271

Theater Employs Official Guardian . . . 274
"Torch Bearer, The" (Mutual) . . . 223
"To Save the Special" (Kalem) . . . 224
Trade Body Asked to Help . . . 278
Triangle Coast Activities . . . 247
Triangle Program . . . 222
Two Metro Rolfe Releases . . . 225
Two New-Old Biographs . . . 220

Universal Program for Week of October 9 . . . 256

Week of General Film, A . . . 256
Weekly List of Paramounts . . . 258
Weiss Gets New York Branch . . . 214
"Wheels of the Law, The" (Metro) . . . 225
Working in West Virginia . . . 249

"Yellow Menace, The" (Unity) . . . 222

TO ADVERTISERS

CARBON AND CARBON ACCESSORIES.
Jones & Cammack . . . 292
Speer Carbon Co . . . 314

CHAIR & SEATING MANUFACTURERS.
American Seating Co . . . 313
Steel Furniture Co . . . 313

ELECTRICAL & MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT.
Amusement Supply Co . . . 268
Calehuff Supply Co . . . 311
Cushman Motor Works . . . 313
C & C Electric Co . . . 290
Fulton, E. E . . . 295
Hallberg, J. H . . . 303
Hertner Electric & Mfg. Co . . . 307
Hommel, Ludwig & Co . . . 294
Lucas Theater Supply Co . . . 309
Picture Theater Equip. Co . . . 300
Porter, B. F . . . 299
Strelinger, Chas. A . . . 294
Typhoon Fan Co . . . 305
Universal Motor Co . . . 268
Wagner Elec. Mfg. Co . . . 310
Westinghouse Elec. & Mfg. Co . . . 293

FILM EXCHANGES.
Bradenburgh, G. W . . . 309
Film Exchange, The . . . 293

LENS MANUFACTURERS.
Gundlach-Manhattan Optical Co . . . 299

MANUFACTURERS OF MOVING PICTURES.
Artcraft Pictures Corp . . . 195
Biograph Co . . . 284
Christie Film Co . . . 287
Clara Kimball Young Film Corp . . . 174-75
Bluebird Photoplays, Inc . . . Colored Insert
E. & R. Jungle Film Co . . . 294
Essanay Film Mfg. Co . . . 196, 200
Frohman Amusement Corp . . . 164-65
Gaumont Co . . . 194
General Film Co . . . 201
Grafton Publishing Film Co . . . 294
Great Northern Film Co . . . 312
Herbert Brennon Film Corp . . . 173
Ince, Thos. H . . . 190-91
International Film Service . . . 177-78
Kalem Co . . . 206
Kitty Gordon Film Corp . . . 176
Kleine, George . . . 163
Knickerbocker Star Features . . . 204
McClure Pictures . . . 167
Metro Pictures Corp . . . Colored Insert
Mutual Film Corp . . . Colored Insert
National Drama Corp . . . 294
Paramount Pictures Corp . . . 179-87
Pathe Exchange, Inc . . . 171-72
Selig Polyscope Co . . . 168-70, 197
Signal Film Corp . . . 202-203
Thanhouser Film Corp . . . 158
Triangle Film Corp . . . 192-93
Unicorn Film Service . . . 166
Unity Film Sales Corp . . . 162
Universal Film Mfg. Co . . . 159-61
Vim Comedies . . . 205, 285
World Film Corp . . . 188-89

MISCELLANEOUS.
Automatic Ticket Selling & C. R. Co . . . 292
Bioscope, The . . . 309
Botanical Decorating Co . . . 313
Box A, care M. P. World . . . 268
Bulletin, The . . . 311
Cinema Camera Club . . . 295
Cine Mundial . . . 312
Classified Advertisements . . . 301
Corcoran, A. J . . . 294
Eastman Kodak Co . . . 307
Erbograph Co . . . 313
Evans Film Mfg. Co . . . 299
General Chemical Co . . . 309
Gunby Bros . . . 312
Heinzel Chemical Co . . . 294
Il Tirso Al Cinematografo . . . 312
Kinematograph Weekly, The . . . 313
Kraus Mfg. Co . . . 292
Marion, Louise M . . . 312
Motion Picture Electricity . . . 311
M. P. Directory Co . . . 309
Moore, Wm. N . . . 295
National Ticket Co . . . 296
Pacific Tank & Pipe Co . . . 293
Richardson, F. H . . . 311
Richardson M. P. Handbook . . . 314
Rothacker Film Mfg. Co . . . 315
Standard Motion Picture Co . . . 294
Superior Films Co . . . 307
Theatrical Advertising Co . . . 312
Willis & Inglis . . . 295

MOVING PICTURE CAMERAS.
Los Angeles M. P. Co . . . 293
Stern, David, Co . . . 293
Universal Camera Co . . . 309

MUSIC AND MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
American Photo Player Co . . . 292
B. F. Consumers Supply Co . . . 312
Berg, S. M . . . 309
Harmo Pipe Organ Co . . . 309
Seeburg, J. P., Piano Co . . . 295
Sinn, Clarence E . . . 313
Wangerin-Weickhardt . . . 307

POSTERS AND FRAMES.
Menger & Ring . . . 294

PROJECTION MACHINE MANUFACTURERS.
American Standard M. P. Mch. Co . . . 295
Bing Bros . . . 297
Enterprise Optical Co . . . 314
Power, Nicholas, Co . . . 316
Precision Mch. Co . . . 305

PROJECTION SCREEN MANUFACTURERS.
Genter, J. H., Co., Inc . . . 305
Gold King Screen Co . . . 312
Radium Gold Fibre Screen, Inc . . . 295

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.
Decorators' Supply Co . . . 311

STEREOPTICON SLIDES.
Houston Slide Co . . . 309

Make Yours the Best Show in Town!

Use Hallberg Equipment and Get Perfect Projection

SUPPLY THE RIGHT CURRENT TO YOUR ARC at the lowest cost. HALLBERG NEW ADJUSTABLE A. C. ECONOMIZER at $50.00. If you use A. C. will change your line voltage to just the right voltage for the arc and maintain a steady, brilliant light at a saving of 66⅔ over A. C. Rheostat on 110 volts A. C.; and over 80% on 220 volts A. C. PROVED FACT!!

Hallberg 20th Century Motor-Generator gives most wonderful projection known to the industry—Changes A. C. or D. C. line voltage to proper D. C. voltage for one or two arcs without rheostats. Capacities, 20-150 ampere. Price, $217.00 and up if ordered before Oct. 15th. Send for free Bulletin No. 1.

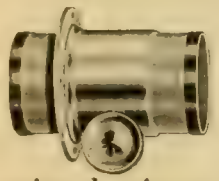
I introduced the use of economizers to the trade over 10 years ago and have saved exhibitors millions of dollars.

USE THE RIGHT CARBONS

I have tested all carbons presented to the trade for the last ten years. Carbons sold by me are the best available by actual test. Consult me about size and kind of carbon for your work. I am distributor of

SPEER PROJECTOR CARBONS—MADE IN U. S. A.
FRENCH COPPER COATED, ELECTRA AND BIO IMPORTED CARBONS.
Quotations on request.

Don't Lose Light in Cheap Condensers



For perfect projection use Crystal White Imported Condensers.

MENISCUS, PLANO CONVEX AND BI-CONVEX—M. P. AND SPOT LIGHT CONDENSERS. Complete stock—Any focus.

Your projection lenses determine the size and clearness of your picture.

I have a Bausch & Lomb or Gundlach lens to meet your needs.

There is a best screen for your particular house—
I have equipped hundreds of theatres with special screens and will advise you.

This Automatic Arc-Controller

Feeds the carbons. Saves 20% on carbon bill and saves 5 to 10% on current bill, and gives you steady light and allows operator to do other things than feed the carbons.

"SIMPLEX"

I am distributor of all makes moving picture machines and furnish everything complete for the theatre, new and used apparatus.

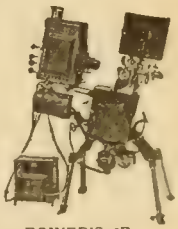
Send for Free Circulars and Catalogues, but for Hallberg's Big 100-page Catalogue send 25 Cents.

Keep your moving picture machine in first class condition. Let me overhaul your mechanisms once a year. Repair parts on rush or telegraph order shipped at once.

I am distributor for all makes of moving picture machines and have in stock slightly used machines. Send for prices on miniature Portable and Advertising Projectors.

Send $2.50 for latest Operator's Book, "MOTION PICTURE ELECTRICITY"

Send $1.50 for Hallberg's Carbon Saver.



POWER'S 6B

J. H. HALLBERG The House of Quality Established 1904 7th Ave. at 49th St., NEW YORK

Member National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, Inc.

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 284, 286.)

General Film Company

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Biograph, Selig, Vitagraph.

Tuesday—Biograph, Essanay, Kalem.

Wednesday—Biograph, Essanay, Kalem, Vim Feature Comedy.

Thursday—Selig, Vim.

Friday—Kalem, Knickerbocker, Vim, Vitagraph.

Saturday—Essanay, Kalem, Selig, Vitagraph.

BIOGRAPH.

Sept. 6—Man's Enemy (Reissue No. 78—Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 11—For the Son of the House (Reissue No. 79—Drama).
Sept. 12—A Blot in the 'Scutcheon (Reissue No 80—Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—The Unveiling (Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 81).
Sept. 20—Stronghearт (Three parts—Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No 82).
Sept. 25—The Sunbeam (Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No 83).
Sept. 26—The Wedding Gown (Two parts—Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 84).
Oct. 2—An Indian's Loyalty (Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 85)
Oct. 4—Under the Gaslight (Three parts—Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 86).
Oct. 9—A Tale of the Wilderness (Drama—Biograph—Reissue No. 87).
Oct. 10—A Pueblo Legend (Two parts—Drama—Biograph—Reissue No. 88).
Oct. 16—The White Rose of the Wilds (Drama) Biograph—Reissue No 89).
Oct. 18—Classmates (Three parts—Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 90).

ESSANAY.

Sept. 5—The Pacifist (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 6—The Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 15 (Cartoon).
Scenic on the same reel.
Sept. 9—A Million for a Baby (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 12—The Greater Obligation (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 13—The Fable of the Slim Girl Who Tried to Keep a Date that Was Never Made (Comedy).
Sept. 16—The Woman Always Pays (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 19—When Justice Won (Two parts—Dr.).
Sept. 20—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 16 (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A scenic subject on the same reel.
Sept. 23—The Way of Patience (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 26—Peter, the Hermit (Two parts—Comedy-Drama).
Sept 27—Dreamy Dud (Cartoon—Comedy).
Sept. 30—Twin Fates (Three parts—Drama).
Oct. 3—An Old Fashioned Girl (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 4—The Fable of "The Kid Who Shifted His Ideals to Golf and Finally Became a Baseball Fan and Took the Only Known Cure" (Comedy).
Oct. 7—His Little Wife (Three parts—Dr.).
Oct. 10—Money to Burn (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
Oct. 11—Canimated Nooz Pictorial, No. 17 (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A Scenic subject on the same reel.
Oct. 14—Lost, Twenty-four Hours (Three parts—Comedy).
Oct. 17—The Fable of "The Kittenish Superanns and the World Weary Snipes" (Two parts—Comedy).
Oct 18—Dreamy Dud (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A Scenic subject on the same reel.
Oct. 21—Marooned (Three parts—drama).

KALEM.

Sept. 15—The Mysterious Double (Comedy).
Sept. 16—The Hoodoo of Division B (No. 97 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Sept. 19—The Mud Cure (Comedy).
Sept. 20—The Gun Runners (No. 7 of "The Girl From Frisco"—Two parts—Dr.).
Sept. 22—That Pesky Parrot (Comedy).
Sept. 23—Defying Death (No. 98 of "The Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Sept. 26—Bumping the Bumps (Comedy).
Sept. 27—A Battle in the Dark (No. 8 of the "Girl from Frisco"—Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 29—Rival Artists (Comedy).
Sept. 30—The Death Swing (No. 99, of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Oct. 3—One Star Too Far (Comedy).
Oct. 4—The Web of Guilt (No. 9 of the "Girl From 'Frisco" Series (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 6—Stolen Plumage (Comedy).
Oct. 7—Hazards of Helen Railroad Series, No. 100, "The Blocked Track" (Dr.).
Oct. 10—The Love Magnet (Comedy).
Oct. 11—The Reformation of Dog-Hole (No. 10 of "The Girl from Frisco" Series) (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 13—The Battered Bridegroom (Comedy).
Oct. 14—To Save the Special (No. 101 of "The Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series) (Drama).
Oct 17—A Sauer Kraut Symphony (Comedy).
Oct. 18—The Yellow Hand (No. 11 of the "Girl from 'Frisco") (Two parts—Dr.).
Oct. 20—The Code Letter (No. 1 of "Grant, Police Reporter") (Drama).
Oct. 21—Hazards of Helen Railroad Series No. 102, "A Daring Chance" (Drama).

LUBIN.

July 24—Otto, the Salesman (Comedy).
July 25—By Right of Love (Two parts—Dr.).
July 27—In the Hour of Disaster (Three parts—Drama).
July 29—It Happened in Pikersville (Com.).
July 31—Otto the Gardener (Comedy).
Aug. 1—The Price of Dishonor (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 8—Their Mother (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 15—A Lesson in Labor (Two parts—Dr.).
Aug. 22—The Usurer's Due (Two parts—Dr.).

SELIG.

Sept. 4—The Selig-Tribune No. 71 (Topical).
Sept. 4—His Brother's Keeper (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 7—The Selig-Tribune No. 72 (Topical).
Sept. 9—Taming Grouchy Bill (Comedy).
Sept. 11—The Selig-Tribune, No. 73, 1916 (Top.).
Sept. 11—The Pony Express Rider (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 14—The Selig-Tribune, No. 74, 1916 (Top.).
Sept. 16—In Jungle Wilds (Jungle—Zoo—Animal—Drama).
Sept. 18—Into the Northland (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—The Selig-Tribune, No. 75, 1916 (Top.).
Sept. 21—The Selig-Tribune, No. 76, 1916 (Top.).
Sept. 23—A Corner in Water (Comedy).
Sept. 25—Power of the Cross (Two parts—Dr.).
Sept. 25—The Selig-Tribune, No. 77, 1916 (Top.).
Sept. 28—The Selig-Tribune, No. 78, 1916. (Top.).
Sept. 30—The Raiders (Dram).
Oct. 2—In the House of the Chief (Three parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—The Selig-Tribune, No. 79, 1916 (Top.).
Oct. 5—The Selig-Tribune, No. 80, 1916 (Top.).
Oct. 7—The Canbyhill Outlaws (Western—Drama).
Oct 9—Converging Paths (Two parts—Dr.).
Oct. 9—The Selig-Tribune No. 81, 1916 (Topical).
Oct. 12—The Selig-Tribune No. 82, 1916 (Topical).
Oct. 14—A Mistake in Rustlers (Western—Drama).

VIM FEATURE COMEDY.

Sept. 20—The Honeymoon Car (Comedy).
Sept. 27—Artistic Atmosphere (Comedy).
Oct. 4—A Grain of Suspicion (Comedy).
Oct. 11—Their Installment Furniture (Com.).
Oct. 18—A Persistent Wooing (Comedy).

VIM.

Sept. 15—Payment in Full (Comedy).
Sept. 21 Love and Duty (Comedy).
Sept. 22—The Man Hunters (Comedy).
Sept. 28—The Reformer (Comedy).
Sept. 29—Tangled Ties (Comedy).
Oct. 5—Royal Blood (Comedy).
Oct. 6—Strictly Business (Comedy).
Oct. 12—The Candy Trial (Comedy).
Oct. 13—Watch Your Watch (Comedy).
Oct. 19—A Precious Parcel (Comedy).
Oct. 20—Here and There (Comedy).

VITAGRAPH.

Aug. 21—Did He or Did He Not? (Comedy).
Aug. 25—The Yellow Girl (Novelty).
Aug. 28—The Fair Fare (Comedy).
Sept. 1—Love and Trout (Comedy).
Sept. 2—A Fool and His Friend (Three parts—Drama) (Broadway Star Feature).
Sept. 4—It's a Bear (Comedy).
Sept. 8—A Villainous Villain (Comedy).
Sept. 11—Busting In and Out of Society (Com.).
Sept. 15—Loot and Love (Comedy).
Sept. 16—The Thorn and the Rose (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Dr.).
Sept. 18—A Perfect Day (Comedy).
Sept. 22—Sand Scamps and Strategy (Com.).
Sept. 25—Getting By (Comedy).
Sept. 29—She Who Last Laughs (Comedy—Drama).
Oct. 2—Making an Impression (Comedy).
Oct. 6—A Vampire Out of Work (Comedy).
Oct. 7—Cantrell's Madonna (Three parts—Drama—Broadway Star Feature).
Oct. 9—Billy's Melodrama (Comedy).
Oct 13—The Mayor's Fall From Grace (Com.).
Oct. 16—The Curse of the Forest (Educational).
Oct. 20 The Fasters (Comedy).
Oct. 21—The Shot that Brought Happiness (Three parts—Drama) (Broadway Star Feature).

General Film Company Features

BROADWAY STAR FEATURE.

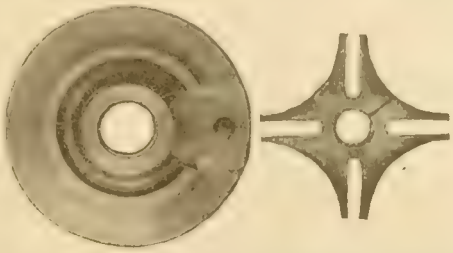
July 15—Waters of Lethe (Three parts—Dr.).
Aug. 5—The Bond of Blood (Three parts—Dr.).
Aug. 19—The Wandering Horde (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 2—A Fool and His Friend (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 16—The Thorn and the Rose (Three parts—Drama).
Oct. 7—Cantrell's Madonna (Three parts—Drama).
Oct. 21—The Shot that Brought Happiness (Three parts—Drama).

KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE.

Aug. 11—The Better Woman (Three parts—Drama).
Aug. 1.—Faith's Reward (Three parts—Dr.).
Sept. 8—A Deluded Wife (Three parts—Dr.).
Sept. 22—A Lesson from Life (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 29—For the Governor's Chair (Three parts—Drama).
Oct. 6—The Better Instinct (Two parts—Dr.).
Oct. 13—From the Deep (Three parts—Dr.).
Oct. 20—Treading Pearls (Two parts—Drama).

SPEAKING OF GENEVA MOVEMENTS
THIS VITAL PART OF SIMPLEX PROJECTOR GAVE NINE YEARS' SERVICE

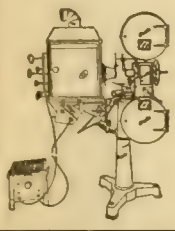
Actual Photograph of the Star Wheel and Cam which was used every day for nine years at the Eden Musee, New York, N. Y.



Performed One Billion, Eighty-eight Thousand, Six Hundred Seventy-two Revolutions during this period and is still in a practical and usable condition.

The Geneva Movement used in Simplex Projectors is scientifically constructed and built of the most enduring material and therefore withstands the constant grind required of the intermittents, today.

SIMPLEX Projectors will outwork and outwear any other Motion Picture Machine in the World.



Simplex

THE PROJECTOR OF QUALITY

Send for Catalog "A"

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.

317 East 34th St. New York

HE WHO INVESTS WISELY IS SURE OF RESULTS

Do you realize that a Mirroroid Screen will exert a most powerful influence toward obtaining a better and greater class of patronage and naturally greater earnings to you?

9689—MIRROROID SCREENS IN USE TO DATE—9689

It has been proven the screen supreme the world over—the only screen on earth that will eliminate haze, glare, eye-strain, fade-away and out-of-focus effect, regardless of how close or at what angle pictures are viewed from—because it is the only screen in the world made with a rough or matte finish.

Mirroroid Is Your Best Advertising Medium.

As an exhibitor you are in the same class as a merchant. He sells his goods—you, screen results. You both must please your patrons and make them steady patrons. They always recognize quality, want quality, and will go where quality is to be had. Please your patrons and they will please you in increased earnings.

Let us impress upon your mind that we will send you large, free samples—12x14. Test, compare with any screen on earth. Realize Mirroroid is sold for 33 1/3 cents a square foot. Why—yes, why, pay more for an unguaranteed screen—a hand or air-brush painted window shade?

OUR 5-YEAR GUARANTEE

Mirroroid will not crack, peel, turn black or tarnish. It is also waterproof, and can be washed with soap and water.

READ--The Proof of the Pudding--READ

"We installed several of your Mirroroid Screens in our different houses—the first bought March 16, 1911. It, as all others, has been in constant service since. All have given that same satisfaction as when first installed.

"By comparisons I have made with all makes of screens I am more than convinced MIRROROID leads them all in quality, durability, and perfect projection results. Inclosed you will find check, full amount for another 12x15 screen, Silver White. Rush.

"Yours very truly,

"R. L. MACADAM."

"Sydney Amusement Co., Sydney, Nova Scotia, Sept. 5th, 1916."

Mr. Exhibitor, this testimonial is but one of many received this week—one of over 3,000 on file. Think—use your own brains—realize! Why pay more for an unknown and untried screen as to durability, etc. Write for samples now. Let us give you projection contentment.

THE J. H. GENTER CO., INC. The oldest and largest screen manufacturers in the world. Newburgh, New York.

COOL & VENTILATE BY TYPHOONS

1544 BWAY. TYPHOON FAN COMPANY NEW YORK CITY

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 284, 286.)

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

ANIMATED WEEKLY.

Sept. 27—Number 39 (Topical).
Oct. 4—Number 40 (Tropical).
Oct. 11—Number 41 (Topical).
Oct. 18—Number 42 (Topical).

BIG U.

Sept. 14—For Her Mother's Sake (Drama).
Sept. 15—The Timber Wolf (Drama).
Sept. 17—Brick Top (Comedy).
Sept. 22—No release this day. Replaced with Rex, "To Another Woman."
Sept. 25—The Halting Hand (Drama—Special Release).
Sept. 28—The Lie Sublime (Two parts—Dr.).
Sept. 29—The Shadow Sinister (Drama).
Oct. 2—The White Man's Law (Drama—Special Release).
Oct. 5—The Eternal Way (Drama).
Oct. 12—No release this day.
Oct. 19—No release this day.

BISON.

Sept. 18—After the Battle (Two parts—Drama) (Special Release).
Sept. 23—The Broken Spur (Two parts—Dr.).
Sept. 30—A Jungle Hero (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 7—A Mountain Tragedy (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 14—Night Shadows (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 21—The Conspiracy (Two parts—Drama).

GOLD SEAL.

Sept. 13—Love's Masquerade (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 26—Husks of Love (Three parts—Dr.).
Oct. 3—In the Heart of New York (Three parts—Drama).
Oct. 10—Cheaters (Three parts—Drama).
Oct. 17—The Wrath of Cactus Moore (Three parts—Drama).

IMP.

Sept. 24—A Desperate Remedy (Comedy—Dr.).
Sept. 25—The Bigamist (Two parts—Drama—Special Release).
Sept. 29—No release this day.
Oct. 2—The Perjurer (Drama) (Special Release).
Oct. 8—No release this day.
Oct. 13—A Soul at Stake (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 19—The Eel (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 20—No release this day.
Oct. 22—No release this day.

JOKER.

Sept. 16—In Onion There is Strength (Comedy).
Sept. 23—Musical Madness (Comedy).
Sept. 30—The Inspector's Double (Comedy).
Oct. 7—Father Gets in Wrong (Comedy).
Oct. 14—The Oil Smeller (Comedy).
Oct. 21—Beans and Bullets (Comedy).

LAEMMLE.

Sept. 20—No release this day.
Sept. 21—Poisoned Lips (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 23—No release this day.
Sept. 25—The Injustice of Justice (Drama—Special Release).
Sept. 27—No release this day.
Sept. 30—No release this day.
Oct. 2—The Prowlers of the Jungle (Drama) (Special Release).
Oct. 4—No release this day.
Oct. 7—No release this day.
Oct. 11—No release this day.
Oct. 14.—No release this day.
Oct. 18—Through Baby's Voice (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 21—No release this day.

L-KO.

Sept. 20—Cold Hearts and Hot Flames (Two parts—Comedy).
Sept. 24—No release this day.
Sept. 27—A Surgeon's Revenge (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 1—No release this day.
Oct. 4—Safe in the Safe (Two parts—Com.).
Oct. 8—No release this day.
Oct. 11—Lured But Cured (Two parts—Com.).
Oct. 15—No release this day.
Oct. 18—Safety First (Comedy).
Oct. 22—She Wanted a Ford (Comedy).

NESTOR.

Sept. 15—Speeding (Comedy).
Sept. 18—A Silly Sultan (Comedy).
Sept. 22—No Release this day.
Sept. 25—Model 46 (Comedy).
Sept. 29—No release this day.
Oct. 2—With the Spirit's Help (Comedy).
Oct. 9—Almost Guilty (Comedy).
Oct. 13—Pat Rooney in "It's All Wrong" (Comedy).
Oct. 16—His Own Nemesis (Comedy).
Oct. 20—Pat's Pasting Ways (Comedy).

POWERS.

Sept. 21—No release this day.
Sept. 24—No release this day. Replaced with Rex, "To Another Woman."
Sept. 28—Behind the Scenes in Japan as Seen by Dr. Dorsey (Educational).
Oct. 5—Pen and Inklings in and Around Jerusalem (Educational).
Oct. 12—The Beautiful Temples of Ceylon As Seen by Dr. Dorsey (Educational).
Oct. 15—When Little Lindy Sang (Drama).—Diplomacy (Cartoon—Comedy).
Oct. 19—No release this day.

RED FEATHER.

Sept. 11—The Whirlpool of Destiny (Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—Black Friday (Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 25—If My Country Should Call (Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—Under Suspicion (Five parts—Dr.).
Oct. 9—A Romance of Billy-Goat Hill (Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 16—Barriers of Society (Five parts—Dr.).

REX.

Sept. 17—The Small Magnetic Hand (Drama).
Sept. 18—Under the Spell (Drama) (Special Release).
Sept. 22—His Mother's Boy (Drama).
Sept. 25—Dark Corners (Drama—Special Release).
Oct. 1—Ashes of Remembrance (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—The Slave (Drama).
Oct. 6—No release this day.
Oct. 8—The Human Gamble (Two parts—Dr.).
Oct. 13—No release this day.
Oct 15—No release this day.
Oct. 20—No release this day.

VICTOR.

Sept. 19—No release this day.
Sept. 21—High Speed (Comedy—Drama).
Sept. 26—No release this day.
Sept. 28—No release this day.
Oct. 1—In the Lap of the Gods (Drama).
Oct. 2—The Memory Mill (Drama).
Oct. 3—No release this day.
Oct. 5—No release this day.
Oct 6—A Charming Villain (Comedy).
Oct. 16—Room Rent and Romance (Comedy) (Special Release).
Oct. 10—No release this day.
Oct 17—No release this day.
Oct. 22—Main 4400 (Two parts—Comedy—Dr.).

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

Sept. 11—The Caravan (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—Timothy Dobbs, That's me, No. 6 "He Almost Lands An Angel" (Two parts—Comedy).
Sept. 18—Liberty No. 6, "The Dester of Lost Souls" (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 25—A Hero by Proxy (No. 7 of "Timothy Dobbs, That's Me"—Two parts—Comedy).
Sept. 25—Liberty No. 7, "Liberty's Sacrifice" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—Borrowed Plumes (No. 8 of "Timothy Dobbs, That's Me" Series (Two parts—Comedy).
Oct. 2—Liberty No. 8, "Clipped Wings" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 6—Somewhere on the Battlefield (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 9—Breaking Into Society (No. 9 of "Timothy Dobbs, That's Me"—Two parts—Comedy).
Oct. 9—Liberty No. 9, "A Daughter of Mars" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 12—Behind Life's Stage (Two parts—Dr.).
Oct. 16—Fame at Last (No. 10 of "Timothy Dobbs, That's Me"—Two parts—Comedy).
Oct. 16—Liberty, No. 10 (title to be announced later) (Two parts—Drama).

Mutual Film Corp.

AMERICAN.

Aug. 7—The Little Troubadour (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 10—The Power of Mind (Three parts—Drama).
Aug. 14—Ruth Ridley Returns (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 17—The Holly House (Three parts—Dr.).
Aug. 21—Enchantment (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 28—The Key (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 4—Atonement (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 9—Citizens, All (Two parts—Drama).

BEAUTY.

Aug. 16—Perkins Mystic Manor (Comedy).
Aug. 23—In a Prohibition Town (Comedy).
Aug. 30—Two of a Kind (Comedy).
Sept. 6—The Boomerang Goldbrick (Comedy).
Sept. 19—The Stinger Stung (Comedy).
Sept. 26—The Deacon's Card (Comedy).
Oct. 3—Slicking the Slickers (Comedy).
Oct. 10—That Sharp Note (Comedy).

CENTAUR.

Sept. 9—The Jungle Flashlight (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 16—Tangled Hearts (Two parts—Dr.).
Sept. 23—The Father of Her Child (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 30—Foiled (Two parts—Drama).

CUB.

Sept. 22—Movie Struck (Comedy).
Sept. 29—Catching That Burglar (Comedy).
Oct. 6—Oh! For a Cave man (Comedy).
Oct. 7—Won by a Fowl (Comedy).
Oct. 7—That Wonderful Wife (Comedy).
Oct. 13—Innoculating Hubby (Comedy).
Oct. 14—Those Primitive Days (Comedy).
Oct. 14—Their College Capers (Comedy).

FALSTAFF.

Aug. 15—The Guiders (Comedy).
Aug. 22—Fare Lady (Comedy).
Aug. 27—A Swiss Sea Dog (Comedy-Drama).
Aug. 29—In Mexico (Comedy).
Sept. 5—Musickers (Comedy).

GAUMONT.

Sept. 14—Fantomas, No. 2 (The Man in Black Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 17—Reel Life, No. 20 (Mutual Film Magazine).
Sept. 20—See America First No. 54 (Scenic).—Fantomas No. 3, "The Mysterious Finger Print (2 parts—Drama).
Sept. 24—Reel Life No. 21 (Mutual Film Magazine).
Sept. 27—See America First, No. 55 (Scenic).—Kartoon Komics (Cartoon—Comedy).
Sept. 28—The Crook Detective (No. 4 of "Fantomas"—Three parts—Drama).
Oct. 1—Reel Life No. 22 (Mutual Film Magazine).
Oct. 4—See America First, No. 56 (Scenic).—Kartoon Komics (Cartoon—Comedy).
Oct. 5—The False Magistrate (No. 5 of "Fantomas" (Three parts—Drama).
Oct. 8—Reel Life, No. 23 (Mutual Film Magazine).
Oct. 11—See America First, No. 57 (Scenic).—Kartoon Komics (Cartoon—Comedy).
Oct. 15—Reel Life, No. 24 (Mutual Film Magazine).

MUSTANG.

Aug. 25—Nell Dale's Men Folks (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 31—The Forgotten Prayer (Three parts—Drama).
Sept. 1—The Gambler's Lost Love (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 8—Matchin' Jim (Two parts—Drama).

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

Aug 30—Number 87 (Topical).
Sept. 6—Number 88 (Topical).
Sept. 13—Number 89 (Topical).
Sept. 20—Number 90 (Topical).
Sept. 27—Number 91 (Topical).
Oct. 4—Number 92 (Topical).
Oct. 11—Number 93 (Topical).

(Mutual Releases continued on page 308.)

Just one clear picture after another with

Eastman Film

The film that made motion pictures practical plays a big part in their present stage of perfection.

Look for the stencil mark "Eastman" in the margin.

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Weickhardt Pipe Organs

are not stock instruments, but built to order according to the ever varying individual requirements. Result: Wonderful musical effects, such as only a real, complete and genuine MASTER PIPE ORGAN can produce.

WRITE FOR THEATRE ORGAN CATALOG

WANGERIN-WEICKHARDT CO.
112-124 BURRELL STREET
MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN U. S. A.

Give Your Patrons Better Pictures This Fall

MOVING picture patrons are demanding better pictures. They flock to the houses that show them regardless of increased admission prices. You must have good projection light if you want to attract and hold the most profitable business.

Follow the lead of the modern theatres, old and new, that are installing the

TransVerteR
TRADE MARK

—the most scientific device on the market for producing a projection light that is strong, brilliant, steady and always under perfect control of the operator. Guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded.

Has greater capacity and delivers better light than any other device on the market for the price. Two or three weeks is all we need for delivery. Order now and be ready for a record-breaking Fall business.

Write today for September Bulletin, which gives complete information and net prices, which are the same to all.

THE HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
1907 West 114th St., Cleveland, Ohio

STUDIO FOR RENT

DAY, WEEK OR MONTH

Finest indoor fire-proof studio on the coast. Center of the business district. Equipped with Winfield-Kerner lights. No glare or shadows.

Superior Developing and Printing

Expert and Efficient service.
Titles a Specialty.

CAMERAMEN

We Buy Undeveloped Negative

Subjects which are novel—trick pictures—popular science—popular mechanics—microscopical, etc. Write for particulars.

SUPERIOR FILMS COMPANY

ROBERT A. BRACKETT, Manager
Entire Tenth Floor
643 Olive Street, Los Angeles

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages284, 286.)

(Mutual Releases continued from page 306.)

MUTUAL CHAPLIN RELEASES.

The Fireman (Two parts—Comedy).
The Vagabond (Two parts—Comedy).
One A. M. (Two parts—Comedy).
The Pawnshop (Two parts—Comedy).

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES DE LUXE.

Oct. 5—The Shadow (American—Five parts—Drama) (No. 141).

MUTUAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

Sept. 25—The Secret of the Submarine No. 19 (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—The Secret of the Submarine, No. 20 (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 9—The Secret of the Submarine, No. 21 (Two parts—Drama).

MUTUAL STAR PRODUCTIONS.

Sept. 25—The Torch Bearer (American—Five parts—Drama—No. 139).
Oct. 2—Dulcie's Adventure (American—Five parts—Drama) (No. 140).
Oct. 9—Philip Holden-Waster (American—Five Parts—Drama) (No. 142).
Oct. 9—Redeemed (Turner—Five parts—Dr.) (No. 143).

THANHOUSER.

Sept. 29—The Black Terror (Two parts—Dr.).
Oct. 6—Arabella's Prince (Two parts—Dr.).
Oct. 13—At the Edge of the Aqueduct (Two parts—Drama).

VOGUE.

Sept. 24—Paste and Politics (Two parts—Com.).
Oct. 1—Poultry a La Mode (Two parts—Dr.).
Oct. 8—A Touch of High Life (Two parts—Comedy).
Oct. 15—Ducking a Discord (Two parts—Com.).

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

ASTRA.

Oct. 15—Shielding Shadow No. 3, "The Mystic Defender" (Two parts—Drama).

BALBOA.

Sept. 25—Grip of Evil, No. 11, "Mammon and Moloch" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 1—Grip of Evil, No. 12, "Into the Pit" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 8—The Grip of Evil, No. 13, "Circumstantial Evidence" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 15—The Grip of Evil No. 14, 'Humanity Triumphant" (Two parts—Dr.).

GOLD ROOSTER PLAYS.

Sept. 25—Saint, Devil and Woman (Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 8—The Pillory (Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 15—The Light That Failed (Five parts—Drama).

PATHE.

Oct. 1—The Shielding Shadow, No. 1, "Treasure Trove" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 1—The Moods of Medora (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 1—Florence Ross Fashions, No. 5 "Betty Selects Her Bridesmaid Frock" (Fashions).
Oct. 8—The Shielding Shadow, No. 2, "Into the Depths" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 8—U. S. Customs Inspection (Educational).
Oct. 8—The Sword of Damocles (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 15—Florence Rose Fashions, No. 6, "Betty at the Wedding" (Fashions).
Oct. 15—A Nation's Peril (Two parts—Drama).

PATHE NEWS.

Oct. 4—Number 80, 1916 (Topical).
Oct. 7—Number 81, 1916 (Topical).
Oct. 11—Number 82, 1916 (Topical).
Oct. 14—Number 83, 1916 (Topical).
Oct. 18—Number 84, 1916 (Topical)
Oct 21—Number 85, 1916 (Topical).

ROLIN.

Sept. 25—Jailed (Comedy).
Oct. 1—Luke's Speedy Club Life (Comedy).
Oct. 8—Heinie and the 400 (Comedy).
Oct. 15—Luke and the Bang-Tails (Comedy).

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS, INC.

Miscellaneous Releases.

ARTCRAFT PICTURES CORP.

October—Less Than the Dust (Drama).
Sept. 25—The Evil Women Do (Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—Wanted—A Home (Five parts—Dr.).
Oct. 9—The Chalice of Sorrow (Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 16—The Social Buccaneer (Five parts—Drama).

CHRISTIE FILM CO.

Sept. 18—A Seminary Scandal (Comedy).
Sept. 25—His Baby (Comedy).
Oct. 2—The Sad Sea Waves (Comedy).

CONSOLIDATED FILM CORP.

Sept. 25—The Crimson Stain Mystery, No. 6 (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—The Crimson Stain Mystery, No. 7 (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 9—The Crimson Stain Mystery, No. 8 Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 16—The Crimson Stain Mystery, No. 9 (Two parts—Drama).

FOX FILM CORPORATION.

Sept. 11—Her Double Life (Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—Where Love Leads (Five parts—Dr.).
Sept. 25—Fires of Conscience (Five parts—Dr.).

FROHMAN AMUSEMENT CORP.

October—The Conquest of Canaan (Drama).

HERALD FILM CORPORATION.

October.—Prima Donna's Husband (Five parts—Drama).

THOMAS H. INCE.

July—Civilization (Drama).

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE INC.

Sept. 18—Beatrice Fairfax No. 7 (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 19—Hearst-International News Pictorial No. 75, 1916 (Tropical).
Sept. 22—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No. 76, 1916 (Topical).
Sept. 25—Beatrice Fairfax, No. 8, "The Ainslee Ball" (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 25—The World's Wonderland (Curtis Scenic, No. 1).
—Animated Cartoons on same reel.
Sept. 26—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No 77, 1916 (Topical).
Sept. 29—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No 78, 1916 (Topical).
Oct 2—Beatrice Fairfax, No 9, "Outside the Law" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct 2—The World's Wonderland (Curtis Scenic, No. 2).
—Animated Cartoons on same reel.
Oct 2—The Flower of Faith (Five parts Dr.).
Oct 3—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No. 79, 1916 (Topical).
Oct 6—Hearst International News Pictorial, No. 80, 1916 (Topical).

IVAN FILM PRODUCTIONS.

October—Her Surrender (Drama).

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION.

Sept. 25—The Dawn of Love (Rolfe—Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—The Iron Woman (Popular Plays & Players—Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 9—Life's Shadows (Columbia—Five parts Drama).
Oct. 16—In the Diplomatic Service (Quality—Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 23—The Brand of Cowardice (Rolfe—Five parts—Drama).

PARAMOUNT PICTURES CORPORATION.

Sept. 25—Like Father Like Son (Klassic—Comedy.)
Sept. 25—The Quest of Life (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 28—Anton the Terrible (Lasky—Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—The Lash (Lasky—Five parts—Dr.).
Oct. 2—Nearly a Deserter (Paramount—Comedy).
Oct. 5—The Storm (Lasky—Five parts—Dr.)
Oct. 9—Intrigue (Pallas—Five parts—Dr.)
Oct. 12—Her Father's Son (Morosco—Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 16—Witchcraft (Lasky—Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 19—The Kiss (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 23—The Rainbow Princess (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).

PARAMOUNT-BRAY CARTOONS.

Sept. 14—Colonel Heeza Liar's Bachelor Quarters (Cartoon—Comedy).
Sept. 21—What Happened to Willie (Cartoon—Comedy).
Sept. 28—Bobby Bumps Starts a Lodge (Cartoon—Comedy).
Oct. 4—O U Rooster (Cartoon-Comedy).
Oct. 11—Colonel Heeza Liar Gets Married (Cartoon—Comedy).

PARAMOUNT-BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL PICTURES.

Sept. 18—Glasgow to Edinboro (Scenic).
Sept. 25—Bonnie Scotland (Scenic).
Oct. 2—A Scotch-Irish Reel.
Oct. 9—In Old Ireland (Scenic).
Oct. 16—Southern Italy, 37th (Scenic).

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION.

Releases for week of September 24.
Diane of the Follies (Fine Arts—Five parts—Drama).
The Dawn Maker (Kay-Bee—Five parts—Drama).

Releases for week of October 1:
Manhattan Madness (Fine Arts—Five parts—Drama).
Plain Jane (Kay-Bee—Five parts—Dr.).

Releases for week of October 8:
The Rummy (Fine Arts—Five parts—Dr.).
The Jungle Child (Kay-Bee—Five parts—Drama).

THE MOTION PICTURE FORUM.

Oct. 2—Motion Picture Portrait Studios of President Wilson and His Cabinet—the U. S. Government in Action.

UNICORN FILM SERVICE.

(Releases for Twenty-second Week.)
Oct. 2—Pen and Sword (Supreme—Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—Jenkins the Janitor (Judy—Com.).
Oct. 3—Through the Wall (Lily-Drama).
Oct 3—The Mysterious Ranger (Rancho—Dr.)
Oct. 3—His Sister's Beau (Judy—Comedy).
Oct. 4—The Country Sheriff (Jockey—Two parts—Comedy).
Oct. 4—The Convict (Puritan—Drama).
Oct. 5—Bud Wilson's Romance (Hiawatha—Drama).
Oct. 5—Rubes and Cabaretes (Hippo—Com.).
Oct. 5—A Daring Mission (Sunset—Drama)
Oct. 6—The Guilty One (Supreme—Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 6—The Live Corpse (Puritan—Comedy).
Oct. 7—Nobody's Claim (Buffalo—Two parts—Drama).
Oct 7—The Mode (Judy—Comedy).
Oct. 8—The Web (Lily—Three parts—Drama).

SELZNICK PICTURES.

Oct 16—The Common Law (Young Film Corp—Five parts—Drama).
November—War Brides (Herbert Brenon—Dr.).

WORLD PICTURES.

Sept. 4—The Almighty Dollar (Paragon—Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 11—The Velvet Paw (Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—Friday the 13th (Five parts—Dr.).
Sept. 25—Dark Silence (Five parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—The Scarlet Oath (Five parts—Dr.).

The Universal Camera For Motion Photography

Write for Illustrated Catalogue
The UNIVERSAL CAMERA CO.
540 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago

Branches { 1607 Times Bldg., New York
821 Market St., San Francisco

A Genuine PIPE ORGAN

can be operated from the simple keyboard of the piano, ORGAN ALONE — PIANO ALONE — OR BOTH TOGETHER. Write for particulars

HARMO PIPE ORGAN COMPANY

128 West 45th Street NEW YORK
1413 McCormick Bldg. CHICAGO

For the fullest and latest news of the moving picture industry in Great Britain and Europe.

For authoritative articles by leading British technical men.

For brilliant and strictly impartial criticisms of all films, read

THE BIOSCOPE

The Leading British Trade Journal with an International Circulation
American Correspondence by W. Stephen Bush of
"Moving Picture World"

85 Shaftesbury Avenue, London, W.

Specimen on Application

A Dependable Mailing List Service

Saves you from 30 to 50% in postage, etc. Reaches all or selected list of theatres in any territory. Includes name of exhibitor as well as the theatre in address. A list of publicity mediums desiring motion picture news. Unaffiliated exchanges looking for features. Supply houses that are properly characterized as such. Producers with address of studios, laboratories and offices. Information in advance of theatres being or to be built.
W74.

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY COMPANY

80 Fifth Avenue, New York — Phone 3227 Chelsea
429 Ashland Block, Chicago — Phone 2003 Randolph

Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

G. W. BRADENBURGH

802 Vine Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

FEATURE FILMS FOR SALE

Sealed Orders	Barker	7 reels	$175.00
From Gutter to Footlights	Barker	5 reels	100.00
An American Gentleman	Liberty	5 reels	125.00
For $5000 a Year (new)	Liberty	5 reels	175.00
Hearts United (new)	Liberty	4 reels	100.00

All films in splendid condition. Plenty of posters, photos, etc., gratis. Write for lists of bargains in one, two, three and four reel subjects. All films sent C. O. D., privilege of examination and partial delivery on receipt of 25% with the order.

SLIDES SLIDES SLIDES SLIDES SLIDES

Mr. Exhibitor: Our slides are bright, snappy, well worded and illustrated and will readily sell to your advertisers. Send for catalogue with special exhibitors' discount.

HOUSTON SLIDE CO., 415½ Main St., Houston, Texas.

FREE to all SOUTHERN EXHIBITORS, if you will cut this out and mail to us with the name of your theatre — one year's subscription to THE COSIKI the liveliest, classiest, and most up-to-date monthly humor paper in existence, will be sent to you free each month.

LUCAS THEATRE SUPPLY CO.
ATLANTA GEORGIA

COLUMBIA THEATRE BUILDING
47th Street and Broadway
New York City

Oct. 7, 1916

Mr. Theatre Manager:

Aren't you just a little bit tired of hearing your pianist, organist or orchestra grind out that monotonous mechanical movie music? As soon as you hear the first few notes, don't you know what is coming? If you want to remedy this, write me or have your musicians do so.

If you're from Missouri, let me show you that I have something better to offer.

Musically yours,

S. M. BERG.

HYDROQUINONE

GENERAL CHEMICAL COMPANY

NEW YORK PHILADELPHIA CHICAGO

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 284, 286.)

GREATER VITAGRAPH (V-L-S-E, INC.)

Sept. 4—The Return of Eve (Essanay—Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 4—His Wife's Good Name (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 11—The Phantom Fortune (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—Through the Wall (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—The Fall of a Nation (Seven parts—Drama).
Sept. 18—The Combat (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
Sept. 25—The Chattel (Vitagraph—Six parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—Scarlet Runner, No. 1, "The Car and His Majesty (Vitagraph—Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 9—Scarlet Runner, No. 2, "The Nuremburg Watch" (Vitagraph—Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 16—Scarlet Runner, No. 3, "The Masked Ball" (Vitagraph—Two parts—Dr.).
Oct. 23—Scarlet Runner, No. 4, "The Hidden Prince" (Vitagraph—Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 30—Scarlet Runner, No. 5, "The Jacobean House" Vitagraph—Two parts—Drama).

GEORGE KLEINE.

July 28—The Mishaps of Musty Suffer, Series 2, No. 6, "Strictly Private" (Comedy).
July 31—Gloria's Romance, No. 11, "The Fugitive Witness" (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 2—The Mishaps of Musty Suffer Series 2, No. 7 (Comedy).
Aug. 7—Gloria's Romance, No. 12, "Her Fighting Spirit" (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 9—The Mishaps of Musty Suffer Series 2, No. 8 (Comedy).
Aug. 14—Gloria's Romance, No. 13, "A Midnight Riot" (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 16—The Mishaps of Musty Suffer Series No 2, No. 9 (Comedy).
Aug. 21—Gloria's Romance, No. 14 (Two parts—Drama).
Aug. 23—The Mishaps of Musty Suffer Series No. 2, No. 10 (Comedy).
Aug. 28—Gloria's Romance, No. 15, "The Murderer at Bay" (Two parts—Dr.).
Sept. 4—Gloria's Romance (No 16, "A Modern Pirate"—Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 11—Gloria's Romance No. 17, "The Telltale Envelope" (Two parts—Dr.).
Sept. 18—Gloria's Romance, No. 18, "The Bitter Truth" (Two parts—Drama).
Sept. 25—Gloria's Romance, No. 19, "Her Vow Fulfilled" (Two parts—Drama).

States Right Features

CALIFORNIA MOTION PICTURE CORP

Nov.—The Woman Who Dared (Seven parts—Drama).

SAMUEL CUMMINS.

July—Germany's Battles at Verdun (Four parts—Topical).

EXCLUSIVE FEATURES, INC.

July—Where Is My Father? (Seven parts—Dr.).

FLORIDA FEATURE FILMS.

August—The Human Orchid (Five parts—Dr.).

GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO.

Sept.—Pages from Her Life (Five parts—Dr.).

KEMBLE FILM CORPORATION.

August—America Preparing (Ten parts—Top.)

E. S. MOSS MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION.

August—In the Hands of the Law (Drama).

MONARCH PHOTO-PLAY CO., INC.

October—Common Sense Brackett (Six parts—Drama).

PIEDMONT FILM CO.

June—The Mirror of Life (Five parts—Drama).

L. E. RUBEL & H. A. FARGO.

July—Uncle Sam Awake (Seven parts—Top.).

SIGNET FILMS.

July—The Jockey of Death (Drama).

SHERMAN ELLIOTT, INC.

October.—The Crisis (Selig—Drama).

SUPERIOR FILMS CO.

Sept.—The Faucet (Drama).

THE NATIONAL DRAMA CORPORATION.

June—The Fall of a Nation (Thirteen parts—Drama).

UNITY SALES CORPORATION.

Sept. 18—The Yellow Menace (Episode No. 3, "The Poisonous Tarantula—Two parts—Drama).
Sept.—The Lottery Man (Comstock—Drama).
Sept.—Torpedoed by Cupid (Eagle—Two parts—Comedy).
Sept. 25—The Yellow Menace, No. 4, "The Plot of a Demon" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 2—The Yellow Menace, No. 5, "The Haunted House" (Two parts—Dr.).
Oct. 9—Yellow Menace, No. 6, "The Torture Chamber" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 16—The Yellow Menace, No. 7, "Drops of Blood" (Two parts—Drama).
Oct. 23—The Yellow Menace, No. 8, "The Time Clock" (Two parts—Drama).

What Is More Important to YOU than an uninterrupted performance.

Think what a failure in your electrical apparatus would cost. Consider the effect on your patrons, the loss in time, which means money, the repairs on the apparatus.

Would you be willing to pay a little more for absolutely dependable guaranteed apparatus?

The Wagner WHITE LIGHT Converter

is eternally dependable. It was specially designed and built for projection service and is apparatus, and guaranteed.

Wagner Quality

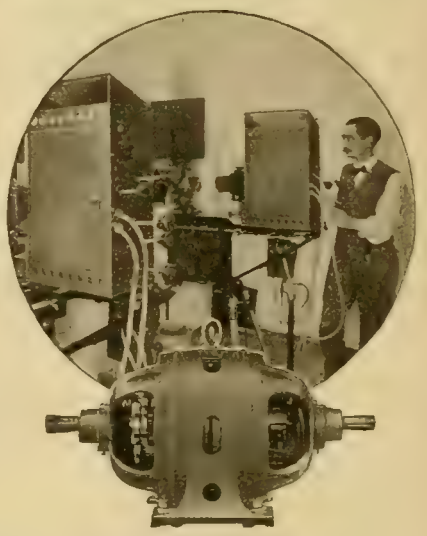
It is built to handle one, two and three arcs and to run on single-phase or polyphase currents.

Let us send you Bulletin 10923.



Wagner Electric Manufacturing Company,

Saint Louis, Missouri

295

BARGAINS IN MACHINES

Twenty-two machines slightly used, first class condition, Simplex, Power's 6 A's, Power's 6's, Edison B's, and Edison D's, low prices, quick sales.

CHAS. A. CALEHUFF, 1301 Race Street, Philadelphia

CANADA MOVIE MARKET

Only One Paper Reaches It Every Week
Write for Rates

THE BULLETIN
106 RICHMOND ST. W. TORONTO

Projection Engineer

Is your screen result unsatisfactory?
Is your projection current costing too much?
Are you planning a new theatre?
Are you contemplating the purchase of new Equipment?

Theatre plans examined and suggestions made as to operating room location. Operating rooms planned, etc., etc. Will personally visit theatres in New York City or within 300 miles thereof. Fees moderate.

(YOU ALL KNOW HIM) F. H. RICHARDSON (YOU ALL KNOW HIM)
Room 1434, 22 E. 17th St., New York City

MOTION PICTURE ELECTRICITY

By J. H. HALLBERG

THIS WORK COVERS

ELECTRICITY
ELECTRIC SERVICE
ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT
PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS
REFERENCE TABLES, ETC.

An up-to-date treatment of Moving Picture Theater Electric Installation and Projection, by a practical, experienced, electrical expert.

Illustrated and Substantially Bound. 280 Pages.
$2.50 per Copy. Postage Paid.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue New York

Ornamental Theatres

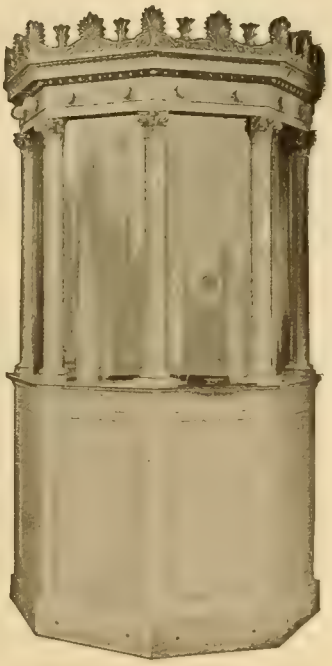
PLASTER RELIEF DECORATIONS

Theatres Designed Everywhere

Send for our 1916 catalog. It contains forty beautiful full-page illustrations—some in colors—of theatres we have designed and decorated. It shows several styles of ticket booths, lighting fixtures and ornaments; it will give you many valuable ideas for decorating your new theatre or improving the looks of your present one.

Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.
Archer Avenue and Leo Street, CHICAGO, ILL.



SCENIC and EDUCATIONAL FILMS

Write for descriptive catalogue containing subjects from all parts of the world.

NO RENTALS

GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO. 110 W. 40th St. New York, N.Y.

GOLD KING SCREENS ARE BEST

TEN DAYS FREE TRIAL

GOLD KING SCREEN CO., ALTUS, OKLA.

Perfect Developing and Printing

Negatives Developed . 1c ft.
Positive Printing . . . 4c ft.

TITLES in any language 5c complete per foot
Cards Free Tinting Free

Satisfaction guaranteed by our fifteen years' experience Special price on quantity orders

GUNBY BROS., Inc., 145 West 45th Street, New York City

Peace Pictures

Beautifully Colored

Also

European War Pictures
(Neutral)

Illustrated Poems
On our own country.

Terms Moderate

Accompanied by Violinist, Pianist, Operator, Lantern, etc., for Theatres, Lyceums and Clubs, in or out of town. Music for dances.

LOUISE M. MARION
445 W. 23rd Street, New York
Phone 10396 Chelsea

IL TIRSO AL CINEMATOGRAFO

The most important Film Journal in Italy.

Published every Monday at Rome. Excellent staff, special bureau of information. Correspondents in all parts of the world. Yearly subscription for foreign countries: $3.00.

Business Office: Via del Tritone 183, Rome, Italy

MOVIE STAR PHOTOS!

The Biggest Hit Yet With Theatre Patrons

1,000 Photos $2.25

These Photo Portraits are eagerly appreciated by patrons of up-to-date theatres all over the country. Something new and artistic, which gives you the kind of advertising you have been looking for. They reach the home and are read by the entire family.

Plenty of Room on Reverse Side for Full Weekly Program

Displaces the old-fashioned house program, yet costs no more. Use a different star each week. Send for samples and list of stars.

Theatrical Advertising Co.
28 Montcalm West Detroit, Michigan

Music Roll PRICES SMASH

Moving-picture theatre managers cut 55c. to 60c. on the dollar from their expense for player-piano music; get quicker delivery; choose from wider selection (over 2500 titles in classic, standard, popular pieces).

Already nearly 200 managers buy exclusively direct from us. Arrangement of our rolls celebrated; every one is full-score (no excerpts). Materials are highest quality, and exceptionally durable.

104-Page Catalog FREE

Shows how to get truly desirable (88-note only) player-music at genuine bargain prices. Delivery prepaid on $2 orders. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write TODAY.

B. F. Consumers Supply Co.
Station H, BUFFALO, N. Y.

CINE-MUNDIAL

A monthly publication, printed in Spanish and devoted exclusively to the interests of the moving picture industry throughout South America and Spanish-speaking countries.

MORE than 5,000 exhibitors and film buyers in Latin America receive our publication monthly. Is it possible that you are not interested in this new market?

ADVERTISING RATES: $50 A PAGE

CINE-MUNDIAL

17 Madison Avenue New York

Non-Breakable and Sanitary STEEL and CAST IRON
HIGH Quality
LOW Price

Opera Chairs
immediate shipment on many styles; Second Hand Chairs; out-of-door seating. Send measurements for FREE SEATING PLAN. Mention this paper.

STEEL FURNITURE CO.
Grand Rapids, Mich.; New York, 150 Fifth Ave.

Are You Tired
of playing waltzes and popular songs for all your pictures? Try "bringing out" the dramatic scenes with dramatic music. The

Orpheum Collection
contains the best music of this kind published. Issued in Three Series:

No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3.

Piano (24 pages each), 58 cts. for each series; $1.15 for any two; $1.70 for all three. Violin, 40 cts. each; 75 cts. for any two; $1.05 for all three. Cornet, 35 cts. each; 65 cts. any two; 95 cts. all three. First and second series have parts for Cello, Flute, Clarinet, Trombone and Drums. Practical for Piano alone, or in combination with any above instruments. Discounts on orders for four or more parts. Send for free sample pages. Note new address.

CLARENCE E. SINN
1103 Grace Street Chicago, Ill.

The Original and Leading Moving Picture Journal in Europe

The Kinematograph Weekly

The reliable Trade organ of Great Britain; covering the whole of the British Film market, including the American imported films. Read by everyone in the industry. Specialist writers for Finance, Technical Matters, Legal, Musical, Foreign Trading (correspondents throughout the world)—and every section devoted to the Kinematograph. Specimen copy on application to:—

The Kinematograph Weekly, Ltd.
6-11 Tottenham Street, London, W. Eng.

Get acquainted with the
ERBOGRAPH WAY
of Developing and Printing
ERBOGRAPH COMPANY
203-11 West 146th St., New York City

When You Want Opera Chairs Remember We Have

50,000 CHAIRS

Always in Stock
in six different designs in Antique Mahogany and Circasian Walnut finishes, assuring you of a satisfactory selection.

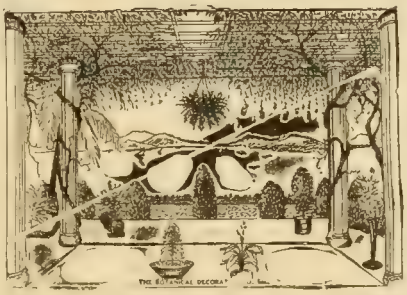
Immediate Service
Other designs of unupholstered and Upholstered Chairs in unlimited numbers furnished in 25 to 50 days after receipt of specifications.

General Offices 1010 Lytton Bldg. CHICAGO

AMERICAN SEATING COMPANY

Sales Offices in all Principal Cities

FLORAL THEATRE DECORATIONS



A good or bad impression is most always gained by the first glance.

FLORAL DECORATIONS GIVE ARTISTIC ATMOSPHERE

It produces charm-delights your patrons.

Artificial flowers are practically everlasting and need no care—the effect is the same as natural ones.

Our expert decorators are at your service—ready to give you ideas and estimates.

Write for beautifully colored catalogue—mailed free to you.

BOTANICAL DECORATING CO.
MANUFACTURERS OF ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS AND PLANTS
208 W. ADAMS ST., CHICAGO, ILL.
We quote absolutely the lowest prices ever offered on reliable goods.

Make Your Own Electricity With Cushman Electric Plants

The Government Order after inspection, before shipment.

Extremely light weight and compact; 4 H. P., 2 K. W. Outfit complete, weighs around 500 lbs.

Complete with all equipment—easy and ready to set up and run.

Throttle Governor, connected to Schebler Carburetor, assures clear, bright and steady pictures.

United States Bought 66 Cushman Outfits

The illustration shows 66 Cushman Electric Power Plants ready for shipment, that were purchased by the U. S. Government for use at Army Posts and in the field.

CUSHMAN MOTOR WORKS 938 NORTH 21st STREET LINCOLN, NEB.

RICHARDSON'S
MOTION PICTURE
HAND BOOK
FOR MANAGERS and OPERATORS
Published by
THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

RICHARDSON'S MOTION PICTURE HAND BOOK is a carefully prepared guide to perfect projection.

It is an invaluable help to every single individual in the trade who has to do with the mechanical handling of motion picture film or the management of a moving picture theatre.

There are over 680 Pages of Text and the illustrations include detail diagrams of all the leading makes of projection machines.

Substantially Bound in Red Cloth $4.00

Sent Postpaid on Receipt of Price by
MOVING PICTURE WORLD, 17 Madison Ave., New York City
MOVING PICTURE WORLD, 917 Schiller Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
MOVING PICTURE WORLD, 305 Haas Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

WHY?
SHOULD YOU IMPROVE YOUR THEATRE and Neglect the Projection
SPEER CARBONS
DO THE WORK

Trade Mark

SPEER CARBON CO.
DEPT. "W"
St. Mary's, Pa.

For Sale by Leading Motion Picture Supply Dealers, Including the Following
J. H. HALLBERG - - - 727 7th Ave., New York, N.Y.
KLEINE OPTICAL CO. - - - 166 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.
SOUTHERN THEATRE EQUIPMENT CO., 74 Marietta St., Atlanta, Ga. 1815 Main Street, Dallas, Tex.
E. E. FULTON CO. - - - 154 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.
KANSAS CITY MACHINE & SUPPLY CO. 813 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo.
G. A. METCALFE - 117 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.

The Projection Question is of vital importance to the up-to-date Exhibitor.

It Is Answered in Every Particular by the LATE MODEL MOTIOGRAPH

$250.00 for Hand-driven

$285.00 for Motor-driven

The Late Model Motiograph Represents the Essence of Simplicity, Strength and Durability

Priced for the Conservative Buyer

THE ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.
574 West Randolph St., CHICAGO, ILL.
Western Office:
833 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

FREE We Will Send FREE

with every order received within thirty days of the date of this publication a fifty page

Book Every Camera Man Needs

in order to properly and accurately identify each scene, keep track of exposures and avoid annoying and expensive scene "mix-ups."

One of these books will be delivered with every order for raw stock, developing or printing we ship within the next thirty days.

Afterwards, or now, we will sell these books for 15c per copy, 75c for six copies, $1.25 for one dozen copies—postage prepaid.

Incidentally, why don't you send today for description of our magnificent new laboratory-studio, and quotation on

Perfect Developing and Printing

There are reasons—
Come and see them.

Rothacker Film Mfg. Co.
1331 Diversey Parkway
Chicago, U. S. A.

"SIXTEEN YEARS OF KNOWING HOW"

WHEN YOU ARE INTERESTED

IN LONG DISTANCE PROJECTION —— OF MOTION PICTURES ——
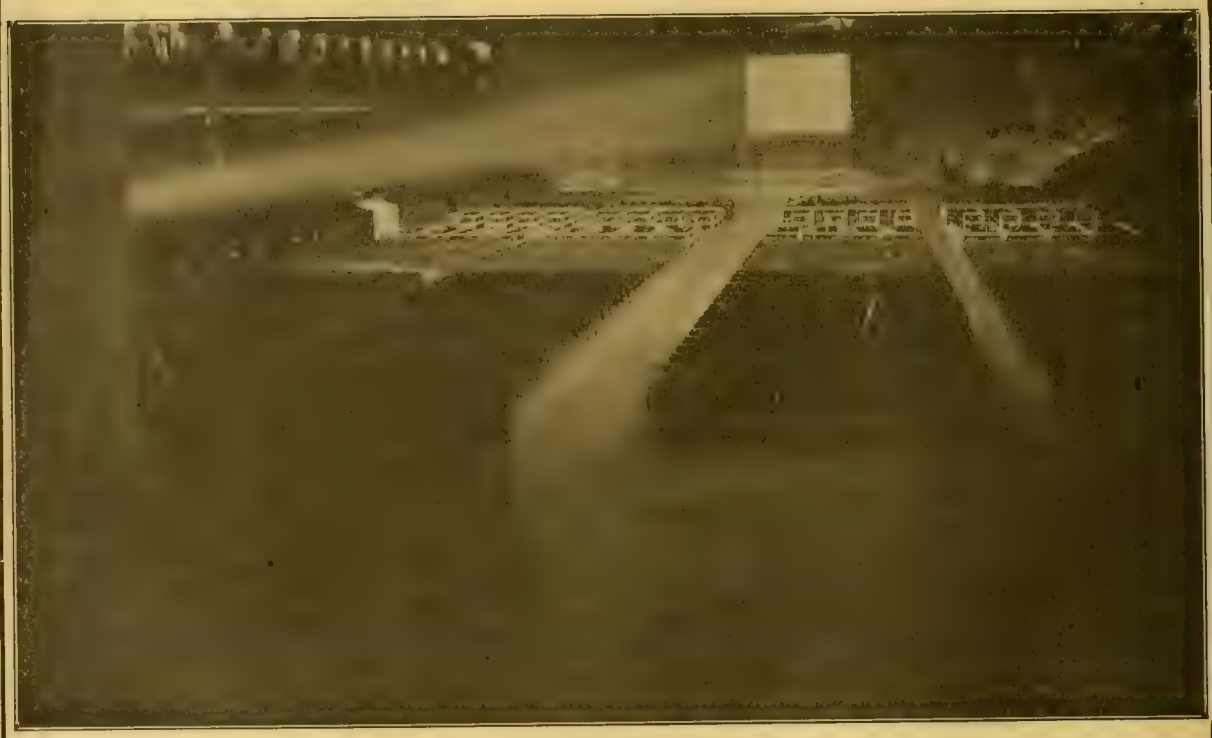
THINK OF THE RECORD MADE BY

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH



AT MADISON SQUARE GARDEN
NEW YORK CITY

300 FOOT THROW 34 FOOT PICTURE

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY
NINETY GOLD STREET NEW YORK CITY

Vol. 30, No. 3 October 21, 1916 Price 15 Cents

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "Prudence the Pirate" (Pathe).

Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510

Don't Experiment, Mr. Producer

Don't endanger the success of a costly production by putting your developing and printing into untried hands.

When you send your negatives to the Thanhouser Laboratories you are taking no chances.

You KNOW that Thanhouser developing and printing is of the highest quality. You have seen Thanhouser plays, you have admired Thanhouser photography.

A Thanhouser print is a perfect print. You know that.

The Thanhouser Laboratories are now ready to handle your work.

The same experts who develop and print Thanhouser negatives are at your command. The same laboratory facilities are open to you.

Why not be SURE that your prints will be as good as Thanhouser's?

Thanhouser Film Corporation

EDWIN THANHOUSER, President

New Rochelle, N. Y. Jacksonville, Fla.

The Year's Greatest

Laughter Frolic

FIRST

Essanay-Chaplin Revue of 1916

Especially arranged by Essanay from the Essanay-Chaplin comedy successes "THE TRAMP," "HIS NEW JOB," "A NIGHT OUT."

INFRINGERS BEWARE!

All Essanay-Chaplin comedies are copyrighted in the Library of Congress and infringers will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Released October 21st

All new special paper and advertising material

GENERAL FILM SERVICE

ESSANAY

GEORGE K SPOOR PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

ANIMATED WEEKLY

THE overwhelming popularity of the Universal Animated Weekly is based on its world-wide reputation for "First on the Screen with the World's Best News."

Thousands of Exhibitors have clamored for the Universal Animated Weekly because they knew its box office value. Thousands have been disappointed because, until recently, the Universal Animated Weekly has been available only to those wise Exhibitors who show the Universal Program in its entirety.

NOW—in response to this insistent and persistent demand, the Universal Animated Weekly is placed before Exhibitors under a new sales plan—that makes it available for booking by any Exhibitor, large or small, whether he is showing the Universal Program in whole, or in part, or not at all.

Write today for particulars. The Universal Animated Weekly will get the business on your dullest day. As a money-getter it is absolutely unparalleled. You should be showing it in your theatre now. Write today for full booking particulars to the UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY, 1600 Broadway, New York.

PROGRAM

YOU need the Universal Program to insure steady and profitable business. Features come and features go, but the one profitable standby—the one proven successful show—is the mighty Universal Program, that has pointed the way to success for thousands of Exhibitors.

If you are struggling to pay your rentals; trying to make money on features; wondering why the people will not come in to your show oftener than once a week—BOOK THE UNIVERSAL PROGRAM.

It gives every man, woman and child in your community the sort of entertainment they are willing to pay money to see; it is varied; it is the only scientifically balanced program on earth; there is melodrama, comedy, western pictures, heart interest dramas, emotional plays—pictures that entertain and that bring the people not once a week—but two or three times a week. There is the great Universal Animated Weekly—there are wonderful educational pictures, juveniles, and spectacular productions; something to interest everyone and bring them back time after time—all the time.

You will find the Universal Program the most profitable show you can put on. You don't have to guess about it. Every statement can be proved. Write any one of the 50 Universal Exchanges for full particulars and proof, or write direct to the home office, UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO., Carl Laemmle, Pres., "The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe," 1600 Broadway, New York.

State Rights

NOW selling on

"Idle Wives"

The Play that astonished New York City—The Play with the most powerful moral preachment ever presented on the screen—The Play that lifts the curtains of Society's glass houses—A dignified production endorsed by Press and Clergy, approved and applauded by thousands who have seen it.

Produced by

Lois Weber & Phillips Smalley

Producers of such big film successes as "Where Are My Children?" "Jewel," "Scandal," "Hypocrites" and many others. Choice State Right territory now open. Quick action necessary. Wire, write or telephone for information as to prices, terms, etc., or call on the STATE RIGHTS DEPARTMENT of the

UNIVERSAL

FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

CARL LAEMMLE, President

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

1600 BROADWAY - - NEW YORK

Red Feather Photo Plays

Present

"The ISLE of LIFE"

with

ROBERTA WILSON
FRANK WHILSON
AND HAYWARD MACK

From the Popular Novel by STEPHEN F. WHITMAN

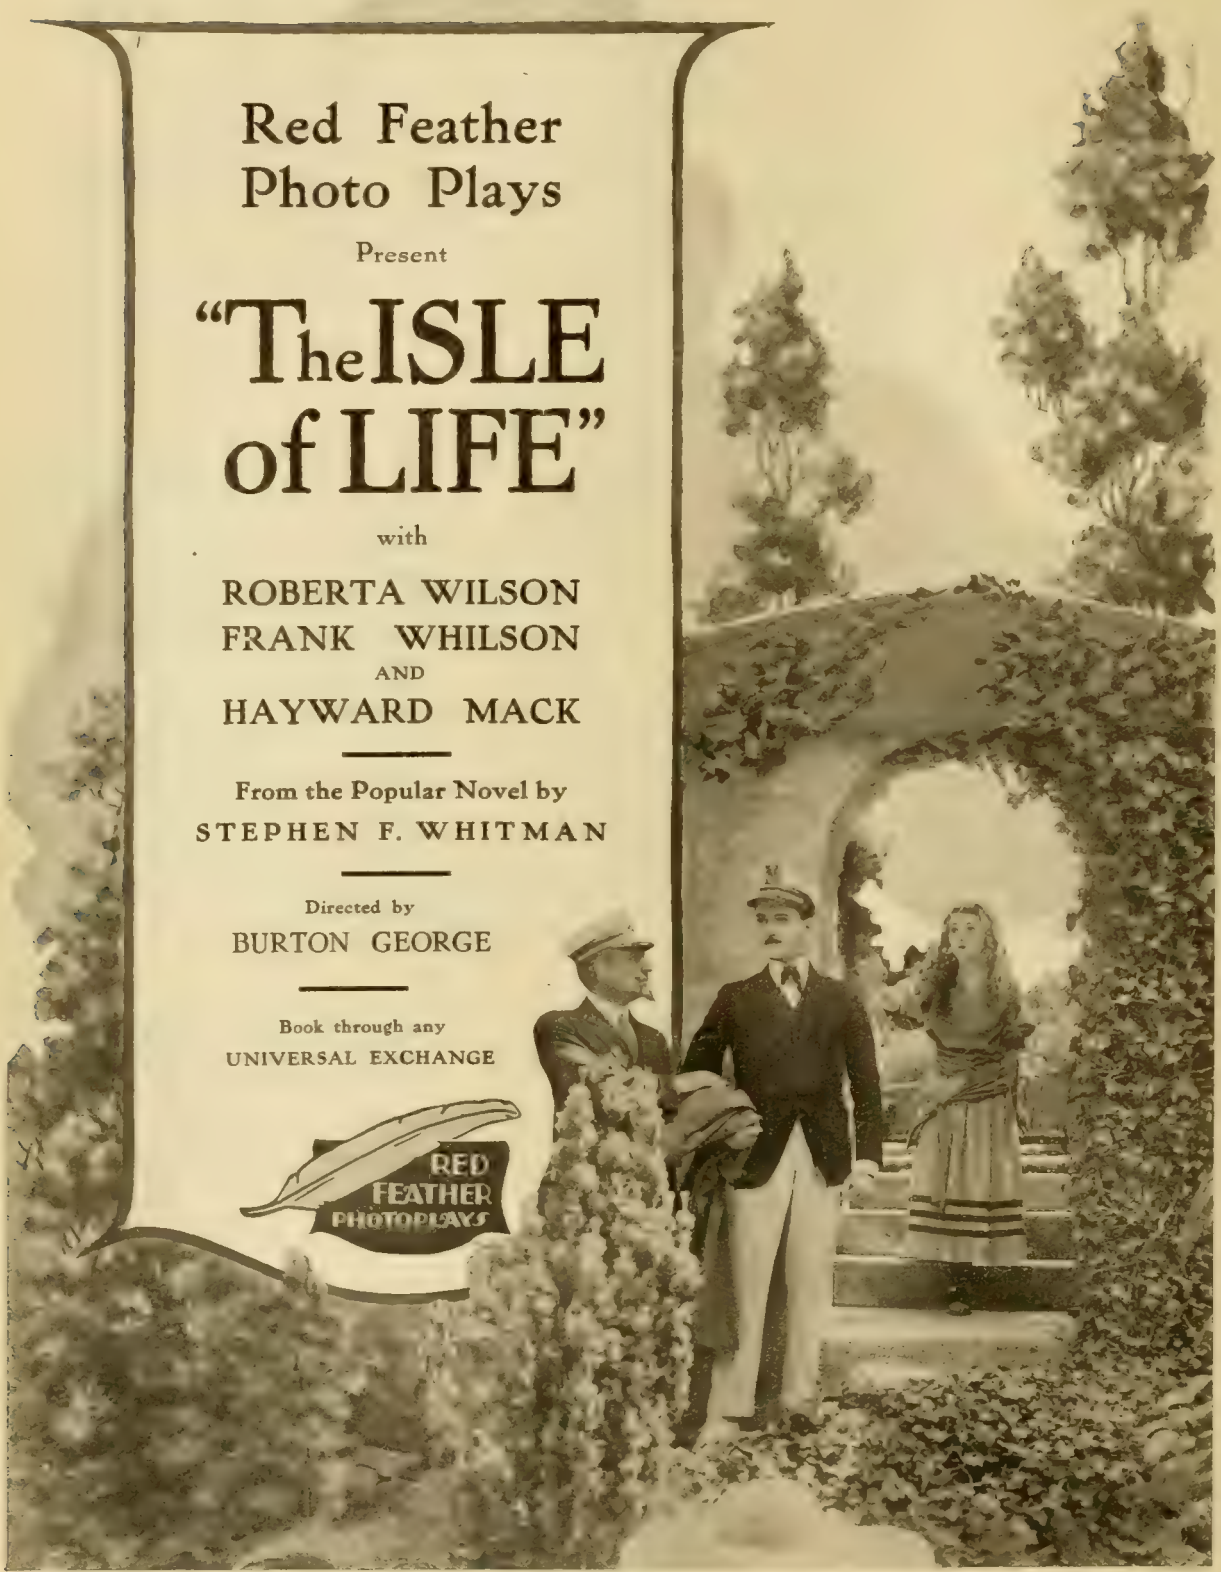
Directed by
BURTON GEORGE

Book through any
UNIVERSAL EXCHANGE

RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAYS



ARTCRAFT PICTURES

ARTCRAFT PICTURES CORPORATION

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

MARY PICKFORD

Announces

As the Release Date for

"LESS THAN THE DUST"

THE FIRST SUPERIOR PRODUCTION
MADE BY HER OWN COMPANY

HAVE YOU BOOKED IT?

ARTCRAFT PICTURES CORPORATION

729 SEVENTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

AND IN 15 OTHER CITIES

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Distributors of the Best in Motion Pictures

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

SUCCESS REFLECTS EFFORT

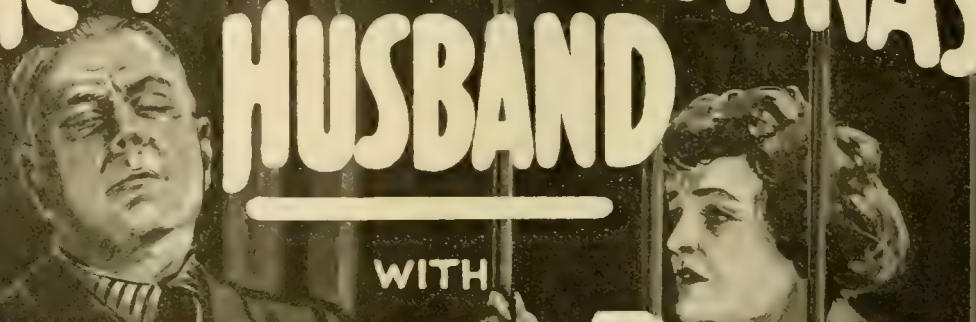
EFFORT ON THE PART OF MARCUS LOEW, F.F. PROCTOR AND WILLIAM FOX TO PROCURE THE BEST FEATURES FOR THEIR MILLIONS OF PATRONS, MEANT THEIR CONTINUED SUCCESS··· THEREFORE, WHEN THREE SHOWMEN LIKE THESE, SIMULTANEOUSLY AND UNANIMOUSLY BOOK FOR THEIR THEATRES

KATHRYN BROWNE DECKER

HOLBROOK BLINN

CLARA WHIPPLE

The PRIMA DONNA'S HUSBAND



WITH

HOLBROOK BLINN

KATHRYN BROWNE DECKER

AND

CLARA WHIPPLE

PRODUCED BY THE TRIUMPH FILM CORP. UNDER THE PERSONAL DIRECTION OF JULIUS STEGER AND JOSEPH A. GOLDEN.

THEN WE HAVE SAID ALL THERE IS TO SAY

BOOKING ARRANGEMENTS FOR N.Y. CITY, N.Y. STATE, NEW JERSEY AND EASTERN PENNSYLVANIA CAN BE MADE IMMEDIATELY.

HERALD FILM CORP.

126 W. 46TH ST. N.Y.C. LEO ROSENGARTEN, PRES. 'PHONE 6681 BRYANT.

A Superseries of Seven
Five-Reel Feature Plays

McCLURE PICTURES

the first

McCLURE PICTURES

McCLURE PICTURES

McClure Building McCLURE PICTURES New York City

CHRISTIE COMEDIES

"HE LOVED THE LADIES"

FEATURING NEAL BURNS — BETTY COMPSON
EDDIE BARRY — DAVE MORRIS
DIRECTION OF AL. E. CHRISTIE

OPEN MARKET RELEASE FOR OCTOBER 23RD

THE RAREST THING IN PICTURES IS A GOOD COMEDY — ONE THAT IS NOT A "FILLER" BUT A BOX OFFICE PRODUCER.

CHRISTIE COMEDIES SET A HIGH MARK IN CLEAN WHOLESOME FUN — NOT SLAPSTICK BUT FUNNY.

THE OPEN MARKET POLICY MEANS FREEDOM FOR THE EXHIBITOR. ALSO, WE POSITIVELY MUST MAKE GOOD COMEDIES, THE KIND YOU ARE GLAD TO GET.

1 EACH WEEK RELEASED THROUGH FOREMOST INDEPENT EXCHANGES OF UNITED STATES AND CANADA. WRITE OR WIRE.

Christie Film Co.

HEAD OFFICE AND STUDIOS — SUNSET BLVD. AT GOWER ST. LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

NEW YORK OFFICE LONGACRE BUILDING F. J. HAWKINS, REPRESENTATIVE

BLUEBIRD PHOTO PLAYS (INC) PRESENTS AN UNUSUAL ROMANTIC DRAMA
"LOVE NEVER DIES"
with RUTH STONEHOUSE & FRANKLYN FARNUM
DIRECTED BY WILLIAM WORTHINGTON

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS, (INC)

ARE you benefiting by the power of BLUEBIRD advertising, reaching nearly 10,000,000 people every week in the Saturday Evening Post?

Look around you in the industry and see if any Producer is doing what BLUEBIRD is doing? Not only that BLUEBIRDS have been acknowledged and acclaimed the most artistic screen producion of the day, providing the finest entertainment for millions of people every week, but we are telling nearly ten million people the BLUEBIRD Policy each week in the Saturday Evening Post. Thus we offer to Exhibitors, the two compelling forces that make for success. The supreme in picture productions plus the largest advertising campaign in the history of the industry.

The exhibition of BLUEBIRD Photoplays means building for permanence on the solid foundation of quality.

Foresighted Exhibitors have already signed up for BLUEBIRDS. Have you?

Book thru your local BLUEBIRD Exchange or communicate direct with

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS, (Inc.)

1600 BROADWAY NEW YORK

ONE SOLID WEEK IN THE FAMOUS BOSTON THEATRE!

This 4000 seat house has given an unprecedented booking because the Management recognizes in this Serial an extraordinary drawing power! You too, should book it for a week, Mr. Exhibitor!

THE SHIELDING SHADOW

Ralph Kellard

Produced by Astra
under the direction of
Louis J. Gasnier and Donald Mackenzie
featuring
Grace Darmond,
Ralph Kellard
and Leon Bary

PATHÉ

Pathé presents

Gladys Hulette

in the five-part
Gold Rooster Play

Prudence the Pirate

Produced by
Thanhouser

A play that charms - that takes you back to the rare old days when the heart was young and life a big adventure.

As good as "The Shine Girl"

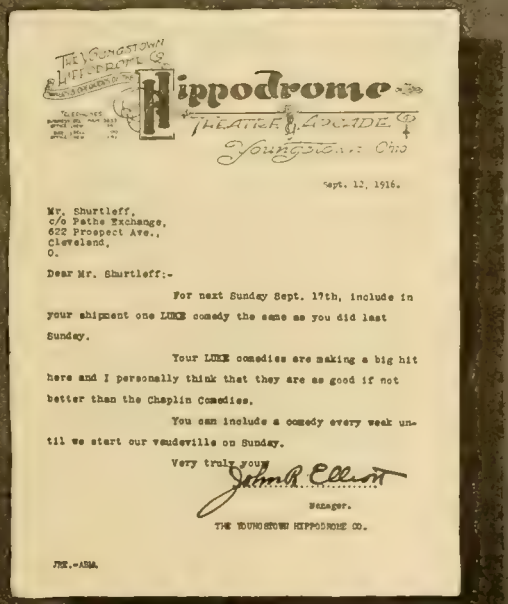
Released Oct. 22

"Your LUKE comedies are making a big hit!"

The Youngstown (O.) Hippodrome

Everybody knows the Youngstown Hippodrome. They know good pictures when they see them. Read what they say of the

ROLIN COMEDIES:



The Youngstown Hippodrome Co.

Hippodrome

Theatre Arcade

Youngstown, Ohio

Sept. 12, 1916.

Mr. Shurtleff,
c/o Pathe Exchange,
622 Prospect Ave.,
Cleveland,
O.

Dear Mr. Shurtleff:-

For next Sunday Sept. 17th, include in your shipment one LUKE comedy the same as you did last Sunday.

Your LUKE comedies are making a big hit here and I personally think that they are as good if not better than the Chaplin Comedies.

You can include a comedy every week until we start our vaudeville on Sunday.

Very truly yours,

John R. Elliott

Manager.

THE YOUNGSTOWN HIPPODROME CO.

JRE.-ABM.

Harold Lloyd, "Snub" Pollard and Bebe Daniels, the stars of these comedies, will make money for you.

PATHÉ

TRIANGLE

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF OCTOBER 15

SIR HERBERT TREE in "The Old Folks at Home"

Triangle Fine Arts

Now you are offered the opportunity of presenting to your patrons that famous English actor, Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, who without a doubt is the greatest stage star to appear on the screen. Knighted in England for his distinguished services to the drama, Sir Herbert has a world-wide reputation.

For years your patrons have heard of him, and now that they have an opportunity to see him in a Triangle Play few will miss the opportunity.

And this isn't just an ordinary picture. It's a strong, vital play that is built around one of the biggest emotional elements—the love of parents for their children. It touches the heart strings of everyone—parents and children alike. Written by the well-known American author, Rupert Hughes, the picture gives this prominent actor every opportunity to display his great ability.

There is no question but that this picture will be one of your biggest pullers.

W. S. HART in "The Return of 'Draw' Egan"

Triangle-Kay Bee

The value of W. S. Hart as a money getter needs no emphasis to the exhibitor. Past experience has proved that no star is more popular than this great screen actor. His personality seems to reach right down and "get" everyone, man, woman or child. They can't seem to help loving him even in his "bad-man" parts.

And that's the kind of a part he has in "The Return of Draw Egan," a speedy, breezy, western drama in which Hart takes the part of a sheriff quick on the "draw," always with a chip on his shoulder and ready to fight at a moment's notice—until the littlest girl captures him for her very own. It's a typical Hart play, just full of that stirring action the public loves.

We don't have to tell you how this picture will be accepted.

Keystone Comedies

Two more. And funnier than ever.

Every { Man / Woman / Child / Horse / Dog } Loves Bill (W.S.) Hart

And when it is known that he is going to appear at your theatre in his latest Triangle Play

"The Return of 'Draw' Egan"

you won't have to do any coaxing to get the crowds coming, but it may be necessary for you to run extra performances to satisfy the number who will surely want to see this great Hart Play.

State Right Buyers

WE OFFER OUR FIRST 5 REEL PRODUCTION
WITH
"THE CHILD BERNHARDT OF THE SCREEN"

Em Gorman
IN
The Soul of a Child

A REMARKABLE PHOTODRAMA
OF INTENSE HEART INTEREST
VIVIDLY PICTURIZED.

THE AQUISITION
OF THIS FEATURE
WILL MEAN THE S.R.O.
SIGN FOR YOU.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION APPLY

Pioneer Feature Film Corp.

126 WEST 46TH ST. N.Y.C. NATHAN HIRSH, PRES. TEL. 9037 BRYANT.

Unicorn

¶

THE STANDARD OF FILM PRODUCTION. . .

THE QUALITY SERVICE of one to three reel features . . .

WILL FILL THEATRES because:- . . .

THEY FEATURE POPULAR STARS. . . .

EACH SUBJECT IS HAND PICKED. . . .

THE DRAMAS ARE DRAMAS, The Westerns have the vivid sweep of masterpieces; The comedies, real screams of the screen.. . . .

TWENTY -ONE REELS A WEEK. . . .

DRAMAS - COMEDIES - WESTERNS . . .

TWENTY - EIGHT BRANCH OFFICES. . . .

EACH EAGERLY AT YOUR SERVICE. . . .

UNICORN FILM SERVICE
C O R P O R A T I O N

126 West 46th Street

New York City.

HERE IS THE PROOF :-

Manager, Bijou Theatre, Quincy, Ill., writes;-

"THE BARRIER OF RACE" scored a bigger hit here tonight than any other two reeler shown in months."

G.W.Daniels, Magnet Theatre, Vandalia, Mo., writes;-

"Unicorn Program giving excellent satisfaction, keep it up."

Mr. Puetz, Alton Theatre, Alton, Ill., writes;-

"No other service ever satisfied our Patrons like "Unicorn". We put on a highly advertised War Feature instead of Unicorn on one occasion, and our Patrons walked out saying they would return when Unicorn Films were shown."

Films

Ask the theatre that runs it.

Greatest Box Office Success in the History of the Screen

MAURICE COSTELLO
The Master Star
and Charming
ETHEL GRANDIN
in

The Crimson Stain Mystery

Directed by
T. Hayes Hunter

Novelized by Albert Payson Terhune

Produced by the Erbograph Co.
Presented by
CONSOLIDATED FILM CORP'N
O.E. GOEBEL, Pres. LUDWIG G.B. ERB, Treas.
1482 Broadway
NEW YORK

BOOKING NOW AT

METRO EXCHANGES

WM. N. SELIG'S

"THE CRISIS"

By WINSTON CHURCHILL

Read what the critics say:

McQuade of M. P. World—"A great production. A lasting monument to the motion picture art."

Smaney, Dramatic Mirror—"An epoch in motion pictures is established by 'The Crisis.' The greatest heart interest story ever produced."

Eltonhead, M. P. News—"A Wonderful picture; direction and photography flawless."

Adam Shirk, Morning Telegraph—"An accurate and highly artistic rendering of Churchill's novel that will prove a powerful attraction wherever shown."

Milligan, Billboard—"Selig has produced a picture on a par with the greatest that have preceded it."

Kennedy, Motography—"One of the few pictures made for all time. Of broad and powerful appeal. 'The Crisis' achieves true greatness."

Rath, Motion Picture Mail—"We could fill up a page of laudatory comments on 'The Crisis.'"

Wid—"This production is big, impressive and beautifully produced."

Beecroft, Exhibitors' Herald—"This masterpiece will undoubtedly make the hit of the season."

All proclaim it a perfect picturization of America's Greatest American Story

For state rights communicate with

SHERMAN-ELLIOTT, Inc.

Suite 1702

220 West 42nd Street, New York City

EVERY COMEDY A FEATURE

PEREZ (TWEEDLEDUM)

"The Scream of the Screen"

IN

TWEEDLEDUM COMEDIES

NEXT RELEASE

A SCRAMBLED HONEYMOON, 2 reels October 16th

Followed by

SOME HERO 1 reel October 23rd
TWEEDLEDUM'S BUSY NIGHT 2 reels October 30th

PRODUCED BY
EAGLE FILM COMPANY,
Jacksonville, Fla.

BILLY DUNN
Supervising Director

Exclusively distributed by

UNITY
729 7th AVE. NEW YORK

RELEASED ON THE METRO
PROGRAM
OCTOBER 23.
B. A. ROLFE
presents
LIONEL
BARRYMORE supported by GRACE VALENTINE
in
The BRAND of COWARDICE
Produced by
ROLFE PHOTOPLAYS, Inc.
A 5 Act METRO wonderplay of power, written by Charles Maigne and directed by John W. Noble

METRO'S
SPECIAL
PRODUCTION de LUXE

Romeo and Juliet

WITH

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN

AND

BEVERLY BAYNE

THE GREATEST PICTURE OF THE YEAR

NOW
BOOKING AT ALL
METRO
EXCHANGES

THOMAS H. INCE'S

STUPENDOUS PHOTO SPECTACLE SUCCESS

CIVILIZATION

PRESIDENT WILSON, CHIEF DIRECTOR of the UNITED-STATES congratulating THOS. H. INCE, CHIEF DIRECTOR of the CINEMA on his production "CIVILIZATION" and the message which it carries to mankind.

PRESIDENT WILSON
ENDORSES
THOS H. INCE'S
MILLION DOLLAR PHOTO SPECTACLE

CIVILIZATION

THE MASTER PRODUCTION OF ALL TIME AND THE BIGGEST AND SAFEST PROPOSITION EVER OFFERED IN THE MOTION PICTURE BUSINESS

STILL STANDS SUPREME

A FEW TERRITORIES STILL OPEN

ALL INQUIRIES OF STATE RIGHT BUYERS—
AND EXHIBITORS GIVEN PROMPT ATTENTION

EXECUTIVE OFFICES; TIMES BLD'G, NEW YORK, N.Y.
J. PARKER READ JR., GENERAL MANAGER.

MUTUAL NEWS

"What's Going On In The Mutual"

THE MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION, 68 EXCHANGES

OCTOBER 21, 1916

Demand for Varied Programs Answered In Mutual Libraries

THE problem of presenting a varied program is an extremely vital one to the exhibitor. The trend of the day is toward an evenly balanced program—one in which there is just the right proportion of smiles and tears. No theatre can be successful which presents nothing but comedies every day. And on the other hand theatre patrons soon become satiated with too much drama. The novelty film is always a welcome offering. The exhibitor who studies his patrons carefully, who seeks to cater to their likes and avoids the sort of pictures they dislike, who searches the market and books the productions that will enable him to vary his program, is the successful exhibitor. He knows the time spent in carefully selecting his program means money in his pocket, success for his theatre and satisfaction on the part of his patrons.

Vast Mutual Libraries.

Mutual exchanges are vast libraries from which the exhibitor can pick and choose. He can find, at any of the sixty-eight Mutual exchanges, vast stocks of dramas. He can find comedies of any length or style. He can discover novelties that will please his patrons. If it's powerful drama that he seeks, a shelf-full of William Russell Mutual Star Productions greets his eye. If he wants stories of Big Business and daring feats, the Helen Holmes Series will satisfy his wants. If he yearns for slap-stick comedy, surely he can be satisfied with a long list of Chaplin-Mutual Specials. A still different variety of pictures is his for the asking in the Kolb and Dill Series of Mutual Star Productions. As for the novelties—a glance over any of the Mutual Weeklies, the various issues of Reel Life or the "Seeing America First" and "Kartoon Komics" will prove a solution to his problem. Mary Miles Minter and Richard Bennett Mutual Star Productions have set an absolutely new standard in the way of multiple reel features. Florence Turner pictures are popular everywhere—Mutual has quantities of them in stock. Margarita Fischer and Harry Pollard have long been famous for their unusual offerings—a long series of films starring Margarita Fischer, is soon to be released by Mutual. It will pay any exhibitor to drop into his nearest Mutual exchange and look over the vast supply of unusual features that make up the Mutual libraries.

The Week's Releases

Mutual Star Production.

Brand.	Title.	Reels.	Leads.
American,	Bluff.....	5	Kolb & Dill

Mutual Masterpicture.

American, The Voice of Love.... 5 Greenwood & Coxen

Monday, Oct. 16th.

		Reels.
American,	The Franchise	2

Tuesday, Oct. 17th.

Mutual, The Law of Nature ..... Edwin August 2

Wednesday, Oct. 18th.

Mutual, Mutual Weekly No. 94..... 1
Gaumont, See America First and Cartoon Komics 1

Thursday, Oct. 19th.

Gaumont, Looking Westward..... 2

Friday, Oct. 20th.

Cub, He Wouldn't Tip..... 1

Saturday, Oct. 21st.

Cub, That Doggone Baby..... 1
Cub, The Deacon's Widow..... 1

Sunday, Oct. 22d.

Vogue, Her Painted Pedigree ..... Paddy McQuire 2
Gaumont, Reel Life 1

Big Announcements Coming

President John R. Freuler of the Mutual Film Corporation expects in the near future to make some announcements of the utmost importance to every exhibitor in the United States. They will relate to the signing of some new stars—players whose names are known wherever films are shown. President Freuler is thus proving his intention to carry out the policy inaugurated when Mutual Star Productions were first announced.

Kolb and Dill Seen In Another Mutual Star Production

"BLUFF" is the title of the newest Kolb and Dill Mutual Star Production. It is five reels in length. It is released the week of October 16. The two stars are better than ever before, in the opinion of all who have seen the picture. They appear again as Louie and Mike, the two characters that are now known to the public everywhere. Louie is the janitor of a thirty-two story New York sky-scraper. Mike is proprietor of a confectionery store in a small town. Louie thinks he has discovered a formula for making gold. Mike becomes interested in the idea. The two form a partnership with the assistance of Harold Wainwright, a young millionaire. Sheer bluff helps them to hoodwink a rich broker of Wall Street into buying the formula. The formula instead of making gold creates another valuable product. After many complications, Mike, Louie and Harold all "make good" and become exceedingly wealthy.

"Bluff," alone, is a feature attraction second to none. Combined with the other Kolb and Dill Mutual Star Productions it is a link in a long chain of successes. The entire Kolb and Dill Series can now be booked at any of the sixty-eight Mutual Film Exchanges.

Charlie Chaplin's latest Mutual Special Feature, "The Pawnshop," has established new records for success. Exhibitors can secure bookings on this and the previous Chaplin-Mutual films at any Mutual Exchange.

"Voice of Love" Features Greenwood and Coxen in Most Unusual Story

The intimate home life and love entanglements of a woman fortune teller, or astrologist, serve as the theme for this week's Mutual Masterpicture. It is entitled "The Voice of Love." It features Winnifred Greenwood and Edward Coxen. It is five reels in length. Each reel is crammed with action. Each reel is filled with surprises. It is a story that will fascinate and delight.

Winnifred Greenwood appears as a widow who believes she has accidently killed her husband. To support herself she tells the fortunes of the wealthy, posing as an astrologer. To her comes a young man of wealth with whom she falls in love. Later, in New York, the young man attends a Belgian Relief Bazaar. His palm is read by a beautiful girl with whom he falls in love. The girl proves to be the daughter of the woman astrologer. The mother learns of the love affair. But she does not recognize the girl as her own daughter. To hold her lover, the mother enlists the services of an accomplice. Later she discovers the girl's identity. The accomplice is exposed as the real slayer of the astrologer's husband. And then all ends happily, for the mother accepts the proposal of a wealthy attorney, and the daughter weds the man she has learned to love.

Bookings for this Mutual Masterpicture are now being made at all Mutual exchanges.

AMERICAN FILM COMPANY INC., Presents
The Celebrated Vaudeville Headliners

KOLB & DILL
IN "BLUFF"

A Human-Interest Drama In Five Acts. Third of a Series of Mutual Star Productions Featuring Kolb and Dill. .

KOLB & DILL FEATURES

Now Playing:
"A MILLION FOR MARY"
THREE PALS"–"BLUFF-"

Coming KOLB & DILL in
"A PECK O'PICKLES"
"BUTTIN' IN DER VEST"
"DECENT DEUCES"

Each of These Kolb and Dill Features is in Five Acts. Book The Entire Series At Any MUTUAL EXCHANGE

MUTUAL NEWS

AMERICAN FILM COMPANY, INC., Presents

A Mutual Masterpicture In Five Acts

THE VOICE OF LOVE

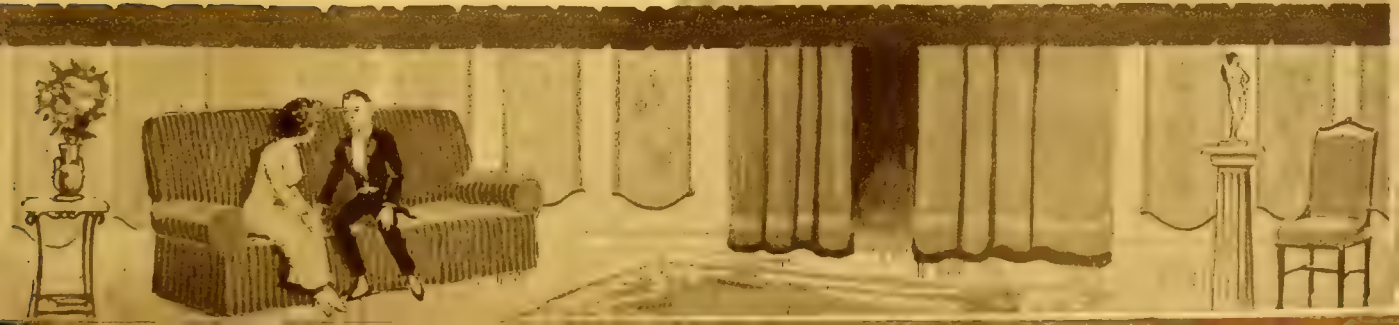
Featuring

WINIFRED GREENWOOD AND EDWARD COXEN

A Remarkably Strong Society Drama In Which A Double Romance Is Revealed.

The Exterior Scenes In This Production Are Unusually Picturesque. Directed By Rea Berger.

Released The Week Of Oct. 16th. Booking Now At 68 Mutual Exchanges.



MUTUAL NEWS

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION Announces

The Inimitable Comedian

CHARLIE CHAPLIN
IN
THE PAWNSHOP

The Title Suggests Some Of The Original Comedy Situations Developed In This Newest MUTUAL-CHAPLIN

Sixth of a Series of Mutual-Chaplin Special Features Made Under The $670,000.00 Per Year Contract. Now Being Booked At 68 Mutual Exchanges.

Now Playing: CHARLIE CHAPLIN

The FLOORWALKER ONE A.M.
The FIREMAN The VAGABOND
The COUNT The PAWNSHOP

Mutual Exchanges Are The Only Places In America Where The Newest Chaplin Features May Be Booked. See Your Nearest Mutual Exchange AT ONCE!

MUTUAL SERIES

Make Weekly Features of these Three Gaumont Single Reels

THE MUTUAL WEEKLY

News of the World FIRST in Motion Pictures

REEL LIFE The Mutual Film Magazine

Bears the Same Relation to a Magazine that the Mutual Weekly Bears to a Newspaper

SEE AMERICA FIRST

Scenic Views of Cities, National Parks, Places of Beauty and Historic Interest

and

Gaumont's Kartoon Komics

Animated by Harry Palmer

Two Great Mutual Series

FANTOMAS On the Screen NOW

5 Thrilling Episodes, Each Complete in 3 Reels

COMING! THE VAMPIRES COMING!

Or the Arch Criminals of Paris

9 Sensational Episodes, Each Complete in 3 Reels

Gaumont

Gaumont Co.

Gaumont

FLUSHING, N. Y. JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION PRESENTS

The Fearless Film Star

HELEN HOLMES

IN A NEW AND SPECTACULAR CHAPTER PLAY

A LASS OF THE LUMBERLANDS

FIFTEEN CHAPTERS.
DIRECTOR J·P·McGOWAN

Released Oct. 23rd
BOOKINGS AT MUTUAL EXCHANGES

Six thousand Exhibitors requested "a new HELEN HOLMES SERIAL," following their tremendous success with "The Girl and the Game." In response, we announce this new and spectacular chapter-play—Helen Holmes in "A LASS OF THE LUMBERLANDS." This new production is in fifteen chapters—a new feature chapter will be released each week, beginning Monday—OCTOBER 23RD—thru the sixty-eight Mutual Exchanges.

EXHIBITORS: We have made this new chapter-play BIG for your success. We know that your success means our success. We have made the rental price low—VERY LOW—because we want you to make BIG money. The price for HELEN HOLMES in "A LASS OF THE LUMBERLANDS" is within the reach of EVERY exhibitor. Wire, write or visit your nearest MUTUAL EXCHANGE NOW for prices and dates. Don't miss this opportunity for BIG PROFITS!

WIRE, WRITE OR SEE YOUR NEAREST MUTUAL EXCHANGE
-AT ONCE!

HELEN HOLMES — Starring in
The Spectacular Chapter Play
A LASS OF THE LUMBERLANDS

The Ragged Princess

WITH DAINTY

JUNE CAPRICE

WRITTEN BY FREDERIC CHAPIN
SCENARIO BY JOHN W. KELLETTE —
DIRECTED BY JOHN G. ADOLFI

FOX FILM CORPORATION

BEAUTY IN OVERALLS

Romps through the photoplay that tells of the thrilling adventures of a little orphan, who, like the child of the Fairy-Tale, gets riches and lives happily ever afterward. See the

WILLIAM FOX

PHOTOPLAY

THE TRAGEDY OF LOVE

As his offering toward the Shakespearian Tercentenary

WILLIAM FOX

Presents

Romeo and Juliet

The sweetest story ever told

With that Renowned Screen Artist

THEDA BARA

And an incomparable cast of more than 2500 persons.

Released on Regular Fox Program

ROMEO and JULIET

Directed by J. Gordon Edwards
Scenario by Adrian Johnson

FOX FILM CORPORATION

WILLIAM FOX COMBINES!

A combination has been effected between Fox Film Corporation and EXHIBITORS who are using Fox Feature Service in the United States—a combination that insures to you, MR. EXHIBITOR, protection against the future.

The BIG stars of any film producer are MADE BIG BY THE EXHIBITORS THEMSELVES. Without the co-operation and aid of EXHIBITORS, no film star can attain enduring fame.

It is only just and fair to you, MR. EXHIBITOR, that you reap the financial harvest from that which you have created.

It is eminently unfair to you to take from your Feature Service any BIG STARS whom you have played through their days of mediocrity, while they were climbing the ladder of fame.

You, MR. EXHIBITOR, have helped make many such BIG stars in your feature service. Among them are the BIG stars of Fox Film Corporation.

William Fox stars are still in your service. They have not been withdrawn and offered you as specials at a price far in excess of your service price.

This combination in which you, MR. EXHIBITOR, are a partner, insures the repayment to you of the money you have expended in advertising and popularizing those William Fox stars, who today are your best box office attractions.

Such is the combination that has been effected

By

WILLIAM FOX

And

FOX FILM CORPORATION

INTERNATIONAL

announces

MRS. VERNON CASTLE

in "PATRIA"

THE SUPREME SERIAL—A ROMANCE OF PREPAREDNESS

Written by LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

Produced by WHARTON, Inc.

Release date to be announced soon

INTERNATIONAL

Golden Eagle Features

¶ The International promised that the Golden Eagle Features would be artistic productions, satisfactory to the most discriminating audiences and advantageous to exhibitors.

"JAFFERY"

The First of the Golden Eagle Features

presents

C. AUBREY SMITH

and

ELEANOR WOODRUFF

¶ Dramatized from the popular novel by William J. Locke and produced for INTERNATIONAL by the Frohman Amusement Corp.

¶ The unqualified endorsement of Jaffery by hundreds of exhibitors and hundreds of thousands of patrons is ample evidence that the International has kept its promise.

"The Flower of Faith"

The Second of the Golden Eagle Features

with

JANE GREY and FRANK MILLS

Produced by the Superb Pictures Corp.

¶ A powerful picture of early frontier life. Circumstance thrusts together a simple country girl and a strong man. Provincial standards misinterpret their love and rugged frontier justice attempts to avenge the supposed wrong.

¶ An enthralling drama which is bound to prove one of the best features of the day.

¶ Backed by the tremendous publicity which supports all Golden Eagle Features.

INTERNATIONAL

DO YOU KNOW

That Beatrice Fairfax offers the best money-making opportunity of any motion-picture series on the market today?

It has every requirement for success:

Stars—Harry Fox and Grace Darling with added features for each episode selected from a list which includes Elaine Hammerstein, Betty Howe, Olive Thomas, Nigel Barrie, Mae Hopkins, Mary Cranston and Evelyn Farris.

Story—By Beatrice Fairfax from her daily newspaper experiences.

Direction—Produced under the personal direction of Leo and Theo. Wharton.

Publicity—Unequalled in quality and quantity. Do you know the stories of Beatrice Fairfax are published in 46 American newspapers every day?

Advertising—Twenty-five big dailies, including the great chain of Hearst newspapers, are now carrying big display ads. for this series.

"The Wages of Sin"

the latest episode of

BEATRICE FAIRFAX

¶ Harry Fox, noted comedy star and Grace Darling, winsome and sympathetic, appear in their usual roles. Featured with them are Betty Howe and Nigel Barrie.

¶ This picture is replete with lights and shadows of life as well as photography.

¶ The mysterious third key of the harmless looking instrument is the avenging agent that demands full payment of those who have sinned.

¶ If you are not booking this splendid series you are paying the penalty of lost profits.

¶ Join the ranks of the favored today.

¶ Take advantage of the "unparalleled publicity" supporting "unexcelled pictures."

Produced by Wharton, Inc., for

INTERNATIONAL

A Brand New Idea

The Fashion Drama

A motion picture of thrills and excitement centred around a magnificent fashion display.

Perfect photography, wonderful mechanical effects, exquisite costuming and a real story that will hold the attention of men, women and children.

A one reel novelty of the highest quality; two releases each month.

A splendid fashion show and a vivid drama featuring

MINETA TIMAYO, in

"The Adventures of Dorothy Dare"

The first release, "It's Never Too Late," deals with the temptations of a salesgirl in a big store who longs for finery that surrounds her.

Written and directed by H. E. Hancock for the

INTERNATIONAL

(Release Date to be Announced Soon)

EXCHANGES

NEW YORK CITY
729 7th Ave.
CHICAGO
207 So. Wabash Ave.

BOSTON
48 Piedmont St.
ATLANTA
146 Marietta St.

LOS ANGELES
912 So. Olive St.
SAN FRANCISCO
280 Golden Gate Ave.

PHILADELPHIA
1335 Vine St.
WASHINGTON
712 11th St., N. W.

PITTSBURGH
804 Penn Ave.
ST. LOUIS
3313 Olive St.

AGENCIES

BUFFALO
39 Erie St.
ALBANY
68 State St.

NEW ORLEANS
315 Carondolette St.
KANSAS
Gloyd Building

MINNEAPOLIS
606 Produce Exch. Bldg.
INDIANAPOLIS
New Lyric Theatre Bldg.

DETROIT
71 Griswold St.
SALT LAKE CITY
131 East, 2nd St., So.

SELZNICK PICTURES

Joseph Schenck
Presents

NORMA
TALMADGE

At the head of her own producing company in

"THE PRICE SHE PAID"

From the brilliant novel by DAVID GRAHAM PHILLIPS

Under the direction of
ALLAN DWAN

The director who made all those wonderful
Douglas Fairbanks Pictures

LEWIS J. SELZNICK ~ SOLE DISTRIBUTOR
NEW YORK CITY

SELZNICK PICTURES

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG

NEW YORK
CHICAGO
BOSTON
Have endorsed
"THE COMMON LAW"
As The Film Triumph Of The Year

This Superb Seven-Part Production is now ready for GENERAL RELEASE
October 16

ALBERT CAPELLANI
Director General

The second Offering is Nearing Completion

IT IS A Tremendous Adaptation of THE FOOLISH VIRGIN
by
THOMAS DIXON
Author of
The Birth of a Nation"

LEWIS J. SELZNICK ~ SOLE DISTRIBUTOR
NEW YORK CITY

SELZNICK PICTURES

HERBERT BRENON

Sole Author and Producer of "A Daughter of the Gods"

Your Patrons Will ask You to Play it

Has Completed His Presentation of NAZIMOVA in "WAR BRIDES"

MARION CRAIG WENTWORTH'S Timely and Thrilling Play

This Supreme Attraction Will be the Next SELZNICK - PICTURES Release

LEWIS J. SELZNICK ~ SOLE DISTRIBUTOR
NEW YORK CITY

SELZNICK PICTURES

KITTY GORDON
(The Hon. Mrs H.H. Beresford)
in
"VERA THE MEDIUM"
From The Novel
by
Richard Harding Davis

Beauty-Rich, Exotic
Stunning Beauty-in
A Setting of Mystery
And Romance

LEWIS J. SELZNICK ~ SOLE DISTRIBUTOR
NEW YORK CITY

MARIE DORO
Lasky Star
Greatest Stars on Earth Play in Paramount
PICTURES
FPL
LASKY
Paramount
Pictures

The Exhibitor who has said to himself, "I am going to run the Paramount Program," should remember that there's almost as big a breach between saying and doing as there is between failure and success.

GREATEST STARS ON EARTH IN THE GREATEST PLAYS YET FILMED

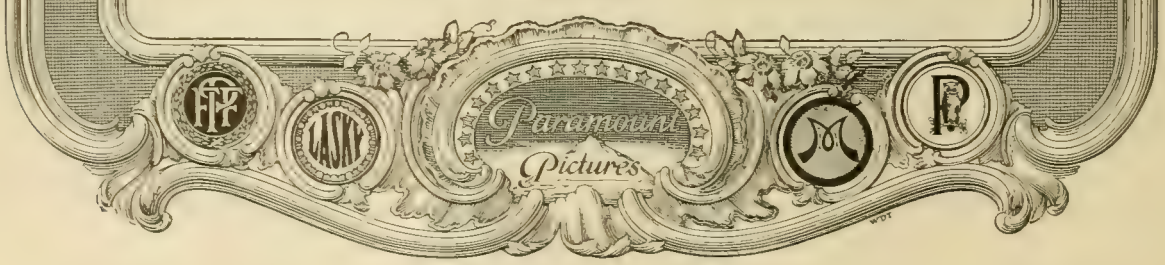
Produced by

FAMOUS PLAYERS
LASKY
MOROSCO
PALLAS

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.



LENORE ULRICH

Paramount Pictures of the Week

RELEASED MONDAY, OCTOBER 9th

LENORE ULRICH

IN

THE INTRIGUE

A story of international scheming to obtain the rights to an X-Ray gun—the invention of an enterprising young American.

The "Dramatic Mirror" says: "There is no questioning the entertaining quality of this production."

Produced by

PALLAS PICTURES

Canadian Distributors, Famous Players Film Service, Limited
Calgary, Toronto and Montreal

Paramount Pictures

VIVIAN MARTIN

Paramount Pictures of the Week

RELEASED THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12th

OLIVER MOROSCO

PRESENTS

VIVIAN MARTIN

IN

HER FATHER'S SON

A charming play of the South "befoh de wah," in which Miss Martin plays two roles

Produced by

THE OLIVER MOROSCO PHOTO PLAY CO.

Canadian Distributors: Famous Players Film Service, Ltd.,
Calgary, Toronto and Montreal

FPL LASKY Paramount Pictures

ANN PENNINGTON
FAMOUS PLAYERS STAR

Forthcoming Paramount Pictures

DANIEL FROHMAN

PRESENTS

ANN PENNINGTON

IN

THE RAINBOW PRINCESS

A drama of circus life with a charming love story

Produced by

FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM CO

ADOLPH ZUKOR, President

Special music for this production—the famous Schirmer Scores—may be obtained at your exchange

Canadian Distributors, Famous Players Film Service, Limited
Calgary, Toronto and Montreal

Released by Paramount Pictures Corporation

FPL LASKY Paramount Pictures

FANNY WARD
LASKY STAR

Forthcoming Paramount Pictures

JESSE L. LASKY

PRESENTS

FANNIE WARD

IN

WITCHCRAFT

THE COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY PRIZE PLAY

Produced by

JESSE L. LASKY FEATURE PLAY CO.

JESSE L. LASKY
President

ARTHUR S. FRIEND
Treasurer

CECIL B. DeMILLE
General Director

Canadian Distributors, Famous Players Film Service, Limited
Calgary, Toronto and Montreal

Released by Paramount Pictures Corporation

Paramount Pictures

OWEN MOORE
MARGUERITE COURTOT
FAMOUS PLAYERS STARS

Forthcoming Paramount Pictures

DANIEL FROHMAN
PRESENTS

OWEN MOORE

AND

MARGUERITE COURTOT

IN

THE KISS

Produced by

FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM CO

ADOLPH ZUKOR, President

Special music for this production—the famous Schirmer Scores—may be obtained at your exchange

Canadian Distributors, Famous Players Film Service, Limited
Calgary, Toronto and Montreal

Released by Paramount Pictures Corporation

Paramount Pictures

PARAMOUNT

SHORT REEL SUBJECTS

PICTOGRAPHS
BURTON HOLMES
BRAY CARTOONS

They round out the greatest program on earth.

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE a/ FORTY FIRST ST
NEW YORK, N.Y.

BLACK DIAMOND COMEDIES

RELEASED BY PARAMOUNT

PARAMOUNT

ANNOUNCES
THE SECOND ONE-REEL COMEDY

"BRIDGET'S BLUNDER"

PRODUCED BY

UNITED STATES MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION

WILKES-BARRE, PA.

J. O. WELSH, Pres. F. W. HARMON, Vice-Pres. D. L. HART, Treas.

Released October 16th by Paramount Pictures Corporation

FF LASKY Paramount Pictures M P

WORLD PICTURES BRADY-MADE
WILLIAM A BRADY
in association with WORLD PICTURES
presents
ETHEL CLAYTON
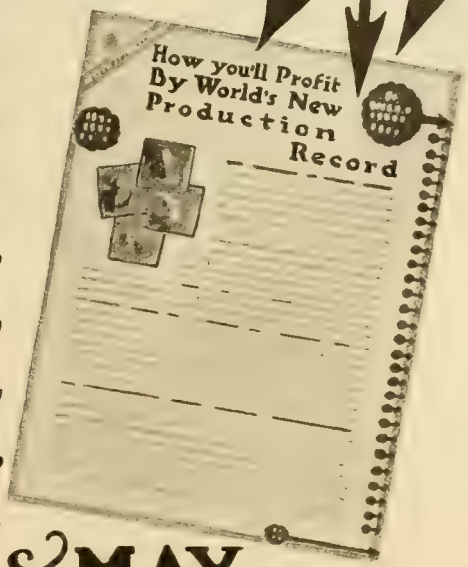
HOLBROOK
BLINN
in
"The Hidden Scar"
Story by Mrs. OWEN BRONSON
Directed by BARRY O'NEIL

26 to 58

We are mailing every Exhibitor in America a copy of this announcement. It contains a list of FINISHED World Pictures These Brady-Mades will be released OCTOBER, NOVEMBER, DECEMBER, JANUARY, FEBRUARY, MARCH, APRIL, & MAY.



MUTUAL SPECIAL FEATURE

GREAT·SMASHING·THRILLS·PACK·THEATRES

The SECRET of the SUBMARINE

Electrifying Events of this Patriotic film novel hold audiences breathless with excitement. The weird mysteries of the plot, with the love and dramatic suspense carried from chapter to chapter, bring enormous crowds to see and follow the story.

Book It Today

—for 15 weeks of big profits. Juanita Hansen and Thomas Chatterton, in the leading roles in "The Secret of the Submarine," will fill every seat in your theatre.

Apply to "The Secret of the Submarine" Department of any Mutual Exchange or at Mutual Film Corporation, 222 South State Street, Chicago, Ill.

American Film Co., Inc.
SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON, President
Chicago, Ill.

The Hand of Destiny, and—

MAE MARSH, the Most Famous Comedienne-Tragedienne in Filmland Today

From Schoolgirl to Movie Star Overnight

David W. Griffith "discovered" Mae Marsh near the studio one morning in the midst of "sweet sixteen" tears.

"If you can sob like that before the camera," he said, "you are a wonderful actress."

And that was the start of her remarkable career—a schoolgirl, all unconscious of her genius, guided by Destiny into fame and fortune.

The Hand of Destiny May Be Guiding You Into the People's Movie Star Contest

YOU—might be scheduled by Destiny to become as great as Mae Marsh. YOU may have that inherent talent, those unrealized attributes for which every director in screenland is ever searching. All you need is opportunity. Here it is!

The Chicago Herald offers you the opportunity of being one of 89 contest winners to take part in a great photoplay, supervised by Louella O. Parsons, Herald Photoplay critic and scenario expert, and to be directed by one of filmland's three greatest directors. These players needed are:

Four Stars—1 young woman, 1 young man, 1 little girl, 1 boy.

Five young women substars.

Five young men substars.

Seventy-five persons of both sexes for minor roles.

Already hundreds of Herald movie fans have entered as candidates, believing they have latent talent for movie acting. Begin today; the longer you put off entering the less chance you have of winning.

Full particulars, new tips and suggestions every day in the

CHICAGO HERALD

Circulation Over 200,000 Daily

· KLEINE-EDISON-SELIG-ESSANAY SERVICE ·

Ask Any Exhibitor

Ask any exhibitor what BILLIE BURKE in "GLORIA'S ROMANCE" has done for him. Get the facts—FACTS LIKE THESE:

David E. Russell, Manager of the King's Theatre, St. Louis, Mo., says:

"Even with our 2,000 capacity, we are unable to accommodate the crowds."

W. S. McLaren, Manager of the Majestic-Colonial Theatre, Co., Jackson, Mich., says:

"Our business has increased steadily since the first chapter".

L. H. Wilk, of the Crown Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio, says:

"Nothing in my ten years' experience as an exhibitor has consistently done so well."

J. Miller, of the Empire Theatre, New Orleans, La., says:

"I run each chapter a solid week, but the patrons never tire of BILLIE BURKE."

H. E. Ellison, showing "GLORIA'S ROMANCE" at the American and Rex Theatres, Salt Lake City, Utah, says:

"This serial has attracted a nice added patronage."

Stanley V. Mastbaum, showing "GLORIA'S ROMANCE," at the Arcadia and Palace Theatres, Philadelphia, Pa., says:

"It brought us a splendid amount of extra business."

J. T. Turner, of the Turner and Dahnken Circuit, San Francisco, California, says:

"We booked it for our entire circuit. It met with great success."

George M. Fenberg, Manager of the Auditorium Theatre, Newark, Ohio, says:

"I think so much of it I expect to repeat it."

And so on—hundreds of exhibitors who are showing Billie Burke in "GLORIA'S ROMANCE" are pronouncing this wonderful twenty-chapter feature the biggest attraction of the year. Bookings are now being made at all exchanges of KLEINE-EDISON-SELIG-ESSANAY-SERVICE.

GEORGE KLEINE
80 Fifth Ave. New York City

By Arrangement with F. Ziegfeld, Jr.
GEORGE KLEINE Presents
Miss
Billie Burke
in
GLORIA'S ROMANCE
Supported by HENRY KOLKER
A Motion Picture Novel by Mr. & Mrs. RUPERT HUGHES

KLEINE-EDISON-SELIG-ESSANAY

SERVICE

"THERE'S MONEY IN IT!"

"THE COUNTRY THAT GOD FORGOT"

James S. McQuade in Moving Picture World says: "'The Country That God Forgot' tells the story of a man's great love for his wife, of that wife's nearly wrecking her own life and his by failing to understand her own heart, and of a loyal partner whose friendship is staunch and true in the face of death itself . . . As much as has been written of Western life in this country, one cannot fail to be impressed that the story is different from any that has been read and that it grips strongly at the elemental life that is in each of us."

"THE COUNTRY THAT GOD FORGOT"

William C. Esty, 2nd, in Motion Picture News, writes: "'The Country That God Forgot' is one of those rare features that practically every Exhibitor, catering to any class of patrons, can book with the certainty of pleasing one hundred per cent of his audience. The story combines every element that makes for good entertainment, and each element is present in just the right proportion. Mr. Neilan tore a slice out of life itself and spread it raw on the celluloid. The cast is remarkable. The locations used are magnificent. The photography is good."

"THE COUNTRY THAT GOD FORGOT"

"A very unusual production with a very unusual ending"—Mr. Benson in Exhibitor's Herald. "An above the average Western."—Juanita Gray, Chicago Examiner. "A fine motion picture drama"—Genevieve Harris, Motography. "A noteworthy offering"—Luella O. Parsons, Chicago Herald. "There is no better frontier type than Thomas Santschi. He is ably supported by George Fawcett. The story is big and gripping. No one has ever surpassed it in a western subject"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"THERE'S MONEY IN IT!"

BOOK IT NOW

KLEINE-EDISON-SELIG-ESSANAY SERVICE

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

KLEINE-EDISON-SELIG-ESSANAY

SERVICE

HENRY B. WALTHALL
with Antoinette Walker
is presented in
A Stirring Drama of Love and War
"The Sting of Victory"
in 5 acts
Book It Now
By Charles Mortimer Peck
Directed by J. Charles Haydon

EDNA MAYO
with Eugene O'Brien
is presented in
The Artistic and Fascinating Drama
"The Return of Eve"
in 5 acts
Released Oct. 16th
By Lee Wilson Dodd
Directed by Arthur Berthelet

Essanay
GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT
1333 Argyle St., Chicago

KLEINE-EDISON-SELIG-ESSANAY
SERVICE

The Thomas A. Edison Studios

ANNOUNCE

The Heart of the Hills

A five part feature play of mystery and adventure with a startling climax of exceptional power, adapted from David Whitelaw's popular novel, "The Girl from the East."

Featuring

MABEL TRUNNELLE

and

CONWAY TEARLE

Supported by a stellar cast of film-trained favorites, including Robert Conness, Bigelow Cooper, Helen Strickland and Marie LaCorio.

COMING, WEEK OF OCTOBER 30th

BOOK IT NOW

Write or wire our office nearest you

KLEINE-EDISON-SELIG-ESSANAY
SERVICE

80 Fifth Avenue, New York, and all principal cities

KLEINE-EDISON-SELIG-ESSANAY

SERVICE

BRYANT WASHBURN

and

MARGUERITE CLAYTON

are presented in

"The Prince of Graustark"

in 5 acts

By George Barr McCutcheon
Directed by Fred E. Wright

A sequel to the feature success "Graustark" and pronounced by all critics greater and more fascinating than the original

Released Nov. 6

Trademark Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.

ESSANAY

GEORGE K. SPOOR PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

KLEINE-EDISON-SELIG-ESSANAY

SERVICE

General Film Service

Grant Police Reporter

Kalem's Super-Series

The most sensational quality series ever produced—astoundingly daring thrills never before attempted, stunning the mind by their reckless audacity and fearless disregard of peril. Featuring

Dare-Devil George Larkin

and

Ollie Kirkby

In the most costly one-reel stories ever staged. By

Robert Welles Ritchie

A one-reel series soon to be the most talked of film production on the market. You can't afford to miss it. Go to your General Film Exchange today and see the first episode:

"The Code Letter"

Released October 20th

Each Episode a Complete Story

(These scenes enlarged from the film of "The Code Letter")

KALEM COMPANY

235 West 23rd Street New York City

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX
EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter
J. P. CHALMERS, Founder.
Published Weekly by the

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY
17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.
(Telephone, 3540 Madison Square)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President
E. J. Chalmers.....Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie.....General Manager

The address of the officers of the Company
CHICAGO OFFICE: Suite 1704 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5262
PACIFIC COAST OFFICE: Hess Building, Seventh St. and Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone, Broadway 8482

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands.....$3.00 per year
Canada.....3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid).....4.00 per year

Change of address should give both old and new addresses in full and be clearly written. Two weeks' time may be required to effect the alteration.

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—One dollar for twenty words, over twenty words, five cents per word.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTE. Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, P. O. Box 926, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(Index to this issue will be found on page 454.)

"CINE MUNDIAL," the monthly Spanish edition of the Moving Picture World, is published at 17 Madison Avenue by the Chalmers Publishing Company. It reaches the South American market. Yearly subscription, $1.50. Advertising rates on application.

Saturday, October 21, 1916

Facts and Comments

WHEN we advise our readers to keep pictures of the "white slave" type out of their houses they know that we ourselves keep these pictures or mention of them out of our columns. What will the exhibitors think of an editor who urges them to banish objectionable films from their screens and then cheerfully accepts money for advertising those same films? Constantly jumping from one side of the fence to the other produces mental dizziness, fatal to straight vision.

* * *

A PROGRESSIVE exhibitor in the Smoky City sends us a most interesting and instructive article recently published in a prominent daily of his town. The editor of the paper had some member of his staff interview a number of local ministers of prominence touching their opinions on motion pictures. All the clergymen interviewed declared their friendship for the picture. Some of them rather proudly admitted that they were "regulars." One of them said that he "attends motion picture shows often" and that "he finds them interesting, instructive, restful and elevating." All are enthusiastic in their appraisal of the screen as an educational agent and all unite in saying that the "film is a foe of the saloon." There is, of course, a warning against bad pictures, but we read not a word in favor of legalized censorship.

* * *

TEACHERS of high and low degree have lately been heard to condemn the motion picture "because they detract from other educational forms." We don't know just what this means; we are merely quoting from the report of a Teachers' Institute in a Pennsylvania town. Commenting editorially on this pedagogic plaint, one of the papers in the city prints a few words of admonition to the teachers. "The fault," says the writer, "lies with the schools. They don't teach the pupils to read. They don't teach them to spell. They don't teach them to write. They don't stimulate their interest in many things that are useful. How can the boys and girls be expected to read intelligently? Naturally they turn to the pictures which they can understand." We used to call that an "argumentum ad hominem" when we were at school. There isn't any better.

* * *

SOME one has asked us to define an objectionable film. It's a matter of instinct rather than a question of logic. As a rule every man and woman in the audience feels instinctively when common decency has been outraged. We turn away from certain things in life because they offend our inherited and conventional notions of decency. We may not be able to analyze these feelings, we may not be able to reduce them to the form of a syllogism, but we obey them without question. We will not attempt a general definition, but we have found that many of the films that are supposed to teach a horrible lesson belong to the category of offensive pictures. There is no need to depict prostitution at close range for the sake of an alleged lesson. As one of our Supreme Court justices said in a recent case: "The public need not be shown the advantages of proper sanitation by opening the sewers and sticking its nose in the garbage pails."

* * *

IN CITIES where the prevailing price of admission is five cents it is very hard to get decent prices for the big features. Said one exhibitor at a recent meeting in Philadelphia: "Exchanges dealing in big features, I mean productions of great length and good quality, have found out that the five-cent towns make a poor showing for them. When people are used to the five-cent idea ten cents seems like a mountain and anything above that price is resented."

* * *

ON ANOTHER page of this week's issue of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD the readers will find the substance of an address made on behalf of the motion picture men before a prominent woman's club in the East. We have printed the salient points of the address with a view of being of service to our readers. All over the country women are taking a profound and lively interest in the motion picture both as an entertainment and as a social and civic problem. American women are intelligent and are inclined to be fair. They are anxious to hear from the motion picture men. We can gain their good will if we meet them in a spirit of co-operation. They realize that they know but little about the "inside" of the industry and they want facts to form a sound judgment. Whenever they want to hear from us we ought to grasp the opportunity to make friends of them. We hope the address in this issue will help toward that end.

Big Fields Untouched

By Louis Reeves Harrison

TRUTH is so much stranger than fiction that the effect on many people who think themselves clear-visioned is that of abnormal spectacles on normal eyes. They can not see as well as those who are depending simply upon the naked eye of common sense. The man who wears the worst form of astygmatic glasses is the one who mistakes the slow-thinking processes of a large audience for ignorance. Some of us can tell what a man is going to say before the words are out of his mouth. Others reach comprehension of what is expressed by a process quite as sure, even if it is much slower than that achieved by high mental concentration.

The average audience must be addressed with great clarity—that is admitted—but a very large percentage of that audience, particularly outside of the big cities, has been educated, and the balance is willing to learn all it can be taught. To address ignorance in this country is to reveal ignorance of the people addressed. One has only to glance at the character of periodicals having a circulation of a million or two, read by five or ten millions, to appreciate that moving pictures will not lose by putting forth all that is of live interest, vital to our growth, high in quality, and addressed primarily, although clearly, to minds not primitive, stirring primitive ones to look up.

We address feeling through the pictured story in order to make the little places of entertainment a source of delight, and that must go on for the sake of mental recreation among the many whose lives are darkened with perpetual drudgery. Still, by way of piquant variety, if only as an appetizer, it would do to give some news of the kind we do not get, showing wonderful changes going on instead of fires and railroad wrecks.

A very large number of the people who attend the picture shows are so busily occupied with promoting life that they have very little time to acquire an idea of what they would really like to know. They have to pick up knowledge at random as they go along, their principal object often being to know which side of their bread is buttered. To them the new things of the world may be as entertaining as a story. For those who are younger the effect is worth the effort—"who knows nothing in his thirtieth year is nothing in his fortieth, has nothing in his fiftieth, learns nothing, is nothing and comes to nothing."

Consider the mighty reflex in this country of the European War! We are active enough as a race, but we have gone along easy lines in some departments of achievement to the disadvantage of our native ingenuity. But there is a newly aroused spirit in our industrial activity that has its picturesque and interesting side only now and then indicated. Go to the Benzol works with a camera and append to the picturing some idea of what has been done "when the Devil drives we needs must," because the devils of war compelled us to enlarge our scope of invention. Go to the coke ovens and illustrate what chemical marvels are being extracted from that by-product.

It will not do to send a man to such places whose chief accomplishment is that of turning the crank of a camera. He would surely bring the camera back, but very little of what he was sent after. What he usually photographs, to judge from "news" films, is the stuff of which we might as well remain ignorant, as it is not worth being known. It might be worth while to send along a man who knows something about what is to be described, who has the scientific vision and can reflect the facts of live interest.

One form of American ingenuity which has become highly developed from necessity is revealed in fine glassware, another in porcelain, and there is a direct application to the moving picture industry in the making of glass for camera lenses. There is another in coal dyes, now being almost miraculously produced, and many others in materials used by photographers, which became very scarce at the beginning of the European War. Most welcome, possibly, is the conversion of cotton from our tremendous fields into almost pure cellulose. Quite as welcome to publishers and lithographers will be the economic utilization for the making of paper of wood pulp now wasted in our lumbering operations.

Millions of people are directly interested in the scientific development now going on throughout the country, yet we are asked to look at purely destructive fires and railroad wrecks as "news." That kind of "news" might wisely be replaced with something that is really new and as really worth knowing. All through the realm of scientific discovery there are rich beds of dramatic material, most of them wholly disregarded, and a lack of intelligent presentation painfully obvious in those shown on the screen.

Theatrical people, in spite of all the good they have done in contributing to the development of moving pictures, are strongly inclined to stick to theatrical methods, and this tendency presents over and over again on the screen a theatrical conception of characters in a story. Take the case of the farmer. The stage portraiture of him is very much the same as it was when we grown-ups were children. Veterans of those days still survive, their ranks rapidly thinning, but those old corncobs are no longer typical of the American farmer. They are almost as far removed from him as a dugout is from an ocean greyhound.

The theatrical view of a farmer is merely cited as an illustration of a very weak spot in stage presentation. We should be truthful, rather than technical, in the presentation of character. Therein lies one of the great purposes of a screen story, yet this splendid field is almost untouched. Authors are at fault in not giving attention to character development—the initiative is with them—there are thousands of varieties of human beings so far as their intellectual and emotional make-ups are concerned, and this highly interesting part of the story should be determined in advance, rather than leave character development to actors of innate and temperamental peculiarities.

The American farmer of today is among our finest gentlemen, occasionally a university man, more often a highly educated and sturdy specimen of our race product, industrious, independent, intelligent, a powerful stiffener to the backbone of true democracy. To hold him up as an awkward simp is not art—it is crass stupidity. The great trouble is that screen plays are made with haste. They are carelessly written, hurriedly revised and put on under pressure. Natural consequence is a lack of consistent performance by the people of the screen story.

Two big and untouched fields are those of our marvelous industrial advancement during the past two years and the study of human character as we know it to be, a wondrous complex of conflicting traits. The great interest in any story relates to the response of its people to dramatic, or critical, situations. It is very pertinent to the story that it should bring out the latent qualities of the people concerned in the action. The greatest plots in the world lie hidden in human nature.

Our Friends and Our Foes

THE House Committee on Education consisted of fifteen members of whom eleven favored the Hughes Federal Censorship Bill and of whom four stood with the motion picture men and fought the bill vigorously. We owe the four friends on the committee a great debt. They not only worked against censorship in the committee room but they submitted a splendid minority report which has been printed in full in the MOVING PICTURE WORLD. Exhibitors have shown their power in the defeat of the champion of censorship in this state. We hope that every man interested in the exhibition of motion pictures whether as owner or employee of a motion picture theater will vote for the friends of the screen and vote and work against its enemies.

OUR FRIENDS.

William Waller Rucker, representing the counties of Carroll, Chariton, Grundy, Linn, Livingston, Monroe, Randolph, Sullivan. (Second Illinois Congressional District.)

Mr. Rucker stood staunchly by the rights of the motion picture and discomfited the contentions of the self-appointed reformers by many clever and pertinent questions.

Caleb Powers, representing the counties of Bell, Clay, Clinton, Cumberland, Harlan, Knox, Laurel, Leslie, McCreary, Monroe, Pulaski, Rockcastle, Russell, Wayne and Whitley. (Eleventh Kentucky Congressional District.)

Mr. Powers was active in fighting for a minority report against the Smith-Hughes Federal Censorship Bill.

Edmund Platt, representing the counties of Dutchess, Orange, and Putnam. (Twenty-sixth Congressional New York District.)

Mr. Platt joined in the minority report and took a most lively and intelligent part in the proceedings before the committee.

Frederick William Dallinger, representing the county of Middlesex, Mass., consisting of the Cities of Cambridge, Lexington and Melrose and the towns of Arlington, Belmont, Lexington, Stoneham, Wakefield, Watertown and Winchester. (Eighth Massachusetts Congressional District.)

Mr. Dallinger secured a re-hearing on the censorship bill which had been favorably reported by Mr. Hughes' Committee. He became the ardent champion of the freedom of the screen at every session of the committee. He fought the Federal Censorship bill as vicious in principle and fraught with danger to the American people and their liberties. To no man does the motion picture owe a greater debt than to Mr. Dallinger. The exhibitors in his district are making a great fight for him. His district is a close one politically and every vote will count. Let Mr. Dallinger find out on election day that the motion picture men have appreciated his splendid services on their behalf.

OUR ENEMIES.

We print herewith a list of Congressmen who as members of the House Committee on Education have voted in favor of the Federal Censorship Bill. We have reported the defeat of Judge Hughes in the Democratic primaries of the Twelfth District of Georgia. If any of the other members appear as candidates for re-election we hope that the motion picture men in their respective districts will do all in their power to beat them:

Robert L. Doughton, Congressional District consists of the counties of Alexander, Alleghany, Ashe, Cabarrus, Caldwell, Iredell, Rowan, Stanley and Watauga in the state of North Carolina. (Eighth North Carolina Congressional District.)

John W. Abercrombie (at large), of Tuscaloosa, St Clair County, Alabama.

Claudius Ulysses Stone, representing the counties of Bureau, Marshall, Peoria, Putnam, Stark and Tazewell in the state of Illinois. (Sixteenth Illinois Congressional District.)

John A. Key, representing the counties of Crawford, Hancock, Hardin, Marion, Morrow and Wyandot. (Eighth Congressional Ohio District.)

William Joseph Sears, representing the counties of Brevard, Broward, Clay, Dade, Duval, Monroe, Orange, Osceola, Palm Beach, Putnam, St. John, St. Lucie, Seminole and Volusia. (Fourth Florida Congressional Dist.)

Benjamin Clark Hilliard, City and County of Denver, Col. (First Colorado Congressional District.)

Horace Mann Towner, representing the counties of Adams, Appanoose, Clarke, Decatur, Fremont, Lucas, Page, Ringgold, Taylor, Union and Wayne. (Eighth Iowa Congressional District.)

Simeon D. Fess, representing the counties of Champaign, Clark, Clinton, Fayette, Greene, Logan, Madison, Union and Warren. (Seventh Ohio Congressional District.)

Robert M. McCracken (at large), Boise, Idaho.

S. Taylor North, representing the counties of Armstrong, Clarion, Indiana and Jefferson. (Twenty-seventh Pennsylvania Congressional District.)

The Programs That Pay

BY W. STEPHEN BUSH.

THE one thing to be impressed upon the critics of the motion picture is this: The bad picture is the exception and the producer of the bad picture is the exception. As for the exhibitor, we know from our own observation that he is for clean pictures whenever and wherever he is successful.

A first-class residential town in Northern New Jersey, the home of many men and women prominent in the business and the civic life of New York, has a first-class motion picture theater. The other day the censorship germ insidiously attacked an estimable lady with a considerable following in the little community. Women are as liable to be visited by this miserable bacillus as men are—perhaps more so. We refer to Pennsylvania and Ohio, especially Ohio. The first symptom is a fierce desire to cut things out. It's not unlike the mania often found in young surgeons who go about with their case of instruments seeking whom they may operate upon.

The theater in question is managed by a young man who just prides himself on his ability to furnish a lively program with plenty of punch and spice and flavor and variety and utterly without objectionable films. He was stung to the quick when the censorial lady appeared in the offing. He had made a careful record of all pictures ever shown in his theater and he remembered them all.

The matter came on for a hearing before the Council of the town and our young exhibitor appeared full of wrath and replete with incontrovertible statistics of his own programs. His plea against censorship just vibrated with sincerity. Reinforced with arguments from our little "Anti-Censorship Pamphlet," he easily routed the enemy. The woman was fair-minded enough to say that she had been mistaken and our exhibiting friend continues to be the only real censor in his town.

Now this is by no means a sporadic case. Our mail furnishes ample proof. Here is a letter to the editor which speaks for itself:

Clean plays (always chosen for story interest, popularity of star) and advertising possibilities (with advertising that gets attention and gets the business) coupled with attractive houses and the best in music, have placed the Jensen & Von Herberg houses in the front—when other houses who occasionally lapsed to "No children admitted" and "What Would You Do If You Were a Poor Pretty Girl?"—have changed hands, or went into the receivers' hands.

The result of this policy, clean plays—clean advertising has been the absolute confidence of Seattle's and Portland's picture play public—business which for consistent matinee and evening houses—day in and day out—has placed them from a one-house company, four years ago, to a five-house corporation, with a sixth now building in Butte, Montana—and they get the whole family's trade. "Where the Family Goes —To See Good Shows"—one of our slogans, expresses this very aptly.

We have cooperated at all times with the local ad club, and the daily newspapers have been with us from the first in this fight for clean pictures. This "clean plays—clean advertising" policy might shed a new light on the censorship problem, for although there is a strong local board, our houses in their own strict censoring of plays have yet to disagree with the local board of censors, and we change twice a week.

Unfortunately one ill-advised exhibitor can do widespread harm. I personally know of more than one case where an exhibitor was talked into booking a film of questionable character by the glib-tongued agent. It is mostly the new man in the business who falls a victim to these persuasive gentlemen. We quote an extract from a letter written by a California exhibitor who in speaking on the subject of questionable films has this to say: "I am a small-town exhibitor and have passed up all the above plays (having mentioned a list of notorious pictures). I prefer to see them go to my competitor, who has run some of them. I think picture houses are in two classes—those who will and those who will not run these films."

Lieutenant Jourjon in Good Health

Soldier President of French Eclair Company Making Plans Against the Day of Peace—Nine Eclair Employes Fall.

LETTERS received by Claude Patin from Charles Jourjon indicate that the President of the French Eclair Company is in good health and spirits. Mr. Jourjon, who is a first lieutenant in the French army, is stationed at Badonvilliers, in Alsace, in territory taken by the French from their German opponents early in the war.

Not far from the fighting line is a great forest of pines, where the soldiers are sent for temporary rest and recuperation. Lieutenant Jourjon in his last letter to Mr. Patin said that when ordered back from trench work he found the forest an excellent spot in which to dream of what he would do when the war should come to an end. He made no secret of the fact that in these day dreams the United States figured strongly in his imagination. When the big day comes his plans will be well matured. In spite of the two years and more the lieutenant has endured the hardships of war the letters he writes to Mr. Patin reflect his cheerfulness and his determination to remain to the end, to refuse to take advantage of possible release from soldierly duties for the purpose of protecting important business interests.

Chas. Jourjon (on right) and Comrade.

Lieutenant Jourjon, in a recent letter, briefly referred to a tragedy of the trenches and by implication of his narrow escape from being one of the victims. Fifty men, including himself, had been ordered out of the first line for forty-eight hours' rest. When, at the expiration of their allotted period, they returned in the early hours of the morning, they discovered every one of their relief dead in the trenches. They had been killed in the night during one of the raids that periodically take place, first on one side and then on the other.

Mr. Patin's letters from his chief all display lively interest in what is taking place in the film world. The lieutenant receives each week The Moving Picture World, a matter Mr. Patin has not neglected since his own return from France.

Mrs. Jourjon, too, has been doing her part in the work of war. She early took up the duties of a Red Cross nurse, at one time being connected with the American Hospital near Paris. Mrs. Jourjon is the daughter of one of the great Champagne wine merchants. For a long time her old home was in territory occupied by the Germans. The retirement of the invaders disclosed, too, the fact that the summer residence of Lieutenant and Mrs. Jourjon at Epernay was in ruins.

The French Eclair Company has given of its best to the colors of France. Marcel Vandal, the first vice-president of the company, is now and for a long time has been stationed at Verdun, having participated in some of the stiffest fighting of the war. At last reports he had escaped injury. Up to September 1 the Eclair had lost nine men killed and forty-two wounded, all of whom had been or were members of the Paris, Moscow, London and Milan companies.

The outbreak of the war interfered with many plans Mr. Jourjon was about to put into execution. The end of hostilities will mark the taking up of those plans, and the field of these endeavors very likely will be the United States.

CAMERAMAN ARRIVES FROM ARCTICS.

The arrival of George H. Wilkins of the Mutual-Gaumont Company, of London, in Chicago this week, fresh from a three-year cruise through Arctic regions in the vicinity of Coronation Inlet, the habitat of the blond Eskimo, illustrates in a striking manner the world-wide range of the Mutual Film Corporation for interesting screen material.

Mr. Wilkins has been attached to the staff of the Canadian Arctic Explorers Steffansson and Anderson, who, with their sixty assistants, reached Seattle a week ago from Minto Inlet, after spending two winters among the blond Eskimos in their snow houses and two summers under summer conditions in the skin huts of the various tribes.

Mr. Wilkins describes in a vivid way the difficulties of photography in a country that depends entirely on dogs for its transportation, except where open water permits the use of kyaks, or Eskimo canoes. Often the entire impedimenta of the photographer had to be packed by members of the expedition, no other form of transportation being available. On one occasion a team of dogs broke through "mush" ice in crossing an inlet and several thousand feet of laboriously acquired film were lost.

COMMISSIONER BROWNLOW CALLS.

The Moving Picture World wishes to acknowledge a visit from Commissioner Louis Brownlow of Washington, D. C., who dropped in to pay his respects to the editor while in New York the other day. Commissioner Brownlow has immediate supervision of motion picture theaters in Washington and all complaints of obnoxious pictures come to him. He says that complaints have been so numerous of late that something is going to happen soon to exhibitors of the Capital city if the showing of improper pictures does not cease.

ROLAND BLAISDELL A FATHER.

Roland E. Blaisdell of the executive offices of the International Film Service is busy shaking hands these days and saying "Thank you." It's a boy, and its birthday is October 5. Mrs. Blaisdell and her son are said to be O. K.

President Against Censorship

By W. Stephen Bush

To a Delegation of Film Men He Conveys Strong Impressions of His Stand—Masterly Speech By Walter W. Irwin—The President in Fine Spirits Before the Camera

At "Shadow Lawn" on the third day of October, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, made it clear to a delegation of film men that as a scholar and a statesman he looked with extreme disfavor upon the principles of censorship. It was an historic occasion. For the first time in the annals of our great art and industry a President of the United States was asked to express his views on legalized censorship. The etiquette of the occasion forbids me to quote the President, but the liberty of recording impressions gained during the conference has not been abridged in any way. All of us came away from the conference with this very distinct impression: If any such measure as the Crafts-Smith-Hughes-Hodkinson Bill reaches the White House while the present occupant holds office, its chances of becoming a law are far from bright.

The Film Men Are Received By the President.

The National Association of the Motion Picture Industry had selected the following men as members of a committee to call upon the president and to ask him frankly about his position on censorship: William A. Brady, president, National Association Motion Picture Industry, World Film Corporation; Walter W. Irwin, chairman executive committee and general manager Vitagraph-V. L. S. E., Inc.; P. A. Powers, treasurer Universal Film Manufacturing Company; Carl Laemmle, Universal Film Manufacturing Company; J. A. Hallberg; William L. Sherrill, president Frohman Amusement Company; William A. Johnston, of the Motion Picture News; W. Stephen Bush, of the Moving Picture World; Fred Hawley, of Motion Picture Directory Company; Wid Gunning; Frederick H. Elliott, executive secretary National Association; Randolph Lewis, director of publicity National Association; Adam Hull Shirk, of The Morning Telegraph; B. N. Busch, World Film Corporation; W. K. Whipple, Universal Animated Weekly; L. T. Rogers, Fox Film Corporation; Samuel H. Trigger, Exhibitors' League; Henry Branson Varner, secretary North Carolina Exhibitors' League.

The delegation which traveled on a special car on the Pennsylvania Road, arrived at Shadow Lawn shortly after two o'clock in the afternoon. Shadow Lawn is in the heart of the beautiful Long Branch section. In a region of charming villas and splendid estates it is pre-eminent by reason of its spacious and well-kept lawns, its pretty groves, and its trees. The visiting party came in autos and reached the presidential summer residence in a few minutes after leaving the station. The summer mansion in which the President has taken up his abode is a marvel of light and comfortable architecture in which the element of beauty has not been neglected. The film men were on the steps of the mansion without encountering any questioners and after being filmed were ushered into the presidential presence without more than a minute's delay.

The President received his visitors most courteously, apologized for the "impeding furniture" of the reception room, and after shaking hands with all he invited his visitors to make themselves at home, motioning them to various chairs and settees. Mr. Wilson sat down himself and signified his willingness to listen to whatever we had to say.

Everybody felt at ease by this time and when President Brady took his stand before Mr. Wilson and began to talk everybody felt it was going to be an agreeable party. Mr. Brady was brief and much to the point. He spoke of the growth and importance of the industry and the dangers by which it was beset, especially the danger of censorship. He then introduced Walter W. Irwin as the spokesman of the delegation. The President nodded very pleasantly and invited Mr. Irwin to remain seated, as he looked upon the whole conference as quite informal. Mr. Irwin, however, preferred to talk on his feet. Mr. Irwin is at all times a forceful and convincing speaker, but he was in particularly fine form upon this occasion. In the matter and the manner of his speech he rose to the great opportunity before him. As a summing up of the argument against harrassing the industry through legislative folly his speech was a masterpiece. Mr. Irwin spoke as follows:

Irwin's Masterly Argument to the President.

Mr President In behalf of the motion picture industry permit me to express our appreciation of your consideration and courtesy in granting to us the privilege.

The picture in motion has become one of the most if not the most important mediums of thought transmission. Twenty million of people in the United States daily view the motion picture. To them it has become the chief means of entertainment and education. Five hundred millions of dollars are invested in this industry, and our employees number nearly a million. And yet the very existence of the industry, together with the fundamental principles of our democratic institutions are threatened by the un-American principle of censorship. As a result, the industry has at last organized for its own protection and for the protection of the American people. It now possesses a National Association comprising representatives of every branch of the industry, and many of those who do business with one or more of the branches. Today the industry, through this association, stands as a unit against the principle of censorship.

In Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kansas and Maryland censorship statutes exist, by which we are compelled to submit our product, prior to publication, for the approval or disapproval of a political board. Next winter thirty-eight state legislatures meet, and it is our information that this industry is to be the chief target of various small minorities who seek to determine what their brothers shall see or think.

Last winter a similar censorship bill, known as the Hughes Bill, was introduced into Congress and approved by a majority of the Educational Committee. It is our understanding that this bill will be re-introduced at the next session of Congress. If the Hughes Bill is passed and signed, and if similar procedure is taken in a number of the various states, we will virtually be legislated out of existence.

We do not seek privilege. We desire only the same liberty enjoyed in this country by the press, the drama, art and other mediums of thought transmission, but with full responsibility for our acts. We seek to obtain our day in court—equal rights under the law.

Last winter we had introduced in Congress an amendment to the Federal Penal Code, which would impose heavy penalties for the transportation in Interstate Commerce of any improper film. This amendment failed of passage.

We recognize our full responsibility to the people, and we want to be held strictly accountable. What we ask, Mr. President, is an expression from the President, of his views upon the principle of censorship which we deem so important, not only to ourselves, but to the people.

We know that with your love for American freedom, you cannot countenance censorship in this country, and we likewise know that an expression from the President will go a long ways towards preventing the re-introduction of the Hughes Bill and of similar bills in the thirty-eight states whose legislatures meet next winter.

Inferences and Impressions.

The President had listened with evident interest and scarcely less evident sympathy. In reply to the spokesman he delivered himself in his usual lucid and concise fashion. I cannot quote his language, but there is no embargo on inferences. A statement of the conference authorized by the private secretary of the President is given here:

The attitude and utterances of President Wilson plainly indicated that to his way of thinking the presumption was against the principle of censorship, and that an overwhelming strong case would have to be made out in favor of censorship before his support could be enlisted for it.

The motion picture delegation felt from the President's manner and his informal observation on the subject in the future legislative action in relation to moving pictures that he would extend a guiding hand a hand of entire justice to the industry. It was also manifest that the President fully recognized the danger of serious abuses consequent upon the arbitrary exercise of private judgment, where public judgment alone ought to sway the matter.

The President's words indicated that he believed if you have a friend whom you think is a fool you should let him hire a hall and permit the public to be the judge. Throughout the impression gained by the delegation was that President Wilson could not see how censorship could be considered safe since it is so largely a matter of taste, environment and prejudice. The President intimated that he found himself frequently shocked by things which others were able to digest with ease and vice versa. In brief, that it all a matter of personal equation.

As a conscientious chronicler I am bound to add that this statement is far from doing justice to all that was said at the conference. The hearers of Mr. Wilson's remarks gained the further impression that the whole subject of motion picture legislation was utterly novel to the chief executive, that he was loath to express any opinion as to legislation passed or attempted in Congress, as such an attitude on his part might be deemed to be unfair to the members of Congress, who are very human and who like to be consulted on things which they have interested themselves in. Mr. Wilson evidently thinks that leadership of a great political party means constant and friendly consultation with the national legislature.

The President in Splendid Condition and in Jovial Mood.

All of us gained the impression that the President is in tip-top physical condition and, although he is a candidate for re-election and only a few weeks separate him from the fateful verdict, he is just bubbling over with good humor. He obviously laughs at cares and worries, else he could not display such an exquisite almost rollicking sense of humor. Apropos of this, here is another impression: Mr. Wilson is much surer of the short session of Congress than of the long, and it's not going to ruin his happiness no matter how the thing goes. In the course of some particularly emphatic utterances, I gained the impression, amounting almost to a conviction, that the President said "Damn." My memory tells me it was in connection with the feeling of a candidate who does not care a "damn" who is President so long as he feels that he is right. I took away another impression to the effect that the President believes in public censorship as the best safeguard in every free community and that private arbitrary censorship is not only oppressive, but might lead to graft.

President Jokes With Film Men.

When the conference was over I followed the President's movements closely. He got up and mingled with his visitors, going to the front of the mansion in the direction of the rustic rostrum from which he delivered his speech of acceptance. He looked as if he anticipated something rather usual but not unpleasant. The camera was waiting for him. Cameraman Whipple of the Animated Universal Weekly is a most excellent cameraman, and in addition he is a pretty good diplomat. The President obeyed him good naturedly, but very promptly too.

As he was fussing around the camera putting in a new lens and asking the President to step closer, the latter wanted to know what for. Whipple replied he would be pleased to explain later on, but for the present he would suggest that the President keep in natural and animated conversation with the innocent bystanders. Mr. Wilson immediately complied and turned to Brady, pointing to the place "where I commit my speeches." Brady assured him that the present picture would be better than the one the Republican campaign committee put out. Mr. Wilson enjoyed this very much, saying: "Yes, I have heard of that; they say it was bad, but I understand that the fellow that played me 'reneged.'"

Another direction to step closer to the camera, another question as to the why and wherefore. The camera man says: "Mr. President, now the whole film shows just your face." The President looks just a trifle unhappy. He gazes around for a look of sympathy. Some one reminds Mr. Wilson of his famous limerick. The President smiles and says: "I tell you I go home a very sad man every time I see myself in the 'movies.'" The direction to the President is to continue in animated conversation. A faint protest. "Aren't you fellows ever going to be satisfied?" asks Mr. Wilson. Whipple reminds the President that only the other day he faced a battery of cameras. The President tells us how "foolish" he feels when he was to "act" like that, whereupon some one in the crowd says: "Oh, you are not such a bad actor." The President asks a question about projection and immediately falls into the hands of Electrical Engineer Hallberg, who tries to make things plain to him. By this time Whipple has enough film and he thanks the President, who is very agreeable about it all, and excusing himself for taking a short cut back to the house, disappears with one of the best screen smiles I have ever seen.

The delegation, very well pleased with the result of the conference and with themselves, motor over to Asbury Park for a chat with Tumulty and then go back to New York. There was not a Democrat among them who did not glow with partisan pride at the showing his candidate made.

KNICKERBOCKERS FOR OCTOBER.

The Knickerbocker Star Feature announces the following changes in the October schedule of releases. The release of October 6 will be Jackie Saunders in the "Better Instinct" —two reels. For October 13 the release will be Joyce Moore in "From the Deep," as previously announced. For the last two weeks of the month a two-reel feature will be released on October 20 featuring Frank Mayo and Joyce in "Treading Pearls," a story of the sacrifice of one sister in an effort to keep the other on the straight road.

The last feature of the month will be released October 27 featuring Marie Empress, the famous stage star in the "Chorus Girl and the Kid." This will be in three reels and it is a strong drama.

President Wilson and Delegation of Motion Picture Men at Shadow Lawn, October 3, 1916.

The Motion Picture Exhibitor

PHILADELPHIA LEAGUE HAS MEETING.

Show Membership Is Growing Rapidly—National President Addresses the Gathering.

THE Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Philadelphia held a special entertainment and meeting on Sunday, October 1, in Mr. Bradfield's Family theater, 1311 Market street. The meeting was well attended. For the benefit of the guests and the ladies who had been invited a very fine program of motion pictures was shown. Between the showing of the pictures speeches were made by W. Stephen Bush of the staff of The Moving Picture World, and Lee A. Ochs, the national president. Mr. Bush recounted the efforts at organization made in the early days and recalled some interesting and some amusing incidents. He urged the exhibitors to stick to the league, which he was glad to learn had grown in a short time from a membership of 39 to 108.

Mr. Ochs said that any conditions which were injurious to the Philadelphia exhibitors would receive his immediate and earnest attention. He declared that the National League would stand back of any step made by the exhibitors to break any unjust monopoly which worked harm to the exhibitors. He added that the air in Philadelphia seemed full of fear and that some of the very exhibitors who were suffering from the effects of monopolistic booking systems were afraid to speak out because they dreaded the enmity of the combination.

Mr. Ochs was heartily applauded when he said he would come back on Friday, October 13, to initiate practical steps for the emancipation of the Philadelphia exhibitor. "Friday and the 13th sounds like an awful combination," he said, "but I think we will accomplish something worth while just the same."

The officers of the league recently elected are: President, Morris Spiers; first vice-president, John O'Donnell; second vice-president, A. Fisher; secretary, Charles H. Goddwin; Treasurer, Harry Green. The board of directors consists of M. Spiers, Charles Segall, M. Rappaport, T. Bagley, George Naudascher, Marcus Benn, John O'Donnell, William Butler, Harry Berman, M. Stiefel. The league holds its meetings every Friday at 12 o'clock noon in the auditorium of the American Photoplayer Co., Parkway Building, Broad and Cherry streets. The following theaters are now in the membership of the Philadelphia League:

Aurora theater, Arcade theater, Alma theater, Amber theater, Apollo theater, Bell theater, Broad Street Casino, Broad Street Palace, Becker Bros., Benn theater, Broadway theater, Belmont theater, Brunswick Palace, Crystal Palace, Cambria theater, Clearfield theater, Cayuga theater, Casino theater, Frankford; Columbus theater, Columbia theater, Century theater, Colonial Palace, Colonial Palace, Cedar theater, Coliseum theater, Cohocksink theater, Connie Mack's, Dreamland theater Drury theater, Dazzleland theater, Empress theater, Manayunk, Empress theater, Eureka theater, Franklin theater, Fairhill Palace, Fifty-second Street theater, Forrest theater, Frankord theater, Gladstone theater, Globe theater, Garden theater, Grand theater, Girard Palace, Globe theater, Gem theater, Great Southern theater, Haverford theater, Hamilton theater, Holmesburg theater, Hippodrome theater, Ideal theater, Imperial theater, Imperial theater, Irish theater, Jumbo theater, Jefferson theater, Keystone theater, Locust theater, Lincoln theater, Logan Auditorium, Lafayette theater, Leo theater, Liberty theater (Tacony), Liberty Bell theater, Lehigh Palace, Model theater, Mammoth theater, Majestic Palace, Norris Palace, Olympia theater, Owl theater, Oxford theater, Ontario theater, Orthodox theater, Overbrook theater, Parkway theater, Paschall theater, Palm theater, Point Breeze theater, Penn theater, Premier theater, Pastime theater, Plaza theater, Ridge theater, Ridge theater, Rex theater, Royal Palace, Star theater, Star theater, Star theater, Strand theater, Susquehanna theater, Somerset theater, Southern theater, Tioga theater, Tivoli theater, Verdi theater, Washington Palace, West Allegheny theater, Wayne Palace, Wayne theater, Windsor theater, Walton theater, York Street Palace, Harrigan's theater, Darby; Holt's theater, Clifton Heights; Nace's theater, Quakertown

ALAMEDA EXHIBITORS AGAINST STARS.

The Motion Picture Exhibitors of Alameda County, California, in assembly this 21st day of September, 1916,

Do hereby resolve that the members of this organization hereby declare themselves as being opposed to the individual "Star System" being exploited by certain promoters, whose sole effort is to disrupt the organized program exchanges by drawing away from the producers certain star players by offering fabulous salaries, expecting to charge extortionate rentals from the exhibitors. That by encouraging the individual "Star System" we believe will weaken the daily program exchanges by drawing from their company the best drawing card, and whereas it is necessary for the exhibitors to have a daily consistent program in order to maintain a steady average of patronage.

We are further opposed to the present method of districting theaters as to the price of pictures per day, believing that the confidence of the exhibitors can be better maintained upon a flat rental based upon the age of pictures.

Therefore, be it resolved, that the secretary of this organization be instructed to send copies of this resolution to all trade journals and film exchanges of the Pacific Coast.

Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Alameda County, California.

H. L. BEACH, President.
WILL F. KRAHN, Secretary.

NEW JERSEY EXHIBITORS IN STATE CONVENTION

A Splendid Gathering at Newark Markes a New Era in Jersey History of Organization.

OVER a hundred motion picture theatres were represented at the state convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors of New Jersey, which was held Thursday, October 5, at Achtel-Stetter Hall, 842 Broad Street, Newark. A list of the theaters given out by the secretary contains the following names:

JERSEY CITY.—Benjamin Berkowitz, The Strand Theater, Fairmount near Bergen Ave.; F. Blumenthal, Auditorium Theater, 299 Central Ave.; H. Charles Hespe, Hippodrome Theater, 390 Central Ave.; F. H. Mertens, Regent Theater; W. W. Raleigh, Danforth Theater.

NEWARK.—Mrs. L. H. Webbe, Goodwin Theater, Broad St.; Jacob Amsterdam, Plaza Theater, Springfield Ave.; J. E. Metzger, Avon Theater, 7 Avon Ave; Dolo Anspach, Scenario, Orange St.; H. Austerman, Playhouse; George Stone, Berger Theater, Berger St. and Springfield Ave.; Ph. Bernstein, Criterion Theater, 519 Central Ave.; M. L. Lebowe, Walnut Theater, 214 Walnut St.; Miss Dussin, The Star Theater, Berger St.; John J. Howard, Clinton Square Theater, 215 Clinton Ave.; Henry Rebreaht, Royal Theater, Broad St.; Martin Singer, Garden Theater, 304 Market St.; Philip J. Knobloch, New Lincoln Theater, Bloomfield Ave.; Grand Palace Theater, Market St.; Joseph Stern, National Theater, 182 Belmont Ave.; Putman & Jacobs, Paramount Theater, 929 Broad St.; J. G. Crawford, Crawford Theater, Orange and Broad Sts.; Gold & Hennessy, Liberty Theater, Ferry and Van Buren Sts.

The convention was called to order promtly at 11:30 o'clock by Joseph Stern, the president of the Essex County organization. After Mr. Stern had welcomed the delegates in a brief speech he introduced T. L. Raymond, the Mayor of Newark.

The Mayor bade the delegates welcome to the city of Newark and then declared his appreciation of the work done by the exhibitors of the city of Newark who, he said, had helped to make the motion picture popular and respected. He praised the motion picture theater as an amusement which appealed to every member of the family, and for that reason alone was rendering a service to the community. He assured the delegates that in his bailiwick at least motion picture men would always be treated on the principle of a square deal.

The response to the Mayor's words of welcome was delivered by W. Stephen Bush, of the staff of the Moving Picture world. Mr. Bush said the motion picture men appreciated the warm words of welcome uttered by the Mayor. All the motion picture men had asked for at any time was a square deal. "We are not asking for license or immunity," said Mr. Bush, "but we do want to be met in a spirit of fairness and without prejudice." Mr. Bush asked the Mayor to throw his influence against censorship if another attempt is to be made at Trenton to revive censorship agitation.

After these preliminaries the convention took a recess and filed into a large dining room where a luncheon was waiting for them. After the delegates had been shown to their seats a prayer was pronounced by the Rev. J. T. Howard, the pastor of a local Methodist church. He was not the only clergyman present. The Rev. A. B. Diefendorf, also a minister of the Methodist church, was an invited guest and sat by the side of his colleague.

Louis Blumenthal acted as toastmaster, calling upon the Rev. Diefendorf as the first speaker. Mr. Diefendorf made a most eloquent plea for the "American Sunday", urging the exhibitors present to keep their houses closed on Sunday. Mr. Diefendorf was followed by Walter W. Irwin, who spoke at some length on the need of co-operation among the different branches of the industry. He took exception to some of the remarks of the previous speaker in declaring that the question of Sunday opening ought to be left to the decision of the majority in every community.

The next speaker introduced by Mr. Blumenthal was Lee A. Ochs, the National President. Mr. Ochs spoke briefly saying, he would reserve his real speech for the executive session when only exhibitors could hear him. He dwealt with great emphasis on the need of co-operation among exhibitors saying, that organization to him meant nothing if it did not mean co-operation. He spoke of the organization of the exchange men in New York City, which, he said, under the guise of a social club had started on a policy of antagonism to the exhibitor. Their first social function, he said, was to make the exhibitors pay return express charges. Mr. Ochs was followed by W. Stephen Bush of the staff of the Moving Picture World, who spoke in a lighter vein.

EXHIBITORS CONDEMN "WHITE SLAVE" FILM.

Massachusetts League Supports Action of Boston Authorities in Suppressing Picture.

THE Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Massachusetts has taken a firm stand in their condemnation of so-called "White Slave" motion pictures. A film called "Is Any Girl Safe?" was debarred from the Majestic theater this week after four performances. The Boston board of censors suspended the license of the theater and decided that the film was not safe, to say nothing about the girl.

This action of the city censors brought a vigorous letter of approval from the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Massachusetts. The league denounced the film as a sex problem picture, crudely and clumsily treated and beyond the limits of decency. The league sent a letter addressed to Mayor Curley, Judge Bolster and Police Commissioner O'Meara, who constitute the municipal censorship board. It read:

"Dear Sirs: The Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Massachusetts, Inc., desires strongly to commend your action taken this day in suspending the license to exhibit the picture, 'Is Any Girl Safe?'

"The members of this league are engaged in the exhibition of motion pictures as a permanent business, have large investments therein, and are ready to forego immediate financial gain for the ultimate welfare of the industry. They have studiously avoided offending against the high standard, not only of good morals, but of good taste. They have thereby earned and enjoyed the confidence and patronage of the public.

"Because the public has not the means of distinguishing readily between the permanent and legitimate exhibitor and the transient and unscrupulous, the burden of public indignation aroused by such exhibitions is unjustly borne largely by such exhibitors as our league represents. We disapprove the transient exploitation of sex problem pictures, crudely and clumsily treated, haunting the very border line of obscenity in their exhibition, and plainly transcending all limits of decency in methods of publicity resorted to.

"The league desires to support such efforts as yours and to co-operate in eliminating the offensive exploitation of which the suppressed picture is an offensive type.

"By unanimous vote of the members present this communication is directed to be sent to you.

"Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Massachusetts, Inc.
"By Harry I. Wasserman, Secretary.
"Ernest H. Horstmann, President."

PROPAGANDA IN KANSAS.

Secretary Green in on the Job Urging Exhibitors to Make a Strong Fight on Censorship.

OUT in Kansas the Exhibitors' League and the Kansas Amusement Association have cut out a large contract for themselves in the effort they are making to have the censorship law of that State repealed. Secretary E. W. Green, of Herrington, Kan., is hard at work arousing the members of the organization to the necessity of making themselves heard if the object of the campaign is to be accomplished at the next meeting of the State Legislature. A circular stating the particulars of the campaign has been sent to all exhibitors accompanied with a petition in blank form for signatures of all persons willing to express themselves against censorship, together with an application card for the use of those exhibitors not members of the League. Here is the text of the circular; it is a good one:

Brother Exhibitor: This is one letter you cannot afford to throw away unread. It means "good iron dollars" to you. Please read it carefully.

First.—Are you a member of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Kansas? If not, why not? Do not confuse this league with the Kansas Amusement Association. The M. P. E. L. is for exhibitors ONLY. The K. A. A. is for Exhibitors and Representatives of the different exchanges.

Second.—It is only through organization that we Kansas exhibitors will get the desired legislation this fall. It takes your individual membership to complete an organization. As long as we say "let the other fellow do it," just so long will we be the "easy marks" for anybody's whim.

You ask, "what is the league doing for me?" Read a few items: As a National body we have legislated against and stopped a bill which was for putting a tax of ½ of 1 per cent. on your GROSS window receipts. In other words, a Government run business.

At the present time, the Kansas M. P. E. L. is bringing suit to recover from the State of Kansas most of the money paid by yourself as excess Censor Fees. It will be prorated back to you finally. Who benefits?

We are fighting to have the Censorship Law repealed this coming session of the Legislature. We will have the moral and financial support of the National Motion Picture Exhibitors' League behind us. As a body, the Kansas League voted at the Topeka Convention to join the National League, thereby securing this support.

The enclosed petition speaks for itself. Put it where it will do the most good. Attach paper for signatures. Get as many as you can. We will notify you later where to send them. These petitions will be presented by the Legislative Committee of the League in person to the Legislature. We will have a Lobbying Committee on the job throughout the session.

We further ask you to personally get an expression from your own Representative and Senator as to the stand he will take on this question. If he does not know now, get him to find out. We intend to support the ones who support us. If you do not see them, write them and send the answers to the Secretary of the League.

If this sounds good to you, get in the band wagon with us. Fill out the enclosed membership card and send your check for $5.50. It's the cheapest insurance on the biggest Protective Policy you ever invested in. We need your financial and moral backing right now. We will appreciate a letter with your views. Respectfully,

E. W. GREEN, Secretary.

Foreign Film Conditions

W. R. Sheehan, General Manager for Fox Films, Discusses the Situation from His Company's Angle.

W. R. SHEEHAN, general manager of the Fox Film Corporation, has just returned to the United States after an eight months' stay in England and in Continental Europe. Mr. Sheehan visited every important city in England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales during his trip. In the British Isles alone, he organized completely a total of sixty-seven exchanges for William Fox photoplays. Mr. Sheehan reports that the pictures are proving as great a success abroad in every way, as they are in this country.

One of the first things Mr. Sheehan did after his arrival in London last February was to make a long term lease of a building at 76 and 78 Old Compton street to serve as headquarters for the Fox English offices. The building is located in the heart of the film and theater center of London. The general manager found that it was necessary to make several alterations. Then he discovered that it was nearly a superhuman task to get the men needed for the work, because mechanics, carpenters, painters—all were at the front. After headquarters wer eestablished, Mr. Sheehan proceeded to lease buildings in Manchester, Birmingham, Leeds, Cardiff, Liverpool, Newcastle, Glasgow and Dublin.

"We now have the most modern and efficient equipment in the world," said Mr. Sheehan. "The main offices in London are the meeting place for England's leading motion picture exhibitors. In this Compton street branch we maintain our London Exchange, scenario and film editing departments, a thoroughly outfitted projection room, contract and sales departments, and a supply room.

"In the basement are fire and burglar-proof vaults for the storage of films, and a complete film repair room."

Although only one picture has been released each week, in Great Britain, in accordance with the policy in the United States, the vogue for Fox photoplays is so great in the British Isles that the two-a-week release will soon be inaugurated.

The entire staff in the Compton street offices consists of Englishmen. Ernest Reed is managing director; W. Horace Biss, previously with Bioscope, the trade weekly, is in charge of the publicity; and Harry Engholm is scenario editor. It is worth noting that the Fox pictures are re-edited and titled anew in Great Britain.

"The Fox Film Corporation covers the world now," Mr. Sheehan continued.

"We have circled the globe by our central agencies in Rome, Paris, Moscow, Sidney, Melbourne, Wellington, Rio de Janeiro, and a half-dozen other cities in South America."

Mr. Sheehan spent more than a month in France and was impressed quite favorably by the films made there. He sailed for the United States direct from Bordeaux.

KOPFSTEIN JOINS B. S. MOSS.

Jacques Kopfstein, who has been connected with the Ivan Film Productions, Inc., for some time in the capacity of director of publicity and advertising, has resigned to take the position of general manager of the B. S. Moss Motion Picture Corporation. He is now making a tour of the various independent exchanges of the country in the interest of the Moss productions.

Hughes Against Censorship

By W. Stephen Bush

In a Masterly Address He Defines His Statesmanlike Attitude Toward the Motion Picture —Exposes the Fallacy of Federal Control.

FOLLOWING closely upon the visit to Shadow Lawn, the details of which are found in full in this week's issue of The Moving Picture World, a delegation of film men strong in numbers and representative in character sought out the Republican candidate for President and obtained from him statements of so satisfactory a nature that all went home congratulating the industry upon the result.

The delegation assembled at the offices of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry in the Times Building, where the entire party was assigned to an array of automobiles ready for the journey across the river. Shortly after 11 o'clock on Saturday, October 7, the cavalcade set itself in motion, being composed as follows: J. H. Hallberg, F. H. Elliott, executive secretary, National Association of the Motion Picture Industry; Frank T. Elliott, assistant secretary; Walter W. Irwin, chairman executive committee; Benjamin B. Hampton, Greater Vitagraph Co.; William M. Seabury, William A. Johnston, P. A. Powers, Adolph Zukor, Hiram Abrams, Jesse Lasky, Richard A. Rowland, J. A. Berst, Arthur James, W. Stephen Bush, Lee A. Ochs, Louis F. Blumenthal, Samuel Trigger, L. Levine, H. Charles Hespe, Isaac Hartstall, representing the exhibitors.

There was a police escort on both sides of the river and every thing went well until after the party left the City of Newark. The meeting between the film men and Mr. Hughes was to occur on the lawn of the Essex County Country Club, West Orange, N. J., and the time set was 1 p. m. Here they were cordially received by Ex-Senator Everett Colby, Senator Walter E. Edge, the Republican candidate for Governor of New Jersey; Mayor Thomas L. Raymond of Newark, and Ex-State Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen.

In the big but home-like dining room of the club house, one of the prettiest in the metropolitan district, the delegation was introduced to Mr. Hughes, whose cordiality and simplicity put every one at ease. The delegation gathered around the hospitable board and Mr. Hughes was about to sit down when Senator Colby exclaimed: "Why this is all too formal, let's go out on the lawn and have our talk there." Everybody was ready to comply with the suggestion

Mr. Hughes, who looked far more tired than Wilson, but who was just in as splendid a humor and who kept smiling and joking in a charmingly unrestrained manner, had listened to Mr. Irwin's words with the most evident interest and sympathy. He plainly weighed the significance of every syllable uttered by the spokesman of the film delegation.

The former Governor of New York spoke with striking fluency. He covered the subject of the motion picture and its status in our civilization throughout, judiciously and sympathetically. He made it plain at the outset that he was speaking informally and that no remarks of his should be construed as a final expression of opinion. He also made it clear that he has definite and clear ideas as to both the importance and the future of the motion picture industry and the question of censorship. He pronounced an eloquent eulogy of the motion picture, the possibilities of which, to his way of thinking, were even now but faintly appreciated by the people.

Mr. Hughes, in vigorous language, expressed himself on the question of Federal control of the subject, qualifying everything he said with the emphatic declaration that he was only stating his opinion as a lawyer and that he was not speaking in a formal or final manner.

He described the pursuit of the idea that Federal control where there is no Federal exigency as a "will-o-the-wisp." The gathering which listened to Mr. Hughes was impressed by his wide-visioned appreciation of the motion picture as an intellectual, moral and educational force and characterized the future of the motion picture as one that defied prophecy in its wonderful and ultimate development. He drew a very sharp and clear distinction between regulation of the motion picture and censorship of the motion picture. Regulation founded on responsibility he believed in, but censorship he viewed with the greatest misgiving. He did not for a moment suppose that there was any motion picture man who wanted license to produce indecent and harmful pictures, for such pictures would never be tolerated by the American public.

The film men received a last cordial handshake from Mr. Hughes, who departed for Montclair to show himself to an expectant multitude. All of us were invited to resume our places before the hospitable board of the Country Club, which regaled us all in the most generous and amiable fashion. The delegates returned to New York feeling that the Republican candidate for the Presidency occupied the same sound and thoroughly American position as the Democratic candidate. To sum up: Both candidates are typical of a progressive type of statesmanship to which the very idea of censorship is abhorrent as a deadly menace to free institutions.

Candidate Hughes Receives Motion Picture Men at Essex County Country Club.

Another Combination of Picture Companies

Morosco and Pallas Pictures Merge With Famous Players-Lasky Corporation—Paramount Producers Under One Management

ANOTHER affiliation of important motion picture producing companies was effected last Thursday, announcement being made that the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company and Pallas Pictures, productions of both of which appear on the Paramount program, have merged with the Famous Players Film Company and the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company in the Famous Players - Lasky Corporation. The last named company, organized more than a month ago, is capitalized at $12,000,000.

Adolph Zukor.

This new alignment of film interests represents the completion of plans the consummation of which has been contemplated for nearly two years. Together, the producing companies named represent the forces of photoplay production constituting the entire Paramount Program, which releases 104 feature plays annually, or two every week.

The identities of the several companies represented in the Famous Players - Lasky Corporation will continue to be distinct in the productions seen on the screens of theatres throughout the world.

The negotiations tending to this affiliation began in Los Angeles and were terminated last Thursday in New York. These conferences were attended by Adolph Zukor, President of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation; Jesse L. Lasky, vice-president; Arthur S. Friend, treasurer; E. J. Ludvigh, secretary; Oliver Morosco, president of the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company; Miss Melodile Garbutt, president Pallas Pictures; Frank A. Garbutt, vice-president; William G. Demorest, Frederick G. Lee and Daniel Froham. Miss Garbutt and Mr. Garbutt came to New York from Los Angeles recently to attend the conferences.

This combination will bring under one banner the greatest number of popular stage and screen stars ever assembled in a single organization, including Marguerite Clark, Pauline Frederick, Marie Doro, Fannie Ward, Lenore Ulrich, Blanche Sweet, Mae Murray, Myrtle Stedman, Louise Huff, Owen Moore, Marguerite Courtot, Jack Pickford, Vivian Martin, Cleo Ridgely, Lou-Tellegen, Dustin Farnum, Ann Pennington, Sessue Hayakawa, George Beban, Wallace Reid and many others.

The photoplay productions bearing the names of "Morosco" and "Pallas" in the future, as in the past, will be produced at their big studio in Los Angeles. The merging of the resources of this extensive studio with the Lasky studio at Hollywood, California, and the Famous Players studio in New York, will probably bring about a higher and more artistic standard of motion picture production than has obtained in the past history of the industry.

Jesse L. Lasky.

President Zukor Sees New Opportunities.

President Zukor, in commenting upon the amalgamation of these interests, said: "This latest coalition unites under one government and one system of operation all the producing forces that create the Paramount Program. While these individual companies formerly co-operated with complete harmony toward the maintenance of the highest possible standard of motion picture production, under the new arrangement the opportunities for common artistic endeavor will be more numerous and extensive. This is the aspiration of all the factors in the Paramount group of producers, and undoubtedly the results that will accrue will be as beneficial as are all the effects of a unity of purpose. The interchange of stars, plays and studio equipment among the four plants will also constitute a more elastic and expensive producing force."

Frank A. Garbutt, of the Pallas-Morosco companies, said: "This amalgamation of interests is the logical outcome of plans which have been in contemplation ever since the formation of Paramount two years ago. Each company will retain its individuality and will go on manufacturing pictures as heretofore. The individual companies will, however, have a direct interest in the welfare and success of the other producers, thereby tending to provide the Paramount Program with pictures of increasing excellence in quality and with service that is truly 'Paramount.'"

Oliver Morosco.

Mr. Garbutt indicated that he was highly pleased with the merger, adding that any step in this direction which tends to present to the trade a united front and unified interests would have only beneficial effects in rendering permanent the confidence of the exhibitors and the public in the Paramount Pictures which are to come.

Oliver Morosco, President of the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company, in speaking of the affiliation, said: "The merging of our interests with those of the Famous Players and the Jesse L. Lasky Company is the natural tendency of the times towards the quality of photoplays. The photoplay industry is gradually undergoing parallel changes to those in the theatrical business, namely, the survival of the fittest. To this end the coalition of the four Paramount producing companies is a step in the right direction. The advantages to the producers are economy in operation and increased efficiency; to Paramount this new step means a pronounced increase in the merit of the pictures; to the exhibitors it is an insurance that Paramount Pictures will keep pace with the demands of the day."

Hiram Abrams, president of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, upon being advised of the culmination of the merger, congratulated the factors involved and made the following statement: "At last the complete unification of the producing interests of Paramount has been accomplished. The combination under one management of the four producers may be expected to result in both a greater variety and a greater consistency of merit in the productions to appear on the Paramount Program."

Reviews of Current Productions

EXCLUSIVELY BY OUR OWN STAFF

"The Prince of Graustark"

Geo. Barr McCutcheon's Sequel to "Graustark" Filmed by Essanay—The Cast Includes Bryant Washburn, Marguerite Clayton, Ernest Maupain, Sydney Ainsworth and John Cossar—Adapted and Directed by Fred E. Wright.

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

ESSANAY'S "Graustark" was released in April, 1915. Its popularity is still fresh in the memory of photoplay theatergoers, and the sequel gives fine promise of similar favor. In this instance the Prince of Graustark visits America to borrow millions of dollars to rescue his impoverished realm from the clutches of Russia; whereas, in the first instance, a young millionaire American visited Graustark and married its princess, in the face of great odds and difficulties. The prince of this story is the son of that young millionaire, and prides himself on his American lineage.

Scene from "The Prince of Graustark" (Essanay).

The young Prince of Graustark would have been advanced the money required to save his country from bankruptcy had he been willing to marry the Princess of Dawsbergen, whom he had not seen since she was three years old; but had refused, preferring to choose a wife for himself. It happened that when the young prince set out for America, the Princess of Dawsbergen, unknown to him, was already visiting friends there, and it also chanced that she closely resembled in face, figure and stature the only daughter of William W. Blithers, the ruling money king of America at the time, and the man who finally loaned the Prince of Graustark thirty millions of dollars. Owing to the remarkable likeness between the two girls, the spectator will be as badly puzzled in following the story intelligently as was the prince in distinguishing one girl from the other, unless the subtitles and certain telegrams are attentively observed.

The story in films possesses strong interest, and Director Wright has clothed it with very appropriate settings.

The principal characters are all happily cast. Bryant Washburn as Prince Robin of Graustark, is lighthearted, generous and handsome, and a persistent lover. The prince's manner in dealing with a serious question before his Cabinet reveals at once his sunny temper and disposition, while his enjoyment over the reception given him at the Blithers' home shows his fine sense as a man of the world, who makes himself at home anywhere without losing his dignity.

The scene showing the prince jumping into the pool to assist the Princess of Dawsbergen in landing the fish she has caught —though he mistakenly believes her to be Maud Blithers, with whom he had played tennis a few hours before—is a pretty introduction to the love story of their lives. And the scene in the Graustark palace, later on, which reveals the identity of the girl who had won his heart, is a romantic and fitting close.

Miss Marguerite Clayton's Princess of Dawsbergen is a winsome, haughty creature when she first meets her future husband in the "pool" scene; but we see her gradually soften before the ardent love of the man, whom she is convinced loves her for herself alone, though that self in his mind is Maud Blithers. Her happiness is complete when, in the Palace of Graustark, before the assembled Court, she learns that her title means nothing, but that she and love mean everything to the man who has chosen her.

Ernest Maupain has drawn an extravagant type of American for the money king, Blithers, but he has only followed the McCutcheon book. We laugh at the extraordinary man, but we can never take him seriously. There is a fine contrast between the Blithers' type of man and that of Count Quinnox, chief of staff of the Graustark army, who is impersonated by Sydney Ainsworth. One thoroughly enjoys the horror and great annoyance of the Count when Blithers throws court etiquette to the winds, and does things in his own outrageous, American way. The Baron Douglas of John Cossar is another fine characterization, and Mrs. Blithers is well sustained by Florence Oberle.

The release date is November 6, through the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay service.

"Prudence the Pirate"

Gladys Hulette Has Leading Role in a Thanhouser Made Pathe Gold Rooster Comedy That Makes Good Entertainment.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell

IN "Prudence the Pirate" Gladys Hulette has a youthful role finely fitted to her tender years—surely as Prudence she looks not more than sixteen, and it is a more or less commonly accepted fiction that a female is only as old as she looks. The story is by Agnes Johnson. It is a craftsmanlike piece of work, especially that part of it which is devoted to the draughting of the leaders. These have more than a distinct comedy flavor; there is always present the literary touch. Miss Hulette is supported among others by Flora Finch and Riley Chamberlin. These two unusually clever character actors prove to be just the team that one knowing their individual capacity for mirthmaking would be led to expect. The general result is worthwhile. "Prudence the Pirate" will make good entertainment.

Scene from "Prudence the Pirate" (Pathe).

Miss Hulette as Prudence shows marked skill in comedy interpretation. She has the pep and abandon of young girlhood. Prudence is romantic, with a leaning to the piratical. She imposes her pranks on relatives and servants alike. Her misadventures have the natural effect of indefinitely postponing her formal debut in society even while her feminine ways are hastening the ensnaring of the smitten Astorbilt.

Miss Finch is seen as the prim aunt who unsuccessfully tries to keep her niece within the bounds of conventionality; but who likewise finds her matchmaking ambitions gratified when Prudence in her own way secures the hand-picked prize. Mr. Chamberlin is Meeks, the family butler. Meeks loses his standing as a temperance advocate when on the invitation of Prudence he looks on the punch when it is red; his position is placed in still greater jeopardy when the hastily gathered pirate crew of the Bucket of Blood kidnaps him and carries him away to don a pirate's garb. Barnett Parker is Astorbilt; he does a good bit of character drawing of the wealthy young man none too strong in his masculinity. Yet he does not overdo the part. The remainder of the cast gives satisfactory support.

Two Biograph Reissues

"The Battle at Elderbush Gulch," a Spectacular Two-Reeler, and "The Science of Crime," also Two Reels, for Early Release Through General Film.

Reviewed by Ben H. Grimm.

"The Battle at Elderbush Gulch."

"THE Battle at Elderbush Gulch," is a spectacular two-reel "Western" being reissued by Biograph. Action is the keynote in the film—action of the sort that made David W. Griffiith, who produced this picture, famous. In fact, there is so much action crammed into the two reels that one can hardly grasp it all. Several hundred Indians and white men in battle, and scenes in which the lens of the camera transferred to the film happenings taking place on half-mile-square areas furnish thrills aplenty. A whole street is burned during the course of the battle, as are also several detached cabins in which the white men take refuge.

Scene from "The Battle at Elderbush Gulch" (Biograph).

The story has its human-interest appeal, too, and in the cast are Mae Marsh, Robert Harron, Lillian Gish, Henry B. Walthall, Albert Paget and Charles Mailes. The big battle between the whites and Red Men is precipitated by two little pups—pets of a young girl and her sister, who have come to live in their settler-uncle's cabin. The little dogs are stolen by the chief's son so that he may take part in the Indians' dog feast. The Indian is shot by the girl's uncle, and the entire tribe is aroused and attacks the settlement. Here the battle scenes occur, and the few remaining white men are succored by the soldiers just as they are making their last stand.

Excitement is kept at a high pitch throughout, and this picture is sure to go well. It will be released through the General Film Service on October 24.

"The Science of Crime."

"The Science of Crime," a two-reel Biograph reissue, although it has for its basic idea a rather old theme, compares favorably with some of the short-length subjects of more modern publications. The story is melodramatic, and deals with crime and the underworld. The young son of an eminent criminologist wins his first case as prosecuting attorney by proving a prisoner's criminal tendencies to be hereditary. A gangster who has been sent away by the young prosecutor's father is released after serving his sentence. The young prosecutor goes slumming and the gangster sees his chance for revenge. In a dance hall a fight is started, during the course of which the youth is shot in the head. He is brought to the den of the gangster and his gang, and when he recovers consciousness it is found that he has lost his memory. He becomes a skilled criminal, and at a social function steals a necklace from the girl he was once engaged to. His father, the criminologist, is put on the case. The gangster betrays the youth, who has grown a beard, and his father is the main witness against him. His father's words as to hereditary criminality bring back the young man's memory, and the story ends happily.

The cast is made up of William Jefferson, Franklin Ritchie, Louise Vail and George Morgan.

"The Hidden Scar"

Five-Part Picture Produced for the World Program by Peerless Features Ethel Clayton and Holbrook Blinn.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

AS A BASIS for a screen production, Mrs. Owen Bronson's story offers an oft-repeated but interesting theme. Ethel Clayton plays the role of an attractive and pure-minded young woman, according to the synopsis of the story handed to the writer, who falls a prey to the wiles of a once wealthy but now degenerate man, who upon being mortally injured by thugs, dies, leaving his home and an annuity to the young woman and the nameless child she bore him. Later she marries a clergyman whose parents live next door to her new home, and to whom the skeleton of her life becomes known through a cohesion of circumstances, a remark innocently dropped by his friend and physical trainer, and the unearthing of a photograph of the dead man by the child, at an inopportune moment.

As we see the story presented on the screen there is nothing to lead us to suppose that the once wealthy derelict is the father of the child. On the contrary, the impression given as he sits beside her at a table at the cabaret where she makes a living by dancing, and says to her "Dear little girl, you seem to be in trouble; is there anything I can do to help you?" or words to this effect, is, that in the heart of the derelict there still smoulders a spark of manliness, and that the leaving of all his worldly goods to the fallen woman is merely a posthumous act of charity. This false impression is no doubt due primarily to a poorly constructed scenario, as well as lack of foresight on the part of the director, all of which could have been modified by explanatory subtitles.

While Ethel Clayton has been allotted a role in which there should have been opportunities, Holbrook Blinn has been given a comparatively small part, the value of which could be summed up in one heroic bit wherein he points out to the clergyman the fallacy of preaching one thing and practising another. The result is that in place of turning his wife, who has degenerated in his sight to the Magdalene class, from his door, he practises the forgiving spirit of which he has preached.

Scene from "The Hidden Scar" (World).

Much could be done to improve the action of this production which in its present shape carries too little significance.

A Trio of Kalems

"The Yellow Hand," Eleventh Episode in "The Girl from 'Frisco" Serial—"A Daring Chance," a "Hazard of Helen," and "A Sauerkraut Symphony," Latest Ham and Bud Comedy.

Reviewed by Ben H. Grimm.

"The Yellow Hand."

THE eleventh two-reel episode of "The Girl From 'Frisco" series, titled "The Yellow Hand," is pure melodrama, and is sure to go well with audiences that like their thrills dealt out raw. Director James W. Horne has gone the limit in order to get the proper atmosphere into the visualization of Robert Welles Ritchie's story, particularly so in the acquisition of a score of Chinamen, who, in the picture, are members of the Dragon Brotherhood. Plenty of fighting occurs during the action of the plot, and its element of mystery centers attention on the screen throughout. Not once is the spectator's curiosity as to the identity of the owner of the "yellow hand" satisfied—all that is seen is the work of that mysterious being, who controls the nefarious operations of the Dragon Brotherhood, the strongest Chinese Tong.

A murder committed in an office across the court from the office occupied by Barbara Brent's father leads to her obtaining the "death seal" of the Tong. The seal is seen by her Chinese servant, who is a member of the Dragon Brotherhood. Through the servant, who tries to strangle her, Barbara learns the location of the Brotherhood's headquarters. It is when she, together with her father and John Wallace, goes to investigate the den that all the fighting occurs. The owner of the "yellow hand" eludes the trio and sinks out of sight into a sewer. The murder is explained by a white man who has been smuggling Chinese women into the den, and who was the murdered man's accomplice.

Marin Sais and Tom Boardman play the leads in this episode,

Scene from "The Yellow Hand" (Kalem).

and are supported by Ronald Bradbury, Frank Jonasson, and Edward Clisbee.

"A Daring Chance."

In this number of the "Hazards of Helen" railroad series, Billy Boy, a youngster of tender years, takes as much chance with his young life as does Helen Gibson with hers. The reel is refreshingly lacking in the deeply villainous themes seen in this series heretofore. Excitement reaches a high pitch when the little boy, through a series of circumstances, is left alone on a racing gasoline-driven handcar. He is traveling to certain death through collision with a stalled train, when Helen is notified of the little fellow's plight. She boards the engine of the special and starts after the boy. The engine and the hand car race side by side. Just as the handcar is about to collide with the stalled car Helen reaches down from the cab of the engine and swings the boy to safety. This scene is exciting. Beside Helen Gibson and Billy Boy, there are in the cast: George Routh, P. S. Pembroke, and G. A. Williams. Directed by E. W. Matlack.

"A Sauerkraut Symphony."

"A Sauerkraut Symphony" is more humorous than many recent Ham and Bud releases. The humor is rather broad, though, and it is the work of the comedians themselves, rather than the story, that cause the laughs. Ham, Bud, and Ethel Teare are assisted in this reel by Henry Murdoch. Most of the action of the story takes place in a sauerkraut factory, where Ham and Bud work, and if sauerkraut is made the way these two make it we don't blame them for wanting to go on strike because their wages are paid in sauerkraut. Ethel is the daughter of the sauerkraut magnate, and Henry Murdoch is the anarchist who wants to blow up all sauerkraut factories.

Triangle Program

"A Corner in Colleens," Amusing Irish Comedy with Bessie Barriscale, presented by Thomas H. Ince; "A Sister of Six," Stirring California Drama of the Fine-Arts, with Bessie Love; Both Five Reels and An Amusing Two-Reel Keystone, "She Loved a Sailor."

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison

"A Corner in Colleens."

"A CORNER in Colleens" deals with the sweetly wild Irish girl so charmingly portrayed by "The Dutchess" in her many novels and a close kin of our American tomboy. She is the composite product of vigorous health and warm sympathies, the former stirring her rampant blood to rebellion, the latter, a native characteristic, reaching out like the tendrils of a flower toward those within reach of her womanly pity, causing her to be a delightful admixture of feminine and boyish qualities often misunderstood.

Bessie Barriscale impersonates one of a bunch of Colleens raised by a humerous old lady of combative tendency, intent on proclaiming the greatness of the Irish, another native characteristic, and Bessie gets it over with astonishing vivacity, although she plays the part better than she looks it. She is at her impish tricks, a happy child of the open, when the owner of the property on which she lives, a young American who has inherited it from his grandfather, comes to inspect his inheritance, and the two fall in love, he with simple and direct sincerity, she with all the indirectness and contrariness of her sex in its extreme expression.

Not until he gets mixed up in a political mess, however, and proves himself every inch a man in the face of danger, does the colleen really soften, and then she gives herself to him in wifehood, with all the fervor of her proud and pure young heart.

"A Sister of Six."

"A Sister of Six" is the story of California life in all its picturesque variety over a half century ago, and it is both finely typed and admirably handled. It relates to a violent dispute over land on which there is a vein of gold, between the rightful owners, seven little orphans headed by Bessie Love, the others entirely too near of an age to be considered brothers and sisters, but that is a matter of minor consequences. They are active and amusing in their small roles. The children are legally defended by an old sailor uncle of wealth, most astonishingly conventional for a sailor, and physically by a manly young head vaquero in love with Bessie. The action is stirring in the battle between men attacking the ranch and those defending it, but there is practically no element of suspense and only a limited attempt at characterization during the early scenes.

Some of the latter are very pretty. Without them the story would fall to one of mere movement. Action amounts to practically nothing unless deep human interest and sympathy are stirred by the adequate portrayal of interesting and sympathetic human qualities in the principal characters. Miss Love does full justice to her role, as do all members of the cast, but the sun of human interest in the story of action that subordinates characterization has long passed the meridian.

"She Loved a Sailor."

"She Loved a Sailor" has the vim, the ingenuity, the thrill and the sparkle of the Keystone comedy at its best. It will be a winner with the audience wherever shown.

"Love Never Dies"

Bluebird Photoplays, Inc., Presents Five-Part Production Inspired by Mendelssohn's "Spring Song."

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

A STORY to be a good story must be inspired by reason as well as sentiment; and one reputed to be inspired by a musical composition such as Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," which is merely a tone picture of the composer's conception of the awakening of spring, is apt to be of impoverished consistency and overbalanced by sentimentalism. In the present instance the story reflects so slightly the conception of the great composer that one wearies of a production that boasts not even a substantial moral basis.

Ruth Stonehouse, beautiful, graceful and talented as we know her to be, is cast in the role of a young girl who at the loss of her mother is adopted by a rich and heartless uncle, and later runs away with a former sweetheart and lives with him for some time unmarried. The uncle, infuriated at discovering the girl in this compromising position, has the man, a musician, by the way, arrested, while he seizes the girl to drag her back to his gloomy home. A friendship formed with another musician who has been appointed musical director at the Paris Grand Opera, forms a loophole of escape for her. Leaping from her uncle's carriage at an opportune moment she flees to the apartment of said director, and hurries away with him to Paris. Here she becomes a famous dancer, and eventually injures one of her feet so seriously that she is obliged to be carried from the stage at the moment when her former lover discovers that an opera which he has written has been stolen by the musical director, and comes to denounce her as an accomplice. A happy reunion of the pair is arranged for at the close of the picture.

Scene from "Love Never Dies" (Bluebird).

Some very beautiful locations have been chosen in staging this picture. The interior settings are also pleasing. The dancing, as is frequently the case in moving picture productions is unprofessional and apt to elicit ridicule.

Playing opposite Ruth Stonehouse is Franklyn Farnum. Others of the cast are Dorothy Clark, Kingsley Benedict, Maurice Kusell, Arthur Hoyt, Mrs. Witting, Wm. Canfield, Wadsworth Harris, and T. D. Crittenden.

"Her Father's Son"

Oliver Morosco Picture of Befo' de War and During It—Vivian Martin Has a Charmingly Pretty Role.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

ANY picture attracts mostly because the cloth of its fancy seems to the spectator to be of like material with his own dream fabrics. The most recent Morosco film for the Paramount, "Her Father's Son," is a picture for young women. Its prettiness flatters the spectator. The scene painter and builder, the camera with the director behind it, the players, every one a courtier for the spectator's favor, succeed in persuading him that he can appreciate how gracious is the life the soul would like to live, if the soul could have its way. It tells a befo' the war story, and is set in some glorious plantation of Virginia. There is nothing ugly in it at all, and the tale is attractive rather than strong.

Scene from "Her Father's Son" (Morosco).

Lacking a good heroine, it would have lacked almost everything; but Vivian Martin has the lead, and she is as good a leader as Stonewall Jackson when there's a pretty story to be carried through. It really is no easy job she has here, but she gets away with it in splendid shape, and every last jovial and kindly-hearted nigger in the cast helps her in the big job of pleasing the audience. Helen Jerome Eddy is also very good in the pleasing line. Herbert Standing plays an old Virginia fire-eater after the correct tradition. Alfred Vosburgh as a Union lieutenant, and Jack Lawton as a Confederate, are what they should be. And we mustn't forget Mammy Cloe by Lucille Ward, or Mose by Tom Bates, "dem colored folks," who are helped out by excellent subtitles.

Director William Taylor deserves more credit than any of them. He had a first class camera man in Homer Scott, and made good use of his talent. He knew that his leading suit in this picture was romance and not reality, and he put his efforts into making the scenes thoroughly romantic with great success. That he didn't bother to be letter perfect at every turn of the action, leaves a few chances for the experts to be critical—these are few. Romance can go only just so far—it needs to believe in itself. The plot gave the director one or two hard places. He and his heroine have done good work getting over them.

"The Black Sheep of the Family"

Five-Reel Red Feather Production Tells Story of Erring Youth Redeemed by Sorrow and Tribulations.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

IT WOULD be impossible for a production so full of incident as this by Frank M. Wiltermood and Jay Hunt to fail in holding the interest to some degree. But the wealth of incident is after all the chief weakness of the story. Vital happenings are permitted to occur in the most casual manner, losing much of the force that would have been given them by preparing the mind of the observer in advance.

The story concerns four young people, a brother and sister from two families, with two love affairs resulting. The parts are taken by Francelia Billington, Jack Holt, Paul Byron and Helen Leslie. Bert, portrayed by Paul Byron, proves to be a weak character. He gambles away the fraternity funds at college and later is falsely suspected of the murder of a girl in a cabaret. His friend, Kenneth, in love with Esther, tries to raise money to save Bert's honor, and when the graver crime is committed still remains true to his friend.

A detective named Collins plays an important role, the part being taken by Gilmore Hammond. Collins is Kenneth's rival for the hand of Esther. He also comes to Bert's aid during the college scrape, but only on condition that Esther will marry him. The girl consents and the marriage occurs. The character of Collins is not sharply drawn; he is a villain one minute and a hero the next. This is one of the weak features of the story. Another weak feature is found in the closing scenes when Bert is cleared of the murder charge, but is allowed to remain under a cloud as regards his financial transactions.

The cast is an agreeable one and the story value is quite strong, but the faults of construction almost overbalance these merits.

"Charity?"

Initial Subject of Frank Powell Productions Reflects in a Dramatic Way Recent Revelations as to the Care of Juvenile Wards.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

THE first subject to issue from the studio of Frank Powell Productions, Inc., is "Charity?" a picture reflecting in a strongly dramatic manner recent controversies over and investigations into the care of New York's wards of tender age. It is a story with a moral, a plea for the conservation of child life, physically and otherwise. It shows how the channels of crime, of thievery, of prostitution, may be fed by recruits from orphan asylums—through the connivance of those whose interests are financial while seemingly benevolent. The story was written by Linda A. Griffith and adapted and produced by Mr. Powell. In a foreword the producer states that it is not the intention of the author to represent the story as reflecting conditions in all institutions devoted to the care of children, but that the basic facts were derived from actual occurrences described in existing reports.

The main incident of the story is the trial for murder of a young woman charged with the death of her infant. On the witness stand she tells what has happened in her family since her birth. Dissolving views reveal the apology for a home, the drunken father, the mother working in a sweatshop, the increasing family, the death of the parents, the taking over of the children by a "home," the treatment of the children, including neglect, abuse, scant feeding; the running away of the brother and the sister, the false imprisonment of the former, the hardships of the latter, the release and rehabilitation of the brother and the acquittal of the sister when she convinces the court that her child died of starvation.

Creighton Hale has the role of Jimmie Fleming, the brother. His youthful face well fits the character of the boy who is eventually rescued from the slough and converted into a successful lawyer. Linda Griffith is his sister Mary, whose dramatic recital on the stand holds all under its spell. Sheldon Lewis is the father, Marie Bruce the mother. Veta Searl is the "little orphan girl," a first performance and a distinct "find."

Scene from "Charity?" (Powell).

Morgan Jones is the counsel for the defense—a real pleader—and Henry Hallam is the prosecuting attorney. A long and strong cast support these players. The picture is well staged as well as finely acted.

No time is lost in the beginning in getting into the atmosphere of the story. Scenes of New York, of "east side, west side," are shown.

The subject is a powerful one; it holds and it moves. While the major portion of the tale is in shadow, nevertheless there is a denouement which "sends them away happy." It is a story with a purpose, a great purpose, the purpose of making men and women think, and should induce them to act in the direction of making lighter the burdens of the little unfortunates who are thrown upon the care of the community.

"The Iron Woman"

A Popular Players Feature from the Book by Margaret Deland—Distributed by the Metro Pictures Corporation.

Reviewed by W. Stephen Bush.

NANCE O'NEIL takes the leading part in this feature, which is built on the novel by Margaret Deland. It may be doubted whether the novel ever possessed enough dramatic materials to spin into five thousand feet of film without endangering the interest and attention of the audience.

The novel's chief merit has always been considered to be the cleverness of the narrative rather than the strength of the plot. With these difficulties to contend with the director has created some strong scenes; he has succeeded in producing the atmosphere, a matter of much importance in a film play of this kind; he has given us good settings throughout. Miss O'Neil gave as good a characterization of the "Iron Woman" as possible. The light and shade in her acting is always strong. There is a certain appeal in her work, but the subtle shades of character and emotion sometimes escape her.

Scene from "The Iron Woman" (Metro).

There are two great moments in the play. One is the scene where a mother recalls her son who is engulfed in a consuming passion to his better senses by revealing her own weakness and frailty. The other comes in the scene when the Iron Woman realizes that her kindness to the son has been fraught with evil consequences.

Mutual Program

"The Waster," With Richard Bennet, a Decided Success; "A Woman's Daring," a Good Story; Both Five Reels.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

"The Waster."

"THE Waster" steps out to the front with a characterization so perfect that incident is a matter of secondary consequence, as in all fine plays. We remember Shakespeare by Hamlet, Othello, Shylock and all the rest, not by the plots. The same is true of all great novels. Yet our producers have been clinging to the decayed theatrical idea, an inheritance from melodrama, that "action" is the thing. Action, plot, story interest and all that arrests and holds attention grow out of human nature. The characterization is that of a man absorbed in a congenial literary pursuit which pays him well at times, enough for a comfortable living, and at other times finds him overdrawing his bank account. The joy of his life, work far removed from drudgery, lies in the release of what his creative imagination formulates.

The leading character, impersonated with great skill by Mr. Richard Bennet, is that of the author, popularly regarded as impractical by gentlemen who depend upon the ups and downs of the stock market because they get theirs in large blocks with small effort, while the literary worker earns single-handed all he receives. The well-submerged theme is that common human egotism, such as we all possess, causes the easy-money man to regard the brainy fellow who earns his, with a good-nature tolerance not unmixed with disdain. The author sympathizes and sweetens human weakness—the "business" man preys on it. But this theme is most carefully hidden in a bouquet of story interest. The author falls in love with a banker's daughter, squanders his entire bank account in the courtship and is brought face to face with the necessity of earning money to support his wife, at a moment when he is deeply engaged in a work that may not pay him for some time to come.

He is advised to go at the problem in a "regular" way and is induced to abandon his perilous profession for something promising greater returns. He is refused opportunity to work in the offices of old and wealthy friends—his profession has given him social entree among the rich—and he finally markets some worthless mining stock on a commission, his commissions being paid in stock. Here is where the business man's chance comes in. The mine proves to be a melon instead of a lemon, and the author, who has possessed plenty of brains all along, suddenly turns them to account, aided by chance and makes scoop after scoop in the stock market, catching the banker himself short and winning the daughter.

Mr. Bennet's impersonation is one that gradually warms the spectator into a condition of kindly sympathy until the story might be almost anything, developed in any one of a thousand ways, and yet hold strongly to the last. Therein, not in old theatrical tricks, lies the essential element of success.

"A Woman's Daring."

"A Woman's Daring" sets forth the unusual case in drama where a supposedly intelligent woman attempts to exercise some common sense in revealing what has the appearance of being an error in her past, and which often becomes one through secrecy. The heroine, very charmingly portrayed by Winifred Greenwood, is a country girl led into a false marriage with an adventurer, one who has a wife living, who is arrested shortly after the ceremony at the instigation of his first and only lawful wife. The betrayed girl has a child, but a large inheritance from a miserly uncle enables her to cover the mistake and raise her child to the age of five as a widow. She then marries a fine fellow, an investment broker, and becomes the object of his devotion, while secretly loved by a friend of his, a physician who is made coroner. Her betrayer reappears and is hired by the husband as a chauffeur. In this capacity the father of her child enters upon a systematic blackmail.

The wife and mother does not appear to be daring until the chauffeur is discharged and threatens exposure. She goes to her husband's office to make a confession, meets the chauffeur bent on a mission of exposure and accidently kills him while struggling to defend her own life. Her husband is arrested for murder—he has threatened the chauffeur and is found with the body and the case comes before the coroner, secretly in love with her. It is at the trial that she exhibits courage to save her husband. The coroner thinks better of a scheme to get rid of the husband and discharges him without implicating the wife. The story is handled faultily at times, and the characterization is not always strong, but it ends consistently and happily.

"A Prince in a Pawnshop"

Five-Part Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature Presents Barney Bernard in the Title Role.

Reviewed by Margaret I MacDonald.

THE play by Marie de Sarlabous and Andre de Segurola has had trouble in adapting itself to the lengthy accounting required in five reels of moving picture film, as evidenced by the production made by the Vitagraph Company featuring the noted actor Barney Bernard. While it is possible that the adapter had his troubles in making the goods fit the design, still we have reason to believe that he might have handed the director a better script than that from which the picture was made.

Scene from "A Prince in a Pawnshop" (Vitagraph).

Barney Bernard as David Solomon, a Hebrew of marvelous philanthropy and original philosophy of life, is inimitable. The Hebrew character as he interprets it in David Solomon is particularly lovable; and the philosophy attributed to David Solomon, that the poor must pay for the rich, and that there is no reason why he should be the loser because he helps the poor, we must admit is somewhat convincing. There seems to have been difficulty in telling the story on the screen without a monotonous series of exits and entrances from bank to pawnshop and vice versa, on the part of David Solomon, all of which is made bearable by the colorful acting of Barney Bernard. The early part of the picture in which most of the fine moral teaching of the play is revealed is forceful and interesting, while the latter part becomes more or less tiresome with the obvious effort to stretch the story out to the desired length of the film. The anticipated birth of a child to the downtrodden woman, Mary Brown, the cast-off sweetheart of David Solomon's frivolous son, presented in allegory, is not particularly effective, and could easily be dispensed with, as could also the spirit of poverty which has been introduced by means of double exposure.

"The Lash"

A Lasky Production in Which Marie Doro Takes the Leading Part With Striking Ability and Success.

Reviewed by W. Stephen Bush

THIS is a big picture. The plot may be improbable and not entirely consistent, but the part of Sidonie, the leading figure in the play, is rendered by Marie Doro in such fine fashion, with such consummate camera skill, that the audience is more than willing to forgive minor defects. Nor is the acting of Marie Doro the picture's only claim to pre-eminence even in the Lasky school.

Here was a plot which afforded much room for daring action and stirring events on the turbulent sea beating against a rockbound coast. The director wisely subordinated the magnificent and overpowering effects of the landscape to the main theme of the story and as a result all the great realistic superiority of the screen over the stage comes into fullest play. The little shell of a boat is tossed and upset after many perils of thrilling realism, of which the passage through a marvelous natural gateway and arch above the sea is not the least exciting. The Breton atmosphere is reproduced in a way that commands my unreserved admiration; costumes, manners, types, even the least detail of the crude architecture of the fishing village are all there. They give the picture its extraordinary background and its almost stereoscopic perspective. Any word in praise of the settings and of the superb photography seems fully deserved. I know of no recent picture which offers so much to the eye and the mind at the same time.

"It May Be Your Daughter"

Moral Uplift Society's Five-Part Subject Is An Unadorned Tale of Man's Villainy Against Womanhood.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

THE Moral Uplift Society of America has produced a five-part subject entitled "It May Be Your Daughter." The aim of the picture as set forth in introductory leaders, is to warn the young against the dangers of the city and the parents against folly of violent antagonism to rather than calm reasoning with girls inclined to be wayward. With these premises there will be little disposition to quarrel. It is in the working out of the story, however, that friends of the motion picture will find ground for criticism. The treatment is frankly melodramatic, accentuating the sensational.

There will be strong inclination on the part of many who witness the production of the picture to feel that its general theme does not square with the morality and the uplift implied by the corporate name of the maker; that its tendency is not uplifhting. The good men and the good woman portrayed are submerged by the unspeakably vicious representatives of mankind. It is not a subject that can be considered as either wholesome entertainment or good amusement and, as already intimated, is sure to offend many in every audience.

"It May Be Your Daughter" is one of those pictures that the careful exhibitor will prefer to see for himself before exhibiting on his screen.

Aeroplanes in "Grant" Episode

Spectacular Views Secured for "The Missing Heiress"—Other Late October Kalem Releases.

THROUGH the daring of George Larkin, star of Kalem's new series, "Grant, Police Reporter," and Cameraman Zangrelli, that company secured what is declared to be the first "close-up in an aeroplane" for "The Missing Heiress," second episode of that series.

Screen productions in which aeroplanes have been used in the past have usually suffered because it was possible to show the flyers only in distant views, while studio scenes were necessary to show close-up views of the character in the aeroplane. To overcome this weakness Kalem shipped two Dunn hydroplanes to the Jacksonville studio when production was started on "The Missing Heiress." When the scenes were taken the two hydroplanes were flying side by side, less than twenty feet apart, with Larkin in one and the cameraman in the other. The scenes have a gripping effect, especially since the animation and bustle of life on solid earth may be seen many hundreds of feet below.

Considerable argument was necessary to induce the professional aviators in charge of the aeroplanes to take the risk incident to flying so close together. These air scenes form the climax to the episode of the newspaper series released Friday, October 27. One of the most thrilling scenes shows Dare-Devil Larkin leaping through the air from the moving hydroplane to the rope ladder of an ocean liner.

In addition to Ollie Kirkby, co-starred in this Kalem series by Robert Welles Ritchie, the cast in this episode includes Robert Ellis, Arthur Albertson, William McKey, Mary Taylor Ross, Bessie Dial and G. Chira. The story finds Grant solving the mysterious disappearance of an heiress.

"The Bogus Booking Agents" is the "Ham Comedy" listed for release on this week's Kalem schedule, being issued Tuesday, October 24. Ham, Bud, Ethel Teare and Henry Murdoch are seen in a lively comedy in which all four members are supposed to be stage-struck.

Marin Sais and True Boardman, stars of "The Girl from 'Frisco," make their bow in this closing week of the October schedule in "The Harvest of Gold," twelfth episode of that two-reel series. The plot of the story is laid in the orange groves of California, that industry of the Golden State furnishing a picturesque background for the adventurous action.

Ronald Bradbury, Frank Jonasson, Edward Clisbee and Hart Hoxie are others in the cast of this episode. The direction of the series, which is also from the pen of Robert Welles Ritchie, is in the capable hands of James W. Horne.

"A Daring Chance" is the latest "Hazard of Helen" scheduled for October release. In this episode, issued Saturday, October 21, Helen Gibson contributes a daring feat in saving Billy Boy, the Kalem youngster, from a runaway electric speeder.

World Films in Advance

Schedule of Productions Shows Releases Completed Up to Next May.

UNDER the direction of William A. Brady, the World Film Corporation continues the policy of completing its output far in advance, and now finds itself in a position to announce all of its releases up to and including May 29, more than seven months ahead.

There are several points of unusual interest and significance about this situation in addition to the main feature, which is that no other such feat has ever been accomplished in the motion picture business, so that the present performance sets a record which seems quite likely to stand for some time.

The completion of a large number of photoplays in this manner will naturally have the effect of stabilizing the World product, acting as an assurance to exhibitors and the public that the pictures are not hurriedly made in order to connect with an imminent release date, and that by the time they are due for delivery there will have been ample opportunity for the polishing process wherever needed.

Another and still more potential angle of this accumulation of picture plays, which seems to have escaped general attention, is that the World Film Corporation is increasing its actual, substantial assets at a rapid and important rate. The mere possession of so many completed and paid for plays, for which there is a large and increasing market demand, is a matter of very considerable commercial interest pointing to singularly far-sighted sagacity of management.

The list of World-Brady pictures now complete and awaiting release is as follows:

October 16, Ethel Clayton and Holbrook Blinn, in "The Hidden Scar"; October 23, Gail Kane, in "The Scarlet Oath"; October 30, Lew Fields, in "The Man Who Stood Still"; Nov. 6, Robert Warwick and Gail Kane, in "The Heart of a Hero"; Nov. 13, Ethel Clayton and Carlyle Blackwell, in "The New South"; Nov. 20, Alice Brady, in "Bought and Paid For"; Nov. 27, Gail Kane, in "The Men She Married"; Dec. 4, Robert Warwick, supported by June Elvidge and Mollie King, in "All Man"; Dec. 11, Clara Kimball Young, in "The Rise of Susan"; Dec. 18, Marie Dressler, in "Tillie's Day Off"; Dec. 25, E. K. Lincoln and June Elvidge, in "The World Against Him"; Jan. 2, Alice Brady, in "A Woman Alone"; Jan. 9, Gail Kane and Carlyle Blackwell, in "On Secret Service"; Jan. 16, Robert Warwick, supported by Doris Kenyon, in "A Movie Romance"; Jan. 23, Gail Kane, in "Her God"; Jan. 30, Ethel Clayton and Carlyle Blackwell, in "The Wall Beyond"; Feb. 6, Robert Warwick, in "The Man Who Forgot"; Feb. 13, Alice Brady, in "The Girl and the Wager"; Feb. 20, Marie Dressler, in "Tillie's Divorce Case"; Feb. 27, Alice Brady, in "Darkest Russia"; March 6, Ethel Clayton and Carlyle Blackwell, in "Infatuation"; March 13, all star cast, in "The Honor of the Waynes"; March 20, Robert Warwick, in "Lafitte, Pirate"; March 27, Marie Dressler, in "Tillie's Love Affair"; April 3, Alice Brady, in "The Madness of Helen"; April 10, Lew Fields, in "The Castaway"; April 17, Ethel Clayton and Carlyle Blackwell, in "The Evil Way"; April 24, all star cast, in "Shall We Forgive Her?"; May 1, Alice Brady, in "Sinners"; May 8, Marie Dressler, in "Tillie's Elopement"; May 15, Robert Warwick, in "The Page Case"; May 22, Ethel Clayton and Carlyle Blackwell, in "Girls Astray"; May 29, Alice Brady, in "Fifi."

FOREIGN RIGHTS TO "THE YELLOW MENACE" IN DEMAND.

The Atlas Film Company closed negotiations during the past two weeks, whereby they acquired the rights to "The Yellow Menace" for South America and India, and this company has already begun the exploitation of this serial in their newly acquired territory.

Numerous bids have been received from applicants for other foreign countries, but are being held in abeyance until a disposition of the rights has been made for England and the British dependencies.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Banners.

POSSIBLY on account of the infantile paralysis scare, which is particularly bad in Brooklyn, local exhibitors seem to have stopped hiring banners and use instead home-made banners done on manila paper. Probably the condition is the same in other parts of the country. Manila paper is less expensive than canvas, but it is not the material, but the lettering that makes for cost, and if the lettering can be done around the house, there are many schemes than a paper foundation over boards. If the banner can be given protection from the direct drive of the rain, a water color paint on a white varnished surface can do as well, or perhaps the sign can be framed behind glass. The initial cost of the glass in a single strip will be large unless the exhibitor can pick up a sheet of glass wide enough at some plate glass place. Here the lettering can be done on white boards in water color and washed off, two boards being used, one for the current sign and one in progress of preparation. Where there is no direct drive, but some moisture, the pigments can be mixed with linseed oil and applied and removed with little difficulty if the surface to which the paint is applied is made glossy with a waterproof varnish. There are so many schemes for avoiding the makeshift appearance of manila paper signs that something should be done to present the appearance of real show work or the signs would better be omitted. There are some signs made with black letters that can be fitted into frames, and where these are not procurable they can be made by any local painter with tin or block wood letters. We passed once the hand-lettered "poster." Do not let us get back to those primitive days.

At It Again.

Jay Emanuel, of the Ridge Avenue, Philadelphia, sends along a certificate for "sixteen shares of good photoplay," the same being "The Yellow Menace." This is the sheet, which is 7 by 8½ inches

No. 173436

...YELLOW MENACE...

Good Photoplay Assurance

In Consideration of Seeing

THE YELLOW MENACE, The Ridge Avenue Theatre

1734-36 RIDGE AVENUE, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Hereby Assures MR. PROGRESSIVE PATRON or PATRONESS

for Sixteen weeks of Good, Clean, Exciting and Instructive Dramas for a period beginning with the First Episode and ending with the Sixteenth on these premises located at Ridge Avenue & Eighteenth St., and known as The Ridge Avenue Theatre.

"The Yellow Menace" deals with the fanatical ambition of Ah Singh, portrayed with masterly art by Edwin Stevens, to combine all the yellow races, Chinese, Japanese, Hindus, Malays and Polynesians, into one mighty army to conquer the United States. Ah Singh invades America and laughs scornfully at the traps set for him by the secret service and other governmental agencies and terrorizes the land. This forms the substance of the 16 episodes, throughout the course of which, however, there runs a tender love story. The first half of the first episode is taken in the Orient. The scenes of the entire balance of the serial are laid in this country.

Thousands of U. S. Soldiers Engaged in Numerous Battles and Mob Scenes.

In Witness Whereof, The Ridge Ave. Theatre has caused this assurance to be executed at 1734-36 Ridge Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa. But the same is not binding until the Patrons have seen the First episode on Thursday, September 14th, 1916.

RIDGE AVENUE THEATRE

SEAL _____ SEAL Jay Emanuel Manager

The cut gives the general idea, the copy can be altered to suit whatever serial you are running. Jay doesn't say he got it anywhere in particular, so probably he wrote it himself.

Colored to Match.

The Garfield, Chicago, does all its printing for "The Yellow Menace" on yellow stock and starts off with "Your country calls!!!" and adds "on you to enlist at 2844 Madison street, on Friday, September 15, to see the first episode of 'The Yellow Menace.'" This works well with the nature of the production. As usual school children tickets are given out for the first episode, for the management knows the value of the children as press agents.

Be Careful.

A theater starts off a recent program with "If you knew that by coming to the theater every remaining day you could win the Overland contest, would you come? Of course you would. Somebody is going to win. It is pure chance." Then it mails out the programs to its patrons with this admission that the contest is a lottery and nothing more. If the Post Office Inspectors ever got hold of one of those programs—!!! Be careful and frame your contests so that they do not violate the lottery law. It can be done and generally can be made to yield a better return if you make it a voting contest. If you run a lottery the provisions of the law are clear. To admit so boldly that it is a matter of chance is foolish in the extreme. It is a virtual plea of guilty.

A Three in One.

Hunt's theaters, Wildwood, N. J., seem to be all over the place, for the Casino, Comique and Crest Pier run all summer, and the Avenue starts in for the winter season when they close. A single vest pocket with pages 2½ by 5½ covers the three shows, and does it adequately because an eight point is made the display type. The cut shows one in red on white, and they get a geranium red that works well. Another

HUNT'S CASINO THEATRE

Program from Aug. 21 to 27

Four Shows Daily, 2, 4, 7 and 9 o'clock

Monday, 21
Sessue Hawakawa, the noted Japanese actor in Alien Souls.

Tuesday, 22
Marie Dore in Common Ground. Peg O' The Ring, Chapter 12

Wednesday, 23
DeWolfe Hopper in Casey at the Bat.

Thursday, 24
Hazel Dawn in The Feud Girl

Friday, 25
Special Return Date
By request, Mary Pickford in Hulda from Holland. Burton Holmes Travels.

Saturday, 26
Frank Keenan in The Phantom.

Sunday, 27
Bessie Barriscale in The Sorrows of Love

Monday, 28
George Beban in Pasquale.

Each night a number of other interesting subjects are shown.

Hunt's Comique Theatre

Program from Aug. 21 to 27

Monday, 21
MARGUETTE CLARK in Molly Make Believe.

Tuesday and Wednesday, 22-23
Continuous shows from 2 to 11.30 both days.
FANNIE WARD, with Sessue Hawakawa, in the greatest photoplay ever produced by any company
The Cheat
This picture will be shown each day at 2.30, 4, 5.30, 7, 8.30 and 10.

Thursday, 24
MARGUERITE CLARK in Wild-flower.

Friday, 25
MARY PICKFORD in The Eternal Grind.

Saturday, 26
PAULINE FREDERICK in Audrey.

Sunday, 27
MARGUERITE CLARK in Mice and Men.

Monday, 28
DUSTIN FARNUM in The Virginian.

Each night a number of other interesting subject are shown.

program is black printed with white ink. Held in certain lights you can read it, but it looks horribly like an undertaker's advertisement, though its novelty will win through for it once. But just once.

All Type But Strong.

D. B. Baker, of the Rex, Ottumwa, Iowa, sends in a striking advertisement for "The Battle Cry of Peace," a half page up and down instead of across, and all type, and yet, through the layout, it is more striking then many advertisements with cuts would be. He cunningly plans to have a full half of the advertisement, giving the essential facts in a large type. Further details are in as small as leaded eight point, but interest has been gained with the larger matter and attention is held. Mr. Baker makes a half apology for a current vice picture, also lavishly advertised, but we cannot see that "great moral lesson" stuff. It's bunk no matter how many fool clergymen endorse it.

Meet Mr. Madden.

Pretty soon we hope you are going to get pretty well acquainted with C. L. Madden. He is doing the press work for the new Stillman theater, Cleveland, Ohio. The management turned the advertising over to Fuller and Smith, and Mr. Madden has been put in charge of the account. He has been put in charge for these advertising agents. He is going at it in the right way and promises to keep us posted. He reports that the scheme from P. T. A. of having a daily bulletin on the protective fence has worked well and promises to send in some photographs sent. All press matter for the papers goes out on a special sheet for newspaper copy and the set of stationery he sends is pretty to look at. When he gets under sail you are going to get to know him pretty well—so watch.

Programstuff.

If you can't go to Italy try this from the Victoria theater, Buffalo.

OUR LITTLE LESSON IN ADVERTISING.

"Bunk" is a boomerang!

If the VICTORIA boosted a picture to the skies, and you paid your dime to see something worth-while and in return spent a wretched hour viewing a second-rate film, you'd become vexed.

The VICTORIA would suffer. You'd shun us.

Thus would "BUNK" prove a boomerang!

The VICTORIA cannot afford to be untruthful in its advertising. Glance over the program for this week, and then figure out whether or not the VICTORIA has a right to crow like Chantecler over its features. There is Norma Talmadge in "Going Straight"; Mary Pickford in "Hulda from Holland"; Mary Fuller in "The Strength of the Weak"; Wallace Reid and Cleo Ridgley in "The House of Golden Windows" and a host of other Paramount and Triangle productions of the first rank.

Even though we should let loose and emitted a lot of redfire in telling you of our programs, we would not be handing you "bunk." VICTORIA advertising can be relied upon, for the programs of the future are just as good as those of the past. Just remember that the week of September 10th, Francis X. Bushman is coming in "The Private Officer," Pauline Frederick in "The Woman in the Case," Marguerite Clark in "Little Lady Eileen," and Marie Doro in "Common Ground." Each one is so good that it would be folly for the VICTORIA to boost them beyond their worth.

The above is why the VICTORIA has always been a 100 per cent. sucessful house. It's unparalleled success has been firmly built on

VICTORIA IDEAS — VICTORIA QUALITY
VICTORIA STANDARDS — VICTORIA NOVELTY
VICTORIA SELECTED PLAYS — VICTORIA MUSIC
VICTORIA METHODS.

THE VICTORIA
IS NOT MERELY A FAVORITE THEATER
It is a Standard Buffalo Institution. A Leader by Right.
A Guide to Others.

This is not alone good program copy, but it is a lesson in house management. They live up to their creed, too, by avoiding sensation and giving the best.

We'll Fool Him.

We are going to fool L. K. Burkitt, of the Lyric, Morrison, Ill., for he writes:

Please find several weeks of my program enclosed. I am back asking questions again.

What is your idea of the pink stock? I liked it well enough to give orders to use the white, and nothing else.

You will also notice that I have done away with most all the composition in the later issues. It seems to bring better results.

I put out one thousand of these every week, and the advertising more than pays for them. If I told you how much I made on them you would not believe me. I know you will say I have too much advertising. I have four bill peddlers, and two men that do nothing but go right with the peddlers. One of them is myself. I make sure my programs get just where I want them. What is your idea of so much composition? Do you think it is necessary?

Mr. Burkitt has a twelve page three by five inch program which he splits about 50-50 between the house and the outside advertiser, but with twelve pages he has plenty of space for the house and the other fellow as well. That is the point wherein he is fooled. So long as he does not permit the outside advertising to overshadow the house stuff, there is no reason in the world why he should not take this outside advertising and make the program better than self supporting. If he needed all the space for his house and instead used it for the outside stuff, then he would be doing himself and his house an injury, but he gets all he needs for himself and then sells the rest, and unlike some timid exhibitors, he makes a price for this outside stuff that makes him a profit. It is the same idea as though he sold his lobby billboards to national advertisers to the exclusion of his house bills. If he did that, he would be a fool, but if he papered his lobby attractively, there would be no reason in the world why he should not sell his side wall space to some cigarette or breakfast food concern. He has it, he does not need it, he makes it show him a profit. But if he needed the space himself and then sold it to someone else, he would be the loser. It is the same with the program. He takes what he needs first and sells the rest, and that is better than filling up the rest of the space with a lot of press agent junk that would interest few, if any. Program advertising is popular and profitable. Down where we sleep and stay Sundays a little house, the Homecrest, put out a weekly program with too much advertising, or rather too much intrusive advertising. Then they changed over to a better form and when the house closed for the summer, they actually kept the program going for the benefit of the outside advertisers, filling it with local stuff. It is not the advertising but the way it is handled that is objectionable, and Mr. Burkitt makes his visitors keep in their proper places. These two program pages will show what Mr. Burkitt has reference to in the matter of composition. One page shows a rather full announcement and the other less detail. The precise relative value of type and display is a matter of locality and ability. If you can tell about the subjects attractively and authoritatively, then we are inclined to favor more type than a bare announcement, but if you do not know just what the subjects are and write non-committally, then it is a waste of composition costs. It does not pay to spend

Null's Lunch Room
for Short Orders and Lunches
ASK WHERE WE ARE

Monday, July 17
PARAMOUNT PICTURES presents
the Distinguished Photoplay Star
THEODORE ROBERTS
in a picturized original
Mr. Grex of Monte Carlo
by C. Thomas Dupuis and
A remarkable forecast of the European War in a series of diplomatic incidents related by the Evil One. Others in the feature: Cyrus Blackwell, Frank Elliott, Dorothy Dixon,
Rupert H. Carpenter, Jack McDermott,
Lucien Littlefield. We want you to see this picture.
Matinee 5c and 10c Evening 5c and 15c

BILLIARD PARLOR
CIGARS CIGARETTES and TOBACCO
All Kinds of Soft Drinks
SHOE SHINING
PETER PULOS Next to Lyric Theatre

YOU can get and know
McALLISTER'S

Wednesday, Aug. 16
Paramount Special Presenting the Wonderful Star
Mary Pickford
Boosted to the sky in
The Foundling
Better than Madame Butterfly
Prices the same
Matinee, 5c and 10c Evening, 5c and 15c

Local Agent
SAXON CARS
with Continental Motors
6 cylinder, $815. 4 cylinder, $395
F. O. B. Detroit
S. J. REYHER

money on glittering generalities that read as though you do not know what is coming yourself. Mr. Burkitt does know and we think that it will pay to talk a little; not so much, perhaps, but three or four lines of the six point, opened with two point leads. The printer could do his part of the job better. He does better work on the advertisements than on the program, but this is because he is more familiar with straight job composition. It would be a good plan to get the foreman over to the theater now and then and permit him to glance over the reproductions in this department. If he is a good printer he will be interested and he will do better work.

Mr. Burkitt's pink is not half as bad as some other pinks we know of, but the all white program is better. The title page is well laid, the feature being a large T of parallel rule. In the cross bar is set "Quality Photoplays," while the upright carries the "Lyric" in heavy capitals, the only heavy type on the page. Here the pritner has shown good judgment. He can do better with the program proper in time.

In one program Mr. Burkitt lifts the Public Health Notice from Picture Theater Advertising. It does not make bad program matter, but it is too good a throwaway to be wasted in the program when there is so much good program material offered in the same volume.

For a Change.

We have said a lot about the Rowland and Clark theater programs, in Pittsburgh, but for a change they send in a newspaper half page for the Regent that is a nice thing to look at. They say a lot, but you get it a dose at a time and not all at once and you can read it all because it is cut into slices. It's about as nice an arrangement of a four feature advertisement as can be asked for, and please note the house talk that not only helps the house directly but which serves to keep the four announcements apart. If you cannot get the type easily, note that the lower part of the cross is an advertisement of ticket books, twelve fifteen cent admissions for a dollar and a half. Five empty ticket book covers entitles the holder to a leather card case and book holder—which is the new part of the wrinkle. And we'll bet it is a nice cover, for what they do, they do well.

Real Music.

The St. Denis, Montreal, has put in a thirty piece orchestra, and Manager Eugene L. Perry is shrewdly making capital of the fact that it is "the largest permanent orchestra in town. He calls it the Montreal Symphony Concert Orchestra. Of course this is part press work, but any musician knows that a real orchestra is one that is composed of men used to working together under one leader. A scratch orchestra can never take the place of a well trained body of men who work together every day, and Montreal really has reason to be proud of the formation of such an organization. It means something to musical Montreal.

Be Brief.

Do not run your contests too long. There is a theater in the northwest that has been running an automobile contest so long that we forget when it started, but it seems to be some time last year, and just when it was about time to quit the management announced that the contest had been extended a few months, but that the machine would be a 1917 model instead of a 1916. For months they have taken their advertising space to boom the car to the exclusion of house talks, and we fancy that everyone is heartily tired of the whole thing by now. If you have a contest, have it short and snappy. An eight weeks contest for a talking machine is better than a four months contest for an automobile. Select a prize that will get you through quickly.

No Outside Stuff.

Bert Hilburn, manager of the Columbia, Anadarko, Okla., does not believe in foreign advertising in his program for a new reason. He does not want to antagonize the local papers. We do not believe that a newspaper can honestly claim that the house sheet will take its business, and if the house sheet can take from the newspaper, the newspaper should be too much ashamed of itself to admit the fact. Mr. Hilburn writes:

